Partridge Debut Due January

Humanities School Gains Building’s Facilities

By Susan Dominski
Staff Reporter

The School of Humanities is slated to occupy Partridge Hall on Jan. 27, 1970. Classes from the seven departments in the school will move in on this date. They include the classics, English, French, Germanic-slavic, linguistics, Spanish-Italian and philosophy-religion departments.

The construction of Partridge Hall is well underway. Mr. Jerome R. Quinn, director of facilities, announced that the mechanical systems including air-conditioning, heating and plumbing have been completed.

The sandblasting of exterior concrete and the installation of windows are now in progress. One obstacle faced at the present is the strike by the elevator mechanics.

The next stage of construction will be the installation of ceiling and floor tiles and painting.

Partridge Hall has the distinct feature of being the first classroom building on campus to be completely air-conditioned. The first three floors will serve for classroom use and the fourth floor will contain the offices for the School of Humanities.

Partridge Hall can also claim the only public elevator at MSC. Provisions have been made in its design for the handicapped including wider doors and special stairs.

The language lab will be moved from the first floor of College Hall into the new 43,800 square foot building. Quinn stated that he hoped the move would be under a change-order in the contract.

The architect for Partridge Hall is Arthur Rigolo; the mechanical consulting engineer is Melvin W. Gelber and the structural consulting engineer is Kellermann and Dragnet.

President Will Release Major Statement Tonight

Dr. Thomas H. Richardson will make a statement on the war in Vietnam at the Student Peace Union-sponsored meeting tonight (Wed.). The statement will not be a policy statement for the entire college community, but will reflect the position of the MSC president, Richardson told the MONTCLARION. A film, “The Hill,” starring Sean Connery, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium.

The MONTCLARION will publish a special edition tomorrow which will contain the text of Richardson’s speech, President Richard M. Nixon’s recent stand on the draft, a statement by SGA President Kenneth Traynor on the Vietnamese war, and a review of the activities scheduled for the Vietnam moratorium to be held on Oct. 15 on college campuses across the country.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION . . . and due for completion in January 1970, Partridge Hall will provide three floors of classrooms and one floor of offices for the School of Humanities.
Rhythm of Buddy Rich Will Rock MSC Campus

"The greatest drummer of them all," in the person of Buddy Rich, will perform at MSC's Memorial Auditorium next Monday evening at 8:30. The title of the program is "Stars and Stripes Forever," he soon became a big part of the American Jazz sound to audiences throughout the world. For six months, he represented the U.S. as the first entertainer to perform in remote parts of Asia, bringing his six-piece band and the American Jazz sound to audiences of over 20,000 at a single performance.

Continuing to develop his talents during his teenage years, Rich played with such well-known band leaders as Artie Shaw and Tommy Dorsey. With Tommy Dorsey's band, he became the first of Buddy Rich's bands. The band continued until the era of the big bands waned five years later. In 1954, Rich formed an original jazz group, performing in many of Manhattan's night spots, and accepted an offer to be featured with the Harry James Band. Leaving the James' group in 1966, Rich has since formed the new Buddy Rich Orchestra, which will perform here next Monday night.

"The woman who is important to me," says Dr. Constance Waller of the Student personnel department. There are a distinct number of women at Montclair State College who feel that the college should not only educate the woman academically, but should help her to deal with and become cognizant of the moral, professional, and/or maternal role she will play when she "enters the world."

Last semester a number of women faculty, alumni and students sought ways to incorporate their ideas into MSC student activities.

The result will occur on Oct. 6 when television personality of the Today show, Barbara Walters, will "Focus on Women" at 4 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium.

Following Miss Walters' speech, various topics will be discussed in seminars from 5:15 to 6:45 p.m. The topics include: "Women in Professions," Barbara Wolf, alumna; "Women in Volunteer Organizations," Mrs. Allan Crandell; "Tomorrow's Morality," Rev. Mary Green, Dr. Herta Spenser, MSC staff psychiatrist, Pat Merrick, Michelle Wade, MSC students.

Further topics include: "Service Trinity-School, Church, Government," Mrs. Shulla Anand, chairwoman; "Sex Education Programs," Dr. Charity Runden, director of the human sexuality institute of MSC; "Women in the Arts;" "Cultural Development," Mrs. Helene Ross, assistant professor of fine arts, Patricia Kone, author.

