Students Gripe MAC Illegal
According to SGA Statutes

By Don Pendley
News Editor

"I think you (SGA) should decide what you should be doing about this illegal operation you've been running," replied MSC President Thomas H. Richardson to a statement made yesterday by SGA representative John Aneson on the illegality of the Montclair Athletic Commission (MAC). Aneson asserted that since MAC is a class one SGA organization, the organization should be run by students, and pointed out that on the voting committee of MAC are four students and four faculty members (Mr. William Dioguardi is chairman of the committee).

The forum, held yesterday afternoon at 4 p.m. in the studio theatre, was held to allow students to ask questions of Richardson, MSC physical education dept. chairman Dr. Richard Tews, MSC athletic director William Dioguardi, and MSC Vice-President for Business and Finance Vincent Calabrese.

At the start of the meeting, Richardson stated that "there are some specific questions that can't come up (at the meeting) and these are delicate... they shouldn't be able to be discussed in a public meeting at all... they involve pride of individuals and sometimes border on professional confidentiality." Jordan Denner, SGA representative, later stated that "I think that the teeth have been taken out of this forum," reflecting on Richardson's statement refusing to discuss such questions as admissions of athletes, Coach Clary Anderson's salary and the erection of lights on the football field.

Richardson said that a basic question that has to be answered is the relationship between the physical education dept. and the athletics department. Tews stated that "We're in an ill-defined stage," in that although legally there is no separation between the phys. ed. and athletic departments, the hiring of Anderson as a full-time coach without the knowledge and consent of Tews forms an automatic separation between the two departments.

Denner referred to a position paper signed by all members of last year's physical dept., except Dioguardi, which stated that the functions of the athletics and physical education departments were too closely intertwined to permit a separation of the two organizations.

Members of the soccer team present at the forum, attended by over 100 students, asked about the current status of the use of a field by the soccer team for its home games. They were informed by Calabrese that the field is now ready for soccer team use, and, according to Dioguardi, next year's home games will be scheduled for the MSC field.

Several persons, including Dr. Joan Schleede, associate professor of physical education, stated that women's athletics were given unfair treatment, and that they were treated like "fourth-class citizens," said Dr. Schleede. None of the male panel members had comments on this matter at that time.

Dr. Hazel M. Wacker, professor of physical education, told the forum at the end of its 2½-hour meeting that the committee to be formed to investigate the separation of the physical education and athletics departments "would not be loaded," and "students will be the focus" of the committee.
Campus Religious Leaders Support Sex Ed. Program

"Building a strong, healthy foundation for a healthy society," is the purpose of sex education in schools, commented Rev. Robert W. Castle, one of Montclair State's chaplains. He and Father Thomas E. Davis and Rabbi Jehuda Schnitzer came out in support of the sex education program which has been in place for the short time it has been in schools.

Castle envisions that "sex education will be responsible for the abolition of the fault, but evident influence of the Victorian social codes which are responsible for a large part of the sickness pervading our society." He states that "young people of today, who have experienced small amounts of sex education, exhibit honesty in their sexual attitudes."

"A crucial point in the success of sex education," says Davis, "is the relationship between the student and his teacher." He adds that teachers and parents must collaborate in order to minimize the misinterpretations. He feels that the student of sex education normally suffers. "Ideally, sex education should be conducted strictly according to the student's ethnic and ethical background." Confusion arises when these aspects are overlooked," he further acknowledges.

When asked about his feelings toward sex education, Schnitzer answered that they could be summed up by the fact that he has been a member of the Sex Institute and Education Council of the U.S. (SIECUS) for two years. His position is that of a committee member representing the Jewish concern on the topic. Schnitzer and has been speaking as a representative of the committee on important points in local schools.

"Eventually," he states, "I hope to see sex education become an integral part of the education process in both elementary and secondary schools."

SIECUS is an organization that has spearheaded the advancement of sex education for four years. The council is headed by Dr. Mary Caldenos, who, along with the council, strive to institute sex education on all levels of education. "Recently," says Schnitzer, "opposition to SIECUS's work has come from right-wing reactionaries."

Sex Is... What You Are

"Sex is not something you do, but something you are," states Dr. Yvonne Taylor, a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Sex Education, pointing out the importance of sex education in the schools.

Dr. Taylor also commented that sex education should be taught even in kindergarten, because she believes that students generally are not the ones who oppose sex education in the schools. Snodt at her desk in Grace Freeman Hall, surrounded by shelves filled with books and pamphlets on sex education and research, Dr. Runden stated that the significance of sex education courses is that "we should have sex education programs for parents, in the homes, in the churches, in the schools, from kindergarten through 12th grade, for teaching all for college students," she declared.

