Voting on the All-College Governance Committee proposal will take place in late April or early May.

The committee, according to administrative assistant M. Robert Hillenbrand, will function partially as a mediator for the college. Not a policy-making or legislating body, the committee will examine differences between two schools or groups on issues that involve the entire college.

The calendar revision or the Collegewide Curriculum Committee could be two problems that the group might handle," Hillenbrand explained. "RATIFICATION [sic] OF the group will be by a majority of the entire faculty and student bodies. If ratified, the committee will go into operation immediately.

Voting will occur by secret ballot thru each school. The committee will be composed of one faculty member and one student from each of the five undergraduate schools. The representatives will be selected thru each department and all questions and ideas to be discussed would be directed to them on a one-to-one basis.

THE DOCUMENT for the All-College Governance Committee was drawn up by one faculty member and one student from each school, various administrative representatives and a library staff member.
The Changing Face of State

In it's Latin meaning, MSC's motto, Carpe Diem, means "improve the time," and over the years the great seal of the college has undergone several improvements to keep up with the times. In 1922 the 24-year-old normal school adopted a seal designed by art student Anthony DeGennaro.

The seal was retained until 1958 when President E. deAlton Fogg, former editor of La Association institute here. "I am very thankful for the kind cooperation (the press) has given my administration. We all appreciate it."

THE GOVERNOR added that "students and young people are like businesses. They're constantly evaluating themselves. It is indeed very good to see what young people are doing. Cahill also used the meeting to give a push to his Hackensack meadowlands proposal which would "probably one of the major developments in the world." The proposal, he said, would result in the growth of related industries and would eventually "usher into the state one of the most dynamic areas in our history."

Father Davis sees The 'Day of Judgment'

By Diane Forden
Staff Writer

NEWARK - Deplorable housing conditions stimulated a protest in which some 200 Newark residents marched with black tenants of the Stella Wright public housing complex here last Sunday, according to Rev. Thomas E. Davis, Montclair State chaplain.

As a member of the Montclair Fair Housing Committee and a frequent worker at the Queen of Angels parish located near the housing project, Father Davis was invited to attend the "Day of Judgment," as the march and subsequent project tour was called by the Stella Wright Tenant Association.

This Association, comprised of all tenants in the apartment complex, was organized three years ago in an effort to improve living conditions within the housing project. Last March, after talks and meetings with the Newark Housing Authority failed to produce significant changes, the association voted to declare a rent strike.

"I think it is very significant that the event last Sunday was not organized by whites for blacks, but that the blacks organized first and then invited others to see the conditions they live in," Father Davis stated.

According to Father Davis, those who participated in the "Day of Judgment" had the opportunity to witness the unsanitary and unsafe living conditions and thus are more willing to solicit aid to the tenants. "The idea is for the subtenants to contact their congressmen and senators and bring pressure on the Newark Housing Authority thru high government officials," he noted.

FATHER DAVIS also reported that the federal government had granted the Newark Housing Authority funds of $3 million "specifically earmarked for the Stella Wright project, of which not a penny has been seen. So, the tenants have organized and are collecting rents themselves, which they will withhold from the Newark Housing Authority until obvious improvements are made," Father Davis stated.

Participants in the "Day of Judgment" program were preregistered into small groups at the Queen of Angels Church and then marched to the Stella Wright housing complex. The housing project is 12 stories high, covers two square blocks of Newark's Central Ward and houses approximately 12000 families.

For three hours the visitors toured the buildings and viewed broken windows, unhinged doors, nails, narrow corridors and immodest elevators. "The apartments were neat," Father Davis emphasized, "but the walls weren't painted and the doors were unhinged."

THEY ALSO spoke with the tenants and discovered that snow had piled ankle-high in the rooms and corridors which were unprotected by the broken windows. They heard of rapes in the dark corridors and of rats in the dingy rooms.

"One high school girl told us about a robbery which occurred recently," Father Davis said, "A gang of six boys broke into their apartment and took clothing and the only money available - 11 cents from her brother."

"IT HAS been said that these people are responsible for the conditions in which they live," Father Davis continued, "but it is impossible for them to assume responsibility when they are put in such an environment."