Importance of Today's Women

By Don Pendley News Editor

UNION One man from Newark State, Bill Price, didn't need a job placement agency following his graduation last June. He was the student government president. Now he's on the college board of trustees.

Bill Price, 26, currently living in Summit and lived in the North Jersey area before entering the Navy upon graduation.

Price is employed as a case worker for the Essex County Welfare Board in Newark. His job includes investigating welfare cases, moving ghetto families to better housing and working with the drug problem.

But Price doesn't feel that education is doing a fair share in easing the problems of the ghetto. "I don't believe four years here (at NSC) prepares someone to teach in the ghetto," Price favors the recent state government suggestion to begin a five-year urban teaching program.

In training the ghetto teacher, Price thinks that practice is most important. And by "practice," Price means an eight-week student teaching course. At the very least, he feels, a full semester is needed. "It's a different society... Newark is a thousand miles away."

"NSC is changing, says Price, and it is coming out of its "100-year darkness." This is largely caused by the new students entering NSC, who Price thinks are more involved and interested than the freshmen classes of previous years past.

Price stated that an enticement of NSC is needed. He lamented the "glorified high school" that NSC is -- a place where students come to class, go home, and go home. He says the building of more dorms as one of the answers to this problem.

The two dorms NSC's capacity of 225 compared with NSC's total capacity of over 4000.

There are many students on the campus, states that are attempting to establish a greater dialogue between administration, faculty and students.

And now, perhaps, there will be a more meaningful communication between the board of trustees and the students through the involvement of Bill Price.

QUARTERLY

The Literary Magazine of Montclair State College needs original essays, submissions of PROSE, POETRY and ARTWORK for its fall issue. All types of literature and ideas are accepted, and authors are taking special pains to encourage and publish the work of students who have never published or submitted to us before. All students and faculty are invited to evaluate submissions in the Quarterly office, second floor Life Hall. New Posts for New Schools

Montclair State College is reorganizing the administrative departments to attain its future goals and implement its present policies. The new structure will be composed of two vice-presidents to assist the president, a dean of students and an executive vice-president and provost.

The vice-president of the division of instruction will be responsible for the five proposed undergraduate schools as well as the two graduate schools. The purpose of this division is to provide the best possible academic life for MSC.

The concern of the vice-president of business and financial services will be the formula by which the goals of the college will be reached. This area will include directors of business services, of facilities, and an administrative assistant for the vice-president.

The dean of students will serve as a director of the various services offered to the student. His assistants will be the directors of counseling, housing, medical services, psychological services and student activities.

Responsible for a great deal of the program will be the executive vice-president and provost. He will be assisted by four vice-provosts. The department of administration, registration and scheduling will fall under his jurisdiction.

Directors of research and policy evaluation and formulation will be appointed to promote an atmosphere of creativity in the arts and sciences.

Under the vice-provost of information services will be the directors of the computer center, information and resources center and publication. This division will make available a diverse amount of information to the student body. Relations with the community services and development, eight related areas will be included in this division.

WVMS Completes Control Board

By Chris Lohlein Staff Reporter

The Voice of Montclair State, commonly known as WVMS, has built a new control board in an effort to increase the listening pleasure of the college community. Now installed in College Hall, the first all-campus broadcast using the new equipment was heard on Mon., Sept. 29.

Although a highly unusual project for a non-engineering school to attempt, funds were under the direction of George Sternmetz, consulting engineer, Bruce Gould and Andy Retz.

The total cost of parts and equipment was approximately $3,000, about half the price of a newly-assembled model. The most important aspect of this project was the construction of a console built to suit WVMS facilities and to provide room for future expansion.

One of the main goals of the Voice of Montclair State is to get as many people as possible active within the organization. The radio station broadcasts from 4 p.m. to midnight, Monday through Friday and from 1 p.m. to midnight on Sunday. Each student, however, works only one or two hours per week.

Under the jurisdiction of the Federal Communications Commission, WVMS provides a varied program of shows, without commercial interruption. Presently negotiations are underway to convert WVMS from AM to FM frequency.

SGA Halts 'Rights' Vote

By Bill Flipp Staff Reporter

The Student Government Association last Tuesday postponed voting on the document "Campus Policy Concerning Student Rights and Responsibilities" until Oct. 13.

Joseph Singleton, a former Montclair State student, claimed that not enough people have seen the document. "The SGA should have copies distributed as soon as possible," he said.

