We do lose that amount, he may be forced to ask the department of higher education for permission to curtail enrollments next year. He also said that he would have to dismiss or not retain a number of faculty.

Although Byrne has not estimated the amount of the proposed increase, Dickson said that he has heard rumors that it will be $1 or $2 per credit. He added that he could not confirm the rumors. Dickson also said that MSC is not the college that Byrne is threatening to close.

Dickson expressed the desire to increase the amount of money the legislature approves, according to Dickson.

MSC will receive 2.8 percent less, depending on exactly how much money the legislature approves, according to Dickson.

NJ state college students currently pay about 28 percent of the total cost of their education, Dickson said. He thinks that the hike may be only 2 percent so that students would be paying 30 percent of the total educational cost. He said that the state has been trying to raise the total student cost to 30 percent for some time.

Dickson said that Byrne's threats to raise tuition or close the college were primarily political and that Byrne is using the tuition hike as a "political ploy" to get the NJ Legislature to approve new taxes. Byrne did not say specifically what taxes he wanted to raise. He said in The Star-Ledger that even if the legislature raises the $210 million, tuition will still have to be raised.

Edward Hollander, chancellor of higher education, said in a recent press release, "I believe that students are willing to pay a reasonable share of the costs associated with their education. However, tuition increases are not a reasonable alternative to a viable tax structure. The $23.2 million gap (in the higher education budget) cannot be made up through tuition hikes..."

"The higher education system must decide whether to supplement these recommendations with tuition increases or enrollment reductions," Byrne was quoted as saying in The Star-Ledger.

"There are a lot of politics being played," Dickson said. "The most vulnerable of all state departments is higher education, partly because it has less political power. The situation looks pretty grim," he continued.

If a state college is closed, Dickson said that the choice would be either Jersey City State College (JSC) or Ramapo College of New Jersey (Ramapo). He speculated that Ramapo, which has an enrollment of 3,000 students, would be the most likely choice because it is in a primarily Republican area. JSC is in Hudson County, which has a largely Democratic population. Byrne is a Democrat.

Hollander stated, "If the suggestion that we close a college, I believe that such an action would be a terrible disservice to the students and citizens of the state... In real terms, the budget forces cuts in every area of public higher education."

Dickson thanks that tuition is going up regardless of whether or not Byrne covers the deficit in the state budget. "I wouldn't bet against it," he said.
Iran gov't detains US delegation

Top Carter administration officials sounded an optimistic note today on the hostage situation in Iran, but gave no specific information to justify their hopes. The American hostages spent their 95th day in captivity today.

An American delegation invited to Iran by militants holding US hostages failed to get past the Tehran Airport yesterday. Officials are quoted as saying the group might be held at the airport overnight and then shipped back to the US.

Australia's prime minister will reportedly fly to Washington today for more talks with President Carter. The Australian Associated Press quotes officials in Paris as saying Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser's visit was hastily arranged after talks with French and West German leaders.

A high ranking Navy officer says the US should beef up sea and air power in the Pacific and Indian Ocean region. Adm. Robert Long told the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday that US forces are, in his words, 'stretched precariously thin' in the region.

Draft said to be not for men only

(Richmond, VA)--Former chief of naval operations Adm. Elmo Zumwalt says that President Carter told him women will be included in draft registration. Zumwalt says, "I met with the President last week and he told me he had decided to include women in the registration and would make an announcement to that effect today."

Zumwalt said, "Our country cannot afford to ignore the skills and resources women can bring to the military."

FBI probes NJ senator in scandal

According to the Long Island newspaper Newsday, US Sen. Harrison Williams (D-NJ), allegedly told FBI undercover agents posing as representatives of an Arab sheik that he had interfered with commission chairman Joseph Lordi on a license for the Ritz Project.

The newspaper says Williams allegedly commented that he had saved $3 million for the Ritz's developers.

Williams' wife, Jeannette, was a director and is now a paid consultant for Hardwick Companies Inc. of NY, which is a controlling interest in the Ritz Project.

Both Lordi and Williams have denied ever discussing the Ritz Project, or ever talking at all since Lordi joined the commission in late 1977.

Former Cowboy star paroled

(Austin, TX)--Former Dallas Cowboys star Bob Hayes has been granted parole by TX Gov. Bill Clements. Hayes has served 10 months of a 5 year sentence for delivering cocaine to a undercover police officer.

A Texas Board of Pardons and paroles official says Hayes will be eligible for release next month. The board had recommended the former Cowboy wide receiver for parole.

Former President Johnson with Commission chairman W.J. Estelle called Hayes a "model prisoner."

The proposed $100 million, 544-room Ritz Hotel and Casino Project has applied to the commission for a casino license. However, the commission has not yet considered it for a license or a temporary permit.

PCB found in blood of RR workers

(Wilmington, DE)--Union representatives say they're going to request that 700 workers in Amtrak's rail yard in Wilmington, DE be given blood tests to detect the hazardous chemical PCB.

An Amtrak spokesman says the chemical already has been discovered in the blood of 25 railroad workers and tests have been ordered for another 150 workers. PCB is known to cause cancer in laboratory animals, but so far, the spokesman says, there has been no damage to the viral organs of the workers tested.

An Amtrak spokesman in Washington said levels of the chemical vary in the blood from day to day, and the railroad's doctor have not been able to measure just how much the workers have absorbed.

Meal tickets buy more than a meal

by Jean Branna

Dorm students and off campus students who have meal tickets are paying 21 percent more than the actual price of the food and regular cafeteria expenses, according to Lois Redd, coordinator of ticket purchases. In the last few years, Redd explained that other food service companies also write this cost into their contracts and that the system has been used by all of the companies she has dealt with in the 16 years she has been at MSC.

This semester, Redd said, $20,000 was spent on new chairs, tables, and draperies for the Freeman Hall Cafeteria. The furniture was 20 years old and had been through a lot of "wear and tear," according to Redd. However, at a cost of $2,000 each, have been ordered for this semester, she added.

In the past, expenses have included the salad bar in the Bohn Hall Cafeteria, slicing machines, and toasters. Although students did have input on the type of furniture to buy for Freeman Hall, they do not have a part in most other purchasing decisions.

Although the money is also used to repair damages, student destruction is minimal. "Students take care of things," Redd stated. "The damage here isn't like it is in other colleges."

Heating and lighting bills are also paid by students who benefit from the services. Also, Bohn Hall is still in the process of being paid for with a portion of the money.

Under this system, students with a 20 meal per week plan, who pay $632 a semester, are putting $132.72 toward the margin. A student paying $372 for a 5 meal plan is paying $78.12 towards the overhead for operations. The system is "based on the use of the facilities," Redd stated. "It has to be done by dorm students," he added.

