Trustees Lay Off Five More

By Josephine Policastro

The MSC Board of Trustees laid off five faculty members, appointed a new Vice President of Administration and Finance and awarded 17 sabbaticals along with granting sabbaticals to 47 faculty members who have not been reappointed for the 1976-1977 school year.

ANCHESTER, N.J. — Professor and Assistant Deputy Chancellor at New York University, Elliot I. Mininberg was named Assistant Commissioner of Education and Finance. Jerome R. Quinn, Director of Institutional Planning and Budget, has temporarily filled the position since July 1975.

In addition to the faculty who were laid off in February, five new layoffs made a total of 52 teachers, Gerald A. Lefboff, Board Chairman, read a resolution making all 52 of the faculty layoffs the first to be hired when funds expected to be given to the college are made available. Quinn stated that the five persons laid off received "no but" letters as did the 47 February layoffs. The "no means you are not hired and the "but" means there is a chance you will be hired if additional funds are received.

Mininberg is expected to begin his new job on May 1, according to Quinn. At that time Quinn will resume his former administrative job which he has simultaneously held along with the Acting Vice President of Administration and Finance duties. Quinn is hopeful that the Board members concerned about sabbaticals was interviewed after Robert Donner, Faculty Representative to the Board, asked that in view of the financial situation and the possible loss of jobs which teachers have faced this year, all requests for sabbaticals be filled. Hauser criticized the Board's policy for awarding sabbaticals calling it "vague" and asked that a committee be set up to review the criteria to be used to decide whether or not a teacher should receive a sabbatical. He added that the State allows the Board to grant 20 sabbaticals a year.

Candidates Launch Campaigns

By Rich Figel

The 1976 SGA Executive and Board elections are underway with some surprise candidates and an upset in the SGA nominee for the Representative to the Board.

As expected by SGA members, Richard Preztunik, the current SGA Secretary, stated that he has decided to run for President. However, SGA Cabinet member, Ken Rothweiler, will run as the current President contrary to rumors that he would run for Vice President. A third presidential candidate, E. K. Jamieson voting against it.

"My only SGA experience is donating money through my SGA fees," Walker said. Walker downplayed the importance of experience and felt that a great deal of experience might even be a negative factor. "When you're part of a system for so long you can become biased toward that system," he explained.

SLORANCE BELIEVES that his scholastic achievements are an important to prove that you're a successful student. It would validly to my position on the Board," he noted. Slorance is a sophmore political science major.

"Preztunik FEELS that his "outspoken" qualifications is her experience with the "SGA. I won't waste my time having to learn what to do," she said. Preztunik, a junior political science major, also stressed her adaptability as an important qualification.

Rothweiler does not want to change the current system. He added that the State allows the Board of Trustees to determine the position of all 52 of the faculty layoffs the first to be hired when funds expected to be given to the college are made available. Quinn stated that the five persons laid off received "no but" letters as did the 47 February layoffs. The "no means you are not hired and the "but" means there is a chance you will be hired if additional funds are received.

AFT Ballots Thrown Out

By Barbara Ponsi

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) elections have been postponed because the original ballots were accidentally thrown away by a janitor, according to Thunder Haas, Chairman of the Department of Educational Foundations who is also responsible for running the elections.

AFT President Marconantonio Lacatena is being challenged by Cindy Long, Assistant Professor of Political Science.

Health Center May Open Weekends

By Barbara Cesario

Students on campus during weekends who suddenly find themselves in need of medical attention may be able to find it at the Health Center, if an SGA bill providing 24 hour service at the Center is approved.

"Those interested may include nurses who have returned to school or veterans who were medics in the service," according to Kesby.

HE MENTIONED that blood tests, which are currently sent out, could be analyzed at the Center with the added help.

Kesby added that students with no background in nursing could assist by acting as receptionists.

Personnel at the Health Center now consist of one part-time doctor, four nurses and a secretary. Two other nurses' positions have been frozen, upon resignations, for financial reasons.

WITHOUT THE additional nurses, the Center had to abandon the 24 hour service it had previously maintained, Kesby continued.

Although there's a possibility that one of the nurses' lines may be unfrozen, Kesby would like to see students working at the Center through passage of the bill.

Supplementary funds for the Work/Study Program may be taken from the Student Services fee, which is now $17.50, will increase.

"THE HEALTH Center may just be allotted a larger part of this fee," he said.

Students Prompt Passage of Grants

By Irene McKnight

A bill passed by the House of Representatives on April 14 will add $315 million to the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) program for the 1976-77 school year. The National Student Lobby (NSL) and the National Student Association (NSA) were instrumental in lobbying for the BEOG grants in Congress.

STEVE PRESSMAN, director of the NSL in Washington, D.C., explained in a statement before the House Labor-Health, Education and Welfare Appropriations Subcommittee that the BEOG program represents "one cornerstone of all state and federal student financial aid."

Pressman noted that the NSL supported the BEOG bill since its motto is "no perches should be denied access to postsecondary education because financial barriers and level of personal financial income."

A spokesman from the NSA noted that the NSA worked with various groups such as the state college student associations to gain ground support for the bill. The NSA also contacted members of Congress on the Appropriations Committee through a phone poll.

The House Appropriations Committee has additionally recommended a BEOG supplemental of $476 million.

PASSAGE OF the amendment, which was sponsored by Rep. David Obey, brings a total BEOG supplemental to $791 million.

Combined with the original student aid appropriation passed by Congress last summer, the BEOG program will have a total of $1,315 billion for the 1976-77 school year.

Pressman described the passage of the bill as a "clear victory for students due to the direct communication of students from all over the country with members of Congress."

