Fine Arts Students Show

By Richard Lupo

Over 40 students from the fine arts department presented themselves with petition in hand to Dr. Richardson last December, regarding their dismay with the proposed “12 hour teaching load.” Hoping to “clear the air,” the students commenced to discuss their plight with the President.

The “12 hour load” will basically result in an eventual reduction in semester teaching credit. It was agreed upon by the administration that there was to be a load cutback, but no added credit. It was agreed upon by the administration that there was to be a load cutback, but no added credit.

Dr. Richardson said that the way the students dumped the “unfair.” He added that, “The students came in with the attitude that something was being done to them. The students were fair and eloquent.

Students React to Ruling On Possible Faculty Dismissal

By Roger White and Dino Eifychou

A speech department student committee has been organized to protest the decision that the services of a speech department faculty member will not be needed next year.

The decision affecting Mrs. Phoebe Schlanger, who has been teaching at MSC since September 1967, was reached by department chairman Dr. Howard Fox and a faculty committee consisting of Mr. K. Moll, chairman, Dr. H. Scholl, Mr. W. MacConnell, Mr. G. Carraciolo and Mr. W. Ballare.

Dr. Fox explained that the speech department will split into two separate concentrations – speech arts and speech science – and therefore departmental needs for teaching positions will change. He further explained that although Mrs. Schlanger is a very good teacher she would not fit into the future plans of the department.

Dr. Fox said other factors taken into considerations for the evaluation of a teacher were: degrees, experience and the controversial tenure law. The Stating New Jersey tenure laws, teachers are subject to review every year for their first three years. After reaching tenure, teachers become autonomous and may remain in their positions as long as they desire.

Student Committee Organizes

Tony DeFranco, Nancy Parin, R. Scott Watson and Celia Fitzpatrick members of the speech department student committee, obtained the signatures of 77 students and presented them to Dr. Fox and the faculty personnel committee. Along with the 24 letters from students both majors and non-majors protesting the decisions were presented.

According to speech students Mrs. Schlanger motivates her classes and is well respected by the students. Also noted is the original recognition she has received for her work in speech therapy.

At a conference between the student committee and faculty members the administration that there was to be a load cutback, but no added credit. It was brought out that there is a possibility that a new professor would be hired into the department. This new professor

License Check

Will Curb

Car Thefts

By Karen Bykowsky

Involved in a new, all-out drive to curb the problem of car thefts is Dr. S. MacConnell. McGinty has introduced a new procedure of checking the license and registration of anyone seen working under the hood or jumping up a car on campus.

Concerned about the increasing number of missing cars, McGinty has instituted a program to keep tabs on possible tamperings with automobiles.

Ward Nelson, a senior, became interested in the program when he heard of several students being requested to identify themselves.

“The new plan should be quite effective,” he commented. “Almost any method of stealing a car involves some sort of tampering with the mechanisms. If there is constant checking of license and registrations, cars will be much more secure on campus.”

Nelson went on to discuss the main methods of stealing cars. The first, trying a car off campus, would be stopped by investigating ownership papers. The second, jump-starting, requires the hood to be raised, and therefore an efficient checking system would stop it. But the third method, working under the hood or stopping it as easily. But the report comes in, “We’re still working on it.”

In an emotion-laden open meeting the Montclair State Board of Trustees voted last Dec. 17 to postpone the "phasing out" of College High School until opinions from more faculty and parents are obtained.

Apparent the board endorsed President Thomas H. Richardson’s proposal to “phase out and eventually close” College High but did not decide to delay the decision until Jan. 21 due to strong arguments presented by audience-participants.

Dr. Max Sobel, mathematics professor and election-methods teacher, claimed that the closing of College High would be a serious loss to the state and serves a useful, functional purpose in teacher training.”

“Methods Courses Must Go”

Dr. Carolyn E. Bock, a Latin, professor, claimed: “I came to Montclair State because of College High School. And if this school goes, methods courses must go.”

Colleges Heads Plead For Local $$$ Control

Four state college presidents have banded together in support of fiscal autonomy for the state colleges in New Jersey — a move previously called for by the New Jersey Education Association in its fiscal autonomy bill, S-306.

The four presidents, Robert Huesler, Trenton, Thomas Richardson, Montclair, James Olsen, Paterson and James Muller, Jersey City, want to serve the state colleges with the

Science Dept. Reorganizes

In a move toward university status, Montclair State has reorganized its science department into three departments: chemistry; biology; and physics and earth science.

The reorganization goes into effect Feb. 3.

Dr. Irwin Gaweley Jr., who has headed the science department for the past five years, will be chairman of the new chemistry department. Dr. S. Marie Kuhnen, biology professor, has been named biology department chairman and Dr. Stephen Kowalski, associate professor of science, will head the physics and earth science department.

Programs in teacher education and liberal arts will be offered by the new departments.

EDITOR’S OPINION

‘Phasing Out’ Supported

After strong protests on the part of College High students, parents and some faculty members, Montclair State’s Board of Trustees voted last December to halt plans to “phase out” the campus demonstration school until the views of more faculty members and parents are obtained.

