Budget Would Slash Student Enrollment

TRENTON — The Board of Higher Education has proposed a budget for the next fiscal year that would cut budgeted enrollments and faculty lines throughout the State colleges by a total of some 2000 full-time students and approximately 82 teachers — despite the fact that the budget recommends an 11.6 percent increase over this year's original appropriation while increasing enrollment in the Rutgers University system by an additional 2000 students.

Byrne v. Bateman

In the third and final segment of excerpts from Candidates' Day, gubernatorial candidates Brendan T. Byrne and Raymond Bateman answer questions about the Booher Commission's controversial report. Story on p. 7.

It's Over

The days of MONTCLARION machines breaking down are over. The SGA Legislature unanimously voted to allocate $29,756 for the purpose of new, more technologically sound equipment. Story, p. 2, editorial, p. 10.

Special Olympics

Soccer was taught to 357 mentally retarded persons by over 100 MSC undergraduates. Story on p. 8.

Trick or Treat

While the Board of Higher Education's proposed budget is predicated on future prospects of a gradually declining State college enrollment, present figures do not reflect the expected trend.

Projections point to an anticipated decline in enrollment by 200 students each year over a four-year period. The projection predicts 2000 freshmen in 1978, 1800 in 1979, 1650 in 1980 and 1500 in 1981. Irwin Gawley, Vice President for Academic Affairs, attributed the expected decline in freshmen to a smaller population of students of high school age.

"This year is the top of any expansion and from now on what we are trying to do is decrease the size of the student body — slightly — at least this is what we are planning for in the next three-year period," Gawley said.

Alan Buechler, Director of Admissions, reasons that the decline in freshmen enrollment will come about naturally, as a direct result of expected circumstances. "Future reductions in the size of the freshman class will coincide with the smaller number of applicants available," Buechler pointed out. "The freshman class is large right now but we plan to go back to where we were in enrollments," he added.

Because of the huge number of freshmen who applied for admission this year, Buechler said, standards were lowered slightly to accommodate as many as possible. Previously, students were required to be within the top 15% of their high school graduating class to qualify for acceptance. This year, that figure was lowered to 19%, Buechler said.

He expressed confidence that admissions standards will be restored to their original level "within the next few years," adding that minority students would not be affected by tighter admissions standards because there are a certain number of slots designated for minorities.
State To Test Basic Skills

By Eileen Curtis

Beginning next fall, all students accepted to attend New Jersey public colleges will be required to take a single set of State tests to measure their reading, writing and mathematics skills.

According to T. Edward Hollander, New Jersey Chancellor of Higher Education, "To my knowledge, New Jersey is the only state which has faced the problem of basic skills as a matter of statewide policy."

The tests, which will be administered to incoming freshmen in a system-wide evaluation, will determine how well students perform on the basic skills necessary for academic success in college.

"Until this time, we have had little information about the scope of the (skills deficiencies) problem and the specific difficulties of students and colleges in dealing with it," Hollander said.

However, Hollander stressed that the tests, which were designed by the New Jersey Basic Skills Council, could not be used for admission purposes.

While conducting a workshop at the second annual New Jersey Student Association (NJSJA) conference two weeks ago, William Lutz, director of the Basic Skills Council, also addressed the issue of "skills deficiencies."

According to Lutz, articles like Newsweek's "Why Johnny Can't Write," point out to the public the skills problem that "thousands of teachers and parents understand too well."

Colleges will give the tests according to their respective schedules. However, in keeping with the Board's resolution, the tests must be given after students are admitted and cannot be used as a pre-admission test.

Big 'Yes' to New Machines

By Eileen Curtis and Lisa Burkiart

The SGA unanimously passed a bill Wednesday to appropriate $173,736 for new MONTCLARION typsetting machines in a move described by one veteran legislator as, "the most significant vote of the year.

The bill, which was tabled at the Oct. 18 meeting due to procedural questions, was described by Timothy Costello, MONTCLARION photographer and co-author of the bill as "an advancement for the entire campus community not just for the fourth floor elitists". According to the bill, the machines will be "more reliable and save valuable time."

Scott Mitchell, rookie legislator-at-large, who played the bill "devil's advocate" said in a decisive moment, "Well, I'm not against progress."

Mitchell's persistent questioning, directed at the bill's authors, clarified the procedural squabbles that blocked the bill's passage the week before.

According to Glenn Dykstra, SGA legislator, "No one really opposes the new machines but since it's such a large appropriation, all points of procedure should be checked closely."

One of the major objections raised by the bill's opponents was the neglect of the MONTCLARION to submit three formal bids at the Oct. 18 meeting. On this technicality the bill was tabled.

Larry Blackburn, SGA legislator and last week's chief bill critic, ultimately favored its passage saying, "Now the MONTCLARION has so efficiently come up with the three necessary bids and in only one week, I see no more reason to delay the vote."

According to Jose Fuentes, SGA President, "I believe this bill is a monumental step forward towards not only providing a better paper but enhancing communication campus wide."

Ghosts', Goblins' Gala Weekend

By Eileen Curtis

MSC students will have the chance to break out of their "conservative, career-oriented" shells and become "anyone or anything they want" at any of the annual Halloween parties planned for this weekend.

Some Halloween happenings have already come off—enjoyably well, according to student opinion—complete with the familiar jack 'o lantern decorations, cavity-cultivating corn candy and white sheet ghost costumes. "If you have a bed," a Bohm Hall resident insisted, "you've got a costume."

Players, the MSC theater organization, sponsored a Halloween Gala on Tuesday night where costumes were a must for admission. Also, the College Life Union Board (CLUB) staged its annual Halloween Catacombs in Life Café last night with about 600 merry masqueraders and Smyle, a local rock band.

According to a junior business major, "CLUB's Halloween Catacombs is the biggest thing on campus."

"CLUB officials had to admit it was bigger than this year's non-existent Homecoming."

Jane Garlicki, CLUB member and Catacombs Chairperson, acknowledged that extra effort had been put into the Halloween extravaganza because there was no Homecoming.

Garlicki noted that although "pom-poms and confetti" events are outmoded, Halloween Catacombs continues to be "more popular than ever."

She explained, "The party gives students, just once a year, the chance to be anything they want. Nobody's going to say anything about you. Nobody has to even know who you are."

The Residence Hall Federation will present their annual, "extremely popular" Halloween Federation Party in Bohm Hall on Sat., Oct. 29 at 8 pm. The festivities are reserved for "dorm residents only," according to Beth Gordon, Bohm Hall desk attendant.

"Prizes will be awarded for the funniest costume ($10), most original ($10) and best group get-up ($15)." she said.

The home economics major added, "This party usually goes over very well. You can get in without a costume but most students come dressed up."

Also, business fraternities Alpha Kappa Psi and Delta Kappa Psi and the business sorority, Phi Chi Theta—not to be outdone—will tri-sponsor a Halloween party on Fri., Oct. 28 at 8 pm for members and their guests. The free "All Saint's Eve" bash will be held at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Park St. in Montclair.

