Profs OK Contract Proposals

A minimum of resistance on the part of the Montclair State College faculty toward state contract proposals was the forecast of associate speech professor Karl Moll, Faculty Association president.

The contract, the first of its kind between the state and its employees, was scheduled to come up for approval at an emergency faculty meeting yesterday.

AREAS COVERED in the contract include salary and employment conditions, tenure, reappointment and promotion regulation. It establishes a 24-hour annual teaching load, and a specific grievance procedure.

The contract also mandates the state to collect dues from professional organization members on a voluntary basis for the following organizations: (Campus) Faculty Association; the Association of New Jersey State College Faculties, Inc.; the Association of New Jersey College and University Professors; and the National Society of Professors.

The chief advantage to this system, according to Moll, is that faculty members could pay their organization dues in a form of installment system spaced out during the year, instead of paying the fee in one lump sum, as is done presently. Moll feels that this system would encourage more faculty members to join the professional associations.

THE FIVE-STEP grievance procedure provision is the first system of registering grievances ever established on paper for faculty members. A faculty member with a grievance (in accordance with the contract's definition) can appeal his case to his department chairman or immediate supervisor.

If he receives no satisfaction, he can then go to his dean, or to the appropriate vice-president. If his complaint is still unresolved, he can then go to his dean, or to the appropriate vice-president. If his complaint is still unresolved, he can then go to his dean, or to the appropriate vice-president. If his complaint is still unresolved, he can then go to his dean, or to the appropriate vice-president. Finally, the grievant can take his case to the chancellor of higher education. If he is still unsatisfied with the handling of his grievance, he can, with representation of the Faculty Association, appeal to the Governor's Employee Relations Policy Council.

Although this is an innovative step and, according to Moll, a welcome one, he anticipates some discussion on the exact wording of the section.

TWO OTHER points of contention among faculty were expected to be the absence of a state commitment on summer school salaries and some points of the sabbatical leave program. The terms of the two-year contract have been under negotiation for approximately 20 months by a Faculty Association committee comprised of representatives from all state colleges.

In order for the contract to be officially accepted, it has to be agreed upon by a majority of the combined Faculty Association members from all of the state colleges. The contract is the same for each individual college.

MSC President Thomas H. Richardson has labeled Phase Two of the state master plan for higher education as an "unrealistic" and "self-contradicting" document that could possibly stifle the growth of New Jersey colleges.

The document, drawn up by Higher Education Chancellor Ralph Dungan, and his staff, is a seven-chapter working projection for state-run public colleges. It took 11 months to complete.

Under Phase Two, the higher education department plans to:

"Limit enrollments at the six state colleges to 7500 students each;"
"Strip away graduate programs at the state colleges and develop a "Graduate University of New Jersey";
"Develop an "Open College," where students can obtain accredited degrees without attending formal classes;"
"Establish an "interrelated group of campuses and colleges" under the arm of Rutgers/New Brunswick;
"Expand undergraduate and graduate spaces at Rutgers/Newark and Newark College of Engineering to about 45,000 students;
"Develop six other state colleges by 1985;" and
"aid in the development of educational television, evaluation techniques, and community college expansion.

THE DEVELOPMENT plan has met with harsh reaction from state college officials who are planning to air their views at Trenton hearings later next month. Many are claiming that higher education department officials did not consult with local college administrators before the document was released.

According to James Cottingham, administrative assistant to the MSC president, Montclair State — under its own projections — will have nearly 7500 undergraduate students on campus next year. If the Higher Education Department's projection is accepted as it stands, serious conflicts could develop between state policy and the college's plans.

"A college," points out President Richardson, "is like an organism with a natural growth. You just can't slap an artificial ceiling on the state colleges."

MEANWHILE, THE state colleges will continue along their present admissions policies unless an official directive is received from the state. Glassboro State College currently has 5300 undergraduate fulltime students. John Davies, GSC's admissions director, said that the college expects to attain 7500 students by 1975, in accordance with its own master plan. Essex County Community College has about 5200 students and anticipates a larger student body by September. By 1977, Newark State College, Union, expects to pass the 7500-student mark.

But the Montclair State president believes any clamp on admissions is serious problem. With the shifting population comes a greater demand for higher education, Richardson states.

"There has been a long-standing struggle for local autonomy and I think it is a necessary factor for colleges to determine their own needs."

If all goes according to the college's own space projections, MSC will have room for more than the 7500-student ceiling.

PHASE TWO is also aiming to strip away the state's degree-granting powers of the state colleges and consolidate their grad programs into a state-chartered organization called the "Graduate University of New Jersey. This would be run under by Rutgers University, Richardson sees this step as self-defeating. He pointed out that a new graduate school will require a new administrative setup. The state would rely on existing state college campuses to administer the grad programs and utilize existing state college profs. "What is the point of that?" asked Richardson.

THE PROJECTION, however, has some good points, say some college officials. The document calls for constant evaluation of its proposals and aims to accommodate as many students as possible in New Jersey higher education—either through the "open college" concept or two-year community colleges.

Along these lines, the master plan is also calling for massive occupational training programs at community colleges and asks for the implementation of educational television (MSC has been given the green light in this area and will operate an educational tv station by the end of the year).

