Off campus housing dilemma:

Apartment uninhabitable

by Chris Carroll

Four MSC students, who have run into problems with their off campus apartment, will not be able to depend on housing to help them if they take their case to court. The college can only offer "advisory support" on how they can approach the situation, Raymond Stover, dean of housing, said.

John Litowinsky, Rich Reber, Mike Palumbo, and Jim Green found their off campus apartment "unfit for living" when they planned to move in on Sept. 1, Litowinsky, a junior marketing management major, said.

"I couldn't believe a human being could live there," Palumbo, a sophomore broadcasting major, said.

The landlord of the Upper Montclair apartment, A.J. Sandquist, was unavailable for comment yesterday.

According to John Shearman, assistant director of housing, the college "has no legal basis" for taking action against the landlord. "We can use the threat of not listing that person's home" on the computer file of off campus apartments, he said. "We don't think this is a very strong threat," he added.

College little help

Stover said the college will "try to act as a mediator" between the students and the homeowners, but it is up to the students to take action.

The four students signed a lease for the four room apartment at the end of May. Litowinsky said. At that time people were living in the apartment and although the students "didn't look at it extensively," Litowinsky said the apartment was "liveable." When he moved into the apartment on Aug. 27, he found pieces of sheetrock strewn about the apartment, holes and cracks in the walls, and many other "bad" living conditions, he said. "There was electricity but no light bulbs," and Litowinsky was forced to spend the night in the apartment because he couldn't leave his belongings "since there were no locks on the doors," he said.

Coed sexually molested -- suspect still at large

Assault in mid-morning

A 21-year-old MSC student was allegedly molested on her way to a class before lunchtime on Sept. 11.

Celeste Tanguay, a resident of Upper Montclair, was assaulted while walking behind Freeman Hall at approximately 10:37 am last Thursday.

"I was petrified," Tanguay said, "I've been walking that way for four years." According to the campus police report, Tanguay was walking from her apartment to the campus when the assault occurred. She was walking on the sidewalk behind Freeman Hall when a male jumped from the bushes near the infirmary and attempted "with outstretched arms to embrace her," the report stated.

"He tried to grab me," Tanguay recalled.

She screamed. Although the embrace occurred, there was no contact with "intimate parts of her body," the report said.

When she screamed, the assailant backed off and said "I'm sorry," Tanguay said the assailant indicated he thought she was someone else. Starting to walk away, she looked back to see if the suspect had left, but he hadn't. She started to leave again and then noticed the suspect at her left bending over. The suspect asked her what time it was while showing her his watch, she reported.

It was then that the suspect used his left hand to grab her thigh and his right hand to reach up her skirt. Tanguay screamed again and the suspect released her. She ran up the sidewalk into Freeman Hall. She believes the suspect ran back into the bushes.

Tanguay said no one responded to her screams. Tanguay called the campus police from Freeman Hall. At campus police headquarters, Tanguay described the assailant as "pretty average looking." She said he was a white male, approximately 20 years old, medium build with dark brown hair parted in the middle. She said he was wearing blue jeans and a light blue sweatshirt at the time of the assault.

"I'm sorry," Tanguay said the assailant indicated he thought she was someone else. She screamed. Although the embrace occurred, there was no contact with "intimate parts of her body," the report said.

According to John Shearman, assistant director of housing, the college "has no legal basis" for taking action against the landlord. "We can use the threat of not listing that person's home" on the computer file of off campus apartments, he said. "We don't think this is a very strong threat," he added.

A police composite sketch was made of the assailant by the campus police and distributed around campus. According to sergeant William Horaling, in situations such as this one, the sketch is "generally sent to local towns."

Anyone with information concerning this incident or who has seen someone who resembles the sketch should contact the campus police at 201-893-5222. --Chris Carroll

(GENEVA, SWITZERLAND)
The man described as the father of modern child psychology, Jean Piaget, is dead in Geneva, Switzerland, at the age of 84. The Swiss psychologist had the nickname "Giant in the Nursery," and had written more than 30 volumes on child development.