Rutgers Pill Panic

"Birth Control Pills Have Possible Defects" was the headline in the Mugrat—the annual joke issue of Targum, the student newspaper at Rutgers University in New Brunswick—that sent women students scrambling for check-ups when the paper was released last week.

According to Norman Weisfeld, Editor-in-Chief of Targum, 50 girls reported to the New Brunswick campus health center and at least that many reported for check-ups at Douglass College within the first two hours after the paper was released.

The Mugrat reported that several cases of birth control pills distributed at the university were found to be defective and urged all women to report for check-ups. The story estimated a 30-60 percent chance of pregnancy for women using the pills.

Reactions to the story varied. Weisfeld reported some women thought it was malicious, one questioned how the paper could deliberately start a scandal, while one girl panicked, pulled her roommate out of class and showed her the article.

Fresh Fruit

Student opinions on signing teacher evaluations soured last week at Glassboro State College (GSC) where the college President as well as the President of the teacher’s union received 250 lemons each in reflection of the students’ feelings.

According to Pat Alexie, Editor-in-Chief of GSC’s student newspaper, the Whit, the Student Government Association (SGA) voted unanimously in disfavor of students signing teacher evaluations—a requirement of the teachers’ union.

The 500 lemons, which had “signed evaluations” printed on each of them, were wheeled into the SGA meeting while the resolution was voted upon. The following day they were delivered to Mark Chamberlain, President of the college and Rose Glassberg, President of GSC’s American Federation of Teachers Union.

We’re in the Money

A $12,000 discrepancy in student government monies was recently brought to light at Seton Hall University in South Orange. The $12,000 was to be used for last year’s debts but instead it was incorporated into the budget for this year’s expenses.

According to Kevin Davis, Associate News Editor of the Setonian, the university’s student newspaper, the Student Finance Committee approved a budget containing $12,000 which it has but cannot use. The $12,000 was left over from last year’s budget and should have gone into a restricted account in order to pay previous debts.

“This is the first time I’m hearing of it—I’m not hiding anything.” Chris Patella, Student Government President commented when the discrepancy was brought to light last week.

Sexist Staff

A self-appointed committee of staff and faculty members has claimed that discrimination on the basis of sex exists at Ramapo State College.

According to Paul Haveman, Editor-in-Chief of Ramapo’s student newspaper, Horizons, Lee Sennish of Ramapo’s Women’s Center has called for women to come together to enforce Title IX, a federal amendment which guarantees equality in the area of federally funded education.

According to Sennish, the faculty at Ramapo currently consists of 117 males and 47 females. Also, during the 1975-76 academic year, women comprised 42 percent of a total of 67 administrative and professional positions at Ramapo.

LASO Emblem

You can win $10 and free admission to all paying events sponsored by the Latin American Student Organization (LASO) for the current academic school year by designing a simple emblem that can easily be associated with the organization and its duties. The emblem will be shown on all letterheads, posters, ads and stationery used by the organization.

All emblems submitted to the LASO office by Mon., Oct. 31 will be judged by the Executive Board of LASO. The five executives will select the most appropriate emblems, which will be voted on by the members of the organization.

LASO educates students about Latin culture through art exhibits, films, lectures, dances, concerts and various other activities.

LASO’s previous emblem consisted of a map of Latin America. “The old emblem didn’t show any relationship between the organization and its purpose,” according to Nellie Rodriguez, LASO President.

The contest, as well as the organization, is open to all MSC students. Rodriguez stressed that “you don’t have to be a Latin American to be a member.”

The small but very active LASO office can be found on the fourth floor of the Student Center behind the elevator.

Project to Iron Out Parking Lot Kinks

By Judith Chin

Some of the hassles of commuting may be smoothed out with the paving of the gravel parking lot, adjacent to the upper quarry bus stop, which is to begin in November.

Presently, the lot covers a rocky, hilly area which can wreak havoc on the carefully constructed undersides of cars and subject late arrivals to a lot of bumping and jostling.

The project is expected to be completed by December, according to Jerome Quinn, Director of Institutional Planning.

The paved lot — which will be designed to accommodate 200 cars — will facilitate snow removal during the winter so the lot can be utilized year round, Quinn said, adding that the $45,000 project, engineered by Richard P. Browne Associates, will be financed by the State.

"If you don't have pavement in winter," Quinn noted, "it's hard for snow removal. Water will erode the stone eventually and create gullies."

Although many students are already using the parking lot, paving will enable traffic to flow more freely and make maneuvering in and around the lot much easier, Quinn stated.

The gravel lot has been cleared of debris and leveled, with actual work to begin on Tues., Nov. 1. A specialized machine will be brought in to lay the asphalt, roll it and compact it. Painting the individual parking stalls will complete the project.

"Paving is a multi-faceted problem and it requires a multi-faceted set of solutions, which include new facilities, fair and firm law enforcement and most importantly, the cooperation of all the drivers," Quinn said.

Concerned with physical planning on campus — which includes new buildings and road and ground maintenance — Quinn has been at his position since 1969. He was Director of Physical Planning at Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, before coming to MSC.

"The Housewife Syndrome" is the title of a four-week workshop in group experience, to be given at the Women's Center in November. The workshop will be held on successive Wednesdays, from 10 to 11:30 am on Nov. 2, 9, 16, and 30 under the direction of Susan Anneckiarico, an MSC graduate student from Towaco.

Participants will explore the complex roles of housewives, problems they encounter, and ways of overcoming the syndrome. Anneckiarico was graduated from Montclair State in 1975 with a major in sociology. She is a candidate for a master's in student personnel services in January.

The center will hold its usual Wednesday Noon programs every week in November except on Nov. 2.

The third and final installment of the transcripts of Candidates Day, held Sept. 27 at William Paterson College, includes opinions on the Booher Commission recommendations, basic skills testing and having voting student representatives on State College Boards of Trustees, which were expressed by Governor Brendan Byrne and State Senator Raymond Bateman.

Byrne: Booher Commission

Q - Governor, in response to the changing needs and demands of the next decade, the State Commission on the Financing of Post-Secondary Education, commonly known as the Booher Commission, has proposed a redirection of higher education funds that would decrease the amount of direct institutional subsidies and increase the amount of money given to students in the form of financial aid. Would you support the implementation of such a plan and why or why not?

Byrne - One of the things that the new Chancellor has asked me to do is to keep an open mind on the Booher Commission recommendations.

He assumes I'm going to be Governor again and he has said that the State Board of Higher Education would like a chance to make their own evaluation of the report. And so I'm keeping an open mind on it. I'll tell you what my problems are with the direct grants to students and an opportunity to allow them to choose a school. It may result in unequal types of filling up of schools. I don't know that but I do have that kind of question in mind and that kind of reservation. I've committed to an open mind about it. I have some reservations.

I understand that the recommendation can be tailored so that it only applies to student grants to attend a college in New Jersey. If it were broadened to say that you can have the money to go to a college anywhere in the United States, I think it would have real dangers and I would have even greater reservations about it.

