Elgart Orchestra Plays For Christmas Dance

The Lee and Larry Elgart Orchestra will be featured at the Moot Hall Hold First Open House on Friday evening, December 7, at the Westmount County Club, from 9:00 to 10:00 p.m.

The two brothers are alumni of some of America's greatest dance bands under the direction of Larry James, Benny Hirtegrant, Tommie Dorsey, Charlie Spivak, Woody Herman, and the Dorsey Brothers. Larry and Larry had high ideas for a band they desired, but finally in 1953 the Elgarts had what they wanted, a band with a sound, a direction, and an idea of its own. They had selected a group of gifted musicians steeped in the jazz tradition capable of fine ensemble playing.

Elgart Orchestra’s First Open House will consist of two sets only, with an intermission and refreshments to follow.

The Orchestra will play a thoroughly diversified program, with the music ranging from the slowest ballad to the most up-tempo jazz. The band will play in a wide range of musical moods and tempos, from slow blues to fast dance music. The band will consist of a rhythm section, a saxophone and trumpet section, a trombone section, and a rhythm section. The rhythm section will consist of the leader, the rhythm section, the rhythm section leader, and the rhythm section rhythm section leader. The rhythm section will play in a wide range of musical moods and tempos, from slow blues to fast dance music. Cosla Art Show Offers Exhibits

The paintings now on exhibition in the Student Life building are a part of the collection donated to the college last year by Dr. and Mrs. Costa of New York City. The thirty-five-piece collection consists of Chinese and Oriental art, including jade carvings, ivory plaques attached to electric light fixtures, and first and second fingers at the players’ side. The players’ hands must be spaced at a distance so the strings can obtain the finesse sharp notes.

There will be a correction for numbers on their rings. A correction service will not be available.

Wapalanne Worries

Due to financial difficulties, Camp Wapalanne may not be able to offer a spring weekend this year. The possibility may even exist that the weekend be discontinued altogether.

In considering that food and lodging are provided for Friday evening, in addition to Saturday and Sunday, one can imagine the cost for heating the buildings, employing a staff and renting beds for food. This expense appears double when one realizes that all this is done for charge for only one day's work in return, and not even a full day's work at that.

Despite this barrier, however, very few students have taken advantage of the opportunity made available to them. During the last work weekend, held two weeks ago, only a dozen students participated; others had signed up but did not show on Friday. Perhaps it is also felt that not enough interest has been shown in the past and is not feasible to worthwhile to the camp in the actual work accomplished so far.

For those students, however, who enjoy getting away from the fast pace of college life to a different atmosphere and who appreciate a relaxing, enjoyable weekend plus a small amount of physical labor in the fresh air, it is hoped a Wapalanne weekend will be held this spring.

Dear Editor:

I would like to express the appreciation of a number of dormitory students to the Montclarion Staff, Committees, when they meet their work, plus the selection and the quality of food provided at the weekend.

However, the cafeteria clocks usually set at a quarter past six, off-campus students are refused admittance to the dining hall until quarter past six, actually panned. This is especially appreciated by off-campus students who must rely on the fast pace of campus life to be regulated enough to be regulated by a clock and can sometimes come to get time coordinated in the morning?

Life for All

It has long been the desire of many far-sighted students to establish Life Hall as the student center for social activities. An undertaking such as this would mean Life Hall would be used by all students and activities held in the building would benefit everyone. It would be a means of making use of the building that it might be available for all students to use.

Naturally, a full-time director would be necessary to supervise the activities and facilities. If many students held more meetings and social activities in the hall and spent less time on food and other activities one would have a more complete experience.

Four to five girls normally turn in managing the household. This would include work duties as purchasing the food and other items necessary for the household, and maintaining a financial budget on a limited budget. It is not unusual to pay ten dollars a day for at least seven people, plus preparing a meal for four people instead of consuming two meals a day.

It is evident then that this course is essential to the development of a student's domestic skills and responsibilities, and is another example of the positive and social aspects of family life that each girl has been given an opportunity to learn during her college living in the house, the student is required to attend the meetings of the other girls in the house as Mr. Magee stated, but it is up to the student whether he attends or not.

The Lilian Gilbreth House is a small house of four to five girls who are required to manage the house, if Mr. Magee had checked further, he would have found that its cost in not unusual.

This knowledge after she graduates.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

The government also has been motivated to organize a Civil Defense Unit for the campus at the request of the Commander in Chief, who came into being November 13 at a public meeting of almost fifty campus enthusiasts.

The purpose of the unit is to train students and staff members who would be required to assist in the defense of the university after the attack, nerves and probably a good part of the population would be channeled toward work for the government, if the rest of us have panic, perhaps Western civilization has reached its end.
Happy Talk

As we all know, conversation is terribly important on a date. When folks in the conversation run longer than an hour or two, one is forced to grow weary—even sullen. But occasionally one finds it difficult to keep the talk going, especially when one is having first date with one. "What, then, does one do?"

If one is wise, one follows the brilliant example of Harlow Thorough. Harlow Thorough prepares. That is his simple secret. When Harlow Thorough goes into a new situation, he takes care to make sure that the conversation will not languish. Before the date, he goes to the library and scamps up to 20 volumes of the encyclopedia and transcribes their contents on his cuffs. Thus he makes sure that his date’s interests are satisfied, he will have ample material to keep the conversation alive.