Despite the good and bad points of Phase Two, college officials will be able to let their voice be heard at March's hearings. For higher education board members, it may be the first time qualified local opinion will be received.

The original charter of MOC stipulates that the organization and extension of its services to the entire college community, according to senior Joe Black, recently-elected Players president.

Despite SGA's rejection of certain restructuring proposals, Players hopes for expansion of its organization and extension of its services to the concerts has increased by 25-30% each semester for the past two years.

The proposals, now in an SGA committee, can not be acted upon by the legislature because they have been ruled unconstitutional.

The purpose of the proposals, according to a Players spokesman, is to provide better organization of funds and personnel to bring about "continuity" in the organization.

The major point of the proposal involves a revamping of Players' administration to include a production committee, a managing director, and business manager. The plans, however, were ruled unconstitutional by SGA on the grounds that they allowed for too much faculty control of the organization.

Black has begun work on the expansion of the organization by offering Players' services to "all groups on campus who produce shows, from P'ts to Folies to Montclair State. Players, he said has people who are aware of techniques and ideas for staging, box office activities and even seating arrangements."

ALL MSC undergraduates are eligible to join Players. "Players is a student organization and as many students as possible should benefit," added Black.

Activities Director

$2000 Stolen from Stepnowski's Rooms

By Cynthia Lepre
Staff Writer

More than $2000 was stolen from the apartment of Thomas Stepnowski, student activities director late Sunday night or early Monday morning after the Winter Weekend concert.

"The money was mostly door receipts from the concert," Stepnowski explained. "Usually we rely on advances sales, but there were an unusual number of tickets at the door."

STEPNOWSKI BROUGHT a cash box containing approximately $1700 to his apartment Sunday night at 11 p.m., hid the money and returned to the concert. Arriving back at 2:45 a.m., he discovered the living room window smashed, the floor sprinkled with glass and the kitchen ransacked.

"Every corner of every room had been searched," he surmised. The thief left with $500 from Winter Weekend receipts as well as the contents of the cashbox.

After notification of the theft, the campus security police stopped the remaining cars on campus to check identification.

The Little Falls Police Department assumed that the entry had been made from the roof over the Snack Bar. It appeared that the thief had climbed out from the Davella Mills room, after forcing that room's door open.

Stepnowski is thankful that no one was injured, but expressed regret "because we are working in a community atmosphere. It could have been someone I know."

As a result of the theft, the security system of the student life building is being reexamined. Plans call for the locks to be entirely changed.

Teen Suffrage--
One More Time

TRENTON—Jersey's 18-year-olds may soon get a second chance to vote in local elections.

State senators Richard J. Coffee (D-Mercer) and Fairleigh Dickinson (R-Bergen) are working to put the question of the 18-year-old vote on the ballot in the November 1971 elections.

THEY ARE also attempting to lower the state voter residency requirements from six months to 30 days and the county residency requirements from 40 to 30 days.

Coffee explained that the referendum, defeated in the 1968 elections, would not normally be resubmitted until three general elections had passed. But, by slightly varying the question's wording and adding the residency reform, it could be legally placed before the voters this November.

According to Coffee, the new bill has several advantages. First, the 18-year-old voter provision will allow young citizens to "take part in government at all levels, not just at the federal level."
Cable Goes 'Snap' and 18 Hours Are 'In the Black'

Pizza Parties, Not Tuesday's Classes, Held Thruout Campus

A snap in an underground cable kept MSC lightless, heaters and classless early this week, until a biblical command seemingly started the transformers in MSC's private powerhouse.

The underground cable was located between the Temporary Union Building (TUB) and College Hall. And it caused an 18-hour campuswide blackout, forcing cancellation of Tuesday’s classes.

Two males were sighted by dorm residents in Chapin Hall shortly after 7 p.m. Under instructions from MSC vice-president for business and finance Vincent Calabrese, dorms were locked up by security guards holding signs reading “No school today. Turn around and go home.”

Thousands of MSC students attempted to meet their early Tuesday morning classes were met with one door in each dorm remaining open. Several robberies occurred shortly afterwards.

Between 2:23 a.m., a Public Service spokesman said, 2671 customers in the MSC area were without electricity as workers tested circuits to determine the cause of the power failure. Classes were not to be held on Tuesday—that was the college administration’s decision on Tuesday morning, when, as the night progressed, the cause of the blackout remained unknown.

Announcements that MSC classes would be cancelled were made over WABC and other metropolitan radio stations.

But the announcements were not made early enough, it seems. Thousands of MSC students attempting to get their morning meal in the Life Hall cafeteria, were greeted by a new breakfast—cold sandwiches.

THE DECISION on also cancelling night classes was not made early that morning, and students calling the evening division were told to call back later—a decision had not yet been made. Later that day, at 2 p.m., no one was manning the desks at the evening division office or at the MSC switchboard to give the interested students an answer.

But, at 1:15 p.m., Maintenance Director Joseph McGinty shouted “Let there be light!” And there was. The fluorescent bulbs flickered and on all campus as the words were said and the switches were thrown.

