Constitution Election Begins Tuesday

Legislature Structure, V P Organization, Are Questions

By Don Pendley
News Editor

Students of the Student Government Association constitutional changes concerning vice-presidential organization and the number of legislators in the SGA Legislature will be presented to the student body in an election beginning Tues., Dec. 9.

In an emotion-tinged meeting yesterday afternoon, the Student Government Association held a 1½-hour discussion on the date of the elections and wording of the questions.

The MONTCLARION will publish a special issue on Mon., Dec. 8, providing an in-depth examination of the questions to be voted upon in the Tuesday election.

Also on the ballot in the referendum are the student acceptance of the SGA articles of incorporation, and questions on the pedestrian mall, Vietnam moratorium and cut policy.

If the changes are made, the current position of vice-president, held by Greg Doucette, will be changed to the position of executive vice-president.

Two new posts will be created. These are: Vice-president of academic affairs will be responsible for educational reform within the college. He will also coordinate the SGA legislature representatives who are elected as members of the five schools with the college. Vice-president of external affairs will coordinate all community relations and service programs. He will also be responsible for the coordination of all national, international and statewide SGA affiliations.

The position of executive vice-president will be opened up, as it is currently, a position elected by the entire student body in the spring of each year. The vice-president for academic affairs and the vice-president for external affairs will be appointed by the SGA president and subject to two-thirds approval of the SGA legislature.

Included in the bill, in addition to the vice-presidential organization, is a change which would limit the number of representatives to 75 persons. There are currently 38 SGA representatives, although the group has not reorganized to include the departments formed by the creation of the five MSC schools.

Mall Will Open in Emergency Conditions

Montclair State's pedestrian mall will be left open during emergency campus weather conditions it was disclosed by Mr. Vincent J. Calabrese, vice-president of business and finance.

Calabrese stated that "security will assess the road each day in the event that icy conditions should occur and will open the mall in any emergency conditions." He also added that it is the responsibility of the security force to open the mall.

Calabrese's announcement came at a meeting of the physics-earth science advisory committee, composed of a group of students who wish the mall to be opened during peak traffic hours on campus.

The committee argued for the opening of the mall pointing out that the road leading from the freshman lot to the lots in front of Partridge Hall is a road hazard during the winter months.

The committee placed the blame for the morning traffic jams near Webster Hall on the mall, and also stated that the traffic behind the library is unsafe to pedestrians.

Calabrese stated that "a few students may be inconvenienced by the pedestrian mall "but that it has become a convenience for the maintenance department whose trucks may enter or leave the mall area quickly and easily.

Suggestion was made for an SGA committee to be formed to review arguments for and against the mall. According to Calabrese, a recommendation from SGA with adequate student support for opening the mall during peak hours would be sufficient cause for opening the mall.
Oneness of Mankind
Is Object of Baha'i

By Maureen Nicholas
Staff Reporter

A unified world society, free from prejudice and conflict, is the ideal goal of the Baha’is, a relatively modern religious movement which originated in the 19th century. Miss Jane Milne Caufield, secretary of the local Spiritual Assembly of Baha’is, related in a recent interview, the history and basic concepts of the Baha’i World Faith, as well as her reasons for converting to this religion.

Miss Caufield, a young woman who is pursuing a law degree in community affairs, seemed very much at ease as she described the origin of the Baha’i Faith. She told of how Baha’u’llah, “the Manifestation of God” for our time, founded the faith in Iran in the mid-19th century.

The Baha’is are opposed to the ideas of this religion and 20,000 early believers were martyred. Baha’u’llah and his close followers were imprisoned until 1892, when Baha’u’llah died, and for 16 years thereafter.

While in prison, he worked to establish the foundation of a firm faith, through his spiritual writings which represent the scriptures of the Baha’i’s and which are accepted now as the “Word of God.”

Even today Baha’is are persecuted in some countries, Miss Caufield explained. In Madagascar, she said, Baha’is were rounded up in the thousands until the government “cracked down” on them. In the 1950’s Baha’is were still being persecuted in this country, though persecutions have ended for the most part today.

Some of the principles of the Faith as Miss Caufield described them are the oneness of mankind, common foundation of all religions, elimination of prejudices, equality of men and women and universal peace upheld by a world government.