Manny C. Menendez, SGA President, sent letters to members of Congress asking for their support.

Replies to the letters were received from Joseph G. Mininah, Milliken Fenwick, James J. Flora, Robert A. Roes and Dominick V. Danells. All five voted in favor of the bill.

PRESSMAN, prior to the voting in the House of Representatives, said, "We'll let Congress know that students are watching. They know we're there; they just don't hear from us as much as they should."

The final vote in the House on the BEOG bill was 318-68, with 46 abstentions.

The Senate is scheduled to vote on the supplemental appropriations bill after its return from Easter recess on Mon., April 26. Final action is expected in early May.

Planned Parenthood to Counsel

By Joanne Swanson

Planned Parenthood is bringing human sexuality counseling to MSC students for free of charge.

According to Kathy Clark, a representative from the organization, Planned Parenthood enables couples to have "choice and not be forced to." The PROGRAM is being presented in an effort to meet the needs of students in the area of sexuality. In addition it will present Planned Parenthood as a community service which strives to straighten out misconceptions about sexual health.

According to Clark the program will include a discussion and demonstration on various methods of birth control including a talk on which methods don't work. She also plans to discuss parenthood, venereal diseases, conception and deterring.

She hopes to further meet the students' needs by making herself available for questioning and making sure they seek guidance in complete confidence.

"THE PROGRAM will start on the ground level," according to Ed Martin, Assistant Dean of Students.

He added that each student would be given the information needed to deal with his specific needs.

According to Martin the program will be of value in many different ways. It will offer ways to watch out for the welfare of youth in terms of their sexual problems, will make people aware of the venereal disease problem in the state and add to developing healthy sexual attitudes in the students.

HE SAID that a realistic assessment of today's sexuality must be made and the needs of students must be met. The program is tied in with the Health Center to enable students to obtain further guidance from the doctor, according to Martin.

Clark also discussed the need which exists on campus to straighten out misconceptions. She feels that the system should be more education. After presenting lectures in home economics and health classes she said she will coordinate with questions from the students.

Clark is a graduate of MSC with certification to teach health. She will work in the Health Center every Tuesday between 1 pm and 3 pm.

SGA Pushes Voter Registration Drive

By Helen Moschetto

Aiming to increase student impact on state decisions concerning the financial status of state funded education, the SGA is initiating a voter registration drive extending from April 21 through April 30.

Voting is viewed by the SGA as the primary means of carrying constructive action to occur. Both Kate Mulheren, voter registration drive Chairwoman and Kevin Kesby, SGA Vice President agree that "there is no excuse for not registering."

Concerned with positive results in comparison to the disappointing fall registration drive, Kesby explained that memos have been distributed to all faculty members and dorm students and are posted around campus.

Voters will be readily accepted to help, the only requirement being that they are registered voters themselves, Kesby said.

ALTHOUGH MULHEREN believes that letter writing is effective, she saw voting as the real power base for change.

Similarly, Kesby believed it "wouldn't be inconceivable to have some kind of impact" if a large proportion of all students in the state schools were to register and vote.

Mulheren hoped to curtail student apathy which was evident in the past and cited that a very small percentage of the state population are registered to vote, with a smaller percentage actually voting.

Emphasizing voter power, Mulheren said, "If one is not registered to vote, then they are not considered a constituent in any elected official's district. Therefore, that official will be less apt to consider their views."

A small crowd gathered throughout the day to listen to the conference's speakers and to view films on homosexuality.

"The turnout for the conference was pretty good, considering the lack of publicity it got," Rubino said. She explained that because the state prohibits the showing of pornographic films on campus she had to assure CINA and CLUB that just because the conference was about homosexuality it wasn't going to be pornographic.

"THE CONFERENCE began in the morning with a lecture by John Seymour, Chairman of the Psychology Department. Seymour outlined the reasons why people become homosexual. Following Seymour, there were two panels made up of gay women and gay men. Each panel discussed what it was like being gay and how they have to cope with it in present day society. Marge Ragona, a Pastor from the Metropolitan Church of New York and Creighton Clark, Representative of the Dignity House which is a church for gay Catholics, spoke on homosexuality and the Church. CLARK STATED, "There is no contradiction about being gay and belonging to the Church. The Church's attitudes toward sex are neither acceptable nor reasonable in today's society." He continued, "We have members of the Church who are gay and members who are divorced. Both have been rejected by the Catholic Church. Our Church provides Catholics, who have been denied their opportunity to receive the sacraments, the right to be Christians."

A look at homosexuals in films was presented by Vito Russo who termed his lecture "The Celluloid Closet." Russo emphasized the power of the media to create stereotypes of gay people in the minds of straight people. Russo also pointed out that films have been in general sexist throughout the years. Russo attempted to point this out through the use of film clips from such movies as "The Children's Hour", "The Boys in the Band" and many more. Russo said, "People have only to believe what they see on the screen because gays haven't been coming out of the closet until recently. So the stereotypes portrayed in the movies have become reality to straight people."

"RUBINO CONCLUDED that if straights and gays could get together and openly discuss sexuality, society would start to get rid of axiems."

The final lecture at the conference was presented by Jean O'Leary of the National Gay Task Force. O'Leary is also a delegate for Morris Udall at the Democratic National Convention, O'Leary spoke on "Homosexuality and the Law."

Germany Must Lead
Struggle Against Communism

By Tom Malcolm
Walter Picard, a member of the Parliament of West Germany, said that at present "the balance of atomic strength" favors the Communist world over the capitalist countries, at an April 21 lecture in the Student Center.
Picard also said the Federal Republic of Germany is the only European country able to assume a leading role in the struggle to see that "Europe does not become a Socialist continent."