Outside organizations using the cafeteria services are billed an extra 10 percent to cover overhead expenses. All dormitory students in the four dorms on campus—Bohn, Freeman, Webster, and Stone—are required to purchase meal tickets. Off campus students and Clove Rd. dwellers may also purchase a ticket if they choose to do so. Twenty, 15, 10, and 5 meal per week plans are available at a cost of $290, $254, and $186, respectively per semester. This semester, 10 percent of the meal plan students have purchased 20 meal per week plans, 35 percent have the 15 meal per week plan, 32 percent have a 10 meal per week plan, and 3 percent have a 5 meal per week plan for a total of 1,346 students.

Cuisine Ltd. bid extended

At home on the range

by Anne Connor

Despite previous contract agreements, Cuisine Ltd. Food Service has extended their contract with MSC for a 3rd and 4th year, much to the surprise of Raymond Stover, director of freshman dining. Stover said, "Cuisine's contract projects no increase in cost to dormitory students."

Cuisine uses MSC as their "central administrative office," according to Lois Redd, administrator of housing. "Our concept is to "rent" college kitchen facilities."

The only additional cost to be added to the $19.75 rate for 20 meals will be for "additional meal days," other than the 216 required eating days listed in the contract, Redd said.

Cuisine set up a Nutrition Center, located in Freeman Hall, in which they serve 1200 senior citizens in the local area. This "Meals on Wheels" Program, according to Stover, is a major reason why Cuisine has not increased its meal ticket costs. Servicing other large colleges, such as Trenton State College (TSC), William Paterson College (WPC), Indiana University of PA, and Burlington County College (BCC), with the use of MSC facilities provides a "convenience" for Cuisine, which suggests another "good reason" for the extension of the original contract, Stover explained.

According to Redd, by using MSC's facilities for their other accounts, Cuisine "can afford to break even," rather than make a profit off of its MSC account. She said, "Cuisine owns their own wholesaler," which keeps their expenses minimal.

We have been assured that the quality and preparation will remain the same," Stover said. However, he mentioned that with "institutional cooking," quality is difficult to maintain," he added.

A suggestion box is also provided for any student who wishes to recommend new items for the menu. "This service has been very responsive to suggestions and quite receptive to comments," in Stover's opinion.

"Four years is the maximum," Stover indicated. After Cuisine Ltd.'s 4th year of service, "It will be impossible to extend the contract." A new dormitory will be built housing an additional 600 students. "A new contract with new provisions will be up for bids again," he concluded.

Pageant rescheduled

by Janice R. Bland

The previously postponed Miss Black Student Cooperative Union (BSCU) Pageant will now be held Feb. 24, 1980.

The pageant scheduled to be held Feb. 24, 1980. The pageant was postponed to allow new applicants to participate in the pageant.

Sylvester Allen, chairperson of BSCU's Cultural Affairs Committee and coordinator of the pageant, said that the criteria for participants remains the same and will apply to new participants.

Allen said that the cancellation of the pageant last semester was agreed upon by himself and the original participants.

According to Redd, by using MSC's facilities for their other accounts, Cuisine "can afford to break even," rather than make a profit off of its MSC account. She said, "Cuisine owns their own wholesaler," which keeps their expenses minimal.

We have been assured that the quality and preparation will remain the same," Stover said. However, he mentioned that with "institutional cooking," quality is difficult to maintain," he added.

Allen's own reason for scheduling the pageant in February is that it gives the new BSCU a chance to participate in the Miss MSC Scholarship Pageant. "We'd like to do it the 24th in order to give the winner the opportunity to enter Miss MSC if she so chooses," he said. Allen emphasized the fact that if Miss BSCU enters as a contestant for the Miss MSC Scholarship Pageant she will not enter as Miss BSCU, but as an MSC student.

The last time a MissBSCU pageant was held was in 1974, and the winner, now Paula Armah, will present Miss BSCU 1980 with her crown.
Fees to rise along with annex

by Chris Carroll

"A new era in development for MSC now starts," Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning, said in reference to the Student Center Annex and Play Fields Project.

The 2d bids on the project which were received on Jan. 31 are to be awarded, Quinn said. Forty-three different bids on 16 contracts were received and 8 different contracts will be awarded. Quinn said he had the hope to award the contracts on March 6," he said.

The 1st bids, received in October 1979, were S1 million over the S9.1 million budget. Quinn said. A softball field was cut out of the project, reductions on walkways and landscaping were made, and the elimination of improvements to existing fields were made to stay within the budget, he said.

Approximately S1 million in state monies will be used for the project, Quinn said. The rest of the money for the project will come from mortgages and the student union building fees, he said.

This fee will be incurred on S112 next year, he said. "This project is very important to the college in that it will satisfy several long-standing needs, including those for student office rooms and meeting rooms, additional parking," Quinn said.

The blue prints of the MSC campus show the sites where construction will begin on the annex and play fields.

The 8 contracts that will be awarded add up to a total of S6,590,312. Quinn said. Of this total, S3.5 million will be used for the annex; S200,000 for the locker building; and the rest of the money will be used for the playing fields, he said. These figures are all approximations, he said. The cost of the restoration of Sprague field, architect fees, alternatives, and contingencies are added to this amount to bring the total to S9.1 million, he said.

The project includes the construction of a 50,000 square foot annex, 2 7,353 square foot locker building, 4 new recreational fields, an all-weather track which will surround 1 of the fields, and a net increase of over 800 parking spots," Quinn said. "Construction should begin on April 1," he added.

The annex will be approximately 1.5 floors and will have offices and an amphitheater type lounge on the bottom floor, as pictured on the blueprints. The top floor will include more offices and a large outside plaza. An enclosed walkway will connect the annex with the existing student center. This walkway will begin on the 1st floor of the existing Student Center in front of the bank office and continue along the South end of the bookstore into the 2d floor of the annex, as shown on the blueprints. A small part of the bookstore will be lost to provide room for this walkway.

College Ave. will be widened 10 feet in the annex to allow the shuttle bus to stop out of the line of traffic and pick up passengers, Quinn said.

The locker building, which will be located in the Quarry, will have 2 floors, Quinn said.

Campus Police Report

Burglars foiled in Partridge Hall

by Chris Carroll and Dave Youshur

Two unidentified males broke into Rooms 414 and 31 in Partridge Hall, on Jan. 28, and unsuccessfully attempted to steal an IBM typewriter. Thefts from automobiles to the Valhalla of crime has been reported on Jan. 26. Officer Robert Williams, using information he had received on a previous date, stopped a car, and while routinely checking the driver's license found that it had been revoked.

A simple assault complaint was signed by Vincent Birritteri accusing Kevin Ritter of punching him in the mouth on Jan. 26.

A medical emergency, petty theft, and a fire alarm incident were also reported to the campus police last week.

