Wolfgang B. Fleischmann offered individual departments in the school senate. Tuesday afternoon in a same time, he explained. His old committee: Pat Moskello and Debby Owens (French), Judy Sergy (linguistics) and Frederick. After talking with Fleischmann, the senate decided to set up its own curriculum and governance committees which would meet with the faculty group. Their committee members will report regularly on individual committee activities.

THE GROUP was critical of unequal student-faculty representation in the previous senate and requested equal representation on the committees. Fleischmann agreed and noted that non-senators could sit on committees and report to the student senate.

Twelve of them met Tuesday and decided to establish a student senate, rather than one composed of faculty and student members. Once on its feet, however, the student senate would probably merge with the faculty committees and the former faculty-student structure would be re-established, Frederick speculated.

This fall, however, individual departments in the school still held senate elections. Frederick stated. Humanities dean Wolfgang B. Fleischmann offered the newly-elected student senators a chance to revive the structure.

Students Attempt To Revive Humanities Senate

A dozen humanities students met Tuesday afternoon in a last-ditch effort to salvage their school senate. The humanities senate disfranchised last year due to lack of student participation, according to philosophy/religion major Dennis Frederick. At a senate meeting last spring, faculty members, dissatisfied over students' non-involvement in the organization, had decided to abolish the senate, Frederick said.

The faculty retained its curriculum committee and established a school governance committee, although it phased out its senate structure, he explained.

This fall, however, individual departments in the school still held senate elections. Frederick stated. Humanities dean Wolfgang B. Fleischmann offered the newly-elected student senators a chance to revive the structure.

MSC Reaction Mixed on Proposed Impeachment

By Patricia Mercoceli

President Richard M. Nixon's recent actions in the Watergate investigation have aroused cries for impeachment and feelings of frustration, disillusionment and confusion from MSC students and faculty.

MSC President David W.D. Dickson expressed regret at Nixon's "lack of candor and the use of a political office and political instruments for obstructing openness." Although relieved that Nixon had made the tapes available, he was sorry it had taken him much "arising and danger to his own situation to make him do it." Dickson noted that impeachment is not the result of simple anger or dislike but must rest on a basis in suspected criminal actions.

Dickson commended that Nixon's release of the tapes "reduces the chance of impeachment." However he emphasized that "events of the recent months may very well produce sufficient grounds for impeachment." Dickson pointed out that "I have very little respect for Nixon as an administrator but I would like to think that a man in his position as president could grow into the job. I would be terribly disappointed if he did not."

Dr. Gilbert Houptoule, political science professor, stated that "Nixon has not committed any actions that are defined as grounds for impeachment in the constitution."

"You should also look at the state of domestic and international affairs, especially the Middle East and ask yourself, if a Carl Albert can take his place," Houptoule continued.

DR. EDWARD Johnson, political science department chairman, stated, "I do not buy impeachment. Anything would be better than that. I do not think that the country should be involved in impeaching a president."

Although Johnson thought that Congress had grounds for impeachment before the release of the tapes, he commented, "Nixon has undercut them." Johnson continued that he was caught between his distrust of Nixon and the desire to give him a fair chance because "his record in foreign affairs is not that bad, but in domestic politics it has been terrible."

Nixon's actions met with condemnation from SGA president Angelo Genova. "This ultimate culmination of unethical, unconstitutional and horrendous actions on his part leads me to believe that the American people's criticism should now terminate with the demand for his impeachment or resignation," Genova explained.

SGA VICE-president of external affairs Stan Domazek was less condemnatory but equally concerned. He remarked, "For the highest elected official in the country, he shows a terrifying lack of confidence in the American people to judge whether or not he is guilty of misconduct." Domazek continued that "though there are no grounds for impeachment now, if more information is discovered, I would want to see him impeached."

Kathy Georges, political science senior, stated "Nixon could have saved a lot of trouble if he gave up the tapes before all of the recent troubles." However, she still believed that he should be impeached since "I think he knew about Watergate and that alone is grounds for impeachment."

