ECC WILL LIMIT OPEN ADMISSIONS

NEWARK (Special) — Essex County College, scene of the recent student strike, will limit their September 1970 admissions to 1500 students. According to Edison G. Jackson, acting dean of student affairs, the cancellation of the opening of the Verona ECC annex will limit the number of incoming freshman.

"I think most of students accept this, since we were not able to move to Verona," said Jackson. The college planned to open an annex at the Verona sanitorium.

The college operates on an "open door" policy admitting all students who have received a high school diploma. Jackson stated that the college would work on a "first come, first served" basis.

PROTESTING SETON HALL STUDENTS MARCH WITH COLLECTION PLATES

SOUTH ORANGE (Special) — An estimated 300 students with collection plates in "hand marched up and down South Orange avenue here last Thursday obtaining money from passing motorists. The fund raising project was an attempt to protest the college's planned jump of $10 per credit, according to a student spokesman, will be thrown into the laps of school officials to help their "bankrupt college.

The move was spearheaded by a group calling themselves "concerned students" who are also supporting the boycott of the campus bookstore and snack bar because they claim their prices are too high.

SUPPORT MOUNTING FOR ARCHITECTURE SCHOOL

DOVER — Assemblyman W. Allen Cobb (R-Morris) feels that "there is a great demand" for the formation of an architect school in New Jersey. One of four supporters of a resolution for such a school, Cobb feels that since students must now go out of state for architectural education, it is only natural for New Jersey to do something immediately.

The facts favor such a move. Out of 864 New Jersey students of architecture, only seven of them are enrolled at Princeton's school of architecture. "States are beginning to ask why doesn't New Jersey do something about their own problems?" Cobb commented. While the measure has not yet reached the Assembly floor, it should receive "favorable treatment," Cobb said.

Trenton Talks Resume As Prof Strike Looms

State Groves for 'Common Ground'

TRENTON — Faculty and state representatives gathered here again today for another round of closed door wage negotiations.

"No one can say how long the negotiations will last," said Joseph P. O'Neill, administrative assistant to Ralph A. Dungan, chancellor of higher education.

A threatened strike by faculties of New Jersey's six state colleges was averted last week when the appointment of a mediator, Arnold Zack, was coupled with an agreement to continue negotiations until the discovery of a "mutually agreeable" proposal with the state.

Zack was named to mediate the negotiations by the state's Public Employes Relations Commission.

Following a meeting last Friday, state representatives gathered here again today for another round of closed door wage negotiations.

Jersey profs are seeking the following maximum salary boosts:

Full professor — from the present $21,558 to $28,026.
Assoc. professor — from the present $17,735 to $23,075.
Instructor — from the present $11,431 to $14,861.

Association of New Jersey College Faculties and the state Board of Higher Education, approximately 500 teachers heard members of the state board pledge "every effort shall be made to arrive at a mutually-acceptable agreement.

"Afterwards, those board members present promised to work for legislative acceptance of any final agreement.

The state is offering a 10% wage increase while the teachers are demanding a 25% increase.

According to Press Secretary Thomas Flynn, Gov. William T. Cahill has no plans to intervene in the dispute.

Earlier that day, approximately 1000 teachers marched to the State House carrying picket signs denouncing Dungan.

Howard Haas:
Encouragement

Encouragement from Dr. Howard L. Haas, professor of business, sent Montclair State teachers to Trenton on Fri. Feb. 20 to negotiate for new contracts. The rally gathered 800 to 900 New Jersey state college teachers demonstrating for wage increases and a reduced schedule load.

Haas, vice-president of the State Association of New Jersey State College Teachers, is a sailing enthusiast and owns a sailboat which he enjoys all summer long. At home in Maine during the summer months, Haas is on the faculty of the graduate school at the University of Maine.

This former president of the state association described the Trenton gathering in three main phases. An executive session with the state Board of Higher Education brought the rally to life Friday morning. This was followed by a general public gathering and finally a meeting of all assembled faculty, who were then briefed on negotiation proceedings.

The professor mentioned that he was "pleased with the reaction" of the faculty. He named no definite settlement because the outcome was "in the hands of the mediators."

An avid sports fan, Haas played college basketball, baseball and track. He "loves to read" and does so mainly in his specialty, business law, alto he also admitted a strong reading interest in the field of philosophy.

Wayne is the hometown of Haas and his family; he has three children, a daughter in Colorado, a son in Trenton and another daughter at home who will attend the University of Maine in September.

Haas, who received his BS at Trenton State College, completed his MA and PhD studies at Rutgers, New Brunswick. He has traveled through the U.S., including many visits to Colorado. Haas expressed "hope that we can settle the negotiations in a mutually agreeable way. I'm sure we can."

