Fall to usher in MEd

by Mike Davino

MSC may get a Masters of Education (MEd) degree program in September if a proposal submitted by the college to the state Board of Higher Education is approved.

The program will be unique at MSC because "it will address all the needs of a teacher, rather than just a specific subject area," according to Dr. Ercell L. Watson, dean of the school of education and community services.

Emphasis will be placed on enhancing the skills of the teacher to understand himself and relate to other people.

The program will help teachers come to grips with critical issues facing them.

Dr. Thunder Haas, chairman of the department of educational foundations, and Dr. Nicholas Michelli, chairman of the department of curriculum and teaching, developed separate tracks of the program.

"We have submitted 35 copies of the proposal to the state department of higher education," Watson said. A committee is looking at it now and the board will consider it in June." Watson added. "We are optimistic that it will be approved. We hope to institute it in September," he said.

"We have graduate programs here that address our subject area needs. The MEd will offer more foundation courses in political science, sociology, and psychology, for example, and emphasize these issues as they effect education," Watson said.

"We are finding a lot of teachers are ineffective not because of difficulties with the fields they teach, but because of the difficulties they have in relating to students, parents, and administrators," Watson stated.

Haas, who developed the foundations track of the program, said, "The purpose of this track is to acquaint teachers already well prepared in their own disciplines, with new social trends, philosophical outlooks, and cultural outlooks that effect educational goals, activities, and programs of present education.

"America's youth, though alert and talented, is often provincial and limited in terms of cultural and ideological views outside their own neighborhood. In order to offer intellectual opportunities beyond their own geographic boundaries we must broaden the horizons of the professionals that teach them."

Michelli, developer of the teacher improvement track of the program, said, "We are aiming to improve the skills of the teachers. Sixty percent of the teachers in the 5 counties surrounding Montclair do not have masters degrees; the figure is 70% in Newark. We feel the program is the best way we can make an impact on the schools in the area. We are making an effort to attract teachers from Newark.

"Teachers attending MSC will have a choice of an MA in their own or in another area such as counseling. The MEd will fill a void by offering them a chance to improve their teaching skills."

Watson said, "Institutions are learning that as undergraduate enrollments are dropping, they have to place more emphasis on graduate students. This program was started 6 or 7 years ago, but we ran into the state moratorium on new graduate programs.

"We have considerable flexibility in the program. Independent projects will be possible. They can emphasize key needs outside of class, right on the job."

The program will also benefit laymen, Watson said. "This society is the most education oriented in the world. I'd estimate that 90% are involved with education in one way or another. The potential for involving education board members and other laymen is tremendous," he concluded.

Art prof spurs debate

by Mary Ann DeFiore

The recommended reappointment of Robert Kirshbaum to the fine arts department was the center of discussion at the May 6, 1980 unofficial meeting of MSC's Board of Trustees.

Kirshbaum, who was refused tenure at a trustees' meeting earlier this year, was further reviewed and recommended for reappointment by the Personnel Committee of the Trustees.

Several discontented students approached the trustees with their complaints about Kirshbaum and their disapproval with his reappointment. One of their major complaints was the manner in which their complaints were handled and investigated.

One of the antiKirshbaum faction, Arlene Reimann, said, "Being in the studio I was exposed to harassment by Mr. Kirshbaum," adding that she was forced to resign from the class because of harassment and chastisement. "So I would encourage you to investigate this thoroughly," she recommended.

"I almost feel like this is a kangaroo court and I am very disappointed," she said. Gerald LeBoff, chairman of the trustees, interrupted her statement, saying, "There is one thing I will not accept. I will not accept any ad hominem attacks on members of this board or upon this board. I think this is a disservice on your part and I think you owe us an apology for that type of statement," LeBoff commanded from the speaker.

Representing the proKirshbaum faction were Richard Laddy and Eileen Schreiber, Liddy, a senior fine arts major, presented a petition signed by 104 fulltime fine arts majors in support of Kirshbaum. Schreiber, who is also an undergraduate, described Kirshbaum as a very intelligent man. "We have been fighting a long time in favor of him, too. Just because we won, they can't think the whole thing was skimmed over," she commented.

Addressing LeBoff, Marlene Lanker, who graduated from MSC in 1976 with a Masters in Fine Arts (MFA), stated, "Any evaluation you and the trustees have come to has obviously been made amongst ourselves and not concerning us. We have never been advised as to protocol (in filing a complaint)."

MSC President David W. Dickson responded, "You may disagree with our conclusions, but I don't think merely because you are unhappy with our conclusions you have a right to question the fact that we must follow procedures which give appropriate attention to all sides and to the continued on page 3.
American prisoners in Tehran

(Iran)—Iran said 2 American men have been arrested in connection with the failed hostage rescue mission and are being held in a prison in Tehran. The prosecutor general's office said the 2, whose names were not released, are in the same prison in which American freelance writer Cynthia Dwyer is held. Iranian revolutionary guards say they have proof Dwyer is a CIA spy.

Iran's justice minister said the newly elected parliament won't take up the fate of the American hostages for some time after its 1st meeting. Ayatollah Beheshti said the 2, whose names were not released, are in the same prison in which American freelance writer Cynthia Dwyer is held. Iranian revolutionary guards say they have proof Dwyer is a CIA spy.

Iran's government said an international conference will meet in Tehran in early June. Iran says the conference is to deal with its claims of US crimes against Iran—among them, the failed hostage rescue mission.

Jewels lost in John

(New York, NY)—A salesman for a Manhattan jeweler was robbed of $475,000 in gems early yesterday morning in a rest room at the Eastern Airlines terminal of Kennedy Airport, according to police.

Police say the salesman, 27-year-old William Tolve, had flown in from Dallas, and was held up in the men's room of the terminal by a man armed with a gun at about 2:30 am, according to police.

The stickup man handcuffed Tolve, taped his mouth, and removed a black leather pouch containing the diamonds from Tolve's inside pocket. Tolve worked for the diamond firm of the S. Loepfer jewelers of 22 West 4th St. in Manhattan, whose owner, Howard Toepfer, said the gems were insured.

Toepfer said he had no information immediately about the theft and said he had not expected Tolve back from Dallas until today.

Eastern Airlines said its last flight of the day from Dallas had landed at the airport at 2:26 am.

FDU to up drinking age to 21

(Staten Island, NJ)—The drinking age may be raised to 21 at Farleigh Dickenson University (FDU-Teaneck) according to the news editor for the Gauntlet, FDU's student newspaper. "There have been too many problems with disorderly conduct as a result of drinking," he explained. "We don't think NJ is going to raise the drinking age to 21, but we feel it may be necessary to raise it at our school," he commented. Conferences are still being held and a final decision should be reached by September 1980.

On a slightly happier note, Perry Donofrio a disc jockey for WFDU, the FDU-Teaneck radio station, made his debut on WPIX in NYC last Saturday. Donofrio is on a trial basis for the summer season to see if he captures the WPIX listeners, according to the feature editor of the Gauntlet, FDU's student newspaper. "Not many students have had the opportunity to appear on a big NYC radio station and we're confident that Donofrio will take advantage of it," he added.

Speakers denied money

(Union, NJ)—Five guest speakers who attended a Kean College (Kean) antidraft rally, are tentatively not receiving the $285 sum that was promised to them, according to John O'Reilly, editor-in-chief for Kean's student newspaper, the Independent. The speakers, all war veterans, are being denied their fees by the student council because of a technical error made by a Kean student, O'Reilly said. Ned Rudnicki, a student representing the speakers, apparently missed the deadline for the entry form for guest speakers. The council voted by a large majority, 20-3, not to pay the speakers, but there is much controversy over that decision. Lou Gogal, chairman of the Townsend Lecture Series, the group representing the speakers, is planning to meet with the executive board of the council to appeal that decision. So far, the speakers have not complained about the delayed payments. However, O'Reilly said, they are unaware of the council's decision. A final decision has not been made, but if the speakers aren't paid, he said, the school will look foolish, and it may damage plans of having guest speakers.

NJ news compiled by Anne Connor

Courtesy of AP wire service.
What Johnny doesn’t know

by Rayanne Damiano

By 1983 every school district in N.J. will be in compliance with the recent Family Life Education Mandate K-12, which calls for a curriculum including sex education. The mandate handed down by the state legislature was proposed by the state Board of Education and department of education. The mandate requires that the curriculum for grades 1-8 include teaching about male and female reproductive systems, dating, child abuse, parenting, and social and emotional growth. The high school curriculum must cover family planning, child rearing, preparation for marriage, and birth.

Clancy said that Montclair High School has been offering courses on family living and sex education for years. Cynthia Treene, president of the Parent Teacher Association (PTA) in the school system, said. The mandate handed down by the state legislature was proposed by the state Board of Education and department of education. The mandate requires that the curriculum for grades 1-8 include teaching about male and female reproductive systems, dating, child abuse, parenting, and social and emotional growth. The high school curriculum must cover family planning, child rearing, preparation for marriage, and birth.

Clancy said that Montclair High School has been offering courses on family living and sex education for years. Cynthia Treene, president of the Parent Teacher Association (PTA) in the school system, said. The mandate handed down by the state legislature was proposed by the state Board of Education and department of education. The mandate requires that the curriculum for grades 1-8 include teaching about male and female reproductive systems, dating, child abuse, parenting, and social and emotional growth. The high school curriculum must cover family planning, child rearing, preparation for marriage, and birth.

Clancy said that the only foreseeable problem for his school district in complying with the mandate would be on the grade school level. He explained that the high schools and middle schools have trained personnel while the grade schools have none. He added that it would be difficult for the basically conservative grade school teachers and administrators to adjust to the change.

Clancy also feels that family life education is extremely necessary today, “when so much sex is pushed on to them from TV. It’s too bad to have it mandated by any specific grade.”

Blanche, developer of MSC’s course, “Human Sexuality,” said, “Most of the deep rooted problems students convey to me are directly related to human sexual behavior and an inability to identify oneself as a family member. She added that the fact that every semester there is abounding student enrollment in the course shows that it is very important to people.

Blanche sees the need for family life education, as well. “I think parents should be doing it, but they’re not,” she said. According to him, on the elementary level parents assume their children are too young, and in middle school parents assume their children already know. He feels the best solution would be parent education in the evenings. He feels that a objectionable aspect of the curriculum is the explicit coverage of such topics as homosexuality, bestest. The mandate does not call for any school district to develop its own curriculum with parental input, Blanche said. She feels it will eliminate some of the fear parents have, because family life education transcends “how-to-instruction.” It includes biological, physiological, psychological, moral, and ethical aspects, she said.

Blanche said that MSC is “assuming a leadership role by developing a teacher training program to assist teachers who may feel threatened by the implementation of the mandate.” The mandate does state clearly that anyone who does not want their children to participate in the curriculum may pull them out. This is expected to be a minority, Blanche said.

Accounting for the failures

by Rayanne Damiano

Approximately 40% of the students in professor John MacDonald’s “Fundamentals of Accounting 2” class are carrying a below C average. MacDonald has been asked by the students and by the department to look into this problem.

According to MacDonald, steps have been taken to aid students, such as the institution of an accounting lab, extra classes, and an extra test to bring up grades. Some students feel that the blame lies with the teacher not getting his point across. However, MacDonald said that the students are not cooperating, citing poor attendance at the accounting lab as evidence.

Grades have become a major concern in MacDonald’s classes since the 23rd test was administered. Despite the fact that MacDonald scaled both these tests “to the point of being ridiculous,” 46 of the 92 students who took the 23rd test scored below the passing cutoff score of 30 points. MacDonald said that a passing grade of 50 was “unusually low” and that in some instances actually deletes questions that many students got wrong on a test.

According to Joseph Greco, head of the accounting law and taxation department, a lack of accounting instructors in the past has resulted in the accumulation of a backlog of students wanting to take accounting courses. He added that rather than turning students away, the accounting department worked to have 3 large sections. Because of the sheer size of the classes, MacDonald said, both he and Greco advised their students at the beginning of the semester to drop the course unless they needed it to graduate.

Some students, however, feel that the instruction is not clear and the material too advanced. One female student said that when she 1st went to the accounting lab the person there just handed her an answer book and told her to work on her own. MacDonald called the incident “more the exception than the rule” and said that the lab instructors, junior and senior accounting students, are there to work with the students and not to do a “copy job.”

Many students said that MacDonald goes over the material too fast and they are too intimidated to ask questions in a class of over 100 students. MacDonald said that to eliminate some of this intimidation, he had his students construct a question box that he keeps on his desk and encourages students to use.

MacDonald has been holding extra classes for the past 2 weeks in preparation for the makeup test he gave May 8. MacDonald said that approximately 90% of the students who took the makeup test—46 out of approximately 70 who fell below the cutoff score of 50—raised their grades to the level of a D. The final, he explained, is given departmentally and will not be scaled. One student feels that MacDonald has a “give up attitude and that he has encouraged students to take an automatic F if they had an F or D average. MacDonald said that he encouraged students to take the automatic F so that they can concentrate their studies on other courses to strengthen their cumulative averages. The student added that MacDonald said to many students, “See you in summer school.” However, MacDonald insists that he said no such thing and that he does not recommend summer courses to his students because of their heavier course load.

Kirshbaum debated

The trustees will vote on Kirshbaum’s appointment at their June meeting, because quorum was not present at the meeting. They are required to have at least 5 of the 8 trustees in attendance in order for a formal vote to be taken on any matters. Only 4 were present at this meeting.

LeBoff emphasized to the audience that the letters of complaint were fully considered in the trustees’ reconsideration of Kirshbaum. He also felt they were sensitive to student needs and opinions. “The investigation was made as to what is the best for this institution at this time and in the future,” LeBoff said, explaining the trustees’ viewpoint.

The trustees also discussed the college writing policy which would require that in every college class, some written assignments be given to the student and methodology be done. Dickson said, “Students may come in with certain cumulative deficiencies, but we must certainly not allow them to leave with deficiencies.” He feels that every student should graduate with a competency which the student, college, and society can be proud of.

continued from page 1

interests of the individuals concerned.