She added that sex education education course was critically attacked last week by Mrs. Yvonne Taylor, a member of the Human Relations Commission and mother of two children.

Mrs. Taylor shares that the Board's adult sex education course is trying to "brainwash" and "condition" parents through adult classes given twice a week at Clifton High School into accepting sex education. "They're brainwashing us until we tell our children. Instead they're trying to indoctrinate us to have sex education in schools," she said.

What sparked the attack was a remark made after the showing of a film which was described by Mrs. Taylor as "boring" and "innocuous." After the showing, she said, a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Sex Education got up and asked if anyone had any objection to the film.

"He was totally out of order. Why were we asked?" Mrs. Taylor questioned.

Stanton M. Weiss, board president, said the teacher who made the remark was reprimanded and further added, "He apologized." However, he denied the charges that the classes are for "brainwashing." Those classes are designed "to help parents disseminate information on human sexuality to parents."

Mr. Weiss also added that "the adult classes are too valuable to be destroyed by attacks from such critics like Mrs. Taylor," whom he described as an ultra-conservative.

SEX EDUCATION

By Maureen Nichols
Staff Reporter

The Educational Foundation for Human Sexuality was founded over two years ago through the efforts of Dr. Charity E. Runden, who is currently its executive director. Through her work with the EFHS, Dr. Runden's idea of a sex education center at MSC has become a reality. Her office is presently located in Grace Freeman Hall.

Plans for a center of sex education which would include MSC students and others began in April 1967, following a series of meetings with various members of the administration.

Dr. Runden worked almost full-time coordinating sex education courses, lecturing, building a library of books and materials and working with schools and community groups. In its early stages, the foundation was referred to as the Educational Foundation for Development and Advancement of Today's Education. It was then called the Institute of Sex Education and Research and finally it was changed to its present title, the Educational Foundation for Human Sexuality.

Dr. Runden stated that while she was the first to actually initiate a sex education program at Montclair, other departments have had various courses in sex education. She said that the home economics department offers courses in marriage and family and the department of health and physical education has courses in the study of human sexuality. There are also a few courses available in the psychology and sociology department.

Sex education courses are not yet part of this year's division curriculum, Dr. Runden said, but these courses are offered all over New Jersey in the evening through the adults sex education program.

A special library and bookstore have been set up in the office on the first floor of Freeman Hall. Dr. Runden explained that they also work with the audio-visual center and are hoping to get funding from the federal government for the next few weeks.

The future of the Educational Foundation for Human Sexuality depends on a great deal on the funds available. The foundation is presently financed by MSC through fees (from the evening division), donations, and fees, film rentals, lectures and consultation services.

Dr. Runden said that they have applied for grants from the federal government and various foundations, and are hoping to hear from these sources in a few weeks.
Obscenities and the Press
Collegiate Journalists to Discuss
Those 4-Letter Words Saturday
By Celeste Fasone

The opinion that there is a professional way to handle the issue of obscenities in college publications will be discussed at the fall semester meeting of the New Jersey Collegiate Press Association on Oct. 25, at Montclair State College from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This opinion belongs to David M. Levine, managing editor of the newspaper and vice-president of the NJCPA, who will host the first of four annual conferences.

Comprised of staff members from 25 colleges and headed by its president, Alice Mueller of Caldwell College, this association works to bring together a collage of ideas and opinions in solving the problems which face the modern college journalist.

Hugh F. Connor, New Jersey bureau manager of United Press International, as guest speaker will lecture on the topic of obscenities in the professional press.

Following the lectures, workshops will be held to acquaint the collegiate journalists with the most recent journalistic techniques.

Led by various college editors, workshops on newspaper layout and design, news and feature writing, and the newspaper in the classroom enable aspiring journalists to compare particular approaches and preferred styles in these fields.

Not solely confined to newspaper media, the press day will offer workshops in yearbook and literary magazine design and photography and public relations to interested college and high school staff members.

Connor, a graduate of Columbia University, began his newspaper career with the Rockland County (N.Y.) Journal-News and joined United Press International in 1966. He was promoted to his present position last June.

Edward M. Hall, managing editor of the Pasticc Herald-News, will discuss the changing role of newspapers in American society in a speech entitled “The Newspapers Grow Up.”