Clyde Huber: Back to the Classroom.

Clyde M. Huber: From MSTC to MSC

By Susan Dominski
Staff Reporter

Dramatic growth at Montclair State Teachers College is the outstanding memory of Dr. Clyde M. Huber, former dean of 13 years.

From his position at 1951 to 1964, when MSC was a one-dean institution, Huber reminisced: "While I was there, the number of majors, the size of the physical plant and the enrollment all expanded tremendously."

"I have memories of a good many people — it's hard to single out just one," he explained.

The former dean is an alumnus of Penn State University and received his MA and PhD at the University of Illinois. He is now a professor of mathematics at St. Peter's College, Jersey City, "because I wanted to get back in the classroom."

However, he and his wife, a former Montclair elementary school teacher, look forward to retiring in June.

The couple, who were life-long educators, anticipate moving from their temporary Jersey City residence to a summer home on Shelter Island, N.Y.

A boating-enthusiast who drives his own "runabout," Huber also enjoys golfing every day.

Annual alumni dinners and similar affairs draw him back to visit MSC regularly. Holding a variety of positions at Wilson Teachers College in Washington, D.C. over a period of 19 years, including chairman of the department of mathematics and business and acting president, Huber also served at the University of Illinois at Urbana and Rutgers University, New Brunswick.

The professor, who has numerous publications to his credit including original work in transactions of the American Mathematical Society, is an avid stamp collector. Also an active Rotarian and member of several honor societies such as Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, he has one son, a professor of speech at Monmouth College, and one grandson.

From his 13-year term as dean, Huber particularly recalled "beginning the building expansion program with the 1961 Bond issue."

Altoh he has "spent most summers on the island," the professor enjoys traveling and sings out his trip to the Pacific Northwest as a particularly "good time."

Former MSC president E. DeAlton Partridge remembered Huber as a source of stability "when the college had undergone a tremendous period of growth... making possible the smooth transition of Montclair State Teachers College to Montclair State College."

You Can't Always Get Facts
On a Fact-Finding Mission

As you might have noticed I've been off on a fact-finding mission for the past two days. It's not that the heck is a fact-finding mission?", you ask. Well, it's not that easy to explain. You see, it encompasses various things at various times. It all depends upon the time of day you're talking about.

I knew a newsman who went on a fact-finding mission and never lived to return. Rumor has it that he got married to one of those woman's liberation dammes. And now he's managing his wife's campaign for dog catcher in Pasai. I heard of a photographer who took off on a fact-finding mission with 10 cameras to some country in Latin America. He trashed the 10 cameras for the presidency of Bolivia but he was beheaded in six months when they ran out of film.

SHOPPING FOR POTHOLES

But I didn't do anything that exciting. Just last Monday I was out in Laramie, Wyoming where they manufacture potholes for route 46. Morgan Moonshine, president of Moonshine's Superior Pothole Company, told me that orders for giant-sized holes came in at a rate of 1000 a day. "Just the other day I got 50 orders from Clifton alone."

"Why would anyone want to buy potholes?" I asked.

"Well," said Moonshine, "orders come from two sources. One comes from the car manufacturers who want to speed up the built-in obsolescence in a given area. You know, car sales aren't doing too well in Clifton these days.

"Then," he admitted, "orders come from politicians. They figure they'll fill up the potholes around mid-March and the people will think they're doing something."

MINISCOOPS

Nevertheless, I came up with some beautiful facts and figures that are fascinating reading.

Triskaidekaphobia is the exaggerated fear of the number 13. Springing that on your English prof sometime.

These women's liberation dammes are at it again, according to The National Observer. Jone Fonda, who turns 19 on February 21 from Colorado State University, is a woman's liberation leader who's been headline-making. She says the academy has been integrated by color, race and creed, but not by sex. Hmm... didn't we do this a few years ago?

Now here's a girl that knows her place. Judith Teller, editor of the Freman, a Pennsylvania campus paper at the University of Pennsylvania says that men can contribute to direct a woman's liberation homework by starting a men's liberation movement. (Yea, free up these dammes.) Judy says woman should act like woman instead of acting like men.
"It's a very feminine feeling to have a man open the door for you. But I certainly have the strength to open the door myself. It all depends upon the situation."

I tip my hat, madame.

HAND-TROUBLE

Mort Comin, in his column "Oddly Enough" appearing in Jersey City's Jewish Standard tells the story of a little boy who cried in his mother's arms. "What's the matter, son?"

"I'm thirsty," the boy replied. "There's nobody to open the door for you."

"Terrible," Bartram looked doubtful. "Will that help?"