The trustees will vote on Kirshbaum’s appointment at their June meeting, because quorum was not present at the meeting. They are required to have at least 5 of the 8 trustees in attendance in order for a formal vote to be taken on any matters. Only 4 were present at this meeting.

LeBoff emphasized to the audience that the letters of complaint were fully considered in the trustees’ reconsideration of Kirshbaum. He also felt they were sensitive to student needs and opinions. “The investigation was made as to what is the best for this institution at this time and in the future,” LeBoff said, explaining the trustees’ viewpoint.

The trustees also discussed the college writing policy which would require that in every college class, some written assignments be given to the student and methodology be done. Dickson said, “Students may come in with certain cumulative deficiencies, but we must certainly not allow them to leave with deficiencies.” He feels that every student should graduate with a competency which the student, college, and society can be proud of.

...
Everything you ever wanted

by Nancy Spencer

As they say all things must come to an end, and after a long year the terms are up for this year's SGA executive board. The new officers will take control of the SGA as of June 1 of this year.

Nader Tavakoli, president of the SGA for the academic year 1979-80, felt the greatest achievement of the 1979-80 SGA was the reaffirmation of the fundamental principles upon which the organization was founded. It was a year of both tangible and intangible achievements and an opportunity for more students than ever before, to become a part of programming and self governance and the reassumption of the rights of students asconsumers. He added with a smile, "Personally it was the greatest learning experience of my life."

As SGA vice president, Michele Gierla said that among the highlights of this year’s executive board was the reinstatement of the Montclair Athletic Commission (MAC) board and more input on the Faculty Student Co-op. Gierla was secretary to the Co-op, Tavakoli was president and Dona Soranno, SGA Treasurer was also a member of the board. Gierla felt that the running of the meetings changed the atmosphere in the SGA and made it "more responsible." Among other accomplishments she mentioned, "We became more aware of students' rights. We started to work by attending workshops on a campus wide judicial system, which we hope will be continued by next year's administration." Gierla also obtained an extra $1,000 from the college for the Montclair Transportation Authority (MTA), which was used for student trips.

SGA executive board members (clockwise from left) are Nader Tavakoli, president, Dona Soranno, and Michele Gierla, vice president, and Carmen Santiago, secretary.

Carmon Santiago, treasurer of the SGA, had this to say about her year of service on the SGA executive board. "I'm very proud to have been a key part of this year's executive board, because we have gained respect as a corporation and as an organization, by being responsible for all that we've done."

She also feels that SGA has built its image and reputation nationally by being an integral part of a national student organization. Santiago is also proud of the Class 1 organizations which she feels have "been really effective in programing, partially due to the responsible overseeing of financial matters."

Carmen Santiago, this year's SGA secretary, felt that they have "upgraded the respectability of the SGA. I feel I have improved communication with all campus staff."

The most important suggestion of the committee was the formation of tutorial services and counseling and another containing a list of scholarships students can apply for. Many of the scholarships are unknown to the ordinary student.

The most important suggestion of the committee was the formation of tutorial programming for each department. Students who are working on the program may apply for independent study in the subject and may earn credits for their efforts.

Carlo Cordasco, director of counseling and affairs, has been working to "keep the relationship good between the SGA and the dorms." He has been a member of the Housing Policy Advisory Committee making sure students' rights weren't alienated. "I also pushed for the reinstatement of the executive board of the SGA to have housing," he said. "Before it was only the president and treasurer who were granted housing."

"I've worked under Federation as cochairman of the food committee," Cordasco continued. "We met regularly before menus were printed to see that all dietary precautions are met."

Dennis Galvin, vice president of external affairs, admitted that his committee had more failures than successes. "But I guess that is because we have tried the organizations that grant our existence."

Some of the committee's successes have been registering 100 people to vote for the bond issue in November 1979, and comprising gas availability charts when the gas crunch was on, and also comprising an off-campus housing survey. "I also lobbied in front of the Board of Trustees," Galvin said.

Karen Rosenthal, director of public relations, spent most of the winter break compiling the 1980 student directory which saved $6,000 by doing it ourselves. "I have tried to instill knowledge and awareness to MSC students of the importance of the SGA in students' lives."

Rosenthal has done this by instituting a ride board. This board, located on the 2d floor of the dormitory, anyone who needs a ride to leave campus can board and have the destination on it.

The Public Relations Committee also brought the SGA to the students by organizing Spring Day 1979 and writing press releases that were sent to all local and community papers.

As director of services, Paul Messina's biggest success was the institution of the SGA escort service. Three male students were hired to escort anyone needing assistance in the evening hours. This was instituted due to crime and rapes on campus.

As well as running the board on Transportation Affairs (BOTA), Messina was also in charge of the pharmacy program, legal aid, the bimonthly newsletter, and the Drop-In Center.

Debbie Ustas, vice president of Welfare and Internal Affairs was most proud of having the library hours extended during the exam period. Ustas was also chairperson for the Senior Banquet and Senior Wine and Cheese Party and served on the Library Advisory Committee.

but were afraid to ask

by Dennis Bloshuk

During the past year, the SGA legislature has passed a number of significant bills. Some of these include: the investigation of the yearbook, La Campana and its editor-in-chief, Larry Morgan; an audit on The Montclarion; pulling out of the New Jersey Student Association (NJS); and an investigation of MSC's campus police.

Toward the end of the fall semester, the legislature passed Bills F79085 and F79101X to investigate the yearbook and Morgan because of complaints of the contents of the yearbook. Some of the complaints were that the yearbook did not adequately represent the Class 1 Organizations, and there were questions, in regards to the quality, of some of the copy and photographs in the yearbook.

The legislature passed Bill S8019, which appropriated $3,500, for the purpose of auditing The Montclarion. In the fall of 1978, it was discovered that there was a discrepancy of over $13,000 in The Montclarion's funds from the years 1976-78.

The legislature also passed a bill, which pulled MSC out of NJS. The reasons for the withdrawal was that the NJS did not provide effective lobbying effort, or inform and represent the NJ state colleges, as it was supposed to. MSC was 1 of 2 schools paying an annual membership dues of $4,000 to NJS. Before MSC, both Glassboro State College (GSC) and Keen College (KC), had withdrawn from NJS, thus limiting the constitution of the organization. This was another reason why MSC withdrew from NJS.

A bill sponsored by the Welfare and Internal Affairs Committee, and others members of the committee, revealed that the campus police in Bohn Hall, would often go into the lounge near the main desk, and refer, instead of doing security for the dorm. Another complaint was that the campus police cost a lot of their time at the Promesse Diner instead of being on campus, in the event of an emergency.

The report was made by Andrew Mc Cormick, chairman of the Welfare and Internal Affairs Committee, and others members of the committee, revealed that the campus police in Bohn Hall, would often go into the lounge near the main desk, and refer, instead of doing security for the dorm. Another complaint was that the campus police spent a lot of their time at the Promesse Diner instead of being on campus, in the event of an emergency.

The report was made by Andrew Mc Cormick, chairman of the Welfare and Internal Affairs Committee, and others members of the committee, revealed that the campus police in Bohn Hall, would often go into the lounge near the main desk, and refer, instead of doing security for the dorm. Another complaint was that the campus police spent a lot of their time at the Promesse Diner instead of being on campus, in the event of an emergency.

The report was made by Andrew Mc Cormick, chairman of the Welfare and Internal Affairs Committee, and others members of the committee, revealed that the campus police in Bohn Hall, would often go into the lounge near the main desk, and refer, instead of doing security for the dorm. Another complaint was that the campus police spent a lot of their time at the Promesse Diner instead of being on campus, in the event of an emergency.
Teacher cert. gets tougher
by Shari Kirkup

Students who are planning to go into teaching in NJ may find it more difficult to be certified. Changes are now being proposed to revise the requirements needed for a student to become certified to teach.

The idea is still very much in the planning stages and is facing problems. One major problem is the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA). According to Mary Lou Armiger, associate director of instruction for NJEA, NJEA is opposed to any changes made in the present teacher certification program.

Beverly McHugh, acting director of student teaching and educational placement at MSC, explained that there are 2 proposed changes. The 1st proposed change is that a permanent certificate be replaced by a temporary 1. A permanent certificate would be granted only after a 3-5 year trial period during which the teacher is evaluated.

The 2d proposed change is that teachers be required to go to graduate school to maintain their skills. This means that while they are teaching they would be required to take courses to improve their talents.

According to McHugh, "The way that this all began is that the legislature got the feeling that there were problems because the students in the public schools were not scoring well enough on the statewide tests. What resulted was a committee which is called the Newman Commission."

McHugh explained that this commission was set up to look into the qualifications of the teachers. "They are the ones responsible for proposing these changes. They are receiving input from the NJEA along with other associations and teachers. When they feel that they have everything the way they want it they will propose these changes to the legislature for approval," McHugh stated. "The NJEA will oppose any move made to change the present requirements for teacher certification," Armiger stated. She feels that the undergraduate program is the 1 to be revised if any changes are to be made.

Armiger explained that as of now there is no way of knowing if and when this would go into effect. "These changes must go through the legislature, but we plan to oppose them," Armiger said.

These proposed changes have been met with much optimism. "It's been a long time coming and it's a good idea. There is no way for a 4 year program to insure that a teacher will be effective for life," Ercell Watson, dean of the school of educational and community services and member of the Newman Commission, said. Watson made it clear, however, that in no way would these changes affect the students who are already certified.

"I think it's an excellent idea," was the remark of Bonnie O'Connor, junior physical education major in the process of certification. "I feel that many of the teachers are outdated. When I teach I want to be up to date because life is constantly changing and we must change with it," she stated.

Gerry Mazza, a junior speech pathology major who also is going to be certified, feels that it's a good idea. "Teachers will be constantly modifying their skills. Temporary certification is good because when they are granted their permanent 1, they will have the qualifications to back it up. This means higher educational standards," Mazza said.

Spring is sprung
As many as 200 students participated in Spring Day, the annual celebration of students at MSC. According to Maria Tome, president of Student Intramural Leisure Council (SILC) there were many events for the people to participate in.

Spring Day was held yesterday and was sponsored by SILC and the College Life Union Board (CLUB). The total cost for all the events of the day was about $1,500. CLUB paid for about $1,300 and SILC paid the remaining fees, according to Tome.

SILC was in charge of most of the events, such as pie watermelon eating contests, tug of war, and 3 legged and sack races.

CLUB paid for a Simon-Sex contest, free hot dogs, and free 1-shirts for the 1st, 2d, and 3d place winners of most of the contests.

Other events which were held during the day, such as people pass, and earth ball were organized by the Recreation Department, headed by Phil Sulerno.
Female assaulted in Clove

by Chris Carroll

Incidents involving students, disorderly, and unidentified persons plagued the MSC, causing the semester to draw to a close.

A report of aggravated assault in the Clove Rd. Apartments was filed on May 10 at 3:05 a.m. Officers John Johnston and John Kowalski responded to a call from a female resident of the apartments.

Upon their arrival, they observed several males entering an illegally parked car. The assaulted female was sitting on the steps outside her apartment. She stated that the person who assaulted her had just left in the car the officers saw. The officers left the scene to find the assailant and Officer Debra Newcombe arrived to take down the facts of the occurrence.

The victim stated that a male had struck her on the side of the face below her eye after an argument they had in her apartment. The assailant was allegedly having problems with the victim's roommate and it was reported that he had had problems with her before.

Earlier in the same day, the victim and the assailant had an exchange of words and the victim allegedly told the assailant not to come to her apartment that night. The assailant left the apartment, but came back that night with 3 friends. The victim and the assailant had an argument and the girl was struck in the face. The victim was later transported to Mountainside Hospital by her friends.

The assailant was located in Freeman Hall where he made a written statement of his own volition.

Officers Paul Wurzel and Johnston responded to a call from Bohn Hall on May 10 at 4:30 a.m. A male was allegedly trying to enter the dormitory on the pretext of being a new maintenance man. The suspect was reported to be in an abnormal condition. A check of his past revealed him to be mentally ill and recently released from Lyon's Veterans Administration Hospital in Irvington, NJ.

The suspect's home was notified and Wurzel escorted the suspect home.

A fight was reported inside the Rathskeller on May 10 at 12:30 am. A male allegedly struck another male in the neck and then was asked to leave the Rat. The assailant then be giving a lecture was intoxicated. Officer James Fassnacht met with the professor and allegedly could bear a male in the classroom speaking loudly and occasion­ally yelling. Fassnacht entered the classroom and the male seemed to calm down. The student was cooperative, but loud, the report stated. The male's girlfriend was called and she picked him up.

A drunk and disorderly person was reported in College High on April 29 at 6:00 pm. A professor complained that a student who was supposed to be giving a lecture was intoxicated. Officer James Fassnacht met with the professor and allegedly could bear a male in the classroom speaking loudly and occasion­ally yelling. Fassnacht entered the classroom and the male seemed to calm down. The student was cooperative, but loud, the report stated. The male's girlfriend was called and she picked him up.

A Criminal mischief was reported in Partridge Hall on May 10 at 1 am. While concluding his investigation of a prior incident, Wurzel heard the sound of breaking glass in the area around Partridge Hall. He went to the building where he observed 4 unidentified males entering a car, exiting Parking Lot 10, and heading down College Ave. Closer inspection of the building by Wurzel revealed that a window to 1 of the classrooms in the building was shattered and pieces of concrete were seen lying on the floor of the classroom.

Wurzel noticed the same unidentified males leaving the Rat prior to the incident and, with information supplied by an assistant manager of the Rat, was able to identify some of the suspects.

SGA News

Budgets axed

by Debbie Reynolds

The SGA legislature passed a $7,250 budget appropriation for next year for the Latin American Student Organization (LASO) at yesterday's meeting. There was much deliberation over this particular budget, which is approximately $2,000 less than this years and approximately $4,500 less than what LASO had requested for next year.