However, pointed out Sal Morgan, electrical director, there is only a temporary patch on the snap between TUB and College Hall. Another six to eight-hour blackout will be necessary to repair it permanently. The electrical staff has suggested that the power be shut off during Easter vacation.

Girls’ Dorms Robbed In Monday’s Darkness

Some enterprising burglars made the best of an unfortunate situation Monday night when electrical power was temporarily out on the Montclair State campus.

Two males were sighted by dorm residents in Chapin Hall shortly after 11:30 p.m. Monday. Residents had started to notice things missing around 11 p.m. when most were returning from meetings and other activities.

Some light on the subject: MSCer shines a flashlight on his face during the blacked-out MSC-FDU basketball game. The dots of light in the background are reflections of the photographer’s strobelight in spectators’ glasses.

Power on also means lights out in the temporary union building (TUB) as the MSC-FDU basketball game begins. The dots of light are reflections of the photographer’s strobelight in spectators’ glasses.

Some enterprising burglars made the best of an unfortunate situation Monday night when electrical power was temporarily out on the Montclair State campus.

Two males were sighted by dorm residents in Chapin Hall shortly after 7 p.m. Under instructions from MSC vice-president for business and finance Vincent Calabrese, dorms were locked up by security around 10:30. Only one of the main doors in each dorm was left open until midnight to assure that all residents were in.

Mrs. Joan Bakum, Chapin Hall resident director, assisted by campus security, systematically checked and locked all possible exits. Despite precautions, the burglars escaped with watches, radios and money, mostly taken from the first and third floors.

Wallets were ‘left behind—after being emptied. Mrs. Jeanie Marshall, Russ Hall resident director reported no stolen items. The MSC security department, working most of the night alongside administrators, was able to lock up the building before any burglaries took place.

Freeman Hall was not as lucky. A color tv was spotted, uprooted from the lower lounge, hastily deposited near one of the 6:00 exits. Apparently the burglars tried to steal the tv, but found it too hefty.

No definite description of the two burglars was available.

“Now where did this come from?” A repairman works on the snapped cable between College Hall and TUB.

Montclair State College, it is said, is breaking the image of a state teacher's college and is moving toward a liberal arts institution with the hope of eventually gaining university status. This movement appears to be seriously impeded by the implementation of a report issued by the Hay Associates to the governor and state legislators.

Mrs. Blanche Haller, associate librarian at Sprague library, displayed disillusionment and at times anger in discussing the issue. "The Hay Associates never spoke to a librarian or any other 'faculty' member on this campus," she said. Haller's statements intoned a view that the Hay Associates were unqualified to judge this situation. This view is shared and supported by many members of the academic community — at MSC, at the state level, and by national library associations.

Dr. John R. Beard, head librarian at Sprague and chairman of the college and university section of the New Jersey Library Association (NJLA), wrote an article entitled "A Regressive Step in New Jersey Higher Education." In it he discusses the role of librarians in education and the repercussions that might be felt as a result of the Hay report.

Beard cites four major reasons why the NJLA's opposition to the Hay report was justified:

1. "Faculty status for librarians has been an important factor in attracting highly qualified and scholarly staff. The recruitment of superior staff would suffer if such rank were withheld."

2. "Loss of faculty status would tend to diminish the stature of the library, not only within the college community, but with all accrediting agencies — a severe problem during a period of expansion of programs, curricula, student body, etc. This diminished stature would reflect itself in a drastic lowering of staff morale.

3. "Faculty status has been an important factor in attracting highly qualified and scholarly staff. The recruitment of superior staff would suffer if such rank were withheld."

4. "Faculty status has been an important factor in attracting highly qualified and scholarly staff. The recruitment of superior staff would suffer if such rank were withheld."

For a long time New Jersey has maintained a low ranking in national higher education. Members of the academic community have predicted that this move will in no way enhance our chances for improvement. It has been said that the center of the college or university structure is the library. With the "core" of the structure disturbed, what then are the chances for the structure itself to make advances?"
Dungan’s Document:
A Lack of Insight

The slow-paced growth of higher education in New Jersey has largely been the result of constant battling and bickering between the state higher education board and local college administrators.

The state in some way or other has always sought to impose its will upon their state colleges. And quite justifiably. The colleges are creatures of the state, created and funded by them.

The problem, tho, is that the state of New Jersey oftimes seeks to impose its centralizing force upon the colleges without due respect to the officials who run them. After all, an administrator is well aware of the needs of his own institution.

Such is the case with Phase Two of the higher education master plan released last week by Chancellor Ralph Dungan’s office. It took 11 months to formulate the goals and definitions stated in Phase Two. The news contained in its pages is shocking to the administrators who weren’t consulted.

Phase Two is basically seeking to stifle the natural growth of its state colleges by limiting enrollments to 7500 students at each of the six state institutions. Montclair State College will have that many students in a couple of years at the present rate of growth, administrators are saying. And in view of the current population trends, the college will have an obligation to accept a higher proportion of applicants than ever before.

The document is self-contradictory in that graduates of two-year schools will be expected to be accepted at one of the six state institutions under Phase Two. Some rethinking will obviously be needed along these lines.