Meanwhile our trade balance is being handled by Dupan impactional enterprises. According to the Washington Newsletter, the U.S. is exporting nearly three times as many bibles and religion books than we are importing. But they're all going to Argentina.

State Will Quiz Jersey Ed Setup

By Celeste Fasone

TRENTON — Education in the state of New Jersey is now the subject of study by the state Department of Education. The program is studying the needs and priorities of all grades, with the exception of college levels.

Under the direction of Dr. Bernard Kaplan, director of state education, the project will call on approximately 50 representatives from each phase of the community - including educational leaders, labor, business and civic organizations.

"We are seeking an across-the-board, total picture for all citizens," stated Kaplan. "We are attempting to decide what directions the citizens of the state feel most important in terms of what the student should be headed," he added.

Kaplan is urging parents and students to take part in this "new venture in education" by participating in statewide, regional and local district meetings to suggest objectives and goals the study should be concerned with.

Tentative plans for seminars to begin in the summer will then decide how to put into effect the agreed-upon objectives, according to Kaplan.

One possible topic the study will be concerned with is leisure time in education, according to Kaplan.

The program, expected to be completed within the year, was proposed by the Title III State Advisory Council of New Jersey in an attempt to direct the state's educational policies towards the greatest needs of the state.

Kaplan stated that a campaign will soon be underway to inform and involve the public of all phases of the education policy through use of tv, radio and the press.

Plummer Out as Fine Arts Head

Dr. Gordon S. Plummer has resigned as fine arts department chairman. The position is currently being filled by acting department chairman Dr. Charles Martinez, professor of fine arts.

Plummer's resignation is effective as of the beginning of the present semester, stated MSC President Dr. Thomas H. Richardson. Plummer became department chairman last September after the retirement of Dr. Lillian A. Calcia, chairman since 1955.

Plummer is expected to remain in the fine arts department, serving as a faculty member, thru the 1970-71 academic year, said Richardson.

The fine arts department has been the scene of much recent controversy concerning the position of William McCrahn, ceramics expert and assistant professor of fine arts.

For the current semester, McCrahan was scheduled to teach two introductory art sections ("Introduction to Visual Arts 100"). While two ceramics sections, including an independent study section, were assigned to a non-cermics professor.

A committee is now being formed to choose a new permanent chairman. Among those named for the position are Dr. Calcia.
It was truly an experience to get thru the doors of the Lee Nordness Galleries (E. 75th street) that night. And here, in my own words, and that of others, is a record of that evening.

"Please pass thru . . .
... these are the beautiful people . . .
There were wall-to-wall people, spilling scotch and fur ruffled shirts over each other. Making our way thru the gallery in amebic fashion, we finally arrived at the scene of the "event of the year."

PLAIN BUBBLES
In order to get there, we had to wade (or was it wallow?) thru a noon-thru-midnight line in plastic air bubbles which burst if one stepped on them.

"Please take your shoes off . . .
... these are the beautiful people . . .

The art is not the greatest, but it is beauty in every sense of the word when one considers that it is an expression of love and fulfillment. Nothing can be considered a more fitting expression of peace and love to the world.

"Hello. Who are you?"
"There's a famous newswoman over there and I don't know who he is."

"Oh, he's radio— I only know you people . . .

NO ONE THERE
If people would only believe the genius of Lennon, the ridiculous atmosphere of alcohol and impressing small-talk that accompanied the opening would hardly have been necessary.

"It's a put-on; he's a put-on; if it wasn't Lennon, it wouldn't be here."

"... there's no one of importance here; certainly not John and Yoko."

And what of the so-called real people outside the door? The ones who were grunting at us as we entered.

They aren't so bad, it's just when they burst in here and threaten to bust my head in . . .

... they are just for trouble. They're just looking for Lennon . . .

"Leno! I leave the exhibition, what was purported to be the most thrilling evening in my life, and it's over once again.

WAR AND PEACE

"Please sir, take this money for peace."

"... so these are the beautiful people . . .

"... must be. Look at their ruffled shirts . . ."

"Seems to me I've heard all this before."

"The War isn't over, y'know."

Yes, I'm quite aware of that reality until the war has been won, there are no victories.

With Capitol Hill's attention focused on Vietnam, the Mideast and the nation's urban problems, Latin America will probably turn into another world hotspot. That's the conclusion of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who completed a series of tours for the Nixon Administration last summer.

America's focus on Latin America has lasted over 150 years—from the Monroe Doctrine thru the manifest destiny era and JFK's Alliance for Progress. The United States has been held up as the model nation, something with which to set the standard. But we've been resented for our affluence and the way we channel our money. It usually got into the wrong hands south of the border.

