MSC Professor From Kenya Proves Man of Many Talents

By JILL SCHNEIDER

In six years he has received his B.A. and M.A. degrees and is within moments of a Ph.D. in economics. Quite the understatement.

Mr. Mutiso, a political science professor on campus, came to the U.S. in June of 1962 from Kenya, Africa. Although America was not his only choice for his further education, it was his final choice because he didn't wish to waste years in learning a new language. England was also ruled out since he had been politically involved in the decolonization movement of Kenya.

Working his way financially through all his degrees, Mr. Mutiso found no problems besides the financial aspect other than, as he himself puts it, the “American problem.”

Professor Mutiso first thought of studying medicine at the University of Miami. He moved into the political science field in which he received his degree. He received his B.A. from Parson’s College, Iowa, his M.A. from the University of Utah and is now finishing his Ph.D. at Syracuse University.

Teaching has kept Professor Mutiso mentally on his toes and he intends to keep his classes in the same state of alertness. Even though political writing has been his main interest, Mr. Mutiso has found teaching enjoyable. He feels that a person is not learning if he or she just hears and memorizes the curriculum. One must participate in class and inter-relate facts and instances to get the full concept which is being presented.

The professor has a few articles of political interest being readied for publishing in Africa. Although he has not had the time for writing during his six years of concentrated study Mr. Mutiso has writing in his plans for the future.

Mr. Mutiso plans to keep on teaching in America for the next few years. Within a short time he hopes to return to Kenya and continue to teach there. This time, though, he also intends to incorporate writing into his schedule.

Political Science professor Mutiso comes to MSC from Kenya.

Liberal Arts
Program Becoming Specialized

By WENDY MCCAUGHAN

Montclair State’s liberal arts program now offers more courses than ever before. Students who enter MSC under this program are receiving a high degree of specialization as opposed to the broad, general range of subjects at many liberal arts colleges. No longer classified strictly as a teacher’s college, MSC, along with Trenton State, has more or less “divorced” itself from the State Department of Education.

As a result, school will not be cancelled during the annual Teacher’s Convention, held at Atlantic City in November. In previous years, MSC students who enter the political science field in the freshman year and “Historical and Philosophical Foundations of Education” in the senior year.

The other six hours are education electives taken in the junior and senior years. Each department school now has methods courses, and this accounts for the decrease in education requirements. The MSC student is now given more electives, and new courses are evolving as a result. Two of the newest are “Urban Education” and “Teaching in Urban Schools.”

An interesting note is that if after completing the liberal arts program a student decides to teach, 15 education semester hours are required before certification.

Of Ministration and Football

Many times misinterpretation of statements can lead to an almost complete turn-around of the opinions of an individual. A misconstrued notion can make a person say “yes” when he was really saying “no.” In the MONTCLARION issue two weeks ago, for instance, a page one article headed, “Blanton Questions Need for Free MSC Campus” pictured the Dean as having denied the value of a free campus; however, anyone who has spoken to the Dean can clearly see that his sentiments lie toward an open campus.

Now this is not saying that someone was “bad,” but this is saying that someone misunderstood a statement and, as a result, reported this statement. That is why it is always important to remember the availability of SGA offices. When an article similar to the other is read, it is always wise to talk to the people involved in the statements and see what really happened. A clarification of policy can do much to define a situation which may, at first glance, appear undefinable.

This is not a condemnation of MONTCLARION staff. A statement to MONTCLARION staff, it is simply a reminder to the ways students to be cautious in his free interpretation of a statement. It is up to the individual reader to find out if a statement is accurate, or if dynamic journalism has been employed to such an extent that the student is misled. The discerning individual can appreciate everything which is said in this world.

At this point, a reminder is in order—a reminder that tomorrow the Montclair State football team returns to its home field and battles under the lights at Sprague Field. Much support will be appreciated by the players, cheerleaders, and Indians so get out and support your team.

This blind man can hear and understand a 60-minute speech in 30 minutes.

If you’ve ever played a 33⅓ rpm record on 78 rpm, you know what happens.

The voice speed is more than doubled but the result is a high-pitched, squeaky babble. Bell Telephone Laboratories has eliminated the high pitch, the squeak and the babble. They have developed an electronic device (the harmonic compressor) which permits the recording of the human voice at twice its normal speed without any distortion whatsoever.

This process is actually a hearing equivalent for speed-reading. And that means everyone, but most especially the blind, will one day have a meaningful substitute for speed-reading. The uses for compressed speech, as it is called, are numerous.