Take, for example, Harlow’s first date with Priscilla de Garavans from Bloomfield, blue-eyed beauty, recently published and reviewed as the new Davy Crockett. Carolyn O’Connor, Princeton University, and Delby: Rhoda Litton, described how Keats had transmitted his feeling into the poem, thereby making a perceptual image of beauty in praise of an image of beauty. Part of Keats’s life is a poem written while the maid and the youth; the two will never catch up, hinting at Keats’s unrequited love for Fanny Brow.

The renowned lecturer then proceeded to describe how “acquaintance is a poet’s job.” He gave several definitions of poetry, one by Wallace Stevens, an American poet, who claims, “poetry is an abstraction, blooded, and another by a French poet who feels, “poetry is a holiday of the mind.”

Mr. Engle also recited two of his own works to emphasize phases of the art of poetry. He described in an episode that his daughter experienced when she was responsible for the breaking of a toy belonging to the boy next door. Engle had then written a poem about the incident.

Throughout the presentation, Mr. Engle spilled his lectures with humorous comment and clever description, which was well re­ceived by the audience. The pro­gram ad a certain timeless qual­ity about, for, as Mr. Engle re­marked in closing, all that had said applies to “poetry at all time.”

What the poet writes a­bout in his poems is not only the in­ternal, but the observed, the experi­enced, the imagined, the unimagined. Everything is available to everyone. Betty Jean Rosenberg

Wapalanne

There were a dispersing few who found an ending in Wapalanne that Friday afternoon, but we were in high spirits because we were encouraged at last two other groups afoot and participating in the work-weekend. However, when our arrival we found forty ninth grade boys and girls and a mere handful of stu­dents. Nonetheless, we were determined to make the best of the situation,Ignore the noise and toil, and just enjoy ourselves. We most looked forward to a chance to talk to those students on which Harlow had laid his hands and which he could carry on a intelligent conversation.

"You are a very dull fellow. I’m leaving," said Harlow, lifting his lap. "You are right. I say, were nothing now but a big, blue blur! For Harlow—poor Harlow—standing around in the finger bowl, had gotten his cuffs wet and the lad had not one word to legible! And Harlow—poor Harlow—looked upon his cuffs and broke out in a night sweat and full dawn.

"I can’t say," said Priscilla, after several silent hours, “that you are a very dull fellow. I’m leaving.”

With that she flew away and poor Harlow was too crushed to protest. Sadly he sat and sadly lit a cigarette. And, unless Priscilla came running back. "Was that," she asked, "a Mariboon you just kill?"

"No, you are not a dull fellow," she cried, and skipping into his lap. "You are Harlow. Anybody is bound to smoke such a perfect joy of a cigarette as Mariboon which is just shock full of capacity. You are a Scrooge filter which comes in a soft pack that is really flat, and a Flip-Top Box that really fits, and which can be bought wherever cigarettes are sold in all fifty states and Delhi and India. Two fingers and be your love."

"Okay," said Harlow, and did, and was.

I’ve tasted ecstasy
How can I weave happiness?
I’ve seen the clouds
How can my lips caress the earth?

I’ve not tasted the wine
And crush us
I’ve not seen the sea

Smoke Signals...

Spirit is an abstract word. It has many meanings both in and out of context. In sub-division number 12 of the definitions offered in Webster’s New International Dictionary, the word is described as meaning “enthusiastic loyalty; as school, class, or college spirit.”

Being one who does not believe in black or white, either-or criticism the “complete lack of school spirit on this campus.”

I do not believe that the lack of school spirit is complete or that the low level of observable spirit such as the absence of fans at athletic events is a permanent one.

Henry Schmidt, coordinator of athletics, has announced that Pete Capitano of Bayonne and Frank Votto of Newark have been elected co-captains of Montclair State College’s varsity basketball team for the 1962-63 season.

Larry Schiachetano

At five feet, ten inches forward, Capitano transferred from Boston University and averaged 26.1 last season. By hitting the rim for 46 points against Southern Connecticut, he was voted outstanding player in the conference.

Votto, a defensive standout last season, in a senior and a graduate of Arts High School in Newark. He scored 113 points last year and maneuvered a deadly corner shot and rebounder.

Joe Semans, a junior, posted a record of six wins and two losses in dual meet competition last year. He placed fourth in the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Wrestling championships last season in the 177-pound division.

Schiachetano, captain for the second straight year, has been the Metropolitan champion at 191 pounds for the last two years and had an 8-1 mark in the second season meet competition.

The Emerson junior also placed third in the Case Invitational and the National association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournaments at 191 pounds.

values and understanding of self and others, is not always achieved in the home. These are only a few of the reasons why Home Economics has been placed in our public schools.

Yes, Mr. Magee, we are living in a world of struggle between “life and death”, yet in our educational race with the Soviet Union, let’s not forget our youth also is a human being. An individual who lives with others, has feelings, emotions, and who during his public school years is forming his values, ideals, and life purposes, All the youth to settle his own inner turmoil and struggles before you ask him to accept and settle the world.

Science, Mathematics, and other major courses, I agree, are important for our technological and international strength. Yet, does not part of our strength also come from the family unit and the secure home? I believe, here, to be a place in our American educational system for the development of both the intellectual and the emotional aspects of the child, one cannot be sacrificed for the other. The goal of our educational system is to prepare the student for all the roles he is going to play in life.

Thank you for your time and consideration.
