SGA Legislature Reviews Student Unrest Bill After Martinez Veto

Robert Kuehl
Asst. News Editor

Student government bill No. 68108, "Resolution Concerning Student Unrest at Montclair State College," that proposes measures to be taken against student demonstrators who act in defiance of the legal process was considered at the April 22 SGA meeting, after its veto last month by Robert Martinez, SGA president. Although passed by the legislature, Martinez stated that there are many students who believe that a bill as important as this one should be discussed at an open hearing for all MSC students.

In the introduction, the bill comments on the present "desires... of students... to express and have their opinions heard in society" and on the particular situation at MSC where "channels of communication have been and are open between students and the administration and the faculty."

The authors of 68108 proceed to criticize the actions of students (who often) take upon themselves to be the arbiters of student opinion and move outside of the law and established channels of communication to dramatize and express their views.

They believe: "As concerned as we are with individual, as well as majority rights, the wanton destruction of the academic community cannot be tolerated or be permitted to happen."

Two proposals for maintaining "a high level of proficiency" in this "academic community" have been presented by the 10 authors of the bill. First, a board of student relations will be established for student grievances involving faculty and/or administration of MSC.

Secondly, disorderly student demonstrators will be handled in the following ways:

(a) The president or legislature can order such activities to cease; (b) Suspension will result for those who refuse to comply with this order; (c) The local police will be called upon to set an end to such activities if campus resources are insufficient; (d) Filed charges and prosecution in the law courts will result for those participants involved with activities that imperil either life, property, or the normal function of the academic community.

The SGA Legislature appears to be particularly concerned with the "channels of communication to dramatize and express their views." The bill is focused on the specific situation at Montclair State where "channels of communication have been and are open between students and the administration and the faculty."

The authors of the bill believe that the actions of students cannot be tolerated and propose two solutions: a board of student relations and handling disorderly demonstrators in a specific manner.

The bill reflects a broader concern about the decline of academic proficiency and the loss of control over student activities. The SGA Legislature is intent on maintaining a high level of proficiency in the academic community and is willing to take strong measures to prevent disorderly demonstrators from disrupting these channels of communication.

Camp Experience Not Rescheduled

Altered Budget

Could Regain

Wapalanne

Outdoor education, once a mandatory part of every Montclair State student's college experience, has been deleted from the college graduation requirements since 1968. Presently, no plans are in order to reinstate the former week-long outdoor program scheduled during the students' sophomore year.

Vincent Calabrese, director of business services, has stated that one reason for the discontinuance of the program was that the camp fees were raised from $4 to $5 a student per semester and since only four departments required camping experience, it became financially impractical for the college to subsidize the program.

Initiated in 1948, the Wapalanne program included a week of social, recreational and educational activities for all MSC students. Throughout the school year, all sophomores were scheduled to major in outdoor education as a requirement for graduation.

One by one, departments dropped this requirement until during 1967-68 only the English, music, fine arts and business majors participated in the program.

Funding for Wapalanne was provided through a portion of a student fee of $17.50 a semester required of every student. As more departments dropped the camp requirement, less money could be allotted to the program.

Calabrese noted that this fee is now devoted directly to "supplies, printing and student assistance." He said, however, that this budgeted money is in one lump sum and it can be reapportioned depending on student needs.

Dr. Allan Mombhead, dean of the college, sees the Wapalanne week as a time problem. Since classes were interrupted for one week to provide the camping time, he said that a reorganization of the academic calendar could permit more suitable time periods for outdoor education.

A poll taken by Dr. Harry Hoituma, former director of the outdoor education program and member of the physical education department, of students who had completed the program showed that over 90 per cent hoped that the program would be continued.

Calabrese did note that if students desire the reestablishment, an "academic decision" would have to be made to discover if the camp experience was desirable academically.

Vincent Ciniglio
Has Complaints

Prof Not Rehired

Cohen: Reorganizing of Majors, Ciniglio: 'A Shoddy Situation'

By George Gonos
Staff Reporter

The department of social sciences has decided not to renew the contract of Mr. Vincent Ciniglio for the next school term. Ciniglio is an instructor in Western Civilization in his first year at Montclair State.

Dr. Philip Cohen, chairman of the department, said that the reason for Ciniglio's removal lies in the reorganization of the social science curriculum. Rather than historians, the department is hiring specialists in such fields as anthropology, geography and economics.