Montclarion
Serving the College Community Since 1928 - New Jersey's Leading Collegiate Weekly

The Chonqinp Face of State

The courses, the first of their kind to be collecting glass bottles and jars, by William Shakespeare. Provo will be held at Wayne Manor on April 15 and 16 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. recycling, in the pedestrian mall on

STUDENT COMMITTEE
Ellen Gallagher, Susan Uchica, Anne Baldwin, Stan Grajewski, John Aneson, Bob Watson and Sean Daly have been appointed to a two-month study a student judicial system.

FINE ARTS LANDSCAPING
SGA passed a bill submitted by Jean Andrech, fine arts rep, to donate the funds ($700) for the landscaping of the area directly in front of the fine arts building. This area will be used as a study area for all students.

NEW SGA REPRESENTATIVE
Terry Lewis was appointed to the unincorporated students in each year's reapportionment of SGA legislators. This bill was tabled until further discussion could take place.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEMBER
Ken Cicerale was appointed to the executive board in place of Rich Cahin, who resigned, to represent MOC.

HISTORY CLUB
The constitution of the interested Student of History Organization was accepted as submitted to SGA and their application for a class II charter was approved.

The Montclarion is published weekly through the college year, September thru May, by the Student Government Association, Montclair State College, Valley Road at Normal avenue, Montclair, N, J. 07043.

Subscription rates by mail: $2.50 per academic semester, $3.50 per school year. Advertising rates upon request. Known office of publication Montclair, N, J. 07043.

THE MONTCLARION is a member of the New Jersey Collegiate Press Association, Collegiate Press Service, Newspaper Enterprise Association, United States Student Press Service and United Press International.

The editorial opinions expressed represent those of the editor-in-chief.

Gov. Has Kinds Words For N.J. Youth, Press

Special to the Montclarion.
RED BANK - Gov. William T. Cahill, acting for the second term, has had some very kind words for the state's newspapers and youth.

"I am traditional that the newspapers of New Jersey are presenting all sides of the issues, giving clear and accurate reporting to their readers. The governor, told about 250 representatives from the state's daily and weekly publications last Friday at the annual New Jersey Press Association institute here. "I am very thankful for the kind cooperation (the press) has given my administration. We all appreciate it."

Montclair Montclair
Serving the College Community Since 1928 - New Jersey's Leading Collegiate Weekly

Government officials," he noted. "If people live under unsanitary conditions and thus are more willing to witness the unsanitary and unsafe living conditions and thus are more willing to solicit aid to the tenants. "The idea is for the subtenants to contact their congressmen and senators and bring pressure on the Newark Housing Authority thru high

SGA roundup tuesday, march 30

STUDENT COMMITTEE
Ellen Gallagher, Susan Uchica, Anne Baldwin, Stan Grajewski, John Aneson, Bob Watson and Sean Daly have been appointed to a two-month study of a student judicial system.

FINE ARTS LANDSCAPING
SGA passed a bill submitted by Jean Andrech, fine arts rep, to donate the funds ($700) for the landscaping of the area directly in front of the fine arts building. This area will be used as a study area for all students.

NEW SGA REPRESENTATIVE
Terry Lewis was appointed to the unincorporated students in each year's reapportionment of SGA legislators. This bill was tabled until further discussion could take place.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEMBER
Ken Cicerale was appointed to the executive board in place of Rich Cahin, who resigned, to represent MOC.

HISTORY CLUB
The constitution of the interested Student of History Organization was accepted as submitted to SGA and their application for a class II charter was approved.

A bill was introduced to include "improve the time," and over the years the great seal of the college has undergone several improvements to keep up with the times. In 1922 the 24-year-old normal school adopted a seal designed by art student Anthony DeGennaro.

The seal was retained until 1958 when President E. deAlton Fogg, former editor of La Association institute here. "I am very glad that the press has given my administration. We all appreciate it."

THE GOVERNOR added that "students and young people are like businesses. They're constantly evaluating themselves. It is indeed very good to see what young people are doing. Cahill also used the meeting to give a push to his Hackensack meadowlands proposal which would "probably one of the major developments in the world." The proposal, he said, would result in the growth of related industries and would eventually "usher into the state one of the most dynamic areas in our history."