Drought takes its toll

(TRENTON, NJ)--Rainfall and unusual summer heat have dried up Northern NJ reservoirs, taken their toll on NJ crops, and reduced crop yields in the Southern part of the state.

New hope for NJ TV station

(WASHINGTON, DC)--The house commerce committee approved legislation today that could help NJ get a VHF TV license. Although the bill was given less than a 50/50 chance of being enacted this year, NJ Congressman Andrew Maguire, the chief sponsor of the TV amendment, says he was extremely encouraged by the vote this morning.

Darkness envelops Montclair

(MONTCLAIR, NJ)--The town of Montclair was plunged into a state of emergency Tuesday afternoon after a backhoe being used to install new telephone lines along Valley Rd. accidently struck a 4,000 underground electrical cable.

According to police the explosion and fire which occurred at the site triggered off a second explosion at the Public Service Electric and Gas/PSE&G substation 100 feet away at Valley Rd. and Bloomfield Ave.

Although fire crews from Montclair had the blaze under control within an hour damage was extensive enough to black out power to more than 90 percent of Montclair as well as a portion of several surrounding towns.

Massive traffic jams resulted as traffic signals were knocked out along the main thoroughfares, and off duty police were called in to patrol the business district and help ease the construction.

Power had been restored to most of the utilities customers by early Tuesday evening although a portion of Valley Rd. remained closed to traffic in the vicinity of the explosions.

Carter ahead in poll

(WASHINGTON, DC)--President Carter is reported to be in very good spirits today. The reason: the latest polls, which show he's caught up with challenger Ronald Reagan. The New York Times/CBS news poll shows Carter leading Reagan 38 percent to 35 percent, but with the survey's three-point margin of error, the two men are in a virtual tie. That's a big jump for Carter. About a month ago, another Times CBS poll had him trailing Reagan 47 percent to 27 percent.

The latest poll shows John Anderson at 14 percent, a one point gain over the earlier survey. Anderson campaigned today in Illinois and Missouri before heading back to Washington. The President is getting ready for his Thursday afternoon news conference. Reagan is preparing for Sunday's debate with Anderson.

College officials are going to Passaic County court Monday to try to recoup over $180,000 in repairs to the Student Center.

A summary report, prepared by the architectural firm of Scenini, Shive, Spendl, and Perantoni in Somerville for the Educational Facilities Authority/EFA in Trenton, cited 13 items ranging from cracked plaster and concrete to leaks in the roof and stairwells. The report is the result of a six-week inspection which began in the fall of 1975.

The single largest repair expense was $52,150 to replace all 345 of the center's stair railings due to illness and took the course under independent study the next semester. To avoid similar incidents the college decided to review the current attendance policy.

The current policy outlined in the 1980 schedule of courses states that “Students are expected to fulfill all course requirements and although attendance is not always mandatory it may be desirable.”

In a December 1979 letter to Gawley, deputy attorney general Robert Fagella stated, “My concern is that it may appear unreasonable for a professor to refuse to allow a student to enroll in conflicting classes when the same professor is powerless to prohibit excessive class absences which are not caused by course conflicts.”

Gawley approached the faculty senate and asked them to develop a revised attendance policy, keeping in mind the recommendations made by the attorney general’s office. A revised policy was approved by the senate in May, then submitted to Gawley.

He and the academic deans council reviewed the proposal, made some recommendations, and sent it back to the senate. This revision is scheduled to be voted on during the senate meeting of Sept. 24, after which it must be approved by the NJC’s office before becoming policy.

The policy proposes that, “It is the responsibility of the student to ascertain specific attendance requirements from their instructors. Professors may penalize students failing to meet attendance requirements from their instructors. Professors may penalize students failing to meet attendance requirements from their instructors.”

and that they returned their keys so they wouldn't be blamed for any of the damages. Raber, and undeclared sophomore, thought the apartment was uninhabitable. "I've had to find a place to live. I couldn't commute because I don't have a car," he said.