Rockefeller warns that political violence and economic and social convulsions are due for Latin America. Whose Rights?

While strikes are gripping several of the state’s major cities, there’s a sad paradox in the story of teacher’s rights.

Everybody knows that our system allows employees to strike against their employers in an attempt to receive higher wages, thus bettering their standards of living. Inflation spirals may jump in once a while, but that’s the price strikers pay.

Unfortunately there’s some gross misjudgments on the part of striking teachers in the state’s large cities.

Anybody Mention the Kids?

Strikes could rage for weeks, yet deprived students suffer the most. The strikes obviously hurt the ghetto children whose socio-economic upbringing keeps them low on the educational scale.

What’s needed here is some strike-prevention laws and state government influence. Gov. William T. Cahill admits that our state is in the midst of an educational crisis. Yet members of Cahill’s government apparently prefer to keep strikes under control.

Teaching has a vital public service to perform, yet only wages seem to be uppermost in the minds of the strikers. Anyone wonder what the kids think?

Change of Date

MSC’s Student Government Association has voted to set the date for their executive offices (president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary) at April 22. We feel this decision is in error.

Setting the date at late April causes several problems: Foremost, the newly-elected officers will have only four legislatures meetings scheduled between April 22 and the end of the school year. Among these four meetings is, of course, the infamous budget meeting, usually lasting hours on end and covering no topics other than the budget.

The late April date also places the elections right in the middle of those balmy spring days, when students spend their days lying on the lawns.

Also, the April 22 date leaves only four weeks in which to hold SGA legislative representative elections. The student body will have less than those four weeks to get to know the nominated legislators, often complete strangers, from their departments and schools, thus not providing sufficient time for a true evaluation of the candidates.

We see little reason behind the April 22 date, save perhaps obtaining the votes of the student teaching seniors. This problem could be remedied thru the use of absentee ballots mailed to the seniors’ homes.

We feel that a new date for the SGA executive elections is needed. A date in mid-March, for example, would allow ample time for the evaluation of all candidates and for the new officers to learn what’s in store for them.

Since You Asked Me

By Celeste Fasone
Editorial Assistant

Question: Do you believe college faculty have the right to strike for increased wages?

Michael McGuinness, fresh-man: They have the right to protest and demonstrate for their demands. The strikes are not to strike and boycott their classes because we are paying for an education and should get one.

Chuck Berry, junior, social science: Yes, I feel that anyone in this country should have the right to strike for personal gain and personal benefits.

Phil Dotts, fresh-man, business: I feel teachers are underpaid and do have the right to strike for more money. I intend to be a teacher and I am underpaid I’ll strike.

Alan Bogolazewicz, senior, LA.: Yes, any member of a society which is based on capital has the right to strike for a better position concerning capital.

Rich Kenny, sophomore, English: Yes, they have the right of any employee to strike for better wages or working conditions.

What About Those Kids in Newark?

A Simmering Soup Pot

(A twice-monthly report on Student Government Association affairs researched and compiled by the MONTCLARION.)

A presidential pullout and a resentful student body. All simmering in the SGA soup pot this week.

In the SGA executive board races, scheduled for two months from now, presidential hopeful Timothy Fanning has been forced to withdraw from the race. The reason? Not an incompetency to run or a lack of interest. Fanning got his little white slip last week, and it seems he doesn’t have the 2.5 overall cum necessary to take office.

It’s interesting. The man filling the SGA presidency doesn’t need a great knowledge of linear algebra or the works of Chaucer to do a good job. All he needs is common sense and a desire to do the best thing for the student body. But these courses in linear algebra and Chaucer are the only requirements for the Presidency. Many people feel that cumulative averages are no longer relevant to the SGA officerships. Certainly, Fanning would agree with them. Also would-be-secretary Sharon Wancho, who allegedly didn’t have the proper cum. And also veep-hopeful John Aneson, who allegedly doesn’t have the magic 2.5.

The Men of Psi Chi

Which leaves the race for prez wide open for the men of Psi Chi. Ken Traynor and Tom Benitz. The result? Very possibly a "marriage of the minds."combining Traynor’s liberalism as president and Benitz’ conservatism as veep. But Benitz, a presidential hopeful, has no need to worry. Even if Traynor decides to stay as prez for an extra year, Benitz can run for prez in his senior year, and Psi Chi will keep their positions of power for three years straight.

Traynor’s odds of winning (particularly after the elimination of Fanning) look pretty good. Altho there’s supposedly another horse at the starting gate. That man is Dennis Popeon, junior class president. Popeson’s still an unknown factor in the eyes of the public, but if the voters think that he’ll run the SGA the same way he’s run his class, it’ll be a Psi Chi victory at the polls.