Father Davis sees The 'Day of Judgment'
New Degree—It's Just a Proposal

By Kathy Flynn
Staff Writer

The proposed bachelor of fine arts degree being discussed by the Colleagewide Curriculum Committee is "just a proposal," said Dr. Ernest Weckesser, speech and theater department chairman.

Watson Asdall Offered Conditions to Cahill

Bob Watson and Bill Asdall, SGA vice-presidents of academic and external affairs, claimed they did not favor the passage of the mass gathering bill, as reported in a MONTCLARION page three headline last week. Although both voted against a recommendation to Gov. William Cahill for an absolute veto of the bill, they did recommend a conditional veto.

According to Watson and Asdall, recommendations for an absolute veto might have been ignored by the governor. When they recommended the conditional veto, they gave the following reasons for the unacceptability of the bill: "Since it cites only rock festivals as examples, the bill discriminates against youth. "The $1000 license fee is "absurd."

There is no provision for youth representation on the board for review of applications.

The mass gathering bill could affect spontaneous gatherings, in which formal organizers could not be identified.

The bill applies to gatherings devoted to expression of ideas dealing with public issues. This has taken the bill beyond the author's stated intention.

Lack of Communications

By Joanne Ferreri
Staff Writer

An entire week devoted to drawing attention to environmental problems will be sponsored by the Conservation Club as an extended effort of last year's Earth day activities held at Montclair State.

According to Frank S. Kelland, assistant geography professor, Earth week is primarily a student effort geared to bring about "logically coordinate change thru the election and support of the candidates of the environment." KELLAND AND Valerie Lahn, Conservation Club president and junior chairman for the Earth week activities at MSC, said Earth week will be a different kind of event than was Earth day 1970.
893-4175—
Note the Number

893-4175. Mark that telephone number down in your little black book because, as Americans, you’re in trouble. A call to that number might just save you. According to a recent survey by New York nutrition experts, American people like to stuff themselves with candy and coffee and French fries and popcorn. The value? Absolutely nothing. Some wise person a few years back recalled that food in the United States is so plentiful yet America is starving from the lack of proper eating habits.

Dr. Doris Ruslink, director of the newly-formed MSC Nutrition Education Center, is aiming to assist housewives and all interested parties in answering any dietary questions. Qualified people at the end of 893-4175 will answer questions concerning food, its preparation and value.

This is indeed a long needed service and we’re happy to see MSC and its Nutrition Education Center taking a leadership role in this much-neglected area.

Say What You Mean, Junior

Barry Goldwater Jr. the other night flunked the first test of relating to America’s youth. He circumlocuted.

Speaking to nearly 100 students in Memorial auditorium Monday the freshman California representation said about his famous dad’s career: “He’s a firm believer in moving aside and making way for younger people.” He apparently meant Sen. Barry Goldwater is retiring.

But, said Junior Tuesday night: “Unfortunately, my comments were taken completely wrong the way. My father has no plans whatsoever to leave the Senate.”

Say what you mean, Junior.

Our America

Who’s In Charge Here?

“News Item. The California Department of Higher Education reports that the number of minority-group students in the Los Angeles school district has surpassed 50% for the first time in that district’s history.

Minority-group students are now 50.2% of the total.

“Question: Since the majority is now in the minority, will those who now comprise the majority still be referred to as the minorities?”

Secret Stuff

“Two big Hollywood male stars — one film, one television — just got married in a rather private ceremony.”

— Earl Wilson, New York Post.

Painting with a Purpose

“The Museum of Modern Art in Manhattan reports that it is $1 million in debt. One assumes, though, that the artists represented will merely brush it off.”

United Nations Still Significant

Editor’s note: Miss Meade is president of MSC’s Council on International and National Affairs and a special staff writer.

By Donna Meade

On Oct. 24, 1970, the United Nations celebrated its 25th birthday. It was an occasion of much soul-searching and re-evaluation. Some saw little reason to celebrate a quarter of a century of so-called failure. To others, the mere fact that the world has survived this far into the atomic age was reason enough for gratitude.

