SGA Legislature Reviews Student Unrest Bill After Martinez Veto

Robert Martinez
The Power of Veto.

Student government bill No. 68108, "Resolution Concerning Student Unrest at Montclair State College," that proposes measures to be taken against student demonstrators who act illegally, will be reconsidered by the legislature, Martinez president. Although passed by the legislature, Martinez stated that there are many students who believe that a bill as important as this one should be discussed at an open hearing for all MSC students.

In the introduction, the bill comments on the present "desire of students... to express and have their opinions heard in society" and on the particular situation at MSC where "channels of communication have been and are open between students and the administration and the faculty."

The authors of 68108 proceed to criticize the actions of students (who often take it upon themselves to be the arbiters of student opinion and move outside of the law and established channels of communication to dramatize and express their views.

They believe: "As concerned as we are with individual, as well as majority rights, the wanton destruction of the academic community cannot be tolerated or be permitted to happen."

Two proposals for maintaining "a high level of proficiency" in this "academic community" have been presented by the 10 authors of the bill. First, a board of student relations will be established for student grievances involving faculty and/or administration of MSC.

Secondly, disorderly student demonstrators will be handled in the following ways:

(a) The president or legislature can order such activities to cease; (b) Suspension will result for those who refuse to comply with this order; (c) The local police will be called upon to put an end to such activities if campus resources are insufficient; (d) Filed charges and prosecution in the law courts will result for those participants involved with activities that imperil either life, property, or the normal function of the academic community.

As yet, no definite time or place has been set for public student discussion of this bill besides next week's SGA meeting at 4 p.m. in the Music Building Auditorium (M15). Copies of the bill are available in the SGA office in Life Hall.

As representatives of student thought, the following 10 SGA representatives and composer of the "student unrest" bill can be approached on this matter of student concern: Bob Cece, Richard Warren, industrial arts; Al Panelli, Ron Green, foreign language; Ward Nelson, chemistry; Frank Cripps, Bonnie Miller, social science; Bob Stickle, English; James Wynne, physics-earth science; Ruth Goldstein, 1970.

Camp Experience Not Rescheduled

Wapalanne

Outdoor education, once a mandatory part of every Montclair students' college experience, has been deleted from the college graduation requirements since 1968. Presently, no plans are in order to reinstate the former week-long outdoor program scheduled during the students' sophomore year.

Vincent Calabrese, director of business services, has stated that one reason for the discontinuation of the program was that the camp fees were raised from $4 to $5 a student per semester and since only four departments required camping experience, it became financially impractical for college to subsidize the program.

Initiated in 1948, the Wapalanne program included a week of social, recreational and educational activities for all MSC students. Throughout the school year, all sophomores were scheduled to major in outdoor education as a requirement for graduation.

One by one, departments dropped this requirement until during 1967-68 only the English, music, fine arts and business majors participated in the program.

Funding for Wapalanne was provided through a portion of a student fee of $15.50 a semester required of every student. As more departments dropped the camp requirement, less money could be allotted to the program.

Calabrese noted that this fee is now devoted directly to supplies, printing and student assistance. He said, however, that this budgeted money is in one lump sum and it can be reappropriated depending on student needs.

Dr. Allan Monhead, dean of the college, sees the Wapalanne week as a time problem. Since classes were interrupted for one week to provide the camping time, he said that a reorganization of the academic calendar could permit more suitable time periods for outdoor education.

A poll taken by Dr. Harry Hoituma, former director of the outdoor education program and member of the physical education department, of students who had completed the program showed that over 90 per cent hoped that the program would be continued.

Calabrese did note that if students desire the reestablishment, an "academic decision" would have to be made to discover if the camp experience was desirable academically.

Ciniglio: 'A Shoddy Situation'

Vincent Ciniglio has Complaints

The department of social sciences has decided not to renew the contract of Mr. Vincent Ciniglio for the next school term. Ciniglio is an instructor in Western Civilization in his first year at Montclair State.

Dr. Philip Cohen, chairman of the department, said that the reason for Ciniglio's removal lies in the reorganization of the social science curriculum. Rather than historians, the department is hiring specialists in such fields as anthropology, geography and economics.

Ciniglio believes the Vietnam conflict is a "travesty" and in the best interest of the involved. He said that he had no way of knowing if his political views had anything to do with his release.

"Instead of wasting so much energy on how Montclair is to become a university," Ciniglio stated, "we should concentrate on making it an exciting small college. He would welcome some student political activity, above all.

'Need to Show Struggle' Reason for Disturbances

By Don Pendley
Editorial Assistant

NEWARK—"A need to show some type of struggle," was the reason for the recent campus disturbances at Essex County College (ECC) in Newark. According to Omar Rashadi, a student involved in the incidents, some type of struggle, "was the desire to receive good faculty support.