HE FREQUENTLY emphasized West Germany's strong interest in a unified Europe but he pointed out that because of her history, Germany is hesitant to accept a leadership position in Europe even though she is "economically, socially and politically the strongest country in Europe. Since World War II," Picard said, "Germany has refused to take a leadership position in Europe but now she must."
Picard has been a member of the Christian Democratic Party, and his party's goal is "peace through strength" and that Germany is the only European country currently increasing spending for defense. He expressed concern over the fact that the marine power of the USSR surpasses that of all the other countries of the world combined.

He added that according to a report he had read, the present strength of the United States Marines leaves much to be desired.
Picard pointed to the Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) as the two most viable means of achieving unity and prosperity in Europe.

Picard has been a member of the West German Bundestag since 1965 and is considered an expert in foreign, cultural policy and its relationship to Germany's foreign policy. His appearance here was jointly sponsored by the German and History Departments.
Prohibition Poses Threat

By Frances Fleischer

"Dear Student: This is to remind you that you are on PROBATION." Some 618 students received a letter this semester beginning with the same alarming pronouncement. Their grade point averages (GPAs) had fallen below 2.00.

YOU'RE AUTOMATICALLY placed on probation at MSC if your GPA, either for the last semester or cumulatively, drops below 2.00. You are not in danger of being dropped, however, unless you remain on probation for two consecutive semesters.

Even if you've never been on probation, you are required by the college to meet certain "retention levels" in order to remain at MSC. According to Anthony R. Kuolt, Administrative Associate for the Academic Affairs Office, the retention levels vary according to how many semester hours (sh) you've earned. "If you've earned 26 sh, the level is 1.600; for 58 to 89 sh, it's 1.800; and for 90 sh or more, it's 2.00," he explained. "A student who falls below retention level is usually dropped," he added.

WHAT HAPPENS to a student who is dropped like this? According to the academic regulations of MSC, an undergraduate student who has attended the college for at least one full calendar year and whose cumulative average is not at the retention level may be placed on probation.

"Being on academic furlough gives the student the privilege of applying for readmission after one year. But there's no guarantee of being readmitted," Kuolt said. This is considered a privilege because being on academic furlough gives you a second chance with the college but if you repeat your performance (or lack of it) the second time around, you're subject to academic dismissal with no chance of future readmission.

Kuolt theorized that many of the approximately 200 students a year placed on academic furlough go out into the world and see for the first time why they need a college education. "Many of them had no purpose, no direction before. Academic furlough often gives students a chance to discover what they really want," he explained.

Latin Studies Set For Fall

What could be more valuable to students today than a program designed to provide more career options? This is the express purpose of the new Latin American Area Studies Program specialization, jointly coordinated by the Schools of Social and Behavioral Sciences, Humanities and Education, according to George Bernstein, coordinator from the School of Education.

The program is designed to provide interested students with a solid foundation for understanding Latin American societies and cultures and their relation to our own," Bernstein said. This could include those going into fields as diverse as teaching, educational administration, business, industry, government agencies, tourism, translation, social work and legal services.

A STUDENT interested in a career as a bilingual interpreter, for example, would become familiar through the program with the cultures of the speakers of Spanish or Portuguese. In addition, practical experience through field work would be gained; work which could provide the foundation for MA work in bilingualism, Bernstein said.

What kind of field work would students involved in the specialization be taking part in? Bernstein named several possibilities.

"Field work could include working with a Latin American business or with an American firm interested in Latin America; working with Spanish language children in the American Southwest or studying urban development in Puerto Rico," he explained. "The more intimately acquainted a student is with Latin American cultures," Bernstein continued, "the better the job he can do."

Students interested in the program, which requires 33 semester hours for specialization and which is the latest addition to the Transcultural major, should contact one of the three coordinators. The other two are Rolf Sterberg of the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences and Rose Mine of the School of Humanities. For further information they recommend consulting the current catalogue description of the Transcultural major and the Asian Studies Program.

"THE MANY Worlds of Latin America: Interdisciplinary Perspectives," is the first term, four credit core course and is being offered this fall. "The course is open to any students who want to take an interdisciplinary course," Bernstein pointed out.

How did students make known their interest in such a program? Bernstein said that "literally hundreds" of students over the years have expressed a "strong interest" in Latin American studies. The program is being funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The coordinators of the new program applaud MSC's recognition of the need for the Latin American specialization. As they put it, "The dramatic changes within Latin America and its increasing participation in world affairs and trade, as well as the large number of residents of Latin American origin in the United States make Latin American Area Studies an important field of learning."

Election Dates Show Poor Planning

It is unfortunate that this year's SGA election dates were so poorly planned. It is taking its toll on the Executive elections and it will most certainly affect the Legislative elections that follow.

As of yesterday there were only two candidates for President, two for Vice President, three for Treasurer, one for Secretary and two for Board of Trustees Representative. Three students are undecided about their positions.

Petitions for the various offices were available at 9 am Monday and closed Monday after the Easter break until 1 pm of that day. The average student wouldn’t even have had enough time to think about running, let alone plan a campaign.

As far as publicity goes, only one small advertisement appeared in the Montclarion the week before vacation and nothing about the election was apparent around the campus. A campaign was apparent around the campus.

It is unfortunate that this year's SGA election dates were so poorly planned. It is taking its toll on the Executive elections and it will most certainly affect the Legislative elections that follow.

For what some would consider the most important SGA event of the year, it is sad to say it was not treated as such by the SGA. More effort and planning went into the brochure/calendar than into the calculation of the election dates.

The timing of this year's elections is extremely poor and can result in confusion and low response.