In the not too distant future, textbooks, news articles, even novels and other fictional material will be recorded with the Bell Telephone process, and “speed-heard” with perfect understanding by the trained listener. For these reasons and many others, the American Foundation for the Blind in cooperation with Bell Telephone Laboratories is now studying the possible use of compressed speech in its tape and disc recording programs for the blind.

Newark Negroes Vie For Political Power

By DAVID M. LEVINE
Montclarion Features Editor

For Newark ghetto residents and political leaders Nov. 5 will prove to be a most crucial date in that city's history. A special election aimed at filling three vacancies on the City Council will take place. And for all intents and purposes, this election is the prelude to bigger stakes in 1970—the chance for a black man to become mayor of Newark.

"But unity is our main problem right now," claims Harry Wheeler, a noted civil rights leader and teacher in the Newark public schools. It was Wheeler last June that called for both moderate and militant black community leaders to join in the formation of a black power convention.

"The intention of the convention," said Wheeler "was to select candidates acceptable to both moderates and radicals and to install a sense of unity among black voters."

The speaker representing the militant voice at the convention was LeRoi Jones, a playwright by occupation. Jones, who was arrested for illegally possessing two guns during the six-day 1967 riot and currently out pending appeal, is well known for his anti-white feelings.

While convention leaders like Jones think their effort was a success, they estimated that only 550 people turned up at the first session. The leaders expected West Kinsey Junior High School's auditorium with 960 seats to be jammed. It wasn't.

"We can control this city by 1970 if we can just unite this once," pleaded Jones.

"It will take massive voter registration... Just because we have a majority of the population (35 percent) doesn't mean a thing until we get out and vote."

The next day a mere 600 delegates showed up and committees began formulating policies on which the campaign would be based.

Black Power Now

The idea of getting ghetto leaders and citizens together to work on obtaining black power is nothing new. In 1966 an all-black organization was formed to develop "a united bloc of black voters" to run candidates for political emancipation of the Negro.

The immediate goal was to elect a black mayor in Montclair by 1968; a black mayor for East Orange in 1969; and a black mayor for Newark by 1970.

It is interesting to note that the city of Montclair elected Matthew Carter as its mayor, a Negro in a predominantly white, upper-middle class city.

The president of this organization was Theodore Pinkney, a 35-year-old Newarker who was picked last June by the convention to run for a councilman-at-large seat in Newark.

Pinkney, a high-school math teacher, has served as a director of educational programs for disadvantaged ghetto teenagers.

Along with Pinkney, Donald C. Tucker, who was selected for councilman to run from Newark's predominantly Latin East Ward. Tucker, an organizer with the United Community Corporation, a group actively working toward understanding between the races, is classified as a "political activist."

While Pinkney and Tucker were selected, Lucius Tompkins and Leon Ewing were rejected by the convention. BLACK NEWARK, a militant City News newspaper, claims that Tompkins and Ewing plan "to act like niggers and run for election" against the convention's choice of Pinkney and Tucker.

Ewing, an experienced Negro politician and member of the Republican party, recently charged that "unbiased delegates... representing the entire black community were to select the most qualified black man... This did not take place."

Ewing added: "I was not chosen because I refused to hate people."

But the possibility of the black convention's hand-picked men succeeding in November for their respective offices may be an entirely different story. In Newark there are about 134,000 registered voters. And the most educated guess claims about 45,000, or one-third of the voters in the entire city, are Negroes. But since there's no actual racial or ethnic breakdown, "any guess is just as good," stated a spokesman for the Board of Elections.

Civil rights leader Harry Wheeler stated: "We think there are about 105,000 Negroes of voting age. And we're trying to reach them through massive voter registration programs... like the one to commemorate the late Rev. King."

Hence, the future looks a bit bleak for election prospects right now.

"White Backlash"

And to add to the problem of blackmen getting elected to office, a "white backlash" is developing in the Newark City Council elections.

The major white contenders include Anthony Imperiale and Anthony Guliano. Imperiale, who is affectionately called the "Big T," is head of a vigilante group in the predominantly Italian north ward. The North Ward Citizens Committee is said to have about 2000 members with a large proportion of its membership paying $2 a month for protection. Imperiale claims, however, that he's there to keep the north ward "peaceful."

Anthony Guliano, a detective and former president of the Patrolman's Benevolent Association, is running on a "law and order" platform.