Litowinsky called Sandquist on Aug. 28 and told him about the condition of the apartment. "It was told that it would be improved by Sept. 1, the commencement of our lease," he said.

When they arrived on Sept. 1, however, they found the apartment to be "in much the same condition," Litowinsky said. He demanded their security back and the lease negated, he said.

"Sandquist refused. He said he didn't know who was responsible for the damage," Litowinsky said. Sandquist allegedly said they might have their money back in a week. When Litowinsky called, however, Sandquist allegedly told him that his lawyer had advised him not to return their security.

$760 invested

By this time, all four of them had invested $190 each to secure the apartment, Palumbo said.

Litowinsky went to the Tenants Association in Montclair and asked the city to inspect the apartment, he said. At an inspection of the apartment was taken and a copy of a "paper consisting of all the infractions in the building" was given to the students, Litowinsky said.

Green, a sophomore business administration major, decided to leave the apartment earlier in the summer and Vinnie Lombardo, a junior home economics major, was going to move in with the other three students.

"When we saw it, it was in livable condition," Lombardo said. Because of its condition now, "I've been forced to sleep on the floor in a friend's house," he said.

The four students contacted a lawyer for "general advice" and spoke to Angelo Genova, the SGA attorney. Litowinsky said. "We are contemplating going to district court," he said.

Trustees install new officers

by Mary Ann D'Urso

After 13 years of dedicated service to the administration and the student body, Gerald A. LeBoff officially ended his term as chairman of the four trustees at last night's meeting. LeBoff's position has been assumed by Dr. Ernest M. May.

Dr. Robert Birenbaum was installed as a new member of the trustees. Despite earlier opposition from the American Federation of Teachers/AFT, Birenbaum installation went unprotested. Judge John J. Gavenda, of Little Falls, presided over the ceremony. Later when questioned on his new position Birenbaum stated, "Institutions like Montclair are very complex. I will do everything I possibly can to protect and strengthen this institution while properly serving it and the citizens of New Jersey." Following LeBoff's final statements, May chaired the remainder of the meeting. The board elected Gordon R. Putnum, vice chairman, and Millicent G. Ansfield, secretary. It was announced that Stephen Weiss had resigned due to his appointment by NJ governor Brendan Byrne as an administrative law judge.

The death of Walter Kops, long time associate and history professor at MSC, was respectfully remembered by Dr. James Keenan whose fondness for this "great educator" was apparent. Dean Jean Armstrong was introduced to those at the public meeting of the trustees as the new dean of students.

One of several issues raised concerned assembly bill A-1972 which, if passed, will allocate a portion of the tuition increase funds, originally designated for use within MSC, to the Tuition Aid Grant Program/TAG. MSC President, Dr. David W.D. Dickson voiced the administration's opposition to this bill. Student representative to the trustees, Ken Brown, reiterated the president's sentiments as shared by the SGA.

Brown also voiced the SGA's complaints regarding the existing attendance policy. Their chief concern lies with its vagueness. Currently a revised policy is before the senate for debate.

Brian Cige, SGA president, brought up three key objectives accomplished over the summer. They encompass the elimination of late course registration fees, the lowering of prices in the Rathskeller, and the reinstatement of the original Panzer Gym capacity by the fire marshal.

Jeanette Pinkney, MSC student, suggested implementing a major tutorial program in which advanced students could tutor other students. The board agreed and vowed to discuss it further.

Flasher sighted twice
by Chris Carroll

An incident of lewdness was reported in a parking lot on campus on Sept. 12 at 1 pm. Officer Albert Sager reported that a passing motorist told him a male was exposing his genitals in the upper portion of Lot 14. The motorist described the male as being white, approximately 40 years old, having dark brown hair, and wearing a flowered shirt. Officer Robert Williams and two other officers searched the area, but did not find the suspect. Another motorist reported seeing a male who fit the description driving a small white car.

