Information Society
Granted SGA Charter

By Roberta Kuehl

According to its constitution, "separating fact from opinion" is one of the primary purposes of the Information Research Society (IRS). This group, which recently received an SGA charter, plans "to function as an objective, independent information service."

This group's membership is limited to 20 students. New members must have a 2.5 cumulative average, must be introduced by a present member, must appear before the IRS Executive Board for a personal interview at a regular meeting and must receive a three-fourths majority vote of the general membership.

As it reports topics of interest to MSC students, the IRS intends "to research, correlate and disseminate information through the communication facilities of the college." The IRS has so far presented a critical report entitled "SDS - An Analysis in Depth." (Continued on Page 3)

Mehorter Considered For U.S. Commissioner

Dr. James T. Mehorter, an MSC professor of education, has been invited by President elect Richard M. Nixon to submit his name as a candidate for his挑选 as Commissioner of Education. The number of candidates for the office, which is under the jurisdiction of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, has reportedly been narrowed to two, of which Dr Mehorter is one.

A resident of Maplewood and former with the MSC psychology department, Dr. Mehorter has taught at the University of Vermont, University of Virginia and the University of West Virginia.

He presently also holds two doctorates in educational psychology from the University of Virginia. He is listed in Who's Who in America, Who's Who in the East and American Men of Science.

SDS' Mark Rudd
Lectures Tonight

Mark Rudd, former chairman of Columbia University's Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) will appear tonight at MSC. Rudd led the controversial student strike at Columbia in April and May 1968.

Rudd will be introduced by SGA president Robert Martinez at 8 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium. He will begin his program by showing a film which will inform the audience of his stand. Rudd has offered to lecture free of charge. Likewise, CINA will make no admission charge.

Rudd will be the first lecturer invited by the Parties Committee branch of the Council of International and National Affairs (CINA). Neither Mark Rudd nor CINA will be gaining monetary value from this lecture. Rudd has been invited by the Parties Committee.

Webster Adopts
Closed Door Plan

For Women Guests

The men of Webster Hall voted to allow women guests in their rooms on a closed door basis on weekends. During the voting, which occurred on Dec. 5, two other proposals which would have restricted the approved closed door policy were soundly defeated.

Approved Overwhelmingly

The new policy states that men can bring women into their rooms on Fridays and Saturdays from the time the deskman goes on duty (4:30 p.m.) until 12 a.m. On Sundays girls are permitted entry from the time the deskman goes on duty until 7 p.m. This proposal was approved overwhelmingly.

Russ Layne, one of the initiators of the proposals, said "he hopes the new policy (Continued on Page 5)

More Autonomy
Asked by State

College Heads

Trenton State College President Robert Heussler stated that he and three other presidents have formed an alliance in an effort to get more power for the six state colleges.

The 44-year-old educator said Thomas H. Richardson of Montclair State, James Olsen of Paterson and James Mullen of Jersey City are the college presidents supporting his stand. Both Olsen and Mullen are in their first year as presidents of their respective institutions.

Heussler said he plans to meet soon with legislative leaders in an opening move to win passage of a bill giving the colleges the kind of fiscal autonomy now enjoyed by Rutgers.

Wants Resolution Adopted

Heussler said he was prepared to ask the Council of State Colleges, composed of the presidents and chairmen of individual college boards of trustees, to adopt a resolution declaring the state colleges are more capable of running their affairs than the Department of Higher Education.

Essentially, what Heussler and the three other presidents are seeking is the authority to draw up and administer their own budgets, purchases and appoint their own architects and engineers for construction projects.

Rothman Becomes Third Dining Services Head

By Donna McKee

Seymour Rothman was recently named director of dining services at Montclair State College. The former assistant director became the third cafeteria director named this year to head the ABC Gladieux Service.

This turnover in management now places the responsibility for feeding MSC's student body on a man who has been in the food business for the last 28 years. During this time, Rothman has managed several cafeterias and restaurants. He owned and operated four restaurants in Florida.

"The largest difference," according to Rothman, "between restaurants or cafeteria management and campus food service is the necessary lack of variety." Rothman was referring to the limited menu which offers only two main choices at each meal.

Before entering the food service profession, Rothman attended New York University where he majored in business administration.

He also served in the US Army from 1943-46 and received a Presidential citation. Rothman is the former food production manager of the American Retailing Association at MSC.