Officer Scott Kinnie observed a light go out on the 4th floor of Partridge Hall while on patrol at 2:21 am. Kinnie notified headquarters and officer Paul Wurzel responded so that a search of the surrounding area was made.

The Special Investigation Committee of the SGA is as of yet undecided whether or not to impeach Larry Morgan, editor of Iturial, MSC's yearbook.

The Special Investigation Committee is meeting some time this week and their recommendation concerning Morgan's possible impeachment will be given soon.

Meanwhile, distribution of the yearbook is still frozen.

John Disimino, chairman of the committee, gave a report at the 1st SGA meeting of the semester on Jan. 30, 1980. The report consisted of the results of a survey of 30 students and whether or not they thought Iturial fits the dictionary definition of a yearbook—an annual book giving data of the preceding year. The report stated that 8 students said yes, 28 said no, 9 said they didn't see it, and 5 didn't care to comment.

Committeeman Steve Demsey of the SGA took Iturial to several professional photographers. The general opinion among the photographers was that many of the pictures which makeup the yearbook are inappropriate although some of them are very good.

Parking problem

by Karen Dalton

The building of the new dorm and its consequences for commuters was the main subject of concern at yesterday's SGA meeting. Four hundred parking places will be lost because of the construction from April to September. According to several SGA legislators, Dr. Elliot Minnberg, vice president of administration and finance, promised that the parking spaces would not be cut. Also, in an October issue of The Montclarion, Minnberg stated that new spaces would be supplied for the ones lost.

Michelle Giera, SGA vice president, said that Minnberg would be requested to attend next week's meeting to answer questions concerning this matter.

The bids for the Quarry Development Project have come in $400,000 under budget. Consequently, metrics such as trees and benches originally cut out of the plan be restored.

The student directory put together by the Public Committee will be available next month.

The Conservation Club has applied for SGA funding to pay for an Antinuclear Film. It granted, the $1,145 appropriation would pay for the 4 speakers' travel expenses, video tapes, antinuclear films, pamphlets, and other related expenses. The opposition to the allocation questioned the travel expenses. There seems to be a discrepancy between the request amounts and other prices quotes.

Should we go or stay home?

It is a sad commentary on our modern world, that the original conception of the Olympics as being the site of the best in international athletic competition, in a neutral environment, has been irrevocably overshadowed and ultimately overcome by fierce political competition. The examples of the 1936 games in Munich and the ruthless murder of the Israeli athletes at the hands of terrorists in 1972, it has become all too evident that the games have become yet another arena for political confrontation.

The nationalism which produces a country cheering blindly for its own athletes and muttering obscenities under it’s breath when another excels, is a natural reaction to intense competition and to a great degree is responsible for the excitement of the Olympiad. However, when it becomes commonplace for governments to establish drug programs, and go so far as to approve sex changes all for the glory of a piece of gold, the acclaim formerly reserved for athletic excellence is tainted by the possibility of foul play. All too often the original spirit of the games is lost and the athletes talents and personalities are submerged.

It is time to question the direction the Olympic games have taken. To whom does the glory of the games belong? To the athletes who have trained long and arduous hours or have taken. To whom does the glory of the games belong?

There’s an interesting children’s game out on the market these days entitled “World War 3.” The game, which according to the back cover, was designed by 2 retired generals, involves the various strategies and subterfuges that would be employed by the nations of the globe in the event of a 3rd world war. It comes complete with a playing board, a map of “occupied territories,” and a brief but very poignant explanation—written, one must assume, by the 2 retired generals—of why another world war is both necessary and inevitable.

I asked Damien R. Rockabh, president of the Little Vixen Educational Toy Co., for his explanation of this new game. “Explanation?” he asked, offering me a cigar, “What do you mean?” “I mean,” I said, ignoring his offer, “that Little Vixen is supposed to be an educational toy company, and you people are marketing a game for children aged 7-12 called World War 3! Don’t you think there’s something wrong here?”

He leaned back in his desk chair. “No, I don’t,” he told me, “Not at all. I look, I know what you’re thinking—that the 3rd world war isn’t a healthy topic for a kid’s game, that things are bad enough today as it is without us adding to the situation. However, we here at Little Vixen view things a bit differently. “We believe’s best for the children to be prepared in advance. I mean, let’s face it, the world today is no bed of roses. And while it’s all well and good for Sesame Street to preach brotherly love and compassion, it’s certainly not realistic. “Reality, that’s our guiding principle.” He banged his fist on the desk for emphasis. “Reality.” “Are you trying to tell me,” I said, very calmly, “that your company is planning to manufacture more games of this sort?”

Absolutely,” he replied, smiling with a bright Hux Finn smile. “Why, we’ve got 3 of them almost ready for the market. We have a news draft registration game called Turn Your Head And Gough.” “We have a game for future draft evaders called Feet Do Your Stuff.” “And we have a deluxe game, called ‘Tora, I Have A Feeling We’re Not In Kansas Anymore,’ which is all about what will happen after they drop the bomb. Each of these games was designed, by either 1 or both of our retired generals, for maximum enjoyment and educational value. And I believe that each of them, in it’s own way, is a success.” “A success?” I cried. “A success? Do you realize what you’re saying? Do you have any idea of what you’re doing? Has the entire world gone berserk? Am I the only sane person left? Is there now—”

I was interrupted at this point by the arrival of the 2 retired generals. They burst through the door and charged into the office, 2 old, grizzled men in full battle regalia, 1 of them, sword in hand, hotly pursuing the other. They circled the office several times, ducking and weaving, doling out the pictures on the walls, scattering papers about in wild disarray. Then, without a word, and with identical savage grins on their faces, they turned and galloped back into the hallway. One of them winked at me on the way out.

“Don’t let them bother you,” Rockabh said calmly, “They’re really best friends. It’s just their way of having fun. Hey, wait a minute! Where are you going?”

I looked at him. “To have a drink,” I said, trying to keep my voice steady, “and then to find a nice, deep munc shaft to hide in until all these war games are over.”

Tuition taking another hike?

by Neal Jacobson

"Although I'm a graduating senior, it won't be affecting me. However, for those remaining I can only say if it's going towards improved facilities it is worth it. Where is the money really going?"

Michelle Baptiste 1985 English

"I think it's terrible. Gov. Byrne messed up his budget, why should we have to pay for it? We're paying enough just to go to this place. I just don't think the students should be penalized."

Annmarie DiChiaro 1982 music

"I don't think that a hike is fair, because Byrne's shortage of money in his budget is his own mistake. Also, he's using the students as a con out. He should find some other means of coming up with the money instead of hitting the students. It's just not fair."