Dungan’s document is also aiming to strip away graduate degree programs at MSC, and the other state colleges. Master’s degree programs will be structured under a new setup called “The Graduate University of New Jersey.” The graduate university apparently has no specific purpose — just to strip away graduate degree powers from the colleges. The setup is foolish, because the Graduate University of New Jersey would still be utilizing the facilities at the state colleges. Money will be spent for a name only.

The document is obviously of little value and shows a remarkable lack of insight. If the state is willing to listen, many college administrators can provide the proper information which can gear education to the needs of the 70s.

Help for the 2-Year College

When it comes to governmental spending, channels must be opened wide enough to help community colleges in their current fiscal dilemma.

For some, the community college is the last hope for students seeking to gain a higher education. Too often, politicians pay the concept lip service without offering the proper support.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. (D-N.J.) is introducing legislation aimed at beefing up the colleges which are already operating on shaky financial ground. It also provides revenue directly to states who may want to chart a master plan for the two-year colleges.

Another Term for Tom?

Editor’s Note: Campus Whirl will appear weekly in the MONTCLAIRON. The column contains news of general interest researched and edited by the editorial staff. It looks as if SGA President Thomas Benitz has ambitions for an unprecedented second term. At least, that’s the view most members of the Legislature held after Benitz made his “State of the Campus” speech the other day.

Benitz was telling his audience that he is just getting into the “swing of things” and he hinted that a second term might set the SGA in the proper direction. Sources close to Benitz are not talking. It seems as if they’re contemplating the least.

Richard Oshin, sophomore music major with vested interests, has the greatest ax to grind with the Benitz administration. He’s president of the Music Organizations Commission (MOC).

Their budget was sliced to ribbons this past semester by SGA butchers. Upon completion of his office, Oshin finds himself in the back seat of many prominent student leaders who feel sorry for him when SGA decided to jump away. At this point, Oshin is claiming the SGA is antintellectual (citing his own budget cut), reactionary and bankrupt.

Meanwhile other aspirants for various political positions are beginning to creep out of the woodwork. There’s talk that Benitz’s right-hand man, Robert Watson, may be after the presidency. Watson, a 29-year-old cop-turned-student, has his foot in too many doors as it is, so it may only be talk. Lionel Geltman, sophomore, is after the position of treasurer (Gelt, in Yiddish, means money). He’ll try to beat Dawn Sova’s popularity.

Despite Reports, MSC Students are Educable

To the Editor:

While sitting recently in Dr. Ronald F. Haas' education class, I was told by this department chair that if the class he was teaching were at Harvard or Amherst, he could teach on the assumption that the students were more self-motivated and more intelligent than those of Montclair State. His latter was presumably determined thru the results of the college-board scores on which he seemed to place so much emphasis.

I believe that this kind of condescending attitude on the part of some of our professors is serious enough to warrant challenge. I admit that there exists in every school those students who are interested more in social activities than in intellectual matters, but that is not the point. The point is that when a professor, and a department chair at that, honestly believes that the student body of this school is academically inferior to the money-oriented Ivy league schools, he should attempt to rectify the situation, either by leaving this school to teach in one that would make better use of his talents, or by trying to bring MSC up to the standards which he obviously feels we lack.

For my part, I have confidence that even Montclair State students are educable, and that perhaps someday we can be sufficiently intellectually independent. I write this in the dark world without the light of these revered professors to guide us.

No Other Solution

To the Editor:

Since early fall, numerous complaints have been lodged concerning illegally-parked cars blocking exit routes from the campus. The ticketing of these vehicles seems to be no way to alleviate the problem.

Most of the obstructions occur in unmarked lots, while more than enough parking spaces remain unused. On Wed., Feb. 3, I had to tow away about 12 cars. I am left with no alternative but to continue the towing policy now in operation, a practice I find distasteful but necessary.

Feb. 7--a Day in Infamy

By Maurice J. Moran Jr.
Staff Writer

Sun., Feb. 7, 1971 is a day that will live in infamy. The time was 7:32 p.m. and the television viewers of "Wild Kingdom" watched the luxurious coral reef of Australia turn to "snow." With tv gone dead, the terror struck.

"Daddy," the mother said to her sleepy-eyed husband, jolted out of dreamland by the blaring silence of the 26-inch screen. "What do we do now?"

"I wasn't talking that way," Bill hollered. "I was asking a simple question."

"Are you yelling at your father?"

"Kathy, turn that down!"

"Katherine, are you deaf?"

"Now listen, young man . . . Suddenly there was a crackle from the living room. A zap. And now a voice announced, "We are able to resume our regular broadcasting schedule."

"Thank God," Dad said, settling in his easy chair, "and just in time for the end of Bonanza."

Who's More Honest?

"The advertising fraternity is getting a hard time these days from politicians who question its honesty. One would think, sometimes, that none but politicians had the consumers' interest at heart."

Making a Decision

In administration, one is frequently questioned about how decisions are made.

"Who decided that?" is often asked, both by faculty and students. These are reasonable questions and usually behind the questions are legitimate anxieties.

Is the direction of the college planned by a small group of administrators who hatch their schemes and plots behind closed doors? In the past, I have written about the extensive system of student-faculty involvement in decision-making at the college, but I would like to illustrate the point again by citing the work of two committees.