The bill was passed, however, 18-6-2. LASO's Class 1 Charter was also passed.

Quarterly's budget of $8,350 was also passed. It was a 23% cut from this years budget. The proposed budget was submitted for $10,450 because of an increase in silver costs that will cause a hike in printing and photographic costs. Cuts were made in various lines and the legislature voted 16-5-1 in favor of $8,350 being appropriated to the literary magazine.

Ken Brown, Board of Trustee Representative Elect was granted room and board for the summer months, and an appropriation of $358, so he can better work with the executive board and begin most of the preliminaries of this position.

It is traditional that the newly elected executive board be granted housing plus 6 credits during the summer semester and this follows in the same vein, although Brown will not be given the 6 credits as the other freshmen.

A Tutorial Program bill was passed by the legislature. It suggests that each department design a tutorial program for students needing assistance in studying, comprehension, etc. Juniors and seniors helping with the program may apply for independent study in that subject. Credits earned will be determined individually by the department heads.

Steve Dempsey, President Pro-Tempore was appointed as next year's Attorney General. The appointment came about because Nader Tavakoli, SGA president, will not be making the position because he is graduating.

The search committee for the new dean of students made their recommendations to Dr. David W.D. Dickson, MSC president. The names of those recommended were not released at press date.

PASS THIS TEST AND YOUR SUMMER IS MADE

QUESTION:
Name the place where you can go this summer to play and learn racquetball for free...train like an Olympic athlete on the latest Nautilus and Paramount equipment, beside expert sports trainers...jog on an indoor track...disco...relax at wine and cheese parties...sauna...steam...whirlpool...

AND ALL THIS FOR ONLY $199.

ANSWER:
At the luxurious King Arthur's Courts in Fort Lee. This co-ed fitness, racquetball and very social program runs from Memorial Day to Labor Day.

King Arthur's Courts also has a fully-equipped pro shop, a super restaurant with reasonable prices, plenty of parking, and it's just five minutes from the George Washington Bridge.

Please send me a brochure with details but without obligation, of course.

NAME __________________________

ADDRESS _______________________

KING ARTHUR'S COURTS
1355 15th St., Fort Lee, N.J.
944-8300

Attended Children's Lounge
The Student Government Association has extended the LIBRARY HOURS
DURING EXAM WEEK!

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Mon., May 19, 1980</th>
<th>7:30 am</th>
<th>11 pm</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Tue., May 20, 1980</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wed., May 21, 1980</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thur., May 22, 1980</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Student Government Association is "Students Serving Students"

---

Info please

Housing toss up

Information Please is a new column in The Montclarion designed to answer student questions. If you need answers maybe we can help find them. Please send all questions to The Montclarion, 4th floor Student Center or come up and see us.

by Jim Ilaria

Q: What does a freshman have to look forward to as far as housing goes for next year?
A: Forty five percent, or 619 of the 1375 housing positions, will be filled by freshman or transfer students. The 756 remaining spots will go to upperclassmen. So far, outside of the 20 mile radius 276 freshmen applicants have been accepted and 120 have been denied. Within the 20 mile radius no one has been accepted and 150 have been denied. All of the applications are not in yet.

Q: How many credit hours are allowed before a student must declare a major?
A: It is recommended that a student declare a major at the end of his/her sophomore year. Sophomore year does not necessarily mean the end of the 2d year; it means whenever a student has achieved junior status. Sixty four credits are required to achieve junior status.

Q: Will Sprague Library be open during final exam week and the summer?
A: The library will be open an additional hour from 10-11 pm May 19-22. During the last hour there will be reference service only. The Circulation Desk, Reserve Room, NonPrint Area, and Periodical Stacks will close at 10 pm. As for the summer, the library will be closed May 24-26. Between May 27-June 13, the library will be open Monday-Friday from 8:30 am-4:30 pm. Between June 16-August 8, it will be open Mondays from 8:30 am-10 pm, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays from 8:30 am-8 pm, and Fridays from 8:30 am-4:30 pm. Between August 11-August 29, the library will be open Monday-Friday from 8:30 am-4:30 pm. The library will be closed on July 4 and Labor Day, September 1, and will resume regular services as of September 2.

Q: What arrangements have been made for commencement in case of rain?
A: Commencement will be held inside on various locations on campus. Students will graduate from the school in which they major. For example, an English major would graduate from the School of Humanities.

Q: Why is the new dorm being built across from Bohn Hall?
A: According to Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning, this location is more economical for making utility connections; it is closer to main college services, i.e. Student Center, Sprague Library, etc. The new dormitory (Blanton Hall) will consolidate cafeteria services.

---

Attention: ALL MSC UNDERGRADUATES!

The last day to submit CAMPUS PARKING TICKETS to the Board on Transportation Affairs (BOTA) is:

Fri., May 15, 1980 at 4 pm

Pick up ticket appeal forms at:

- BOTA Office, Student Center Cafeteria (corner)
- SGA Office, Fourth Floor, Student Center

BOTA is a service of your SGA, "Students Serving Students"

---

Martial Arts Spectacular 1980

Senshi Susan Murdock, 4th Degree Black Belt, Co-editor of "The Martial Arts Encyclopedia" and a frequent performer on radio and TV, will be demonstrating her unique system of self defense, along with the Masters, in THE MARTIAL ARTS SPECTACULAR 1980.

May 17 - 7 pm
Clifford J. Scott H.S.
129 Renshaw Ave.
East Orange, N J

East Orange School of Martial Arts is presenting the show.
The Student Government Association
1979 - 1980

thanks you for a successful administration!

The Executive Board

Michele Gierla
Vice-President

Dona Soranno
Treasurer

Brian Cige
Rep. to the Board of Trustees

Carmen Santiago
Secretary

Nader Tavakoli
President

We've enjoyed serving you, the student, during the year.
We've accomplished a great deal while offering the most services of ANY state college in New Jersey!

The Presidential Cabinet

Debbie Ustas
V.P. of Welfare & Internal Affairs

Carlo Cordasco
Director of Dormitory Affairs

Dennis M. Galvin
V.P. of External Affairs

Karen L. Rosenthal
Director of Public Relations

Esther Hampton
V.P. of Academic Affairs

Paul Messina
Director of Services

Student Government Association, Inc. of Montclair State College
Fourth Floor, Student Center
893-4202, 4203 “Students Serving Students”
Preppies popping up pg. 6
On Sun., June 8, come rain, or shine, will be The 11th Annual Delaware River Raft Race. The race will start at Smithfield Beach, PA (5 miles North of the Delaware Watergap) and finish at Martins Creek, PA (24 miles downstream at the Pennsylvania Power & Light Beach).
For more information, you can call Bill Bolte at (201)383-7197, or you can call Ian Zangrando at (201)263-8467. You may also write to: Delaware River Raft Race, PO Box 93, Wharton, NJ 07885.
The event is hosted by The High Life Ski Club of New Jersey.

Men's Varsity Baseball
Thur.-Sat., May 15-18 at NCAA division 3 regionals.

Men's Track and Field
Sat./Sun., May 17-18 at IC4A at the University of Pennsylvania.

Women's Softball
Although the Women's Softball Team is in the playoffs, the times and places are still uncertain.
However, if they do get to the finals, we were told that they will be going to California to be in the playoffs.

On Fri., May 16, College Life Union Board (CLUB)
will be sponsoring racquetball at Yogi Berra's Racquetball Club from 10pm-1am. Included in the $4 fee will be: racquetball, volleyball, and beverages. If you're interested in playing at "Yogi's Place," call the CLUB office 893-5232.

There will be a Christian National Convention from Mon., Aug. 11 to Sat., Aug. 16. It will be held in NYC and will include: national speakers, musicians, and giant rallies during the Democratic National Convention. For more information, write to: Christian National Convention, PO Box 1345, Plainfield, NJ 07060.
Registration for this event ends on Fri., Aug 1.
Contents

feature

Are you a Preppie: Ever wonder what a Preppie is? Or where they can be found. Or what they are like! Turn to Naedine Hazell’s definition in the article on page 6.

Rest and Relaxation; Fun in the sun: Tips on the new summer fads...from the bathing suits, to books and all the tanning in between. Turn to the centerfold.

On the Road in Europe: The inflation rate isn’t getting any lower and you’re not getting any lower and you’re not getting any younger. Why not travel to Europe soon! Jean Branna did and tells about it in her article on page 10.

America Come to your Census: And you thought the Census was just a lot of boring statistics. Wrong! Turn to Frank Penotti’s article on page 11 for the real story.

All the Angry Young Men: An off Broadway drama opens with promises of death and doom. Bonnie Jerbasi was there to cover it and gives us fair warning about the violence. See the article on page 12.

Symphony somewhat disappointing: And you thought that there wasn’t a South Weehawkin Symphony Orchestra! Winston Caldwell must know something we don’t. For article turn to page 12.

‘Friday’ good campy Fun: Oh no—not another horror movie! Darrell Lippman assures us that it’s not all bad. For some local scenery and a review of Friday the 13th turn to page 13.

Q’est-ce que c’est, Urban verbs: Art-rock meets the New Wave with a split decision as their current reward. Read the review on page 13 and set their record straight.

In every issue

Outtakes: page 2.
Off the Record: page 4.
Writer’s Block: John Mason, a political science instructor at MSC, gives his views of the "structurally induced stupidity" which caused such faux pas as the ‘rescue mission’ attempted in Iran. Turn to page 5.

cover photo of Shawn Sullivan by Stan Godlewski
Once upon a time,...

long, long ago...

From swallowing goldfish to sitting atop flagpoles; from stuffing phone booths to streaking; college students have seized upon wacky fads to immortalize their generation.

For the class of 1980, it's tucking each other into bed. "It's precious, really," Dr. William Thomas, vice chancellor of student affairs at the University of Maryland, said, where the tuck-in craze is going strong. "For a small fee, they'll read you a bedtime story, tuck you into bed and kiss you goodnight."

"It's definitely innocent," Jennifer Little, a 21-year-old junior who was tucked in last week, said. "You're away from home. It makes you feel more comfortable and more secure. Besides, it's something that hasn't been done to you in a long, long time."

The current craze reportedly started at Penn State last semester, made a brief stop at Catholic University and then landed squarely on the 3d floor of University of Maryland's Frederick Hall where Pillow Talks Inc., a company made up of male students, currently is filling nightly tuck-in orders for female students. "We're strictly a class operation," Pillow Talk member David Swerdlow said. For a $0.99 fee, the coeds will read a bedtime story, sing "Rock-A-Bye Baby," and tuck the male client under the covers.

"It's pretty funny," 21-year-old sophomore Marie Beyernheimer said. The female tuckers place notices in the men's dormitories and never travel in groups of less than five. "For security reasons," Beyernheimer explained.

Both male and female tuckers have encountered a few unusual requests. Beyernheimer said their group could not fulfill a contract with 2 male clients insisted on being tucked in while nude. Pillow Talk member George Cavros recalled a female client who greeted him with candlelight and soft music, wearing a flimsy nightgown.

"We've had a few girls call back and ask for private tuck-ins," Cavros said, maintaining that the service is strictly G rated.

Is the bedtime tuck-in craze a return to innocence? A statement against sex, drugs, and the permissiveness of college life today?

For college administrators who suffered through the bed-ins and pot parties of the '60's, the thought of pajama-clad students running from dorm to dorm at midnight, willy-nilly tucking each other into bed brings a sigh of relief. As for any deeper meaning, the students shrug their shoulders and simply say it's fun. "I think we've been exploited by the stereotype that when you go to college, all you do is sleep around, drink beer, and don't study," Beyernheimer said. "I don't know whether we're image-changers, but we don't go along with that."
The twisted wreckage of a US chopper rests in the Iranian desert.

by John Mason

Already the failed military expedition to Tehran, has become 'Yesterday's news,' and is fading from view. Even the first of a fateful frontier burned out equipment, and charred bodies strewn across a salt desert are being erased from our consciousness and replaced by fresh events televised images of Cuban boat people, the mechanical drama of a freighter and a broken bridge in Florida, the sudden heroic success of British commandos in a London Embassy. Aided by the natural flow of the news media, an effort is underway to downplay the 'Iran crisis,' to put it on hold, in order to ease the public mind shocked by a glimpse of the descending path that leads to war. Next week we shall all witness the smiling encounter of Secretary of State Muskie, and Foreign Minister Gromyko in Vienna at a meeting no doubt full of the promise of a rejuvenated reconciliation between the superpowers. But by bit by the veil of public illusion is reassembled and held in place by the nonevents of global diplomacy, to protect us from the knowledge that in the past few weeks our world has begun to slip out of control.

Something very serious happened on that Iranian plain 2 weeks ago. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance knows it; that's why he resigned his office about 4 days before the rescue attempt was even made. President Carter knows it too; that is why he was fully prepared at his 1st news conference after the failure, to explain how it came to be that it was Secretary Vance, and not he who resigned. In Iran, American policy makers have passed a fateful frontier, for the first time between a political-diplomatic approach to world affairs, to a military strategic policy since the fall of Saigon 5 years ago. Apparently, the post Vietnam foreign policy of diplomats, like Secretary Vance, was perhaps just another interlude between periods in which American foreign policy and domestic politics would be oriented around the demands of global nuclear doctrine. Once the threshold between war and peace has been crossed, it becomes increasingly easier to cross it 2d and 3d time. I believe, moreover, that we have crossed a historic frontier in a larger sense. The adventure in Iran seems to be 1 of those critical events, like the Anglo-French humiliation at Suez in 1956, which suddenly reveals a structural shift in the world balance of power, and the outlines of a crisis, which exists, at many levels, of power and perception.