Information Center Formed To Coordinate Student Help

A Community Services Information Center has been established at MSC to coordinate requests for volunteer and paid student help. Under the auspices of the Student Personnel Division, the center will be directed by Curtis Jackson, a counselor in the division.

Mr. Jackson will be in contact with local communities and will post information about job opportunities and requests for services on a bulletin board in College Hall, the administration building.

Better Public Relations

"We feel very strongly the need for our students to become involved with surrounding communities," he said. "We hope that this center will provide the opportunity to build solid public relations between the college and the communities it serves."

Requests for student services have already been received: one from Kearny Public Schools for counselors for an elementary school camping experience; one from East Orange for tutors to work with a VISTA program; one from Paterson for volunteer teachers for a Community Action Agency adult basic education program; and one from the Bureau of Children's Services in Paterson for a student to drive a child from the agency to the college for speech therapy.

All interested students should contact Mr. Jackson in the Student Personnel Division, Room 215 B, College Hall, 746-9300, extension 223.

The master plan must identify and resolve the major issues facing higher education in New Jersey," he explained, "and set the tone and direction for development in the years ahead."

The Department of Higher Education has contacted presidents of colleges and universities, chairmen of boards of trustees, editors of faculty organizations, presidents of student government associations and others to take part in developing the master plan.

According to newly-elected editor Ron Mucci, QUARTERLY will continue to search for new writers on the MSC campus and will publish more unpublished writers. Throughout the year, QUARTERLY will commission certain students to write special material for the magazine. Also, QUARTERLY intends to expand from its usual format, consisting mainly of poetry, and publish short stories, critiques, drama and other genres of literary work.

Are You Interested In a Psych Major?

By Chris Mac Murray

The MONTCLARION is running a poll to ascertain the number of upperclassmen at Montclair State College who would like to major in the field of psychology.

Dr. Daniel Brower, head of the psychology department, has indicated that if enough students make known their desire to major in psychology, more professors will be procured to teach psychology courses in order to provide for such students. However, such a desire must be communicated to the administration.

According to Dr. Brower, the psychology department can be expanded in two ways: by state appropriation, and by a redistribution of professors. The latter involves taking teachers out of one department and putting them in another, thus expanding the department whose courses are in demand by the students.

Please indicate your desire to major in psychology by filling out this coupon and returning it to the MONTCLARION office.

JANUARY ADMISSION!!

Private, four-year liberal arts college in midwest has limited openings available for spring term starting in January. Strong curriculum with 16 majors offered, plus pre-professional programs in medicine, dentistry, law, engineering, pharmacy, veterinary medicine, and medical technology. Current enrollment of more than 1,000 students is small enough to provide individual attention, large enough to provide diversity and action! For further information, write:

The question of MSC students having choice of professors for their classes has been a topic of conversation on campus for quite some time. Mr. Robert Foley, associate registrar, has offered his opinions concerning this possible future of registration.

Mr. Foley has met with an SGA committee twice to discuss the new possibility. This committee is co-chaired by Rich Loper and Mike Andrea, Joanne Stefank and Rosanne Bostonian. Any student assistance is welcomed by this committee.

According to Mr. Foley, few colleges the size of MSC have choice of time and professor. "Students talk about this or that college having free choice registration, but upon investigation I find that registration at these particular schools is not free choice at all."

Mr. Foley added, "This is true of Rutgers. Regardless of what the MSC students have been informed, Rutgers has complete computer registration that does not include choice of professor."

9,000 Curriculum Changes

What most of the majority of students really want is of chief concern to Mr. Foley. "It seems to me that most students would prefer time inconvenience over free choice of professor. We made over 9,000 curriculum changes this semester and most of the changes were time changes, not professor changes."

The main problem in free choice registration is that at least 50 per cent of the students would not get their first choice. "As Mr. Foley put it, "If 80 students sign up for a class that holds 30 people, 50 students would have to be relocated." Obviously, free choice registration carries its disadvantages just as every system of registration does. Should the students voice their desire for free choice registration, the registration office will start working toward this goal. However, many problems would arise in registration procedures. First of all, a change in the system of registration would take several semesters."

"Registration is like an iceberg," asserted Mr. Foley. The students are one-tenth of it. The other nine-tenths are happening all year long but the students are essentially unaware of this. They are predominantly concerned with their own immediate needs."

