Students to Rally Monday

By Debbie Kaslaukas

The day on which state college students will rally in front of the State House in Trenton against a proposed 50 per cent tuition increase and in favor of additional education funding has been shifted to Mon.-Nov. 24.

The New Jersey Student Association (NSJA) and MSC decided to move the rally to Nov. 24 when it was discovered that the Assembly would not be in session today, the originally scheduled date of the rally, according to Marc C. Menendez, SGA president and NSJA treasurer. The Assembly will be in session on Nov. 24.

BUSI ES WILL leave from MSC at Partridge Hall at 9 am. Upon arrival in Trenton, participants will be organized into effective rallies groups. As demonstrators are organized, outside, lobbying SGA officials and NSJA leaders will tentatively occupy the administration and in front of Governor Brendan T. Byrne at noon.

MSC is responsible for the coordination of the tuition rally. Menendez said. The Tuition Task Force Committee, chaired by Ken Rothmiller, vice-president of external affairs, has organized news packets and distributed them to the seven other state colleges. The committee has informed news media and handled details such as organizing buying and news releases.

According to State Sen. Joseph P. Merlino (ID-13th), "Legislators react to the prospect of tuition increases with much the same dread as they do to increases in nuisance taxes, although some have calculated that most of our student body is politically apathetic."

ENNENDEZ SAID, "The fact the students are rallying at Trenton on Monday, proves that they are politically active! We are not in school for fun and games. We work and some of us are financially independent."

Menendez asserted that students are very aware of what is going on in Trenton and are rallying to prove it. As coordinators of the conference, the SGA and its Tuition Task Force Committee have set up an itinerary to insure complete organization and effectiveness, according to Menendez.

MSC AND NJSA have prepared to discuss with Byrne's 1976-77 budget for higher education.

The Assembly will be in session on Nov. 24, however.

Menendez said any cutbacks in the budget will effect students. "Students will be the losers, especially new future freshmen and transfer students," Menendez said.

The next step MSC has prepared is a meeting with Ralph A. Dungan, Chancellor of Higher Education.

Dean Calls for Dismissal Of Linguistics Instructor

By Janet Byrne

Dr. Wolfgang B. Fleischmann, dean of the School of Humanities, overrode three favorable recommendations by linguistics department officials and himself recommended that instructor Njari Ngunjir be not rehired for the spring semester, according to Dr. Milton Seegmiller, chairman of the faculty Personnel Advisory Committee (PAC).

Fleischmann's recommendation that Ngunjir not be rehired and that the Swahili courses he teaches be cancelled have been called "racist" and "culturally biased" by the PAC.

THE STUDENT Personnel Advisory Committee (SPAC) as well as department chairman Dr. Robert Miller echoed the opinion of the PAC in the Ngunjir rehiring decision.

Intentionally or unintentionally, enrollments in Swahili have been "kept low artificially," Seegmiller, an assistant professor, charged, "yet the criterion for cancelling 'Beginning Swahili I and II' and 'Intermediate Swahili I and II' is insufficient enrollment."

Seegmiller termed the exclusion of a course description of Swahili from the current college catalogue, printed last year, "underhanded." The omission, Fleischmann said, was "pure error."

THE CRITERION of insufficient enrollment is "not being applied equitably," Seegmiller feels that the PAC have criticized. "Whatever makes advanced Latin and Greek, with enrollments of three or four persons, worth keeping should make Swahili worth keeping."

"The instructors of these courses have other courses to teach," Fleischmann said, "and Mr. Ngunjir does not."

Fleischmann noted that although Ngunjir presented a full teaching load with African studies courses in the English and history departments, there was "no one to make a demand" for Ngunjir in the latter department.

FLEISCHMANN SAID that the department 'already has a part-time historian and can't utilize Mr. Ngunjir.'

According to a memo from the PAC to Fleischmann, dated Nov. 7, "several other courses now being developed...should fill out Mr. Ngunjir's teaching load."

Fleischmann said that of the 13 enrolled in "Beginning Swahili I" this semester, "current pre-registration figures for the spring semester show only five are continuing with Beginning Swahili II."

"I WONDER looking at the overall enrollments of everything Mr. Ngunjir teaches, whether he would draw enough students," Fleischmann speculated.

A petition being circulated by the PAC reads that, "The only term for this general attitude toward non-European studies is racism: "Europe and the European elements in American cultures are worthy of serious study, the rest of the world is not."

The petition labels the treatment of Ngunjir "callous and discriminatory."

"NGUNJIRI WAS never personally notified of the cancellation of his Swahili courses. He first learned of it when a letter sent to the students notifying them of the cancellation was shown to him in class," the memo states.

According to Seegmiller and Fleischmann, the reappointment procedure entails gradient recommendations from, respectively, the PAC, the department chairman (Miller), both of which are positive, the dean (Fleischmann), the reappointment committee to Fleischmann, dated Nov. 7, "several other courses now being developed...should fill out Mr. Ngunjir's teaching load."

The Program of the Year isn't on TV. It's in the Air Force ROTC.

Look into Air Force ROTC. And there are 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs to choose from. Whichever you select, you'll leave college with a commission as an Air Force officer. With opportunities for a position with responsibility... challenge... and, of course, financial rewards and security.

The courses themselves prepare you for leadership positions ahead. Positions as a member of an aircrew... or as a missile launch officer... positions using mathematics... sciences... engineering.

Look out for yourself. Look into the Air Force ROTC program on campus.