And next to politics is, of course, money. The SGA scholarship, recently approved by SCA, will provide for the removal of several thousand dollars from the budget of last year’s senior class to be given to needy students.

The reason for the leftovers in the class of ‘69’s budget is that the class didn’t give a “class gift” upon graduation, as is tradition. Several sources state that the cause for not giving the gift is a reluctance on the part of many students to reach into their pocketbooks for another batch of bread.

They Just Can’t Afford It

The numerous fee hikes at MSC have, indeed, raised a great deal of resentment in the minds of the students. Burdened with hike after hike, the students are seemingly throwing aside such traditions as class gifts because they just can’t afford it.

And with the possibility looming of another tuition increase if the faculty gets the higher salaries they’re seeking, an additional fee for the parking garage under consideration, and the recent increase in the student union fee (Montclair State, by the way, is the only state college with this fee), the Board of Higher Education is currently investigating this, not only will MSC students stop paying for tradition — they may be priced right out of an education.
'GOOD GOD, I'M NEXT': an excited debutante of MSC awaits presentation at Cotillion, at the N.Y. Hilton.

Flea' Tonite

Montclair State College Players will present their third play of the season, George Feydeau's "A Flea In Her Ear" tonite at 8:30 p.m. in Memorial auditorium.

Directed by Clyde MacElroy, "A Flea In Her Ear" is a French bedroom farce which has been described as "the primeval situation comedy."

The play will be presented Feb. 25, 26, 27 and 28 at 8:30 p.m. There will be no matinee performance.

Players would like to remind their patrons of their prompt curtain policy. All latecomers will be seated at the discretion of the management.

"WHERE'S MY QUIFEP?" the maddened Spaniard attempts to kill his wife and her alleged lover. He is stopped by Bob Steiger, Joe Black and Ron Garrison. Diane Pisano, Donnaque Testa and Carol Ann Martin cringe fearfully.

"AH, QUE ESTUPIDO": Dennis Melillo apologizes profusely to his wife, played by Mary Jean Cullen. Frank Stancati and Carolee Palmiota look on.
MEET THE PROF: Educators predict that the future will be teaching machines.

PLAYERS PERFORM "FE LA" 'TONITE

"Flea in Her Ear," a French farce by Georges Feydeau, will be presented by the Montclair State College Players in the college's Memorial auditorium Feb. 25, 26, 27 and 28 at 8:30 p.m. Tickets at $1.50 for adults and 75c for students may be reserved by calling the box office, 746-9120. According to Dr. McElroy, director of the production, Feydeau, who wrote the play around the turn of the century, is considered one of the masters of farce. Players is using an Americanized version of the work by Barnett Shaw.

ELECT DOUCETTE PLAYERS PRESIDENT

Greg Doucette, junior speech major from Ridgewood, has been elected president of the Montclair State College Players, campus drama group, for the coming year. Doucette appeared in numerous Players' productions. During the present season he has filled leading roles in "Barefoot in the Park" and "Marat/Sade" and has a prominent part in the upcoming production "Flea in Her Ear."

Chosen to serve with the new president were: Betty Passafiume of Union, vice president; Thomas Hayes of Teaneck, treasurer; Jacqueline Isherwood of Dover, recording secretary; Jack Mageean of Haledon, corresponding secretary; and Michael Smanko of Rahway, historian.

APO ELECTS MYER AS PRESIDENT

Fred Myer, 20, a junior social science major from Lyndhurst, has been elected president of Alpha Phi Omega, the national service fraternity. Myer served as vice-president and secretary of the fraternity last year. In addition to serving as an officer in Alpha Phi Omega, Myer is treasurer of SEAM (Student Education Association at Montclair) and has worked with the Voting-Age Coalition.

OPEN HOUSE SET FOR MARCH 1

Spring rushing will begin with Inter-Sorority Council's spring open house on March 1, between the hours of 1-6 P.M., in Life Hall. "The purpose of ISC Open House is to give those female students interested in pledging a chance to meet the women of Greek organizations, and to become familiar with the many sororities on campus," said ISC President Marcia Zubanas.

In the weeks following open house, March 3 to March 16, each sorority will hold an informal tea. From April 6 to April 20 sorority "coffee hours" will be held. "By this time," Miss Zubanas said, "the interested girls will be deciding on what sorority they would like to pledge." The spring rushing period will run from April 29 to May 13.

DELTA ALPHA CHI ELECTS PRESIDENT

Delta Alpha Chi sorority at Montclair State College has elected for the same term of Middletown, a junior majoring in speech arts, as its president for the coming year.