Miss Caufield said she was born an Episcopalian but converted to the Baha’i Faith while attending Washington University in St. Louis. “There came a time in college when I was very disinchanted with the Christian religion,” she said. “I couldn’t understand why there was so much division within it and such a lack of unity.”

Miss Caufield explained that she met a girl at school who told her about the Baha’is. Then she went to a number of discussions about the Faith, called “fireides” which are held in peoples’ homes. She then joined a study class and “after one year I decided that this was what I wanted.”

There are no clergy or ritual in the Baha’i Faith, Miss Caufield stated. Where there are nine or more Baha’is, she explained, they conform to a Spiritual Assembly and every week one or more of them are “friere” in his home.

These “fireides” are informal discussions, like seminars, she said, where people ask questions about the Faith and read from the writings of Baha’u’llah and his son. Every 19 days the Baha’i community meets for a “feast” where they discuss spiritual and social business.

Miss Caufield explained that there are about a million Baha’is in the United States in about 3600 communities. She said that she could not quote “exact statistics because the Baha’i Faith is growing so fast.”

According to Schnitzer, many young Jews do not have a deep understanding of their tradition and accordingly find it difficult to relate it to the greater society in which they live.

Judaism is not merely a religious but a “way of life” concluded the Rabbi which “when one follows and sees the relevance to the problems of this century.”

Religion in our society has become “issue oriented” according to Rev. Robert Castle, Protestant chaplain.

Contemporary society, he suggested, “perhaps more religious than ever before, not institutionally oriented but concerned about real problems and religious issues of peace, justice and equality.”

The emphasis on the institutional church comes about because so many are threatened with the contradiction within the church.

At the Institutional church, suggested Castle “has talked of peace on occasion but has stressed war; has talked of helping the poor but at the same time becomes rich.

Perhaps the institutional church is dead and perhaps it should die with dignity because it may not be relevant in today’s society,” commented Castle.

In conclusion Castle suggested that perhaps spending time to reform the church is dead and perhaps it should die with dignity because it may not be relevant in today’s society, commented Castle.

Rabbi Jeshaia Schnitzer, Jewish chaplain at Montclair State has said that “shared responsibility” is the point that “change is part of growth.”

He also stated that in the Catholic Church an attempt for renewal to make the institutional church more responsive to the real needs of the society has almost “taken on the proportions of a revolution.” This similarly has caused the more conservative action when Quietude seems to become more vocal in their reluctance to change.

Is there any relevance to society in organized religion according to today’s students? Davis suggested that in many cases students are unaware of the renewal in the Church and its direct relation to the attempt to have religion affect and remedy the ills of society. “Therefore,” he explained, “there are very few, if any, church with the church with the former traditional catechism teaching today.”

In realizing the role of religion in the society, Schnitzer suggested that as the changes do not necessarily withdraw to the chamber but mingled and taught among the people, so it is the role of today among the ministers of religion.

“At Montclair State we see what is typical of the trend during the formation of a community college students are immersed in technical training and are so absorbed in that organized religion takes on a minimal role in his life.”

Church’s Change Is Part of Growth

“Our liturgy is the Mass. It is a celebration of what we are as Christians in Christ. In the Mass, we have Christ giving of himself. These are the ideas that must be conveyed to the people. And we hope to convey these ideas better by means of the upcoming changes in the Mass,” said Father Robert Castle, chaplain for Montclair State.

In his office at Newman House, Rev. Thomas Davis, the Catholic chaplain at Montclair State College, spoke about the changes in the Mass that will affect the Catholic churches. The proposed time for activating these changes is Palm Sunday, April 3, 1970.

At his desk, surrounded by a few piles of books, Father Castle explained some of the changes that will soon be put into effect. He explained that the liturgy of the Church will change. He explained that the liturgy of the Church will change. He explained that the liturgy of the Church will change. He explained that the liturgy of the Church will change. He explained that the liturgy of the Church will change. He explained that the liturgy of the Church will change. He explained that the liturgy of the Church will change.

Davis also mentioned that other changes will take place in the working of the Glorita which is a song of praise and the Creed, a prayer containing the most important beliefs of the believers.

Talking about the reasons for these changes in the Catholic Church, Davis emphasized the point that “change is part of growing.” He said that these new changes would allow the “liturgy to become more meaningful to the Christian community.”