Betty Kanterman fell in front of Sprague Library on Sept. 16 at 9:30 am and had to be taken to Mountainside Hospital. Kanterman, 56, recently had surgery on her knee. She fell when that knee buckled and she "experienced intense pain," the report stated. She was transported to Mountainside and then to St. Barnabas Hospital in Livingston, N.J. Officer Williams responded.

A report of malicious mischief in the mall in front of Sprague Library was reported on Sept. 13 by officer Anthony Ciaramella. While on foot patrol at 11:15 am, Ciaramella saw two males shaking a light pole at the Southeast corner of the building, and three other males throwing rocks at a light fixture and damaging it. All five of the males ran around the West side of the library when the officer approached. They were stopped by officers Paul Wurzel and Paul Cell. All five males were brought to campus police headquarters and the one male who had damaged the light agreed to pay for repairs.

Radial Yuker, a resident of Freeman Hall, reported the theft of a gold chain from his room on Sept. 12. Yuker suspects that a MSC housing maintenance worker may have stolen the chain. On two occasions, Yuker stated that he and his roommate saw the employee use the master key to enter their room for no apparent reason. No other property was taken from the room, the report stated.

Five juveniles were arrested on Sept. 13 for consuming alcoholic beverages in a car parked in the lot across from the Clove Rd. Apts. While on patrol at 11:15 pm, sergeant Charles Giblin observed a vehicle with five males in it. Upon approaching the vehicle, Giblin observed the suspects consuming alcohol. Giblin asked for identification and found the suspects to be 17 years old. The suspects were brought to campus police headquarters and arrested.

Cencelebration of sisters

MSC will be participating in the celebration of the 30 year sister city relationship between the towns of Montclair and Graz, Austria.

The festivities start at 11 am Sept. 22 with a seminar presented by the political science department in the Student Center Ballroom C. At 1:30 pm, Austria artist Kiki Kogelnik will introduce her silk-screen exhibit in Gallery One. At 2:30 pm in Memorial Auditorium there will be a convocation awarding honorary degrees to Alexander Ciarnik, Graz mayor, and Thomas Noworoff, Austrian counsel general of NY.

SGA funds depleted

by Debbie Reynolds

Scott Garrett, SGA treasurer, warned the SGA legislators to be "extremely cautious" when allocating funds to class organizations this year. In his treasurer's report presented to the legislature at yesterday's SGA meeting, Garrett voiced the results of the summer audit of all SGA organizations. The audit, performed by Price Waterhouse and Co. each year, costs the students $8,000.

In a view of past year's excess revenues, Garrett noted an 18 percent abundance in 1976 has decreased to one of minus 2 percent in 1980. He also stressed that the legislature will be able to allot only $26,000 this year, $20,000 less than last year's legislature had to deal with. "It's getting to the point where we're running out of money," Garrett said.

Garrett suggested that the legislature look at the SGA in more of a profit oriented frame of mind. "We should be more businesslike," Garrett said.

Sonjui Lai, director of public relations, announced that SGA Information Day will take place on Wed., Sept. 24 from 10am-2pm in the Student Center Mall. Tables are available for all class organizations to participate. Food and refreshments will be on hand for a minimal cost. SGA calendars and Sam Goody discount cards will also be distributed.

Brian Cape, SGA president, announced that as of Sept. 27, a bilingual lawyer will be available for consultation between 10am-2pm every second and fourth Saturday in the SGA Office.

Five new freshman representatives were introduced to the legislature. They are: Janet DeBella, Wayne Parker, Lynn Meuk, Josephine Scimone and Carol Lynch.

Parking prohibited

Students should be aware that there is no parking in Montclair between Normal Ave. and Mt. Hebron Rd. and between Valley Rd. and Upper Mountain Ave. from 8 am-5 pm without a special permit. The parking regulation was lifted for the last six weeks of the spring 1980 semester, but is now being strictly enforced. Only Montclair residents can obtain special permits which would allow them to park in the 'permit only' zones. Students without permits will be ticketed.