LONG HOURS AT WORK

The Calendar Revision Committee has met every other week (sometimes more frequently) since Nov. 5. They convened at 8 a.m. Since early fall, numerous complaints have been lodged concerning illegally-parked cars blocking exit routes from the campus. The ticketing of these vehicles seems to be no way to alleviate the problem.

Most of the obstructions occur in unmarked lots, while more than enough parking spaces remain unused. On Wed., Feb. 3, I had to tow away about 12 cars. I am left with no alternative but to continue the towing policy now in operation, a practice I find distasteful but necessary.

In Times Like These . . .

To the Editor:

In these times of inflation, why doesn't the traffic office start a new trend and lower parking fines from $5 to $3? Parking facilities are limited to such an extent that waiting a mile to classes from where you are parked is a treat. I'd rather park illegally on Valley road and risk a fine from Clifton. It's cheaper.

Producing a movie of a Shakespearean play is sometimes a risky business. Directors tend to either stick so closely to the legitimate theater concept that the finished movie looks like a photographed stage production or they get so carried away by the possibilities of the film medium that the real value of the play is totally lost amid a welter of realism.

American International Pictures' release "Julius Caesar" avoids both these pitfalls. The director, Stuart Birge, has retained all the original language and imagination of Shakespeare's play while adding the visual possibilities of the motion picture. The bard's words take on new meaning as you see the action unfold on the screen.

The movie is graced with an outstanding cast. Sir John Gielgud is excellent as Caesar, aihough perhaps a little old and fragile looking for the part now. Charlton Heston portrays Mark Antony with great depth and understanding. Just after Caesar is assassinated, Mark Antony returns to the senate chamber to convince the conspirators that he should be allowed to speak at Caesar's funeral. Heston is magnificently grim as he shakes the bloody hand of each conspirator. His funeral oration is truly magnificent.

The intent of Shakespeare's words is made clearer than ever before. Rounding out the cast are Richard Johnson, Robert Vaughn, Joseph Campanella and Diana Rigg.

"Is Well Done"

All is well, the movie is well done. It is paced well and the suspense builds swiftly to the climax of the funeral oration. The original which follows are somewhat anticlimatic even in the stage play. The director uses his medium well in fleshing out the final battle scene and in replacing the sparse dialogue provided by Shakespeare.

The motion is British and perhaps this explains the high caliber of the film. They always seem to have a way with their own.

Words and images spell success

"David Steinberg, Disguised as a Normal Person." is not a normal album. Neither is Steinberg's comedy near normal. But that doesn't make it bad.

As evidenced in this, his most recent release from Elektra Records, Steinberg's brand of humor is highly individualistic. He is assured, he has punchlines - but they're of a wildly intelligent nature, and his routines aren't as strongly structured as those of most comics. He rambles self-degradingly about his life, his girls, his education, his girls, the Bible and, occasionally, his girls. Meandering melodically with his Maxwell Smart-ish voice, Steinberg describes some of his dates, "She was a Vogue magazine type - cheekbones two feet above her head." He dreams of going on the "Dating Game." He owns a red Volkswagen. He feels guilty about masturbation, "because I'm so bad at it."" NEVER A NORMAL PERSON This kid, no matter what he does, could never be mistaken for a "normal person." Steinberg uses his crazy inventiveness in a telephone conversation sketch in which a fan (sounding strangely like JoAnne Worley) calls up to say she's enjoying the album. "Where are you?" asks Steinberg. "About halfway thru the first side," she replies.

Another really fine piece is "The Coast." Yes, Steinberg talks about that great American dreamland - the coast. "The coast is to the William Morris Agency what Martin Buber is to the rest of the world." And then he meets it - the coast - in person. Uh, huh.

One of those responsible for the cancellation of "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" a few TV seasons back, Steinberg is a talented young satirist who has the sense to steer clear of the topical material that, because it's handled by too many comics, is often handled poorly. But he does share with the audience one astute observation, "President Nixon has a face that looks like a foot." Steinberg is an extremely talented guy who can superbly relate to his urbane, intellectual audience. No wonder he cancelled his appearance at MSC last weekend.

The Projectionist

Thinking back to the 60s

One of the major contributions given to the world of filmmaking by proponents of the "New Wave" is the unquestionable belief that film is the director's medium. This truism is accepted throughout Europe and can be seen in the films of Godard, Truffaut, Bergman and Fellini. Finally an American director has caught on.

Paul Mazursky, who made his mark at the boxoffice with "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice," has gone on to better things with his latest film, M-G-M's "Alex in Wonderland.

Donald Sutherland, something of a wonder himself, portrays a young director in search of a project for his latest film, M-G-M's "Alex in Wonderland.

"The Projectionist," then, can be said to be a kind of "Walter Mitty Meets the Movies." Walter Mitty never had it so good.

Chuck Ward.

Directing, American style

Mazursky's talents go beyond the wonderland of Hollywood, and in (one of the finest moments of the film), the Vietnam war taking place on the corner of Hollywood and Vine.

POLITELY EGOTISTICAL

Mazursky, in his politely egotistical way, has lifted whole stories from another film about a director's problems in the world of filmmaking. But it is good clean honest fun to see pieces of Federico Fellini's "8½" redone in glorious technicolor. The culmination of all of this copycatting is a remarkable encounter where Alex actually meets the great director.

