About the Company

doug elkins choreography, etc. was established in summer 2009 as a way to brand independent dance, theater, and teaching projects for Doug Elkins. The umbrella has allowed for the creation of three award-winning works: Fräulein Maria, a loving deconstruction of The Sound of Music that began at DANCE NOW Joe's Pub in 2006 and, with the addition of theater directors Barbara Karger and Michael Preston, toured throughout North America from 2009 to 2012; Mo(or)town/Redux, a movement conversation with Shakespeare's Othello and José Limón's seminal The Moor's Pavane set to a Motown-inspired score (named by Alastair Macaulay of the New York Times as one of the Top Ten Dance Performances of the year); and Hapless Bizarre, a 2013 National Dance Project selection. The original Doug Elkins Dance Company was founded in 1988 with Ben Munisteri, David Neumann, Lisa Nicks, and Jane Weiner and debuted at Dance Theater Workshop (DTW)'s 11 O'Clock News series. The company disbanded following 15 years of national and international touring and multiple New York seasons at The Joyce Theater, The New Victory, 92nd Street Y Harkness Center for Dance, and Dance Theater Workshop.

Dance for Film on Location at Montclair State University is a project of the university's Office of Arts and Cultural Programming. With support from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation's Choreographers on Campus Initiative, three exceptional choreographers have worked with outstanding filmmakers to explore the art of dance when created especially for film, rather than as a document of a dance performance. The resulting short films have made their debuts in tandem with live performance pieces receiving their world premieres as part of Montclair State University's acclaimed Peak Performances series. The first, Soliloquy, was directed and choreographed by Heidi Latsky and debuted at Montclair State University's Alexander Kasser Theater in April, 2015. The second, Nora Chipaumire's Afro Promo #1 Kinglady, debuted at the Kasser in April, 2016. Doug Elkins's A Hundred Indecisions is the third and final film in the series. Montclair State students have played key roles in the development, production, and performance of each film. Student filmmakers have also created short documentaries to provide contextual insights for each film. All of the films and their supporting documentary materials are available online for Montclair State students and others to view on demand at danceforfilm.org.

A Brief Synopsis of Shakespeare's Othello

Shakespeare's 1603 tragedy centers on Othello, a respected general in the Venetian army, who falls victim to "the green-ey'd monster," jealousy. Othello and Desdemona, the daughter of a prominent Venetian, fall in love and elope. Early in their courtship, Othello had given Desdemona a handkerchief as a love token, and it is one of her dearest possessions. Othello regularly confides in his ensign Iago, whom he thinks of as one of his most trusted friends. But Iago secretly hates Othello and devises a plan to ruin him by insinuating that Desdemona has been unfaithful. Iago asks his own wife, Emilia, Desdemona's maidservant and close friend, to steal the handkerchief. Emilia refuses, but when Desdemona accidentally drops it, she cannot resist the urge to take it to please her husband. Iago takes the handkerchief from Emilia, places it in another soldier's bedroom, and later brings Othello to see the soldier with Desdemona's handkerchief in hand. Othello sees this as irrefutable proof that Desdemona is unfaithful. Consumed by irrational jealousy, he decides he must kill her. Desdemona protests her innocence, but an unhinged Othello smothers her to death. When Emilia realizes the unwitting role she played in her friend's death, she immediately confesses to Othello that Iago is to blame. Iago kills Emilia for speaking the truth about him. Overwhelmed with the realization that Desdemona was innocent and never stopped loving him, Othello kills himself. Iago refuses to explain his motivations for destroying Othello.

Limón's The Moor's Pavane

Choreographed by José Limón in 1949, The Moor's Pavane is a seminal modern dance piece with four dancers portraying Othello, Iago, Desdemona, and Emilia. Limón used the music of Henry Purcell, formal echoes of the pavane—a 17th-century European court dance—and the simple prop of the handkerchief to convey the plot and explore the themes of the play.

Motown

Beginning as a record label founded by Berry Gordy in 1960 in a tiny converted studio in downtown Detroit, the Motown sound itself became one of the most influential musical genres of the 20th century. It was one of the first real “cross-over music” movements, marrying the church music traditions of soul and American roots with pop music through a combination of orchestral and popular arrangements. The popularity of the music in mainstream culture allowed African-American performers to stand in the spotlight of the pop music scene, launching the careers of Marvin Gaye, Smokey Robinson, the Temptations, the Jackson Five, Diana Ross and the Supremes, and many others. The influence of this music can be found in many contemporary artists including the late Amy Winehouse, Adele, Raphael Saadiq, and Sharon Jones, to name a few.