"It is in the interest of the entire college to have a document that concerns the status of students," President Thomas H. Richardson told SGA legislature members.

The document was called necessary to protect the academic rights of students by Kenneth Traunay, SGA president. He went on to say that the document is "flexible" and can be changed to meet future needs.

The document was a joint project of the faculty, administration and students and was released during the summer.

Targum Celebrates First 100 Years

By Roberta Kueh News Editor

The Rutgers Daily Targum is 100 years old and has at least 100 images. Throughout its history the Targum has told a fascinating story of the evolution of the American college student.

The earliest forerunner of the daily student paper was founded in 1867 as an annual directory of fraternity and other student officers. In this form, it was more the predecessor of the present-day college yearbook than a newspaper.

In January 1869, the monthly Targum made its debut. Although this publication was magazine-like in format and in the type of articles it contained, its first editorial made it clear that it would be a newspaper.

Subsequent Targum anniversary stories explained the meaning of the name "targum." The word itself is Hebrew for "interpretation" and this meaning was well-known to the students since Hebrew was part of the classical curriculum. But one of the founding editors, in the student slang of those times, said a "targum" was also a crib sheet that students took with them to class and exams.

Throughout the remainder of the 19th century the Targum carried little news of student politics and activities, for the student body was so small that it would meet daily for assemblies and various student meetings.

The paper carried a great deal of sports coverage as well as editorials for better student dormitories and for keeping the cheery "hello" which was a Rutgers tradition. By the turn of the century the paper became a weekly.

One momentous occasion in the history of the Rutgers man was the founding of New Jersey College for Women, now Douglass College, in 1918. Of this event, the Targum drolly commented, "The undergraduate body of Rutgers College is sure to give the institution its heartiest cooperation."

At Montclair State...

Whose Right and Responsibility?

How can the SGA legislature take action on a bill that student body is not familiar with? This statement issued at last week’s SGA meeting by former student Joseph Singleton illustrated that adequate publicity and information has not been given to one of the most important bills ever to hit the MSC campus — the statement on student rights and responsibilities.

Composed last spring through a joint faculty-student-administrative effort, the bill protects the academic rights of students itself as a leader in progressive education. Currently, the college is in the midst of transition — from teacher education to a multipurpose institution. MSC should not fall behind in one area while taking the lead in another.

Hence, the MONTCLARION calls upon President Thomas H. Richardson to investigate the possibilities of having a student representative on our board at an early date.

We agree with Price and wish him well in his new position. The MONTCLARION will expect Price to convey student opinion to the Board of Trustees in the SGA hierarchy, thus opening the door for needed reforms at his college. Meanwhile...

It’s not too often that progressive steps are taken in New Jersey higher education. And when they do come “it is really hard to believe,” to quote William L. Price.

Just a few days ago, Price was appointed to the Board of Trustees at Newark State College. There’s nothing odd about that in itself, but Price graduated from Newark State last June and he’s 26 years old.

Commenting on his precedent-setting appointment, Price was quoted as saying: “While the average member of the board of trustees brings his experience from industry and education, it is important to have someone who is a (recent) graduate as a member of the board to reflect the real point of view of students.”

We agree with Price and wish him well in his new position. The MONTCLARION will expect Price to convey student opinion to the Board of Trustees in the SGA hierarchy, thus opening the door for needed reforms at his college. Meanwhile...

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROGRAM INTRODUCED

WAYNE — Paterson State College has instituted a new political science course entitled the community affairs semester. The academic part of the program will consist of two courses selected from the schedule of courses in the black studies minor. Six credits of field study will include participation in civic, educational, social or religious agencies under the joint supervision of the agency head or teacher and a member of the faculty. A third facet of the semester will consist of a seminar for three credits which will emphasize student reports, critical evaluations and discussion of the field study portion.

CANADIANS OPPOSE AMERICANIZATION AND QUOTA SYSTEM

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CPS) The Canadian Union of Students Congress voted almost unanimously to oppose the Americanization of Canadian universities, but rejected a quota system that would directly restrict the number of U.S. professors teaching in Canada.

The delegates noted in a resolution at the 33rd CUS Congress that “a professor’s ability to deal with Canadian reality is not always based on his nationality. Some American professors have the concepts and experience to understand that reality, and conversely, some Canadian professors — often trained in U.S. graduate schools — present an American discipline that has no relation to our Canadian reality.”