ARE YOU COMING UP SHORT AT THE END OF THE MONTH?

There's one thing that's probably common to all college students. They have to watch their finances. Here's news about some help you may be able to get.

Air Force ROTC has four, three and two-year scholarships that provide you $100 a month and cover all tuition, books and lab fees. As an AFROTC cadet, you'll enter an exciting program of Air Force instruction that prepares you for one of the most gratifying management jobs available today.

Then, as a commissioned officer in the Air Force, you'll find responsibility and challenge from your very first assignment...you'll find that people respect you for what you do best.

Consider the Air Force as one of your goals, and consider the AFROTC program as a road to that goal. If you need financial help to free your mind for your studies, find out about AFROTC scholarships today.

AIR FORCE ROTC AT MONTCLAIR STATE

Montclair State College students may enroll in Air Force ROTC at New Jersey Institute of Technology (NJIT) in Newark with no obligation. Air Force ROTC will prepare you for a challenging career in the Air Force, and you will earn an Air Force commission while going to Montclair State. Students with 3 or 4 years of college remaining may enroll in the ROTC program. The Air Force accepts students in all academic majors in ROTC. Scholarships are available for navigator and missile launch officer candidates and also for computer science, mathematics, physics, and engineering majors. Contact the Department of Aerospace Studies today for more information on Air Force ROTC. We are located in Room 210, Faculty Memorial Hall on the NJIT campus in Newark or you can call us at (201) 645-5239 or 5240.

We will be glad to tell you about the many job opportunities offered by the U.S. Air Force.
Tension not needed

The current attendance policy stating that “Students are expected to fulfill all course requirements, and although attendance is not always mandatory, it may be desirable,” must stand as is.

The forcing of students to go to class under threat of grade reduction is unnecessary and insulting in a college situation. We would think that students and faculty are intelligent enough to grasp how much class attendance is needed for each course.

At MSC a mandatory attendance policy is nothing short of absurd. Students here have chosen to pay to continue their education, and how they elect to handle themselves scholastically should be left to their own discretion.

College should be the place for the refining of one’s maturity, intellect, and sense of responsibility; not a system which encourages prolonged adolescence through the likes of a mandatory attendance policy.

Safety first

The SGA student escort service is available to all students after 10:30pm. If you need a companion before 10:30pm, ask a friend to accompany you.

Don’t leave valuables in your car. Put all of your books, tapes and anything else of worth in your trunk or leave them home, and keep your car locked at all times.

Don’t leave your purse unattended in an office, restroom, or cafeteria. Dorm students, keep your rooms locked when suspicious, we urge you to contact the campus police at 07043.

Everyone should learn and follow.

T H E M O N T C L A R I O N

State college students of NJ, you’ve been burned.

The board of higher education raised your tuition over the summer with the understanding that the increase would be used to restore funds that were cut by our beloved governor Brendan Byrne. The New Jersey Council of State Colleges/NJCSC reluctantly went along with it because they needed the money for the hard hit services, such as the libraries.

Now comes the fun part. Joseph Merlino (D-Mercer), state senate president, aghast at the discovery this past summer that the Tuition Aid Grant/TAG program overspent its budget by some $4 million, decided that a good way to raise some of the money to cover the debt is to take the funds from the tuition hike and funnel them into TAG.

In other words, state college and university students are footing the tuition bills for private, community, and yes, even out of state college students.

Isn’t it nice to know you’re putting someone through UCLA?

What’s that? You don’t think it’s fair to take our money and give it to other colleges? Neither do I. Neither does MSC president Dr. David W.D. Dickson, the American Federation of Teachers/AFT, and the NJCSC. They have all filed protests against bill A. 1972, as has the board. For once in God knows how long nearly all sectors of the entire higher educational community agree on one thing: bill A. 1972 must be stopped.