Nearly 200 people attended the board’s open meeting Dec. 17 and, they all had strong opinions favoring the school’s retention. Unfortunately, many of the arguments presented were seemingly unrealistic relating to the future needs of Montclair State. The misquoting of laws, giving groundless statistics and emotional arguing on the part of many audience participants added to the board’s herculean task.

After the measure postponing the “phasing out” of College High was passed, Dr. W. Lincoln Hawkins, board chairman, emphatically asserted: “We will make our decision on Jan. 21—and that will be final.”

Indeed, the Board of Trustees is bending over backwards to hear the opinions of all sides before reaching a final decision. Back in 1964 the State Board of Education wanted College High closed. But strong objections by a few faculty members, alumni and parents kept the school going.

Sometimes democracy does not work in the best interests of the people. The future of Montclair State should be growing with the needs of society, rather than catering to the needs of a vocal few supporting the intellectual elite existing at College High.

Montclair State’s teacher-education students can best serve America’s perplexing society by working with disadvantaged children, teaching in Newark’s ghetto and gaining an insight into today’s educational needs.

As of January 1, we are still awaiting materials and supplies which were requisitioned during the summer. Materials, services and equipment purchased by the central New Jersey State Purchase Division, and delays of two to six months, depending on the complexity of cost of the item, are not uncommon. At other times, the colleges do not receive the equipment specified by college faculty and staff. The local Board of Trustees should have the same authority and responsibility in the same manner permitted by the local school districts.

Budgeting should be recognized as being a tool to meet both academic and administrative programs. The budget is inequitably tied to top level personnel and professional and academic programs. The present system does not provide for enough flexibility in the use of money within the approved budget. Great quantities of time and energy are wasted as a result.

Construction

There is a long history regarding the inadequacy of present construction procedures. The authority of the local state college is so limited that at present construction cannot be paid without the approval of college administrators. The present construction procedures are cumbersome and have caused extensive delays. Construction on a state college campus takes almost twice as long as it does in the private sector of society.

In my last article in the MONTCLAIRON, I wrote about responsible financial control. The following statement came from one of the other colleges and I thought it would be of interest to you.

Some parenthetical comments have been added apparently without the relevance of the remarks for Montclair.

The Need For More Local Autonomy At The State Colleges

We are moving into an era that requires that we participate more involved in the decisions which affect education at the college. Movement by faculty members have meaning, however, if there are really vital decisions made at the college. While the Board of Trustees and the president of the college have legal power to make important decisions, then there are no decisions for the faculty and students to participate in. The real academic health of the entire college depends on, that more autonomy be granted to the local campus. The following specific improvements are needed:

1. Purchasing and Procurement

The state colleges are still waiting materials and supplies which were requisitioned during the summer. Footnote the TRUTH or Pay the CONSEQUENCES

By Mike Andrea

"It's not a direct quote, so why should I bother footnoting?" A question that many of us have heard towards the end of a semester when just about everyone has a term paper due soon and the footnote pages are being typed out feverishly. Because of the large numbers of the College Allan Morehead and Mr. Richard Davis of the dean's office though, would now be the prime time for a clarification of the college's policy towards plagiarism.

According to the statement recommended by the committee on examinations and academic standards, plagiarism is,"...the copying or imitating the language, ideas and thoughts of another author and passing off as one's own work." (1) This definition includes a direct quotation, paraphrasing (putting the author's ideas into one's own words), and summarizing.

The statement also includes the consequences a student must endure if suspected of plagiarism. "All cases of literary dishonesty will be reviewed by a committee composed of the dean of the college, an associate dean, the chairman of the department involved and one other person to be appointed by the Dean of the College." (2)

"If found guilty of plagiarism, "...any or all of the following will ensue: a grade of "F" will be assigned in the course in which the offense occurred. A grade of "WP" will be assigned in any other course being taken in which the student is doing passing work. The student will be suspended or expelled. The action..." will be recorded on the student's permanent record Card." (3)

Poverty And Slums

Comprise Edition Edited By Cordasco

By Richard Kamenick

Dr. Francesco Cordasco, professor of education at MSC recently edited and wrote an introduction to Jacob Riis Revisited: Poverty and the Slum in Another Era. Dr. Cordasco has served as a consultant to the U.S. Office of Education and has been a major figure in poverty antipoverty programs funded under the Economic Opportunity Act. Dr. Cordasco, a leading sociologist, brings to his role of professor of education at MSC editor a certain expertise in the area of poverty.

"Jacob Riis, a Danish immigrant who arrived in New York in 1870, became a police reporter for the New York Tribune and a chronicler of the conditions in the urban slums conditions analogous to those that, in 1964, led a young Johnson to tell a war on poverty," King KONG

The Voice of Montclair State (WVMS) is not accepting any request to the SGA for the sum of $1,500. This approved appropriation will be utilized for a new control board.

