Program Notes

“Horizon is a new work for seven dancers centered around the idea of density. In this piece I endeavored to add as much as possible to the space in terms of dancers and movement. With multiple phrases occurring simultaneously, the dance takes the form of a constantly shifting universe full of activity. glacier, my preceding work was an exercise of stripping away in an effort to reduce movement to its least possible form. Working again with collaborators Michael Schumacher and set and lighting designer Robert Wierzel, we’ve done something different. Michael’s multiple rhythms and use of a live percussionist propel the actions onstage, supporting the dancer’s movement in a way that is unusual for us.”

—Liz Gerring, 2015
Since its inception in 1998, Liz Gerring Dance Company has been exploring nonnarrative, abstract movement, often derived from natural gesture. Movement is evolved from cause and effect rather than storytelling and is framed by independent media elements. The company is noted for its close collaboration with contemporary visual artists and a longtime association with electronic music composer Michael J. Schumacher. In 2001, Gerring and Schumacher, with the support of Kirk Radke, founded the nonprofit organization TonalMotion Inc., dedicated to the creation and presentation of movement and sound art. The Company is currently made up of seven dancers and regularly presents performances at the Baryshnikov Arts Center, Jacob’s Pillow Dance Festival, the Joyce Theater, and Danspace Project, among other venues. Its two most recent works, she dreams in code and glacier, were on New York Times journalist Alastair Macaulay’s top ten dance works of the year in 2011 and 2013, respectively.

Liz Gerring Dance Company is a program of TonalMotion Inc., a 501(c)3 non-profit corporation.