A major demand of the Concerned Students at Essex County College was the appointment of black men to certain positions within the ECC administration. Among these positions was that of dean of student affairs. The dean at that time, Mr. George Barton, had been branded by the Concerned Students as having a "apparently biased attitude which he has displayed in his dealings with students." Although Barton has not been removed from the college, his position has been changed. Thus, stated Rashadi, "a symbolic accomplishment" has been brought about.

The Concerned Students also demanded a black studies program to be set up because of the "growing awareness of the black people in their blackness in the United States." The social science division is currently assembling a conducive program in black studies.

Financial changes were also ordered by the Concerned Students. The administration of ECC has set up a committee to review cafeteria prices regularly. Also, a tutorial program for the Newark community is in committee. ECC students will receive academic credit and a $2.25 minimum salary for tutoring. The Student Government will also receive $5000 in funds to be released by the administration. These funds will be used in renovating the student lounge.

Other matters settled will provide for a full-time nurse, lessened censorship of literature on the ECC campus, suspension of students and transfer credit.

However, all of the demands were not fully met by the administration, which caused Student Government president Arthur Nunnally to state that further disturbances could occur, because "the need for change never stops."

Emphasizing in the program include business organization and management, accounting, business law, finance, marketing and data processing.

Evening undergraduates degree programs were initiated at MSC in the fall of 1967. The introduction of a major in business studies brings to four the number of majors available to evening undergraduates. The others are liberal arts majors in English and history and a teacher education major in industrial arts.

Instead of letting your parents sit home wondering whatever happened to their personal investment in higher education, pick up the telephone and call home. But be economical about it. Some times are cheaper than others, if you're calling long distance. And as long as you are about to do the "right" thing, do it right. Now, don't you feel devoted and slightly self-righteous already?

Construction Cutback

Rising construction costs may be responsible for a state cutback in the allocation of funds for higher educational facilities. Ralph Dungan, chancellor of higher education, said yesterday that the money allotted for higher educational buildings would not go far as had been expected a few months ago.

The local implications are that although the state colleges were promised $74.4 million from the $337.5 million approved through last November's bond issue. But with the newly discovered building cost increases, the MSC community should not be too disappointed if a campus cutback occurs here. After all, we are dealing with the state of New Jersey.

Dungan has stated that those projects which are "not felt to be top priority items might have to be cut back or dropped completely." And although studies have not yet been made to determine these priorities, it is obvious that each campus will be hit by the state cutback.

Dungan noted that he was going to examine the "program as a whole — on a statewide basis," but that the rising costs would doubtless affect individual projects at individual institutions.

Montclair State College is presently slated to receive an extension to Sprague Library and an additional math-science building, accounting for about $8 million from the bond issue. But with the newly discovered building cost increases, the MSC community should not be too disappointed if a campus cutback occurs here. After all, we are dealing with the state of New Jersey.

Giving "the reader a reasonably clear overview of the whole problem in a relatively brief form," the 12-chapter study clearly pinpoints the significant inner-city problems found today.

The key to understanding these problems can best be found in "the vicious circle of education, the painful task of renewal, rehabilitation and realignment."

And while, as President Thomas H. Richardson stated in the preface, there "cannot be complete agreement with all the sentiments expressed, (the book) furnishes insightful assessments of the urban problems which exist."

Premature Comment

To the Editor:

With reference to my letter of March 26, it now appears that my comments were premature. The physics-electrical science department chairman Dr. Kowalski has, prior to publication, set in motion machinery for setting up a student advisory council. Therefore in light of this development I now consider the comments made in error.

The Noise Problem

To the Editor:

On March 18, the library committee met for the first time with student representatives. Our main point of discussion was the noise level in the library.

On our part, we noted the unavailability of sufficient lounge space for off-campus and commuting students. Dr. John Beard explained that, in his opinion, some of the problem is caused by the ventilation system. He has taken some action on this point but has had no response. But these are long-range solutions. What of the human noise?

We students would remind the student body that there are those using the library for what it is intended — study. Other facilities are available if chatter seems necessary. The library is for work. We urge that each student makes it his responsibility to keep the library quiet. This is no reason why mature adults should not show common courtesy to their fellow students.

5 Beekman Will Be Missed

An era has ended for many activists this month as the behive of peace groups and their cramped quarters at 5 Beekman St., New York for new offices on Lafayette Street.

Since 1944, when the War Resisters League first occupied the first floor of the office building, 5 Beekman has been the nerve center for the pacifist, antiwar movement and its various subdivisions. Many of the big names in the movement have inhabited its myriad offices including Delliinger, Hayden, Rustin, Peck, the Benignis, and until his death, the guiding and unifying spirit of the movement, A.J. Muste. Thousands of young men have taken the elevator to the ninth floor and then up the narrow, ornate stairs to what they hoped would be their salvation from the Selective Service System.