No "Utopian" Registration

Mr. Foley also affirmed that there are 4,400 students and 300 faculty members to satisfy. A "utopian" registration is virtually impossible. "Registration with free choice of time and professor would be ideal. Upon word from the administration, we would start to work on a plan including free choice. But the students must realize that there would be countless problems to resolve and this would take time."

Mr. Foley concluded by adding that registration procedures are formulated so as to cause a minimum amount of inconvenience to the entire college. "Our minds are open to any suggestion that will improve the present registration." The first step towards the institution of a free choice registration is to determine whether or not a majority of students really want it. For this purpose, the MONTCLARION is taking a poll in this issue to elicit student opinion concerning this subject.

Please fill out this slip and return it to the MONTCLARION office on the second floor of the Life Hall. I feel that free choice of professor during registration would benefit MSC... Yes... No.

I PREFERENCE: choice of professor... choice of time (check one).

'IRS'

At a meeting held Dec. 9, the IRS accomplished one of its written objectives - "to get a dialogue on campus" - when its members attempted to clarify their goals and functions to a large group of questioning non-members.

In the future, according to Bill Eickhorst, president, the IRS plans to continue to be a reference source regarding topics relevant to students.

The bond issue and the changes in the MSC teacher hour load are examples of the issues that IRS will explore in the future.

Career Conference for Seniors

Offered This Month by Industry

By Don Pendley

The Student Teaching and Placement Office, until recently mainly concerned with placing new teachers, has learned of a series of Career Opportunity Conferences to be held in nearby communities during Christmas week.

These conferences are sponsored by the local and national Chambers of Commerce in an effort to keep college graduates in their local communities by offering them job opportunities.

According to Dr. Norman E. Lange, director of the Student Teaching and Placement Office, approximately four per cent of the 1968 MSC graduating class took jobs in private industry, and he expects this number to increase. For this reason the Student Teaching and Placement Office must be prepared to assist students in obtaining jobs in industry.

At the conferences, any senior in college may attend and be interviewed for job placement in any of the numerous companies that attend the conference.

These conferences are to be held in Newark, Morristown and saddle Brook on Dec. 26 and 27, in Plainfield on Dec. 27 and in Paterson and Woodbridge on Dec. 30.

For exact times and places, plus information on the conference to be held Dec. 26, 27, and 28 at the Hotel Commodore in New York City, refer to the sign in the Student Teaching and Placement office on the second floor (office of registration) College Hall.

Student Government Reviews

Present MSC Cut Policy

By Mike Andrea

An SGA cut policy review committee is trying to discover the amount of college support for a free cut system.

After interviewing several administrators, notably President Thomas Richardson and Dean Allan Morehead, the committee learned there is no standard cut policy for the entire college. In the past, the amount of cuts per class was determined by the course instructor.

This is the "policy" as it stands now. Lately, though, students have been requesting the cut policy of individual teachers to learn whether they are likely to fail a course by missing too many classes.

One Cut Per Credit

The general opinion of those faculty members interviewed was "one cut per credit system." This is up to the individual faculty member and varies accordingly.

The purpose of the committee is not to set up a standard cut policy but to determine if there is a need for one and what type of policy both students and faculty would agree upon. They have planned to distribute questionnaires, one for students, the other for faculty, to determine the college opinion concerning a cut policy.

The questions hope to discover what the college believes the present cut policy is, if any; what students believe to be a fair policy; and if instructors considered class attendance important in their grading systems.

The questionnaires will be distributed by SGA members in the near future.

Playtex invents the first-day tampon

(We took the inside out to show you how different it is.)

Outside: it's softer and silky (not cardboardy). Inside: it's so extra absorbent...it even protects on your first day. Your worst day! In every lab test against the old cardboardy kind... the Playtex tampon was always more absorbent. It actually gets 45% more absorbent than the average than the leading regular tampon.

Because it's different. Actually adjusts to you. It flowers out. Fluffs out. Designed to protect every inside inch of you. So the chance of a mishap is almost zero!

Why live in the past?

Try it fast. Try it now.
The State of the Montclarion
Present:
Every year as the change in editorial board positions become effective, it is customary that the outgoing editor-in-chief give a report of the present state of the newspaper, and therefore, the purpose of this editorial address.

The past year has definitely been a progressive one in the history of the MONTCLARION. Not only have we expanded the number of staff members, but also the caliber of our journalistic attempts; to quote a recent “Letter to the Editor,” we have become a topic of conversation everywhere from cafeteria tables to fraternity meetings to administrative council meetings. People await the MONTCLARION’s arrival eagerly — what they do with it after its arrival is an individual matter. We have also never received so many “Letters to the Editor” — another indication of reader interest.