Hall, a native of Red Wing, Minn., served as a reporter for the Red Wing Daily Republican, Cleveland Plain-Dealer and the Newark Evening News. After World War II, he became a freelance foreign correspondent contributing to the old Chicago Times and St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Hall was also the editor of the Paterson Morning Call before assuming present duties nearly two years ago.

All Montclair State students are invited to attend the workshops and lectures.

Chisolm Will Speak
At UN Day Program

Mrs. Shirley Chisholm (D-N.Y.), the first female negro representative in the U.S. will be the guest speaker at Montclair’s celebration of United Nations Week (Oct. 18-26) on Sun., Oct. 26, at 6 p.m. in the Montclair High School auditorium.

Matthew G. Carter, Montclair mayor, will open the program. Following him Rep. Chisholm will speak on the topic “Progress Through Understanding.” After her talk, Mrs. Chisholm will hold a press conference at which Fay Witcher, MONTCLARION staff reporter, and other representatives of local high school newspapers will ask questions.

Highlighting the evening will be the production of an original play directed toward one aspect of U.N. work. The play entitled “A Chance for Peach” is directed by Tony Giorno, a student at MSC.

The play includes a cast of nine students from Montclair High School. Foreign students representing eight countries – Columbia, Cuba, El Salvador, Germany, Mexico, Poland, Puerto Rico and Syria will usher the affair in their native costumes.

Admission to the program is free and, in addition, everyone attending will receive a ticket for the annual drawing. The winner of the drawing will be invited for a day at the U.N. building with his entire family. A luncheon will also be arranged in the delegates’ dining room, and the winners will have an opportunity to meet several U.N. officials as well as visit the U.S. delegation.

The chairman of the U.N. program for the second year is Mr. Harry Goldsmith of Montclair. Appointed by Mayor Carter, Goldsmith is past president of the New Jersey State U.N. Committee and past president of the Montclair chapter.

Other U.N. Week activities planned for Montclair include a presentation of U.S. flags to all Montclair schools by the mayor; and a concert by the N.J. State Symphony Orchestra on Oct. 24, at Montclair High School. The concert, dedicated to the U.N., will feature a solo by a Japanese violinist.

OK Student Rights Bill
By W. Clark Flipp
Staff Reporter

The Student Government Association passed a revised version of the document “Campus Policy Concerning Student Rights and Responsibilities” last Tuesday after a half-hour debate. The document now becomes official SGA policy, according to Vice-President Gregory Doucette.

The Legislature, earlier, voted to remove a section from the document which contained a lengthy statement by MSC President Thomas H. Richardson.

The quote states in part:

"Disturbances of basic democratic rights will not be tolerated. If any group of students disrupts the college, a reminder about the illegality of the act will be given. If the reminder is not heeded, the students will be suspended. If the disruption cannot be immediately corrected within the resources of the college community, outside assistance will have to be summoned."

Two weeks ago the Faculty Council of MSC voted to adopt the statement in its entirety. The final SGA Legislature vote was 17 (against).

...the soul
not your contacts

There was a time when you just a drop or two of Lensine had to take off your lenses, put it in a moist solution for two, three hours, and then put them back in your eyes. This was a big irritation. Why? Because Lensine is a compatible, "isotonic" solution, very much like your eye's natural fluids. It cleans your contacts by removing all traces of foreign deposits on the lenses. And soaking your contacts in Lensine permits the growth of bacteria on the lenses. This is a sure cause of eye irritation and in some cases can endanger your vision. Bacteria can not grow in Lensine because it's sterile, self-sanitizing, and antiseptic.

You get a free soaking-storage case with individual lens compartments on the bottom of every bottle of Lensine between wearing periods as well. And soaking your contacts in Lensine retards the build-up of bacterial and other fluids.

A good cry cleanses the soul

After all is shed and done, your soul may be saved...but your contacts need help. They need Lensine. Lensine is the one contact lens solution for complete contact care: preparing, cleaning, and soaking.

There was a time when you needed two or more different lens solutions to properly prepare and maintain your contacts. No more. Lensine from The Murine Company, makes caring for contact lenses as convenient as wearing them.

Just a drop or two of Lensine coats and lubricates your lens. This allows the lens to float more freely in the eye, reducing tearful irritation. Why? Because Lensine is a compatible, "isotonic" solution, very much like your eye's natural fluids. It cleans your contacts by removing all traces of foreign deposits on the lenses. And soaking your contacts in Lensine between wearing periods assures you proper lens hygiene. You get a free soaking-storage case with individual lens compartments on the bottom of every bottle of Lensine.