Now, Montclair State’s Council of International and National Affairs will sponsor a delegation to the National Model United Nations, New York, This conference gives students from all over the country a chance to participate in a working model of the United Nations. Each school is assigned a country whose character and philosophy the delegates assume during the conference. Aside from the practical exercise in diplomacy, NMUN is a testimony to something else — a belief among some students that the United Nations is still an important part of our international life.

FEAR A FACTOR

After 25 years, many of them unprofitable, why do some of us still believe in the United Nations? One factor is fear. War stopped being a political tool when man acquired the ability to use arms and that’s something. It hasn’t wiped out famine, disease, or poverty, but it’s made a start, and that’s something.

The ideology on human rights set forth in the charter is far from being universally employed, but the Universal Declaration of Human Rights sets down for the first time the ideals of human dignity and freedom. And that’s something.

SHARES BASIC NEEDS

The United Nations stands for the belief that those things that make us alike are far more numerous than those that make us different. We share basic human needs: for food, fundamental rights, and way of life. It is a belief that as human beings we are not numerous than those that make us world and that’s something.

Miss Meade is happy to see MSC and its Nutrition Education Center taking a leadership role in this much-neglected area.

Mini Review

“The Thief Who Came To Dinner”, By Terence Rattigan, Doubleday, $4.95

If you are looking for somelight, entertaining but just plain fun

The book tells the story of a young executive and his wife divorced who has become dull and stolid. He decides it’s time to quit his $35,000 a year job to actualize his child and international jewelry

His exploits are fun. He becomes an accepted member of society; he meets a wealthy socialite and falls in love with her. He has, as usual, a dog but it is an important one. His dog is definitely not the one that says it with whiskers; it is his family funny story.

For The Record...

*Both of our regular columnists, Robert Warren and Richard Tolley, are currently engaged in SGA election campaigning. As a result, the columns are being discontinued for the duration of the election. For the purposes of fairness, candidates will, in due course, be given space on these pages for the presentation of their views.

*Because of space limitations, Campus Watch is not appearing this week.

We are advised, however, that United States News, MSC’s financial aid director, is not planning to retire as recorded in last week’s edition. MONTCLARON regrets the error.

*The letters editor is presently holding a letter signed “A Concerned Graduate of MSC.” If the person we will let us know his identity, we publish the letter with name withheld.

*The MONTCLARON welcomes letters on any subject, but they must be limited to 250 words, signed and submitted in type. Typed letters or endorsements are reserved for the rights to condense letters.

D.M.L.
Other Side to Deselection

Editor's Note: The following by Hal Plain is in answer to James Hile's column on flag desecration in the March 19 edition.

By Hal Plain
Staff Writer

The stars and stripes is the symbol of the United States.
The flag of the United States stands for the hope and ideals expressed in the constitution. Today, many of these very same hopes and ideals are yet unrealised. To use this flag in the pursuit of justice and equal rights for all is exemplary. It is in the finest tradition of responsible citizen in our country.

When Wendy Simon draped the flag around herself during last May's student action against the Cambodian incursion, she was acting in the best traditions of social protest in the United States. Her act is in no way considered "desecration" by either the state of New Jersey or by the federal government. Both the state and the federal governments recognize the right, under the first amendment to the constitution, to use the flag as an expression of free dissent and symbolic action.

There is a great difference between flag desecration and symbolic use of the flag in political demonstrations. Those people who use the flag to remind the public of the unfulfilled goals on which are supposed to be a part of our heritage are not showing disrespect for the flag. They are, rather, trying to achieve the very ideals for which it stands. In this fashion, they are fighting for the flag as much as any soldier in any war who has given his life. Let us remember that students have given their lives in their own country to protect the freedoms we are supposed to have.

MAINTAINING JUSTICE

Freedom and justice do not maintain themselves. They must be fought for and nurtured at home, as well as the rest of the world.
The people of our country must be eternally vigilant lest their freedoms be gradually taken from them under the guise of law and order. Those people who dissent do not disgrace their country or their flag - they are defending the rights that every American should hold dear. Unfortunately, too many people see dissent and demonstrations as rocking the boat and being dangerous.