Petitions for seats on the Legislature will be distributed from April 30 to May 6, right in the middle of the Executive election on May 3 and 4.

The Executive elections should have been planned earlier as many of the Executive elections in the other colleges were. It would also have been more helpful for the new officers to familiarize themselves with their jobs.

Well, this is all after the fact and it’s too late now to change anything. The elections are moving right along. Students can still pick up petitions to run however, but only until 4 pm today. Better hurry!

In this day of rapidly rising food costs, consumers are finding it hard to stretch their food dollars without giving up good nutrition. Even though prices are skyrocketing, there are ways to accomplish this.

TIPS FOR SUPERMARKETS

The supermarket is a battlefield that baffles many people every day. You have to get armed and ready before entering. Ariste shopping begins at home. Keep a continuous shopping list and add items as soon as you run low. In this way you will save on emergency trips to the store to buy a single item. Newspapers and store bulletins are handy sources for specials. Take advantage of “loss leaders” (items priced at or below cost to induce customers to shop in a store), store sales, coupon offers and seasonal foods.

Once you are in the store, stick to that list! Resist the temptation of carefully placed impulse items that you don’t need. Don’t shop when you’re hungry; you are bound to buy more items. Responsibility children, leave them home if possible. They will want you to buy items not on your list.

SUPERMARKET TRICKS

Do not let the layout of the supermarket throw you off. Items are carefully arranged to get you to buy more than you need. Check the prices of items that are set up in large displays. Often times these items are not on sale all but you might assume so because the display is big.

The need to read labels carefully cannot be stressed enough. Read the amount that is in the container - bottles and boxes are constructed with illusion in mind. A bottle or box that looks bigger than another may not be after closer inspection.

Avoid foods that contain perishable foods that have date limitations. Also, read the list of ingredients. The ingredients must be listed in decreasing order of weight. If an ingredient isn’t the main ingredient. Make sure you know what you’re paying for.

COMPARING QUANTITY AND QUALITY

If unit pricing is available, use it to compare brands and sizes. If it isn’t, compare prices by dividing the cost of the product by the amount of the product-per-ounce (or whatever unit of measure is used) price.

Comparison should be for quality and price - be sure to purchase quality needed for intended purpose. For example, a tougher cut of meat which-costs less on sale at a store than price in a store. The meat will be to tenderize. Compare store and national brands for quantity. A brand isn’t always the best buy. Compare brands of different forms of food. All stores are not always more expensive. All of these comparisons should be made on ready-to-serve, per portion basis, not by mere weight-volume.

Surviving successfully on the battlefield of the supermarket is not an easy task. Following some of these suggestions may not save time when shopping but at least you’ll survive without wounds and perhaps a few dollars left in your wallet!

As we prepare for the 1976 SGA Executive and Board of Trustees Student Representative elections, we must reflect on the open posts and the responsibilities which they entail. Both candidates and voters should have clear conceptions of the officers under contention in order to make wise choices.

BUDGET CATEGORIES

The SGA has a yearly budget of close to $500,000 of student monies. The four executive officers are charged with both legal and moral responsibility for these funds. They must administer over 50 subsidiary organizations, over 10 of them with direct budgets. They are directly responsible for all SGA services (legal aid, prescription aid, drop-in-center, poster printing, etc.) and employ a staff of over 70 students.

The President must sign all contracts and the Executive Board must be held responsible for them. All this is in addition to providing the political leadership for 7800 students.

The SGA officers must be as at home dealing with 20 page contracts as with the 200 event community relations. They must be as at ease dealing with one college administration as they are with 5000 angry demonstrators. They must be prepared to take people to court (this has happened in the last few years) as well as to hold legally responsible for a fully recognized corporation. Officers must also be prepared to deal with other students who view them as enemies.

TIME SPENT AS A LEADER

We found that keeping an SGA office requires between 20 and 60 hours per week, with the average time commitment being far closer to the larger number. Expect to serve between five and 10 committees for each week and to work Saturdays, Sundays and vacation periods.

With regard to the Student Representative to the Board of Trustees position, be prepared to provide input on behalf of 1400 students to the Board on any item of student concern or on any other board agenda.

DEDICATION IS NO. 1

In short, candidates should be prepared to devote a full year of hard work to their positions. Voters should demand that those seeking their votes are ready, willing and able to make this sort of commitment.

This article was not intended to discourage any potential candidates but rather to give everyone a clear picture of the offices concerned. There are of course many rewards and the successful candidate will gain immeasurable knowledge and experience during his or her term of office.

The SGA Government and Administration Committee has prepared a descriptive statement concerning the duties and powers of each post as established in the Constitution and Statutes of the SGA. It is available to any interested student in the SGA office. We also stand ready to answer any questions you may concerning the elections. You may contact us through the SGA office, fourth floor, Student Center.

Most of all please remember to vote May 3, 4 or 5 in the Student Center of College Hall lobbies. Students must show their IDs in order to vote. Remember...those elected will spend $60 of your money...shouldn’t you have a say?

Ken Malmed is the Attorney General of the SGA and will be running the Executive elections.

“March 12”

Abundant specimens of human character roam Port Authority’s terminal at 11, offering Decamp travelers free entertainment. Friday’s nightcap, Cheers.

An old man, one of Skid Row’s better models staggers by, directionless as a top on its last orbital. “Com’ere to me” he asks the air. “I need a smoke.” Ungratified, he walks away, leaving only a spray of liquor breath behind.

With unspoken cut, a denuded booker steps into the spotlight, its illuminated red, white and pink cage attracts attention, hoisting it on an aphasia way.

She is marred by her colors, Diagraded. Shunned by them, Hostile and frustrated she mutters something obscene. We cannot unlock her cage. Trapped, she pushes her wares towards the 42nd street exit...