A SOLEMN OCCASION — MSC students joined faculty members and administrators from all over the state in celebrating the inauguration of MSC president David D.W. Dickson. Dickson addresses the audience during the ceremony.
MSC Departments To Join In Bicentennial Celebration

By Michael Finnegan

A New Jersey's various schools and their departments will offer commemorative projects for our nation's 200th anniversary if the plans of the Student Heritage Committee are successful.

According to acting co-ordinator Dr. Helen C. Royer, history professor, invitations have been sent to the chairman of all college departments to volunteer ideas for programs in their specialized areas. To date several departments, as well as graduate students and alumni, have responded favorably.

ALL ITS contribution, the physical education department has suggested a gymnastic demonstration or a historical dance recital. A colonial garden to be located in the quad area between College Hall and Russ Hall has been proposed as a project in the biology department. The History department may sponsor intercollegiate conferences, while the drama and music departments have considered offering entertaining with a historical slant.

"We are hoping that each department will form its own bicentennial committee," reflected Royer, "to facilitate individual projects, which might occur in monthly succession during the bicentennial year 1976. Also, each department could allot funds from their budgets to the Bicentennial Committee."

At this time the Bicentennial Committee receives no formal funding. However, according to John Herbst, co-chairman with Roseanne Nativo, a constitution is currently being prepared by committee members for application to the SGA for Class II status, which merits funding.

TO FACILITATE this, according to Royer, MSC President Dr. David W.D. Dickson will soon appoint an all-college steering committee to coordinate the various departmental projects. In addition, this committee will apply for financial aid grants for all-college and individual research projects, one of which will be "The Relationship between New Jersey and the Continental Congress."

Other future projects include a field trip to the Ringwood Iron Mines, the site of the Revolutionary War iron industry. This tour, to be conducted by Dr. Sophia G. Hinshaw, assistant geography professor, will take place on Sat., Nov. 17.

Fly the Friendly Skies?
By Patricia Perrone
The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) is "crowing on its own wings," according to Joe Kloza, MSC director of international programs. Kloza was referring to the CAB's new initiative to increase domestic youth fares. Kloza added that 11% kids in reserved seat fares for those under the age of 12. Presently these fares represent 92% of the full fare. The increase will go into effect on Oct. 1.

THESE ACTIONS were taken in preparation for the eventual termination of discounts for young people, according to John Barrett, district sales representative for National Airlines. The termination of these fares is set for June 1, 1974, he stated. The 11% increase is an inevitable result of the present state of the economy.

The government, through these rulings, is encouraging students to leave America and travel overseas, Kloza noted. "IN THE United States, when the student is on a flight to all points in Europe, the dollar, the student always loses," he emphatically stated. Kloza then said, "It's a shame the United States is not made for student travel.

IN another related action, the National Student Lobby (NSL) in Washington is conducting a campaign to restore youth travel prices. These are distinguished from above-mentioned rates in that no reservation for a flight can be made.

Sandman, Byrne Rep To Rally At MSC

Tentative plans for the Orange Life Union Board (CLUB) show that the "traditional" Homecoming will not occur at MSC this year. It will essentially be a "Homecoming Night" as opposed to the "Homecoming Weekend" that took place in the past, as the main features will be compressed into one night.

Mike Forcella, Homecoming chairman, said, "Tradition is dying. Hopefully students will get out and enjoy the evening." He warned, "Don't look back to the old ways which are no longer exists.

THE ACTIVITY scheduled for Friday night is the showing of the film, "The Godfather," in the Student Centerballrooms. Saturday night will be the major night. The festivities will proceed as planned with a cocktail hour in the Student Center. The action will then move to Soprano Field, where the Indians will play Southern Connecticut State College with the Nutley High School band performing pre-game exercises. During halftime the Hawthorne Calabrese, who performed in the Suider Bowl, will put on an exhibition.

There will also be a display of fireworks at the game. This is another new event added to Homecoming and is part of Forcella's "experiment."

Faculty Housing Studied
The feasibility of building faculty housing facilities on campus is currently under study, according to Vincent Calabrese, institutional planning director. A group of "private citizens interested in helping the college," the Orange Life Union Board Development Fund Board, is examining the finances and state and local ordinances, and trying to secure a land site, according to Calabrese.