Sam Squire 1982 business

"I don't think it's good. A lot of people won't be able to afford it. Although for me I know that God will meet all my needs, so I'm not worried about it. I really hope it doesn't affect a lot of people."

Ralph Siegel 1981 sociology

"I don't think that a hike is fair, because everyone's shortage of money in his budget is his own mistake. Also, he's using the students as a con out. He should find some other means of coming up with the money instead of hitting the students. It's just not fair."

On Second Thought \ Meryl Yourish

The artful dodger

As I was walking to the back of the Rat the other day, I heard someone whisper my name. Looking around, I finally realized that the whisper had come from underneath I of the tables.

"Psst! Meryl!"

"Nora!" I cried. "What on earth are you doing under that table?"

"Shh!" she said, slowly crawling out and straightening up. Looking feebly to the left and right, she sighed, sat down, and said, "I'm not doing anything."

"Dodging what?"

"The draft."

"But there is no draft yet."

"Why wait till the last minute?" she asked. "They're not gonna get me, boy. I'm not gonna die in the desert for some 1919 dollar will come right back into circulation. Uncle Sam will start selling war bonds."

"Fine. Let him go over there. I'm not going to be in the middle of "bombs bursting in air." He's not gonna see his best friend hit by such effective weapons that the only thing left will be his belt buckle."

"Nobody wants to go to war, Nora."

"Good. Let's all stay home and there won't be one."

"I'm afraid it's not that simple. You know, President Carter just dared the Soviets to step over a line, and if they do, he's honor-bound to push them back."

"Fine. Let him go over there. I'm going to stay here."

"Well, Mexico, then."

"Don't drink the water."

"You're so original."

"Well, Mexico, then."

In last week's issue of The Montclarion, we incorrectly reported that Dr. Harry Balk had gone to school with John F. Kennedy. Actually, he had gone to school with Robert Kennedy.

Profs have 1st day jitters too

by Tracy Bernthal

Who’s afraid of the 1st day of classes? Students fear not being able to get into that “closed class” that they “desperately need.” Professors get the jitters, too.

“I have semiannual nightmares. The latest is that I’m in class and my wife is sitting next to me, an English department teacher who wishes to remain anonymous said. ‘When I got married, I didn’t know I married an English teacher said of his wife who also teaches at the college level.

“I’m in class and my wife is sitting next to me,” an English teacher who wishes to remain anonymous also related. “I don’t know what to do about my class and then there’s the question of what to do with my son; he should be in school, too,” the English teacher said.

“I have sleepless nights before the semester starts,” Dr. Frank B. Hanson, English department professor, said. “I wake up and have to read myself to sleep, again. I keep nightmares. The latest is that I’m in class and my wife is sitting next to me,” an English teacher who wishes to remain anonymous said.

Dr. Butler F. Brewton of the English department said of his 1st day, “I was looking for my class in Room 106. I was looking and looking... Finally, a colleague told me that the course number was 106. I was surprised to be looking for Room 110.”

“I don’t get 1st day jitters, but I don’t smoke or drink,” Dr. Adele Mc Collum of the philosophy and religion department said glancing at Brewton’s cigarettes, portable red ashtray, instant coffee, and coffee mug.

“Used to have visions of a class lynching me,” Mc Collum continued. “It’s only of me and all those students. Teachers have authority only as long as students give it to them.”

The teacher who wished to remain anonymous also related that he dreamed that he was a student again. “The teacher is writing things on the board that we must know for the final exam. But when I look at the board, I can’t see anything, everything is swimming in front of me.”

“And then there’s always that nightmare about the 1st day of classes and I’m laying down the law. I usually wake up from that one right after the riot breaks out.”

Commuters, does this sound familiar?

MSC's Olympic hopefuls

by Ross Sherman

Mucardo, a 22-year-old recreation major from Port Reading, NJ has achieved many honors during his weightlifting career. Training since the age of 12, Mucardo, who works out as much as 3 hours a day, 6 days a week, has won 3 National Junior Olympic and 2 Collegiate National titles. In addition, Mucardo won the 1978 Sports Festival held in Colorado and has competed in the Pan American Junior, and Senior World Championships. Hungry for a spot on the US Olympic team, Mucardo has purposely reduced his academic load and social schedule in order to train. Understanding the sacrifices that separates good athletes from great athletes, Mucardo said, "Politics and athletes do not mix. The US feels that their boycott will have an effort on the Olympic games. This is where they are mistaken. The Russians will still go on with the games regardless of whether the US is there or not. The only ones to suffer will be the US athletes."

Although Grippaldi and Mucardo are patriotic individuals who respect the president, neither feel that the Olympic games should be used as a political block. "Politics should be totally kept out of the Olympics. The purpose of the games is to promote peace, friendship, and love throughout the world by bringing the athletes of the world together. It is wrong for any nation to use the Olympic games as a means of political measure. By doing so, not only is the spirit of the Olympics contradicted, but the future of the games is jeopardized," Grippaldi said.

Although the US is requesting that the Olympic games be moved from Moscow or canceled, Grippaldi feels the chances for this happening are slim. According to Grippaldi, Moscow is prepared and arrangements cannot be made elsewhere with 5 months to go. "A contract was made to allow Moscow to hold the 1980 summer Olympic games and we should honor it by attending," Grippaldi said.

According to Mucardo, the government failed to realize that the athletes train at their own expense, and their friends' and parents'. Adding to Mucardo's statement, Grippaldi feels that if the politicians knew the sacrifices and felt the pain that an athlete goes through over a 4 year period to prepare for the Olympic games, they would have different attitudes towards boycotting. As of this time, the US Olympic Committee (USOC) has not taken measure to boycott the summer games. However, if the Soviets do not withdraw their troops by the deadline set by the president, May 24, the USOC votes for the International Olympic Committee (IOC) will be for the US to boycott the presence at the Moscow games. Should any attempts be made by a US athlete to compete in Moscow, the president can hold back the person's visa.

Although Mucardo said he would be very discouraged should the US boycott the games, he would continue to train for 1984 summer Olympics. The big incentive is that the next Olympics will be held on home soil in Los Angeles, CA. Realizing that this will be his last chance for an Olympic gold medal, Grippaldi hopes that the US reconsiders about boycotting. According to Grippaldi, 4 years will make a great difference in the attitudes of the athletes. A development such as boycotting could take the desire out of an athlete. Athletes ready for the summer games in 1980 will be past their peak in 1984. "The politicians don't lose, but we—the athletes—do," Grippaldi said.

"I'm in favor of boycotting the summer Olympics in Moscow," MSC's Ken Mallory, who is qualified to try out for the Olympic team as a wrestler, said.

Mallory, a sturdy-looking man with a red afro and serious hazel eyes, won the 1980 Eastern Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Free Style Wrestling Championship at 149.5 pounds. He's training for the spring trials for the summer Olympic team.