A quota system also would not attack the other features of American influence that permeate Canadian universities, the delegates decided. These include:

- Course content heavily loaded in favor of American textbooks, concepts, and history (Canadian economics is taught largely from American textbooks.)
- Courses where Canadian content is deliberately devalued — a University of Toronto graduate student often cannot do a PhD on only one Canadian author.
- Canadian universities doing research for American corporations and military departments.
- The prestige positions of American universities in certain disciplines and their effects on Canadian teaching in those subjects.
- The Congress particularly objects to the heavy emphasis on Canadian reality,” the resolution said. The MONTCLARION particularly objects to the heavy emphasis on Americanization and quotas in Canadian universities.

to the editor:

Driving onto the campus this morning, I was treated to MSC's newest innovation in the field of parking facilities. I have found it convenient to park in the lot near the "recreation" hall lot. When I asked them if they meant to imply that there were none at my desired destination, they frowned and resumed their waving.

Because of the heavy endorsement given to the Webster lot before I arrived there, there were of course no spaces left at all. As a result, I was forced to park illegally. At this writing I do not yet know if I will receive a ticket. Also, I was late to my class.

Ordinarily, I could take these small setbacks without a whimper, but on my way to class, while walking through the parking lot which was my first choice, I counted 24 parking spaces. My car only requires one, but I counted them anyway. I imagine that there were probably many more space crunchers of the lot that I had no time to inspect.

Maybe I'm just being picky, but I believe that rerouting cars from partially empty parking lots to full ones is not the most efficient use of security guards. Perhaps they might be employing protecting our scenic university from Indian attacks.

dollars to washington

one of the greatest pitfalls of our present modification of federalism is the waste of money. It comes from the sending of a great proportion of our tax dollars to Washington and then to the states in the position where they must petition the government for grants in order to get their share.

This is the same money, to be sure, but less of it because it has been used to pay salaries to the network of administrators whose official job is to decide how the federal revenue will be spent and by whom.

In this way not only do many states lose a percentage of the money they are entitled to extracting in taxes, but the grants-in-aid given by the federal government are of such a nature that the states must spend the money as Washington sees fit.

Many local governments are therefore prompted to undertake projects which they cannot afford or which are not of first priority by the promise that their funds will be matched by the federal government.

of course there are strings attached to these government appropriations—a state or municipality must spend this money (both its own and that which has come from the capital) in accordance with the dictates of Washington.

in its attempt to dictate to all the areas of the nation this sort of cooperative federalism tends to ignore the diversity of individual persons and situations within the country. Washington, D.C. cannot predict with accuracy the needs of each state, county, and/or municipality, and for this reason the grant-in-aid system is an abridgment of the rights of the states and the people who reside therein to determine how their own money will be spent.

copley News Service

Washington—name, rank and Social Security number. How does that sound to you?

Well, it may lack a certain rhythm and familiarity, but that's the way it is now for the more than 34 million men and women of the armed forces of the United States.

After two and a half years of preparation the services now are using the Social Security account number (SSAN) as the primary identification to replace the military identification number for all automated data systems, particularly for pay and personnel records.

This leisurely revolution is expected to save time and money—and headache pills for the Pentagon's computer corps, the largest in the world.

use of the uniform, 11-digit (you count the two hyphens) SSAN will cover retired and reserve personnel as well as those on active duty.

Defense officials, who have been receiving critical mail from sentimentalists and crackpots, take pains to point out that U.S. military personnel are not being stripped of their serial numbers. "We're not taking it away," said William B. Robertson, an official in the Pentagon comptroller's office. "They can continue to use their serial number on their tombstones, frame it, put it on their stationery, or what have you. They are not going to change their dog tags, I.D. cards or historical records."

The Army and Air Force are the only services which have actually stopped issuing serial numbers to new personnel. The Marine Corps will continue to give out the numbers for another year and the Navy until the end of 1969.

Robertson explained that the Marines have a few personnel who don't have SSANs and wanted the extra time as a safety measure were they to be mobilized from the old to the new system. He said he believed the Navy had a problem with its reserves it wanted to solve.

REPORTAGE

if it weren't for the parking

by miriam taub

editor-in-chief

The posters explained it: the advertisers proclaimed it—Willowbrook is the exciting new downtown of New Jersey and probably New Jersey's largest shopping area.

