Program Notes

Spinning is as old as time. The industrious spider spins her web in an intricate process of pulling silk from a gland and casting out lines. Humans use tools—spindles, wheels, industrial machines. Our piece Spinning embraces the art of spinning with sound, song, and imagery. From ethereal lines to dense and driving mechanisms, we reflect on the engineering and poetic process of creating thread. Parallels between strung bows, cello strings, spinning patterns, frenetic bobbins, texture, textiles, and busy hands combine with song to propel us.

We first met in graduate school at Yale, and then went on to collaborate in the formation of the amplified touring band Bang on a Can All-Stars, which emerged out of the Bang on a Can Festival in the early 1990s. Spinning, an evening-length work, marks our first in-depth collaboration. We have teamed up with visual/projection artist Laurie Olinder to create an immersive visual scape for this world premiere.

We want to thank the choreographer Netta Yerushalmy, sound designer Dave Cook, lighting designer Aaron Copp, and cellists Lavena Johanson and Melody Giron for their invaluable contribution to this work.

About the Artists

Performers

Maya Beiser (Concept/Cello) is an avant-garde cellist and multifaceted artist who defies categories. She has captivated audiences worldwide with her “consummate virtuosity” (The New York Times) and relentless quest to redefine her instrument’s boundaries. The Boston Globe describes her as “a force of nature.” while Rolling Stone calls her a “cello rock star.” Raised in Israel’s Galilee Mountains, surrounded by the music and rituals of Jews, Muslims, and Christians, Beiser has reinvented solo cello performance in the mainstream arena. A featured performer on prestigious stages including Lincoln Center, Carnegie Hall, Brooklyn Academy of Music, Kennedy Center, London’s Southbank Centre, the Barbican, Sydney Opera House, and the Beijing Festival, she has collaborated with renowned artists, composers, choreographers, and filmmakers across many disciplines. Beiser has released 10 solo albums, topping the classical music charts with many of her recordings. Maya Beiser is a 2015 United States Artists Distinguished Fellow and a 2017 Mellon Distinguished Visiting Artist at MIT; her TED Talk has more than one million views. www.mayabeiser.com

Melody Giron (Cello), an award-winning cellist, has performed in concert halls of China, Europe, South America, Central America, and the United States with orchestras and chamber groups and as a soloist. Performances include venues such as Carnegie Hall (New York), Symphony Hall (Boston, MA), Snape Maltings Concert Hall (Aldeburgh, England), Radio City Music Hall (NYC), Madison Square Garden (NYC), and Prudential Center (NJ), among many others. In addition to an active classical solo and orchestral career, Giron's versatility has engaged her in many new music projects, performances on Off-Broadway theater stages, and collaborations with the likes of Stevie Wonder, Andra Day, and Keyshia Cole. Giron plays cello on multiple TV shows and stars in a GMC car commercial. She received her bachelor's degree from the New England Conservatory of Music and earned her master's degree from Peabody Institute of Johns Hopkins University. melodygiron.com

Lavena Johanson (Cello) is a commanding performer and a consummate musician. As a soloist and chamber musician, she has performed new and recent works by Ted Hearne, Amy Beth Kirsten, Caroline Shaw, and Anna Thorvaldsdottir on Baltimore's Evolution Contemporary Music Series. She was a founding member of the Atlas String Quartet, semi-finalists at the 2014 Fischhoff Chamber Music Competition. Johanson has also premiered and recorded two pieces written expressly for her by her husband, Judah Adashi, and is only the second cellist ever to perform both of Michael Hersch's Sonatas for Unaccompanied Cello in one night. Recent appearances include a return to the Evolution Series, where she performed Bryce Dessner's Tuusula for solo cello, and also a performance of Bach's Second Suite for Unaccompanied Cello at the Baltimore Bach Marathon, fulfilling the second year of her six-year Bach Suites performance project. lavenajohanson.com

Creative Team

Julia Wolfe (Concept/Music and Text) composes music distinguished by intense physicality and relentless power that pushes performers to extremes and demands attention from the audience. Her Pulitzer-winning Anthracite Fields (chorus and ensemble) draws on oral histories, interviews, speeches, and more to honor the people who persevered and endured in the anthracite coal region. Steel Hammer (three singers and ensemble) celebrates the John Henry legend. In 2019, the New York Philharmonic premieres Wolfe's Fire in my mouth (orchestra and women's chorus) on the subject of New York's garment industry at the turn of the century. Upcoming projects include works for the Los Angeles Philharmonic, New World Symphony, and So Percussion. Wolfe is a 2016 MacArthur Fellow and a 2015 Alpert Award recipient. She is Artistic Director of Composition at NYU/Steinhardt