Our desert expedition not only establishes the possibility of a major war as an alternative to the continued policy of detente, it also suggests a decline in American forces which may be a turning point in the history of the post war world order. What it reveals most clearly is the extent of America's isolation from her Western allies, the eclipse of American political influence in the Middle East; and most importantly, the weakness of the American political system as a weapon in the current military disaster in Tehran itself, but the practical diplomatic and political fallout from what didn't occur is quite severe. Even though it failed to reach its target area, the expedition demonstrated the readiness of the current American administration to use massive military force to resolve a diplomatic problem in a manner that disregards our allies vital interests, and the internal dynamics of the Iranian revolution. Further, it shows the willingness of the current administration to pursue a policy of deception aimed at both America's allies and the American press and public, as it was at the American 'enemy.' The result both demonstrates the talent of American policy makers for strategic stupidity, and the depth of a crisis of confidence which characterizes not only the relations between the US government and its major allies, but the relations between the current administration and departments and agencies within its own government- structural stupidity.

At this point, one might well ask if this description of the effects of what we have termed 'the less than perfect' mission is not exaggerated. After all, wasn't our action a rescue mission rather than a 'military expedition?' Didn't President Carter say that there was no need to send a large American military force to Tehran to bring the hostages safely home? Didn't we see no hostility toward the Iranians by this 'humanitarian' mission? Was the level of violence projected all that different from that used by the British in their successful commando action at the Iranian Embassy last week in London? Enough information has emerged in the past weeks to show that the association of the Tehran mission with the British action is erroneous. Not only are the operations incomparable in circumstances, but more importantly the levels of the violence foreseen the British and American plans are qualitatively different. Aside from the coordination of 3 distinct military action groups, of which the commando team of 90 special force troops was only the most visible component, military planners believed that American planners, and the availability of massive fire power for fleet air units. The presence of these other units suggests that the Tehran Plan had political and military dimensions that went beyond the somewhat limited objectives of a 'police action.'

The most visible component of the plan was the commando team. Their role was quite straightforward: to make a direct ground assault on the embassy compound, overwhelm the guards, and snatch as many of the hostages as survived the assault. The covert team is something we know less about. Apparently, it included both American and Iranian agents, who had not only infiltrated Tehran to set up a secret staging area, but who had also penetrated the ranks of the militants and planted people on the inside of the embassy. It is hard to know what to make of the information which has been leaked so far about this dimension of the plan. Certainly, much of this information is probably misinformation designed to confuse Iranians about the extent of the American presence in Tehran and of the American penetration of the Iranian government. What the plan does suggest, however, is that the American attempt probably had no cooperation from factions within the Iranian government and armed forces. The existence of this sort of cooperation, in turn, raises the possibility that the rescue mission, like the original hostage seizure, was intended to play a role in the internal political struggle within the Iranian Revolution. Alexander Cockburn has recently suggested that the rescue mission might have been supported by some Iranians because its success would have doomed the Bani-Sadr moderate government and cleared the way for a more radical phase in the revolution. It is certainly unlikely that American planners would have an hour for these possibilities, which suggests that the rescue mission might have had the secondary objective of "destabilizing" that particular Iranian regime.

The 3d dimension of the plan involves the presence of an air arm. At the present time the US has 4 carrier station off the Persian Gulf. The combined airpower of these carriers can support number well over 400 fighter and attack aircraft. The aircraft were to be ready to provide a general air support for the ground assault team, and to fend off any attempts by the Iranian Air Force to interfere with our helicopters or transport planes. The element of close air support was to be provided by 2 of the 6 C-130 transports involved in the mission. These 2 planes were to have carried batteries of automatic cannon and Vulcan gatling guns. The role of these gunships is important for understanding what might have happened if the commando team had actually made it into Tehran. The C-310 gunship is the equivalent of 'Puff the Magic Dragon.' It represents a concentration of firepower which is difficult to imagine. The Vulcan gatling gun is an electric machine gun with 10 barrels; each barrel can fire 3,000 rounds per minute, for a total rate of fire of about 30,000 rounds per minute. If one assumes that each C-310 carried 1 battery of 5 guns, then each gunship would have been capable of laying down something in the neighborhood of 150,000 rounds per minute. The effect of this kind of artificial meteorite storm is to literally vaporize any structure or target it hits. In a word, it is a 'magic dragon.' The role of these gunships was to circle the embassy compound and to prevent any Iranian ground forces from coming to the relief of the militants inside.

Pentagon officials boasted last week of their confidence in the capability of these gunships to stand off the entire Iranian army. The problem with this scenario is that they would not have been facing the Iranian army, but rather the civilian population mobilized to defend the Islamic Revolution. All indications are that, while it might have taken the disorganized Iranian army to knock off the rescue; it probably would have taken the Tehran mob minutes to come to the support of the embassy.
Are you a Preppie?

by Naedine Hazell

Before analyzing any creature one should define general characteristics, markings (if any), and surroundings in which it can be found. So:

Preppie: noun; is a creature that can be found at most Ivy League colleges and in mutated forms on almost every other college campus. Surprisingly enough, He is also making an appearance on Wall Street, usually as a young exec. He has no real distinctive markings if in his own element, however, taken out of this climate he displays some low-key changes. His temperament is usually laid back (a term he disdains) unless unduly antagonized, at which point he will begin speaking rather loudly about his father's lawyers or worse yet about his father's law firm, (often on Wall Street).
As you can probably tell by now, Preppie is more than Ali McGraw's pet name for Ryan O'Neil in the movie Love Story.

Preppie not only describes a type of person (albeit stereotypically), but it also has seemingly become a way of life, a style of dress, a social and political attitude, and sometimes the hallmark of those who aspire to be something more than they are or were.

Technically, a preppie is someone who has gone to prep school to prepare for college. One can only assume therefore, that those who act and look Preppie in college, having never attended prep school, are prepping for graduate school.

In the words of a True Preppie (i.e. one who actually went to prep school), disgusted by the new trend, "They just don't have the guts to become investment bankers. All of them! "Yes, I'm quite sure, all of them." As to the suggestion that they all worked for their families he replied confidently. "Well that depends on their competency level. If they're competent they work for their families. If they're incompetent they marry into a family they can work for."

Since he seemed such an expert, we asked if there were any truth that Preppies received Christmas cards from the LaCosta (alligator) company. He thought not, because they were such a big firm, but guessed that they probably got them from Brooks Brothers.

Even if not seen in the flesh, Preppies are fairly easy to spot. Just a name in a crowd can give them away. You know you've got 'em if you hear: "Did you know that...Dwight Windsor, Rumford Wade, Stephanie Kinngton-Wiles just won the world cup for..." This should tell you that these individuals' parents are trying to prove something just by the name. Seriously, how many middle class or even upper-middle class friends do you have named Bernard Dudley Upshot, 3d?

The real Preppie at Columbia University is somewhat outraged by the movement. This resident of St. Anthony's Hall claims that preppism is a result of "peer envy."

"Essentially my feeling is [note phrase] that these people (imitators) want to go to prep school and couldn't, so they are dressing and acting the part. It's very derogatory to me.I've had to live down my own real preppie image because I don't want to be thought of in this light. I'm not trying to be something I'm not...and I am...he finished in slightly outraged tones.

Others, most notably the Preppie hater of Princeton see the Preppie movement as an indication of why America is becoming a secondary world power." He feels that this is a display of how mindless and impressionable these young people are, attaching such importance to something which is so unimportant."

Franco Morando, of Harvard, who claims not to be a Preppie, has observed: "The Preppies are coming out of the closet. It's probably due to the new conservatism that's been accepted these days."

This sentiment was echoed by Blaine. When asked what Preppie's generally do after graduation, he answered "Act prettily. They become investment bankers. All of them! "Yes, I'm quite sure, all of them." As to the suggestion that they all worked for their families he replied confidently. "Well that depends on their competency level. If they're competent they work for their families. If they're incompetent they marry into a family they can work for."

A classic Preppie must appear unconcerned about his dress and will look you coldly in the eye should you grab his tie and exclaim "Cute tie, where did you get it?" The only real way to get a reaction out of a Preppie concerning clothes is to tell him that he must not have the guts to be themselves. It's very derogatory to confuse people. The Preppie's drive BMW's or Minsk, OK, anything small and foreign. For maximum effect the car must be slightly to badly beaten up. This is in keeping with the preppie image because I don't want to be thought of in this light. I'm not trying to be something I'm not...and I am...he finished in slightly outraged tones.

The reason behind this aversion to disguising his dress is that the real Preppies, not the imitators, have never been fadists in terms of following the fashion scene. In fact, in past history they have been termed everything from dowdy to 'What are you coldly in the eye should you grab his tie and exclaim "Cute tie, where did you get it?" The only real way to get a reaction out of a Preppie concerning clothes is to tell him that he must not have the guts to be themselves. It's very derogatory to confuse people. The Preppie's drive BMW's or Minsk, OK, anything small and foreign. For maximum effect the car must be slightly to badly beaten up. This is in keeping with the preppie image because I don't want to be thought of in this light. I'm not trying to be something I'm not...and I am...he finished in slightly outraged tones.

The real Preppie at Columbia University is somewhat outraged by the movement. This resident of St. Anthony's Hall claims that preppism is a result of "peer envy."

"Essentially my feeling is [note phrase] that these people (imitators) want to go to prep school and couldn't, so they are dressing and acting the part. It's very derogatory to me.I've had to live down my own real preppie image because I don't want to be thought of in this light. I'm not trying to be something I'm not...and I am...he finished in slightly outraged tones.

The real Preppie at Columbia University is somewhat outraged by the movement. This resident of St. Anthony's Hall claims that preppism is a result of "peer envy."

"Essentially my feeling is [note phrase] that these people (imitators) want to go to prep school and couldn't, so they are dressing and acting the part. It's very derogatory to me.I've had to live down my own real preppie image because I don't want to be thought of in this light. I'm not trying to be something I'm not...and I am...he finished in slightly outraged tones.

Others, most notably the Preppie
by Dan Marino

The World According to Garp by John Irving

A splashy comic extravaganza about love, death, marriage, and wrestling. To describe the plot would spoil everything; Irving described it best as "a life-affirming novel where everyone dies." Garp has achieved a success on par with The Catcher in the Rye or Slaughterhouse-Five. With its vast array of characters, biographical plot, and essential good-heartedness--as opposed to the irony and satire of most modern fiction--Garp can be called Dickensian; its real influences--Dostoevsky and Conrad--emerge after repeated readings. Either way, it's a great book.

Summer reading

The Shining by Stephen King

The movie, with Jack Nicholson and Shelley Duvall, opens soon, and it will have to work hard to outdo the book for scares. The Shining is about a family who stays on as caretakers in a remote Colorado hotel over the winter. Though the book is full of grotesque ghosts (a dead lady in a bathtub) and odd happenings (an elevator that runs at will), it also concerns the dissolution of a modern family and the effects on a particularly impressionable youth. This is King's finest (he also gave us Carrie and Salem's Lot), and is best read on the beach, out in the open, near other people, under the nice bright sun.

Nine Stories by J.D. Salinger

Irony and satire galore: this book is the epitome of New York fiction of the 1950s. "A Perfect Day for Bananafish," which chronicles a day in the life of Seymour Glass, made Salinger famous several years before The Catcher in the Rye came out. Salinger's style--finely honed wit--is a perfect foil for the world-weariness of Cheever's characters and the self-dramatization of Updike's, and more fun to read. Though Salinger later fell into pseudo-Zen moralizing (Franny and Zooey), these stories balance on the edge of despair and do handstands. For the preppie in everyone.
by Lori Jersey

Wth the season of swimsuits just around the bend, it's time to start getting in shape. Firm up your tush with exercises that range from bend that tush, to rock 'n' roll, check to check, disco tush, butt out, bottoms up, and recreation.

Coach Marge Reardon's tush diet consists of grape leaves 2 times a day, 2 thiamin tablets, 2 handfuls of granola, dried dates, chickpea salad, raw goat's milk, lean flanken, 1 tablespoon of wheat germ, a fig sandwich, 3 fructose tablets, and ginseng.

Reardon, a former army sergeant, and physical education instructor in Des Moines, Iowa alternate schools, is working on a book on Tush Training Centers. The overwhelming response to her program led to an appearance on the Johnny Carson Show and national celebrity status. Tush Training Centers are opening in Los Angeles, CA and Kerhonksen, NY. "The book has been translated into 5 languages and will soon be a major motion picture," Reardon wrote. It costs $2 in paperback.

Reardon also lists 20 quick ways to flatten your tush: jump, bend, sit, run, jog, reach, squat, bounce, stretch, limit eating, shake it, bump it, lie down, roll over, touch toes, stand on head, twist it, lift it, use it, love it.

One grateful supporter, and member of Reardon's fan club wrote a letter to her which said, "Thank you for flattening my tush. I am no longer the butt of my friend's jokes."

by Janine M. Torsiello

If you're looking to write the great American novel or just looking for a quiet place to lie on the beach and get a perfect tan you might look into a small beach outside of Pomona, NJ.

Standing as a sharp contrast to the busy beaches of Atlantic City and Brigantine is Port Republic. It is located off the Garden State Pkwy. South. To get there, get off exit 48 which also says Rt. 9, and take the 1st road on your right. It will take you right to the beach.

Port Republic is a small private beach off a river, but no one checks for badges, or charges you to get on. The beach is a patch of ash white sand surrounded by rolling green lawns and quiet rows of large houses.

This beach is not for large parties or wild afternoons. It is however, a perfect place to relax and unwind.

The beach is about 10 minutes away from the campus of Stockton State College (SSC), but most of the beachgoers are families. The college students usually opt for the more lively beach at Brigantine. That is why Port Republic is so special. It is the place to get away from it all for a while.

On a nice day the crystal blue sky covers the area, and the clear water invites everyone to take a leisurely swim. Perhaps the best time to hit the beach is around 6 pm because most of the families have gone home and it's just you, the water and to borrow a phrase from William Ernest Henley's Invictus "whatever gods may be."

by Regina Macioci

For a mere $280 you can turn every head on the beach this summer.

Gortex swimsuits, imported from Israel, are the newest rage this season. These imported suits are beautifully made of a spandex material that aids in tummy control.