PLANNING has not gone beyond the "economic stages," Quinn said, and realization of the plans, if feasible, is probably "several years off." "There is a definite need for faculty housing," Calabrese stated. Quinn said the idea had been discussed for some time, but had only recently been considered economically possible. New faculty members meeting the "comfortable" local housing standards, said Calabrese, could not proceed as "more available" to the students.

The state Educational Facilities Authority, which funds construction of academic and student buildings, cannot furnish a faculty facility, Quinn explained. Instead, the building will be privately funded, and, hopefully, "available to the alumni." Calabrese explained.

The proposals for the project is an eighteighs MSC property on Valley Road in Clifton. The board would have to purchase the land from the college, Quinn said. Purchases elsewhere would have to compete with local ordinances, Calabrese stated.
MSC’s camerabugs are being given an opportunity to boast their talents. The College Life Union Board (CLUB) is sponsoring a "Fabulous Fotos" contest which is open to all students.

CLUB chairman Bud Schulhafer explained that, "We feel that there is a growing interest in amateur photography on the MSC campus. This contest will give an opportunity to students to display their work."

ANY TYPE of black and white photograph will be accepted, including still life, portrait, social commentary, texture and movement. Criteria for judging the photographs will be based on technical skill and the power of imagery.

According to Ursilla Zegel, chairperson of CLUB, "We are looking for good images and the effect which the photograph, as a whole, brings out. This means more than simple pictures of dogs and cats, it means being creative."

There will be three cash prizes awarded. The first prize winner will receive $100 and will have his/her photograph printed in the MONTCLARION. Fifty dollars and $25 will go to the second and third prize winners, respectively. According to Schulhafer, three members of the fine arts department will judge the photographs. The names of the judges have not yet been disclosed.

ALL PHOTOGRAPHS will be put on display in the General Store of the Student Center on Nov. 7, 8 and 9. During this time a student ballot box will be set up. All students will have a chance to vote for a photograph they feel deserves merit. The winning photo, chosen by the students, will receive $50 in prize money.

Students are limited to submit one photograph. Deadline for submission is Nov. 5, at 4 pm. Applications and contest rules are available in the CLUB office, located on the 4th floor of the Student Center and also at the information desk, located in the Carson lobby. All applications must be returned to the CLUB office. When the contest is over photographs will be returned only upon request. "This is the first photo contest that CLUB has sponsored," Schulhafer stated. "If it is a success we hope to make it an annual event."

You Take 1500 Pounds Of Clay...

By Kim Tsang

Last Wednesday, the avant-garde came to Montclair State and landed between the fine arts building and Partridge Hall.

At noon on that day, ten ceramics students accompanied by their instructor Patricia Lay proceeded to plop, pound, sling, fling and slap 1500 pounds of clay between the two buildings.

THE RESULT of their work was a sculpture outlined by a rectangle of small mounds of clay. The bulk of the work consisted of coils and cylinders of mangled and contorted clay. Balancing this composition were smaller pieces of sculpture and an area of smooth and patterned sand.

"It began when a couple of us were playing with clay and decided to extend that," explained student Sally Wells. "Actually it's more than playing," she continued. "It's dealing with sculptural space on a larger scale."

Lay called the creation a "spontaneous" event. "It was expressing oneself with clay in a freer and larger dimension," she explained.

NICK SISCOE, another student in the class, called the sculpture "an expression of people's emotions and feelings at the time." He called it a manner in which the students could "let out all their frustrations and anxieties."

NORML Seeks Marijuana Reform

By Lyle Sigmon

As ludicrous as it seems, marijuana is still illegal in New Jersey. Although about one million people and/or college students in the United States turn on, the law is enforced. People even spend time in jail for "weed crimes." This is to be contrasted with our present law, one of the more liberal in the nation, which (although allowing similar penalties) does not go as far as some others.

The court is being asked to declare the laws prohibiting the private possession and use of marijuana invalidative of the individual's right to privacy and of other express guarantees of the U.S. Constitution. The bill has been referred to the Assembly Judiciary Committee, and may be enacted unless its potential pitfalls and harmful consequences are shown.