Tense-rummed teens sway into view, dazed. They don’t speak. Voices seem frozen as their iced facial expression. Cold as the winter night is the glare black eyes reflect.

They don’t speak. Voices seem frozen as their iced facial expression. Cold as the winter night is the glare black eyes reflect. It is too painful to look at. We squint, then turn away.

11:30 meets the bus call... De Camp 66 ...

The stage is bare, empty as the actors who occupied it. We did not expect. There was no encore. Maybe at 12...

AA Expresses Thanks

To the Editor:

The Executive Board of the MSC Alumni Association wishes to express its gratitude and appreciation to the 14 organizations who participated in the 1976 Student Phonathon. Were it not for their support, enthusiasm and hard work, the Student Phonathon could not have surpassed the goals which we had originally set.

We would like to send our special congratulations to those winners in the individual and club competitions. Placing first, among all the clubs and winning a $150 cash prize for the highest pledge average was Chi Kappa Xi. It maintained a winning average of $11.92 each pledge. Delta Kappa Psi won themselves a beer and barbecue party for having brought 26 of its members to man the phones, (the most of any organization).

In the individual competition, Karen Esposito of the Gymnastics Team took in $870 in pledges to earn herself the honor as top fundraiser. Rudy Valli of the Management Club was high man in the number of pledges category by bringing home 47 pledges. Each received a $20 gift certificate for their efforts.

Finally, in an era of pronounced pessimism, we would like to strike a blow for equal time by individually recognizing those organizations who displayed such a positive attitude through their unselfish support of the 1976 Student Phonathon:

CLUB: Management Club, Phi Chi Theta, Home Economics, Chi Kappa Xi, English Club, The Senate, Delta Kappa Psi, Psychology Club, Cooperative Education, Marketing Club, Gymnastics Team, Delta Theta Pi, Delta Beta Phi.

Can Edward Albee's landmark 1962 drama, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" be revived with the freshness of a sizzling new play? Yes, it can and the current, beautifully acted and carefully staged Broadway revival proves just that.

Albee's situation and language still retain their humor and ultimate agony in the hands of four bristling good actors, Colleen Dewhurst, Ben Gazzara, Maureen Anderman and Richard Kelton, put through their paces by the author, who has staged the revival with a keen eye for smooth dramatic flow.

These four forcefully enact the liquor-ridden night in which a middle-aged college professor and his slatternly wife masochistically slash apart the ties of their marriage and take a younger, blander but no less deceptive married couple along for the ride. Albee postulates that love can breed hate, marriage can breed contempt and illusions may or may not be all that remain.

Deftly placing the actors like swiftly moving fencers inside William Ritman's living room set like an arena, Albee makes the evening generously funny as well as tragic. Dewhurst and Gazzara, especially, as Martha and George briskly fire off their lines like parries building to a crescendo.

Each moment Dewhurst takes the stage, Martha is a prowling panther on the loose. Her throaty voice is marvelous at suggesting the necessary harshness that booze inflicts and her wheezing laugh has the mingled charm and foreboding of a sinister cat's purr.

Her GROSINESS is channeled through her rather than tossed off randomly and this makes her a perfect Martha. When she walks on stage in Jane Greenwood's splashy green-yellow tent dress, she embodies all the rage, jealousy and to a great extent, the sexual perversion symbolized in those colors.

Gazzara's all in brown, quite right for his dour, watchful and riveting George. His snippety diction makes his scholarliness seem grudgeful and his subdued manner is carefully cultivated, making his few bursts into overt violence, impotent as they are, seem quite explosive.

With Dewhurst, Gazzara makes a superb duo, the nailing every putdown with a sledgehammer, he hurling his with verbose, carefully aimed blowdarts.

As HONEY, the "mousy, slim-hipped young wifelike," Anderman is boozy, bubbly and quite assuredly absurd but she does convey that ambiguous sense that Albee implies in the text, that she, the most outrageously comic on the surface, knows more than she tells.

Shaggy-haired, a bit hulking but quite sinister, Kelton's Nick, the stud husband who tries to cuckold George via Martha, projects the doubt and virility that mingle in his character that undercuts the quiet intellect/college professor type.

What Albee has done with these elements is to draw laughter freely from the audience while still maintaining the uncomfortable mood of claustrophobias that the play inflicts on the audience. He clearly visualizes the climatic state of relationships by moving the actors all over the stage to closely centered or extremely distant points, all done effortlessly and naturalistically.

This total picture makes an entity of Ritman's set, an apt blend of brown wood and glaring green that reeks of stuffiness and decadence. Albee, who is notorious along with Harold Pinter for textual pauses, often creates a subtle tableau effect when the actors momentarily stop to become framed against the marvelous background.

The humor remains sure and savage and the tensions remain rough and raunchy in the new edition of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" making sure that the trauma and the tension touch us all.

Ian: Spotty

By Scott Garside

What do Janis Ian and Steve Goodman have in common? Well, both are singer/songwriters in the folk tradition although they also perform music that falls into categories of jazz, blues and even country-western, in the case of Goodman. Both performers have one song that has become associated with his or her name. And finally, both Ian and Goodman rendered spirited performances at Passaic’s Capitol Theater on Easter Sunday.

Ian was top-billed and her one hour and 15-minutes on stage, although both pleasant and entertaining, seemed to lack any of the real feelings and performances at Passaic’s Capitol Theater on Easter Sunday.

Goodman. Both performers have one song that has become associated with his or her name. And finally, both Ian and Goodman rendered spotty performances at Passaic’s Capitol Theater on Easter Sunday.