In all, the 1968 City Council race is shaping up to be a significant power play by the whites as well as the Negroes who make up a majority of Newark's population. It is evident that the Negroes feel change is necessary and with that change a black man will eventually become Newark's mayor.

are your contact lenses more work than they're worth?

If you're tired of using two or more separate solutions to take care of your contact lenses, you have the solution. It's Lensine the all-purpose lens solution for complete contact lens care—percentage, cleaning, and soaking. Just drop a drop or two of Lensine before you insert your contacts coats and lubricates the lens surface making it smooth— non-irritating. Cleaning your contacts with Lensine retards the buildup of foreign deposits on the lenses. Lensine is sterile, self-sanitizing, and antiseptic making it ideal for storage of your lenses result in the growth of bacteria on the lenses. And you get a removable storage case on the bottom of every bottle, a dusty danger vision.

Bacteria cannot grow in Lensine. Caring for contact lenses can be as convenient as wearing them with Lensine from the Murine Company, Inc.
LET'S SEE THE LIGHT

With only two roadways leading off campus, traffic tie-ups at Montclair are inevitable. However, traffic flow on and off campus will be facilitated by the eventual placement of a traffic light at the corner of Valley Road and Normal Avenue.

With over 2850 commuters, the majority using the Valley Road access to the campus, the light will regulate the traffic and provide a measure of safety for both pedestrians and drivers who may risk their lives when they attempt to cross Valley Road, either on foot or in a car.

Last May 16, after the industrious efforts of many MSC students, the N.J. department of motor vehicles approved the construction of a traffic light to replace the blinker light.

Five months later the blinker is still working and there are no signs that the light will appear in the near future.

Although not schooled in engineering procedures, we realize that it should not take five months to put up one traffic light.

Whether some slight complication or some 'state of New Jersey red-tape' is involved, the delay is not relaxing the mind of the Montclair commuter who leaves the campus at 6 p.m.

It is realized that the traffic light is not a "cure-all" for the existing situation. But the present traffic situation will be eased with some quick action on the part of the highway department.

Let the State of New Jersey and the county of Essex now move to action!

NEW TIDE IN LEARNING

Teaching a large class of college students is an almost impossible task. The philosophies of Hegel, Plato and Aristotle are hard enough, but to try to do so when there is a slight flood in the middle of one's so-called "classroom" is deplorable.

However, this was the situation last week, as the rains poured and the "Devlopment of Education" class plunged into an hour of soggy yet attentive note-taking.

The scene described above is not at all uncommon on the MSC campus. Leaks can be found in several classrooms and offices and "temporary" barracks with lipped floors, noisy light fixtures, and little heat in winter have served as classrooms since 1945.

Partridge Hall, the "to be constructed" four story, air-conditioned classroom building is sorely needed and much anticipated. In the meantime, some large awaited repairs should be started in those already existing facilities. How about, maintenance department?

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Homecoming weekend at any college or university is a special event and one which is very often eagerly awaited. However, with Homecoming at MSC just two weeks away, there is as yet little evidence of the popularity or appeal that this event has for the college community. The only ones who seem to be thinking about it are those committee chairmen whose responsibility it is to prepare their organization's entry for the float competition.

Nevertheless, Homecoming this year has something in store for the entire college community. There will be a parade through the town of Montclair, a football game, dances, concerts, and even a pep rally, including fireworks! Don't let Homecoming "slip your mind. The date is Now. 1, 2 and 3. Attend this worthwhile and enjoyable event. It will be to your advantage.

November Conference

In last week's article I agreed to describe a method for improving the existing decision making machinery here at the College. A conference will be held starting Thursday evening, Nov. 21 and running on through the morning, afternoon and evening of Nov. 22. Every student and faculty member of the college will ultimately be affected by the conclusions which will be reached by this group and a Student Government will be involved in this very grueling but important conference, have not yet been selected. It does seem certain that the members of the Faculty Council, Administrative Council, and representatives of Student Government will be included in the larger group.

Today I would like to list the members of the Faculty and Administrative Councils and in a future article I will list their student counterparts who will attend the conference. I believe this information will be useful to students and faculty who may wish to discuss with these representatives their opinions about techniques for improving involvement in decision making our campus.

LONG REIGN SOPHISTRY?

To the Editor:

We question just what it is that Mr. Insley is trying to say in his opinion expressed in the October 4 edition of the MONTCLARION. Are we really "not involved," incapable of rational thought, and "immature?" Are we really completely oblivious to world events?