However, New Jersey seems to be behind the times. State Assembly Bill A2573, which would enforce a mandatory prison sentence of at least six months for the simple possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana, has been introduced.

A COMMITMENT

In each case both parties will attempt to show how their respective positions are more favorable to student needs. Both the state and the AFT will be looking to play us for their respective advantages and to our ultimate disadvantage.

It is imperative that we are not toyed with and made fools of by either party. It's high time that we have our say.

The Department of Higher Education has proven its failures in upholding student concerns. The AFT, in this initial contract negotiation, has incorporated specific terms that may jeopardize any position students will have in governance or evaluation in the future.
Expert Opinion

When the Watergate scandal unfolded before the American public this summer, the people lost much of the trust that they had in Richard Nixon. However, in his own inimitable style, Nixon has succeeded in destroying whatever small trust was left when he wiped out the special prosecutors office, forced the resignation of the attorney general and fired the assistant attorney general.

Calls for impeachment were heard from both parties and they were justified. In proposing his "compromise" solution to the tape problem in defiance of the court order to allow Judge Sirica to hear the tapes, and in firing those officials in the justice department that did not agree with him, Nixon not only broke the law but seriously damaged the balance of powers established by the constitution in eliminating an office whose structure was formulated by Congress with its reluctant consent.

However, with his sudden compliance with the court order, Nixon eliminated much of the legal basis for a possible impeachment. In spite of the fact that the nation has as its leader a man who considers himself above justice, impeachment proceedings would almost certainly fail to approach the legal standards of both congressional houses.

What must be done is the reestablishment of the special prosecutors office with its former independence. The Watergate investigation, which the president has suggested go to the justice department, must not be undertaken by a group of "yes men" who do not have the courage to resign rather than implement Mr. Nixon's version of blind justice.

Students must take an active part in letting their feelings be known on this subject. It was only after the White House received an avalanche of letters asking the president to resign or suggesting that he be impeached that he decided to turn over the tapes. Students must write to their congressmen demanding that the prosecutors office be re-established with safeguards against a second demotion.

The former attorney general and the former secretary of commerce have been indicted on criminal charges. It has not been a year since the president was elected. In that time, his two chief aides as well as numerous lower level aides have either resigned or been fired. They were then indicted on criminal charges. The former attorney general and the former secretary of commerce have been indicted on criminal charges.

It was revealed that vast sums of federal money have been spent on the president's San Clemente and Key Biscayne homes. The vice-president resigned and pleaded guilty to charges of tax evasion (to be kind, we won't mention the numerous bribery charges that he would have been slapped with had he not taken this course of action.)

And as the finishing touch, the men brought in to clean house have been forced out of office.

That's not bad for a year's work—it's going to be a long three years.

A Good Example

The students who have begun to re-establish the School of Humanities Senate should be applauded for their efforts. The school senates have been neglected in the past by apathetic administrators but now have been re-established by students. It has not been a year since the president was elected. Karel Husa and Robert Storer will be the guest composers at the Tenth Annual Composers’ Symposium at M.S.C. on Oct. 31. According to Thomas Wilt, the Symposium coordinator, “This yearly event is designed to enhance the students’ knowledge and enjoyment of the music of distinguished contemporary composers by giving them the opportunity to work in an informal situation under the composers’ direction.”

The general public is invited to attend the 8 pm program in Memorial Auditorium on Oct. 31. This program will feature the works of the two guest composers, Husa and Storer. Rehearsals, theory workshops and other activities held during the daytime hours on Tuesday and Wednesday are also open to all who are interested.

"Mutt And Jeff" -- NY's Finest?

By Mark Mulick
Cops are all around us today, in movies as well as on TV, but few have been done as comically as director Aron Arakian’s latest offering, “Cops and Robbers.”