Ciniglio stated that the change had nothing to do with the department's budget and that there will be the same number of faculty members in his department next year. He said that Ciniglio had been observed in the classroom prior to the decision.

Ciniglio is not satisfied with the reasons given for his release. He says that the observation of him amounted to only 35 minutes of classroom time. He is also disturbed by the fact that he was not notified or spoken with prior to his dismissal.

"The whole situation," Ciniglio said, "was handled rather shoddily."

Asked if he taught Western Civilization any different from accepted standards, he replied that he only "does it better than anyone else." Ciniglio said he thought that Montclair was basically a good college and "a challenge," but he has some complaints. He wished the student body and faculty were not so apathetic towards present day problems. He noted that he was the only faculty member present at the Vietnam peace march held in New York City this month.

Ciniglio believes the Vietnam conflict is a "travesty" and in the best interests of no one involved. He said that he had no way of knowing if his political views had anything to do with his release.

"Instead of wasting so much energy on how Montclair is to become a university," Ciniglio stated, "we should concentrate on making it an exciting small college."

"As representatives of student thought, the following 10 SGA representatives and composer of the "student unrest" bill can be approached on this matter of student concern: Bob Cece, Richard Warren, industrial arts; Al Panelli, Ron Green, foreign language; Ward Nelson, chemistry; Frank Cripps, Bonnie Miller, social science; Bob Stickel, English; John Wynne, physics-earth science; Ruth Goldstein, 1970."
The State Marine Science Consortium will have been established by a group of colleges in the state for the advancement of education and research. This organization will obtain a field station and a vessel and sponsor summer courses in the marine aspect of earth science.

Preliminary plans for the consortium were made at Trenton and Glassboro. MSC science professors, Frank S. Kelland, Ben Minor and Robert C. Ramadell, attended.

The courses which will be offered this summer by the consortium are: Introduction to Oceanography, Marine Biology, Independent Study in Marine Sciences, Marine Geology and Marine Geology. All of these are at the undergraduate level. However, plans do not include adding graduate and research programs in the future.

Ramadell points out that the consortium "will not just be for science people. The facilities can also be used by students of other disciplines. For instance, the art students can use them for painting seascapes."

Minor said that the courses are a good way for students to pick up credits during the summer. He said, "You can take a course and have an enjoyable time."

As one of the nine trustees to supervise the first year of the Marine Sciences Consortium, Ramadell said: "The program is something which was much needed. There's been a void and it will fill that void."

Minor is on the budget committee of the consortium and is chairman of the boat and equipment committee. He will be "captain" of the vessel used by the organization.

Kelland, geographer, is an expert scuba diver, and he plans to help with the scuba diving part of the program.

Some recently abandoned Coast Guard stations in New Jersey are under consideration for a site for a field station. "The Coast Guard has been very co-operative with us," Minor said.

The consortium will include all of the New Jersey state colleges as soon as the make their contributions. Each must pay $7,000 per year. Junior colleges join for half this fee. Some other institutions have also expressed an interest in becoming members. They are: Rider, Rutgers and the University of Pennsylvania.

'Need to Show Struggle' Reason for Disturbances

By Don Pendley
Editorial Assistant

NEWARK—"A need to show some type of struggle," was the cause of the recent campus disturbances at Essex County College (ECC) in Newark. According to Omar Rashidi, a student involved in the incidents, the struggle and the desire to show extensive and unified student support were more vital to the students of ECC than the success of the demands.

Through the negotiations, and the resulting events, many ECC students feel that extensive support had been shown by all factions and ethnic groups at ECC. Many also thought that the struggle received good faculty support. A major demand of the Concerned Students of Essex County College was the appointment of black men to certain positions within the ECC administration. Among these positions was that of dean of student affairs. The dean at that time, Mr. George Barton, had been branded by the Concerned Students as having an "apparently biased attitude which he has displayed in his dealings with students." Although Barton has not been removed from the college, his position has been changed. Thus, stated Rashidi, "a symbolic accomplishment" has been brought about.

The Concerned Students also demanded a black studies program to be set up because of the "growing awareness of the black people in their blackness here in the United States." The social science division is currently assembling a 27-hour curriculum in black studies. Financial changes were also ordered by the Concerned Students. The administration of ECC has set up a committee to review cafeteria prices regularly. Also, a tutorial program for the Newark community is in committee. ECC students will receive academic credit and a $2.25 minimum salary for changing times.