It has been demonstrated the improper storage between wearings permits the growth of bacteria on the lenses. This is a sure cause of eye irritation and in some cases can endanger your vision. Bacteria can not grow in Lensine because it's sterile, self-sanitizing, and antiseptic.

It's a flexible policy which can be amended as necessary. The document was written by a joint national committee of students, faculty and college administrators over a period of two years. The document was released during the past summer. One legislator who voted against the adoption of the policy said the document “wasn’t concrete enough.” He added that “we shouldn’t be so vague about our beliefs.”

Doucette said the document “is a flexible policy which can be amended as necessary. Students will name union building.

Mediation Situation

On today's editorial page is an interesting feature about Cornell University's ombudsman-plan. The plan, according to a spokesman for the university, is aimed at bringing in a qualified person to mediate problems between students, faculty and administration.

We congratulate Cornell's administration for being foresighted enough to institute such a modernistic approach in handling student gripes. Many universities and colleges throughout the country have established the permanent post of ombudsman to handle student complaints years ago. And from all reports, the plan is working out very well.

Concerning Student Rights and Responsibilities

we might mention that the SGA voted on its own to pass the document "Campus Policy Concerning Student Rights and Responsibilities" a week ago. The document, as SGA President Traynor remarked, is flexible enough to apply to the needs of the college community.

Out in the Open

Yesterday's open forum on athletics brought to light the formation of a committee to "clarify the relationships between the physical education and athletic programs and to define the role of athletics at Montclair State College."

Although the aim of this committee will be to recommend resolutions concerning the separation of physical education and athletics, the consensus of opinion regarding this separation by a majority of members of the present physical education dept, is that a separation should not occur.

However, even though that committee has not yet begun to function, this college has taken primary steps to achieve that separation with the hiring of Clary Anderson under the staff position of fulltime coach. Apparently the college administration has anticipated that separation. However, we question that this is the move which the college as a whole is desirous of achieving. Right now the priorities of athletics, especially concerning SGA and state funding of athletic programs, have provoked questions which were not answered at yesterday's forum.

A thorough report with recommendations on the separation or non-separation of physical education from athletics should be made as soon as possible so that everyone will be familiar with their rights as students in this community.

Students Rights and Responsibilities

Unfortunately, not too many people have seen this document. The MONTCLARION suggests that copies be printed and distributed as soon as possible so that everyone will be familiar with their rights.

Dear Harry A. Sprague Library.

In last week's edition of the MONTCLARION I read with interest that you were instituting something called "ombudsman week." I wish to take advantage of it.

I don't know if you think I'm loaded or something, but I really can't afford 120 bucks for an overdue book. I believe in penalizing bad boys, but this is going a bit too far. Maybe one of you librarians should read a little book about due dates, and punishment. Rumor has it that they are needed at certain times.

And while we're talking about utilities, you're the biggest group that deserved to receive a few points for not looking after your own property. As a freshman reporter serving on the MONTCLARION way back in 1967, I would write with an attitude of that college has no security system. I was right. And so were the hundreds of other students who walked out of the place, spacing as many books as they wanted to.

Mediation Situation

It was over a year ago when the MONTCLARION called for a similar plan to be instituted here at Montclair State. We obviously met deaf ears. Consequently, the Montclair State student still labors under the traditional bureaucracy, without knowing what person to see first when problems occur.

Consequently, we call upon Dean Lawton W. Blanton and the members of the Student Government Association to swiftly draw up plans for an ombudsman position here at M.C.S. There's talk that this college has intentions of becoming a university. So, obviously, in a growing student-community, an ombudsman would become an absolute necessity. And while we're talking about . . .

Riots, Strikes, Vandalism

Turmoil Grips Italy

By Rembert James News

Editor, Capeley News Service

ROME—Italy's shining and prosperous land has become a worldwide image as the model republic in the West. The Italian Communist Party, largest of the Western European Communist parties, offers a strange and disturbing spectacle.

Riots, vandalism, unauthorized strikes, all manner of turmoil and disorders, are erupting with unprecedented frequency and violence up and down the Italian peninsula.

All this is happening in the middle of the country's fourth straight year of a soaring economic boom.

The evidence of social unrest, sweeping the land in waves of such force, has brought grave concern to Italy's friends and allies, of which the United States is a major one.

Foreign businessmen and financial men with Italian interests, and foreign diplomats stationed in Rome, openly discuss with Italian leaders whether Italy will exist in its present form, as a good friend and firm ally, a half-dozen years from now.