Q - The funds then would come from the State?

Byrne - I would think so. It's easy to say yes. I think when the State turns out a high school graduate who doesn't have basic skills, the State hasn't really given that student a thorough and efficient education. I don't see that student because I think it should be part of a thorough and efficient education. That's where I see the long-run solution. That doesn't help in September of a given year, this year or next year, when you have to face the problem and you haven't implemented the long-term solution and there I think it should be part of an effort supported by the State.

Q - Governor, at present, students sit as non-voting members of the Board of Trustees at several of the State colleges. Would you support legislation giving students the right to vote on such Boards?

Byrne - Yes.

Bateman: Booher Commission

Q - Senator, earlier you spoke of a decade of growth and expansion of higher education which you feel you were an integral part of. We now face a decade in higher education which confront new needs and limitations. In response to that, the State Commission on Financing Post-Secondary Education, commonly known as the Booher Commission, has proposed a redirection of higher education funds that would decrease the amount of direct institutional subsidies and increase the amount of money given to students in the form of financial aid. Would you support implementation of such a plan and why or why not?

Bateman - Not necessarily additional funds. I think that we have to do some of this until we get to the point of better basic skills development in the lower levels of public education. And I think that has to be a great effort of the next Commissioner of Education and the next Governor. We've already started the emphasis on testing to find out where we are falling behind in the various school systems in skills development. I see already the input that is going to hopefully bring the student who gets to higher education better basic training. In the interim, I wouldn't discontinue those programs. Some people say you should, I say you should not.

Q - Senator, at present students sit as nonvoting members on the Board of Trustees at several of the State colleges. Would you support legislation giving students the right to vote on such Boards?

Bateman - You know, if you'd asked me that question about five or six years ago, I would have said no. But today, I say yes. The patterns are different, a lot of things are changing in this world, not the least of which is we grow up a lot quicker, we vote quicker, we have the responsibilities of the world quicker. I don't see anything wrong today, as I did a few years ago, with student participation.

By Kate Hohenberger

Three hundred and fifty seven mentally retarded persons from the Essex, Passaic and Morris County public school systems, ranging in age from six to 58, received soccer instruction from 100 MSC undergraduates at the Special Olympics Soccer Clinic held on Oct. 18 in Essex County's Brookdale Park.

Members of the Montclair High School soccer team were also on hand to demonstrate dribbling, heading, passing and other soccer skills.

The event was coordinated by Leonard Lucenko and Tim Sullivan, of MSC's physical education department and Bob Gleason, head soccer coach at Montclair High School.

"In many ways, this was a model workshop," Sullivan said. "We wanted to show that if the retarded kids before and I was hearing things like, "Oh, they can kick. Hey, these kids aren't too bad." "Yes, they are capable but in our society they haven't been given the opportunity to prove it," he said.

"A lot of people were also surprised at how well the college kids worked with the retarded," Sullivan added. "It proves you don't have to be a specialist to be capable."

Many of the instructors felt that the two and a half hour clinic session was just as valuable to them as it was to the retarded students.

Each participating school took home a soccer ball, compliments of the Sportscraft Company and the individual participants were awarded certificates for determination and enthusiasm.

But what did the clinicians gain from the experience? "Afterwards, I had a really good feeling the rest of the day," Bonnie Sommer, an MSC junior said.

The clinic, an offshoot of the Special Olympics sponsored annually by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation, was the first such program in the state. The clinic included a workshop for teachers, where methods of teaching physical education to the retarded were presented. It is the hope of the New Jersey Special Olympics committee that some of the teachers participating will initiate similar programs, not only in New Jersey but all over the country.

An overwhelming reaction on the part of those helping out was a surprise, Sullivan said. "Few of these people had been exposed to retarded kids before and I was hearing things like, "Oh, they can kick. Hey, these kids aren't too bad."

"Yes, they are capable but in our society they haven't been given the opportunity to prove it," he said.

Presidential Sell-Out?

With the Board of Higher Education's passage of their recommended budget for the next fiscal year, the Council of State College Presidents has come under a blistering attack by faculty and student leaders who say the President (Dickson) sold out. Those charges were made by Sam Crane, Executive Director of the New Jersey Student Association (NJA), Marco Lacatena, President of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT Local representing the State colleges) and Jose Fuentes, SGA President.

After the Board meeting last Friday, Crane and Fuentes met with MSC President David W. D. Dickson on Monday. "President Dickson said he thought it was a very good budget," Fuentes said. Fuentes disagreed.

"There are serious implications, he said, adding, "The impression I received was that he (Dickson) didn't realize the implications of the budget's effect."

Dickson was unavailable for comment as the MONTCLARION went to press.

Health Fair Not Just Wheat Germ

By Lorraine Gracie

Upon hearing about the health fair that will be held on Wed., Nov. 2, in the Student Center here at MSC, I immediately thought of vitamins, wheat germ, sassafras tea and other items related to being a "health nut."

My expectations were soon put in proper perspective after a friendly conversation with Chris Kosielski, chairman of the health club. She explained, "Although health foods are included in health studies, they are only a small part of it."

The health fair has been run before, the last one being in May 1976 but according to Kosielski, "We feel that there will be a bigger turnout this year than there has ever been before. The reason being that we are offering more information, referrals and screening than the previous years."

The fair will consist of stands and booths featuring information and referrals in 57 different areas of health.

Among the participating organizations will be The American Diabetes Assn.; The National Council on Alcoholism; The American Physical Therapy Assn.; N.J. Commission for the Blind; Weight Watchers; Birthright, Right to Choose; Smokers; American Cancer Ass.; March of Dimes and Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation.

Pap Smears, hypotension screening, breast, eye and dental exams as well as diabetes blood tests (4th floor SC, purple conference room) will be given along with other examinations.

"Although no treatment will be available, you should be informed," Kosielski said.

And by the way, they didn't forget about you "health food nuts," you might be interested in paying a visit to the Life Skill Center booth, sponsored by MSC.

If you are planning to have a blood sugar test performed, Kosielski stressed the fact that it is important that you eat a well-balanced breakfast or lunch."

Budget Slashes Enrollment

In defense of the budget Hollander said, "The issue of enrollment is a simple one. Then citing enrollment data from the last two years, Hollander proceeded to point out how the drops have resulted in "more liberal" admission standards — another major concern of his.

"I don't think it would be possible or reasonable to go before the governor with a budget that isn't realistic," he said. Hollander said the essential task over the next three years will be to "strengthen and improve" already existing programs. He feels this budget is a major step in that direction.

Last year's original appropriation proposed by the Board was adjusted by the State government to add another $20 million. The likelihood of a similar adjustment is Crane and Lacatena's hope. They will take their challenges to the governor and hope to persuade the necessary committees before the final budget goes before the State Legislature.

Referring to NJ's high rate of students who go out of state to attend college — a point Hollander literally underlined in his issue paper released just one month ago — Lacatena said, "There is no reason why 50 percent of the students in NJ have to leave the State to get an education." The juxtaposition of Crane's and Lacatena's arguments became apparent when Crane finally got his chance to speak.