The faculty and administration have done all they can. It is our turn now. If we sit back and let this happen, half our tuition hike will go to pay someone else’s tuition. Dickson thinks that the bill is “...inflicting a burden—a kind of taxation—on our own students.”

If I remember my history correctly, one of the causes of the Revolutionary War was “No taxation without representation.” That slogan is none the worse for being two centuries old. Merlino’s bill is certainly not in the best interests of state college students. He’s not my representative. No one in the department of higher education asked him to butt in.

One of the main problems with this bill is that Merlino seems to be doing this to rack up points with the electorate. He has his heart set on running for governor next year, and to do so he will work. Those of you who would like to, however, can get the name and address of your assemblyman from the SGA office on the fourth floor of the Student Center. Letters from your parents would also help.

The SGA is in the process of investigating ways to prevent the passage of A.1972. A special committee was formed last week, and all interested students are welcome to join. All you have to do is contact me in either The Montclarion Office or the SGA Office.

One last thing: prepare yourselves for a state-wide student strike. Merlino is leaving us no other choice. Stay tuned.

Meryl Yurchish is a staff writer for The Montclarion.

Did you know that the tv monitors are working now?

“No. Since I’ve been here for only a short time, I haven’t been around to see what’s going on at the college because of my tight schedule.”

“No, but I think it’s good because I’m a broadcasting major. I also think they should be used for more than just flashing information up there. They really should expand their programming.”

Susan Zander 1984/broadcasting

“Yes, I saw it. I noticed it, but really didn’t pay much attention to it. If it gives out some information, I feel it’s worthwhile, but I don’t see anybody paying attention to it.”

Jackie Michelli 1984/undeclared

“Yes, I did. They’re good, except you have to stand there for 20 minutes to read them. They’re useful, but I don’t think it was worth the money.”

The future shaping of MSC’s goals

by Dr. David W.D. Dickson

At the beginning of each academic year the hustle and bustle can become overwhelming and altogether confusing. Particularly this fall: the clamor of new construction, the delay in the paving of parking lots, the inauguration of new academic schools, and the arrival of new senior administrators may seem at first “sound and fury,” not signifying much.

Actually, these are happy sounds and positive changes, all working toward a better physical environment; a slimmer, more coherent and vital academic structure, and a much improved pattern of general education for our undergraduates.

The ugly hole to the West of the student center now bears the orderly outlines of the foundation of the new annex. Just to its East, the octagonal first floor walls of Blanton Hall define the perimeter of the handsome new dormitory, which should be ready for occupancy perhaps by September 1981 and certainly by January 1982. Off to the Northwest the smooth terraced planes of the new playing fields prefigure the development of impressive new recreational facilities.

Now the new Schools of Humanities and Social Science and of Professional Studies are operational, and fruitful relationships among a faculty of what were once separate departments are now sprouting. Dean Philip Cohen has been installed as the new dean of the former and Dr. Nicholas Michelli as the new dean of the latter school, while Dr. Albert Rossetti is shepherding the development of the new School of Business until a permanent dean can be appointed later this academic year. The faculties of these new units are working hard at developing internal procedures and structures appropriate to present and to the exciting decade ahead.

The college welcomes some brand new leaders to its council. Dr. Jean Armstrong, formerly associate dean at Rutgers Newark has succeeded dean Blanton as dean of student affairs. And on Sept. 3 the governor approved the board of higher education’s designation of Dr. Robert Birnbaum, presently chairman of the department of higher education at Teachers College, Columbia, formerly president of the University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh, and earlier vice chancellor of the NJ department of higher education, to our board of trustees to fill the seat vacated by retiring charter member and sterling board chairman Gerald A. LeBoff. One vacancy still remains on the trustees through the resignation of Stephen G. Weiss, who has been elevated to the NJ bench as administrative law judge.

Certainly the hustle and bustle are with us, but the sound and fury represent the birth pangs of new, strong, and significant growth that will enable this college to provide the plant, the programs, and the personnel to maintain our leadership among the state colleges of the Northeast.