WEAK GOVERNMENT

Italy's problem goes far beyond the surface explanations for present troubles, namely, that the country has a weak and unsatisfactory coalition government, and that scandal in high places has shaken public confidence.

The real problems are the result of two things: the continued presence of great poverty in half the population, highlighted by the unhappy situation of three million unskilled Italians from other regions who have moved into the industrial north; and the almost hopeless obsolescence of most of Italy's political and social institutions, which have gone unreformed for centuries.

Western diplomats say it is a situation worse than that of the Italian Communist Party, largest in the West. The Italian communists, as a matter of record, took an important part in creating the conditions for turmoil by pushing the emigration of hundreds of thousands from the barren regions of Italy into the north.

The result is that in places such as Milan and Turin, centers of Italy's great industrial achievements, skilled workers are in short supply, but tens of thousands of migrants scavenge the region to survive.

Some of the migrants, such as

Foro problem, are not only unemployed, but many naturally can make themselves understood. Their language is more like Julius Caesar's Latin than present-day Italian.

Others, from areas around Naples, and further southward, in the heel and toe of Italy's boot, are equally alien to modern industrial surroundings.

All this means that the Italian economy, booming as it seems, really isn't. Italy recently won first place in Europe's Common Market countries for an improved standard of living. But the standard of living gain does not include half the people.

Fond memories of 'Last Summer'

By Roberta Kuehl
News Editor

Two golden boys and a girl rescue and nourish a wounded gull on Fire Island, then the girl murders it. Later they befriend a lonely girl, then rape her.

Drinking beer, revealing scenes, smoking pot, experimenting with sex—all these events constitute the daily lives of four youths in the flick "Last Summer." These actions, combined with Frank and Eleanor Perry's (of "David and Lisa") brand of audience-invoking close-ups result in a film that is frighteningly real. In this picture a true representation of today pleasure-seeking, cruel, and godless, yet beautiful, strong, and worldly?

SAVAGERY SECLUDED

"Lord of the Flies" vividly comes to mind while watching "Last Summer." The idea of savagery, revealing itself on a secluded island once the garments of civilization are stripped away seems perfectly true.

Sade's great crime was to be free, to be able to express his own ideas. Unlike Savagery revealing itself on a secluded island, adulthood is not a fear, it is an aspect of life. But, if we look below the surface of "Lord of the Flies," we will find that this is hardly a true representation of youth.

He believed in the sophistication of man. In the last summer, he became the best manifestation of it. We can piece together what made the Savagery Secluded. We can't even talk to you."

"Let's talk to them to find out what they're thinking."

He found sensual pleasure to be his highest good, and sex to be the best manifestation of it. Sade was an intellectual.... Besides his extensive reading, Sade wrote down his own principles in a coherent though unsystematic philosophy.

Marquis DeSade:--
"...There is little, if any, acquaintance with the Marquis DeSade. This is hardly a true representation of him. Besides his extensive reading, Sade wrote down his own principles in a coherent though unsystematic philosophy."

The idea of savagery, revealing itself on a secluded island once the garments of civilization are stripped away seems perfectly true. Though we use his name to coin the word sadism, in reality he was not a sadist but a masochist. He lived in violent times and his writings reflected it. Though he wrote constantly of murder and torture, he never killed anyone and, in fact, was almost executed during the Fresh Revolution for helping aristocrats and others escape the guillotine while he sat on the committee that was to give much of his money to the poor and was a philanthropist at heart.

MISUNDERSTOOD

Sade was a man who wanted to be free, to be able to express his individuality in every possible way. It could as always happen to a man, he is persecuted and misunderstood. It is a tragedy that the name of Sade is only known through sadism, representing a way of life he wrote about but never really practiced and probably believed in less than many. Sade's great crime was to tell us some disturbing things about ourselves.

However, if we look below the surface of "Lord of the Flies," we will find that this is hardly a true representation of youth...."

"...so trememdous, they couldn't even talk to you."

Besides his extensive reading, Sade wrote down his own principles in a coherent though unsystematic philosophy.

He believed in the sophistication of man. In the last summer, he became the best manifestation of it. We can piece together what made the Savagery Secluded. We can't even talk to you."

"Let's talk to them to find out what they're thinking."

He found sensual pleasure to be his highest good, and sex to be the best manifestation of it. Sade was an intellectual.... Besides his extensive reading, Sade wrote down his own principles in a coherent though unsystematic philosophy.