Changing Times

Before the days of the traffic light and even before the days of the blinker light, Valley road and normal avenue looked like this. The house at the entrance to the campus, known as Pop's Place, served as a trolley shelter and snack bar. Today the busy corner serves to admit the 3200-plus commuters daily aided by the several month old traffic light.

Business Major Offered 'In Evening Division

The evening division of MSC has expanded its program to include a major in business studies, according to an announcement by Robert E. MacVane, director of the evening division, and Dr. M. Herbert Freeman, chairman of the department of business studies. The business studies program is an extension of the program currently offered in the day-time college. Freeman stated, "The program is being offered on a part-time basis in recognition of the tremendous need for undergraduate evening business programs in the metropolitan area."

Business studies. Areas of study emphasized in the program include business organization and management, accounting, business law, finance, marketing and data processing.

Evening undergraduates degree programs were initiated at MSC in the fall of 1967. The introduction of a major in business studies brings to four the number of majors available to evening undergraduates. The others are liberal arts majors in English and history and a teacher education major in industrial arts.

Instead of letting your parents sit home wondering whatever happened to their personal investment in higher education, pick up the telephone and call home.

Rising construction costs may be responsible for a state cutback in the allocation of funds for higher educational facilities. Ralph Dungan, chancellor of higher education, said yesterday that the money allotted for higher educational buildings would not go far as had been expected a few months ago.

The local implications are that although the state colleges were promised $74 from the $337.5 million approved through last November's bond issue, drastic plans changes may result, eliminating needed buildings on state college grounds.

Dungan has stated that those projects which are "not felt to be top priority items might have to be cut back or dropped completely." And although studies have not yet been made to determine these priorities, it is obvious that each campus will be hit by the state cutback.

Dungan noted that he was going to examine the "program as a whole -- on a statewide basis," but that the rising costs would doubtlessly affect individual projects at individual institutions.

Montclair State College is presently slated to receive an extension to Sprague Library and an additional math-science building, accounting for about $8 million from the bond issue. But with the newly discovered building cost increases, the MSC community should not be too disappointed if a campus cutback occurs here. After all, we are dealing with the state of New Jersey.

Recommended Reading

The MONTCLARION would like to salute Prof. David N'Alloway and Frank Cordasco on their recent monograph "THE AGONY OF THE CITIES: Urban Problems in Contemporary America."

The 59-page paperback recently published by Montclair State College Press contains 12 chapters with significant background information on history, economics and sociology and its relationship to urban problems.

Giving "the reader a reasonably clear overview of the whole problem in a relatively brief form," the 12-chapter study clearly pinpoints the significant inner-city problems found today.

The key to understanding these problems can best be found in "the vicious circle of education, the painful task of renewal, rehabilitation and realignment."

And while, as President Thomas H. Richardson stated in the preface, there "cannot be complete agreement with all the sentiments expressed, (the book) furnishes insightful assessments of the urban problems which exist."

A finely-written study, the 59-page paperback is available at $1 from the Montclair State College Press.

COLLEGE ROUNDDUP

SHU Students Want Experimental Study

SOUTH ORANGE -- A group called the Concerned Students is considering the formation of an "experimental college" on or nearby the Seton Hall University campus in order to demonstrate its dissatisfaction with university academic practices and standards.

In this "university within a university" students would attend regular Seton Hall classes and would also attend instructional classes which the group would establish.

The group claims to have framed the tri-partite resolution passed by the Seton Hall Student Senate, Faculty Senate and University Council which gives all three groups representation on a combined committee of the three campuses.

NSC Enrollment Curbs: 1973

UNION -- The class of 1973 at Newark State College will be reduced to 1,000 from 1,252 this year. Dr. Herbert Samenfeld, dean of students, announced that this will permit an increase in the number of upperclassmen who will be accepted from the two-year county colleges and other sources. Samenfeld said that "Newark State will continue to accept county college graduates to the extent that space permits and quality is maintained."

Thirty-four county college students have already been accepted for fall 1969.

Promises, Promises

Note: After the recent "Jniety" on the latest attempt at it may prove to be the most significant report on Vatican high finance every compiled. Published on Jan. 15, the Vatican Empire by Nino LoBello is certainly a finely-written book depicting the Vatican as the center of intense economic interests.