And as of opening day last Thursday, the Willowbrook Mall, located at the intersection of routes 23 and 46 in Wayne, proudly proffered its 100 plus small shops in every imaginable form from the open air market to the boarded up and bleak. Nevertheless, traffic jams were frequent as Essex and Passaic county residents came out in droves to explore the tunnels of Willowbrook's enclosed mall shopping areas.

as one enters the shopping area from route 23 northbound, one has no conception of the labyrinthine adventures awaiting. And for one who is familiar with shopping at Sears or Bamberger's, for instance, opening day at Willowbrook, the two year's conception of covered walkways and glass panels between shops is startling.

Of course you can now leave your coat and umbrella in your car, if you can find a local parking space, and dash under the protecting portals to spend hours and hours beneath wood and glass.

Free multicolored posters distributed by welcome women made sure that your family knew where you had gone on the night of Sept. 24. And music, both piped-in and in-person added to the carnival crowd. And, there were vendors selling soft drinks for 25 cents apiece, double-dip ice-cream cones being sold and food from a corner Berraccini booth reminiscent of a New York subway shop.

But perhaps the most obvious spectacle of the mall is a centrally located set of pools complete with flora above which wooden sets of steps, intricately angled lead up to the mall's upper level.

These pools, equipped with iridescent lights, outside the fountain at the Fashion Center, Paramus's claim to high fashion and high price, boasting the famous Fifth Avenue shops. Naturally the Fashion center, located on route 17, was built to outdo the Garden State plaza and the Bergen mall. Obviously, the Willowbrook mall was built to outdo all of them.

seen them all but Willowbrook's uniqueness is not its shops for once you've seen chain store merchandise at one outlet, you've seen them all. Willowbrook's claim to fame is its interior design combining wooden architecture within its crossroads. It does combine an outstanding bit of shopping to suburban Wayne bringing relief from the Empire State city or the downtown Newark battle. There is Franklin Simon and Ohrbach's for the specialty shopper; Broadstreet's for the discriminating taste and Rownan's for the half-size woman.

To sum up: Something for everyone—provided you find a parking space. And garnish the shopping experience, was the smell of paint still in the air, Willowbrook will undoubtedly become the hub of north central Jersey shopping.

And if Ohrbach's night manager said he's willing to purchase stock in the twolocal mall's construction company, something must be going right.
Hilarity is the watchword of the evening

Review By
Maurice J. Moran
Drama/Arts Editor

Neil Simon is a very funny fellow, right? So he started off in comic writing and ended up doing fantastic things like “The Odd Couple” and “Promises, Promises.” Or like the high quality production of “Barefoot in the Park” by MSC Players. Comedy is not easy to do, even the hard hitting hilarity of Simon. But Players, in their first production of this, bested it simply by justifying this superb comedy.

Corie Bratter, bride of six days with a very fine taste in apartments, was played by Kathryn McAtee. Miss McAtee is a fine actress and her control of the role - when passionate on compassionate, amorous or angry - was excellent. And it might be added that she was the nightcap to the “drunk” scene.

In order of appearance, next character to appear is the telephone repair man in the person of R. Scott Watson. Watson has the nervality to portray the “nervous” character and this ability added a new dimension to the Bratter family squareball. Vincenzo Borelli played the delivery man from Lord & Taylor's. Though not as old in appearance as the role demanded, Borelli completed a Herculean task - to be funny without saying a word.

ENGLISH A DAUGHTER IS A VIRGIN - Those who haven't read "Portnoy's Complaint" may remember Philip Roth as the writer of "Goodbye, Columbus."局

"Portnoy's Complaint"

Review By
Philip Roth, New York

When a literary authority of the life and death on a tv screen recommends such a book as "Portnoy's Complaint" your instantly know it can't be all good (although she did say she wouldn't want to shake the admission). Ever since his first, "Goodbye Columbus," Philip Roth has been regarded as an author with a good foundation on which to build bigger and better things. To date he hasn't.

The reviewer has the same reaction to his three novels following "Goodbye Columbus," an incomprehensible explosion of disgust accompanying the final pages of the book. This was more true in "Portnoy's Complaint" from the time when Alex Portnoy proclaims himself the "Raskolnikov of jerking-off" (he dures to equate himself with the delirious hero of Dostoevsky's novel!) to the scream that ends the work.