SAVAGERY SECLUDED

"Lord of the Flies" vividly comes to mind while watching "Last Summer." The idea of savagery, revealing itself on a secluded island once the garments of civilization are stripped away seems perfectly true. Though we use his name to coin the word sadism, in reality he was not a sadist but a masochist. He lived in violent times and his writings reflected it. Though he wrote constantly of murder and torture, he never killed anyone and, in fact, was almost executed during the Fresh Revolution for helping aristocrats and others escape the guillotine while he sat on the committee that was to give much of his money to the poor and was a philanthropist at heart.

MISUNDERSTOOD

Sade was a man who wanted to be free, to be able to express his individuality in every possible way. It could as always happen to a man, he is persecuted and misunderstood. It is a tragedy that the name of Sade is only known through sadism, representing a way of life he wrote about but never really practiced and probably believed in less than many. Sade's great crime was to tell us some disturbing things about ourselves.

Joffrey Ballet winds up final weeks

The Joffrey Ballet is currently concluding its longest season at the City Center. A recent program offered a cross section of its varied repertoire and featured the work of the company's resident choreographers, Robert Joffrey and Gerald Arpino.

The evening's curtain raiser was Arpino's all male Olympics. "...like 'Susie Q' and 'I Put a Spell on You', rough in spots but an example of athletic virtuoso..."

“Americans are among the most highly respected and idealized people in Thailand, especially for their role in Vietnam.” This is one of the thoughts that Arleta Abarquez has formed about America. A Greek, Arleta is one of the 15 foreign exchange students attending Montclair State College this semester. Born in the Philippines, she moved to Bangkok, Thailand, at the age of 12, where she stayed until she was graduated from a Catholic high school. The youngest of eight children, Arleta came to the United States in February and attended the spring semester as a freshman at MSC. This marked the first time she had seen her eldest brother, who had left the Philippines 10 years ago to study business administration at Drexel Institute of Technology, since she was nine. Originally a business administration major, now a liberal arts major, Arleta hopes to become an elementary school teacher.

Researchers have long said that the age of 12 is when a child reaches their peak height and weight for the rest of their life. This is not the case for American girls. "New York City is so noisy...it is too much of a rush," exclaimed, "But I like Boston. It, too, is a city, but not so much like New York." As for Montclair, Raquel enjoys living at MSC, and she said, "All the teachers and students here are very friendly and helpful.

Raquel compared American and Israeli education. She explained that in Israel children attend school six days per week, and there is more emphasis on memorization. The study of English begins in sixth grade, and is required of every student. “But we learn the English that they speak in England,” she said.

Many Israeli students, especially for their role in the military. Raquel explained that when they reach 18, Israeli girls, as well as boys, must join the army. Women may be deferred if they are married, or for certain religious beliefs, but this is not true for males. All Israeli boys must serve three years in the military. Even those who attend universities must put in their time. During their holidays and vacations, these students must report to army camps for training, and they complete three years of service after graduation. "In Israel, one considers it an honor to serve one's country," stated Raquel. She added that she will join the military when she returns to her homeland, but for now she must "concentrate on the lessons, and learn more of the English language.

Tom Dow, junior industrial arts major; "I think we should definitely have more attention given to the sport and stop putting them down. I'd like to see a crew team here at Montclair..."

Joe Eichinger, junior fine arts major; "I think they should be improved a lot more than they are. They should have been moved up on the scale. Athletics should have been overlooked too long on this campus."

Bob Cose, senior industrial arts major; "I think it's good because it provides a feeling of school spirit. It's a good extracurricular activity and it builds character in the participants. However, the academic aspect of college shouldn't be forgotten."

Henry Wybolt, sophomore English major; "Athletics belong in the gym. Athletics are very important because those who do well in sports tend to do well in academic pursuits."

John White, freshman business administration major; "Sports should be on this campus. It's a kind of center for physical education majors anyway."

The group is scheduled for February 7, 10, 1970, at 9 a.m. to noon. Students interested in participating in the tutoring program should contact Mike Heaney at the MONTCLAIR office or the director of the project Dr. John G. Bled, lower level of Chapin Hall.

UPWARD BOUND BEGINS FOR YEAR 8

Upward Bound is now continuing at Montclair State for the fourth year. Thirty Jersey City high school students will be on the campus Saturday mornings for tutoring in college board exams, reading and reading improvement.

The group is scheduled for rooms C107, 109 and 121 of college hall from 10 a.m. to noon. Students interested in participating in the tutoring program should contact Mike Heaney at the MONTCLAIR office or the director of the project Dr. John G. Bled, lower level of Chapin Hall.