Our country is, in some measure, trying to correct some of the injustices that have persisted in our 195-year history. Most of this is due to simple, political expediency. If the only way to achieve the unfulfilled goals of our country is to frighten the politicians by showing them that someone is actually concerned and watching, so be it. Let us wear the flag proudly as we march to remind them that the wrongs must, at long last, be righted.

Came To Denton”, By Terrence Lore Smith
1971

For some light, entertaining reading, this is not a bad book. The author has a real plain fun humor. One of the best stories is the story of a young executive in some large corporation who's wife divorces him because he realizes that she is right and he will become an international jewell. After the divorce, he becomes a "Chess" pro as a result of the scene of his crimes as a chess player.

One young lady remarked: "My brother's in prison." I said,"Really? What are you doing for him?"
She said: "I write once a month." This man is sitting in his cell, wasting away 22 hours of every day and his sister has the good heart to write once a month.
This situation wouldn't be as bad if prisoners had "positive" pressure applied to get more work-release programs for the inmates.

I was, by this time, totally turned out because the members of this Provo action group were too busy talking about how cool the Fillmore was the previous weekend.

I think if the Provo action group would reorient their thinking to more positive goals, then maybe they could change the apathy of Montclair State College.
There is power in organization and if they could organize, they would show authenticity to me and a lot of other people.

Thomas P. Cusick, '72.

How 'bout A Commuter? To the Editor:

Not knowing Tom Benitz personally, there is nothing personal involved. However, I would like to know what a dorm student is doing heading a parking committee? He even had the gall to publicly announce that the mudflats should be closed.
Of course, anything for the comfort of the dorm student, even the MSC is two-thirds commuter.
What is needed is more parking spaces, not more places to sit.
I suggest a commuter should be put in Benita's place or he should reevaluate his position and think of the campus as a whole, with a preference towards the commuter, not the dorm student.

(Name Withheld.)

Editor's Note: The SGA president is an ex-officio member of all student government-sponsored committees.

Switched Signals

To the Editor:

Jim Dente, your ace, crack, top-notch sports reporter, has got his signals switched in his March 19 article. First of all, WMVS agreed to allow a reporter from the MONTCLARION to ride to Buffalo with us.

True, the car was on the brink of falling apart, and probably fell apart after we left it on campus, but it got us to our destination and back all in one piece.

Second, the MONTCLARION did not supply Dente with a nickel to pay for his expenses and he had to cough it up out of his own pocket; this included gas money. If Dente was so upright because we didn't supply him with a limousine, we could have just as easily left him at a Buffalo Hertz Rent-A-Car.

The noise in the gym was so dangerous.

In order to attract highly-competent men, pay must be raised on a competitive level with business.
This would necessitate an increase in expenditures. At a time when beliefs run contrary to military outlays, it seems unlikely that Congress
would approve them.

The volunteer concept is a sound
one. Any man of draft age will testify to that. But Congress recognizes the responsibilities the nation has as a world power. It demands a capable and competent fighting force. Such a force volunteers alone cannot fill.

Volunteers Need $$

President Richard M. Nixon wants to institute an all-volunteer army before he leaves office, which typically happens in 1973. If Nixon has his way, the new force could possibly exist by 1973.

A volunteer army is not new. The United States has relied upon volunteers for the majority of its history. Only during the Civil war, World War I and since World War II, has the government resorted to conscription.

MONEY CUTBACKS

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird is dedicated to creating a volunteer force. He has consistently cut back on draft calls and the number of bases in operation. Recently, he announced the elimination of several naval air squadrons, the closing of bases in Okinawa and Puerto Rico and the termination of over $800 million and civilian jobs.

A major problem faces the volunteer concept - quantity and quality.
Enough men must enlist to constitute an effective force, while being competent in using the sophisticated tools of war. Canada, which has a volunteer army, has been unable to solve this problem. There are plenty of applicants, but mainly from lower income groups with little education.

In order to attract highly-competent
men, pay must be raised on a competitive level with business.
This would necessitate an increase in expenditures. At a time when beliefs run contrary to military
outlays, it seems unlikely that Congress
would approve them.