Especially here one notices the inadequacy of the novelist. Portnoy, after fun-filled years of masturbation, pyromania and his bizarre subhuman vehemence, is still trying to reach the public. But perhaps the perennial Jewish mother, is relating his sordid life to a "drunk" leading to a mental collapse. Any reader should be able to notice the gradual build-up to this breakdown. One supposes Roth had to finish the book somehow.

Roth, however, is an excellent short story writer, because he must focus on the structure of the short story, making these shorter writings witty, entertaining, concise and meaningful. Wittiness is the only working formula of "Portnoy's Complaint," especially in the scenes dealing with his parents.

LIX AND SOUP

It was here that Roth was at his best in "Goodbye Columbus," dissecting the modern (or not so modern) Jewish family. His first book was not long enough for the author to explore this subject in depth, for the family scenes didn't smack so much of gefilte fish to me as genuine. In "Portnoy's," however, the pages reek of lox and chicken soup.

He should have condensed the book into a short story, concentrating solely on Alex Portnoy's parents and junked the rest for it is boringly concerned with Alex's problems or, rather, his methods to increase his sex appeal and his method to describe it. In "Portnoy's" however, the pages reek of lox and chicken soup.

Roth's style is definitely not in the construction of his plot, which is a melodramatic affair, reminiscent in setting and purpose of O'Neill's "Iceman Cometh," that rambles over three long acts. His strengths emerge in his sharply drawn, intensely human characters and rich language.

The play is both timely and timeless. It concerns itself with the problems the black man faces as well as honestly evaluating those problems he has made for himself. Yet it focuses in on something more universal, man trying to reconcile his illusions with reality. Gordon's keen insight and humanity in this matter makes the play an optimistic soul brother to O'Neill's "Iceman."
LUNGE POSITION: Dale Rodgers, senior physical education major, executes an advanced lunge position during a practice session the other day. Rodgers was elected captain of MSC's swashbucklers for the fourth consecutive year.

Dale Keith Rodgers, a senior from Franklin Lakes (NJ) has been elected captain of the Montclair State College's varsity fencing team for the fourth straight year.

Rodgers has been one of the principle reasons for Montclair State's recent rise to fencing prominence. The Indians have posted an overall dual record of 15 wins and five losses in the last two years.

In his specialty, saber, Rodgers has a three year record of 75 wins and six losses. In full competition from 1966 to 1968, he has a record of 2-1.

Two years ago Rodgers finished 20-1 in saber and dual.

Macke Is Back

Allan Macke will return as head fencing coach at Montclair State College it was announced today by Bill Dioguardi, director of athletics.

Macke, who coached the Indians fencing squad from 1966 to 1968, was on a leave of absence last year in order to work on his doctorate at Ohio University.

The Indians enjoyed outstanding success in fencing under Macke, posting marks of 3.5 and 7.1. Macke, a graduate of Clifton High School and Paterson State, holds a master's degree from New York University.

Under Macke's direction, Ramapo Regional High School became one of New Jersey's top scholastic fencing teams from 1957 to 1968.

The MSC coach will be teaching at Indian Hills High School in Oakland, N.J.

Gymnast Green Honored As Outstanding Athlete

Dave Green, senior physical education major, was named to be included in the 1969 edition of the "Outstanding College Athletes of America."

Green has been outstanding in gymnastic competitions since his freshman year. During the 1969 season he qualified for individual competition in the NCAA college division nationals held at San Fernando Valley State College in California in the high bar and long horse events.

In the North Atlantic Conference Championships, in which MSC took first place, Green took a first place in the high bar, a second in the long horse and a fourth in floor exercise.

Meet qualifying him for participation in the Olympic Trials where members of the Olympic team were picked.

Rodgers, the youngest participant in the trials, finished 15 in a field of 40 candidates. All other candidates were either army trained or rich doctors. His highest achievement was taking the bronze medal in the 4,000 meter run.

A physical education major, Dale is secretary of the Phi Epsilon Kappa national physical education fraternity.

MSC Stands Up For America

By John Aneson

Montclair State has burst upon the national sports scene this year 1969. The basketball squad started with a bang by racking up a 24-3 state, toppled off by a trip to Evanville, Ind., for the NCAA small college championship national tournament.

Despite an opening game loss for the tourney, the quintet wound up with the eastern crown win at Syracuse, N.Y., and a number five ranking among small college teams.