He began by saying "in a somewhat quieter way" what immediately concerned him: the 82 faculty lines that would be cut. And again, alluding to another Hollander goal outlined in his issue paper, Crane asked if academic quality in the State colleges could be improved — thus attracting more students to stay in the State — by cutting back on faculty, which consequently means less course offerings.

Thank You!

On Wednesday afternoon the SGA Legislature granted the MONTCLARION an appropriation of $29,736 in order to purchase new graphics equipment.

Thank you, thank you, thank you.

Thank you to the Appropriations Committee for realizing the need of the MONTCLARION for new machinery and for voting unanimously for its passage.

Thank you to the SGA Executive Board for your support and your understanding of the problems of the MONTCLARION caused by machine inefficiency.

Thank you to the Legislature for realizing that this was a sound and worthwhile investment and for making the final affirmative decision.

You have invested in the future of college journalism at MSC; a future that now looks extremely bright.

And ultimately, the student will benefit because the MONTCLARION belongs to the students of MSC.

You have made a decision you will not regret.

Do Your Homework?

The MONTCLARION questions whether the Board of Higher Education, in its proposed budget for the next fiscal year, has done its homework as carefully and conscientiously as it could have.

Statewide, 2000 less full-time students and 82 less faculty will be budgeted for; at MSC alone, the resources available for next year will accommodate 300 fewer students and five fewer faculty members.

While gradually declining enrollments are predicted over the next four years, there has been an overall increase in enrollment at MSC; freshman enrollment has risen from 1990 last spring to 3171 this fall.

T. Edward Hollander, Chancellor of Higher Education, has come up with a realistic budget, based on statistical predictions.

What he apparently has failed to realize is that statistics and projected trends often don’t reflect the whole picture. Increased recruiting efforts by the State colleges and fluctuations in the number of high school seniors desiring a job make for a bigger picture.

The MONTCLARION seriously urges the next Governor and the State Legislature to consider unmeasurable variables more carefully than the Chancellor did in making what they deem to be necessary adjustments before the package is voted into law.

TV Takes its Toll

Question: Do you think that television violence influences the minds of children? Why?

By Mary Valenti and Lou Barba

"I think it affects children much less than it is popularly believed. The emphasis of the home is being replaced by emphasis on outside sources, such as tv. Television cannot corrupt, no matter how extreme the situation depicted is, if the child has been taught by his parents different basic values."
Michael Bledsoe
political science/1977

"It may indirectly but I think the way children are brought up at home and the values they are taught by their parents have a greater affect on them than just tv violence."
George Orlando
physical education/1978

"I don't think tv violence affects a growing child's mind. I think violent reactions are due to the way parents raise their children. It has a bigger affect on their minds."
Christos Epiphilov
physical education/1978

"Violence on tv does affect youth indirectly. Their ideas from tv have to be supported by their surrounding environment such as parents, peers, school and friends. It may not actually make them commit violent acts but, subconsciously, the ideas are in their minds."
Wendy Todisco
biology/1979

"I feel tv influences the minds of children. Sociologically speaking, what they don't see in reality they see in tv. It puts ideas in their heads that they normally wouldn't be exposed to at such an early age. The influence of tv on youth depends on the individual's intellect and social environment."
Joseph Jack
industrial education/1981

"It does affect their attitudes but, the recent trial involving the student pleading that tv violence served as the cause of his action seemed to be an extreme exaggeration of tv violence."
Tom Palmieri
biology/1979

"Yes it does because it causes imitation. Violence becomes a characteristic of their ideal being. It becomes a part of the individual. It affects a lot of their thinking and their actions."
Debra Logan
home economics/1980

"I think that tv violence can definitely influence a child to be violent. I also feel that tv violence isn't the only determinant. The teaching of values is very important to the child as the part of the family. Children should be guided as to what they watch on tv by their parents. The networks should not have to censor."

Second Chance Through Second Careers

By Robert E. MacVane

The need to look ahead at MSC causes me to pause for a moment and recall some of the many pleasant experiences associated with almost two decades of employment at the College. A review of my input during this period of time shows a significant attempt to influence the direction of the College in providing opportunities for the non-traditional student.

During the sixties as Director of the Evening Division and Summer Session, I had the good fortune to witness significant growth in our graduate student population and the development of our many fine graduate programs. It was during this period of great prosperity that we were able to introduce our evening undergraduate programs for that large segment of our society unable to attend college on a full-time basis.

As we entered the seventies new funding procedures and a state mandate to develop the one college concept resulted in the integration of day and evening service delivery systems for the full-time day student and second, with my previous experiences, I felt I could protect the interests of the evening part-time student. In some respects, I think I have achieved some degree of success in both of these areas. A number of interesting challenges face me in my expanded role as I look forward to a third decade of service to the College. Standard operating procedures dictate the fact that we will continue to assess what we are doing to modify procedures when the need exists.

The changing nature of our student population will require my continued support of programs designed to meet the needs of the non-traditional student. These non-traditional students of the sixties and seventies will more than likely represent a large portion of the traditional student population in the eighties.

An unusual program here at MSC, which is becoming more and more popular in colleges and universities across the US, is the Second Careers program. The College's program began in Sept., 1974 with four major objectives or purposes in mind:
1) assisting persons over age 25 to begin or resume college work.
2) permitting women who have finished raising a family and want to get a deferred better education for personal reasons or purposes to receive a degree in order to become more employable.
3) assisting people who want to earn academic credentials to move ahead in their present fields of employment.
4) helping people who now feel trapped in "dead-end" jobs upgrade their skills in order to move out of their present dead-end positions into more rewarding employment. Since the Program is designed for the mature learner, the students are not required to take the SAT (College Board Exams) nor show they have a certain type of high school record to be admitted. In fact, many students present the high school equivalency certificate at the time of admission.

In lieu of the traditional criteria submitted for entrance, we require the second careers student to complete the CLEP (College Level Examination Program). These tests survey the applicant's general knowledge levels in English, natural sciences, mathematics, humanities and social sciences/history.

Achievement on these tests is related to the common assumption that most adults have gained some degree of college level education and competencies through non-classroom channels. It is, therefore, appropriate to recognize their achievements by the awarding of advanced standing credits. Through the CLEP , second career students have earned from six to 30 college level credits.

One of the major features of the Program is the "Re-entry Seminar." This seminar is a two credit experience that helps smooth their way back into the formal education process. It introduces them to our facilities and resources and familiarizes them with the use of the library, general study techniques and term paper writing. After completing this experience, the student is better prepared to move into the mainstream of the college and pursue the degree requirements of their selected major.

The students are highly motivated individuals who, for the most part, attend college part-time during the day or evening while they continue in their regular jobs. An unusual array of professionals composes this group, such as bankers, homemakers, engineers, bookkeepers and a number of our college secretaries.

Although the majority of the students in the program have been women, there has been considerable interest demonstrated by our male population.