"The Projectionist," then, can be said to be a kind of "Walter Mitty Meets the Movies." Walter Mitty never had it so good.
Good news for those anxiously awaiting completion of MSC's building projects—constructions now underway are soon to be completed.

But more are on the way, ACCORDING to facilities director Jerry Quinn, Bohn Hall is two-thirds completed, and will be finished by the end of May. The students are also urged to set up furniture and add finishing touches. Bohn Hall will open its doors to 600 residents at the start of the fall semester.

The Student Union Building, 29% completed, has been redesigned to "better serve the needs of the students," Quinn said. At the request of a student committee, a bowling alley planned for the building will be replaced by an ice-cream parlor and an arcade. The interest in the alleys was not as great as that for the arcades, Quinn explained.

Completion of the union is scheduled for November 1971. Campus organizations will move into the structure at the start of the spring semester, 1972.

Construction crews have faced several problems during the past months, Quinn said. Heat had to be installed in Bohn Hall to protect the workers there from freezing temperatures.

ALSO, THE installation of the utility lines near Stone Hall have caused parking problems in the lot between the recreation lodge and Stone Hall. Quinn remarked that requests to eliminate use of the lot had not been fulfilled as well as expected, but he feels that the situation there has improved, "thanks to students who now park their cars elsewhere."

In the future, MSC will remain the site of several construction projects, endowed by state grants, loans and bond issues. The new math-science building, scheduled for completion in September 1972, will be constructed on the site of the existing fine arts department.

Innovative

CLUB's Cinema
Plans Newsflicks

With the aim of increasing student interest in campus film programs, the Cinema committee of CLUB is planning several innovations in its programming, according to Jerry King, a member of the committee.

One of Cinema's greatest problems, said King, has been getting students to return to the campus at night for the shows. A plan to generate more interest is the production of short newswires based on the life and events around the campus: the concerts, speakers, and students. "The student will then become the actors, and we hope they'll come to see themselves, and consequently, the rest of the films," said King.

HE STATED that the films would probably be used on Saturday and Sunday nights, in accordance with plans made by the committee, which includes chairman Kathy Kopecky, Michael Quick, and King. Tentative feature plans include such films as "M*A*S*H," and "Joe." Possibilities also include film festivals featuring "the films of Paul Newman, Laurel and Hardy, or whatever the students want," King said.

He added that program advertising would also be improved. Plans call for posters to be placed around the campus weeks before the films are to appear. The advertising campaign will also venture off campus to include the community's high school students and townpeople.

KING EXPLAINED that Cinema operates on a fixed budget each semester. "We try to charge as low an admission fee as possible," he said. He added that Cinema is a non-profit organization, and that any extra funds go back into the program.

During Tuesday night's power blackout, Cinema (who had planned to show "Boys in the Band") quickly planned to show three films to dorm students: "Pit and the Pendulum," "A Big Band for the Little Lady," and "I Spy."

Quinn: Bohn's Almost Done.

Sam and Sal Covello may not be familiar names on campus, but to the commuters who have had their cars towed they're well known as the father-and-son team from Sam's Garage at 118 Watchung Ave., Montclair, who tow and store cars from MSC.

When notified by the college, the Covellos, owners of the firm, move the blocking other vehicles and store them at their garage until the driver is able to pay cash for the return of his car.

Sal, the younger Covello, explained that they had been asked by the college to tow cars last September and were required to take out an insurance policy in order to work on state property. "You see, it's not all profit for us," he said. "We have a business to run and we're under contract to tow cars, but some people sure do give us a hard time."

"HOW ABOUT that lady the other night?" laughed his father, Sam. "The one who didn't sound too much like a lady."

"This lady refused to pay the fine, Sam," the security chief and parking director, Joseph Daly, MSC, explained that they had been required to take out an insurance policy in order to work on state property. "You see, it's not all profit for us," he said. "We have a business to run and we're under contract to tow cars, but some people sure do give us a hard time."

"That day," said Daly, "we could have towed 200 cars because they were blocking other cars. The one solution to the parking problem is regularly ignored by MSC students, Daly said. "We have more than enough parking spaces not being used in the quarry area and the lower lots. If students would utilize these spaces, a lot of time, money and aggravation would be avoided."

The Covellos have towed 29 cars from campus this year. They set the fines according to the size of the car and will return the car only upon payment — in cash.

The area between Mallory Hall and the fine arts building accommodates 300-400 cars on a normal MSC weekday. But it's not a parking lot.

"That area is not an official parking area, but a 'road closed area,'" said Joseph Daly, MSC security chief and parking director. And students who park in the unlined area are not fined for blocking other cars in — they're towed away.

"How about that lady the other night?" laughed his father, Sam. "The one who didn't sound too much like a lady."

"Oh yeah," smiled his son. "This lady refused to pay the fine, let off a string of curses, and then jumped into her car and backed into a truck. She didn't get too far," Daly remarked. 12 cars were towed because they were blocking roadways and other cars. "Several students had part-time jobs to get to, but were blocked in — so we had to tow."