My first visit to 5 Beekman was in September 1966. At that time, I was attending a meeting of the Student Peace Union. It is still incomprehensible that any human beings could have been so disorganized! But progress has been made towards our seemingly distant goal of peace and civil liberties. On that first visit, I had the pleasure of meeting A.J. Muste, then 80 years old. He impressed me with his sincerity, love for humanity and the ability to listen to the young.

Things have not changed drastically since then. Some of the organizations have changed, but much of the spirit remains the same. Some are in jail, others have returned, and still others have given up on other things.

Time Moves on

Time moves on, and so does the movement. 5 Beekman has been the nerve center for some 20 years. It is now time to say goodbye to what many will see as an era that has now ended and go on to other things.

Karyn Savigneau: Opinion Right

No Justification for Riots

There was nothing spontaneous about the disturbances in Chicago and Memphis last week. Nothing. And it seems that no respect for a fallen hero whose message was Peace and Justice. None.

Editorial

No justification.

There cannot be any justification for rioting. Although a feeling of frustration can be understood, its results are no way to memorialize a slain leader. Dr. King would no more condone violence in death than he did in life.

Perhaps this would be a good time to pause and consider what has happened to the civil rights movement. Progress has been made, not only in terms of the alleviation of some inequalities, but also in the attitudes of many whites. But there is still a long way to go.

The question is where is the Movement going and how will it get there?

A goal of brotherhood and equality for all people of all races is being pushed aside and in its place we see a tendency toward apartheid. Student demands for black dorms is not exactly conducive to the rise of an enlightened concept of race relations.

It is the bigotry and decadance of Elridge Cleaver and the Black Panthers that breeds the fear that leads to the rise of the bigotry and decadance of George Wallace and his American Freedom Party.
Early Classes Aren't Fun

By Jane Confort
Staff Reporter

Questioned about eight o'clock classes, students and faculty expressed both likes and dislikes about them. But the dislikes far outnumbered the likes.

The advantage to having eight o'clock classes consist in being able to find a parking space at that hour and the possibility of getting out of school earlier. However, the latter advantage turns out to be a disadvantage when a student or teacher does not get out early, and instead has classes to five or six o'clock.

Joseph Molinari, a sophomore English major, has classes from eight to six on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. He said he wouldn't mind too much Wednesdays and Fridays. He said eight to six on Mondays, classes to five or six o'clock.

Various students said they dislike eight o'clock classes because it's difficult to get up early. However, no one wished to be quoted as saying such. Other students said their dislike of these classes stems from the fact that it's hard to pay attention at that hour. Sophomore Bonnie Weikel, a home economics major, said: "They're not bad if the teacher makes the class interesting. Otherwise, it's full sleep." Some faculty members admitted that they do not teach as well as at 8 a.m. as they do later. However, no one wished to be quoted.

M. Percy Johnston of the English department said he is not in favor of eight o'clock classes because he "found that students do better later on."

Home economics teacher Mrs. May Sandford said of the early classes she taught: "I had poor class attendance. But we have to accommodate the classes. If it has to, it has to be, because I know the college is crowded."

Pamela Goodell, a junior psychology major, said: "They're not bad if the teacher makes the class interesting. Otherwise, it's full sleep."

Joe McAllister, math 1971, has three eight o'clock classes. Isn't it obvious?

Many commuting students said the principle reason they dislike eight o'clock classes is because of the traffic situation. Margaret Rinker, a junior chemistry major, said: "I think they're very inconvenient to people who have to commute a great distance. I take the Parkway, and it takes twice as long at that time in the morning."

Some people offered suggestions to improve the situation of early classes. Two senior industrial arts majors, Vito Margerrelli and Jim Aspinall, said that their eight o'clock classes wouldn't bother them so much if their classes were scheduled more consecutively. Margerrelli has an eight o'clock class and then a three-hour gap until his class at noon. Three days a week Aspinall comes to MSC for just an hour class.

Judith Da Graca, a freshman psychology major, said: "Commuters should have the same privileges as the earlier classes and the dorm students, the later ones. Students who have jobs after school said it is hard to arrange working hours when they are at school from early morning to evening.

Mrs. Margaret Feierabend of the English department said that she realizes it's hard for some people to get to college very early, but she feels that both teachers and students are obliged to be on time. She added: "It's not fair to the students who got there on time when some come trailing in late. Perhaps eight-thirty would be more acceptable, but if we got out at six-thirty, traffic is worse. The solution would be to have more classrooms."

Dr. Marie Sawits of the biology department said: "I have no personal objection. Try getting me here at six in the morning, and I'd be perturbed."

Government Grants Funds To Upward Bound Project

The U.S. Office of Education has authorized a grant of $45,894 for continuation of the Upward Bound program at Montclair State College during the coming summer, according to an announcement by Congressman Peter W. Rodino Jr. (D. 10th Dist.).