Mallory is quite serious about wrestling. He works very hard. At the age of 15 he started wrestling because he wanted to be a professional, he said, as he put on his kneepads in a wrestling room in Panzer Gym.

"Wrestling is a mental and physical game of chess," Mallory said. "It's an intensity-demanding and individual sport. Sometimes I'm solitary and aloof because it's such an intense mental experience. I don't believe in my wrestling, I know it," he stated firmly.

In addition to winning the Eastern AAU title, Mallory won the 1980 title for the Big Apple Open at 149.5 pounds.

He comes from Boston, MA, where he was the high school champion wrestler at 132 pounds in college style weights. He was the NCAA division 1 champion at 134 pounds and won freestyle once at 136.5 and twice at 139.5 pounds.

Mallory is a health profession major with a minor in biology. He goes to school fulltime at MSC. He's also assistant coach for the MSC wrestling team and wrestles for the New York Athletic Club.

"Serious wrestling involves sacrifice; your social life suffers a little. It takes 100 percent mental and physical effort," Mallory said.

His training for the trials includes 18 to 36 hours of running in a 5 day week. He takes 2 days off for rest, he said quite seriously. He spends 2.5 to 3 hours a day wrestling except on Tuesdays—when he spends 5 hours.

His diet consists of lean meats, fruits, vegetables, fish, poultry, etc.; he wants to wrestle at 136. "Diet is important in maintaining strength as well as losing weight," Mallory said.

"My strength lies in my ability to adapt to constant change, uncertainty, and improvisation," he said. He described the mental experience of feeling like he could "flow" into any shape and rise to meet his opponent.

He complained that half the men on campus wear wrestling jackets just for the prestige; they're not on the team. "It takes 100 percent and that's proof that the sport requires more than mere willingness to give," he said.

Mallory wasn't at all disadvantaged coming from a small school. "It doesn't make a lot of difference where you come from. When you're out on the mat, it's you. It's how you act and react," he said emphatically.

by Ann Marie Miskewicz

One of the most celebrated and publicized athletes ever to graduate MSC and a sure bet for the 1980 Olympics is Carol Blazejowski.

Blazejowski, known as the "Blaze," holds virtually every offensive and defensive record for women's basketball at MSC and is the 1st MSC athlete male or female, to have their uniform number retired.

Blazejowski, like any Olympic hopeful has been training hard for the upcoming summer Olympics. She is currently in Florida and was unavailable for any comments pertaining to the proposed Olympic boycott.

According to an article written by Phil Pepe, of the Daily News, Blazejowski has not yet expressed her opinion on the boycott and will not until she has had a chance to talk with officials of the United States Olympic Committee (USOC).

Also, Pepe stated in his article that Blazejowski had turned down an estimated $20,000 a year contract from the New Jersey Gems of the Women's Basketball League (WBL) and gave back the $27,000 prize money that she won in the Women's Superstars competition so she would remain eligible for the Olympics. The $27,000 prize money was contributed to the USOC and the Amateur Basketball Association of the U.S..

The 5-foot 11 inch Blazejowski began her career at MSC in 1974 after graduating from Cranford High School. In her 4-year career, she became the 1st 2,000 point scorer in basketball history at MSC and set a single season scoring record of 1,235 points.

Through her leadership, the Squaws were—New Jersey Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (NJAAW) champions from 1975-76, finished 3rd in the AIAW Eastern Regionals (1976-77) and 1st in the regionals during the 1977-78 season. It was during this year that the Squaws made it to the final four in the country finishing 3rd in the AIAW National Basketball Championships, quite a feat for a non-scholarship school.

Besides her numerous records at MSC, Blazejowski's accomplishments have stretched clear across the nation.

In 1978, she was the recipient of the 1st annual Wade Trophy awarded to the top woman basketball player in the country. She is a 5-time Kodak All-American, and led the nation in scoring in 1976-77 with 34 points per game (ppg) and in 1977-78 with 36.6 ppg.

One of her most notable collegiate games was played at Madison Square Garden where she scored 52 points, a record for both men and women at the new Garden. The "Blaze," finished with a career scoring average of 31.7 and is the all-time leading women's career scorer amassing 3,199 points.
Jazz and rock fusion:

by Lori Scutti

There was a time when a concert meant a band performing choice cuts from their albums. As of late, however, the concert route proves to be nothing more than a live advertising media for a newly released album.

Had Weather Report offered even a smattering from their stockpile of well knowns amassed over the groups 9 year history (aside from Birdland), perhaps the show Monday night would not have been one long musical mastectomy. Although inventiveness and unparalleled musicianship can not be denied, Weather Report have buried comprehensible melody lines and spawned cacophonous harmonies labeled fusion.

The individual efforts were flawless. Passionate devotion to intricacy ruled each man's performance, laced with an intensity only virtuosity is capable of. Skill reverberated throughout the hall and was refreshingly maintained. However, Weather Report lack a cohesive force among them and consequently lose as a group what was individually gained. Each instrument's melody line was not often enough united with the rest in a complementary chord arrangement.

A Weather Report concert is a cross between a prayer meeting and the Who with music lessons. Jaco Pastorius, the group's illustrious bass player, is elevated to God-like status by the predominantly young audience who continuously chant his name.

Lionel Hampton's got the good vibes

by Paulette Wilson

In this ever changing world, music plays no exception. Generations have been introduced to several types of musical styles—jazz, swing, rock 'n' roll, disco, new wave.

Saturday, MSC had the honor of being entertained by one of the jazz world's most respected performers—the good will ambassador of jazz—Lionel Hampton, a world renowned entertainer, famous for his expertise on the vibes, who just last year celebrated his 50th year in the musical world.

When asked how it felt to be a good will ambassador Hampton commented in his jovial manner, "I like it, especially the pretty girls I get to meet." Observing from behind the curtain, I see a musician in complete control—taking command for the sole purpose of brightening the audience's enjoyment, and bowing only as a favor to the audience, who responded to his music with all the warmth and admiration anyone could ask for.

Jannic Bennett, a solo singer with Lionel off and on for 5 years, called herself, "a twist of lemon in the act, with the band being the tonic and of course Lionel being the vodka. Anyway you mix it, the end result is always something nice to say the least."

The Lionel Hampton concert, sponsored by Black Student Cooperative Union (BSCU), was in all respects stupendous. Even though he didn't play to a sell out audience, the crowd made him feel at home and loved.
Weather goest thou?

what was on the tape recorder is a mystery to all, but then again mystery is part of religion.

Pantaleon theatrically jumped off an amplifier at the end, and I was informed that there was supposed to be a laser beam had it not broken prior to the event. Like man, what a bummer.