The Mutt and Jeff duo of Cliff Gorman and Joseph Bologna play the leads in this delightful romp through the fantasies of two of New York’s finest. While stuck in a typical New York city traffic jam, Bologna confesses to putting off a liquor store holdup while in uniform. Because “it was so easy,” the cigar-smoking pair decide to pull off a really big caper. After confronting with a mafia contact man by the name of Patsy O’Neil they plan to steal $10 million in securities from a Wall Street firm during a ticker tape parade for visiting astronauts. Everything goes according to plan until another group of policemen show up to destroy another crime in the same building. So the two decide to destroy the evidence and double cross the mafia, to whom they are going to sell the stolen securities.

The exchange is to take place in Central Park. But by the time our heroes arrive on the scene the place is crawling with mafiosa hit men. They grab the money and drive off in a police car only to find that all the exits are blocked by the mob’s cadillacs. In a last ditch effort they crash through a fence into a police car repair yard and make their getaway on a bus, where they can contemplate their new found wealth.

Gorman and Bologna are outstanding as the two cops gone errry. They handle their lines with poise and a sense of comedy that is quite apparent. A creditable performance is also turned in by Jack Quaint as Patsy O’Neil, the mafia contact man.

Writer Donald E. Westlake really captures the flavor of the New York police crews. The camera work is crisp and ingenious. Moreover “Cops and Robbers” makes for a thoroughly enjoyable evening of entertainment.

From the designer's point of view, one of the things that make "The Mandrake" unique is that the entire set will go into full time falls bright blue.

"As MSC's entry in the National Colleges Drama Festival "The Mandrake" must be built to tour, together with the business staff for the Series, immediately focuses in on a "vaudeville stage" - a sharply-dressed and completely transformed New York City dive up in pastel-shaded buildings combined with lavish special-effects lighting which, in turn, reflects the delicate/bawdy, pious/decadent 1890's period.

All cast members are to be congratulated for their lively and expressive performances. Tony Sansero, a "veteran" of MSC's Players, portrayed the rakish Raffles with zest and a keen sense of the burlesque. The part of Patry called for great stamina by Ed Gero, who met the task nicely, Bill Goekler gave a very convincing and hilarious portrayal of the crooked, alcoholic fagot priest. Mittens, the wife, was extremely well-played by Mary Bruen, who combines sensitive acting with sharp wit and a keen sense of the burlesque. The part of Paltry was done a lot more than just sing, Ullm Van Treuren, Lee Nolan, Griselda Garcia, and Donna Bilt."

This light-hearted romp of a play also includes colorful and imaginative costuming by Joseph F. Bills, costume designer of the currently running Broadway production of "Waltz of the Toreadors," and original "holyoke-bank-hall-plains" type music by Rockwood and Thomas A. Witt, Hurter and MSC music professor. Among the best songs are "Give a Little, Take a Little," a group medley done by the Friar and quartet and the "IY" song done by Mittens and the two female barbershoppers.

"The Mandrake" is MSC's speech/theater department's 1973-74 entry in the National Collegiate Drama Festival which involves over 500 colleges and universities throughout the country and is sponsored by the American Theater Association and the American National Academy of the Dramatic Arts. A sure bet for Hofstra University regional finalists and a real hopeful for one of the ten National awards given by the J.F.K. Center for the Performing Arts. "The Mandrake" needs seeing for believing.
Intramural football competition will come to a close on Tuesday and Wednesday night at Sprague Field as playoffs, championships and consolation games are played.

Stu Richter, SILC student president, explained that the playoffs will include the first four teams in each division, both Men's Division and the Coed Division. The first place teams will play, the fourth place finishers and the second place team will face the squad that finished third to decide the teams in the finals.

The winners in the Coed Division will vie for the championship on Tuesday at 7 pm on Sprague Field.

The Men's Division I finals will take place at 7 pm that same night, followed at 8 pm by the Division II championship game.

The consolation game for the Men's Division is slated for 7 pm on Wednesday to be followed by the all-campus championship game at 8 pm. The loser corrects the Men's Division I champs against the Men's Division II champs.

Richter explained that the student referees and officials will be outfitted in new black and white striped shirts.

He was also enthusiastic about the support given to the football program thus far this year. "The Athletic Department has been really cooperative in giving us the field for both nights," he said.

"A lot of people thought that things wouldn't go too smoothly this year with the split (of intramurals with the Athletic Department) but we've been really pleased with the cooperation," he concluded.