LoBello, a foreign correspondent for the Newark Evening News, Business Week magazine and the Paris edition of the Herald-Tribune, is an American by birth. The Vatican's dollar-devouring interests came to him quite by accident. After taking residence in Rome, he discovered that the house he lived in was owned by a front company operating for the Vatican. "And the same company owned the entire block of houses on both sides of the street," notes LoBello.

Soon after, he found that the Vatican is currently involved in almost every type of business enterprise, from hotels and restaurants to chemical and real estate.

In addition, the author set aside a chapter dealing with the innumerable scandals and numbered Swiss bankbooks held by the Vatican hierarchy.

In all, LoBello's study on Vatican capitalistic interests proved to be an extremely graphic portrait of the Vatican's obsessions with dollar signs instead of crosses.

Whenever the subject turns to religion at a social gathering, the mysteries of the Roman Catholic Church usually find their way into the conversation. So much so that the amateur economists in the crowd usually bring up the traditional conversational gambit that the Vatican has dispensed with its interest in religion and is currently indulging in the sport of capitalism.

Premature Comment

To the Editor:

With reference to your letter of March 26, it appears that your comments were premature. The physics-earth science department chairman Dr. Kowalski has, prior to publication, set in motion machinery for setting up a student advisory council. Therefore in light of this development I now consider the comments made in error.

The Noise Problem

To the Editor:

On March 18, the library committee met for the first time with student representatives. Our main point of discussion was the noise level in the library.

On our part, we noted the unavailability of sufficient lounge space for off-campus and commuting students. Dr. John Bode explained that, in his opinion, some of the problem is caused by the ventilation system. He has taken some action on this point but has had no response. But these are long-range solutions. What of the human noise? We students would remind the faculty and students — understanding, and this trend has continued to eliminate prejudices. However, somehow in recent years certain groups have moved backward and away from brotherhood.

And about what the methods? The black power advocates do not include unity, and their reliance upon violence is not conducive to the rise of an enlightened concept of race relations. It is the bigotry and decadance of Eldridge Cleaver and the Black Panthers that breeds the fear that many of the personnel remains.

The Warren court started the move away from separate-but-equal facilities and toward racial unity, and this trend has continued to eliminate prejudices. However, somehow in recent years certain groups have moved backward and away from brotherhood.

Government Grants Funds To Upward Bound Project

The U.S. Office of Education has authorized a grant of $54,894 for continuation of the Upward Bound program at Montclair State College during the coming summer, according to an announcement by Congressman Peter W. Rodino Jr. (D. 10th Dist.).

The college has sponsored the project for the past three years in cooperation with Jersey City Can-Do, Jersey City State College and St. Peter's College. It brings to the campus approximately 60 students from Jersey City high schools who spend six weeks living in the dormitories.

Participants come from disadvantaged areas and are selected because of their college potential. A varied program including studies, sports, arts and crafts and field trips—includes help to prepare them for college.

Each student receives a stipend to compensate for money he might otherwise have earned at a summer job.

A follow-up program is held on Saturdays during the winter to continue the work begun with the students in the summer. This program has been conducted by members of Lambda Chi Delta fraternity and Theta Chi Rho and Delta Chi Delta.

Dr. John G. Redd, a professor of health and physical education at Montclair State, will again direct the Upward Bound program. Assisting him will be: David Genuite, also of Montclair State; Charles Larkin of Essex County College and Miss Janet Allen, acting principal of West Side High School, Newark.

Early Classes Aren't Fun

By Jane Conforth

Staff Reporter

November 17, 1971, has three eight o'clock classes. Isn't it obvious?

Many commuting students said the principle reason they dislike eight o'clock classes is because of the traffic situation. Margaret Rinker, a junior chemistry major, said: "I think they're very inconvenient to people who have to commute a great distance. I take the Parkway, and it takes twice as long at that time in the morning.

Various students said they dislike eight o'clock classes because it's difficult to get up early. However, no one wished to be quoted as saying such. Other students said their dislike of these classes stems from the view that it's hard to pay attention at that hour and the possibility of falling asleep.

However, the latter advantage turns out to be a disadvantage when a student or teacher does not get out early, and instead has classes to five or six o'clock.

Joseph Molinaro, a sophomore English major, has classes from eight to six on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. He said he wouldn't mind too much except that he has six free hours on each of these days, and then he has to come in on Tuesdays and Thursdays for one class.

Joe McAllister, math 1971, has six eight o'clock classes. He wouldn't mind too much eight to six on Mondays, however, no one wished to be quoted. They're not bad if the teacher makes the class interesting. Otherwise it's a real pain.