There were, however, times when this fragmented group joined forces for unquestionable high points. In front of a 3-paneled slide show tribute to the Big Apple and jazz greats such as Lester Young, Charlie Parker, and Count Basie, Weather Report briefly sized with an electrified version of Duke Ellington's "Rockin' in Rhythm." An up beat version of Parker--dedicated "Birdland" followed and kept the pace up, although finally mounted, arrived too late.

Had the group any real sense of an audience, Weather Report would have extended the climax achieved with the last 2 numbers into the encore that ensued. Unfortunately, the encore consisted of a drum solo and screaming electronics, united in the end to form what turned out to be the low point of the 2 hour presentation.

Although Weather Report's masters over the musical form that they created remains indisputable, this group fails to be entertaining, despite their newly adopted theatrics and heavy metal attitude.

If you've seen 1 ghost....

by Tracy Bernthal
Haunted Houses
by Richard Winer and Nancy Osborn

If Richard Winer and Nancy Osborn's Haunted Houses comes up missing hours of scary, can't-be-put-down reading, you'll be disappointed with this nonfiction account of paranormal events. Many of the "ghost" stories are too much like old campfire tales to be shocking or exciting.

There are some fun tidbits sprinkled throughout the book, though: a haunted restaurant in Morristown, NJ whose spirits have been seen by staff patrons as recently as 1978; a witch's foretelling that hints of nuclear holocaust; a haunted house in NYC that was once part of NY's 1st governor's farm estate.

Unfortunately, all too many stories--although documented--are repetitive. A man is challenged to drive a nail into a coffin. After completing the task in a deserted cemetery, he fearfully tries to flee but feels something grab his coat. The next morning he's found dead. He nailed his coat to the coffin; he died of a heart attack.

Each chapter is a separate story and I suggest the reader 1st turn to those chapters that interest him, or else the book may be put down and forgotten. The best chapters include: "Erotic Entities," "Patriotic Spirit," "Military Ghosts," and "The Winchester Mystery House--The House that Fear Built." The glossary is helpful for those interested in, but not enthusiasts of, the paranormal--the abnormal occurrences that cannot be explained scientifically. And although Winer, author of The Devil's Triangle can be seen driving around Ft. Lauderdale in his red, 1964 Corvette roadster, Haunted Houses lacks style and flair. Osborn's 8 years of laboratory and field study of the paranormal are evident in the book's range of material.

The $2.25 paperback is really only a $1.25 book.

Whenever you're near me, I hear a symphony

by Stephen Kantrowitz

The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra is rapidly becoming 1 of the leading orchestras in the country. Last Saturday's performance at Montclair High School certainly testified to that. Since Maestro Thomas Michalak took over the podium during the summer of 1977, the orchestra has been playing with more and more expertise and musicianship. Michalak draws a wonderful sound from his players that few orchestras can rival.

The program began with "Le Chasseur Maudit" (The Accursed Huntsman) by Cesar Franck (1822-1890). This piece, a symphonic poem, is quite majestic and expressive. Symphonic poems were a popular genre with composers in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. It was written when the composer was 61 years old, following an inspiration from a ballet, "The Wild Hunter," by the German poet, Gottfried August Burger.

This piece is a fine example of the reasons Franck influenced the following generations of French composers. Although the horn solos were cut a bit too short, the performance was quite good. The 2d piece was the "Concerto for Violin and Orchestra" in D Major, Op. 35 by Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky (1840-1893). This piece has been enormously popular with audiences and poses the most difficult and strenuous of technical difficulties for the soloist. Silvia Marzovici's performance was 1 of the best I have heard in quite some time. She played the concerto quite confidently, with a very sweet and beautiful tone. My only criticism of her playing was some shirllness and faulty intonation in the upper positions. Her playing had a unique quality to it.She made wonderful use of the stage by moving from 1 spot to another as she played. I have never witnessed anything like this before, but it had no adverse effects on her performance.

The piece is very Russian in character. It is in 3 movements: allegro: moderato, canzonetta: andante, and finale: allegro vivace assai. Although many interesting and beautiful themes are introduced, few are developed to any degree in a more than satisfactory manner.

After intermission, the orchestra began with "Ancient Airs and Dances," Suite No. 3, by Ottorino Respighi (1879-1936). While the 1st half of the program was devoted to Romantic composers, the latter half was occupied by post Romantic composers, namely, those of the Impressionistic period. This suite is made up of "modern" transcriptions of pieces from the 16th and 17th centuries. The pieces were tried after their predecessors Baroque and Baroque predecessors; "Italiana," "Aria di corte," "Scelta," and "Passacaglia." The performance was a very fine one, warmly played by the orchestra.

The final piece of the concert was also a suite. Entitled "La Mer" (The Sea) by Claude Debussy (1862-1918), the piece is a series of 3 symphonic sketches.

The titles of the musical sketches are rather atmospheric, "From Dawn until Noon on the Sea," "The Play of the Waves," and "Dialogue of the Wind and the Sea." This suite is an example of Impressionistic writing at its finest. The piece is very tranquil and serene with rich and colorful orchestrations and harmonies. The solo passages were tenderly played by the orchestra's concertmaster, John-Torh.

The evening was extremely entertaining. I am anxiously awaiting the orchestra's next performance at Montclair High School on Sat., March 1, at 8:30 pm.
The Clash is calling; anybody listening?

by Dirk Bender

The Clash
London Calling
CBS Clash-3 (Import)

Since there are any number of waterlogged twerps who have compared (favorably, yet) Fleetwood Mac’s “Tusk” to the similarly double disked Beatle’s White Album, I won’t bother making the obvious connections that the new Clash product has with its rock counterpart, the Stones’ Exile on Main Street (1972). Except to point out that the latter 2 releases share the same number of tracks (18—sort of; more on that later) the variety of musical forms, the somewhat tacky use of a horn section, and, last but not least, contextual importance.

After spending a large portion of 1976 recording somebody else’s ideas of what a Clash album should sound like (the result being, of course, the Sandy Pearlman-produced Give ’Em Enough Rope—an exercise in guitar sustain which managed to sparkle despite itself), the 1st part of last year watching their company repackaging their 1st 1977 album for its belated American release (which involved the inclusion of a lot of never previously unavailable material at the expense of three great original tracks), these 4 punks are finally having a go at the American market on their own terms. London Calling will be something of a letdown to those who got off on the raw energy of early Clash tracks like “Janie Jones” and “Remote Control,” tunes that socked you in the gut and finished before you know what had happened.