One of the big sellers is a white maillot with a delicate print of flowers on the front. The suit itself sells for $65.

Long dresslike cover-ups are also making a big hit. For this particular swim suit Gortex chose to top it with a calf length halter dress made of silk nylon knit and finished with a tie sash. The cover-up can also be worn as a dress. This beautiful extra can be had for anyone who can afford it for just $210.

Gortex bathing suits are sold mainly in the more expensive stores like J M Towne and Bloomingdales.

While a woman was busy buying a swim suit in Stern's, her boyfriend commented, laughing, "I think that I have 2 piece bathing suits are much more sexy that 2 piece ones because they're made in such a way that can make a woman look more alluring. I love the halter-types that are open down to the navel. God, is this going to be an interesting summer." Immediately after he spoke, he was doubled over with pain as his girlfriend shot him in the stomach.

For those of more modest means, Bobbe Brooks bathing suits can be found in just about every department store like Bamberger's and small shops like Ups and Downs, in Willowbrook, Bobbe Brooks, Jantzen, Roxanne and more sell anywhere from $25-$40.

A salesgirl who works in J M Towne's, in Willowbrook explained sarcastically, "This year's newest designs are parrots and clashing colors. Women will spend hundreds of dollars for suits that sport a large parrot on the front. I don't know why a parrot. I guess if the fashion industry dictates that women should love parrots, they'll love parrots. The other fashion fad is bright colors. Swim suits are being made of every color imaginable, even if they do not match."

Again, Gortex is getting $50 for this type of suit. One of their better selling suits is a black strapless with green, orange, black, and yellow stripes at the top.

One Bamberger's shopper announced proudly, "Well, I'm 5 feet, 9 inches and 125 pounds. I've got a beautiful body and I love to show it off. I think that this year, I'll buy a black bathing suit that plunges low in the front and scoops down low in the back. It definitely is going to have to be French cut. I have nothing more sexy than a bathing suit that rides high on the hip bone. Listen, my measurements are 37-24-36, so if barring some flesh is the way to have fun these days, then..."
On the road in Europe

by Jean Branna

There are lots of ways to do Europe, and any way you do it, it will be a wonderful experience. Depending on your personality, and how much you crave creature comforts, you may set off on a tour with a fully planned itinerary, or nothing but your thumb and a backpack.

Getting Around

We set out with backpacks, sleeping bags, and railpasses to wander through Europe during the school break. With very little planning and not too much money, we spent 24 days seeing the sights in Paris, Florence, Rome, Venice, Vienna, Salzburg, and Graz both in Austria, and Munich. Better yet, we met the people-in trains, cafes, discos, and hostels—and it's those memories, the kind you can only get from traveling in a small group, that stand out in my mind and will never be forgotten.

Getting Around

If you can find your way to Kennedy Airport, you'll have relatively few problems getting around Europe. In fact, because of Europe's excellent mass transportation systems, it's easier traveling over there than it is traveling cross-country here.

Our Eurail passes were indispensable. The pass, available for either 15 or 21 days or for 1 or longer months, gives the owner unlimited 1st class travel on national railroads throughout 15 countries. The price—$210 for 15 days, $260 for 21 days, and $320 for 3 months.

Bringing sleeping bags saved us a charge of about $1.50 each night, because of a delay, we slept comfortably and for free in our chairs. Luckily, there were only 3 of us in the 6-seat capacity compartment, but if we had wanted to go whole-hog, we could have rented a space in the sleeping car for about $2.

In every station are the necessities for vagabond travelers: maps of the city, a money exchange, a post office to give your frantic parents some idea of your whereabouts! cafes, bathrooms, a place to store your belongings for a small fee, and a place to make train reservations which is strongly recommended if your next destination is over about 8 hours.

My advice would be to get a 15 day pass, even if you're going to be in Europe about 25 days or so. Go to the place you really want to see the most for about a week, tour for about 15 days, and then go back to 1 of those places for the remainder of the trip. Then buy a train ticket back to the airport or get your plane. (Check with a travel agent to get the best deal on airfare, and Eurail pass and hostel card applications).

Metro's are city transportation from within. Everything you've ever heard about them is true. They're clean, fast, convenient, and stop practically every 3 blocks, if not more, in London, Paris, and Madrid. But once the thrill of riding them wanes, get your bearings and walk to your destination. You can spend a small fortune in metro tickets without realizing you're only going 5 blocks in and a block over. Buses are less expensive than metros, but it's harder to master the schedules, especially if you don't speak to language.

Eating

When it came to eating, we really blew our budget. Almost every other store in every country is a pastry shop, and its hard to control the urge to walk in, point at your favourite goodie, and devour it before you realize what you're doing. Pointing in bakeries is an international language by the way, everyone does it. And I still can't pronounce with our money, mainly because we had no idea what exorbitant prices lie ahead. We'd buy fresh oranges at the market (open every morning, just ask around) and buy it by the glass, especially if you're traveling in the summer.

A couple of other handy items are a can opener and a knife, fork, and spoon. Buy a can of tuna fish and you'll all be set.

Maybe we went to the wrong places, but judging from the menu and prices, which are posted outside of every European restaurant, we just couldn't afford to eat out in Vienna. So we found a store with a small delicatessen and through a sweet old man who knew a little English we were able to order 2 sandwiches. For dinner that night, we went to the grocery store (warning-bring your own bags) and bought food. Even then we spent $15 between us.

If you lose weight on your trip, you'll gain it all back when you reach Italy. The food is excellent and incredibly inexpensive. Of course, by staying in inexpensive hostels and pensions (which were definitely off the beaten tourist track) we were able to discover cheaper restaurants.

We spent hours in Trattoria's—drinking wine and eating calamari (fried squid) with people we'd never met before, including waiters.

What Rome lacks in public transportation (no metros, only buses, which are cheaper anyway) it more than makes up for in the food. There are also tourist menus a set menu for a special price. They're just fair, and not too adventurous. You'll probably be hungry later on too.

Being 2 wild and crazy American girls in Europe frequently worked to our advantage. Men were eager to talk to us, even if the only thing they could say in English was "Good Morning."

The restaurants "Where's a good place to eat around here?" always brought instant response, and we were frequently wined and dined beyond our most wild imaginings.

On our 1st night in Europe, we ended up being the only females in an Iranian student dining hall, of all places, in Paris. The food might not have been the best, but it certainly was an experience I'll never forget.

Roughing It

Everything I've heard about European hostels is false. They were clean, warm, and most of the time, the management was friendly. They're also incredibly cheap. Hostels are run somewhat like a boarding school dorm, complete with a loud speaker to wake guests at about 7:30 am. Everyone has to be out by 9 am. In Florence and Salzburg, Austria (where The Sound of Music was filmed) there were about 12 women and about 2 languages to a room. The price in Florence $3.85 a night plus a bit extra for hot shower (cold showers are free). In Salzburg it was about $5. In Vienna, we paid $7 each for a double occupancy hostel room. Outdoor sleeping bags saved us a charge of about $1.50 each night, because we didn't have to rent bed sheets.

The sleeping bags, even though a bit cumbersome, were worth dragging along for sleeping in trains. Traveling through the Alps is cold no matter what time of the year you go, and I definitely recommend bringing 1 along.

continued on page 14
by Frank Penotti

"Facts, my dear Watson, observe the facts. In this life we want nothing but facts sir, nothing but facts." The above statement, spoken by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's most famous literary alter ego, Sherlock Holmes, closely parallel the aims of a department of the U.S. government. The agency is the Bureau of the Census, and it has been charged with the formidable task of ace counting the inhabitants of the U.S.

Just how valid a task this is however, is open to question. As a former Marshal McSulhan asked: Has nose counting become a cumbersome and ineffectual form of social assessment in an envelopment of instant electric speeds?

Obviously the implications are vast and the questions concerning those implications are endless. I will however, address the materier issues which confront the Census Bureau.

What is needed, therefore, are the facts, if only to provide a perspective on what a census is all about. Without the facts a crucial dimension is lost. Something like remembering the Vietnam War and forgetting about napalm. The facts add that needed realistic perspective.

Let's take a look at the responsibilities facing the Census Bureau.

As a tactfinder for the nation, the Census Bureau must collect, tabulate, and publish statistical information to meet a variety of data user needs. The foremost requirement facing the bureau is its obligation to provide the most complete and accurate population count possible for the apportionment of congressional seats in the House of Representatives. Beyond the apportionment of political representation, however, there are other numerous applications of census data, number 1 being the use by the private sector as an aid in determining market potential, and where to locate new businesses.

You can see how the generation of this data is crucial to life in our modern day urban society. The duty of collecting this data has been mandated under article 1, section 2, of our Constitution, which it did adopt in 1787. Another importance of this census lies in the fact that when population shifts are noted by the bureau, our money by federal revenue sharing programs, instituted in the early 1970's, can then take shape based on those same population facts and figures.

But how is a census taken? Under the current system, everyone residing in the country must be personally contacted. For 1980, 9 out of 10 households will receive their forms by mail, with a request to send them back. The rest are to be visited personally contacted. For 1980, 9 out of 10 households will receive their forms by mail, with a request to send them back. The rest are to be visited personally.

In precensus reports addressing this phenomena, demographers at the Census Bureau have predicted that the number of husbandless women heading households will increase nearly 50% to more than 8 million since the last census. That is why for the 1st time, the already distributed questionnaires will not presuppose that a male living in a residence is the "head of the household." In the words of author and etymologist William Saire: 'head of household', that mainstay of previous national nose counts, has been beheaded. Instead, the former H of H is now referred to as "Person in Column 1," defined cautiously in the questionnaire as the household member 'in whose name the home is owned or rented.

Ah, the importance of semantics!

Semantics not withstanding, however, do we as NJ college students figure in the Census Bureau's picture? Quite a bit, if you realize that NJ exports the highest number of students to other states. Factually this means that 99,000 NJ state residents attend schools in other states. Because of this fact, the net loss of students could cost the state 1 of its 15 Congressional seats.

This is exactly the issue on which Rep. Andrew Maguire, D-NJ, challenged the Census Bureau in an attempt to force changes in the Census Bureau's method of counting college students. The 3 term Democrat said the present counting procedures 'will tend to produce more congressional representation for those states which have a net import of college students and less congressional representation for those states which have a net export of students.'

The Bureau sought to avoid this; this as argued and followed by the Census Bureau is based on their determination to count the students where they actually live and sleep most of the time. The bureau does not check each student's address individually, but assumes that college students live at least 9 months of the year where the school is located. The changes that Maguire sought in these procedures will, unfortunately for NJ, not happen for this census. Thus the net loss of students will probably cost the state 1 of its 15 Congressional seats.

The rules followed by the census were quite severe, but this census year, census officials decided to count student at their college address. Prior to that, students were counted in their home states, as advocated by Maguire. In any case, the point is moot now and probably will be until our next census to be taken in 1985.

Challenges aside for the moment, many decades of collecting data has brought a wealth of experience to the Bureau of the Census, a tradition that practically has demographers, urban planners, public administrators, and other government officials drooling in anticipation of the bureau's publishing of their results from this year's census taking. These results are scheduled to be published in late 1980 and early 1981. So hang on planners everywhere, the facts are coming!

As mentioned earlier, the importance of this 20th decennial census has increased since the onset of federal revenue sharing. To help pay for these funds, an accurate count continued on page 15.

America: Come to your census!

Using 120 million forms, 5,000 tons of paper, and 85 tons of ink, the survey will amass and tabulate more than 3 billion answers and record them on 5,000 miles of microfilm.

In precensus reports addressing this phenomena, demographers at the Census Bureau have predicted that the number of husbandless women heading households will increase nearly 50% to more than 8 million since the last census. That is why for the 1st time, the already distributed questionnaires will not presuppose that a male living in a residence is the "head of the household." In the words of author and etymologist William Saire: 'head of household', that mainstay of previous national nose counts, has been beheaded. Instead, the former H of H is now referred to as "Person in Column 1," defined cautiously in the questionnaire as the household member 'in whose name the home is owned or rented.

Ah, the importance of semantics!
The controversy begins when the 3 hired hands appear on stage. Justin is a paroled murderer who never speaks, R.C. is a hyperactive Vietnam veteran, and Frazer is a drunken 17-year-old neighbor boy.

R.C. and Frazer constantly taunt Justin about his murder and merrimess. The evil injustices are directed toward him and he eventually becomes a victim. The audience's sympathy is masterfully directed toward the true victims—but I'll leave the climax and ending of the play's plot for you to judge.

It is rare that a play has the power to take a real audience by surprise and clinch. Lavonne Mueller is an expert at this art. The horrors and violence are claustrophobically realistic. At the same time, the audience is intellectually unsettling. There are many loose ends which are never clarified. Who are the real killers in society? What kind of justice, if any at all, exists in small hick-towns?

The trend for leaving the audience stunned at the end of a play seems to be the style for the '80s. It is effective—but it is not for everyone. My first reaction to the play was that it was weak and had no value. But the more I thought about it the more it made sense.

The acting helped make the play believable—we hated the bad guys and felt sorry for the helpless victims. Richard Woods and Deborah Taylor, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrayed the publicity people, who portrays
by Darrel Lippman

Just when you thought it was safe to refurbish a jinxed summer camp, along comes Friday the 13th.

Trouble lurks in Camp Crystal Lake, but that doesn't seem to bother an eager bunch of counselors who are getting the camp into shape for the upcoming summer season.

"The place is cursed, I'm warning you," informs a senile man, referring to the mysterious deaths and the drowning of 2 boys which led to the eventual failure of the camp. The no-name cast of counselors are adequate to above average in their respective performances.

Friday the 13th seems to work in many ways, unlike many of today's trashy and ridiculous terror movies. When a scary situation seems more real than unbelievable, the more it seems frightening to the viewer, as is the case with Friday the 13th. Someone is out there trying to prevent the reopening of this particular camp and for a very good reason, too.