Other officers are: Michaelyn Testa of Rota, Spain, a junior mathematics major, vice president; Michelle Demovic of Dunellen, also a junior mathematics major, treasurer; Pat Rice of Mount Olive, a sophomore French major, recording secretary.

Also elected were: Georgerine John of Bloomingdale, a sophomore Spanish major, pledge mistress; Jayne Morris of Union, a junior home economics major, alumnae secretary; and Gall Barr of Penasauken, a junior mathematics major, historian.

SOCIAL WELFARE IS NEW MAJOR AT NEWARK STATE

By Kathy Vargo

UNION — Social welfare is a new major offered this spring at Newark State College.

According to Dr. Nelly D. Stone, the program coordinator, the new major will be trained for immediate employment in social welfare jobs upon graduation with a BA in social welfare. The program has been approved by the State Board of Higher Education.

Dr. Stone commented that the curriculum for social welfare is quite different from that of the sociology department. She explained that social welfare is an "applied science" whereas sociology is more "academic."

Therefore, since the course stresses book-learning as well as method, Dr. Stone noted students will receive "field experience." Seniors will spend one day a week under supervision in a social agency. Other class periods will consist of seminars and discussions with an instructor, on his outside experiences, she added.

Dr. Stone concluded that other state colleges might have courses similar to those taken in a social welfare course of study, however, NSC is the first New Jersey state college that offers social services as a major with a complete curriculum.

"Montclair State College is now alive," says Kenneth Traynor, SGA president.

In "Creeping Awareness," a 12-page report he recently prepared, Traynor reflects the progress of the role of the SGA at MSC since 1929 as documented in minutes of its meetings.

The report was drawn up at the request of Mr. James Petegrove, MSC representative to the New Jersey Education Association, for inclusion in a proposed quarterly from the NJE.

"Traynor labels the 30s as the "law-making and structure-building" phase. The SGA was incorporated in 1934, one of the first such student organizations to do so. It began granting charters to the interns learning to be better teachers, with more understanding of the community aspects of education," stated Kenyon.

The interns, who were trained at a summer preservice program at Montclair State, fill a variety of roles in their jobs.

Joseph Baker, a physical education intern at East Side High School, Newark is working toward helping boys who have special physical disabilities.

Miss Carol Lynam, who is doing community work with the Essex County Probation Department, said, "I am gaining a great deal. I have gone out on home visits with two probation officers, and any negative feelings I may have had have disappeared."

Teaching basic Spanish at East Side High is Vitalis' approach to distributive education.

Two interns at West Kinney Junior High School are working at the Friends Neighborhood House, two are working with preschool children and one in the Fullfill Neighborhood House recreational program.

"Lack of complete cooperation by some school personnel makes the job a little discouraging," mentioned Kenneth Toler, a physical education intern at the Special Programs for Urban Teachers (SPURT). "I heard of teacher corps explained that it was an attempt to replace a regular teacher, but others do suffer interference with work and studies, disorientation, confusion or depression. Ironically, those most vulnerable to such reactions are people with unstable personalities or emotional difficulties — who are most likely to try the drug in the first place."

"At present, no one knows whether pot can cause cancer," he says. "What is certain is that the burning of many types of leaves produced carcinogenic."

EAST ORANGE - The Mid-Black Art Service, at 381 Central Ave., East Orange, is presenting to the public “We’re A Proud People,” an exhibition showcasing works by Alvin Fudge, a young black artist. Also shown are works from the Black Motion Art Workshop by its young students and works by other black artists. The showing commenced on Sun., Feb. 15 and will continue thru March. The exhibit is earthy, exciting and full of pulsing vitality.

This current exhibition has been selected to display black art to the public and to encourage young blacks in the arts. The show will provide funds toward a production by the Black Arts Film Project, ambitious project which will chronicle the history of blacks in the arts. The art service itself helps to create a sense of self-pride for black artists. It provides goals for young people, images that black youngsters can look up to as well as a focal point for the distribution of relevant information.

IMAGINATIVE

The show consists of works by Alvin Fudge, an art teacher in Newark, and his students in the Black Motion Art Workshop. The works of Florian Jenkins, founder and director of Black Motion, also make up a large portion of the show. Using an extremely imaginative color mixing technique, his portraits are superb and are among the finest works in the show. Other artists represented are James Greene, Michael and Jane Martino and Robert Knight.

Along with sketches and paintings the show also has sculptures created by Lou Rollo. Using twisted wire on an armature and base, he has created some highly-innovative and poignant human figures. They are twisted and seem torn, yet still reach out and up in hope.