The volunteer concept is a sound
one. Any man of draft age will testify
to that. But Congress recognizes the responsibilities the nation has as a world power. It demands a capable and competent fighting force. Such a force
volunteers alone cannot fill.
A rather proper British comedy

By M.J. Smith
Staff reviewer

MILLBURN — "The Secretary Bird" is a rather proper British drawing room comedy. A dry, very subtle play, it comes off well in the atmosphere of the Papermill Playhouse.

The plot is rather uncomplicated simply. It seems Hugh Walford is an aging novelist who pens a good sex novel but can't seem to get any into his own life. His wife, Liz, is tired of playing endless rubbers of bridge perhaps. And Walford decided to retaliate.

Edward Mulhare has played everything from Henry Higgins to a dashingly handsome TV ghost (the now-defunct "Ghost and Mrs. Muir"). As the kind of man who enjoys sending his erring wife lilies, he portrays Walford with typical reserve and a smashing accent. His performance alone earns the evening a visit. The Walfords' Mrs. Gray and she is simply marvelous in the part.

Michael Douglas Home, the author, knows the British upper crust well. Son of the 13th Earl of Home, educated at Eton and Oxford, he fairly drips blue blood all over the script.

Robert T. Williams' set is one of the best the Papermill has turned out in quite awhile. A representation of the Walfords' sitting room, the yellows and greens of the upholstery contrast well with the stark white and brown of the Tudor walls.

Londoners have a lovely way of referring to their women as "birds." The word brings to mind the same light and brilliant color this play might have projected on Broadway. But, according to Variety, Clive Barnes panned it during its London run. Oh well, still uplift upper lip and all that sort of rot, old chap.

'Commune'

Theater's hiding in Garage

By Hal Plain
Staff Reviewer

NEW YORK — Where has the theater gone? Is it hiding somewhere on Broadway or is it lurking in the off-Broadway playhouses? Has it run for the cover of the Village or is it, perhaps, residing in the Performing Garage, 33 Wooster St., one block off Canal street? The Performance Group, who gave us "Dionysus in '69" has found the lost theater and is enjoying it for all it is worth. Their new show, "Commune," takes us back to where the real theater is — the people.

The show is billed as "being two-story ceiling. The audience sits all around and within the playing area. When you climb up to your seat, you look down on a free-form plywood construction which serves as a home, ship, or family, Betty Field as a wise nurse and Neil Fitzgerald as an octogenarian doctor.

The directing chores have been handled impeccably by Sir John Gielgud. The sterling living-room set by Rouben Ter-Arutunian further enhances a fine production. Also, the lighting by Richard Nelson is a masterpiece of evocative artistry.

The acting is undisciplined but compelling. The players jump, run, sing, scream and sometimes they even take off their clothes while they pull the audience right into the show. You have to keep a sharp watch on what is happening anywhere on stage.

However else the players want it to be. It is an ingenious and effective "environment" for the experience.

Director Richard Schechner is giving us living theater and in doing this, he brings the theater to life again. "Commune" is a show to experience and to be part of, not to watch. The people are the theater and theater is the people. Several well-known scenes enacted after supper by the youth of our nation," revolving loosely around the exploits of the Charles Manson "family." While it does present them in a more favorable light than the media, the group points out the anger and reasons that moved the "family" to murder. The guilt of society made

UP-LIFTING SCENE: At the Garage, The Performance Group presents part of their new offering, "Commune!"

Whatever else the players want it to be. It is an ingenious and effective "environment" for the experience.

Director Richard Schechner is giving us living theater and in doing this, he brings the theater to life again. "Commune" is a show to experience and to be part of, not to watch. The people are the theater and theater is the people. Several well-known scenes enacted after supper by the youth of our nation," revolving loosely around the exploits of the Charles Manson "family." While it does present them in a more favorable light than the media, the group points out the anger and reasons that moved the "family" to murder. The guilt of society made

"All Over" presents the theatergoer with a bed-ridden man, in the throes of death, being nursed at home. Incidentally, he is never seen but his presence is strongly felt throughout the play. Waiting for his eventual and expected demise are his wife, mistress, son, daughter and best friend.