The wide range in age of these students, from 25 through 70, enrolled in our regular classes has added a richness and sometimes a sparkle, to the classroom experiences of our younger students.

In the final analysis, a nation vitally concerned with the conservation of its resources must provide a means to retrain or reintroduce its many valuable human resources into the productive mainstream of life. MSC has taken the initial step and must continue to formulate programs that will undergird the concept of "Lifelong Learning."

REPORTAGE

The Ups and Downs in Dorm Elevation

By Lorraine Gracie

I'm sure everyone has heard about the infamous Bohn Hall elevators at one time or another. In case you haven't, some of their features include taking forever to arrive, breaking down during rush hours and getting stuck. Being freshmen and new in Bohn Hall we were familiar with all except the latter.

Getting pizza, we piled into the first elevator that came. It just so happened that it was the elevator that had a record for breaking down. We pushed our floor number and waited for the elevator's usual delayed reaction. It moved slowly and sporadically until it ceased to move any further. Panicking, everyone took a quick glance around and then made a mad rush for the door button. Alas, the doors would not open.

The first idea that popped into everyone's brain or should I say mouth, was that we were trapped. Funny what happens to people who have hyper-active tendencies—they sit on the floor and just stare; people who are usually well-mannered start yelling obscenities and those who are very quiet become active and start devising ways for escape.

After 15 min. of mass confusion, we concluded that we wouldn't be able to open the doors without help. My roommate and I were very persistent on insisting that we sound the alarm but nobody acknowledged our requests. Someone came up with the idea that we should use the emergency phone but not surprisingly, it had been ripped out during a Bohn Hall floor party.

By this time it was getting pretty stuffy; the fans never seem to work. We had managed to open the door a couple of inches. I began to yell, "Yes we're stuck, do you think we would do this for our health?" I was told to be quiet, in not-so-nice terms. Soon everybody started arguing and yelling but when we were finished we were still captives of the motionless metal box.

After half an hour or so we decided to give in and use the alarm. We rang it but nobody responded. Again. Again. Still no response. It was crying wolf; everybody rings it for the hell of it so nobody ever listens to the alarm.

Resorting back to our scouting days, we began to ring the alarm in morse code for SOS. People started gathering outside the elevator and an RA told us that they'd get us out. After ten more minutes they brought the other elevator up and opened a trap panel in our elevator so that we could step up onto the other one (we were stuck a few feet short of the seventh floor).

Once free, we headed directly for the stairs and started the long haul to the twelfth floor. Up on the eighth floor we saw some of our friends from the eleventh floor. They said, "Why are you taking the stairs, what's the matter with the elevator?" We replied, "What's the matter with the stairs?"

Campus Parking: The Age Old Problem

To the Editor:
The shortage of parking spaces is not the only scarcity in MSC parking lots these days—COURTESY seems also in short supply.

On two recent occasions, I was a victim and a witness of a discourteous fellow commuter.

While waiting to pull into a space being vacated, I had the space stolen from me by a sneaky opportunist who was in a better position to beat me to it. I witnessed the same occurrence a few days later.

It should be common courtesy to allow the first car, awaiting and signaling for a space, to move into it regardless of access to that space.

The inconsiderate driver who swings around a corner and into a space already being waited on shows selfish disrespect of the unspoken parking rights of others.

Simple courtesy would certainly alleviate the frustration of parking at MSC.

Monitoring a Must

To the Editor:
The most outstanding incorrect statement that appeared in the article, "Co-op Ed; Not for Business Majors," in the MONTCLARION Oct. 20, 1977, was attributed to Freyda Lazarus. The statement was, "To my knowledge Kelly and Elam made an arbitrary decision without the consent of the department."

I was present at the May meeting of the faculty of the Department of Administrative Sciences. After over an hour of discussion, on my motion, the department faculty declared itself philosophically and in principle in favor of our students participating in the Cooperative Education Program. Such a decision was made with your reporter, which I think is an important point. However, one point which I attempted to make with your reporter, which I think is critical to the entire story, did not find its way into print.

This omission on your part was an improper designation of the individuals responsible for the errors which we have experienced. In particular, the design errors were made by the engineering firm of Edwards and Kelcey, Inc. of Newark, NJ. In addition, these design drawings were signed by the Essex County Engineer and by five different officials of the N.J. Department of Transportation.

In short, the faculty fully authorized the Chairman’s and the Dean’s actions.

Shifts Blame Into Place

To the Editor:
In connection with the construction errors, these are the responsibilities of the general contractors, Lighting Electric Co. of Millburn, N.J. and also of United Paving of Northport, N.Y., their subcontractors for excavating work. Supervision of this construction is being performed by full-time inspectors from both the N.J. Department of Transportation and Essex County.

The MONTCLARION’s interest in highlighting these problems is appropriate; however, in order to assign responsibility for these errors, your article should have included the proper designation of those organizations involved.

For Limited Use ONLY

To the Editor:
In response to Kitabu... On several occasions this semester, I have made my way up the tiresome climb to the second floor of Sprague Library to the southwest corner. Once there I have squeezed into the "match box" room, selected armful of books and proceeded to check them out. Then I find that I can not take books from the Kitabu Collection because these books cannot be desensitized.

I find myself wholeheartedly supporting Kitabu with no satisfying reward.

If students are not allowed to take books out of Kitabu, then how is it possible to get anything out of the collection?

What’s the Delay?

To the Editor:
When I had my picture taken for my ID card at registration, it bothered me that they were going to take 1 1/2 months to mount an instant polaroid picture on a card. But the temporary ID that I was handed said, "Pick up ID Oct. 10 C-301 8:30-4:30," in the corner.

So, I showed up at "C-301" at 8:30 am, on Columbus Day. The door was locked. The lady in the next office told the group of us waiting for our cards that "they might not show up—it’s a holiday." I went back at noon and the office would re-open at 9 am (not at 8:30 as I had been told) the next day.

I went back the next day and after waiting for a secretary to finish a phone conversation, I was told that the ID cards were not ready. "When will they be ready?" She did not know but she would stamp my temporary ID valid for another six days. Did that mean I would have to come back every week to have it stamped until the cards were ready? "I guess it does." Today was the sixth day and I returned to C-301. You guessed it—no ID cards.

Then they said they will be here on Oct. 20. But when I said that I would probably come back on Nov. 2 the lady in charge agreed that it was probably a good idea.

Plattsburgh Tournament

The Forensic Team participated in its first competitive tournament of the season at Plattsburgh State College of New York on Oct. 14 and 15. Team members competing in speaking and reading events included Sylvia Belinfante, Laura Cox, Marvin Dent, Lydia McKinney and Bruce Spidell. Coaches Wayne Bond and Charles Nordlander accompanied the team.

Among the other schools competing were Penn State, West Point, Emerson, Mansfield and Suffolk; MSC finished sixth overall. Team members Dolly Grew and David Anderson reached finals. Grew finished fifth in oral interpretation, reading poetry by Keats and Anderson finished second in informative speaking with his speech on doors. Anderson also placed second in impromptu speaking.