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Deems Ambulance Funds Insufficient

By Barbara Casario

An SGA emergency legislation bill proposing that $1000 be set aside for an on-campus ambulance service would be merely "a drop in the bucket," toward improving emergency medical services at MSC, according to Frank Edgcombe, non-print media office coordinator and Bloomfield emergency squad volunteer.

"An ambulance alone would cost at least $10,000. Radio equipment, uniforms and training of volunteers would be additional," Edgcombe, who feels MSC needs to compliey review its system of emergency medical treatment, estimated.

THE PROPOSED bill states that an SGA committee be created to "investigate the possibility of having an ambulance service or volunteer squad." It states "the SGA appropriate from unappropriated surplus $1000, toward the project.

Drafting of the bill follows a Nov. 7 accident in which Robert Martinson, a student paralyzed from the chest down, fell down a flight of stairs in the Student Center while in his wheelchairst. Between 15 and 20 minutes elapsed before an ambulance arrived.

Edgcombe, who would serve as a legislator on the proposed committee, said he’d like to see an emergency system similar to the one in Bloomfield by which both a policeman and an ambulance are dispatched immediately upon receiving notice that an accident has occurred.

UNDER THE present system, a security guard must visit the scene of the accident first to determine whether an ambulance service is necessary, he said, and added that with a system similar to Bloomfield’s, an on-campus ambulance might not even be needed.

"What bothers me the most is the time lapse between the accident and arrival of an ambulance," he said, noting that several serious accidents as well as two deaths of students occurred at MGS.

Edgcombe believes that the college has the responsibility to provide a safe place to work or study and that the students should not carry the entire responsibility for such an incident as an ambulance.

THE BILL now stands before the SGA appropriations and welfare committees and will be voted on before the end of the semester and possibly as early as next week.

Factfinders Not Helpful, AFT Says

By Irene McKnight

The recent decision of Governor Brendan T. Byrne to not accept the factfinders report of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) illustrates the point of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) that factfinders for a pay increase, the AFT is demanding will involve 5% of the employer in a dispute to reconcile the facts.

"Factfinders have not been helpful," said AFT president, Scott Stark, to the Commission on Financing Post-Secondary Education Monday.

Stark said a graduated income tax was "necessary to finance the expanding educational needs of the college community."

"NEW JERSEY higher education received the lowest budget increase of all the 50 states last year to keep up with the inflation rate," Stark said.

The commission was addressed by a half hour NUSA presentation which included speakers from Stockton State College, MSC and St. Peter’s College.

St. Peter’s, which is not presently a member of the NUSA and was the only private college represented in the commission, emphasized the need for state funding of private institutions.

"AS COMPARED TO a state school student, a private school student is additionally taxed," Jim O’Connell, student president at St. Peter’s College.

O’Connell explained that in a state school the student pays a third of the cost of his education and the state pays two-thirds, while in a private school these three figures are reversed.

He noted that if all the private colleges in the state were to close down, the state college would have to bear the burden of increased enrollment.

O’Connell said that although it is necessary for the state to assume more of the costs in private education, he is "not sure the state is in the position to take over the private schools right now."

The student president agreed that an income tax is needed but "only after tax reforms are made."

Wayne Wiipriegenmann, the Stockton State representative on the factfinders report of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) that factfinders are not helpful in the fight for pay increases, according to McCarrenho Lacacente, AFT president.

AFSCME is a union which represents workers in state institutions. Lacacente used this example to illustrate the point that despite the recommendation of a factfinder for a pay increase, the state is not bound to increase settlements.

FACTFINDING is a technique used by bargaining agents and the employer in a dispute to reconcile differences. The factfinder is an independent professional person or persons who study the case and then make a recommendation to both parties on possible terms for settlement.

The increments in pay which the AFT is demanding will involve 5% of the base salary of over 70,000 state employees. The AFT is presently suing the state of New Jersey for the increments rather than using factfinders reports which are not binding to the governor and will not benefit about 20% of the employees, according to Lacacente.

The suit of the AFT against the state, which was filed three months ago, is pending in Union County Superior Court. Lacacente, judging from the time span involved in similar past cases, said that the case should come to court within three months.

"THERE ISN’T much point to factfinding," Lacacente stated. "It just makes people feel better." Lacacente noted that as union leader, he wants to keep his "integrity."

"I’m ashamed that any union would resort to factfinding," he said. In literature published by the AFT concerning the factfinding issue, the technique was described as "a sellout."

NISA Backs Income Tax As Tuition Hike Solution

By Donald Scarinci

The New Jersey Student Association (NUSA) publicly endorsed the income tax as a means of revenue in an address by NUSA president, Scott Stark, to the Commission on Financing Post-Secondary Education Monday.

Stark said a graduated income tax was "necessary to finance the expanding educational needs of the college community."

"NEW JERSEY higher education received the lowest budget increase of all the 50 states last year to keep up with the inflation rate," Stark said.

Menendez Offers Tuition Plan

"We would like to see students sign a contract stipulating that they will make the same tuition payments for the duration of their enrollment," Manny C. Menendez, SGA president, said, in addressing the Commission on Financing Post-Secondary Education Monday at Rider College.

Speaking as a part of the New Jersey Student Association (NUSA) delegation to the commission, Menendez called for the formation of a joint committee which would meet each year to determine what the tuition payments would be.

UNDER THE plan, the state would be paid by a student for the total four years of his degree program. When Menendez, NUSA treasurer, was questioned by the committee he noted that the details would still need to be worked out.

The commission has been taking suggestions from education leaders in preparation for making a recommendation to the Board of Higher Education next year on a means of financing higher education.

