Welcome Class of 1970

Frosh Participate in Orientation Week: Rat Court, Peace Dance Saturday

Tomorrow, September 14, of 1966, the annual and traditional frosh orientation week at Montclair State will mark the final official day of orientation for the incoming Freshman Class. This is a traditional event in which freshmen make the acquaintance of new students as well as the faculty and Student Government Association, as well as other campus organizations and areas of the campus. These activities are aimed at making the campus as pleasant and easy as possible. September 14, freshmen are provided with an opportunity to full service is maintained for the incoming Freshman Class. Ciao, Dr. Krauss, Ciao!

As we begin a new school year, we of the Montclarion are faced with one additional challenge. Not only must we adjust to new classes, schedules, and professors, but we are also faced with the task of publishing the Montclarion, the competent advice of Dr. Russell Krauss.

Dr. Krauss advised the Montclarion for many years and was later forced for personal reasons to give up his duties. During his absence, because of inadequate student participation and a lack of faculty support, the paper was allowed to degenerate. Dr. Krauss was asked by the college administration in 1964 to again assume his duties as adviser. It was with his help and guidance that members of the present editorial board and past board members have been able to re-establish the Montclarion as the college newspaper and as an active voice of the Montclair State College student body.

It was through Dr. Krauss that the Montclarion was freed from the peril of the justop. He had been allotted to the paper its present standard. It was from Dr. Krauss’ guidance that the paper acquired the enthusiastic devotion to the improvement of the paper that staff members could take pride in. He was the executive editor of the Montclarion and is still a strong influence on the paper he helped to establish.

But, it was not here that Dr. Krauss’ involvement with the paper ended. The phenomenon, Dr. Krauss, became much more than a student-adviser relationship. It became a personal involvement with a man whose depth of understanding and human interest provided us with inspiration. The expression ‘Dr. Krauss! ’ was screamed in anger, mumbled in frustration, but above all, regarded with respect, love, and admiration.

Welcome, Freshmen!

As freshman orientation comes to a close we of the Montclarion wish to take this opportunity to welcome the Class of 1970. The hurried, somewhat confusing period of orientation should have made each freshman aware of the campus and its educational system. However, more importantly, the orientation period should have provided each freshman with the beginnings of an insight into the purposes of an education.

The trauma, confusion and struggle of this week and of the following year should not discourage any freshman from accepting the challenge of the educational system. Chalk­ enge is wonderful; it is refreshing. However, this challenge is at times difficult to recognize, although it is always present. The challenge of the classroom is constantly present; it is made by both the professor and the student. Failure to recognize the student’s involvement may often be the result of lack of acceptance of the classroom challenge. Challenge is so very evident in extra-curricular activities. Each student need only become involved in one of the campus’ many organizations to recognize the extra-curricular challenge.

We hope that each freshman takes an opportunity to accept the challenge presented at Montclair State College during the next four years. We hope that each will find his own rewards in accepting the challenge. And we hope that the challenge of college never brings disappointment. To the Class of 1970—Welcome.

Krauss! ’ was screamed in anger, mumbled in frustration, but above all, regarded with respect, love, and admiration.

La Recherche: For Dr. Russell Krauss

Many teachers are met by a college student during his undergraduate and graduate years, but to only a few is credited the distinctive teachers who compel the imagination for years after graduation. Dr. Russell Krauss, the past adviser to the Montclarion and Professor of English, was just such one. The intervening years have not smudged the sharp impressions that have been assimilated into the student’s personal aims and motivations.

When I first studied under Dr. Krauss, I recognized a superior intellect, a tradition-oriented background, an unusual ability to understand the avant-garde. The harmonious incorporation of the old and the new demonstrated his distinctive latitude in reading. At that time, in the early fifties, he became my idea of a unique teacher—one who could inspire the student to emulate his intellectual awareness. Since that time, Dr. Krauss has become all that I expected a professor should be: a sound scholar, a dispassionate critic, a warm personality, a corrector of the mind.

Dr. Russell Krauss’ scholarship was based initially on the quality of historical information that was commanded of the personal cultivation of the student. He seemed to have read everything. However, he was not a mere bookworm; he read the works of a second-rate writer. A few years later I received an extensive reading list when I began graduate study. As I scanned the list, I realized that I had read most of the books; because Dr. Krauss had personally guided me.

The Krauss’ genuine personal concern showed itself in many ways. I remember an extra critical effort in correcting my papers. He always took time to chat whenever we passed in the halls. He extended himself in recommending me to graduate school that I was exempted from all course testing.