However, these are not reasons to arrest progress; on the contrary, increased readership requires more innovative techniques to continue support for the newspaper. The MONTCLARION will continue to provide a comprehensive and reliable account of campus developments with special features on local and national issues; of this, I am confident. With best wishes for the future success of the newspaper and my special thanks to all individuals for their cooperation in the past, I congratulate the new editors and remain...

Sincerely,
Janet Caruso, MONTCLARION editor-in-chief, 1968

Future:
Just 40 years ago this month the MONTCLARION began publication. Today the MONTCLARION is moving; it is growing and expanding. In 1968 we have become a 12-page weekly newspaper considered the best publication of the state colleges.

The weekly publication is perhaps the most important level the MONTCLARION has achieved. We hope to continue in this direction, perhaps publishing twice a week within the coming year. With adequate funds and facilities, including a new office, we may be able to do this.

The MONTCLARION will endeavor to continue to be an effective media for campus communication. As always we strive for objective coverage in campus and local news.

DAVID M. LEVINE — Managing Editor

Commentary
An Information Research Society has been organized for the purpose of “functioning as an objective, independent information service providing the student body of Montclair State College with extensive information concerning current issues of interest to the campus.…”

The MONTCLARION welcomes this service to the student body.

The objectivity of the SGA has allowed the Information Research Society to receive a class II charter. However, this new organization has not been objective in its requirements for membership. If this group is a public information society membership should not be limited as is stated in this group’s constitution.

The MONTCLARION supports the suggested proposal of the Athletic Department that several soccer games be played home under the lights next fall.

Pony Express Revisited
To the Editor:
In the Nov. 22 issue, you commented on the services of the mailroom in an editorial entitled “The Pony Express.” I was really amazed at the minute amount of research you made in the mailroom services. This work has been proven to me in my editorial.

Please take note of the following: The pony express has only two time employees in the mailroom, both of whom are female. Since the pony express is a part of the mail service and the head freight that easily weigh from 30 pounds and up, the women have to rely on the male student help to drag the packages around.

As for your claim that the mail room does not hold the belief that “mail be picked up and started on route the day it is sent” is another example of poor research. If you would have come down to the mail room, you would have witnessed that mail is sent out on the same day it is sent.

Regarding the complaint of organization, the pony express mail room only sorts it out and then sends it on to its point of destination.

Delays in correspondence are often the fault of the US Post Office Department. Also, the post office does not require identification when you pick up a package or letter anyway.

I know that I and my fellow student workers in the central mail area of the Post Office Department feel that the pony express was unjust in printing this editorial when no research was done.

Montclarion’s Yellow Haze
To the Editor:
In one of your more recent journalistic attempts, you once again demonstrated your artistic ability at painting a thin yellow haze over the truth. What I am referring to is your poorly written, pathetic editorial that appeared in the Nov. 22 issue.

It may well be true that the delivery service is too slow to suit your high standard, which is admiringly hide in your publishing. However, this does not entitle you (even in so “liberal” a newspaper as yours) to point an accusing finger at one individual (I. e. Ms. Barker), especially considering the fact that through your ignorance and mindless research, you chose the wrong person.

Had your research been of the spirit of braving a college publication, you would have known there was someone more directly responsible to whom you could have directed your accusation. Or do you lack the imagination of a journalist?

Also, had you been more open-minded, you would have realized that there could be someone higher up. Or do you lack the courage?

Harry M. Freeman
English, ’69

Editors Note: Mrs. Barker is not responsible to the administration for running an efficient mail room. The reason for mentioning Mrs. Barker by name is that workers negligent in their duties are accountable to her.

Pleading Should Improve
To the Editor:
I feel it is time that more sentiment be expressed concerning Agora specifically and the fraternities and sororities in general after my three semesters here. First I wish to comment on the Agora letter that appeared in the Dec. 6 issue.

Suggestive songs have no place in mixed company (which you find everywhere on campus, except toilet facilities) and the singing of them can in no way be justified in student facilities.

Now that we are “adults” in college, shouldn’t we try to act that way? As “adult individuals” one should be able to control their actions and reactions. Also, one should not entitle you (even in so “liberal” a newspaper as yours) to point an accusing finger at one individual (I.e. Ms. Barker), especially considering the fact that through your ignorance and mindless research, you chose the wrong person.