Menendez began his speech by answering the charges made by State Sen. Joseph Merlino (D-13th) that students are "politically apathetic."

"OUR ATTENDANCE before this commission is an example that discounts one of Mr. Merlino’s many intemperate statements," Menendez said.

The SGA president went on to point out that although Merlino claims that all levels of state government have felt the pinch, "The legislature just two years ago approved an extension of its staff allowance to $15,000, and that cabinet aids and appointive positions were given raises this year."

Menendez restated the NUSA position that "a progressive income tax is the only answer to our state’s problems."

"THE STUDENTS would like to see tax reformulation and suggest the possibility of instituting a graduated income tax where the first $7500 level of income would be tax exempt and sharply graduated from that point," he said.

Menendez ended his speech by calling for the establishment of a joint committee comprised of students, faculty, administrators, and legislators to examine the needs of higher education on a yearly basis.

A provocative and personal program addressing the affects education and development for beginning college students, was added as a course last year called Freshman Seminar.

"Last year it was good; this year it is sensational," Dr. Mark J. Friedman, assistant professor of psychology, said. Friedman said that the total emphasis is in the area of individual students, whereby the student becomes the subject matter. They learn about their attitudes and feelings, getting in touch with others and expressing things in an open, honest manner, Friedman said.

"Freshman Seminar" is a credit/no credit course which demands two things for a student to receive credit: Attendance, with no more than two cuts allowed and a written project, Friedman said. He added that it was a two credit, two-hour-per-week course. According to Friedman, an hour per week is spent in a small group of 10 students with a junior or senior student acting as the group facilitator, Friedman explained.

The group leaders are enrolled in the "Psychology of Adjustment" course, he added. Friedman mentioned that the course started as an informal program held in the dorms. Two years ago a committee formed and initiated it as a course.

"ANY DEPARTMENT could have had the course but no one wanted it," Friedman said. He added, "I enjoyed having the course last year so I took it again this year. Students really feel they're part of the course, that people care about them."

Thomas Carew, a senior history major who headed a "Freshman Seminar" group last year, said, "Freshman Seminar," mainly helps freshmen to get acquainted with college life." He explained that it is a good plan to integrate freshmen into the school system.

THE JUNIOR and senior facilities learn group dynamics and didactic material in "Psychology of Adjustment." The "Freshman Seminar" program gives junior and senior psychology majors a practicum, whereby they can apply what they learned," Friedman said. "But you don't have to be a psychology major; anyone can apply."

"We're hoping to get more money to run the course again next year," Friedman said. He also mentioned that 200-300 students registered for the course for spring semester but some couldn't get in because only one section of "Freshman Seminar" was offered, the reason due to lack of funds.

IF THERE are any questions regarding this course, contact Friedman in Rus Hall room 329.

Ninety additional seats, kitchen facilities for a full menu and more live entertainment are in store for MSC's Rathskeller in the Student Center.

According to manager John Keating, these developments scheduled for next semester will mark an overall expansion of the Rathskeller's services and income.

WORK ON a doorway directly from the Rathskeller to the adjacent room, once the Craft Shop, should start this week, Keating said. The lighting will be adjusted and a sound system added for "better effect," he added.

This will yield 30 more seats but Keating predicted, "I don't think we'll ever do away with lines" because crowds may increase more than seating does. "This isn't a solution--just an added service," he said.

Pizza, fried clams, burgers, shrimp and sausages will be included in the expanded menu when the work on the kitchen, now in progress, is completed next semester. Keating feels this will offer patrons an option of eating on campus in a more social atmosphere than a cafeteria.

THE $100,000 cost will come out of profits over the next 10 years, Keating estimated. Business during the slow 4-7 pm slot should pick up enough to more than compensate.

Many different kinds of live entertainment will appear at the pub on Saturdays and keep students on campus by giving them something to do, Keating said. He noted that the crowd is mostly younger students as opposed to older night students.

He explained that this is an effort to "give people something back" in the way of expanding a service already started this semester with bands like Little Silver and Mud Fables. There will be a regular budget for next semester's entertainment, unlike this semester.

THE EXPANSION of the tavern into the adjoining room was tried earlier this semester without a directly connecting doorway but most kids moved to the main room, causing overcrowding. The small room is now reserved for special gatherings.

While Keating called the waiting lines "atrocious," he asserted that the students deserve the right to bring a guest, at no extra charge. The extra room will be open Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays to accommodate large crowds.

Sales with or without live entertainment will probably remain the same at the Rathskeller on weekends, Keating said. This semester business picked up even on Saturdays, a traditionally slow night on this commuter school.

KEATING FORESEES a profitable future for the Rathskeller. Despite the additional income from opening days this semester the gross income of the Rat has still undergone a "phenomenal" increase. He estimates the figures at $13,000 for October, $30,000 in November and $37,000 for the October 20, illustrating this growth.

Also in the future may be cinderblock stalls for the men's room, the only area of any major vandalism. There have been only three fights in one and a half years, Keating stated. He expects no increase in fighting incidents.

Keating summarized his plans in saying he wanted to "change the place a bit instead of it being just a place to drink."

JSU Starts Drive For Hebrew Class

By Myra Franklin

Members of the Jewish Student Union (JSU) several weeks ago approached Dr. Wolfgang B. Fleischmann, dean of the School of Humanities, with the idea of instituting accredited "Conversational Hebrew" courses at MSC.

However, the dean thinks "Biblical Hebrew" would have more academic appeal.