But eight of the 12 cars that were towed did not have decals and two belonged to visitors. "That one thing we have to worry about," stated Daly. "We don't want to create bad public relations, and these two cars were mistakenly towed."

BLOCKING-IN by visitors seems a sore point to many owners of obstructed cars. "Just because they're visitors," said an angry sophomore who came to the MONTCLARION to use the phone when she was blocked in. "Why should they get away with blocking students from leaving?"

"That day," said Daly, "we could have towed 200 cars because they were blocking other cars. The one solution to the parking problem is regularly ignored by MSC students, Daly said. "We have more than enough parking spaces not being used in the quarry area and the lower lots. If students would utilize these spaces, a lot of time, money and aggravation would be avoided."

If you have two years of college remaining, you could find yourself earning an Air Force commission while you learn, through the Air Force ROTC two-year program. Along with college credits and a commission, you’ll receive $50 each month as a student. And upon graduation, that management position promised will be waiting for you.

So look ahead and let your college years pay off for you with a managerial position in the U.S. Air Force. Just send in this coupon or write to USAF Military Personnel Center, Dept. A, Randolph AFB, Texas 78148, and get your postgraduate career off the ground.

Acquisitions of profiteering by the bookstore are not accurate, said Mrs. Faber. “The little profit that we do make toward postage” for returning books to publishers and payment for book packaging. “Most of the bookstore’s profits come from selling novelty items, rather than textbooks,” she explained.

RETURNING BOOKS to publishers also causes problems. One policy of the bookstore, said Mrs. Faber, is to return unsold texts to publishers early in the semester. Thus, texts assigned for use toward the end of the semester might be unavailable in the closing weeks.

According to associate English professor Dr. Douglas M. Schwegel, a lack of space is probably responsible for the need to return books to publishers. He suggests a larger bookstore in the new student union building would allow MSC to keep in stock “books that all college bookstores should have.”

Indian String
Snapped at 6

Working on 6-game winning streak, Montclair State College gymnasiums dropped a closely contested meet to Cortland State, 117.15-116.

The Indians suffered considerably as they performed without the services of Bill Balogh, their top all-around man. He suffered a foot injury Friday night, when he fell from the high bar.

EARLIER IN the week, MSC destroyed Glassboro State, 101-24-49.2. MSC was paced by the balanced scoring of all its members, as they placed 1-2-3 in all events except the high bar.

Later in the week, MSC trounced Oneonta State, 123.85-108.15. All-around Bill Balogh led the Indian attack with 3 place finishes, 2 seconds, and a third.

MSC started out slowly against Cortland State in the floor exercises, but recovered with Rich Kroon coming in second with a score of 7.55. Placing forth and sixth, respectively, were Ed Kuhn with a 7.45 and John Motler with a 5.15. In THE side horse, MSC regained lost ground with a win of 7.15.

Miss Relling led the way with a 7.15. Kuhn placed third with a 5.80. But MSC finished fourth with a 4.96.

In ring competition, Sampson and Tom Fiorentino tied for first with a score of 7.55. Ed Kuhn placed fourth with a 6.7.

In a closely contested long horse event, Koon finished first with a game high of 9.15. Then the final shutdown was done on the assumption that the game was cancelled and the gym in process of evacuation.

The Women's Recreation Association swim team began the second half of their schedule with a loss against powerful Monmouth College, 63-32. The defeat, their first of the year, came after December victories against Lehman College, Newark State and Queens College.

MSC mermaids scored only one first and one second in the meet. Nancy Reiling scored only one first and one second. Debbie Sprecher scored two seconds, and two thirds. Steve Alexies, a member of the swimming team, scored a total of 29 points.

FOUR team records were made by the Indians in the Monmouth meet. Besides Miss Reiling and Miss Montgomery, who set records with their firsts and second, Debbie Sprecher holds the top spot in the 100-yard breaststroke with a 1:23.7.

QUEENS, N.Y. - Montclair State College's freshman sprinters ran rings around other competition in the Queens Relay Carnival last Saturday. MSC's little Indians took 3 out of 4 events in the sprint medley category.

From a 3-0 lead, the Indians went on to win the distance medley for MSC with Schappert, Greg Weiss, Vic Stiller, and Bill Winnicki winning with a time of 10:32.5.

The freshmen teamed with the JV to win the 2-mile relay. With Weiss, Winnicki, Tom Scanlon and Jim Hemmel winning a gold medal in the mile with a time of 4:20.8.

The varsity team of Steve Schappert, Greg Weiss, Vic Mzzone and Kevin McGrath won the distance medley for MSC with a time of 10:32.5.

The Women's Recreation Association basketball team overwhelmed Hunter College's quintet, 75-23, for their second win of the season.

In A GAME that was no contest for MSC, three players scored in double figures. Mary Hayek was high scorer for the Indians with 7 buckets and two free throws for a total of 16 points.

Danise Wood and Belinda Venancio both had 6 buckets and a foul shot, tallying 13 points each.
Moss Returns

By Brendan Suhr
Sports Writer
Montclair State College's basketball team knew it was going to be in for a tough time hosting the Knights of Fairleigh Dickinson University last Monday, but let's not term what took place a "home court advantage."