The main idea of the new control board will be to greatly expand engineering procedures. With this increased versatility, our existing WVMS studio will become necessary for the eventual conversion to FM radio status. If frequency space becomes available, WVMS could very easily become an FM community station.

The board itself will be constructed by present members of the 32-WVMS staff under the guidance of George Steinmetz, the consulting engineer and MSC graduate.

The first stages of construction should begin in February or March, with work continuing the rest of the spring. The completion date is set for the beginning of school next fall. The existing WVMS studio will be rearranged to better accommodate the new board.

American Place Theatre and Company are presenting a production of three short plays at the American Place Theatre (St. Clement's Church). "The Acquisition" by David Trainer which was the first play which they performed three seemingly unattracted actors whose job was only made more difficult by Tom Bissinger's elementary direction.

The entire evening is made up of "First ," "Second," and "Third," "First," "This Bird of Dancing Singeth All Night Long" by Philip Dean. "Second," "Second," "It's a good idea but the production is made plausible as well as exciting totally through the efforts of Leora Dana, one of the most talented and dynamic actresses to be seen on the stage today. She is backed up by Billie Allen a very gifted young "How To Succeed..." veteran.

"Third," "Third," Mr. Jon McKnight, director of student activities, has announced the plans for this year's festivities. A T.G.I.F. (Thank God it's Friday) get together with refreshments and a musical combo for dancing will be held in the lower lounge of Life Hall on Friday afternoon.

The Indians will host Western New England's basketball team the same evening. Something new will be added in the form of a "gamer" with the game, "What's the Difference," and the Castorla will be presented in a "banned" courtroom. The Covins will receive trophies at a dance in Life Hall cafeteria which will follow the game and last until midnight. Admission to the dance is one dollar.

The Fifth Dimension," originally scheduled to perform on Saturday evening, has been forced to cancel. They will be over at the college that day but tomorrow morning they will perform at Bloomsburg University. Grove City, Pa. The show will be seen on the stage today.

Dr. Fox stated that, "Not Rochelle Owens' "Large classes are not good, but if it were shorter, it might have been considered for closing since large classes don't give the luxury of small studio courses. Dr. Richardson proclaimed that, "Large classes are not good, but we must face up to reality."
Kornegay Leads Hawks Over Indians, 77-64
By John Dantoni

A tough second half zone and hot hand of All-American Ron Kornegay helped Monmouth College open up a close game as the Hawks trimmed Montclair State, 77-64, in the championship game of the New Jersey Kiwanis classic before a capacity crowd in Panzer Gym.

The Montclair defeat was the first for the Indians in nine games. It also marked the first setback ever in Kiwanis play for Montclair State after two straight championships.

Both teams were slow off the mark in the beginning as tightness caused sloppy play and many turnovers. Despite this start the game developed in a nip-and-tuck affair in the first half, with the score being knotted 10 times. Ed Hallock's field goal with three seconds left in the first half gave the Hawks the halftime edge at 32-31.

The teams traded baskets and the lead during the early going of the second half, until John Barone hit for two quick baskets and Ron Kornegay added a foul at 11:57 for a five point Monmouth spread, 51-46.

Montclair got the lead down to three at 57-54 on Bob Stienkereuz's goal but Ron Kornegay (who scored 30 points in the game) hit for five quick points to put the game out of reach. The Indians received some consolation in their defeat with the second place trophy for the Classic and they also placed two men on the All-Star team.

Bob Lester and Harry James of the Indians were named to the honor squad along with two-time tournament Most Valuable Player Ron Kornegay and John Barone of Monmouth, and Paul Dolinoy of Upala.

Gymnastics Meet Opens Tomorrow

Tomorrow the MSC gymnastics team will open its season against the United States Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn. The gymnasts are preparing for a tough opener, the first of 13 meets this season culminating in the conference championships to be held here in March.

The students of Montclair will have their first opportunity to see the team in competition on Tues., Jan. 14 at 8 p.m. in Panzer Gym against arch-rival Trenton State. Coach Terry Orlisk will make his first appearance at MSC in a gymnastics meet.

Grieco Wins Top Record
By Tom Benn

Montclair State senior Jim Grieco won his 67th wrestling match at the C.W. Post Christmas Tournament over the holidays, thus breaking Larry Sizeman's school record of 66 career wins.

The record came as Grieco was bestowed his second silver medal at the tournament in as many years. He lost in the finals to Arnie Dardofsky by a 3-1 score.

Grieco will head the list of Montclair wrestlers who will take on a strong team from Central Connecticut at 2 p.m. in Panzer Gym. Central Connecticut is highly regarded and sports a 4-1 record. Montclair is 2-1 in dual meets, and finished fourth in the four team Oneonta (N.Y.) Tournament in December.

Mat coach Tim Sullivan also points out that three of Montclair's 12 opponents are rated among the top 20 teams in the East. They include N.Y. Maritime Academy, Wilkes College and East Stroudsburg, who handied the Indians their first loss of the year.