AT PRESENT, four semesters of Hebrew are already offered at Kean College and MSC students can attend it there. JSU representatives contend that commuting to Kean is an inconvenience and therefore a severe drawback to this plan.

"Cross-registration is feasible; having the instructor and students from Kean come to MSC on an alternating cycle arrangement in the future will be explored if MSC registrations are substantial," Fleischmann said.

Mark Goldberg, director of Jewish Student Services of Metropolitan New Jersey, contended that in the past year JSU has hired a teacher and Hebrew classes were given on a no-credit basis.

"NOW QUESTIONING if there is a greater need is being attempted. If there is one, the college should be aware of it and meet the student need," he continued.

"We are exploring the need for a Hebrew course given for credit on campus, at which time we will go ahead and discuss the possibility further with the college," Goldberg concluded.

JSU member Joyce Muskwein is very concerned about this issue. She feels that the Jewish people are an integral part of the American culture and finds the fact that there are no courses relating to Jewish writers, artists and the Jewish involvement in America, upsetting.

ON THE question as to which type of Hebrew would be offered, "I think 'Biblical Hebrew' would be the preferable offering," Fleischmann answered, stressing that this is what JSU has.

"Biblical Hebrew" is a world, rather than a national language, interesting to all students with an interest in the Judaic heritage," he continued.
100% Needed

Health Center administrator James E. Harris has assured that the newly re-established center advisory board will make constructive reforms in the administration of the infirmary. It's hard to share his confidence if these SGA survey reports indicate that student problems with the center have stemmed back over a few years. Things aren't going to change overnight so the main attack should be directed toward the practical approach of getting there.

Anything would be an improvement over two hours worth of doctor services per weekday. Anything would be an improvement over a waiting room that exposes students' diseases to each other.

That's why 100% input should be given to the advisory board and 100% effort should be made to regulate the center to extract the utmost from its meager budget and seek ways in which funds may be rerouted from other areas to fill the gaps that lacking services are leaving.

Let's Rally!

The switch of the date for the massive Trenton anti-tuition hike student rally was shifted to Mon., Nov. 24 but this shouldn't mean any shift or diffusion of spirits. This is, incidentally, an excellent opportunity for the MSC administration, American Federation of Teachers (AFT) members and other faculty members to prove whether or not they stand for education. The students have already expressed their disquiet with the Maloney administration, the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) has a catchy phrase for pacification purposes.

If the students are really sure of themselves, they need only report to the committee. The students have already expressed their disquiet with the Maloney administration, the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) has a catchy phrase for pacification purposes.

An article that appeared in the Equal Rights Edition of the Montclairian published on October 23rd, 1975, titled "Education Drives Down Dead End," discusses the issue of education in New Jersey and other states. The article highlights the challenges faced by students due to high unemployment and the lack of funding for education.

The article begins by stating that "Education Drives Down Dead End" and mentions the current state of education in New Jersey and other states. The article highlights the challenges faced by students due to high unemployment and the lack of funding for education.

The article then goes on to discuss the issue of education in New Jersey and other states. It mentions that the situation is not improving, and that the state is still facing economic difficulties. The article also highlights the challenges faced by students due to high unemployment and the lack of funding for education.

The article concludes by emphasizing the importance of education and the need for support from the government and society. It mentions the need for increased funding for education and the importance of providing educational opportunities for all students.
Solution Not Answer but Problem

To the Editor:
The threat of a tuition hike may become a reality as early as January 1976. The problem is finding an effective solution to this situation.

Through various rallies and demonstrations at New Jersey college campuses, students have voiced their opposition to a tuition hike. However, this means of action can only do so much and unless used strategically will not have much affect at all.

The issue of a tuition increase will be decided by the Department of Higher Education, Brendan T. Byrne, NJ governor and the New Jersey legislature. They are the focal points that we students across the state must direct our actions toward. These persons are going to render a decision affecting our futures and it is up to us as students to have our opinions heard.

The Tuition Task Force Committee at MSC has begun to work on these areas. While researching possible solutions we came upon a $10 million supplementary appropriation proposal submitted by the Department of Higher Education to the Byrne office. This appropriation, if approved by the legislature, will be divided among the eight state colleges and Rutgers, the State University to help defray costs. It may delay the proposed tuition hike.

However, this bill has not been assigned a bill number. Until this is done, it would not be placed in the legislature to be considered and voted on.

The Tuition Task Force Committee is trying to find legislators to sponsor this appropriation. If we can gather enough support we can ensure its ratification. We cannot do this as one isolated group. Efforts to push this bill through have to be statewide. It has to be a united effort.

Our legislators as representatives of the people must know students are struggling to make ends meet without any financial aid. We cannot let them make decisions on their own personal views. We must demand that they represent our views.

Time is running short. The time to act is now. Please contact the Tuition Task Force Committee of the SGA at MSC. Together we can win.

Quarterly a Parasite

To the Editor:
There are a few students out of thousands involved in fighting for a cause that affects each student enrolled in a New Jersey state college. There is no way that these few students can win this fight alone. Whether you know it or not, the New Jersey legislature is inevitably going to raise tuition unless the students unite together and show their concern.

I can appreciate the fact that people have classes to attend, exams to study for and papers to do but what a lot of students don't realize is that if the government raises the tuition, many undergraduates may not be able to afford to attend MSC or any other state college.

Don't think that your state aid in study for and papers to do but what a lot of students don't realize is that if the government raises the tuition, many undergraduates may not be able to afford to attend MSC or any other state college.