Apparently Mr. Insley feels that if we aren't involved in the dichotomy of wearing fatigue shirts and peace medallions and verbalizing in loud and often obnoxious terms we are not part of his "involved generation." Perhaps some of us are clever enough to assume active roles and initiate innovations while still remaining within the confines of the social machinery.

We ask what basis Mr. Insley has used to draw his correlation between "intellectualism" and "protest." Are those of you who follow less deviant behavior patterns any less capable of an organization such as the Student Peace Union. We feel that the moratorium held last spring on April 26 was organized by the college administration, and in fact the situation was quite the opposite. The moratorium was initiated and sponsored by the Coalition of Concern, an ad hoc committee composed of the Newman Fellowship, Protestant Foundation, Star of David, Student Peace Union and Young Democrats. Most of the actual organization, including the arrangements for the speaker, Dale Minor of WBAI radio, was achieved by Dennis Lynch ('68), the SPU liaison to the Coalition. Although the Coalition had the consent of the administration, the latter in no way introduced the idea. The Coalition was not even certain of President Richardson's participation until he appeared at the podium. This is in no way intended to question the validity of Mr. Insley's argument. I merely present this as a statement of fact.

Flying lessons. Apply here.

Well, what else? A pilot is the officer in charge of a million dollars worth of high flying, sophisticated supersonic equipment, isn't he?

Yes, and you'll wear a snappy blue officer's uniform, enjoy officer's pay and privileges. You'll probably travel to exotic foreign lands, and have a secure future in the biggest scientific and research organization. World's biggest.

You'll be where all the exciting Space Age breakthroughs are. Where it's happening. Now. Today. Right now. This minute. The Air Force is the "now" place to be.

If you want to fly and don't try the Aerospace Team, you'll miss your big chance. Let that be a lesson!

ON SCHOOL SPIRIT

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on a very poor situation here on campus—the tremendous lack of school spirit. I am referring in particular to the attendance and attention at the football games.

Our first game was at home and, although I'm told by the upperclassmen that the number of students there was more than usual, I thought the attendance left a lot to be desired. Considering the enrollment of the school, those bleachers should have been crowded beyond capacity.

Then, too, I noticed that of those who came to view the game, only a very slight handful made any attempt to yell for our team. Perhaps this was due to the lack of creativity on the part of the cheerleaders themselves—I don't know. The fact remains that our team had no way of knowing that MSC was behind them all the way.

In fact, much of the more vocal yelling was done by arm-chair cynics who did nothing but criticize the efforts of the players.

We students of MSC should develop some spirit for the athletic events which are sponsored by the college. How can we truly say we BELONG in the stands. Display your colors to your school by some active participation in the stands. Display your colors to MSC all the way—it's the only way to really BE a member of the college.

The Living Theatre: Experiment In Terror

Reviewed by BONNIE MASSEY
Drama and Arts Editor

The Theatre is alive and well and living at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Back from their voluntary European exile The Living Theatre have brought with it a repertory of four new plays, each with a statement on the importance of economics in the theatre. They are used, we must call it art, and indifferent, but whatever adjective remember what life was like," and Julian Beck and Judith Malina, leaders of The Living Theatre, have broken down the fourth wall of the theatre so that actor and audience are no longer in existence. Their powerful creation of Antigone from Sophocles' play is an excruciating comment on war. Played off stage as much as on stage, the chorus members of Antigone shout, kick and punch at the audience with a ferocious realism, prompting reactions of tension and fear. Are we afraid of our own brother?

Disciples of free thought and involvement, The Living Theatre strives for freedom of all men, freedom most of all from those who bind mankind, the state. And the time for experimenting and mistakes is gone. The critic, however, must "remain a perpetual virgin" in the theatre, always open to new ideas as well as accepting the past. Most of all, he thinks, a critic must like criticism, otherwise his job will be totally unproductive and unenjoyable.

Delving into his past life, Mr. Barnes recalls he had wanted to become a critic since "around age 12" when he attended the theatre "abnormally often." During his time as a student, he took courses in acting and dancing. His first job as a critic was at college in England at age 22, where he worked for the magazine "Dance and Dancing." Eventually, he started writing for the Times. When he came to America, he found himself preferring American dance to American drama, although he doesn't draw many distinctions between the two. This similarity, he states, is particularly strong in such experimental groups as the Living Theatre. Mr. Barnes feels personally that he is "a better dance than drama critic," and that he never expected to be reviewing drama for THE TIMES. However, in addition to drama and dance, he has also reviewed movies (which he "loves reviewing") and music (which he "hates reviewing").