According to Barbara Jenkins, business manager of Black Motion and wife of Florian Jenkins, the Mid-Black Art Service has been in existence for about five years, and this is the third show devoted to black art. The Black Motion Art Workshop is working to change the preconceptions of the white art world. “I don’t want to go back to Africa,” she said; “I want to stay right here and do my thing.”

“Mumsy...”a bizarre film, stars Vanessa Howard

NEW YORK - Take a delightful bizarre film about a “happy lady” who goes about finding new friends to play with and then ruthlessly murder. You might condemn such a tale as unbelievable, as did the Daily News. But you might, as this show proves, find the unexpected becomes tasteful and stately thru imaginative repetition of a well-known tale. The show will provide funds toward a production by the Black Arts Film Project, ambitious project which will chronicle the history of blacks in the arts.

The “criminals” are attracted to it, says sensuous “Mumsy, Nanny, Sonny and Girly,” a new film from Cinerama, is perhaps better described as an absurd black comedy, tracing the discovery of a young girl that she is, after all, human.

SPARKLING PERSONALITY

Vanessa Howard, sipping champagne in the St. Regis Hotel, showed herself to be very human also. Despite tags of “sexy” and “erotic” from many reviewers, she showed in her answers to the newsmen a sparkling personality.

“How do you feel knowing that the British Empire is dying?” she was asked. “Well, she replied in mock-cockney, “what do you think I’m doing here?”

But, despite her sense of humor, she was quick to turn a serious note when talking about her career. “I don’t like violence, really... and Girly shows that, I mean, I don’t like violence, really... I liked the way Barbara Gibson...”

“This anthology of 72 poets—mostly black, is an indictment of ‘Christian housewives’ and ‘The Quamigine of All that’s Good and True in America’ for the crime of stone blindness. It is the threat of ‘A quartet in Harlem/ rehearsing groovy sounds/ for a spectacular jazz blast/ right in your/ back yard.’

“The ereth of pride and beauty and a glorification of things that are now, as expressed by Barbara Gibson. After the quarrel I melted against his back, took his hand hard in mine, breathed...

SOMEDAY WE’LL BE DEAD and then oh baby we loved—‘In a Time of Revolution’ is a book to be read by blacks and whites—and taken to heart.

Robert Kuehl - The scene

Cameras, criminals connected with sexuality and murder

What can you say to a naked lady? Allen Funt brings his candid camera to such places as an office building and a country road and show us how people react when confronted by a nude woman and other examples of the much-publicized revolution in sex. The problem is to sort through the girl’s questions about finding the right floor range from avowed to hidden. avowed to hidden.

How does a poet write in a time of revolution, a time when life seems temporary and the reality of death is a constant thought? Now a poet must find beauty in temporal things, he must find the pulse of nature which covers beneath concrete bodies and asphalt souls.

This 21-year-old blonde Briton is definitely not just a sex symbol. It is the rebirth of pride and the recognition of the “criminals.”

Not another production about the generation gap! But Joe Triano’s “The Criminals” treats this overworked theme differently. Using only three characters, the son, played brutally yet humanly by Barry Primus, and his sisters, acted vivaciously by Penelope Allen and Linda Selman, this play examines the horrifying extreme end which children’s hatred of parental oppression can reach—murder of the “criminals.”

A Dog That Flies?

Interview with Trackstar Greg Weiss
Has Some Flying Remarks.

By Paul Kowalczyk
Staff Reporter

"He runs like a dog and thinks like a bird."

This was one of the many flying remarks that could be picked up during an attempt to conduct a half-civilized interview. This is extremely hard to do when your meeting place is a small 8 foot by 8 foot office, completely furnished with two files, a book case, a desk and nine Montclair State College runners. One of the runners, who occasionally spoke, was Greg Weiss.

At first, Weiss shyed away from being interviewed about his outstanding running ability. He was more interested in the fact that his intramural basketball "Head-Fly" had recently won a game in which he pumped in 37 of the team's 69 points.

After raving about his basketball team, Weiss began to comment and listen to others talk about his track talents. The general consensus of his fellow trackmen was summed up by track Coach George Horn when he mentioned, "Greg can run with the best of them. He'll be one helluva good half miler."

Weiss' present running specialty is the 600-yard run. Noting that under ideal conditions a good time for the run is between 1:11.1-1:12 (the world record for the 600-yard run is 1:08.7) Weiss has had a 1:12.8 performance this season and "can get his time down to at least in the 1:10's."

The 600-yard run is not Weiss' only outstanding event, however. Coming from a family of good runners -- his brother captained the Seton Hall track team -- Weiss ran "everything" while attending Butler High School, Butler. He concentrated on the half mile, pole vault and long jump. His best half mile time is 1:53.2, while in the long jump he has reached 23 ft.