BLITZ: Led Zeppelin quarterback Bruce Grabor dodges a defending Blue Jay in Monday's intramural football action at the Bohn Hall Field. Though Grabor's pass was incomplete on this play, the Zeppelin won, 14-6.
TSC Blanks Squaws

By Joan Miketzuk

A field hockey team's nightmare came to life at Brookdale Park Monday as Montclair State outplayed and outhustled the Trenton State team, but still came up on the short end of a 1-0 score.

The Squaws hovered over the Trenton net, like vultures eagerly awaiting the moment to pounce on their prey.

THE BALL was whizzing back and forth in front of the goalmouth and even when Trenton netminder Eichfield came out 20 feet to block a shot and got caught out of position, somehow the ball managed to avoid a confrontation with the cords.

It was the women's second shutout and third loss of the year against a win and two ties.

The Squaws consistently beat the Trenton women to the ball and showed fine stickwork throughout, but to no avail. Except for a slight letdown at the end of the second half, MSC controlled the play and thwarted the Trenton squad's scoring opportunities with sharp defensive play.

ON OFFENSE, the Squaws' passes seemed to be radar-directed from stick to stick. Coupled with hustle and drive, the women managed to keep the Trenton defense busy, but couldn't score.

The lone goal of the game came in the opening minutes. After an MSC scoring attempt proved fruitless, Trenton's Carol Sadley trotted down the right sidelines and drove the ball into the left corner of the net.

MSC goalie Laura Sanson didn't let another by the rest of the afternoon, making some fine stops for the Squaws, the most noteworthy being an exceptional split save in the second half.

After yesterday's contest with Princeton University, the women will be participating in the New Atlantic Field Hockey Tournament this weekend.

MSC WILL play three of the 12 schools involved in the tournament this weekend. Centenary College, Douglass College and Fairleigh Dickinson/Madison. From this tournament, individual players can be selected to participate in the New Atlantic Regional Tournament on Nov. 10 and 11.

STILL LIFE: MSC runner Ron Vandermay is captured by the camera's eye as he searches for a block to follow through the offensive line. The only scoring was done by Moses Lajtermam's foot as the Indians strangled the Pioneers, 3-0.

satisfied with the performance put on they nipped William Paterson by the baseball score mentioned above. His coach of the Indians, he seemed from the way they played us. ''I love it,” said the red-haired runner, having already trounced Tim Konarkowski, Mike Exton and Gary Clint, who finished 9th, ANSINATRA fiddled with a pair of sweat socks still wet from the previous day’s practice, Kelly switched the subject to the Indians’ 3-2 record. "We should be 0-4,” he claimed of it. I’m sure of that.”

asked. Money wasn’t the only optimistic defensive coach within the immediate area. Tom Testa added: "If Bob Martin and Bob Kozik play the way they did tonight, and Rich Tate who has 6 to 10 yards out on the edge of the defense, I think it’s definitely I’ll be there. We’re better than we were last week, I think they’ll be better than they were last week.”

“NEEDLESS to say, a win is a win, and the Indians won with the aid of a 37-yard field goal by kicker Moses Lajtermam, who is loved by the Pioneers about as much as Reggie Jackson is worshipped by the Mets. Upon receiving a punt on their own 45-yard line, MSC proceeded downhill to the Pioneer’s 27 where Lajtermam booted the ball through the goalposts with 9:40 to go in the first period.

Later in the same period, after a 29-yard pass play from Indian QB Craig Hugger to halfback Franklin Walker gave MSC a first down on the William Paterson 16-yard line, halfback Jim Geathhame fumbled the ball away on the 15. In the third quarter, Hugger lost the ball on the William Paterson 10-yard line while rolling out to look for a potential receiver in the endzone. In THAT same quarter, the Pioneers mounted their only scoring attack of the game, driving 62 yards to the MSC 10-yard line. The threat followed, and Sage Taylor, William Paterson’s all-purpose man and star halfback, misfired a field goal from 27 yards out.

MSC is now 3-3 on the season, and will meet Southern Connecticut State here Saturday at 8 p.m.