Mr. Barnes feels that the student deserves more from the theatre industry, since the student is often on a limited budget. He suggests that the theatre offers a vast array of options for students, from cheap student tickets to full-fledged productions. The plot is not the only significant aspect of the play. The provocative, original use of caricature and outright discipline the actors use can really judge its precepts until large numbers of people are present in the audience. The Living Theatre is a self-styled militarist who pushes one far past the point of exhaustion.

The Living Theatre is most assuredly an art form. But who can grasp its concepts until it has been absorbed into the mainstream of other art forms? The Living Theatre leaves a lot to be desired in its method of approach. In its total mockery of man it has pushed the boundaries of human understanding far out of proportion. All that is left is grotesque caricature.

In its attempts to decipher the nature of man The Living Theatre seems to have forgotten that man is a spirit of many moods. To exaggerate his point of view is to be belittled to the other end of despair. At a lighter moment, in such experimental groups as the Living Theatre, humanity and Vanesa Redgrave has an earthly sensuality to them. Pompous British wit is created by John Gielgud and Harry Andrews. The plot is not the only instance of unique usage of technique. The uses of soft and selective focus are only two of the more obvious methods which make the photography a work of art instead of skill. Of special interest is the almost revolutionary use of caricature animation which provides comic relief.

These innovations, assisted by thoughtful acting and directing, provide a media upon which the viewer can build his own understanding of the story. The provocative, straightforward manner produces an end product of regal art.

That famous Greek, Socrates, has been quoted frequently for the wisdom of his philosophy of self-knowledge. At MSC, there are those who also adhere to this doctrine and practice techniques of self-revelation in an intensive weekend program of interaction and communication with others.

This program, known as the Human Relations Laboratory, will be sponsored once again on Oct. 24-27 by the College Life Union Board. This weekend program enables students to obtain skills in group dynamics, communication skills, and human interaction.

Students are broken up into groups of 15 people. In the groups the participants learn by experience how their behaviors affects others and how they in turn are affected by the actions of the others. The individual learns by actual experience. Participants will work as a group, and group maintenance functions. Theory sessions will follow some of the meetings and deal with what transpires in the groups.

Due to limitations caused by the budget for HRL, only 110 students can be accommodated. Persons interested in understanding group dynamics should try to register as soon as possible. Register at the Student Center Box Office.

Schwarz, Day Captain Team made no mistakes. The team spirit provided by Rick Schwarz and practice seven days a week, co-captains. Rick, who won the Bob Day who were elected Hank Ferris. "The boys have come made himself available for playing," stated MSC mentor. Connecticut State from the ranks of the unbeaten in a 6-3 Saturday cliffhanger at Artue Field. MSC's defense again turned in a solid performance, allowing only 10 points on the clock. Connecticut's points were scored in the last stanza on Dennis Mullens' field goal from 51 yards out, the last quarter putting dual for field position. So it seemed a mismatch with the booming kicks of the Blue Devils' Charlie Richel against MSC's neophyte. However, they never had a chance to score and were intercepted twice.

MSC's Frank Williams, a 6-1, 210 pound defensive end, turned the tide in the first quarter by picking off Connecticut halfback Hal Brown's pass on the Blue Devil's 42 and returned it to the 32 yard line. Jerry Waller then carried three times from here for eight yards before Dan Rodgers played short and was tackled at the nine yard line. Jerry Waller then carried three times from here for nine yards, before Dan Rodgers gained two yards for a first down at the six yard line. Jerry Waller then carried the ball for three yards, before Dan Rodgers was stopped short of the goal line, but Gualario recovered the ensuing punt. The next play Stevens' pass was on the money receiver Dale Finch got two steps ahead of the defense but the Indians then could run in a hole by giving the Blue Devils the biggest upset to date in the EFC.

Montclair State's Gymnastic Team leader will be Ordick. Coach Orlick has already accepted the ideas of newly appointed Terry Ordick of Syracuse University. Coach Ordick will be assisted by Woody Jensen, a former standout from Temple University. Although the team lost a capable member last year, everyone is confident of earning the gymnastics trophy. The gymnastics team is under the leadership of Ken Tccza. Tecza is a former walk-on at Southern Connecticut State who nipped the Indians 2-1. By KEN TECZA