Victor Krivitski
Editors Note: In the Nov. 22 issue of the MONTCLARION an editorial entitled “Needed: A Policy for Pleading” was devoted to suggestions for needed regulations for on-campus pledging.

Agora Antics Again
To the Editor:
I would like to recall here an incident starring one of the pledges of Agora that contains nothing “suggestive,” no traces of “self-fueling frustration.” As “adult individuals” we appetite for feeling, privileges, rights and privacy. A mature and dignified pledge simply will not find a few of my own ideas which are compositions from other colleges, to improve MSCP’s pledging patterns include the following:

1. One pledge period per school year in the spring semester during nice weather so there is enough room for those who participate and those who don’t.

2. One week for pledging in the interest of the grades and health of the pledges.

3. Serious, dignified, intellectual, worthwhile pledge assignments during school hours.

4. After school hours and during their “hell night” let them be as free to please as you please. However, if Agora feels they are in any way being oralized, they should be justified in student facilities.

It appears more expedient for Agora to cry persecution and conduct a whitewash campaign rather than look into their own actions and attempt to rectify them.

Dennis Cervenka

Agora does many things that infringe upon the rights of the mature students of Montclair State College.

WHAT CAUSES STUDENTS TO REVOLT?

by Michael Henney

Features Staff Reporter

The air was crisp and clean and the sun was peering from behind its cumulus friend. There were students who wore hornrimmed glasses, button-down collar shirts and levis while other were wearing bell bottom trousers and sporting shoulder length hair. The atmosphere appeared very relaxed as the walk on discussing pretty girls, Mao’s philosophy and the next riot. No sooner said than done.

Broken noses, bloodied faces and fear: Some students laughed, some students cried. Shocked onlookers timidly asked, “What does it mean?” “Why?”

The causes of violent revolt are both psychological and social. The social milieu apparently affects the individual’s perception of himself, others and society because we often hear a statement like, “He looks like a typical professor.” How the two interact is not generally known but there have been conclusions based on past occurrences.

“Students rebel because either they are not afraid of the consequences or because they are so frustrated or they just don’t care,” says Dr. Abraham Gelfond, a clinical psychologist and a professor of education at MSC.

Spoiled Generation

“Too many of the rebels,” he says, “are member of the first category — members of the ‘spoiled generation.’” He feels that this indifference to consequences is a direct result of a lack of dietary training.

However, the difficulty of accepting authority is not the only factor. “The period of adolescence,” Dr. Gelfond said, “has been extended. They don’t usually have to work to help out the family and this relieves them of responsibility. They have reached an age and physical maturity but, after placing them in a sex-stimulated culture, we tell them they’re not ready.”

As society increases in complexity there seems to come with it an increase in confusion. Great technological advances have caused a shift in values, attitudes and social commitment.

Perhaps, Dr. Gelfond says, the real revolt is a philosophical one: What is the purpose of man’s existence and is it worth the pain?

What happened to Columbia?

by Jean Taft

Features Staff Reporter

Student unrest on campuses throughout America has been undeniably attention getting during the year of 1968. The riots at Columbia were the most outstanding and long lasting compared to the demonstrations at New York University, University of Michigan and University of California at Berkeley and Santa Barbara.

The Columbia turmoil, scene of continual student dissatisfaction with their quite limited participation in the running of their school, started to boil when the students gave massive support to Harlem sympathizers protesting the building of a gymnasium on the Morningside Park site at the lower end of the campus. The Columbia SDS, headed by Mark Rudd, agitated and a crisis ensued when 720 students seized four buildings plus the office of president Grayson Kirk.

After five days of deliberation, Kirk finally submitted to calling the police. One thousand policemen came in and all 720 students were "Treed." An outraged cry of police brutality arose.

The students won their cause, however. The building of the gymnasium was halted. Mark Rudd was dismissed from the University by Kirk, to the dismay of his fellow SDSers. But they seized Hamilton Hall and started several fires in other college buildings. More arrests and more cries of police brutality ensued.

Riot atmosphere present

The physical manifestations at Columbia resembled those at other campuses. Although nowhere else was as drastic, the riot atmosphere has been present to varying degrees around the United States. Demonstrations — the result of student dissatisfaction with such items as the Vietnam war, lack of student power on campus issues, and the ban on demonstrations — generally result in violent means of support and supression. Columbia proved it.