Stage Notes

The Whole Theatre Company will open its new season in its new theatre at 544 Bloomfield Avenue in Montclair with a production of Bertolt Brecht's Mother Courage and her Children running from Nov. 3 to Nov. 26.

The play, which is set during the Thirty Years War, tells the story of a woman who wanders across Europe with her family and her wagon of blackmarket goods, struggling to survive against the onslaught of history.

Poetry

New Jersey residents are invited to submit up to 10 short poems (each 25 lines or less) to the "New Jersey Poetry Monthly" poetry writing contest between Oct. 1 and Nov. 30. Winning poems will be published in the magazine and their authors will receive free copies of that issue.

Writers of the three best poems will also receive special certificates of merit. Poems will be judged by the editors of the New Jersey Poetry Monthly. Entries should be mailed to the New Jersey Poetry Monthly, PO Box 824, Saddle Brook, NJ 07662. Envelopes should bear the notation "Poetry Contest." Poets should retain copies of all poems submitted because none can be returned.

Casting

Family Playhouse, 28 Brooke Avenue, Nutley has announced open casting for "Sound of Music." This musical involves seven children (two boys and five girls) seven men and nine women and chorus. Auditions will be on Sat., Oct. 29 at 1 pm at the Playhouse. For further information call 284-0404. Please bring your own music, accompaniment will be provided.

Rock Flea Market for Buffs

By Barbara Ponsi

The blaring background music of Led Zeppelin, endless tales of unique rock music memorabilia and sometimes overly enthusiastic crowds set the stage for the third annual Rock N' Roll Flea Market, Record Meet & Film Festival, presented by Rockages at the Hotel Diplomat in Manhattan Oct. 8 and Oct. 9.

For the most part though, the flea market provided for a unique afternoon of both shopping and browsing. The highlights of the show included some rare, expensive items available for sale. Copies of framed gold albums awarded for The Who by Numbers, by the Who and Surfin USA by the Beach Boys sold for $275 apiece. A gold single awarded to the Beatles for Get Back sold for $50.

An even rarer Beatles collectors' item topped this price however. When their Yesterday...And Today album was initially released, its controversial cover portrayed pictures of the Beatles holding battered, maimed baby dolls. Shortly afterwards, the cover was banned in this country and another one showing an innocuous portrait of the Beatles sitting happily together was substituted. At the flea market, the album with the original cover sold for $75 – in stereo, it was double that, $150.

Animals by Pink Floyd had one batch of copies made in pink vinyl. A copy of this album sold for $25 at one table and $20 at another. One area of entertainment offered free of charge was the chance to view a collection of promotional films of musicians performing some of their most widely acclaimed songs. Despite an overly amplified sound track and the necessity of having to stand on line to be squeezed into a room with plenty of poles to obstruct vision and no elevated seating, the two and a half hour show was an enjoyable experience in nostalgia and reminiscences.

WNOW-fm disc jockey Pete Fernatale hosted the film festival on Oct. 8. Among those included on the roster were the Searchers doing "Love Potion No. 9," the Zombies doing "She's Not There," the Byrds doing "Turn, Turn, Turn," the Turtles doing "Happy Together" and "She's My Girl," the Beatles doing "All My Loving," "Hey Jude," "Revolution," and the Dave Clark Five doing "Glad All Over."

One paradox of the entire event was the availability of used classic albums for as low as $1, while some singles which can probably be found on some of those same albums were selling for double and triple their store value.

One dollar albums included Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band by the Beatles and Child Is Father To The Man by Blood, Sweat, and Tears when the group still included Al Kooper. On the other hand, some of the singles selling for $2 were "Telephone Line" by the Electric Light Orchestra, "The Things We Do for Love" by 10cc and "Take it to the Limit," by the Eagles.

Three dollars could buy "Roll Over Beethoven," by the Electric Light Orchestra, $4 "Roll Over Beethoven" by the Beatles and "House of the Rising Sun" by the Animals and $6, "She's a Rainbox" by the Rolling Stones.

There were plenty of Elvis remembrances on hand. Most of his singles were selling for $5 to $10 and Elvis record jackets alone were selling for $2 and $3.

Almost nobody was observed leaving empty-handed.

Chinese Exhibited Ceramics

By Nina Lacy

"2000 Years of Chinese Ceramics" is an exhibition featuring over 80 of the finest pottery and porcelain pieces from the collections of the Newark Museum.

This exhibition illustrates the development of Chinese ceramic technology and form between 200 BC and 1900 AD. The viewer has a great choice of different objects to admire from superb examples of ancient tomb pottery, exquisite Sung dynasty porcelains and items made for export to the West.

Onlookers and students of art history will find this display of tomb figures, including houses, people and domesticated animals, an invaluable opportunity to get glimpses of Chinese daily life from 200 BC to the tenth century AD, a period of elaborate tomb burials. For domestic use during the tenth to the fourteenth centuries, vessels made of porcelains and glazed stoneware were the most important ceramic form of the Chinese people.

Glazes varying from ivory through celadon to dark chocolate brown decorate jars, dishes and vases. The outstanding examples of the beautiful objects are the Wei dynasty's "Warrior on Horse" in pigmented earthenware, the Han dynasty's earthenware pig sty and pig, the Sung dynasty's "Rabbit Armrest" in glazes stoneware and "The Puzzle Ewer" of the K'ang Hsi period.

The ewer is a Chinese adaptation of the Western European puzzle jug which originated in the 16th century. The puzzle involves pouring liquid from the ewer while bypassing the openwork neck.

Chinese ceramics, beginning in the fourteenth century, were sent to foreign markets to Arabia and India and after the sixteenth century to Europe and America.

Admission is free. The Newark Museum is located at 49 Washington Street. Hours are noon to 5 pm Monday through Saturday and 1 to 5 pm on Sundays and holidays.

William Pope, president of Fine Arts Committee of MSC informs all undergraduate full or part-time students about a Juried Show of Drawings, Prints and Photographs on Nov. 14 to Nov. 19. This competition is open to all undergraduate students of MSC. James Collins, artist and Peter Frank, art critic will judge the works.

How to convince Mom and Dad to buy you a pre-paid Trailways ticket home

Check boxes, clip out, mail to parents.

Dear Mom and Dad,

Things are swell here at college except, of course, the food, which is so bad that I'm down to 91 lbs. living on salted water. sending samples to the biology lab hoping you'll buy me a prepaid Trailways ticket home to get a decent meal.

I sure could go for some of Mom's good ol' apple pie. Riz de Veau a la Financiere blood transfusions. Trailways tickets paid for at your local station and picked up at mine.

Get to sign off now and go to class. Drop three or four courses to the Trailways station to see if anyone sent me a prepaid ticket to get out of here for the weekend.

Love,

P.S. Just go to the Trailways station and pay for my ticket, tell them who it's for and where I am. I pick the ticket up here when I go to catch the bus.
Larry Coryell Gives Class Jazz

By Bob Bundick

Larry Coryell, Alphonse Mouzon ("Back Together Again") and special guest George Duke ("Reaching for It"), made up Oct. 24's CLUB jazz concert. Despite the numerous technical difficulties and time delays, the audience's general consensus was that the concert was a success and the good music was worth the problems.