This person's psychopathic motive is quite justified and on Friday the 13th, under a full moon, terror will strike. At its best, Friday the 13th is a truly suspenseful movie with a good solid story behind it. Screenwriter Victor Miller deserves a big hand for actually putting a plot into a movie of this type, rather than just trying to throw together a lot of unrelated bits and pieces.

Victor Miller deserves a big hand for actually putting a plot into a movie of the horror genre, rather than just trying to throw together a lot of unrelated bits and pieces. The film is well-crafted and the acting is top-notch. The no-name cast of counselors are adequate to above average in their respective performances.

There is something about the great outdoors that, in itself, has always been a good atmosphere for a terror film. The eerie-ness of a forest at night adds an instant sash of fright, let alone that a summer camp has been abandoned for years because of a curse. The movies Deliverance and Rituals are perfect examples of this "outdoor terror." The aura of being secluded, miles from anyone, where nobody can help you, is just plain scary.

It is interesting to note that many films recently, whether they are comedies or thrillers, are using camp themes. This is somehow successfully drawing viewers, as can be seen by the movies Meatballs, Little Darlings and now Friday the 13th, which is almost sure to be a moneymaker.

Friday the 13th is an exercise in terror, and all of the good special effects rolled up in 1 make this movie a must for terror seeking junkies. The picture opened on, you guessed it, Friday at selected area theaters. Rated R, it contains some nudity and explicit bloody gore.

Oh, by the way, Friday the 13th falls on the 2d Friday of next month for those of you who have a superstition about that day.

Friday the 13th
Written by Victor Miller
Directed and Produced by Sean S. Cunningham
A Paramount Release
In Rome there was no need to hostel it—the pensions, (small, family-run hotels) were only about $4.50 a night, plus extra for a shower, of course.

Hostels are also good places to meet travelers and exchange information, and we found ourselves changing plans depending on what others had thought of particular towns.

If you have any friends, acquaintances, or long lost relatives abroad look them up. They'll probably be glad to let you stay for awhile. It will make a big difference when you know you've got a place to call home, at least for a day or so.

We stayed with a friend of ours from MSC who is doing graduate work at the University of Graz (MSC's sister school) in Austria. Not speaking a word of German, we would have had a tough time if Eileen hadn't been there to translate. Also, seeing a familiar face really lifts the morale, because believe me, being alone and unable to communicate can be rough.

In Paris we stayed in a 1-room cold-water flat with a friend's daughter who is studying at the Sorbonne. We hadn't even met her until we barged in at 9 am on a Sunday morning, but by the time we left (6 days later) we were like old friends.

Without a doubt, do not leave without picking up a copy of Let's Go Europe (About $5 in large book stores). We never stayed anywhere without first checking with this guide. Many of the inexpensive places we ate were also listed.

Let's Go Europe isn't a typical tourist guide. (You can pick those up in the train station and give it to another traveler on your way out of the city). Written by Harvard students and updated every year, it gives brief descriptions of every city you could possibly think of visiting, plus off-the-beat things to do and places to see. More importantly, it lists inexpensive places to eat and sleep complete with addresses and phone numbers. Forsake all other guide books if necessary, but buy Let's Go Europe.

When traveling in summer or during holidays, make reservations a few days in advance, if possible, for hostels and trains. Also, don't be a dumb Americano—speak slowly, softly, and distinctly. You'll be surprised at the number of Europeans who speak English. You won't get much cooperation if you shout or ask them first if they speak English.

Traveling through Europe on your own isn't easy, but it's fun and exciting. There's no waiting because a person your group didn't wake up on time, or someone had to go to the bathroom, or got lost in the museum. There's very little to upset your plans when you haven't made that many to begin with. And don't be surprised if you become a more confident, independent, not to mention happier person than you were when you left. Believe me, it's a trip that you'll never forget.
Census ‘80

continued from page 11

of each municipality is essential. Local planners and administrators will pay close attention to census statistics, as this data will help determine the allocation of more than $84 billion in federal funding to states and localities. Thus the cause of the hopeful anticipation by these same officials. It should be noted that their drooling could very easily turn to pangs of anxiety and a foaming at the mouth if an undercount occurs and expected revenue sharing funds do not materialize, a fact that the Census Bureau is going to great lengths to make sure does not happen again. But let’s be realistic, especially when speaking of counting the millions of illegal aliens living in our country. Should they be counted in the 1980 census? This very issue was brought to the Supreme Court last December when a lawsuit seeking to stop the Census Bureau from taking the census was filed by the Federation for American Immigration Reform along with 5 members of Congress. They believed that it would be unconstitutional to include illegal aliens in the census for the purpose of reapportionment of Congressional seats. They argued that such inclusion would violate the principle of “one man, one vote,” a right granted to those who are legally registered. It obviously seems odd to give representation in Congress to people not legally here.

The Supreme Court ruled otherwise, basically by showing the flip side of the coin, that these same illegal aliens still partake of health care services, day care centers, low cost housing, and fire and police protection. In other words, when a firefighter responds to a fire he doesn’t ask the person he’s saving whether he’s legal or illegal. He saves him. Does that sound morally responsible to you? What do you think, MSC?

According to House Rep. Robert Garcia, in an interview with The New York Times, on March 7, 1980. A major concern of trying to count the estimated 6-8 million undocumented aliens living in this country is the historic fear of government among minority residents. Garcia is a Bronx Democrat who is chairman of the House Subcommittee on Census and Population. He noted in the interview that apart from the assumption that many illegal residents simply do not want to be counted, the Census Bureau’s efforts to find them may be hampered by the fact that in the summer, when much of the harvesting will take place, many such families are engaged in migratory farm labor and have no fixed address. You can see now that the problems that confront the Census Bureau are not minor ones that can be solved easily.

They are problems that have been questioned by many people, including government officials at all levels, politicians, academicians, clergy, and editorialists throughout the heartland who are badly twisted intriguing figure it all out. They realize that we are more than a nation traversed by airplanes and autos, and full of people running in all directions. Rather, we are a nation of people with a complex of responsibilities and options made out of the loves, the hates, the faith, the trust, and the suspicions of all of us as Americans.

In census terms these responsibilities and options boil down to the fact that under the penalty of a $100 fine and a possible year in jail, a resident of the US must allow himself to be enumerated by a census taker who is the person to fill out the information. This same taker is then subjected to those same loves, hates, misgivings, and suspicions that lurk within the hearts of American citizens everywhere.

As working members of this year’s census operation, census takers have been privy to some disturbing reactions to the census questionnaires that were sent out to households on April 1. It seems that when confronted with a live symbol of American government vis a vis a census taker, some of us Americans react in ways that would probably bring smiles to such people as Woody Hayes and Woody Allen.

Speculative violent reactions and a large dose of sarcasm are exactly what the majority of census people have encountered to date. Whether these reactions are due to a fear of government snooping or a blindness is debatable.

As you can see, the year of 1980 is more than just a presidential election year and the marking of new decade. It is a year when the Census Bureau will do what it’s been doing every 10 years since 1790. By this year it will try to capture the full flavor of a changing American society, through factually painting a picture of its inhabitants. Let’s hope the takers can paint a landscape of people will reflect an honest appraisal that only an accurate count can produce.

Get more than a tan this summer:
earn college credits at The New School.

The Human Relations Center of The New School is offering five credit courses that are tailored for students who’d like to combine study and holiday this summer.

41013 Law, Litigation, and Dispute Settlement. A Course for Undergraduates and Everyone with a Serious Interest in Legal Process

Mon. & Wed., 1:30-3:30 pm, beg. June 16. Adrienne

41053 Mathematics: Friend, Not Foe

Mon. & Wed., 10:00 am-12:00 pm, beg. June 16. Elisabeth Ruedy

41103 Modern Western Philosophy

Tues. & Thurs., 4:45-6:15 pm, beg. June 17. Bernard Flynn

41153 Personality and Power in 20th Century Politics

Tues. & Thurs., 9:45-11:15 am, beg. June 17. Ralph Buultjens

41203 Physiological Foundations for Growth in Health and Consciousness

Tues. & Thurs., 10:00 am-12:00 pm, beg. June 17. Mary Frances Schmitt

But that’s not all the Human Relations Center has to offer: Our own unique program of day and evening classes and workshops is specially designed to help students increase their own personal potential. And The New School, of course, is America’s First University for Adults.

The New School
66 West 12th Street, New York 10011

Send the coupon today for our comprehensive New School bulletin and Human Relations Center brochure.

Name
Address
City.
Zip

Rescue? continued from page 5

militants. They would have met, of course, with an industrial firestorm of calls from the gunships which could have caused hundreds, if not thousands of civilian casualties. This sort of massacre would not only have added hundreds of new martyrs to the Shiite honor roll of military saints, but also would have put the lie to Carter’s claim about the limited and humanitarian goals of the mission.

It is equally difficult to believe that the C-101 gunships would have been held back to do their job with some interference from the Iranian air force. While this air force is no longer what it once was (the largest in the world in the early 1970s, and able to launch a possible year in jail, a resident of the US must allow himself to be enumerated by a census taker who is the person to fill out the information. This same taker is then subjected to those same loves, hates, misgivings, and suspicions that lurk within the hearts of American citizens everywhere.

As working members of this year’s census operation, census takers have been privy to some disturbing reactions to the census questionnaires that were sent out to households on April 1. It seems that when confronted with a live symbol of American government vis a vis a census taker, some of us Americans react in ways that would probably bring smiles to such people as Woody Hayes and Woody Allen.

Speculative violent reactions and a large dose of sarcasm are exactly what the majority of census people have encountered to date. Whether these reactions are due to a fear of government snooping or a blindness is debatable.

As you can see, the year of 1980 is more than just a presidential election year and the marking of new decade. It is a year when the Census Bureau will do what it’s been doing every 10 years since 1790. By this year it will try to capture the full flavor of a changing American society, through factually painting a picture of its inhabitants. Let’s hope the takers can paint a landscape of people will reflect an honest appraisal that only an accurate count can produce.
Spend Friday Nights in the Park

Meadowlands Racetrack is launching a series of special college night programs on Friday evenings to offer student bodies in our area a super night out in Trackside Park, the great outdoor viewing and picnic area along The Meadowlands homestretch. The series gets under way...

Friday Night, May 23
with
MONTCLAIR STATE COLLEGE NIGHT

Reduced Admission of $1.00 to anyone presenting a student I.D. Card.

Music by TAXI, the popular North Jersey Rock & Roll band formerly known as Thorin Oak.

Food and Beverages available from The Trackside Park Gazebo

Special guest appearance by Jim Kerr, WPLJ radio personality, who will help emcee the proceedings and distribute record albums and promotional items to lucky attendees.

Gates at Meadowlands Racetrack open at 6 p.m., and post time for the first of 10 harness races is 8 p.m. It all happens at the nation's Number 1 harness racetrack...

THE MEADOWLANDS
East Rutherford, New Jersey
Where Spring Is Special
Have a nice summer!

Scheduled service with no restrictions makes

Europe Easy.

Easy on the pocketbook:
JFK to Shannon: only $259 one way, $479 round trip. JFK to Amsterdam: just $289 one way, $499 round trip. Add $25 for our Shannon/Amsterdam stop-over flight. Book now because round trip fares to both Amsterdam and Shannon will increase by $50 on June 15, one way by $20.

Easy to put together.
No advance purchase requirements. No length of stay rules or cancellation fees. Plus the option to land in one country and leave from another. Call your travel agent or Transamerica Airlines at (212) 239-0270. We fly to more places in more countries than any other airline.

Transamerica Airlines

EARN COLLEGE CREDIT THIS SUMMER!
Scholarship Funding Available to qualified applicants

Earn more than a salary this summer. Apply for a challenging position working in the outdoors with needy city boys aged 8-14 from mid-June thru August 30.

We are a private, non-profit agency serving metropolitan youth. Located amongst the undeveloped lakes and woodlands of New York's scenic 75,000 acre Palisades Interstate Park, we have provided one of the finest camping programs in the country to thousands of youths since 1936.

We seek motivated, mature college students to work as general counselors and specialists in outdoor education, athletics, camping, dramatics, swimming and canoeing.

For an application and further information, please write. We look forward to hearing from you.

BOYS' ATHLETIC LEAGUE
51 E. 42nd Street • New York, N.Y. 10017
Step right up

Did you ever attend a commencement ceremony at Rutgers; the State University?

The exercise is held on the school green, surrounded by Old Ivy-covered buildings, amidst ancient towering oaks. The school choir sings some traditional school songs, as well as, a few classical greats. Each graduating senior is individually called upon to receive his/her diploma. As the lucky recipient approaches the podium, the speaker reads out any honors or scholastic achievements that individual may have earned.

The Commencement speaker is always a well-known national figure.

After the ceremony, the graduates and their relatives retire to some tables, under those towering oaks, for some punch and cakes, picture taking, final good-byes and well-wishing.

Throughout the entire affair, one can’t help but sense the history and pride of school tradition which prevades the place. The graduates, parents, and teachers are all proud of their school; its educational achievements.

Have you ever attended a MSC graduation exercise?

There are no Ivy-covered buildings or towering oaks; instead one is confronted by stadium bleachers and football goalsposts. There is no school choir, no calling of names of individual graduates, no public recognition of honors achieved. One senses the end of a process where a mass of finished products stands ready for shipment to fill orders from the business community.

Perhaps there is pride, but one senses something more akin to relief. Many will be there. Sad to say, many will stay away.

3 cheers!

1980 has been a record breaking year for MSC’s women’s softball teams. Besides breaking or tying 6 individual pitching and hitting records, the team (21-4) has individual pitching and hitting records, the team (21-4) has finished products stands ready for shipment to fill orders from the business community.

Perhaps there is pride, but one senses something more akin to relief. Many will be there. Sad to say, many will stay away.

School is almost over, exams are almost over and then everyone’s thoughts will turn to 1 universal thought—hit the beach!