But the anger’s still there in this latest product; it’s just more skillfully handled, with a lot less name calling and a lot more introspection. The title track deals with an unseen enemy, but the paranoia’s laid on so thickly that it could be anybody. More importantly, though, the Clash carry on a theme prevalent in all their work—the recognition of the need for solidarity coupled with an acknowledgment of the futility of any attempts for unity. It was well expressed in the last 2 achingly verses of 1977’s “White Man in Hammersmith Palais”—lead vocalist Joe Strummer saw himself as no more than a “drug provoking wolf who looks so sick in the sun”—and so it goes still 3 years later in “Working for the Clampdown.”

Having recognized a problem, however, the Clash are not going to hit the listener over the head with it. The redemption is in the music, and the music here varies from straight ahead punk (gag, gag) rock (“Clampdown,” the title track, “Death or Glory”) to reggae (“Revolution Rock,” “Rudie Can’t Fail”) to r’n’b (executed astonishingly well in songs such as “Jimmy Jazz,” “The Right Profile,” and the album’s most danceable cut, their cover of “Wrong ‘em Boyo”).

In short, there really is something for everyone on the new Clash album. Considering its low list price for the double album (and how much did you spend for your copy of Tusk or The Wall?... and the fact that this band now has the skill to pull off anything from hard rock to a lullaby set in the Spanish Civil War, you’d be crazy not to get it.

Company on their toes at Memorial Auditorium

by Donna Lee Noone

The Connecticut Dance Company appeared on stage at Memorial Auditorium Feb. 1, and presented a sequence of dances in tribute to the famous choreographer Doris Humphrey.

The company has been in existence since 1975 but the dancers have been dancing together only 3 years. Their style is strictly modern, an acquired taste...

Johnson's 32 trims Stockton

MSC's men's varsity basketball team once again evened its record at .500, trimming Stockton State College (SSC) 72-63 Saturday night in Pomona. The Tribe is now 8-8 with but 5 contests remaining, and a possible New Jersey State College Athletic Conference (NJSCAC) playoff berth hanging in the balance.

Capt. Jeff "JJ" Johnson scored a career high 32 points in the game, hitting 15 buckets from the floor and adding 2 free throws. JJ also snared 11 rebounds.

The Indians led at the half, 37-33, and with the help of an 8-2 tear, exploded in the 2d half to take a 53-43 lead.

John Langford led SSC (7-13) with 20 points.

The Tribe closes out its '79-'80 campaign with 3 home games and 2 road visits.

On Thur., Feb. 7, Kean College (Kean) invades Panzer Gym at 8 pm. Sat., Feb. 9 and Wed., Feb. 13 take the Tribe on the road against William Paterson College (WPC) and Upsala College (Upsala), respectively. Both contests begin at 8 pm.

Jersey City State College (JCSC) and Glassboro State College (GCS) will help MSC close out its season with 2 night games (both 8 pm starts) back at Panzer Gym.

JCSC brings its bid for an undefeated NJSCAC record in on Sat., Feb. 16 and GCS arrives on Mon., 18 for the final home game of the season.

MSC: O'Connell 3-0-6, Barry 2-0-4, Hill 1-1-3, Richc 6-1-13, Chamra 2-4-8, Glave 2-2-6, T. Johnson 0-0-0, J. Johnson 15-2-32, TOTALS: 31-10-72.

Indians 'Riche' in talent

by Stan Gorlick

Ed Riche is the type of basketball player that every coach would like to have on his team. MSC Coach Ollie Gelston is fortunate enough to have Riche on his side.

"I would like to have a team of Ed Riches," Gelston commented, "he is such a great competitor who can do so many things well on the court.

In just a little over 1 varsity season, the 6 foot 4 inch sophomore physical education major has already established himself as an outstanding performer in the New Jersey State College Athletic Conference (NJSCAC).

As a freshman, Riche broke into the starting lineup during the final month of the season. Down the stretch he was instrumental in leading the Indians to 3 consecutive conference victories and berth in the NJSCAC playoffs. During this period, he averaged just under 12 points per game.

Currently this season, Riche is 2d on the team in scoring with a 13.5 point per game average. He also leads the squad in field goal percentage (.573) and is 2d in rebounding as he is pulling down 7 caroms per game.

"He is a very deceptive player," Gelston said. "He does everything effortlessly and with great ease.

Gelston, who just can't seem to say enough positive remarks about Riche, continued by saying that he has amazing quickness with both his hands and feet. "Ed, to cap things off, is an extremely intelligent player who always seems to know what to do on the court and doesn't hurt you with mistakes.

At this point in his collegiate career, Riche really doesn't have any clear cut personal goals but does have some goals he hopes the team will achieve.

"I would like to win a championship," the former Bayonne high school star mentioned, "we always came in 2d in high school so I hope one of these years we can go all the way.

Riche really looks forward to the big conference games such as William Paterson College (WPC) and Jersey City State (JCS). "I enjoy playing against these kinds of teams," Riche said, "I like playing that fast-paced type of play and... us to win the conference, these are the teams we must beat."

Riche feels that the Indians have 1 major ingredient to be a winning team and that is unity, "Everyone is pulling for the next guy to do well. No one is greedy which makes all of us try even harder. Another important factor is that as a team we have the potential this season and we'll all be back next year."

Gymnasts split

by Joe Yglesias

It was a very busy week for the MSC women's gymnastics team with 2 away tri-meets. Unfortunately for the ladies it was not as productive as it was busy.

Wednesday, the Squaws traveled to New Brunswick to meet Rutgers and Trenton State College (TSC). Despite achieving their highest score thus far this season, 116.45, the squad suffered a double loss. TSC was an upset winner with a 122.6 final total and Rutgers who is only 1-4 this season finished 2d with an inflated 119.3.

Once again it was a case of starting out strong and then fading away due to poor concentration. Once again the vault event was the consistent event for MSC with a 32.25 total.

Ladies with a 6.85 followed by Vai Mayer 6.55 and Renee Massev 6.3.

Joanna Venturini 7.95, Diane Mazujian 7.45 and Vicky Shaffer 119.3.

In the uneven bars event Joan Hayes was high for MSC with a 7.5 score followed by Diane Mazujian with a 7.1. Also scoring for MSC was Renee Massey 6.95 and Judy Olsen 6.65.

The balance beam event continues to be a problem area for the team despite their practice efforts. Joan Hayes was high for the ladies with a 6.85 followed by Val Mayer 6.55 and Renee Massey 6.95.

The floor event competitors showed some improvement in their scores with a 30.0 total. Vicki Wilson and Sharon Bakunas lead the way with matching 7.5's with Renee Massey 7.35 and Donna DeKluyver 6.95 right behind them.

On Saturday it was a trip to Long Island to meet Hofstra University (HU) and Farmingdale Community College (FCC) at Hofstra. The result was a split for the Squaws, with HU defeating MSC 116.65 to 104.85 and MSC downing FCC who scored a paltry 79.10.