Prior to the show, the crowd was full of great expectations and ready for a night of some good music.

The group had a highly diversified sound, with rock, soul, bossa nova, gospel and blues among their jazz repertoire.

Making it complete were back up singers Josie James and Lois Hendrix, both singers with Stevie Wonder. Receiving warm applause was the highly talented show stealer Sheila Escouedo on conga drums. Also included in the band were Charles Johnson, an acoustic guitarist with a Santana sound; bass player Barry Miller and Leon Chancor on percussion.

Highlighting the evening, was James' and Hendrix's rendition of "Loving Life." It was a nice mellow sound, with Escouedo's accompaniment on percussion. In a solo, James belted out a moving gospel tune, winning applause for her amazing range.

For the concert's first number Coryell came on alone doing Chick Corea's "Light as a Feather."

As a gift to the audience, for their patience and appreciation, the trio of Coryell, Duke and Alphonse did an appealing improvisation dedicated to MSC.

Last, but certainly not least, was a piece written by Eddie Harris for the Freedom Jazz Band with a drum solo by Mouzon. Once again, Coryell left with salutations of "Love and peace," and affection for his audience.

Carl Reiner's new movie Oh God is a refreshing and unique experience. Reiner tickles your funnybone at the same time he sparks a fuse between your heart and soul setting off the question of whether a God really exists.

Reiner gives the impression that he definitely believes that there is a God, however he presents the pros and cons of the question in this movie. Through the acting of George Burns, God is depicted as a humane, spunky old guy who will take care of you, but who expects you to help yourself as well as having faith in him.

"God" epitomizes the guy-next-door type, decked out in blue jeans, sneakers and a fishing cap. He appears to Jerry, (John Denver), the assistant manager of a supermarket, in his bathroom one morning. "It's me!" God announces to Jerry, who is in the shower. "I can't come out; I'm naked," Jerry explains. Responding, God quips, "You think I don't know what you've got!"

Eventually, Denver and his story make tv news as well as the Dinah Shore Show. His boss threatens to fire him if he speaks to anymore reporters. Jerry's wife (Terri Gar), is upset, while trying to be empathetic towards him. His children are embarrassed and humiliated by their friends.

Denver didn't have to venture too far from his "image" to act the part of Jerry. He brought a mellowness and crisp vitality to the part, though his gestures were overdone at times. The best acting in the movie is exhibited by George Furth, the religious editor. His facial expressions of disbelief, and his patronizing manner made him totally believable.

At the end of the movie, Jerry seems to be a happier person.

Conference Has ‘Record’ Day

Senior end Mike Tiagwad set two major Central Connecticut pass receiving records to lead the Blue Devils to a 33-9, win over Glassboro State Saturday.

In other conference action, Trenton State College routed Jersey City State College, 45-0, and Salisbury State College downed Kean College, 28-16.

Tiagwad caught seven passes for a Central Connecticut mark of 79 pass receptions. The 176 yards he gained on those completions gives him a one-season mark of 919 yards.

Glassboro State scored first on a six-yard pass from quarterback Herb Nellio to Glen Jackson. Central Connecticut came back quarterback Jim Taft’s one-yard scoring run, but trailed when the place kick failed.

A safety gave Glassboro State a 9-6 edge moments later, but Central Connecticut did the rest of the scoring.

Junior Nate Woodard reached the 2,000 yard mark for his career and scored two touchdowns to lead Trenton State College to a 45-0 rout of Jersey City State.

Bubble Bursts

quarter with a one yard burst to give the Indians a 6-0 lead. Hubert Bond’s kick went wide.

Fordham gave the Indians their second touchdown later. Punter Doug Ahrenberg had the snap from center go over his head and into the end zone from the Ram 30. Mario Benimeo fell on the ball to give MSC a 12-0 lead. An attempt for a two point conversion failed.

Fordham drove down the field with just over a minute to play in the half and managed a 40-yard field goal from kicker Brian Curd with 0:03 left to produce a 12-3 halftime score.

Woodard carried the ball 24 times for 129 yards, the exact amount he needed to reach the coveted plateau. He sparked on the Lions’ first scoring drive, a seven-play, 52-yard march. Woodard carried on the last two plays of the drive for 20 yards to set up the TD and 13 to get it in.

He later got the fifth Trenton State score with a one-yard burst.

Quarterback Bob Borsmer was the key man Saturday as he led Salisbury State to a 28-16 football victory over Kean College.

Kean had built up a 10-0 lead with a first quarter touchdown by Terry Murphy that came on a 15-yard run and a field goal and extra point by Tito Lajterman. Lajterman’s field goal was from 29 yards out.

However, the winners retaliated with 13 points in the second period and never trailed. Following the intermission, Salisbury got a TD and a field goal.
Tribe, Lions Get All Knotted Up

By Dave Wertheim

EWING TWP.—After playing 90 minutes of scoreless soccer Tuesday, MSC and Trenton State College scored one goal each in overtime to end the game in a 1-1 tie.

The MSC tally came at 5:02 of the first overtime period. Fullback Paul Liddy sent a chip shot from midfield to forward Frank Pennoti. After maneuvering the ball around a Lion defender, the junior fired a high liner from about five yards out. TSC goalie Joe Hankins got an outstretched hand on the shot but he couldn’t control it and the Indians led 1-0.

At 5:02 of the second overtime (two mandatory 10 minute periods are played) MSC fullback Mark DiClemente was ejected for unsportsmanlike conduct. DiClemente had previously been warned for a flagrant foul.

The TSC goal came with only ten minutes remaining in the second overtime. The TSC tally came with only ten minutes remaining in the second overtime. Lion halfback Lou Giglio dribbled past an MSC defender and fired from about 25 yards out. Goalie Bill Muller was partially screened from the play and the shot flew by his left into the upper-right corner of the net.

Although the game ended in a tie the match was anything but even. The Lions outplayed MSC in just about every phase of the game. They kept the ball in the Indian zone for the majority of the game. By keeping the ball bottled up the Lions were able to get off 35 shots, while the Tribe only managed 10. The passing of Lions Bernie Somma and Mike DeMaio was especially effective, going through MSC defenders almost at will.

MSC's inability to clear the ball effectively allowed the Lions to keep the ball in the attacking zone and get off the number of shots on goal that they did.

The fine play of the MSC defense kept the hooters in the contest. A number of times fullbacks Paul Liddy, Bob Fixter and DiClemente stopped a rush with a fine header or block when they were the only defender between the attacker and the goal. “They (TSC) may have had the better personnel but our defense didn’t give them any breaks,” coach Manfred Schellscheidt said. “We were like a wall.”