You might want to do something about it. Attend the tuition rally on Monday with other concerned students from MSC and the other state colleges to protest this hike. Everyone is an asset to this cause. Yoanne O'Farrell

To the Editor:
The MONTCLARION can be proud of its present sports editor and staff who have earned the fine coverage I have seen in the 26 years I have been associated with MSC.

This staff writes extremely well. They seek personal interviews from the coaches of the various sports and make the reporting more personal.

On behalf of the entire athletic staff, I would like to thank this dedicated group for the competent and professional job they are performing.

Judeo-Christian Ideology Defines Rights of Women

It is important to see first that the controversy addressing the question of the role of women in society basically involves the principles of obedience, submission and authority. From the biblical standpoint, every living thing, whether human or animal, has an appointed place and function. There is a sense in which no human being is totally independent. Rather, all are in subordination to some kind of authority.

However, the modern cult of personality has made submission a degrading thing. We are told that we cannot be "whole persons" if we submit. Obedience is thought to be restrictive and therefore bad. Still further, many have defined freedom as the absence of restraint. How far from the words of Jesus who said, "If you abide in my work ... you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

WHAT IS FREEDOM?

Freedom in God's view always lies in the realm of discipline which includes the need for obedience. Wholeness is achieved not by casting off restraint but by obeying the laws of creation.

A river must be harnessed, limited, channeled and restricted in order to produce power. Elizabeth Elliot, noted Christian author, has perceptively stated that, "It is not by leveling and equalization that life is enriched, but by recognition of and obedience to the order given by the Creator. A knowledge of what a thing is made for is prerequisite to its proper use. In the vastly harmonious arrangement of the universe, it is not so much a question of whether a creature is higher or better, or lower or worse, but a question of what it is supposed to do."

It is no more a degradation to the woman that she

BIBLE POSITIVE

The biblical picture of women is a positive one. There is no intimation in the teachings of Jesus that women are inferior. In the epistles of Paul, women are portrayed as religious nonentities. Men are singled out for special mention and appear as bright examples of Christian intelligence, activity and dignity.

However, when the family was established as a necessary foundation for social order, it was imperative that one of the two sexes should exercise authority. The family government could not be consistent, peaceful and orderly if it were double-headed.

This order was founded in the unchangeable laws of nature. The man is endowed with the natural attributes which qualify him to labor, submit actions, protect and govern. The woman was endowed with lesser but equally admirable attributes of body, mind and heart.

"To say that submission is synonymous with the granting of power, with dullness and colorlessness, spiritlessness, passivity, immaturity, servility or even the violation of personality is to miscapture the biblical concept of authority." The woman's role, particularly in the home, is a matter of functional responsibility making her just as important as the man. At the same time she complements his work with qualities and abilities that only she possesses.

Variety Keynotes Darius’ Performance

By Barbara Ponsi

Darius the cartoonist, known for his comic strip "The Mourners," made his theatrical debut last month, starring in "The Mourners" at the Town Hall, New York City. The performance was a mix of comedy and drama, with Darius taking on various roles, including that of an enthusiastic stand-up comedian.

The show opened with Darius visiting a mental institution, where he met a man who had just been released. Darius made the transition from birth to life, a smooth one as he went into the motions of a hardworking laborer. However, as closing time neared, the actor started panting, begging Darius to turn around. Darius was playing a downtrodden, henpecked husband.

When Darius finally got to sleep, his dreams transported him from his nearly unbearable reality to a fantasy world in which he was the hero. He gave the audience quite a charge as he went through the motions of mimicking an opera star and a champion matador. The alarm clock soon rings, however, jolting the man back to the real world.

In "The Addict," Darius went through the motions of a dope addict’s life with stunning clarity. The addict alternately shoots up, pops pills, and smokes marijuana. Darius perfectly conveyed a feeling of pain and despair.

Darius proved himself as a comedian once again in "Audition Time, Broadway." when he portrayed a nervous actor auditioning for a loud-mouthed, insulting director.

In the second half, Darius demonstrated the many possible manifestations of unhappiness as he danced in agitation, nightmarish music to rock music, superbly depicting the character’s emotional plight. The contrast of these two modes of unhappiness added up to quite an impressive effect, which completely captivated the audience.

"The VILLAGE idiot" was a touching scene as Darius played a retarded man who’s extremely attached to his doll. When he accidentally dropped it, he thinks he’s killed it, and slowly, but correctly, begins to cry. The audience was visibly moved by the end of this scene.

The finale, entitled "Death of a Scarecrow," was a disturbing scene which concluded with Darius lying on stage, presumably dead. It was a heavy way to end a show and was perhaps intended as a commentary on the suffering common man experiences while living day to day.

DOUBLE DEALING: Jack Nicholson as R.P. McMurphy shows the inmates of the state mental hospital a new kind of card game in this scene from the film version of the famed Ken Kesey novel "One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest," now playing in New York at the Sutton and Paramount Theatres.

Nicholson extracts all the bawdy humor that a character of McMurphy's disposition can provide and his rigorous performance brings off the moments of mental torment and the physical tortures of the shock treatments remarkably well. His imaginary baseball game that rallies the inmates in front of an iridescent tv set is an absolutely marvelous moment.

For the austere limitations of the role, Fletcher actually projects concern and care as Nurse Ratched and only too late in the film does her performance evolve into the ogre-like oppressor that she is supposed to be.

These are both two good performances but they don't relate. Fletcher is too low-keyed to warrant the lip service and the snotty defiance with which Nicholson treats her. Nicholson is flamboyant. Fletcher is not and they don't break out into out-and-out-dreadful conflict.