When asked how he felt people would react to the changes, Davis commented that “shared responsibility” is the point of the new changes. He explained that when people understand the part of the church in society hopefully they will see how it can affect meaningful change.

“Every man is a brother to every man” — a central theme of the Jewish religion based on biblical conviction. “We have yet to learn” according to Rabbi Jeshaia Schnitzer, Jewish chaplain at Montclair State.

When asked how he felt people would react to the changes, Davis explained that the people would react to the changes.

“In conclusion Castle suggested that perhaps spending time to reform the church is dead and perhaps it should die with dignity because it may not be relevant in today’s society.”

“Investment should be made in people, not buildings,” said Castle.

PSC Students Plan Strike

By Roberta Kuehl
News Editor

WAYNE - Paterson State College students plan to renew their currently suspended strike today if no administrative action concerning the firing of six members of the student personnel department takes place.

John Alferi Jr., SGA president, called for the strike Nov. 25 following the Board of Trustees' failure to grant student demands. The strike was suspended last Wednesday pending the outcome of the negotiations. However, a student observer remarked that if the demands were not met, there will be "one hell of a strike, much bigger than the one we had before."

The strike originally began over student demands, including the contract renewals of six members of the student personnel department; formation of a permanent committee - with student membership - to reorganize the student personnel department; power of the permanent board to recommend to the board of trustees action concerning employment and tenure status of all college personnel, and the composition of such a committee.

In a front-page editorial of the State Beacon, the Beacon Board of Control stated:

"We are sickened, saddened, and outraged by the action taken against Dr. Leo Altschul, school clinical psychologist and advisor to the school paper, The State Beacon. Mrs. Conti, resident hall nurse; Mrs. Jackie Gordon, resident hall director and member of the student grievance committee; Dr. Leslie Kenworthy, advisor to the class of '73 and coordinator of off-campus housing; Mr. Ted Tiffany, director of the student center, and Miss Ann Yusufian, advisor to the class of '70... It is strange that in this time of crisis on all college campuses, the only people in any position to deal with students are being let go."

President James Kege Olsen cited several reasons for firing the six personnel at a Nov. 21 meeting with concerned students. The administration has stated that it will negotiate, but will not guarantee rehiring the personnel or granting student demands for a committee.

At this point SGA is willing to compromise, although most of the student body is not and has changed its request to a demand. The administration has stated that it will negotiate, but will not guarantee rehiring the personnel or granting student demands for a committee.

Students Pleased With Better Food Service

By Michael Traylor
Staff Reporter

Mr. Dale Jefferson, director of dining services at MSC, was given a vote of confidence at a meeting of the food service committee held last Wednesday.

"The food service is improving, the services are improving and we are in general agreement that there has been improvement of the food services in the past few weeks," stated Joanne Hodde, SGA secretary and member of SGA food committee.

Jefferson has been to every meeting since the forming of the committee, Miss Hodde said, and she believes he is making a "sincere attempt" to improve conditions.

On Nov. 17, a letter and a petition was presented to MSC President Thomas H. Richardson listing unsatisfactory conditions. The conditions included: lack of chairs; shortage of tables; paper service in Freeman cafeteria; leaking ceiling tiles; and dirty floors in the kitchen of Life Hall.

A letter in reply from Richardson stated that it is "my understanding that action on nearly all of these matters has already been initiated but there will be some delay regarding the floor in the kitchen."

Tonight's Poetry Reading Features Original Works

By Lynn Cocci
Staff Reporter

A poetry reading of original works will be presented to students this evening at 8:30 p.m. The reading, sponsored by Quarterly (MSC's literary magazine), is to be presented in the fine arts theatre (L-135).

It will consist of works read by Mr. William Delli, assistant English professor, and six Montclair State students: Ron Micci, Jim Simons, Sue Guastelli, Bill Follenberg, Robert Monika, and Jackie Gollub.

According to Micci, the outgoing Quarterly editor, each of the seven will read aloud some of his or her own original poems during the program. In addition, chapbooks (small volumes of original writings by Montclair State students) will be given out to all who attend the reading.

The selection of poets for the reading was largely Micci's responsibility. Since they are all regularly published in Quarterly magazine, the poetry has come into contact with their writings often.

In addition to this, Delli has had several of his poems published off-campus. Micci was quick to point out, however, that any poet on campus "who has enthusiasm or interest in poetry" could have been involved in the poetry reading as it was open to all.