Weiss entered MSC this fall as a freshman, after a year at Hargrave Military Academy, Chatham, Va. His main concern now is to get him a card and plans on using his winnings to pay for his schooling.

Weiss has also combined his track and field talents to win the junior decathlon in the New Jersey AAU meet. He will run in the National AAU Track and Field meet on Feb. 27 at Madison Square Garden, where he will be competing against such big names as Marty McGrady, world record holder in the 600-yard run, and Olympian Lee Evans.

When asked how he feels he stacks up in the big meet, Weiss commented that "I think they'll know I'm in the race. I may not win, but I'll give them a good race."

"You have not yet seen us at our best," declared gymnastics Coach Terry Orlick, as Montclair State College's powerful WRA gymnastics team captured its 10th victory over Queens College Saturday nite, 134.85-101.45, Saturday nite, MSC's WRA and MAC gymnastics teams overpowered Queens to capture the dual meet.

Sophomore Linda Monaco led the team with two firsts. Her routine on the uneven bars earned a 7.05 first place. She edged out teammate Margaret Welch for a first on the balance beam with a 6.6.

Miss Welch, the team's all-around, captured one first and three seconds during the meet. She completed a handspring in long horse competition to place first with a 6.1. Scores of 5.75, 6.46 and 5.15 gave Miss Welch seconds, in uneven bars, balance beam and free exercise.

Captain JoAnn Coleman received a 7.15 in free exercise and earned her only first of the meet. "It was the outstanding performance of the evening," declared Coach Gail Bakker.

"The improvement made since the first meet is tremendous," Mrs. Bakker stated. Mrs. Bakker, who has earned the Federation of International Gymnastics pin for an all-around average over 9 points, is coaching for the first time at MSC.

Four firsts swept Montclair State College's WRA gymnastics team past Queens College, 66.51-42.96. Wednesday nite, MSC's WRA and MAC gymnastics teams overpowered Queens to capture the dual meet.

Slash Hobart, 22-5

Team Work Boosts Fencers

The fencers of Montclair State College deployed Hobart College 22-5 on Saturday at Panzer gym. The loss brought Hobart's record to 4-5. While MSC is now at 10-1.

It was a team effort as the saber and foil squads compiled 8-1 records and the epee team earned a 6-3 mark.

Dave Bryan and Glenn MacKay led the saber team with 3 victories. Jordan Denner was 2-0 in the meet and Carl Davis lost his only bout after the match was decided.

The foil squad was sparked by Todd Boepple's 3-0 record. Roger Marchegiano and Frank Mustelli again performed well by posting 2-0 marks. Sub Mike Lang won his one bout but teammate Jim Robertson failed to win his bout.

Dale Rodgers, Bruce Kinter and Ken Zurich all had 2-1 slates in epee. Hobart's number one man, Bob Trerice, handed a defeat to each of MSC's epee team and should be a threat in the North Atlantic Championships next month.

To invite the swashbucklers (10-1) face St. John's University, also 10-1, in the toughest meet of the year. A win would definitely make MSC a strong contender for the national team championships.

It’s A 20-Victory Season for Indians

By Stephen Stalks
Staff Reporter

The Ineligible, Montclair State College’s intramural basketball team, posted its first victory of the season by defeating the APOs with an impressive score of 114-16. It was the first time the team had ever played together in organized basketball.

During the first half of the game, the Ineligible outshot their opponents and built up an overwhelming lead of 57-10. Johnny Vaughn, hitting on almost every occasion, was the game’s high scorer. Twenty-two of his 24 points came in the first half.

Captain Calvin Blue, whose hot hand tallied 21 points, combined with Curtis Dixon, who hit 15 points, on three consecutive drive and go patterns. The APOs Bill McIsely and Bob Jayne, both scoring only 6 points, could not fight off the Ineligible’s tenacious defense or stop their potent offense.

In the second half, the Ineligible completely dominated the offensive and defensive boards. At one time they hit 12 field goals in a row, crushing any hopes the APOs had of a comeback.

Tom Harrington and Daryl Stevens supplied some of the punch, scoring 18 and 16 points, respectively. The dynamic team consists of Montclair State students ineligible to play varsity ball because of low college boards and class rank.

The top point producer for Montclair State was the top-seeded 114-16. It was the first time the team had ever played together in organized basketball.

The APOs Bill McIsely and Bob Jayne, both scoring only 6 points, could not fight off the Ineligible’s tenacious defense or stop their potent offense.

There was a feeling in the NCAA College Division that the East Area is the weakest of the eight regions that send a representative to the national tournament. This is why Montclair State, which has never made it to the NCAA nationals, is at a disadvantage.