IT'S NOT definitively depicted whether or not things are as bad off for the inmates, either, but the cast assembled does a tremendous ensemble job of fleshing out the group. Sampson, William Redfield, Christopher Lloyd, Danny De Vito and Sidney Lassick, especially, each endearing portraits of troubled men, and Brad Dourif makes an impressive screen debut as Billy Bibbit, whom the tag-of-war between McMurphy and Nurse Ratched drives to an ultimately enlivening.

But even in this gallery of fine acting, the major allegorical conflict between McMurphy and Nurse Ratched has been watered down and slightly distorted so that even the memorable "opening and closing shots, which have a mythic quality about them, don't have as strong an effect as they should.

So "One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest" is a movie of great elements in search of something to bond them tightly together into a drama of lasting impact.

Beauty Contest Comedy Goes All the Way

By Mike Finnegan

Satire never truly works unless it goes all the way and "Smile" goes almost all the distance to become one of the best and most singular film comedies in recent years.

For "Smile" takes all of its characters, as well as the audience, over the coals, making some telling observations about role playing and hypocrisy in daily living. This is one film that bravely possibly alienating its audience by rocking their sides with laughter at their own expense.

It revolves around three young boys who bask in the glory as chief judge (Bruce Dern), its money-conscious producer (Geoffrey) and Prather, whose expressive face has a feeling of honesty that is missing in much of the makeup of the other characters.

DERN SPOUTS cliches and propounds his points with distaste, not at all sharing his sarcastic wife Annabelle views Newton's purchase of the house with distaste, not at all sharing his enthusiasm. What follows is a fun, very fast-moving, and very witty play," the professor of speech and theater said.

W. SCOTT MacConnell, producer of the Major Theater Series and scenic and lighting designer for the Kaufman-Hart production, elaborated on the plot.

"Fuller is a guy just wild to leave New York in order to find peace and tranquility in Bucks County. Instead, he and his family find that 'getting back to the land' is not all that it's cracked up to be.

"At first, the house is in a shambles. It has leaks, no toilets or running water, no screens on the windows and even a cow in the kitchen - not to mention an unfriendly neighbor. But there is a happy ending," the associate professor of speech and theater said.

"If there is any social commentary in the play, it is, continued, 'it is the idea that you can't buy peace and tranquility.'

Both MacConnell and McElroy seemed anxious to point out the fact that the production has relatively little to do with the Bicentennial. "We're not pushing for a Bicentennial show," MacConnell said. "McElroy agreed, stating that 'The fact that George Washington Slept Here is probably slept in the house is only incidental to the plot.'

MacConnell feels that this Kaufman-Hart vehicle offers a "fairly comic situation" but has been done before by most amateur groups in the past. Though this is the first time the comedy has been produced at ABC, both MacConnell and McElroy are confident that the production will be a good one.

"It's a fun play for actors to do," MacConnell said, "and we have excellent resources to work with." McElroy noted that "We have a high-calibre production. The cast, which is comprised of both graduate and undergraduate students, likes the script and are especially fond of the play's characters. They have been very eager and cooperative."

Mark Speer will portray Newton Fuller and Mary Ann Monteverde will play his wife. Others in the cast include Daniel Evan, Mark Charter and Mary Ellen Lurie. RICK FOX a speech/theater graduate student and designer for the show and has designed very attractive looking 1930's costumes.

Tickets for "George Washington Slept Here" are $1.25 for students, $2 for senior citizens and $2.50 for others.

Guketlov Earns Trip to Russia

By Hank Gola

For 24 hours, three former MSC wrestlers drove straight to Nebraska. But before they could even begin to compare to the length of the trip one of them earned.

Nabil Guketlov, who was a two-time All-American at MSC, earned a berth on the United States team to tour the Soviet Union by winning the 125-pound division at the Great Plains Open in Lincoln, Neb. Craig Spencer grabbed a second-place spot while Steve Streltzer didn’t qualify.

Strange, Guketlov, who is still working toward his psychology degree at MSC, gave his brother Ahmed all the credit.

“He posed as our coach from the New York Athletic Club and got Spencer and myself top seeds while getting Streltzer seeded third,” Guketlov said.

Guketlov opened with a 5-1 victory over Casey Bartels of Iowa State University. Then he topped Rich Skyles of the University of Minnesota, 3-1. Guketlov explained that the 6-1 win was a lot easier than he thought it would be.

“He used a square stance with a lot of arm drags and shoves. The way I wrestle, leading with my sugar foot then coming with an underhook, took away a lot of his moves. It was one of the first matches where I thought throughout the entire match,” Guketlov said.

By Winning, Guketlov qualified for a camp where the final selections will be made. But the Panamanian native foresees no difficulty in making the squad now. His only worry has to do with his Russian heritage.

“I’m afraid that they may draft me into the Russian army,” he joked. “If they see my name they might not let me past the border.”

By John Delery

Will 1975 be the year MSC finally makes Larry Sciacchetano’s dream come true? Can MSC take home that first coveted Division 3 wrestling title? Sciacchetano thinks so but two obstacles have to be overcome. Listen...

“Our chances depend on how well our freshmen develop and if we can successfully avoid injuries,” the enthusiastic mentor explained. “We are a young team. We have a lot of freshmen and kids who haven’t wrestled in two years. We’ll need time to get it together,” Sciacchetano insisted.

The Indians, under Sciacchetano, have finished second and third the past two years. But Sciacchetano isn’t satisfied and won’t stop until that gold winners’ trophy is mounted in his office.