Some faculty members admitted that they do not teach as well at 8 a.m. as they do later. However, no one wished to be quoted.

Mr. Percy Johnston of the English department said he is not in favor of eight o'clock classes because he "found that students do better later on."

Home economics teacher Mrs. May Sandford said of the early classes she taught: "I had poor class attendance. But we have to accommodate the classes. If it has to be, it has to be, because I know the college is crowded."

Some people offered suggestions to improve the situation of early classes. Two senior industrial arts majors, Vito Margarilli and Jim Assimac, said that their eight o'clock classes wouldn't bother them so much if their classes were scheduled more consecutively. Margarilli has an eight o'clock class and then a three-hour gap until his class at noon. Three days a week Assimac comes to MSC for just an hour class.

Judy Da Graca, a freshman psychology major said: "Commuters should have the eight o'clock classes here at six in the morning, and I'd get out early, and instead has classes to five or six o'clock.

Indians Unbeaten String Snapped After Five

By Mike Galos

Special to the Montclarion

EAST ORANGE — Scoring twice in the bottom of the ninth inning, the Vikings of Upsala College gained a come-from-behind 5-4 baseball victory over Montclair State College at Viking Field.

The defeat dropped the Indians from the ranks of the unbeaten after five straight victories. The Upsala victory brings their record to 6-2.

Montclair State had taken the lead in the top of the ninth with a run on an infield hit by Ken Frank, a stolen base by Jim Nunnemaker who came in to run for Frank, and a run scoring single to right field by Rich SanFillipo.

The Indians lead didn’t last long as Upsala scored their two runs off looser Ken Inglis without hitting a ball out of the infield.

George Horton led off the ninth with a walk. Wally Czarnota, trying to sacrifice, laid down a perfect bunt toward third base and beat it out for a hit. After Willie Prall forced Horton at third on another bunt attempt, Mark Schwartzover walked, loading the bases. With two strikes on the next batter, Paul Liddy, Inglis’ pitch came inside and low and hit Liddy, scoring Czarnota with the tying run.

At this point, Inglis was relieved by John Grzymko who threw only two pitches. The first was a strike and the second was dribbled down the first base line by Bob Pantaleo, for a hit that drove in Prall with the winning run.

Upsala scored first in the fourth inning when, after two were out, Czarnota scored on an error by MSC shortstop Rich SanFillipo.

The Indians took the lead with three runs off Upsala starter Al Gaul in the sixth. Bob Lyon led off with a walk and after pitchers Pete Jerald popped out to the shortstop, consecutive singles by Dave Clark, Tom McCormick and Frank Rossi, followed by Ken Frank’s sacrifice fly produced the three tallies.

The Vikings gained a tie in the bottom of the eighth when Paul Liddy drove a two-run home run over the left fielders head off of Montclair starter Pete Jerald.

Jack Getzen benefitted from the two ninth-inning runs and scored the win, his first of the year. He had pitched the ninth and given up the Montclarion score.

The losing pitcher for Montclair was sophomore lefty Ken Inglis, who was hurt by his own wildness in the ninth, when he walked two and hit one batter. It was his first setback against two victories.

Montclair State’s next game is in this afternoon, a New Jersey State College Conference game at Newark State.

The Men Behind the MSC Sports Scene

By John Aneson

With the advent of Montclair State into national prominence in the sports world, publicity is of the essence. Our soccer team finished second in the East. Our basketball team finished first in the East among small college powers and journeyed to Indiana for the NCAA small college nationals.

These honors have made the publicity aspects of MSC sports very important. This school has hit papers all across the nation. It has filled much in all local papers, hit papers all across the nation. It is very important. This school has especially New Jersey’s Big Three: Bergen Record and The Newark Evening News, The Star-Ledger.

The Newark Evening News, The Newark Record and The Newark Star-Leder.

FROM THE MONTCLARION

SPORTS DESK: John Aneson and Ken Tecza, assistant sports editor are the backbone of the sports department.

In particular, Mike Galos has doubled as a member of Stahlberger’s staff and as a writer for the MONTCLARION. His feature articles and coverage have helped make the sports page very popular.

In giving credit to those we are indebted to those we have mentioned we must not forget the most important people that make it all work — the athletes. The Luther Bowen’s, the Dale Rodgers’, the Rick Schwartz’s, etc, make it all click.