Ian’s abilities as both a pianist and a guitarist were augmented by her back-up band consisting of Jeff Layton on electric and acoustic guitars, Stu Woods on bass guitar and Barry Lazaarowicz on drums and songs. On ‘Would Like to Dance,’ the encore number, Layton switched to piano where he impressed the audience with a classically-oriented solo. All in all, Ian’s part of the show was rather perfunctory. Her attitude was generally nonchalant and though her records illustrate how seriously she takes her music, this dedication did not shine through.

Steve Goodman, the opening act, was a bit more enjoyable where his music, humor, enjoyment in performing and his proficiency as a guitarist all were exhibited. His major shortcomings, however, lied in the fact that he was alone, not having a supporting band to provide variations in the sound.

Goodman’s 50-minute set was immensely enjoyable and comically satisfying. His guitar picking and song lyrics were exceptionally interesting although he is not one of the finer vocalists around.

‘City of New Orleans,’ the Goodman original that has attracted much attention since 1970 when it was written, was performed adequately featuring a number of brief guitar solos interspersed throughout the melody.

Goodman’s version of ‘Sixteen Tons’ was another crowd-pleaser which drew laughter and applause as he pranced up and down on stage, bubbling with personality and enthusiasm.

There is a limit in what one can do with a single acoustic guitar and as fine a guitarist as Goodman is, a backing band would have provided him with a richer, fuller sound. Since he is not an outstanding singer, backing vocalists also would eliminate some of the strain and pressure placed upon him.

Even though it is called “Paul McCartney’s new album,” Wings at the Speed of Sound (Capitol SW-11255) is the most collective group effort the band has turned out since forming in 1971.

McCartney not only self-produces lead vocals on five songs but did not write two of the tunes on this overall fine effort by the band.

Wings ’74 release, Band on the Run, was easily McCartney’s best solo venture after parting company with the Beatles in 1969. Last year’s Venus and Mars, while agood album, was not up to McCartney’s usual brilliance. It seems he has returned to the excellence that is expected of him with Wings at the Speed of Sound.

THE ALBUM opens with “Let ‘Em In,” a potential single similar in style to Paul Simon’s recent hit “50 Ways to Leave Your Lover.” The same marching beat is employed along with a string of names following the verse “Someone’s knockin’ at the door / Somebody’s ringin’ the bell! / Do me a favor / Open the door and let ’em in.”

“Then You Never Wrote” is one of the weaker songs on the album. Ex Moody Blues guitarist Denny Laine takes over the lead vocals on this tune but does not do a good job with it. It’s a somber song and lead guitarist Jimmy McCulloch’s short solo tends to make it a bit on the bluesy side. Laine can sing and play rhythm guitar (as heard on the 1965 Moody Blues’ hit “Go Now”) but neither is accomplished on this song.

The mood is picked up by the typical up-tempo McCartney tune “My Baby.” It’s corny mainly of McCartney’s great voice and a simple drum beat, light, happy lyrics that are easy to sing along with.

“BEWARE MY LOVE” is one of the strongest songs on the album. The opening organ is very suggestive of a church hymn and is followed by some fine acoustic guitar by McCartney. But then both the music and McCartney’s voice change and the song becomes somewhat vindictive as seen in these lyrics: “I have to leave / And when I’m gone / I’ll leave my message / In my song / Beware my love.” The tune is the first real rocker on the album with McCartney’s great bass playing (reminiscent of the song “Band on the Run”) carrying the power of the song.

The first side ends with lead guitarist McCulloch singing an original tune, “Wino Junko.” The melody is similar to “Beware My Love” and McCulloch’s voice is very close to McCartney’s. It’s a tight, up-tempo song about drugs and boredom. Side two opens with a definite smash hit single for the group, “Silly Love Songs.” McCartney is right to point out the words the opening verse: “You think that people would have had enough of silly love songs / But I look around me and see it isn’t so / Some people want to build a dream world with silly love songs / And what’s wrong with that I need to know / Here I go again.” The lyrics are very singable and the best has a slight disco bounce to it thanks to the horns of Tony Dorsey, Thaddeus Richard, Steve Howard and Howie Casey. The repeating line “I Love You” is very catchy and single-oriented, This will be the first huge-seller of the album.

McCartney’s wife, Linda, sings “Cook of the House” and does not do much with it. It sounds like a 50s song and is not up to par with the rest of the album.

“Time to Hide” shows Laine’s vocal ability and also his writing talent. It’s a tight song with a laid back type of hard rock infused in it. McCartney seems to dominate the song with his strong bass, though.

“Must Do Something About It” consists of great lyrics by McCartney and surprisingly good vocals from drummer Joe English. It’s McCartney capturing a somber mood with the combination of music and lyrics: “I just dialed another number on my phone / All day long I’ve been alone / And I must do something about it.”

“San Ferry Anne” is a typical, nice McCartney song while the album closes, “Warm and Beautiful” is McCartney. It’s a tender love song with just the singer and a piano relating a simple message: “Our love so warm and beautiful never fades away / Never fades away,” McCartney’s impeccable style is captured perfectly in this tune.

Wings at the Speed of Sound is a wonderful LP. It’s a group effort with enough of McCartney genius to make it a top album.
Woyzeck Fails To Satisfy

By Tom Malcolm

Despite strong acting and often brilliant staging, the Shaliko production of Woyzeck, now playing off-Broadway, fails to emerge as a satisfying theater event.

The TITLE character is a dirt poor peasant turned servant and his only concern is to live and he does this in the only way he knows how. The fact is that he is allowed to be neither an innocent nor a savage but simply a down-and-out, brutalized peasant. Woyzeck himself says that grand philosophical issues are fine for those who have time to think about them but that he is not one of those people. He simply lives in the way his culture dictates and the point is that this is all the common man can do.