Jim Grieco capped his college fencing career by qualifying for a similar wrestling tourney; as did gymnast Rick Schwarz.

Many MSC students are unaware that senior Dale Rodgers is the top collegiate pentathlete in the nation. He placed 14 in the U.S. Olympic trial last year. He also gives this institution one of the top fencers in the East.

This summer the United States sent its best collegiate basketball players to the Dominican Republic for the World Basketball Tournament. One of those players was coach Francis Rossi of MSC, a second team All-American. He batted over .600 and handled the backcourt with the utmost in efficiency.

Rodgers described the trip as his "greatest thrill," not because of his outstanding performance but for the honor involved in representing this great country.

Just as a sidenote, the football team has shown potential but the soccer squad is the team to watch. They're ranked 20th in the nation.

Hanczy, De Fillipis Stand Out As MSC Downs ESSC, 4-2

By Paul Kowalsczyk

Staff Reporter

The Montclair State College soccer team, ranked 20th in the nation by the Intercollegiate Soccer Football Association of America, defeated East Stroudsburg 4-2 last Saturday at ESSC. It was the first regular season game for the Vanities, East Stroudsburg 1-1.

Hanczy, a junior forward, scored the game's standouts. De Fillipis, two forwards, were the game's standouts. De Fillipis scored a 27 yard "picture" goal in the second period, and also assisted on another goal. Hanczy played a tremendous job in the MSC goal, turning away 15 East Stroudsburg shots.

After a very unexciting first period in which Montclair showed some signs of penetrating the ESSC defense, John Lukin scored Montclair's first goal at 12:40 of the second period. His goal came off a Tony De Fillipis corner kick, and opened the door for MSC's booters.

Within the next six minutes Montclair scored two more goals, each one minute and 30 seconds apart.

Bill Kazdoba broke away from the East Stroudsburg defense, and with five minutes remaining in the first half, scored on a one-on-one situation.

At 18:30 of the same half, just one minute and 30 seconds after Kazdoba's goal, Tony De Fillipis put in his 28 yard shot past the ESSC goalie.

Montclair didn't lose its scoring punch during the half time break. Jean Charles scored MSC's fourth goal just 30 seconds into the second half.

East Stroudsburg broke into the scoring column with two goals in the first half of the second quarter. After Montclair's defense appeared to become lax and confused, ESSC scored at 7:29 of the fourth period, and also with five minutes remaining.

Soccer coach, Len Lucenko, commented after the game that "we played fairly well in spots, but we have a lot of work to do. Consistency was lacking."

Special to the Montclarion.

The MSC Gridiron 11 was brought back to earth Saturday when the Indians couldn't soundly beaten by a tough Delaware State Club. 28-9 in Dover, Del.

Upset victors over East Stroudsburg last week, the Indians were the team that was upset this time as they entered the game as 5-point favorites.

The Hornets asserted themselves early in the game as they they shut off the Montclair offensive machine which had gained 292 yards on the ground against Stroudsburg. Saturday the Indians had 200 total yards, but only 51 on the ground against this big Delaware State defensive front.

Steve Davis capped a 15 play, 79 yard drive when he banged over from 3 yards out for the first Delaware score early in the first period. Dwight Boney kicked the first of his four conversions of the afternoon.

The next score came on a 40 yard T.D. strike from freshman quarterback Keith Burke to Sam Waters. Boney's PAT making the score 14-0. Delaware State boomed back and drove 58 yards in 15 plays capped by Davis' second TD, a one yard run, and the teams went into the locker rooms at halftime with the Hornets holding a commanding 21-3 lead.

The third period was scoreless, but Delaware got back on the scoreboard in the fourth when Len Hudson ended a 12 play, 46 yard drive with a one yard burst to pay-dirt.

Montclair State's last effort came late in the game when quarterback Bill Kulikowski tossed 21 yards to tight end Rollie Kascher for the Indians first and only TD of the afternoon making the final score 28-9.

The Indians lost more than the game as some key players were injured. Their injuries could make a difference in the remaining games. Defensive end Dennis Reardon dislocated his ankle and is likely lost for the season. Linebacker Pete Contaldo suffered a concussion and probably won't suit up for the Curry Game Saturday and Larry Adams, the other linebacker damaged his knee and his status is unknown.

So, the Indians come home, looking to 'get better' against Curry College Saturday night at Sprague Field. Game time is 8 p.m.