I have been a year round resident of a shore community for 10 years and I’ve seen every breed of tourist come and go. It is a really ironic feeling for us “natives” because the tourists are our life blood and we need their support. But we all tend to feel resentment for the thongs of T ’s (typical tourists, as my friend Patty calls them) who swell our shoreline population from a quiet 10,000 in the winter to a bustling 100,000 in the summer.

T’T go by various names, most unprintable. With the exception of a few considerate souls, most T’T have the idea that they officially run whatever place they are visiting.

Here are a few tips on how you too can be a successful TT, make a complete jerk out of yourself, and earn the total disgust of the residents of the area you are visiting.

First of all, do not make any reservations. Then you can scream at every motel owner who has a “no vacancy” sign in their window. After all, you have driven so many hundreds of miles—he is a fool for only having 500 rooms available.

When you get there make sure you have no idea where you are going so you can slam on your brakes at every intersection and explore the varied possibilities, while you tie up 17 cars behind you. Don’t be afraid to ask directions from some poor slob who has just finished jogging 4 miles and acts indifferent if he wants to breathe instead of talk to you. This guy will tell you where to go for sure.

Dress is important. This spring’s designer TT-wear includes T-shirts with Fort Lauderdale on them to indicate that you have hit all the cultural spots in your travels. Tacky fake Hawaiian shirts are definitely cool, but the ultimate is jeans full of sand, rolled up to the knees to allow for dipping into the ocean and shrieking “oh, it’s cold.” Complete your ensemble with a camera over the shoulder and shoes (hence, the other name for tourists—shoobics).

After the 1st day of catching rays, it is understood that your body will glow like Three Mile Island, giving off enough heat to warm Buffalo, NY in January.

Above all, be sure to treat the residents like your own personal indentured servants. Remember, their sole reason for existence is to cater to your every whim. Yell at the chambermaid because it is raining. Accuse the checkout girls of jacking up prices to milk the tourists (a complete fallacy). Blame the man that sold you Copperpot for your sunburn. Finish off the job leaving some gorgeous garbage on the beach. Crawl all over the dunes so that they offer no protection for the residents against a vicious Northeaster next winter.

On the other hand, you may want to be an NT (nicer tourist), and do the exact opposite of my suggestions. Or as a professional TT, you may find that some resident will give you a present of some TNT. Then your trip could end with a real bang.

I’ll quit while I’m ahead; see you next fall.

Nora DePalma is a columnist for The Montclarion.

On the Rampage/Nora DePalma

You too, can be a TT

DOONESBURY

by Garry Trudeau

S’or a Dr Pahna is a columnist for the Montclarion.
Students Speak

Sex coming to schools

by John Vallancourt and Susan Schnaedt

"How do you feel about sex education being mandatory subject in the schools?"

"I think that it is a good idea because it is better for children to learn about sex in a classroom rather than to pick it up on the streets."

- Debbie Cook
  1981 | accounting

"I feel it is good that students be taught in the lower grades because the teachers are very qualified to explain sex. It is better to learn from a proper source than to pick it up off the streets."

- Joe Martin
  1982 | biology

"I feel it is good to be educated in the lower grades. I feel that I was properly taught in high school and I found it very advantageous."

- Gary Kamberlich
  1981 | biology

"I think it is an excellent idea because it teaches the young all the consequences of sex. Sex should not be looked down upon, as it is a part of human nature and any education would not be complete without all aspects of life."

- Mark Minelli
  1981 | accounting

"I am against it basically because of how sex education is taught today. In the teachings they encourage sexual actions such as fornication. In the Bible, fornication is a sin."

- Tim Knapp
  1982 | accounting

"I feel sex is an important topic in our society and I do feel that a child should be exposed to it as early as grammar school."

- Renee Massey
  1981 | psychology

- Jack Feingold
  1982 | economics

Kosher Komsents

Keep it clean; Go kosher

by Lynn S. Zlotnick

A few weeks ago, a friend of mine asked me if I keep kosher. Being on the more conservative side of the Jewish religion, I replied, "No, I'm not kosher."

"Well, if you're not kosher, then how can you have kosher comments?" he sarcastically smiled.

Before I had a chance to hit him for such a terrible pun, he asked, "What does kosher really mean, anyway?"

The puzzled expression on his face told me that he was sincere. I gave him the following explanation:

Traditionally, keeping a kosher home and eating kosher food reinforce man's reverence before God and helps to maintain what the Torah describes as a clean and holy existence.

According to the Jewish catalog, kosher has 3 meanings: 1) fit or proper; 2) a term referring to foods that can be eaten according to the Jewish dietary laws; 3) the separation of milk from meat.

Meat must be killed according to the laws of the shehitah (sha-he-tah), which state that the animal must not die a painful death. Once meat is properly slaughtered, it must be kashered; or soaked and salted to remove excess blood.

Drinking milk with meat is strictly forbidden by Jewish laws. The traditional reason for this is that it is considered cruel and unclean to combine the life giving element of an animal (its milk) with the death element (its flesh). Over time, this separation of milk from meat was expanded to prohibit any preparing, cooking, or eating of the 2 elements together, according to the Jewish catalog.

Grains, fruits and vegetables are considered neutral. That is, they don't contain milk or meat, and are usually kasher, or pareve (par-eve).

Manufactured packaged foods are questionable. Whether they are kosher can be determined by presence of the word "pareve" or a circled letter "u" somewhere on the package. The symbol indicates that the product has been inspected by a rabbi and proved kosher.

Household objects can be kashered by boiling them in water or thoroughly cleaning them and not using them for 24 hours. The average kosher home contains 2 sets of dishes—for meat meals and 1 for milk meals. The dishes are kept separate at all times, and are even washed separately.

"Well, do you understand what kosher means, now?" I asked my friend.

"Sure," he replied, "Now I'm convinced that your comments aren't kosher!"

This time, I hit him.

Lynn Zlotnick is a member of JSU.
On Second Thought/Meryl Yourish

Those were the days

"Well, Nor," I said between gulps of wine, "we made it through another year."

"Barley," she said between pitchers of beer. "You know, Meryl, I was getting a little worried there. We've been through a hell of a lot this year. If things don't wind down pretty soon, they're going to drive me to drink."

"That's your 3d pitcher, Nora."

"Fourth, but who's counting? That's your 2d carafe, if I'm not mistaken."

"You're right. We deserve it though. Between work, school, the paper, and the radio station, you've just about missed going off the deep end."

"Speak for yourself. I'm perfectly normal."

"Then why are you drinking from the pitcher?"

"Saves time. Why are you drinking out of your sneaker?"

"I thought it was my glass." I blushed. "We've really done some crazy things in the past couple of years. Do you remember last year's April Fool's issue? The Wednesday night we decided to watch the sun rise from the roof of Bohn Hall?"

"Yeah. And at the last minute we were both called into the graphics room and missed it, so we stood outside in the cafeteria singing good morning songs to each other."

"That was the day of the 1st commuter, I chuckled. You remember. He walked in about 7 am and I pointed and yelled. 'Look! The 1st commuter!' and everyone came running over and surrounded him. We kept asking him if he'd like to see the paper before anyone else on campus saw it."

"I think he was too scared to refuse. We look pretty wild eyed after an all nighter," Nora said.

"Was it that night, or the week after you and I played 'Follow the Leader' across the tables?"

"The week after. I remember stopping when I saw the table you were on start to tilt. You might say it threw you over."

"Funny, Nor. What do you think you are, a humor columnist or something?""

"The teacher's strike was a real panic, wasn't it?"

"Panic? I will never forget driving through that mob on Normal Ave. to get that stupid picture that you couldn't even tell was from inside a car. Nor will I ever forget the faux pas to end all faux pas—the comment made to the lady supposedly hit by the car during the picketing."

"It was 'I didn't know you were so short!' wasn't it?"

"Well, she was. I wouldn't exactly call that remark tactful, though," I commented.

"You should talk. You almost made the blooper of the year yourself, though."

"Hey look. It was late, I was bored, and I'd been typing for hours. Can you blame me for fooling around with the machine a little?"

"Your playing around almost shut the paper down forever. If I saw hadn't run to the printer to get that paragraph, you'd have been locked in a room with a pair of scissors and 8,000 Montclarions to cut out the paragraphs issue by issue."

"Well, no one will ever know the real reason Charley was never in his office," I said, "but you can't deny that it was true."

"Sure it was true. But you'd have to prove that to the libel judge—and that might have been a bit tough."

"Those were the days," I sighed. "Things like that don't seem to happen anymore."

"That's because they've kept you chained to a table this year. They learned from their mistakes."

"Oh well. I've got a whole bunch of new things to try next year—a whole bunch of new people, too."

"Are you joining the monastery?"

"Don't be silly, Nor. I'm gonna be a legislator."

"God help them." —Meryl Yourish is a columnist for The Montclarion.

Guest Spot

Be it ever so crumbly...

by Nader Tavakoli

AS MSC ends the 1979-80 academic year, we are faced with mixed feelings. Thoughts on the go and year behind together with fear of a rocky road ahead.

The next 2 years will be an exciting time for the college. The addition of the Student Center Annex and athletic facilities in the quarry, together with the addition of a 628 bed dormitory will significantly improve the quality of our facilities.

The dormitory will provide the opportunity to recruit students from outside Montclair's 3 surrounding counties with the promise of available housing.

The annex will provide desparately needed office space for student groups and the quarry project will enhance participation in intramural and leisure activity.

However, the next 2 years will also ignite the decline of traditional college aged students. Colleges across the country are bracing for the eventual consequence this will have on their institution; many will undoubtedly have to make radical changes or close their doors.

As a result, competition for traditional as well as nontraditional college bound students will become extremely severe; only the institutions best prepared to accept and implement change will remain healthy. MSC will have to continue to make necessary changes in order to better facilitate the needs of the increasing number of nontraditional students enrolling in our programs.

Most importantly, the college will have to regain its most important recruiting source, its graduates. For years, MSC has enjoyed the help of its numerous alumni at the secondary school level, who thought positively enough of their alma mater to recommend it to their college bound students.

Today's graduates lack that enthusiasm for MSC. They feel they have been given too many run arounds by the Business Office, had their schedules destroyed once too many times, and have been ripped-off by the Student Center on a daily basis.

There is 1 area of the college however, that stands out above all else, as a "store thumb," this is the Housing Office.

As any students, who have been rejected for not knowing the right person, or have been assessed a $10 "damage" deposit charge for checking out 5 minutes late, or have needed help in locating off campus housing will testify, housing (Sans the housing office) is the most potentially elitist, desensitized rip-off at MSC.

A recent scheme seems to be the collection of a group of naive freshmen, hopeful of saying the right things to become a Resident Assistant (RA), and advertising that a policy that has been arrived at with "objective" student input.

When one seeks housing's help, for example, in locating an off campus room, one is greeted with a statement to the effect that "in loca parentis" no longer exists, however when proposing to implement an outrageous liquor policy, housing is more parental than any national parent.

I sincerely believe that MSC still offers the best academic education of any of the State Colleges in NJ.

I can say with certainty that a good majority of those graduating on May 28 do not regret having chosen to attend MSC, but it would be regrettable if the college's ability to attract and retain quality students is inhibited by the policies of a few shortsighted administrators.

Nader Tavakoli is SGA president.

Soapbox

Better quality writers needed

To the editor:

This is in response to the article that was published in The Montclarion, on May 1, entitled, "Female assaulted in dorm." I feel that it is a disgrace.

The headline were 4 trivial statements explaining the headline. In the next paragraph below the 1st, there was an article that had already appeared on pages 1 and 5. This made no sense to me at all to repeat what I had already been said.

The remaining paragraphs spoke about different happenings on campus which clearly didn't belong under the same headline.

Getting back to the point, the article did not inform the reader of the entire story. Was your problem a lack of the right questions? If so, here are a few:

1) What dorm did the harassment occur in?
2) What is a description of the assailants?
3) Are the men still in the custody of the police?
4) What is being done at the present time to protect the safety of other vulnerable women?

I feel that these issues and more should have been addressed instead of going off on a tangent!

This is not the 1st time poor quality writing has been exhibited in The Montclarion. I hope it is the last! It is not every day a school of this caliber has to be degraded by low quality writing and unedited articles such as this and many other published writings.

I have to say to the writer of this article is: Do yourself a favor and take a freshman composition course or return to your grammar school English teacher!!!!

Jeanette Pinkney

1982/ industrial arts

FOR Sale: 13 inch General Electric color TV, $150, also Bushie express, Panasonic stereo, or SXophone student model. $225. Call Michael 779-3160.

FOR Sale: Minolta 100 camera and flash unit. Very good

FOR Sale: Buescher " Aristocrat" Alto saxophone, as a set. (call Mark at 887-2515

FOR Sale: Firebird, 350 auto, am fm 8 track tape, 1979 Collard 165 SR 15, $10 each. Two Michelin ZX tires, and 1 S I  X stick. S50 asking for $1300, call Jacobs of the English department.

FOR Sale: Minolta 100 camera and flash unit. Very good

FOR Sale: Will talk.

FOR Sale: 2818 after 5 pm.

FOR Sale: Male preferred, call 783-6280.

FOR Sale: Female to share large one bedroom and plenty of space. Room and 9 year old (toys. Room and bath behind Wellmont theater. Call 738-6280.

FOR Sale: Summering an Apartment: 44 Union St. Montclair, 5 minutes from the MSC campus by car. One bedroom and plenty of room, parking from June 15-Sep. 1, Call 7353335 during the day, 9-5 pm, ask for Alan Friedlander.

HELP Wanted: College student for after school care of 6 and 9 year old boys. Room and board plus salary during the 1980 school year. Private room and bath in central Montclair location. Care desirable, but bus is available. Contact Mrs. Lazarus at 893-4426 after 5 pm and at 744-1835.

WANTED: Female roommate for summer shore house in Belmar, NJ. Call for information, 7466761 or 962-7325.

WANTED: Share a house or large apartment. Can pay up to $200. A female is preferred. Needed as soon as possible. Call Sue at 383-1052 or 5434189.