$250 AWARD FOR BEST HISTORY REPORT

The Montclair Chapter Sons of the American Revolution has announced that it will make an award of $250 to the student of American history at Montclair State College who writes the best research report on some phase of the American Revolution. The competition is open to any regularly enrolled undergraduate student at Montclair State College who is concentrating his studies in American history or is enrolled in an American history course at Montclair State during the 1969-70 term. Interested students may obtain specific details and information for the contest in the history department office, room 3, College Hall.

The department provides a set of electives for arts and sciences majors, as well as for the humanities requirement in general education. Streetman added that the independent study courses in both philosophy and religion are particularly worth noting. They range from three to 12 semester hours each, and partly involve having students set some of their own classroom goals.

At the moment, the philosophy and religion department does not offer any part of those courses which it lists in the undergraduate bulletin. It is Brantl's hope, however, that by the fall semester of 1970, this will no longer be true.

Asked about any other ambitions for the department, Brantl added that the ultimate goal is for separate philosophy and separate religion majors, as well as the formation of a healthy curriculum for those majors within the department.

Jersey City Celebrates First 40 Years

By Janice Selerno Staff Reporter

JERSEY CITY — Jersey City State College, now JCSC, was a teacher's college, as was MCCC. In 1935 Jersey City State College became a four year college authorized to give a bachelor of science degree in elementary education. Its sole purpose, then, was to teach students the fundamentals of teaching.

Today the school is a multipurpose institution with 25 departments, 15 in arts and sciences, 8 in professional education. The college is also capable of offering degrees in 43 different fields of study. A bachelor of arts degree is available in 23 various fields; a master of arts is available in 19 fields, while a professional diploma is available in only one field.

When the school officially opened its doors in 1929, the inaugural class included 386 students, four of whom were nurses. Today one-third of the 7500 students enrolled are men.

Lovenduski Elected Fresh Prez

By Helen Zuckerbrod Staff Reporter

James Lovenduski has been elected president; Vic DeLasa, vice-president; Michele Corona, secretary; Suzanne Van Horn, treasurer; and Frank Bonavita and Henry Heykoop, SGA representatives as a result of the freshmen elections held last Friday.

Following a week of campaigning via posters and platform speeches on Oct. 16, by all 17 candidates for the various offices, approximately 26% of the freshman class voted by paper ballot in the Memorial Auditorium lobby.

Results of the freshmen elections were posted in Life Hall after tabulation by the SGA election committee following the closing of the polls at 5 p.m.

David Schoenbrun, CBS news commentator, declared last week that the United States "is at a crossroads." He claimed that Oct. 15 (moratorium day) is the day "when the entire country rose up to oppose the war in Vietnam." Addressing nearly 500 students in the memorial auditorium, he claimed: "President Nixon shall hear us."

The Montclair State College soccer team, rated number 12 in Pennsylvania and Delaware, continued its undefeated trend by beating Paterson State College, 8-0, and Pratt Institute, 2-0. The MSC booters are now 7-0.

The standout for the Montclair team was sophomore scoring star Bill Kazdoba. Kazdoba netted the MSC hooters are now 7-0.

MSC dominated from the very start of the first period, when Bill Kazdoba took a pass from Jean Charles and scored at 1:54 into the period. George Chapla hit next at the 11:40 mark of the first period, with a head shot from three yards out. Kazdoba then scored his second goal of the game to complete the scoring in the first period. Four minutes and 50 seconds into the second period, John Lukin, put in a goal that came off Kazdoba shot that hit the crossbar.

It wasn't until the end of the second period that Montclair State scored again. Klaus Nemetz, an Austrian exchange student, scored on a penalty kick and put Montclair ahead 5-0.

The MSC scoring machine continued its attack early in the third period. At the 5:20 mark Bill Kazdoba scored his third goal of the evening. Less than 60 seconds later, Kazdoba scored again, for his second four goal game of the season.

To climax the scoring, Tony DeFilippis put in a 15 yard shot past the Paterson goalie at the 7:25 mark of the third period, just one minute after Kazdoba's fourth goal.

Paterson State broke into the scoring column at 7:00 of the third period when Paul Ornser scored. PSC added another goal early in the fourth period on a 20 yard blast by Pete Santansonio.

The Montclair State College soccer continued its winning ways by defeating highly rated Pratt Institute last Saturday.

The Montclair State College cross-country team, coached by Dr. George Horn, is currently sporting a won-lost record that is by no means outstanding. The team is 1-6.