Death of the fuhrer

In my initial column I stated that MSC need fear no Mark Rudd. I would like to add that Mark Rudd is no longer a threat. Innsley. This column is appended for the last time as a student at Montclair, for school is done. Expectedly after a long illness—quite dead. No one wants to destroy this school (sorry facets) because there simply isn’t anything here worth destroying. Not a damn thing.

If Montclair isn’t about to allow the world to affect the campus (and it isn’t) it becomes insane to remain here.

One of the problems in being opposed to a location is that you have no right, or need, to stop doing things when there is sufficient evidence to demonstrate that the first course of action. Hence, now that I have become convinced that my continued enrollment at this school will do nothing to further my interests or development, I am forced to leave. It would be too easy to say that I have already seen this long view and I might as well finish. The fact that I have wasted this much time is the worst possible argument to use to justify my leaving.

"Little Boxes"

It is not possible to keep people from being forced into the "little boxes" which society has prepared for them by allowing them to put things into their own boxes. Revolution is not going to be ever successfully accomplished where the box is seen as the best answer. It must be done by example. Beliefs are only valid if one is willing to live them off of and not just talk about them. This is what I intend to do.

If this be student power...

A few days ago South Vietnamese ambassador Nguyen Huu Chau, about to address a New York University audience, was met by a "pig" and decorated with a Nazi flag by a mob of 200 students, SDS members. Joining a protest against the war, journalist James Reston cut short a speech to protest the government of South Vietnam.

Student power, as exemplified by these events coupled with riots at Columbia, Boston and Berkeley, is a mess. It is a euphemism for immaturity and gullibility on the part of students involved in militant organizations such as the SDS movement.

The techniques employed by this organization are likened to middlebrow hypocrisy, according to the recent editorial in the Clinton (Me.) Daily Democrat. SDS leaders have said: "The Negro, the poor, the worker—intellectually and financially." SDS leaders are like the "bureaucrats...daintily walking into the slums, handkerchief over nose, handing out charity." The leaders, both men and women, wear the attire of the day, talk, play guitars and use four-letter words. Their ambition is to incite their gullible followers, then shake their pockets and move on.

In short, these leaders are playing the game of revolution—this isn’t the first time they don’t get it.

Case Test

I agree with this opinion. I believe the test case for A. While matters at Columbia are quite complex, the significant reason for student rioting was an administration isolated from present-day educational needs. Hence, the concessions had to be granted.

But back in 1966, members of a New York seized administrative offices at the University of Chicago. Five days passed, students refused and the administration merely punished the ringleaders—no concession was granted.

Reevaluation

In all, 1968 proved the need for a reevaluation of American education. Organizations such as the SDS seize upon issues which have been forced to anneal destruction.

If education can be revamped to meet the needs of a changing social structure, militancy may be eliminated. And Montclair is proving it now.

JOHN ADAMS

"Yesterday the greatest question was decided which has arisen in America and a greater perhaps never was, nor will be decided among men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony. That is United Colonies are, and of right and strength free and independent States." Letter to Mrs. Adams (July 3, 1776)

Take '45 college students with money and put a town nearby. What do you have? A multi-million dollar contribution to local business by MSC students. Start with the 10 dollars a week paid by a estimado 1,000 MSC off-campus students for the 32 weeks of the college calendar. Total...$320,000 directly paid by MSC students to their landlords. This money is then spent by landlords in the area, then cars, then support individuals who want to effect change. The traditional MSC student is of the lower middle class and has a desire for security. CONFRONTATION... ...CONTEMPLATION

School's end may be near.

by Martin J. Fucio
Staff Reporter

College High, which has been in existence at Montclair State since 1929, may be in danger of ending. Parents of students favoring a closing discussed at an open meeting of the Montclair State Board of trustees on April 8. Those who favor closing the school, which was originally started as an "observation" school for future teachers, feel that College High no longer fulfills that purpose. Those who want to keep the school feel that, for all its weaknesses, College High can still be an effective part of the College.

"Not typical"

William Cuff of the education Department, while not openly favoring a closing, feels that College High is "not a typical high school scene for our students to view." He cited the small number of College High students at each grade level, while a typical high school may have over 100. Mr. Cuff also pointed out that the school has a limited amount of course offerings. Only college prep courses are offered. There are no business or industrial arts curriculums. College High students, especially in the upper grades, were selected, which is another typical aspect of the school. Finally, College High students leave the building for other parts of the campus, and college students enter the building. This situation is not found in any regular high school.