In this atmosphere, pregnant with austerity and death, the play unfolds. Albee dissects the facade of loneliness and alienation in this new endeavor at the Marin Beck Theater.

"All Over" presents the theatergoer with a bed-ridden man, in the throes of death, being nursed at home. Incidentally, he is never seen but his presence is strongly felt throughout the play. Waiting for his eventual and expected demise are his wife, mistress, son, daughter and best friend.

In this atmosphere, pregnant with austerity and death, the play unfolds. Albee dissects the facade of loneliness and alienation in this new endeavor at the Marin Beck Theater.

"All Over" presents the theatergoer with a bed-ridden man, in the throes of death, being nursed at home. Incidentally, he is never seen but his presence is strongly felt throughout the play. Waiting for his eventual and expected demise are his wife, mistress, son, daughter and best friend.

In this atmosphere, pregnant with austerity and death, the play unfolds. Albee dissects the facade of loneliness and alienation in this new endeavor at the Marin Beck Theater.

"All Over" presents the theatergoer with a bed-ridden man, in the throes of death, being nursed at home. Incidentally, he is never seen but his presence is strongly felt throughout the play. Waiting for his eventual and expected demise are his wife, mistress, son, daughter and best friend.

In this atmosphere, pregnant with austerity and death, the play unfolds. Albee dissects the facade of loneliness and alienation in this new endeavor at the Marin Beck Theater.

"All Over" presents the theatergoer with a bed-ridden man, in the throes of death, being nursed at home. Incidentally, he is never seen but his presence is strongly felt throughout the play. Waiting for his eventual and expected demise are his wife, mistress, son, daughter and best friend.

In this atmosphere, pregnant with austerity and death, the play unfolds. Albee dissects the facade of loneliness and alienation in this new endeavor at the Marin Beck Theater.
Olympic Great Talks
On Education at MSC

By Carol Sakowitz
Sports Writer

If you happened to glance around the room where he was greeted by college officials, you would recognize him at first sight. He was somewhat tall and wore a gray suit with a matching print tie. His hair was cut short and was slightly balding. He was black.

His name is Jesse Owens and he had come to give a lecture at Montclair State last Wednesday night.

Next to Jim Thorpe, Owens was probably the best American athlete to compete for the U.S. in the Olympics. The "Buckeye Bullet" from Ohio State collected an unprecedented and unequalled 4 gold medals in the 1936 Olympics.

Owens has been fighting his way to the top and the Olympics is just one example of his efforts. He starred in the Olympics when Adolph Hitler felt that his "Master Race" was going to dominate the games. Instead, Owens almost failed to make the finals of the broadjump. Judges in the German stadium counted a warmup as an actual attempt. His second jump was disqualified because of a foul committed before take-off. With one shot left to send him to the next level, Jesse moved back another foot and was in the process of marking off his new spot when another broadjumper, German Lutz Long came over and helped the future gold medalist. Owens made the third try and eventually won the event. Long, as Owens recalls, was the first one to congratulate him after winning the finals.

Altho Owens is the first to admit that "There were other Blacks before me, but the Blacks before the 30's didn't have a 'national person'. In the 30's, they had two, Joe Louis and myself." Owens still has one fan in Sonny Moss, Orange High School's track coach. Moss presented his idol with clippings dating back to the days when the name Owens first hit the headlines just before Owens appeared on stage.

"Athletics is a great thing but it has its limitations," stated Owens. "After the door opens and you've exchanged a few pleasantries about your career, the owner of a business usually asks, 'What do you know about my business?'"

Ideally, Owens looks toward an America where a man is not judged by the color of his skin. To the great Olympian, "Black isn't beautiful, white isn't beautiful and skin-deep isn't beautiful. We should judge a man by the ability he has."

Indian Tennis Players Up
For 4th NJSCC Crown

By Brendan Suhr
Sports Writer

Montclair State has won three consecutive New Jersey State College Conference tennis titles, and if the enthusiasm shown by the large turnout of players hoping to make the squad is any indication of the forthcoming season - then look out.

The 28 men who greeted veteran Coach Harry Schmidt are going to try to improve on last year's 7-5 season. The greatest problem the Indians have to face, however, is the loss of the team's two top performers, Dan Sullivan and Klaus Nemetz.