CORNERS KICKS: Tom Tracy, usually a halfback, started as forward and did exceptionally well, mainly due to hustle...Muller played well for the third straight game, giving up only one goal in each outing...Next game vs. Pratt, Saturday 1 pm at Brookdale Park...
Singles Play Makes the Difference

By John Andre

Sparked by steady singles play, the MSC women's tennis team methodically disposed of Glassboro State College at the MSC courts, 5-2, Wednesday afternoon.

Highlighting the action was the fine play of senior first singles player, Chris Grassano. Grassano used a balanced serve and volley game to defeat Patsy Austin 6-2, 6-3. The consistent Grassano upped her record to seven wins and four losses this season.

In the second singles match, freshman sensation Donela Weber used a hard, booming serve and a ferocious backhand to handily defeat Mary Beth Baldwin 6-1, 6-2.

The experienced doubles team of Ellen Baureis and Sandy Eberwein showed their knowledge of each other's styles, in defeating Judy Ruff and Pam Dunstan 6-3, 6-4.

began to break down under the strain of the Prof attacks, and their offense continued to be stopped by their opponent's defense.

As MSC struggled to develop a successful offensive drive, Kaiser hit the final shot and the situation became grim for MSC. While Wimberg headed several desperate offensive rushes, MSC ran out of time and lost their third straight conference game.

And The Bubble Bursts

By Glenn Welch

The bubble has burst. Riding high on four straight wins and a No. 1 rating in the NCAA East Division III standings, the MSC football team lost to Fordham University, 18-15, at Sprague Field Saturday night.

Trailing 15-10 and faced with a fourth-and-twenty situation from the MSC 12, Ram quarterback Vince Connolly ran around right end to go in for a TD and give Fordham its first lead of the game early in the fourth quarter, a lead they never had threatened.

The touchdown took the steam out of the Indians in a game they needed so badly. If they had been able to beat Fordham they would have gained much recognition in the East Coast. The Rams, ranked fifth in the Division III ratings and first in the Lambert Bowl, were the team to beat on the Indians’ schedule.

The drive that brought about the demise of the Indians (5-2) started on the Ram 29. They made their way to the MSC 35 when Indian defensive tackle Mario Benimeo was called for grabbing the facemask of Ram halfback Bob Handerlan. Instead of being faced with a third-and-four situation from the MSC 35, Fordham had a first-and-ten on the 20.

“As far as I’m concerned, that was the turning point of the game,” Ram coach Don Rice said. “It kept our drive going and gave us some added momentum.” Four plays later, Connolly went in for the score that iced the game.

Ironically, Connolly did not even start the game. Chris Legrea, a transfer from Brooklyn College, came out in the second quarter in favor of Connolly when he failed to produce any offense.

“We do that all the time,” Rice said. “Both quarterbacks have equal ability, so we play whoever is moving the team.”

Connolly moved the team from the 12 to the win. The first half belonged to MSC, both statistically and emotionally. The Tribe held Fordham to just 26 net yards while opening up a 12-3 lead. The Indians were getting off the ball quicker and seemingly intent on knocking Fordham off.

Is Hamilton Playing ‘To Tell The Truth’?

By Matt Wilson

Eric Hamilton must be an alumni of MSC.

“MSC has the best football team it’s had in years. They don’t do a lot of things — just basics. But they execute the basics well,” Hamilton said.

Now when a team is 5-2 and has just been given a No. 1 ranked club all it could handle, such comments are not surprising. Except Hamilton happens to be Trenton State College’s head football coach — the team the Indians face this Saturday at Trenton at 1:30 pm.

“I respect MSC. Fred Hill has done an outstanding job and I’m not saying that to blow smoke up his posterior. We’re just trying to reach the level MSC is at now,” Hamilton said.

And what level is that coach? “Consistency. MSC plays good consistent football.”

And your club coach? That’s our problem. We play well one week and flat the next. We don’t execute the basics consistently, Hamilton said.

But don’t misunderstand Hamilton just knows his club’s weaknesses and is willing to talk about them.

“We do some things well,” Hamilton said. “We’ve got Nate Woodward who just went over the 2000 yard career rushing mark. And our defense has played pretty well.”

That doesn’t sound so terrible, a good offensive back and a fair defense, so how does one account for the 2-4 showing? “I don’t want to sound like I’m crying, but we’ve had injuries. Our offensive line is wiped out. We’re down to the four regulars and one man to fill in all the positions. It’s been our major weakness,” Hamilton said.

But while Hamilton is willing to talk about his own club’s problems, he seems less able to see weaknesses in his opponents.

“Whenever an offense gives you enough points to win – it’s a super offense,” Hamilton said, referring to MSC’s scoring problem. “And the defense had done a terrific job.”

Could Hamilton be engaged in a ploy? Is the coach attempting to lull the Indians into overconfidence? Probably not. The fact is, Hamilton is correct in his assessments. Despite the 2-1 conference record, the Lions are not contenders for the NJSCAC conference crown.

TSC’s two victories came against Jersey City State College and William Paterson College. It goes without saying that neither JCSC nor WPC can be considered a strong club. The Lions’ only tough conference test was against Glassboro State College. The Pros shut down TSC 14-0. And, the Lions have lost every nonconference contest.

The Indians enter the game with a 2-0 loop record, with three consecutive conference games left on the schedule. (Cont. on page 18)

Kaiser Defeats Squaws

By Mary King

Kathy Kaiser of Glassboro State College secured a victory for her field hockey team over MSC Tuesday at Brookdale Park, scoring the final goal of the game and snapping MSC’s comeback hopes, for a 3-1 win.

Kaiser rushed MSC goalie Margarite Washington on a short penalty corner and ripped in a shot from the right side. Washington blocked it, but couldn’t recover in time as the sharp center forward followed through and slid the ball past her with six minutes remaining in the second half.

MSC couldn’t get back in the game after that, though they tried. Center forward Anna Wimberg lead the offense down in GSC territory, driving in two wide shots when the game ended.

MSC’s offensive attack was aggressive in the first half, penetrating GSC’s defense from the start of the game. But GSC barred the goal solidly and mounted an offensive charge against their opponents.

Bonnie Glaser, GSC’s right inner, broke straight through the middle of MSC’s defense without warning and flipped the ball in for the first goal of the game with 12:30 left in the half. A shocked MSC offense immediately responded, piercing their opponent’s defense for 5:52 of the half, to GSC’s 4:04.

MSC had eight shots on goal to GSC’s one, but converted only one into a goal on Myra Graziano’s strike, following a strong offensive rush.

Prof goalie Annette Gore made several alert saves to deter the threats, leaving MSC frustrated until Graziano darted in and shot one past her.

The half ended with the score tied 1-1. MSC held a slight edge but couldn’t capitalize on it due largely to Gore’s unyielding presence.

At the start of the second half both teams played evenly, with MSC charging in sudden bursts. They dominated penetrating time in the second half by a slim margin, 4:50 to 4:24. Both teams produced five shots on goal.

Glaser broke into the clear on another penalty corner and sent a blistering shot by Washington 12:00 into the half.

Some sluggish back and forth play ensued. MSC’s defense (Cont. on p. 17)