Paul Clifford, chairman of the Math department, feels that College High is important to traditional college courses such as mathematics and English. This mathematics department has six professors teaching in College High. College juniors and seniors observe these classes, which are taught by the same professors who teach junior and senior methods courses. In a sense, team teaching takes place. The college students, working with their professors, are able to observe and work on lesson plans. Each student is able to teach a class for 15 minutes at least once. Mr. Clifford stated that without College High it would be difficult to have the methods courses "as realistic as they are."

Strong feelings

Both Mr. Cuff and Mr. Clifford spoke at the June 8 meeting. Although Dr. Harold C. Bohn, chairman of the English department, was not at the meeting, he does have very strong feelings about College High. Dr. Bohn feels that the school should not only be continued, but expanded. Dr. Bohn challenged the view that College High's students are exceptionally bright.
How's your entertaining etiquette?

Do you panic at the mere idea of entertaining? Get stage fright waiting for those first guests to arrive? Chew your fingernails while trying to choose the right flatware, fixings, follow-up, time schedule, fun-formulas and go-well-together guests?

Throw away the aspirin and relax. These timely tips from entertaining expert Charlotte Adams can solve your party problems and help you become the "hostess with the mostest" whether your next gathering is a backyard barbecue, a wedding breakfast, or that special dinner for the boss.

R.S.V.P. report
For any party other than a formal dinner, you can invite guests either by telephone or the mails depending on which is more convenient.

Table setting tactics
Service plates, matching china and sterling silver are the once considered essential — are no longer required in today's informal entertaining. Stainless steel, if it's shining, and non-matching plates, when necessary, are good enough for any type of festivity, large or small. If you lack after-dinner coffee cups, don't panic. Regular cups are acceptable as long as the brew's first rate. But cloth — not coffee cups, don't panic. Regular cups are acceptable as long as the brew's first rate.

Buffet buffs
Two courses plus a salad are all you need for a buffet meal, of which one should always be hot even in summer. If the rest of the meal's cold, serve hot bread or coffee.

The name of the game is "maybe" Entertainment is up to you. Some guests love playing games while others prefer to sit around and talk. Try to sense the mood of your party and avoid forcing games on the crowd if they're swinging on their own.

Happy endings
You can gracefully prod those stragglers who stay on and on and ON — to leave the premises if you get to your feet when the first guests start to leave and remain standing as a gentle hint. Only as a last resort does a good hostess remind the laggards that "I'm so sorry but it's late and we do have an early appointment in the morning."

If you follow these hints on entertaining etiquette, keep your "cool" as a hostess and let the party have a life of its own, chances are it'll be a ball for everybody — including you.

TIRED?
Here's how to fight it

New ways to solve an old problem, fatigue, keep coming to the fore.

Foods that fill you up, but don't nourish you properly, are one cause of many people feeling tired. But from breakfast foods to treats as a bedtime snack, a variety of new foods — IF you variety of new foods — IF you are the right choice for bed time.

Sweats helpful

Fatigue — fighters
Right at home, right now, you can resolve to take these additional fatigue-fighting measures:

Buy a bottle of vitamins — any brand is good — and take one every day.

Take off at least half the brand is good — and take one every day.

Buy a bottle of vitamins — any brand is good — and take one every day.

Get off at least half the weight you know you should. The more you weigh, the more energy you need to move around.

If you find it hard to get to sleep, consider heavier cotton sheets (they don't get warm and humid so quickly) and perhaps a new mattress.

If you can't sleep, remember that relaxing completely with your eyes closed is said to provide about 80% as much rest as you'd get if you were actually sleeping.

Preparing for the bomb

If nuclear bombs ever hit, millions of Americans will die from the explosion and radiation. Millicent would also survive, if fallout shelters were available. Some of those saved should be school children.

No building can protect its occupants if a bomb explodes nearby. But buildings can be built to provide protection from the gamma radiation that rains down in deadly fallout on areas untouched by the explosion.

Aspirations for Local Autonomy

The situation is in the Oceanhills-Brownsville dispute has much interest for the student of education and the student of government. The intricacies of this dispute are complicated, but as you know, Montclair State College has been a virtual personal visit and a detailed comment here on who did what in the educational process. The age and cumbersomeness of governmental agencies. Having indeed in other agencies, is decentralized in education, and not have the best conditions, the New York City Board of Education handles close to half of a million dollars, and contrary to popular belief, we do have power. I'm familiar with one college whose student body has absolutely no power. They do not work with the administration or the faculty on anything. What I am suggesting is that there is a time in the growth of public agencies when quality is improved by having decisions made closer to the actual process which the agency (in this case Montclair State College) is set up to perform.