WANTED: Mother’s helper from the end of May until September. Live in, 6 weeks in Massachusetts, Newborn, 1 year-old. Call 744-7692.

ATTENTION: Do you need typing done? Fast and accurate. $1 per page. $391-6131.

WANTED: Female to share large Victorian house in Passaic Park. Bus and train 10-minute to school. Rent 112 mo. plus 1 gas and electric. Call Ellen or Jeanie at 3650887.

THANKS: You’re a great bunch! TB

TYPING SERVICE: Typing done at home on Selectric typewriter. Include your name, letters, term papers, reports, etc. Professional results—$2 a page typed. Call Karen at 226-7855.

WANTED: Mature, responsible student interested in sharing the cost of a house or apartment in the Upper Montclair area. Call Grace, 697-7328 after 6 pm.

WANTED: Buying baseball cards collection or single card. Small. Call Mike, 746-4230.

WANTED: If anyone saw a blue Mustang hit the pots Tue., May 13, between 12:00-12:45, please call The Montclair Office, extension S20.

WANTED: In the SCA Office. Please return to Mr. Kafka's office.

SUMMER JOBS: Summer and parttime jobs of all kinds—new listings daily in the career services office, Life Hall.

LOST: TI-55 calculator with case in 1st floor hallway. If found please return to Laura Partiah at the SGA Office.

LOST: Brown leather wallet in area of Fine Arts Building, $10 reward. Call Joe 488-0231.

MSC AIDS APPLICANTS: If you received financial aid through MSC during the 1979-80 academic year and have not yet received your 1980-81 Financial Aid Form in the mail, please stop at the Financial Aid Office, Room C311, and pick up your 1980-81 Financial Aid Form.

APARTMENT SALE: Located 2 miles away off Valley Road, Clifton. Located 2 miles away off Valley Road, Clifton. Available May 1. Call Nancy at 278-5378.

MODERN APARTMENT: A lovely " b ro th c r" --Josc ph Eskow! Love always, your sis Sophia, Joey, and Pat: It's been loads of fun. Let’s do it again sometime. Um. Always. Your friend Janice B.

MODERN APARTMENT: A lovely " b ro th c r" --Josc ph Eskow! Love always, your friend Janice B.

MODERN APARTMENT: A lovely " b ro th c r" --Josc ph Eskow! Love always, your friend Janice B.

MODERN APARTMENT: A lovely " b ro th c r" --Josc ph Eskow! Love always, your friend Janice B.

MODERN APARTMENT: A lovely " b ro th c r" --Josc ph Eskow! Love always, your friend Janice B.
IM Highlights

by Mike Ritz

In the men's softball tournament, last year's champions, Landview H.C., were knocked out by unit A in a rain delayed game that was carried over till the following day. Landview H.C. scored 1 in the top of the 9th inning, but unit A scored 2 in the bottom to clinch the win. The Outlaws and the Verona Inn are the only 2 teams still unbeaten.

In the coed tournament, Ugots advanced to the finals, unbeaten for the 2nd straight year. Led by the great pitching of Jill Alexander and the clutch hitting of Mike Knny, Ugots rallied in the 7th inning with 3 runs for a comeback victory over the Bim Bam Van Fliers, 7-6. In the 2d game, the Shore Boys defeated the Bliers, 6-2, to advance to the finals vs Ugots.

The annual ping pong tournament was held last week. The tournament was set up in 3 divisions: men, women, and mixed doubles. John Ulman beat Frank Frli to win the men's division. In the women's division, Irene Okeke defeated Jill Ackerman. In the mixed doubles competition, Tim Karugu teamed up with Okeke to beat Hugh Dale and Ackerman.

The 3d annual SILC and referees banquet was held last Thursday at Beefsteak Charlie's. Awards were given to junior Mike Puccirelli for Ref of the Year and Mary Tuffy and l orn Devine were co-winners of the Rookie Ref of the Year award.

Congratulations to graduating SILC members Maria Tome (president), Joe Currie, Paul Hoch, Mike Frees, Patti LoPresto, Terry Mullane, and Bill Muller.

lacrosse Wrapup

The MSC lacrosse team upset a strong C.W. Post team to finish yet another successful season, 9-5. Last season the Stickmen were 10-4, but they played less competitive teams in that 10-4 record season.

The MSC team could have been 11-3 if they put it all together. Instead, they lost a heartbreaker to Fairleigh Dickinson University (FDU/Madison), 14-13, in triple overtime, and they lost to Lehigh University 13-14.

The Stickmen opened their season in defeat to Adelphi University (Adelphi), the division 2 and 3 champions. MSC lost to Kutztown State College (Kutztown) and Rutgers University/New Brunswick to account for their 5 losses.

The Rutgers/New Brunswick game was no contest as the scholarship school dominated the 1st half while outscoring 6 goal lead. MSC never recovered on that Wednesday night and they lost by a 15-3 score. Rutgers/New Brunswick was rated 8th in division 3 at the time of the game. They also had all-American John Ford on their attack line.

One of last seasons opponents was City College of New York (CCNY) which the Tribe destroyed 35-0. George Nucera set a National Collegiate Athletic Association record with 7 goals in that game. The Stickmen dropped CCNY from their schedule this year. About the MSC wins, after their opening defeat, they went on a 6 game winning streak. They defeated Stevens Tech (Stevens) 12-1, Dowling College (Dowling) 22-7, Morgan State University (MSU) 20-2, Fairleigh Dickinson University/Teaneck 11-5, Villanova University 13-8, and Marist College 10-3. Then Rutgers stopped by and ended their streak before they could break their own record of 7 straight.

The Indians also defeated Kean College (Kean) on lacrosse day, which brought their record to 9-5.

---

Ken Barnes (white jersey) scores vs. Ken Oliver in under 6 foot action (left). Mike Tropeano (black top) dethroned Bill Muller in 6 foot and over competition.

SILC 1 on 1 basketball tournament

Mike Tropeano dethroned Bill Muller as SILC's 1-on-1 basketball champ (6 foot and over), and Ken Oliver shot down Ken Barnes to take the under 6 foot crown, last Monday night in Panzer Gym.

In the 2d annual “Battle of the Goalkeepers,” Tropeano and Muller (MSC's 2 varsity goalies) battled it out for 20 minutes. Each player refused to give an inch.

Tropeano, who twisted his ankle in his semifinal match with Ron Jackey, played the whole game with pain written all over his face. Nevertheless, the 2 went at each other with the competitiveness and desire they’ve often shown on the soccer field.

Ahead 23-20, Tropeano had a chance to put the game away earlier with a foul shot. He missed, however, and the contest continued. The game finally ended when Tropeano charged to the hoop, faked left, faked right, then wheeled and banked a 1 handed jumper over the weary Muller.

It was a fitting present for Tropeano who was celebrating his 22d birthday. And it was sweet revenge for last year’s loss to Muller in the finals.

In the under 6 foot class, last year’s 1st and 2d finishers, Jerry Agee and Rich Mulvihill were ousted in the semi-finals. Agee succumbed to Ken Oliver, 40-35, in the longest highest scoring game of the evening. Mulvihill fell to Ken Barnes, 24-20.

The final saw Oliver top Barnes, 28-12, in a quick, fast-paced game. Fourteen players participated in the 6 foot and over class, and 12 tried their luck in the under 6 foot category.
Sabato guns
Indians over
GSC, 5-4

by Paul Huegel

"They can never do anything the easy way," Coach Fred Hill commented after MSC took a 5-4 victory over Glassboro State College (GSC) last Saturday at Glassboro. The win gave the Tribe the 2 out of 3 series in the semifinal round of the New Jersey State College Athletic Conference (NJSCAC) tournament.

On Friday, GSC rallied from behind to gain a 9-6 decision. With the score knot tied at 5, Indian starter Bob Buccino's arm had had enough. A leadoff single by the Prof's preceded his exit and in came Greg Petite. MSC's top fireman, however, performed more like an arsonist. On his 3rd pitch to the plate, Petite threw up a duck to GSC's Murray who sent the ball onto the railroad tracks beyond the centerfield fence, for his 2nd homer run in as many games.

The Prof's went on to score 2 more before Hill called on Roger Lope to put out the fire.

Saturday, the scene shifted back to Glassboro for the 3rd and deciding game. This time, designated hitter Tony Sabato was the slugging star. His 3 run 1st inning homer propelled MSC to a 5-4 victory.

Bob Fortunato added a solo homer in the 4th for the Indians, and Murray (3 in 3 games), Charles Peale, and Joe Davis rocketed 4-baggers for GSC.

Bob Henriques won his 3rd game in 5 decisions for the Tribe. Norman Charlesworth took the loss.

The series opened on May 7 in Glassboro. On that pivotal day, the Indians used 5 home runs to upend the Prof's, 18-4.

Centerfielder John Guarino was the star of the game, driving 5 runs with his 2 homers and a double. In the 5th inning, his 3 run shot broke a 7-6 tie as MSC cruised for 6 big runs.

Ace righthander Glenn "Preacher" Roe scattered 9 hits, 1 a home run by GSC centerfielder Steve Murray, to gain the victory.

Catcher Vin Tiberi belted his 3rd homer in 5 games and Joe Wasch and Mark Bujnowski added solo shots for the Tribe.

SMOKE SIGNALS: In Wednesday's opener, the MSC bench saluted each GSC batter who fanned 3 times with a toss of their caps and a cry of "Hat Trick!" Glenn Dwyer, Lope, and Sabato are in the running for the tobacco chewer of the year award. Bob Stepy is the unanimous choice as the 80 bubble gum blowing champ.

Player Profile

NAME: Patti LoPresto
BORN: March 6, 1958
HEIGHT: 5 feet 4 inches
SPORT: Women's lacrosse
POSITION: Attack wing
HIGH SCHOOL: Cinnaminson High School
HOMETOWN: Cinnaminson, NJ
YEAR: Senior
MAJOR: Recreation
MOST MEMORABLE GAME: This year's comeback vs. Trenton State College.
BIGGEST LACROSSE THRILL: Sharing the astroturf with the men's lacrosse team for practice, each day.
BIGGEST LACROSSE DISAPPOINTMENT: Having this year being her last year of playing after finally learning how to cradle.
PERSONAL GOALS: To get back her full damage deposit from her Clave Rd. apartment. To beat Rosie Ruiz in the SILC Rabbit Run. To make sure no male ever finds out what "The Hook" means. To get distorted drinking 90 nectars on graduation.
Squaw take title

Julien 3 hits Seton Hall, 3-1

by Meryl Yourish

One of the marks of a good team is the number of close games they can pull out and win. The women's softball team swept Seton Hall University (SHU) 1-0 and 3-1 in the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) division 2 championships at the University of Rhode Island (URI) last Friday and Saturday. Both games went into extra innings--8 in the opener and 10 in the clincher.

The win not only makes MSC the Eastern regional division 2 champs, but earns them a berth in the AIAW World Series in Sacramento, CA on Thur., May 22, 1980. The Squaws will join 15 other teams in a double elimination tournament to decide who the division 2 champion is. The '80 team is the 1st softball team from MSC ever to go to the nationals.

Second baseman Judy Popadaniec started the rally that clinched the regionals for MSC. Popadaniec hit a 2 out bouncer to short and reached base safely when the 1st baseman dropped the throw. Third baseman Bonnie O'Connor stroked a triple to deep right for the game winning run—her 4th game winner in 7 tournament games. Co-captain and catcher Mary Jane Deutsch doubled O'Connor in for the insurance run.

Pitchers Val Julien (11-2) and Ronnie Gudewicz (10-2) were both outstanding. Julien limited SHU to 3 hits and allowed only 1 runner to get past 2d base. Gudewicz shut out SHU on 4 hits in the 1st game.

Game 1 was a pitching duel between Gudewicz and SHU's Carol Romano. Gudewicz retired the Bucettes in order 4 times and allowed only 3 baserunners—4 hits and a hit batter. Romano limited MSC to 2 base hits, gave up 2 walks, and retired the Squaws in order 5 times.

SHU's biggest threat came in the top of the 6th inning. Shelly Moore got a 1 out single up the middle and moved to 2d when the next batter grounded out to Gudewicz. SHU's centerfielder smashed a base hit to center and coach Kathy Unger waved Moore home. Centerfielder Terry Kulik picked up the ball quickly and threw it home. The throw was high enough to make Deutsch leap for it, but she came down in plenty of time to make the tag.

Kim Volanoski worked out a leadoff walk in the last of the 8th, advanced to 2d on a sacrifice and went to 3d on a bouncer to short. Designated hitter Terry Romanowski brought her home with a picture perfect, 1st pitch single to left for the winning run.

Although MSC out hit SHU in Saturday's clincher, 10 to 3, the Bucettes seemed to be getting all of the breaks.

MSC had taken the lead in the top of the 4th inning with a base hit by Volanoski, a sacrifice by co-captain Nancy Osley, and a double by Patti Van Cauwenberge. SHU responded in their half of the inning with a 1 out walk, a sacrifice, and a grounder to 3d that bunted off O'Connor's foot and into centerfield. That play, which was ruled an error on O'Connor, scored the run that sent the game into extra innings.

Another had break for MSC came in the top of the 9th. First baseman Osley hit a beautiful line drive to left that had extra bases written all over it. The strong winds that had been blowing in all day (due to URI's close proximity to the sea) held the ball up just long enough to make Kulik leap for it, but she came down in plenty of time to make the tag.

But wait, the strangest play is yet to come.

After scoring their 2 runs in the top of the 10th, MSC took the field to hold on for the win. SHU's leadoff batter hit a grounder too short--inches away from bouncing into Krause's glove when it hit a rock and shot completely over her and into centerfield for a base hit.

Julien got the next 2 batters to pop up, but then Krause threw the ball too high on a grounder to short and Osley had to jump to catch it. There were 2 outs and runners on 1st and 2d, but Julien rose to the occasion and got the last batter on a fly to center. Centerfielder Kulik caught the ball easily, and the Squaws went wild.