The NCAA campus field victim to a power failure which supposedly affected the two Bergen counties. But MSC appeared to be the only place where everything was dark with the possible exception of the gym. The LIGHTS over each basket were out, but lighting over the center of the court was in working condition. It would have been impossible for a varsity game to take place under these conditions.

Furthermore, chances of rescheduled contest looked even dimmer.

So MSC did everything in its power (no pun intended) to get the lights operating.

The partial blackout occurred with approximately three minutes remaining in the first half of the freshman game, and the respective coaches agreed to continue the razzle-dazzle scoreboard was not functioning.

THE RESULT was an embarrassing 25-point MSC defeat.

Meanwhile, Montclair officials looked into what was hoped to be local trouble stemming from the gym alone. Athletic Director Bill Dioguardi was able to contact two Public Service employees who thought that they had detected the problem. No dice. They did the best they could to see to it that darkness befall the 2000 or more fans.

When all the lights were shut off for a two-minute period, they were never to go back on. A transformer blew when they attempted to get the lights back on and the fans sat in pitch black surroundings for some 15 minutes before members of the police and fire department entered the scene with their emergency lighting equipment.

THE PREDICAMENT resulted in the cancellation of evening classes while the same held true for undergraduate classes the following day. As of press time, no date had been announced concerning the rescheduling of the tilt, if there is to be one.

Other MSC cage action during the course of the week was a bit more peaceful. The Indians took a pair of encounters to lift their mark to 12-2.

The first match was an exciting 83-79 win over Monmouth. Balance was the key to this MSC triumph as the entire starting five was in double figures.

PHIL BACCARELLA led the way with 8 field goals and 3 foul shots for 19 points. Roundouting off the high scorers were Captain Harry James with 18; Joe Lyons at 15; Bruce Davis, 14; and Tod McDougald, 13.

The contest was decided in the final minute of play. With 56 seconds showing on the clock and MSC up by a point, James was deliberately fouled. He converted his free throw to make it 79-77.

A misfired free throw by Monmouth's Pete Cusick gave the Indians possession and McDougald cashed in with a jump shot to account for the 4-point margin.

MSC THEN came back on Saturday in front of its home crowd to destroy Yeshiva, 85-42, in what is commonly referred to as a "laugher."

Coach Ollie Gelston was able to rest his regulars before the half came to a close and everyone saw action. The Indian defense did not allow a field goal for a 13-minute span in the first half, during which time the offense poured in 41 straight to open the count to 28-6.

McDougald took scoring honors with 15 points, while Willie Moss came off the bench to sink 13.

MSC’s Knight Game

The patented cry of "Moss is boss," will again ring thru Panzer gym, as Willie Moss returns to action for the high-flying Montclair State College basketball team. He was ineligible for the fall semester.

Moss, a 6'4", 210-lb. senior from Newark Central high school, was a valuable member of the last two NCAA tournament teams.

WILLIE WAS declared ineligible for one semester by the NCAA rules committee for violating its bylaws. The violation occurred when he played in a game for the widow of Drayton Bembry, a former high school teammate.

Moss violated the NCAA’s eligibility rule on four counts; the game was posted in advance, it was officiated, the final score was posted and recorded and the participating team was uniformed.

Ollie Gelston, upon hearing of the occurrence, notified the NCAA so that the team would not be jeopardized.

THE USUAL penalty for violating a rule is complete ineligibility for the entire season, but because of the nature of the game and the innocence in which the violation was committed, a lesser penalty was handed down.

Harry James, captain of the Big Red Machine, said, "Willie will give us a great deal of help up front, especially with his rebounding and defense. I think that Willie’s greatest asset for us down the stretch this season will be his experience." He averaged 8.2 points per game and grabbed 250 rebounds for the season.

THE PREDICAMENT resulted in the cancellation of evening classes while the same held true for undergraduate classes the following day. As of press time, no date had been announced concerning the rescheduling of the tilt, if there is to be one.

Other MSC cage action during the course of the week was a bit more peaceful. The Indians took a pair of encounters to lift their mark to 12-2.

The first match was an exciting 83-79 win over Monmouth. Balance was the key to this MSC triumph as the entire starting five was in double figures.

PHIL BACCARELLA led the way with 8 field goals and 3 foul shots for 19 points. Roundouting off the high scorers were Captain Harry James with 18; Joe Lyons at 15; Bruce Davis, 14; and Tod McDougald, 13.

The contest was decided in the final minute of play. With 56 seconds showing on the clock and MSC up by a point, James was deliberately fouled. He converted his free throw to make it 79-77.

A misfired free throw by Monmouth’s Pete Cusick gave the Indians possession and McDougald cashed in with a jump shot to account for the 4-point margin.

MSC THEN came back on Saturday in front of its home crowd to destroy Yeshiva, 85-42, in what is commonly referred to as a “laugher.”

Coach Ollie Gelston was able to rest his regulars before the half came to a close and everyone saw action. The Indian defense did not allow a field goal for a 13-minute span in the first half, during which time the offense poured in 41 straight to open the count to 28-6.

McDougald took scoring honors with 15 points, while Willie Moss came off the bench to sink 13.