Micci feels that the poetry reading, now in its third year at the college, "has grown into a sort of tradition." He believes that poetry has "become a serious commodity over the last few years," and that it is "definitely flourishing on the campus and in the country." This seems to be true at least on the Montclair State campus, where student interest in the poetry reading has increased over the last two years.

According to Micci, invitations to the poetry reading have been sent out to the English faculty and other individuals. However he pointed out that anyone is welcome to attend the program, as Quarterly hopes for a large turnout of interested students.
Organized crime in New Jersey has reached alarming proportions. So much so, that according to U. S. Attorney Frederick Lacey, the mob is muscling into every legitimate enterprise in the state.

Lacey, speaking at Seton Hall University the other day, said that "organized crime is taking us over" and added that the buying off of public officials is a common thing in New Jersey.

The mob, Lacey declared, will not take over a community until it has bought its necessary protection from local municipal figures for a "few rotten dollars." "Records were recently subpoenaed in a certain county...".

With Deepest Sympathies

Glasboro and Trenton state colleges have announced their support of Paterson's boycott.

We also sympathize with Paterson State students, And, we realize that any expanding institution is bound to face reorganizational changes, just as MSC faces in the step from college to university status. But that change can be painful if, in the process, those administrators most respected by the students are the ones whose services are terminated.

What we recommend is a faculty evaluation board composed of students, administrators and tenured and non-tenured faculty. What's presently missing in rehiring procedures is the voice of the student.

We're hoping that Montclair State College administrators will take heed from PSC's experience and move to eliminate possible student confrontations before they begin. It can happen here.

and the chief of detectives committed suicide," Lacey cited.

And the federal attorney went on to say that in some cases the mob and county law officials are "so intertwined as to be indistinguishable."

We hope Gov.-elect William Cahill takes a close look into this horrifying situation. Organized crime is eating away at the governing institutions of New Jersey -- and it's time to clean them up.

And while we're talking about state affairs, we see that the Voting Age Coalition of Trenton is not giving up too easily. David R. DuPell, coalition president, is now after a...

WMCA OKs Admissions

But Warns of Tuition

NEW YORK -- Radio station WMCA warned recently that students attending City University may soon be asked to pay tuition.

WMCA radio's two-part editorial last month was addressed to the open admissions policy announced by CUNY on Nov. 12. In the first installment, the station's president, applauded the move to make higher education available to those students who have either an 80% high school average or are in the top half of their high school class.

"QUALITY SYSTEM"

Strass stated that the move was "designed to keep the present quality system and to give equal opportunity to students who come from poverty areas or inferior high schools."

Part-two of the editorial, which was aired Nov. 23 and 24, asked who would pay for the additional $35 million cost. The editorial notes that City University has announced plans to name a commission in order to study possible sources of income -- the federal government, private contributions, or student contributions, or combinations of these.

"This all sounds like a sneaky way of preparing the public for tuition charges -- or for a take-over of City University by the State University, which does charge students for admission."

The commission will also examine whether City University should be made a state or city institution.

Toward a Transformation

Power! Where is it at? For the last 50 years, the students of Montclair State College have built their education.

We started with a few hundred dollars. We began to develop student interest in educational organizations. Along with developing many new areas of learning and participation, we began to exert student opinion. Of course, the first step was to get together, talk, and make sure nobody dances too close together for fear of bruisedfeet.

The beat has changed. We are creating a university where schools and students are being thrown together. We ask yourself if we are just being thrown together. We ask yourself if we are just being thrown together. The question is whether the university is running on the theory and art of Bob Dylan also cut a few records.

Reedability formulas were unknown during the 19th-century heyday of the McGuffey readers. They have been devised in the last 25 years to determine whether written material is suitable for the audience at which it is aimed. Readability formulas consistently show that McGuffey readers contain stories too difficult for the grades in which they were used.

By the close of the 19th century, 122 million McGuffey readers had been sold, including Spanish and Japanese translations. They became basic school books for 37 states. To keep up with the demand, the original publisher licensed two other printing houses to turn them out.

Environmental Education Aids Pollution, Population Problems

By Louise Palmer

Staff Reporter

"Environmental education is more than just an outgrowth of conservation; it is the entire economically, psychologically and scientifically-oriented concept of man's relationship to his environment."