DAN SULLIVAN is still around, but as a coach and not a player. According to one player, "Dan relates to us because he is our age and when he says something, we all listen to him."

John Donleycott, an outstanding freshman from Irvington, has nailed down the number one singles spot. Another highly touted frosh is Kim Marchese from Oak Park, who has secured the number two position. Junior Allen Huile will hold down the third spot.

Captain Walter Klein, the only senior on the squad, will play the number four position, while junior Joel Tannebaum will play the fifth. The sixth position is up for grabs between Robert Mesinger, Rich Davison and James Powers, an exchange student from Heidelberg, Germany.

THE THREE doubles teams will be composed of Donleycott and Marchese on the first squad, Davison and Klein should makeup the second, while Powers and freshman Mike Roegee from El Paso, Texas, are the third.
Indian Nine Ready

Montclair State's baseball team gets its season underway this afternoon with a New Jersey State College Conference game scheduled against Newark State. The 3 p.m. game will be at MSC's home field.

A good bet for the starting pitcher in today's clash is senior Ken Ingls. One of MSC's co-captains, he should provide the bulk of the Indians' pitching strength.

Pitching is a sore point as far as MSC's head coach, Clary Anderson is concerned. Before the trip to Florida, Anderson felt that the "pitching should be better," and stated that "tighter, top pitching will enable us to win 1-run games."

Ingls, who begins his fourth varsity year with the Indians, has a career record of 12-7 and an average from last year. The aggressive southpaw has collected a total of 72 strikeouts in 153 innings.

Backing up Ingls on the mound will be junior Bob Mooney and Junior Lanny Berra. Last fall Berra, who hit .314 last season, started to come alive in the hitting department knocking out homers against Fairleigh Dickinson and St. John's. Mooney returns to the team with a .400 average from last year.

The other Indian co-captain, Rich SanFillippo, will also be starting his fourth year as shortstop on MSC's varsity. According to Anderson, "Flip is potentially good and I can't see why he can't hit .300 for us this year."

As far as the other spots in the starting lineup go, Steve Samson will resume his position at third. Carmine DeSimone (.396) will return to left field, Dale Garlick (.329) to center, but the position in right is still undecided.

Other positions still up for grabs include second base and first. Second could go to anyone of three sophomores, Bob Costantino, Jim Barnaba or Ken Klein. First is the biggest gap to fill, due to the loss of golden-gloved Frank Rossi. Trying to fill that spot will be either Joe Collins, Frank Baris or Charlie Williams.

FUDGE FIRE POWER: Paul Kowalczyk of Vanilla Fudge followed thru with his delivery. Kowalczyk had Tuesday's second highest series, 536, as the Fudge wrapped up its second American League title.

The American League's Vanilla Fudge clinched its second straight intramural conference title last week, downing Zeta Epsilon Tau, 4-0, in an intraconference game. Formerly known as Von Ryan's Express, last year the Fudge coped Montclair State's intramural bowling title. Earlier this year they competed in the F&M Schaefer Brewing Co.'s bowling tourney.

IN THE context, Paul Kowalczyk bowled the series high of 536, in the second game he rolled a 202. Teammate John Depew finished his series with a 203 game and totaled 492. Frank Tartaglia had a game high of 213 for the losers.

Vanilla Fudge has the conference's best record with a 1-2-3. THE NATIONAL League champs, Alpha Sigma Mu "A", slacked off last week and showed it in the final results. The Veterans lost to Gamma Delta Chi, 3-1.

By winning 3 games against Lambda Chi Delta, Tau Sigma Delta Keglers fought their way into a tie with Alpha. If Tau manages to win all 4 games in their next match, they could still tie Alpha, but Alpha would get the league title. The Veterans downed Tau in earlier league play, 3-1.

George D'Esposito of Phi Lambda Pi rolled the day's high series of 642.

FUDGE FIRE POWER: Paul Kowalczyk of Vanilla Fudge follows thru with his delivery. Kowalczyk had Tuesday's second highest series, 536, as the Fudge wrapped up its second American League title.