Once again it was a case of starting out strong and then fading somewhat at the end. The teams were all nearly even at the halfway point as once again the vaulting event scored well with a 31.05 total. Vicki Wilson showed in the way in spectacular fashion with a 8.55 score which earned her a 1st place. She was supported by teammates Joanna Venturini 7.95, Diane Mazujian 7.45 and Vicky Shaffer 7.1.

In the uneven bars event, Diane Mazujian was high for MSC with a 6.4 which gave her 3d place honors. Right behind Mazujian was fellow captain Joan Hayes with a 6.3 score. It was Joan Hayes once again in the balance beam event with a team high 6.95.

"I'm not here for any type of public relations. I've been treated very well by faculty and students in the recreation department. They know that I am just here to go to school," Chris Chambliss, Golden Glove 1st baseman for the Indians 'Riche' in talent.

"I would like to win a championship," the former Bayonne high school star mentioned, "we always came in 2d in high school so I hope one of these years we can go all the way.

Riche really looks forward to the big conference games such as William Paterson College (WPC) and Jersey City State (JCS). "I enjoy playing against these kinds of teams," Riche said, "I like playing that fast-paced type of play and... us to win the conference, these are the teams we must beat."

Chambliss, his wife Audrey, and his 4-year-old son, Russell, reside in Upper Saddle River, NJ. In fact, his wife helped him with his classes in the beginning of the semester when his job took him on the road. "Two weeks in September we were home and 2 weeks we were away. Audrey came in to some of my classes and took notes," Chambliss explained.

Beside playing baseball, Chambliss enjoys basketball, tennis, and raquetball. He enjoys listening to music and has a collection of jazz records, but does not have a particular favorite.

Most people react to him by just saying "Hi." A few, though not many, ask him for his autograph. "I want to get to know them as students, not because of who I am," he emphasized.
Lady Lions survive, 77-63

by Paul Huegel

The women's swimming team, registering victories in but 6 of 16 events, faltered last Friday afternoon in an attempt to knock off conference rival Trenton State College (TSC). Despite capturing 1st in the final events--Karen Van Schaak winning the 1 meter dive (optional), Mary McKenna taking the 100 yard breaststroke, and the team of Füken Nowitzke, Sue Taylor, Judy DiStefano, and Retha Tucker securing the 200 yard free-relay—the Squaws fell short of the mark, 77-63.

Going into the 50 yard freestyle, the 9th event, TSC held a 43-27 advantage. The lead, however, was far from out of MSC's reach. Then, the dam burst.

The Lady Lions went out and took 1st in the ensuing 5 events. Nancy Weaver breezed through the 50 yard freestyle and the 100 yard independent medley. Karen Comers easily took the 100 yard backstroke. Debbie Doogie (2:13.5) edged MSC's Taylor (2:14.4) in the 200 yard freestyle and Tracy La Pann iced the 50 yard butterfly. When it was over, TSC held a commanding 73-59 lead which they managed to hold.

The Squaws never led in the meet, but tied the contest in the early going. In the 4th event, the 100 yard freestyle, MSC made it a clean sweep as Tucker (0:58.8), DiStefano (1:00.1), and Mary Beth Maroney (1:04.6) shut out the Lady Lions and brought the score to a 17-17 deadlock.

Cocaprain Van Schaak displayed her extraordinary diving ability once again as she went up against 3 TSC opponents in both the compulsory and optional 1 meter dives. Registering a close decision in the compulsory event, nipping TSC's Chester with a score of 147.70 to Chester's 145.30, Van Schaak made it look easy the next time around. In the optional, she outpaced Chester 221.45 to 123.35 to single handedly give the Squaws 10 very big points.

Other standouts in this tightly fought contest included Cindy Landanza, who recorded a 1st place finish in the 200 yard independent medley and a 2nd place showing in the 100 yard independent medley.

Cocaprain McKenna and teammate Tucker both captured 1st and 3rd place finishes in the day. McKenna's came in the 100 yard breaststroke (1:10.6) and 100 yard freestyle (3rd). Tucker's came in 2 freestyle events, 1st in the 100 yard and 3rd in the 50 yard.

DiStefano was the lone Squaw to finish in the top 3 spots 3 times. She achieved 2 2nd place finishes and 1 1st in the 100 yard freestyle and 50 yard freestyle, and a subsequent 3rd place finish in the 100 yard independent medley.

Squaws take 6th in a row

by Terry Mullane

This past week the women's basketball team continued its winning ways by posting victories over Princeton University (PU), 87-47, and Immaculata College (Immaculata), 73-59.

On Thursday, the Squaws' experience proved too much as they opened up a 45-20 halftime lead against the Lady Tigers. From the opening tap, MSC applied their 1-2-2 press causing PU to turn the ball over several times. The Squaws converted the turnovers to baskets as they outscored the Lady Tigers 22-6 in the last 5 minutes of the half. Senior Jill Jeffrey and sophomore Peggy Rooney provided much of the scoring with 16 and 12 points respectively.

In the 2d half, MSC broke the game open with their well balanced scoring attack. The Squaws defense continued to pressure the ball creating PU turnovers. When the buzzer sounded, MSC had chalked up its 14th victory of the season, 87-47.

Jeffrey, the 5 foot guard out of Allentown, PA finished up with a career high 26 points, hitting on 13 of 20 shooting from the field. Many of her jumpers were 15-20 footers from the downtown area. Rooney totaled 22 points, sinking a phenomenal 10 of 12 from the floor.

On Saturday, MSC improved its record to 16-4 by defeating Immaculata, 73-59. Despite winning their 6th game in a row, the Squaws never seemed to get their high powered offense on track. The final score was no indication of the Squaws dominance in talent and experience against the division 2 Mighty Macs.

Jeffrey, continuing where she left off Thursday, sank the first 2 baskets of the game on long range jumpers, as the Squaws quickly opened up an 8-0 lead. For the next 7 minutes, though, MSC provided the fans with lackluster play as the Mighty Macs closed the gap to within 3, 16-13. After a Squaw time-out in which they received a verbal awakening, their offense went on to outscore Immaculata 18-7 for a 34-21 lead. Debbie O'Brian led the way by scoring 12 of her total 14 points in the opening half. The 2d half proved to be no more exciting than the 1st as the Squaws displayed a minimal amount of intensity to win the contest. If not for the fine play of the Squaws' guards, Jeffrey, Alice Schmidt, and Tracy Brown, the scoreboard might have read closer than the 73-39 final indicated.

Jeffrey, who seems to have regained her fine and much needed shooting touch, finished the game with 18 points. Schmidt, the senior cocaptain out of Jersey City, NJ showed her experience and court leadership by running the offense and handing out 10 assists.

Brown, the Squaws' leading scorer averaging 12 points per game, scored 11 points—many coming off dazzling offensive moves.