The test of a teacher may be measured by the growth of his students. I know now that my appreciation for poetry was created by Dr. Krauss. Because I feared the study of poetry in high school, I avoided taking any work in it. However, when I came to Montclair State College,
MSC Hosts 53 HS Students In Upward Bound Program

Fifty-three Jersey City high school students spent six weeks on the Montclair campus in a United States Office of Education Opportunity program entitled Upward Bound. The program was aimed at freshmen and sophomore students who were recruited on the basis of their potential for future academic success. The goal of the program was to help students prepare for college.

The program, sponsored by the Montclair State College and the federal government, included a wide range of activities designed to help students develop the skills they would need to succeed in college. Participants were provided with academic counseling, tutoring, and study skills workshops. They also had the opportunity to take college-level courses and to participate in a variety of extracurricular activities, including sports and arts programs.

Welcome back, Upperclassmen—and of course we all have a very special greeting for the Freshman Class.

Administrators always worry about the first few weeks—the adjustment period of any school year. With a record enrollment and many new construction projects underway on campus, even the Freshmen of 1966-67 college year will not be exempt.

Much has already been done in the problems of parking, campus traffic, student lounges and athletic facilities. You'll see a report from this Business Office in this issue of the Montclairian.

Note the many improvements which have occurred on the campus during the summer months. These have been accomplished in spite of a most intensive summer program—intensive in quantity and variety of programs and students.

This should be a good college year. We should find that we have more relocations, more parking, better community support than ever before. To be realistic, we will have to expect that some problems will be encountered during this adjustment period. Flexibility and cooperation will be needed. Such cooperation is made through regular faculty administration, student bodies, and the Government association.

Ferris Assumes New Post
As Head Football Coach

Henry "Hank" Ferris who so ably guided Montclair's wrestling team in his tenure as varsity mentor, compiling a 24-4 dual meet record has been appointed varsity football coach succeeding Doctor Gerald Edwards who resigned to accept a post at Adelphi College in Garden City, Long Island. Edwards will be stepping into the position of Chairman of the Department of Health, Physical Education, and Intercollegiate Athletics. Edwards will be spearheading a sports intensification program at the New York building job and will be expecting much from his three captains, Doug McNamara, Frank Mariello and Jim Wolfe. Freshmen Joe Salvatori, Jim Steele, and Pete Lee are expected to break into the starting line-up. The quarterback spot is being contested by transfer Jim Waite, Bob Hot- derbaum and Nick Dronos. Returning lettermen Bruce Dave Rates, Mike Thompson, Dennis Devartolo, George Katchak and Roy Miller will be holding positions up front.

In return to Sprague Field, the Indians will be playing on the field used for the first airlight contest between two colleges in Jersey. The first nighttime game was played at Sprague Field on October 3, 1941, when the Indians downed Hofstra University, 13-6.

 extensive changes are being made in Sprague Field for the 1966 games. The gridiron will be completely resurfaced with 30,000 square feet of Kentucky Mar- lon Blue Grass being installed.

The quarter mile cinder track surrounding the football field is being completely dug up and will be replaced with a new surface.

The capacity of the field will be increased by 3,600 by adding more bleachers.

Montclair State's baseball program is ranked in 31st place in the Associated Press small college ratings.

The season may be different. Although the Warriors lost their entire backfield, coach Charlie Reese has an overall rebuilding job and will be expecting much from his three captains, Doug McNamara, Frank Mariello, and Jim Wolfe. Returning lettermen Bruce Dave Rates, Mike Thompson, Dennis Devartolo, George Katchak and Roy Miller will be holding positions up front.

It will be advisable to come early to the game. With the resurfaced gridiron and the new football field, is also being created a proposal, with representatives from the Paterson schools and community agencies for utilization of resources in Paterson for the training of teachers for urban disadvantaged areas. Other action proposals dealt with new ways of reaching out to the disadvantaged.

Ray A. Anderson, Director of the Adult Education Resource Center and workshop co-ordinator, stated, "We plan a series of series of workshops and training sessions, based on the proposals of this meeting, aimed at improving servic- es to the disadvantaged in the areas of health, housing, educa- tion, and employment. From these workshops, concrete meth- ods of serving the disadvan- taged more effectively will be developed."

Among the twenty-five professional workers attending were representatives of state, health, housing, migrant, and employ- ment programs, representatives from Community Action Pro- grams, social agencies, public health services, adult education, and the Paterson public schools. Montclair State College faculty worked closely with the partici- pants.

Montclair Sponsors Education Workshop

A week-long workshop, spon- sored by the Adult Education Resource Center of Montclair State College, developed specific recommendations for communicating with disadvantaged groups. The participants created a proposal, with representatives from the Paterson schools and community agencies for utilization of resources in Paterson for the training of teachers for urban disadvantaged areas. Other action proposals dealt with better ways of reach- ing out to the disadvantaged.