Lewis Speed joined New Jersey Bell in 1965. He started as a coin box collector. The job wasn't easy, but he's the kind of guy who works hard. He knows it pays off. That's probably why he's completed three years of college and is still taking classes.

Letters to the Editor...

Nov. 8 paper by Mike Liebermann. I would like him to know that I feel he is way off base. The fact that the type of schedules he describes exists does not contest. I too feel it may be improved upon. But to move from these facts to the assumption that the "administration believes" them too immature to choose their own professors is not at all called for, or helpful in trying to reach a solution to the problem. At no time in my dealings with the administration have I ever heard that the feelings Mr. Liebermann described existed. I also have yet to come into contact with any member of the administration who is deliberately staying up nights planning how they may best give the greatest number of students the worst possible schedules.

Therefore, although my sympathies are all on Mr. Lieberman's side, I feel that there are more constructive ways to deal with the problem.

Extra Library Hours Not Needed

In a recent editorial the MONTCLARION urged that the library be open to the students for a greater number of hours. There are several problems involved, but the most important is personnel. Some librarians are working 12 hours a day. It has been suggested that reference librarians be hired specifically for the evening and weekend hours.

Local Autonomy and Montclair State College

In the passage of the Higher Education Act of 1966 our College was given a considerable amount of control over its own affairs which it did not have previously. Prior to that legislation Montclair was completely dominated by a large state system and we suffered from many of the disadvantages which we have described above in another context. Through our local Board of Trustees, the College can now control its own curriculum and exert greater external influence of our functioning.

In many respects, however, insufficient local autonomy came to the state colleges in the passage of the Higher Education Act and

The lighting effects are majestic. Naturally they have something to expose of man's fears and guilt from influence of his environment.

Iris (Joan Miro) is a young girl. She is introduced as a child in the story, but as the play progresses, she becomes more developed. The actress who plays Iris, Sally Kirkland, does an excellent job in portraying this character. She is both delicate and strong, and she is able to communicate Iris's inner turmoil to the audience.

The setting of the story is a family home. The family consists of a father, a mother, and two children. The father is a lawyer, the mother is a housewife, and the two children are used as devices to further the plot. The family is depicted as typical of upper-middle-class American society.

The play explores the idea of conformity and rebellion against it. The children in the family are expected to conform to societal expectations, but they begin to question these expectations as they grow older. The youngest child, Iris, is particularly susceptible to these questions, as she is often misunderstood by the other characters in the play.

The play ends with a scene in which Iris is forced to choose between conformity and rebellion. She decides to rebel against the expectations of her family and society, and she is shown leaving their home.

This is a classic play that has been influential in shaping modern American drama. It continues to be produced today, and it is considered one of the great works of American literature.

THE BRIG

'A waste of talent'

Reviewed by HW Hutchingson III

The MSC production of The Brig challenged and proved the talents of its directors, Steve Keitz and Richard Halpin, and those of its cast.

Of the latter none was out of character for an instant. Rehearsal had conditioned them for the strain of an almost athletic performance. Under the sweat, the blows and the lights, not one slipped or fell with the load.

The directors exploited every theatrical device that the play offered them. The action began in the lobby when one of the guards lined up the audience four at a time as if they were prisoners, to be led to seats by guards who carried billy clubs and shotguns.

The arena-like set was suitable to the square, enclosed quarters of a prison ward. The benches were set in two rows inside a chicken wire fence. Action took place in all available parts of the theater, including the aisles.

Lighting and set design were simple, and achieved a greater effect than would more detailed designs. Action was blocked to utilize the whole theatre and to involve the audience. Direction and acting were superb.

Unfortunately, any ingenious production of The Brig is a waste of good talent and effort. The play cannot rise to the level of art. Its statement is social: the Marines are a social disease. Its effect relies on audience torture. Any 10 minute segment of the action would suffice.

The dialogue consisted of guards insulting prisoners and prisoners requesting permission to cross white lines. There was no psychological probing, no intellectualization. There was no identification, no plot and no climax. There was no motivation no character development. There was little besides screaming and violence. In short, there was no play.