Dr. Edward J. Ambry, director of the New Jersey State Council for Environmental Education, believes environmental education is the only solution to the problems of increasing population and decreasing amounts of clean air, land and water.

Ambry has been on a leave of absence from the Montclair State faculty for two years to study the effects of man's tampering with and negligence towards nature. "Man's pollution of the earth is a world problem, which has already brought to the attention of the president of the United States in August 1969," explained Ambry.

The United Nations plans to study the issue in 1972.

Once an industry or town, through illegal methods of disposal of waste materials, has killed a particular species of animal, mentioned the expert, all life dependent on that species is also doomed.

Although this may not seem very serious in reference to the snowy white owl -- a one time inhabitant of the New Jersey meadowlands -- but an Alaskan oil pipeline to the U. S. east coast and the industrial pollutants and automotive carbon monoxide.

"Increasing population is disappearing. People living in urban areas today don't know what water tastes like," remarked Ambry. "Instead we quench our thirst -- with a chlorine solution, and our oxygen comes to us decked out in industrial pollutants and automotive carbon monoxide."

"Education of the public is the first step in repairing the damage done to man and nature by man," concluded Ambry. The New Jersey State Council for Environmental Education is determined to do this. A workshop on environmental education will be held Dec. 12-13. Dr. Harry Boettig, Panzer, remained and Dr. Lawrence Kenyon room C-306, can be contacted for details.

Indians Bring Season Turnabout

By Al Shipley

The Montclair State College football team, under the direction of first year coach Clary Anderson, has completed its first winning season since 1964. Anderson, who has arrived after a losing season while at Montclair, has guided the Indians to an 8-2 record, their best ever. The Indians were back on the winning track. The successful record of eight wins and two losses is a complete turnabout from last year's 2-7 record.

This season the Indians captured first place honors in the New Jersey State College Conference and second place in the Eastern Football Conference. Monteclairs often showed their expertise in the balloting for the Eastern Conference title.

Amateurism and Ineligibility in Sports

This week is the final part of the series on the Eastern Coast Athletic Conference amateurism and ineligibility in sports. The first six rulings have been discussed already. The final 10 points will now be evaluated.

(7) If you accept the promise of pay, in any form, currently or in the future, for participating in athletics. If you accept pay for something that is to occur in the future, your present amateur status should not be affected. If you get paid for playing while at a college, by the school itself, you should not be allowed to play because the college should not have the right to bind you to playing for them.

(8) If you have played ice hockey in a foreign country and failed to provide your director of athletics with a sworn ECAC affidavit on your amateur status. This ruling has both good and bad points, but due to the fact that it has several legal aspects, I was advised not to discuss this point in the article.

(9) If you participate in Canadian Senior “A” hockey or comparable American or foreign competition. This competition puts you out of amateur status.

(10) If you accept compensation for an athletic authority of your college a bribe offer or an approach by gamblers or their representatives. A moral obligation should make you participate in the respective sport, but your status as an amateur should not be jeopardized.

(11) If you accept compensation for instruction in physical education class in which you teach sports techniques.

(12) If you accept compensation not in comparison to the set rate for playing in a professional league, you should lose your amateur status. If, after thorough examination, no reason is found as to why the athlete used as alias, it should not affect his amateurism.

(13) If you fail to report to the athletic authorities of your college a bribe offer or an approach by gamblers or their representatives. A moral obligation should make you report such an approach, if you have enough consideration for your college and team. If a bribe goes through, your school will be suspended from participating in the respective sport, but your status as an amateur should not be jeopardized.

(14) If you accept compensation on a fee-for-service basis. The discussion of these two rulings by the conference is of the same nature as the points presented for ruling number two, accepting a gift or service performed. The receiving of an offer sponsored by a group not designated by the ECAC shouldn’t affect a player’s ability or status.

(15) If you accept an award other than designated under ECAC provisions. This ruling seems to have no real necessity in the rulings on amateurism. The receiving of an award sponsored by a group not designated by the ECAC shouldn’t affect a player’s ability or status.

(16) If you accept remuneration for an appearance on radio or television, it is related in any way to your athletic ability. This ruling can once again be seen discussed in article number two of the first part in this commentary.

Sports comments has now completed its three part evaluation of the ECAC amateurism-ineligibility rulings in college sports.