Leonardo Shaprio's staging combines elements of the bizarre and grotesque with a fairly clean and clear acting. The Woyzeck of this production is as a man singing and tap dancing on a leash, a girl impersonating a horse and a professor throwing a cat out of a window. Woyzeck makes a point during a physics lecture. When he has a scene with good, affecting dialogue, however, he lets his fine company carry the burden of this difficult drama — and they do so admirably.

It was maddening to see this group, again unnecessary. Lead singer David Wetton on bass elongated the main melodies got lost. The long-awaited appearance of the almost capacity crowd of 3,000, comprised primarily of pre-teens, applauded Australia's Wetton on bass. Golf Wrap

The mind — it's probably the most pivotal aspect of a good golf game and MSC's golf squad is starting to find that out. The Indians are learning to control their tempers and according to Coach Jerry DeRosa, it payed off with a pair of convincing wins over New Jersey Institute of Technology and Steven's Tech April 21.

MSC tripped the Highlanders, 15-3, then sunk the Ducks, 16 1/4-2 1/4 at Englewood Country Club. DeRosa explains it with a lesson in psychology.

"They didn't let all those little things bother them," DeRosa said, rolling a golf ball in his hand. "They're a young team, you know and I think they are now playing well under the pressure. They're learning to conquer their minds.

A good example of DeRosa's theory is Bruce Chamberlain, a freshman from West Orange. DeRosa actually kept the long-ball hitter out of the lineup after Chamberlain ballooned to a 103 in a match against Rutgers.

"He was letting everything get to him," DeRosa said, "He never got his game going because he was preoccupied.

SO CHAMBERLAIN didn't compete against Trenton State although he played a practice round with DeRosa and the Lion coach.

"You know that the Trenton coach couldn't understand why he wasn't in the lineup," DeRosa said. "He was two-under par and beating the coach.

That was enough to put Chamberlain back in the sixth spot and he responded with an 80, taking three points in a 14 1/4-3 1/4 loss to Glassboro State.

Carlo Rossi Burgundy
"The wine with the promise of a kiss"

Salute:

My name is "Carlo" Rossi. As you know, it takes good grapes to make good wine. The grapes in Carlo Rossi California Burgundy receive plenty of sunshine during the day and cool breezes during the night. The warmth makes them develop the body and character I like in a burgundy. The coolness develops the deep color and adds complexity to the flavor.

When you taste Carlo Rossi Burgundy, notice the clarity and the deep, ruby-red color. Then swirl it in your glass, sniff the wine and experience the fruity, complex aroma, THE PROMISE OF A KISS TO COME. Then taste the wine. Bacio dolce!

I believe you will enjoy Carlo Rossi Burgundy -- a wine made for you to enjoy as much as I do.

Easy Victory Turns Sour

By Al Barton

In years past when St. Peter's College baseball team came to town opposing batters declared it batting average day and pitchers fought to see who would pick up the easy win.

Since MSC had defeated the lowly Peacocks 27-1 and 25-0 the past two seasons it was understandable when one Indian on the bench declared: "losing to these guys would be like losing to the Girl Scouts."

HOWEVER, ON Tuesday after three hours of action on Piatser Field people were singing a different tune. "I feel just terrible," bemoaned MSC coach Clary Anderson.

"They've (St. Peters) come a long way and I feared them," a sullen Anderson contended afterwards. "I held a team meeting and tried to enlighten the players but it didn't help."

"We came to play," Peacock coach Ben Brancato explained. "This is our biggest win ever."

A look at the top of the fifth inning when St. Peters broke the game open tells the story of the afternoon.

INDIAN HURLER Steve Wacker had been laboring throughout and trailed 4-3 entering the frame. With two out and a man on second the Peacock's Phil Mercurio slammed an RBI double down the left-field line, 5-3 St. Peters.

As Wacker worked on the next hitter Ray Bellino, MSC catcher John Scoras caught Mercurio wandering too far off second. He fired a perfect strike to shortstop Keith Murray. The umpire raised his hand to call Mercurio out but Murray dropped the ball.

Instead of being out of the inning the error gave the opportunistic Peacocks another chance. Bellino rapped a single to put runners at the corners and then Piatowski immediately deposited a Wacker fastball far over the left-field fence. THE OVERATED Peacocks had a five run advantage and MSC was left to ponder what could have been.

"Our defense (five errors) killed us," Anderson said. "We continually gave them an extra out and they took advantage of it. We did things stupidly and lacked concentration."

The Indians fought back in the home fifth as Kevin Donohoe crashed a three-run roundtripper off starter and winner Frank Cioffi. However, in the sixth reliever Mike Ammanara came on, to shut out the Tribe the rest of the way.

The Indians turned in their best performance of the season's Division 3 championship, want as many students who can attend, Admission is $2 a head, for all the beer you can drink. A dance floor is also being arranged.

NJIT, Chamberlain came through with a 74 on nines of 36 and 38, taking three points from the Highlanders and losing only a half point to the Stevens golfers.

"It hasn't only been with Brute either," DeRosa noted. "The whole team has calmed down and gotten down to playing golf."

The Indians turned in their best scores of the year Wednesday. In addition to Chamberlain's 74, Fred Tomczyk turned in a 35-36-71 to sweep both matches, Dave Stevenson had a 36-38-74 and took 5½ out of six points while Glen Logan's 39-36-75 was good enough for 5½ out of six points also.

Netmen Destroy NJIT

By Bob Scherer

MSC's men's tennis team proved at least one thing for sure in its match Wednesday afternoon — the initials NJIT do not mean New Jersey Institute of Technology but tennis is not technical as MSC made clear in its 9-0 thrashing of NJIT on the loser's home courts.