This unimpressive record, however, is not an indication of the type of cross-country team that Montclair has. Horn has said that this year's team is "10,000 times better" than last year's team.

The varsity harriers consist of two very impressive sophomores, a hard-running junior, a transfer student who expected to help out this year's team, and the senior captain.

VC Mizzone, an outstanding sophomore runner, is the team's number one man. Last year, as a freshman, Mizzone led the frosh harriers to victories in the state college cross-country meet (freshman division) and in the College Track Conference (also the freshman division).

Captain Dale Rodgers is completing his final season on the team.

Horn mentioned that the key word in cross-country is "dedication." Horn stated that: "The boys are going to get a lot better. They are dedicated and hard working. The college can be extremely proud of our young men."

Valpone Captures Gridiron Award

Tony Valpone, Montclair State College's impressive 210-pound junior fullback, earned the Phi Chi Most Valuable Player award for his performance in this year's 23-0 Homecoming victory over Central Connecticut State College.

Valpone starred against Central Connecticut by gaining 113 yards on 25 carries. He has accumulated 315 yards in 73 carries so far this season, to lead the Montclair State football team in rushing. Valpone is also second in the rushing department in the Eastern Football Conference.

The stocky physical education major came to Montclair State College from Franklin Township High School, where he had received All Mid-State Conference honors. Upon his arrival at MSC, Valpone earned a varsity starting position as a defensive middle guard.

As a sophomore, Valpone was shifted to fullback, and during the 1966 fall contest能力 to gain 1000 yards rushing this season. At the rate Valpone is running, his goal may very likely be reached by the end of this season.

Cornerback Kostecki Leads Indian Defense

By John Aneson

In the Homecoming classic against Central Connecticut State, Joe Kostecki contributed his share and more to the "unit" defense of Montclair State's gridders.

The junior cornerback is one of the leaders of defensive Coach Tom Testa's enforcers.

In the last two games, the defense has held the opposition to six points for Curry and a shutout for CCS.

Hailing from Scotch Plains High, he played two years of varsity ball at halfback on offense as well as defense.

The munch-tackled defender was not recruited and came out for football on his own. He's been starting as a defensive back ever since.

Not blessed with great speed, Kostecki is a sure and hard-hitting tackler. "I do feel that I'm stronger against the run than the pass," Kostecki remarked, "but that is compensated for by the fact that we play a zone defense.

He feels that the safety behind him, Chuck Archdeacon, is reliable and reacts well to the call. "Coach is very professional and when he talks, the players listen," remarked the defender about Junior Coach Archdeacon.

Kostecki continued by saying that "Tom Testa is very dynamic, hyper-emotional, and really gets the players psyched for a game."

When questioned on the team's success, Kostecki added: "We beat the opposition on fundamentals: man-to-man. Or only weaknesses are lack of depth and our small size. Pete Contalidi has been strong at linebacker while tackle Tom Rothaker is the most underrated player on the team.

Mets Win in Series Mismatch

By Paul Kowalsczyk

Sports Editor

"The Mets and Orioles are a mismatch. They do not belong on the same field. This was the best team in baseball, maybe the best since the 1961 Yankees. The Mets have everything: 136 pitching, power, defense. They can do it all. There's no way the Mets can lose. To tell they will. Say five games. Why not?"

Phil Peppe, sports writer for the New York Daily News, wrote the above statement one week before the New York Mets met the Baltimore Orioles in the World Series.

The series was billed as a mismatch. What was a team that had finished in 9th place the season before doing in the World Series against a perennial first division ball club? How could baseball's one-time raingamuffins now be the toast of the sports world?

The word to describe it is not "impossible" or "lucky." The "Amazing Mets"defeated the Birds of Baltimore by winning four straight World Series games.

How did this New York team manage to win the World Series, when only a few months ago they were a 100-1 shot to finish in first place? The saying goes that it's the little things that count. The Mets proved this to be very true throughout the course of the world series.

Let's look at a few of these cases:

How often does a lead-off batter come up and try to hit a single, and then hits a home run instead? (Not very often, but it helps to win a World Series.)

How often does an umpire decide whether or not a batter got hit by a pitch by checking if there is shoe polish on the ball? (It's a little thing, but it helped to win the World Series.)

How often does a player get hit in the back as he runs toward first base? (Not too often, but it helped to win the World Series.)

To many people, these little "happenings" appear to be lucky, but they must remember that this all happened to New York's pride-and-joy, the Mets. In that case, it's not lucky, it's "amazing."