“We have a good chance,” Sciacchetano noted. “I am confident that we have as good a shot as anyone.”

Sciacchetano didn’t take the off season lying down. With a few holes to plug up he brought six state champions, one state runnerup and a total of 11 state qualifiers under his wing. And if that sounds incredible the recruits have won a total of 136 individual state tourney championships.

“We had a great recruiting year,” Sciacchetano said. “From what I heard only Oklahoma and Oklahoma State had better recruiting seasons than us.”

Heading this impressive list is Dom DiGiacomo from Hanover Park and a brother of MSC’s All-American 150-pounder Greg. With Dante Caprio out with a high ankle sprain, the 118-pound slot. Tundo was second at last season’s nationals, will be aptly replaced by either Jeff Mace or Ken Mallory. Both of these freshmen are also state champs.

Vinnie Tundo will fill the 134-pound slot. Tundo was second at last year to John Carroll University’s Mark Howard-Gaitt at the nationals and narrowly took it on the chin to Don Rhine in the University nationals at Princeton.

“We CAN always count on Vinnie and this year should be no exception,” Sciacchetano noted.

Looking at the 142 and 150 pound divisions, two returnees, Kevin Welter and Greg DiGiacomo, have the inside track at the moment. Both were All-Americans last year. Ricky Freitas should give Welter a run for his money though.

Dave Specia has finally rebounded from the knee ailments which have plagued him the past two seasons and will man the 177-pound spot in the lineup.

John Stoll will replace the graduated John Reid at 190 and either Jeff Mace or Ken Mallory. Both of these freshmen are also state champs.

MSC Grapplers Number One?

By John Delery

MONTCLAIRON—Thurs., Nov. 20, 1975

His back DiGiacomo is the main contender to fill the vacated spot.

"Dom has looked super so far," Sciacchetano boasted.

"We addition to DiGiacomo, George Kacavos should slip right into the lineup at 118 pounds. Kacavos is a high school All-American and a two-time Massachusetts state champ.

"George will be a big asset to us. He is our first legitimate 118-pounder since Ed Alber graduated," the amiable mentor offered. "We gave up six points at 118 a lot last year but we won't have to worry about that problem this season."
Gelston Foresees Bright Hoop Year

By Phil Salerno
Dr. Richard A. Grey is the newly appointed track and field coach for both the indoor and outdoor campaigns, effective immediately. The position became open when Dr. George Horn resigned, after the spring track season.

Grey, who received his EdD at Fordham University, has been involved in track for the last 32 years beginning at Central High School in Newark. He also served a four-year tenure as head track and field coach at Downsworth High School where he turned the team into one of the best in the state after his second year. That year placed runner-up in the Group 4 State Championships.

GREY’S NEW position will include all practices, competitions and off season recruiting. He will remain in his present capacity as assistant football coach.

Although he plans to do recruiting from area high schools, Grey also hopes to bring out the students with track experience who are already at MSC. “There are plenty of students working around the campus in championship jackets on but none of them coming out,” Grey said.

The track program has not been very successful in the past few years. Grey is planning some changes already before the first practice has been held.

Grey has submitted a proposal to athletic director William P. Dioguardi asking for improvements in the program. Facilities, class scheduling and public relations are some of the improvements in the proposal.

“I WON’T allow the track team to be treated like third class citizens,” Grey said.

Along with improving the facilities, Grey hopes to change the team’s attitude and achieve a better ethnic balance.

“I would like to develop a team concept rather than a few individuals,” Grey said. “We need a strong team morale, we should be supportive of each other,” Grey continued.

UNIFIED TEAM workouts, which have been absent until this fall, is one of the methods the new coach plans to use to institute the team concept.

Grey also hopes to improve the racial balance of the predominantly white track team. “I hope to achieve a better ethnic balance that is representative of the campus population,” Grey said.

The complaint voiced by Grey in his proposal included a concern for members of the track team. Because of this concern, a new group, the Friends of Track, has been formed.

Ax MSC in Tourney

By Joan Rizzio
Despite a poor showing in the first E-AW-IUSFA Mid-Atlantic Field Hockey Championships held this past weekend at Millersville State College, the MSC women’s field hockey team still concluded the 1975 season with a very improved 7-3-2 record in regular play.

MSC’s poor performance in the regional championships can be attributed to a number of things. Its first round opponent was number-five ranked Ursinus College which slaughtered the Squaws, 11-0, and went on to finish in second place. On top of that MSC lost the services of two of its starting players. Dawn Lacey suffered a muscle pull before the tournament, and Karin Dahstrom fractured her nose midway through the Ursinus game.

MSC’s defense was extremely strong and losing Dahstrom, who is the mainstay of our defense, hurt us,” MSC coach Donna Olson commented. She added, “Joanne Zayaswasky, who plays junior varsity, stepped in a difficult situation and did a fine job.”

MSC didn’t fare too well in the consolation round either. After defeating William Paterson College, 1-0, in the first round, MSC suffered a 3-0 setback at the hands of Rutgers University in the second.

It is the strongest tournament, and it showed the power of this region,” Olson declared. “It was a very good experience to play against a team as good as Ursinus. The overall tournament was handled very well, and the officiating was excellent. The weather wasn’t too good, but at least it was the same for all of the teams.”

THE PURPOSE of this tournament was to qualify for the national championships to be held in Harriland, Va., Nov. 27-30. Three Pennsylvania colleges captured the coveted qualifying spots. West Chester State College finished in first place, Ursinus in second and Lock Haven State College in third.