The college has sponsored the project for the past three years in cooperation with Jersey City Can-Do, Jersey City State College and St. Peter's College. It brings to the campus approximately 60 students from Jersey City high schools who spend six weeks living in the dormitories.

Participants come from disadvantaged areas and are selected because of their college potential. A varied program including studies, sports, arts and crafts and field trips— is offered to help prepare them for college.

Each student receives a stipend to compensate for money he might otherwise have earned at a summer job.

A follow-up program is held on Mondays during the winter to continue the work begun with the students in the summer. This program has been conducted by members of Lambda Chi Delta fraternity and Theta Chi Rho and Delta Delta Delta sororities.

Dr. John G. Redd, a professor of health and physical education at Montclair State, will again direct the Upward Bound program. Assisting him will be: David Schwab, Jersey City State; Charles Larkin of Essex County College and Miss Janet Allen, acting principal of West Side High School, Newark.

Montclair State is one of six Upward Bound sites in New Jersey.

The Men Behind the MSC Sports Scene

By John Anson and Ken Tesca

With the advent of Montclair State into national prominence in the sports world, publicity is of the essence. Our soccer team finished second in the East. Our basketball team finished first in the East among small college powers and journeyed to Indiana for the NCAA small college nationals.

These honors have made the publicity aspects of MSC sports very important. This school has hit papers all across the nation. It has filled much in all local papers, especially New Jersey's Big Three: The Newark Evening News, The Bergen Record and The Newark Star-Ledger.

Representing the coaches and MAC (Montclair Athletic Commission) is athletic director, Bill Dioguardi, a very enterprising administrator. The coaches have been very gracious with their time and patience.

FROM THE MONTCLARION

SPORTS DESK: John Anson and Ken Tesca, assistant sports editor are the backbone of the sports department.

But without the help of the sports information team of director Dick Stahlberger, assistant Bob Meyerick and Mike Galos, our job would have been impossible.

They are the ones responsible for the national and local coverage from the biggest variety event to the smallest fresh results.

Stahlberger and Meyerick have provided the MONTCLARION with countless releases, statistics and photos. This enabled us to be more up-to-date, instead of covering events two weeks before publication, as in past years.

The MONTCLARION, under its new image, has tried to give the best all-around coverage. The winter sports have been the first to be exposed to this new format established by Editor Miriam Taub and Managing Editor David M. Levine. The sports staff has received a tremendous amount of cooperation from everyone connected with athletics.

Indians Unbeaten String Snapped After Five

By Mike Galos

Special to the Montclarion

East Orange — Scoring twice in the bottom of the ninth inning, the Vikings of Upsala College gained a come-from-behind 5-4 baseball victory over Montclair State College at Viking Field.

The defeat dropped the Indians from the ranks of the unbeaten after five straight victories. The Upsala victory brings their record to 6-2.

Montclair State had taken the lead in the top of the ninth with a run on an infield hit by Ken Frank, a stolen base by Jim Nussenmacker who came in to run for Frank, and a run scoring single to right field by Rich SanFillipo.

The Indians lead didn’t last long as Upsala scored their two run off loser Ken Ingles without hitting a ball out of the infield.

George Horton led off the ninth with a walk. Wally Czarnota, trying to sacrifice, laid down a perfect bunt toward third base and beat it out for a hit. After Willie Prall forced Horton at third on another bunt attempt, Mark Schwarz drove him in, walking, loading the bases. With two strikes on the next batter, Paul Liddy, Ingles’ pitch came inside and low and hit Liddy, scoring Czarnota with the tying run.

At this point, Ingles was relieved by John Grzymko who threw only two pitched. The first was a strike and the second was dribbled down the first base line by Bob Pantaleo, for a hit that drove in Prall with the winning run.

Upsala scored first in the fourth inning when, after two were out, Czarnota scored on an error by MSC shortstop Rich SanFillipo.

The Indians took the lead with three runs off Upsala starter Al Gaul in the sixth. Bob Lyon led off with a walk and after pitchers Pete Jerald popped out to the shortstop, consecutive singles by Dave Clark, Tom McCormick and Frank Rossi, followed by Ken Frank’s sacrifice fly produced the three tallies.

The Vikings gained a tie in the bottom of the eighth when Paul Liddy drove a two-run home run over the left field heads off of Montclarlal starter Pete Jerald.

Jack Getgen benefited from the two ninth-inning runs and scored the win, his first of the year. He had pitched the ninth and given up the Montclarion score. The losing pitcher for Montclair was sophomore lefty Ken Ingles, who was hurt by his own wildness in the ninth, when he walked two and hit one batter. It was his first setback against two victories.

Montclair State’s next game is this afternoon, a New Jersey State College Conference game at Newark State.