"THIS IS our second straight impressive win," coach George Petty said after the match. The pleased mentor added, "I think we have reached our potential. If we can maintain our progress against Trenton State we'll win the conference."

There was nothing particularly spectacular in the match against NJIT. No last minute heroics, no long and strenuous battles. MSC simply went out and generally won handily every match and practically every set. In fact, of the 18 sets completed, MSC dropped only two in advancing its season record to 6-1.

In singles play, Ray Salani turned in the most one-sided performance of the match, Salani wasted little time in disposing of his opponent, Ken Tomesko, 6-0, 6-1. "I played mostly a baseline player, explained how his opponent. Bob Caruso, was not aggressive "wasn't pushed to the limit" in winning. Wildstein, a hard-hitting team nor its opponent, Trenton State College, was immune to the error syndrome as 12 mistakes were committed in all, six by each side. The Squaws capitalized substantially on the Lions' mistakes, scoring a come-from-behind 84 victory.

The big inning for MSC (6-1) was the sixth in which four unearned runs crossed the plate. With the Squaws behind 6-4 going into the inning, third baseman Santa Pandolfo reached first on an error by the third baseman. After Joann Kovolisky grounded to first and retired the next three batters in order to capture her third hit of the game, sending Pat Marion, the pitcher, hit leading DeNorscio in with an insurance run. The Lions added single runs in the third, fourth and sixth innings on just two hits. Two of the three runs were unearned, scoring on fielding errors by the shortstop DeNoricio, who was playing her second game at short after switching over from third.

What unfolded at Brookdale Park this past Wednesday afternoon would have made even the members of the 1962 error-prone New York Mets look like Golden Glove winners. Neither the MSC women's softball team nor its opponent, Trenton State College, was immune to the error syndrome as 12 mistakes were committed in all, six by each side. The Squaws capitalized substantially on the Lions' mistakes, scoring a come-from-behind 84 victory.

In doubles competition, Roger Neill and Dykstra won 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 over Raymond and Caruso. The other two doubles matches were shortened and played pro-set style which means that instead of playing the customary best-of-three sets, the first team to win eight games was the victor.

Wildstein and Jim Neill won their match over Delgado and Jim Madsen, 8-3. MSC's Mark Fistes and Salani took the last doubles match, beating Lou Morgan and Tomesko, 8-2.

The MSC lacrosse team's hopes for a championship season went down the "pipe" as the Tribe absorbed a tough 7-6 loss on a disputed goal to FDU/Teaneck on Tuesday.

The contest was knotted at six as the defenses took over for the rest of the contest.

The game opened innocently enough with big Rich Bertocni taking a neat pass from Greg DiGioacchino and putting it by the goalie for a quick lead. The Indian advantage did not last long however, as FDU star Reina scored two straight goals to close out the period.

THE SECOND stanza belonged to MSC's brilliant midfielder Bob Gillespie as the Tribe began to rally, nets twice on fine solo scores. FDU and MSC each scored again to close out the half with the Indians leading 4-3. The Tribe tally was registered by George Brunck on a feed from Bertocni.

FDU outscored the Indians 3-2 in the third period as Reina, Jack Schmitt and Steve Keller tallied goals. Billy Swann and Bob Bel Bruno scored for MSC to tie the score and set the stage for the fateful final period.

In the previous two weeks the Indians took on three teams and lost twice. The Tribe hosted Dowling College and lost a see-saw battle 9-8. Goalie Tony Carlino stopped 14 shots in the losing cause that saw MSC's dynamic rookie duo (Gillespie and Bel Bruno) score two goals apiece while Joe DeSimone registered two assists.

A FEW DAYS later the Indians went on a rampage at the expense of CCNY as they trumped them 12-1. The Tribe tally was registered by Juan Soto glanced in off Carlino's shot from Carlino, who had shutout going late in the contest.

When goalie Dean Witty graduated and became Assistant Coach this season, Carlino stepped in from the bench to the starting goalie's position. The shot hit the top pipe, Carlino. The shot hit the top pipe, the plane of the goal line, explained Carlino. 'It's amazing how good you'll get down on yourself. Goals happen, bad calls happen, anyone wants to be a good goalie. "W HEN I walked into practice for the first time, the players looked at me and said 'You've new so you are our backup goalie,'" Carlino explained.

Carlino never regretted his teammates' decision, "I figured if I was going to stick with the sport I wanted to become a goalie, I really like it, I wouldn't want to play any other position," he admitted.

Carlino is a very accommodating player. He first came out for lacrosse last season and when he learned the squad needed a backup goalie he quickly volunteered. Well, he sort of volunteered.

Carlino: Pleasant Suprise

Going from constantly riding the bench to the starting goalie's position in one year is a big step, but Tony Carlino made it and he is one of the reasons the MSC lacrosse team is still in the hunt for the Knickerbocker Conference crown.

When goalie Dean Witty graduated and became Assistant Coach this season, Carlino stepped in from the opening whistle and has been a pleasant surprise.

"T O N Y HAS improved with every game," Coach Glenn Brown explained. "It's amazing how good he has gotten in only five games. For someone who never even took up the sport until last year he has made a lot of progress.

Carlino spent most of last year playing backup to Witty. Seeing only spot duty all season long the junior from Dumont didn't have much of a chance to impress anyone but that all changed this season, Carlino admits playing a quarter here and a quarter there is entirely different from having to produce for 60 pressure packed minutes.

Wednesday's call against FDU/Teaneck was a typical example of the kind of pressure Carlino was referring to. Locked in a 6-6 tie, the