Olson considered the 1975 season a very successful one. It was indeed a very good one as the statistics speak for themselves. Of MSC’s seven wins, five were shutouts and both of the ties were 1-1 heartbreakers to Princeton University and Trenton State College, respectively.

The team was shutout only twice all season indicating a strong and improved offense.

The Squaws averaged three goals per game while their opponents managed a mere goal per game against MSC goalie Tracy Brown. Brown also averaged nine saves a game.

THE LEADING scorers were sophomore Anne Winsberg with 12 goals and senior Cindy Beradino and sophomore Myra Graziano with seven goals apiece.

The team has improved tremendously this year, increasing its win total from four last year to seven this year.

Only two players will be lost to graduation, seniors Cindy Beradino and Patty Carly, so most of the team will be kept intact.

The leading scorer, by Grey in his proposal included a concern for members of the track team. Because of this concern, a new group, the Friends of Track, has been formed.

Coach Ollie Gelston makes a point at practice.

As the basketball season approaches, the MSC cagers must confront one serious question, can the Indians rid their propensity to commit turnovers? Well, coach Ollie Gelston thinks so.

“He should definitely feel comfortable at this position. He’s an mentor. “He can put the pressure on our opponents offense and

On the contrary, Gelston foresees a well-balanced attack.

“By doing this we’ve faced teams like Memphis State and Grambling, and the competition has brought the best out of us,” he said.

For ever and ever the boro will conquer again," shouted the Glassboro State College football player as he raised his index finger into the air indicating "number one." The Prof players waved among family and friends, accepting congratulations, slapping each other on the back, letting loose with joyous cheers.

"Bringing it back to Glasbro!"

"It stays in Glasbro!"

"Good game, helluva game!"

"Yah, Yah, Yah!"

"My mama told me!"

THE PROFS had just defeated Trenton State 29-13, in the biggest New Jersey State College Athletic Conference football game of the season. It was the kind of hard hitting, tough football game that has become a tradition between the two schools. For the second year in a row it was Glassboro State which came out on top, and there was no holding back on the celebration.

The New Jersey State College Athletic Conference crown wasn't the only thing riding on Saturday's MSC-Glassboro State game. The overall winner of the MONTCLARION staff picks was also at stake.

But who fights for this compromise except for a few complaining individuals? Soccer coach Bob Wolfarth is content to allow the soccer team to be co-ordinated so as to have its schedule mesh with that of the football team. Both teams could play the majority of their home games at Sprague.

Nevertheless, even with the loss, you sensed that the team still had its pride Schrack said amid the locker room confusion.

The problems of inadequate facilities funds and maintenance have been pointed to by Dioguardi, MSC's athletic director.

"We try to get the other teams on as much as we can but a field can only take so many uses," Dioguardi explains.

"The Prof locker room could have cheered up even the most avid of bellows. Occasional outbursts of excitement split the air as the Indians came slowly in from the field you could sense the extreme disappointment that each of the players were feeling. Silently they entered the team room, sat down and locked at each other as if to say, "What went wrong?"

Whose Field?

When God invented football Bill Dioguardi said let there be lights and there were lights and they were good. When God invented soccer Dioguardi exclaimed the boosters to the Paradise Lost of Brookdale Park, "Where is justice?" cried those who would rather serve in Sprague than in Brookdale.

There are several reasons why football has taken priority over the other sports including not just soccer but girls field hockey, lacrosse and track. The problems of inadequate facilities funds and maintenance have been pointed to by Dioguardi, MSC's athletic director.

"We try to get the other teams on as much as we can but a field can only take so many uses," Dioguardi explains.

But but a field can only take so many uses. Football crowds jump into the thousands while soccer draws only around 500. While football tickets can sell for up to $12 a season for a reserved seat the soccer crowd wants to get in free.

What was that story about serving two masters? Is the department looking to make money or to give all of their athletes optimum exposure?

THE RESULT of the exile to Brookdale Park has been small and anonymity for most of the players. Dioguardi has done his best to get the soccer team on the field, but his best has only resulted in two games scheduled on that field per year.

Even if the overuse of the field is a major obstacle, why couldn't the soccer team be co-ordinated so as to have its schedule mesh with that of the football team. Both teams could play the majority of their home games at Sprague.

This would seem a suitable compromise considering the outcry that would probably be heard if one were to suggest equality for all athletes and have the football team playing a game or two at Brookdale.

But who fights for this compromise except for a few complaining individuals? Soccer coach Bob Wolfarth is content to allow Dioguardi to give only what belongs to soccer to soccer. Unfortunately Sprague Field belongs to Dioguardi, along with any decisions concerning scheduled games on that field and the athletic director's mind seems to be geared towards football.
PERPLEXING PROF: Glassboro State College's all-everything Robbie Reid (25) cuts around Orlando Alvarez's '53 of MSC while returning a first-quarter punt. Reid was held pretty much in check except for one TD pass.

Some statistics are very deceptive. If one looked at the bottom line in Saturday's MSC-Glassboro State College game he would find that the Indians won the battle of yards gained by a comfortable 393 to 289, and three thefts in particular sealed the outcome.

In retrospect, many of the Tribe's key offensive personnel were playing in their first big game. In addition to Katzenstein and Schenauer, the wide receivers Alvarez and Keith Hayes are freshmen. Running back Walt Roberson, who fumbled in the first half, is only a sophomore.

If it is any solace to Indian fans, three years ago a nervous sophomore backedắt Robbie Reid fumbled three times for the Profs in a 41-14 beating at the hands of MSC.