BSCU: programming for all MSC students

by Michael Smith

The Black Student Cooperative Union-BSCU extends a warm embrace to all MSC students. The newly elected executive board of BSCU are as follows: Michael Smith, president; Richard Shorter, executive vice president; Dorothy Foster, treasurer; Michael Fox, executive secretary; Kass Bryant, vice president of cultural affairs; and Baterie Saleem, vice president of academic affairs.

BSCU offers a great many outlet for the MSC student, such as the choir, which is headed by Rosalind Pinkney. The Kitabu, which is a collection of Black literary work, can be found in the library. Venus Darden is the coordinator for the Kitabu.

BSCU also offers a drama workshop, which will exhibit many performances, both dance and theatrical, during the fall semester. Jeanette Pinkney heads BSCU’s Public Relations Committee, and Janice Bland holds down the post of editor-in-chief of the Strive magazine. BSCU’s programming will possess a wide base, which in effect, will possibly incorporate the interest of every MSC student. The programming will be constructed from such events as dance festivals, international student forums, Black history programs, religious seminars, a Black child convention, a costume party, the Kwanza celebration and various lectures and films.

The executive board of the BSCU is always open for suggestions which will further the enlightenment of the MSC student to the true Black Culture. Also an additional greeting to all the other class organizations, and remember the BSCU door will always be open. Additional information can be obtained by attending a BSCU meeting, which are held every Tuesday at 12:30 and 7 pm in the meeting rooms on the fourth floor of the Student Center.

If you cannot make the meeting, please call 893-4346 and leave your name phone number, and special interests.

It doesn't only happen

"There I was, sitting in the office, talking to the company's service manager about how to roll a joint. I glanced up and saw a bunch of cop cars surrounding the street outside. I realized I had no business being there."

Made Godzilla look petite. He was at least seven feet tall and had to weigh 350 pounds. It would have taken three whole police departments to hold him down, not just four puny guys," she laughed.

A nutrition major, Cole is now a junior at MSC. Seated in the Student Center Cafeteria, she continued her tale. "After breaking away from the cops he started to run towards our office."

Now she stopped laughing. Her light blue eyes became pensive. "His burst into the office, grabbed Tony, a coworker, by the arm, and said, 'Get me out of here or I'll break it off.' Tony pointed to the steps leading into the lower offices and also to the back entrance."

Shivering slightly and lowering her voice, Cole said, "Then he grabbed me and demanded that I show him the way. I was petrified. I couldn't even move."

She explained in the meantime the cops had come in, but it was too late; the intruder forced her downstairs.

"Once downstairs I showed him where the door was. He pushed me aside and ran out. The cops were there waiting for him with guns drawn."

by Lori A. McDonough

I just found out that Alexander was gay when someone started ringing the doorbell furiously. Alexander is a character from Ron Jaffe's novel Class Reunion, which I was curiously reading. The someone turned out to be a policeman who was the last person I expected at 11 pm on Labor Day weekend."

Relaxing in the third floor lounge of the Student Center, senior Annie Meehan continued, "Looking back at the incident now, I can laugh, but at the time I didn't think it was funny. I was both angry because the cop was interrupting the most interesting part of the book, and also frightened because I didn't know what he wanted."

"I live with my parents in an apartment complex, and as I was running downstairs I could hear someone ringing my neighbors' doorbell also. My cautious nature kept from opening the door before I asked who it was. A gruff but nervous voice answered, 'It's the police. There's a fire in the building, and everyone must be evacuated immediately.'"

The statement was taken and typed by a detective at the police station. Consequently, the report had to be retyped and were questioning the armed robber carefully. "Once downstairs I showed him where the door was. He pushed me aside and ran out. The cops were there waiting for him with guns drawn."

"I had begun to run out the door when the policeman told me to go back inside and throw the 6 pm news too."

"I quickly ran back upstairs and threw half of my clothes in my closet on the floor until I found my robe. Then in my own moment of snappiness throughout the situation, I grabbed my checkbook and my makeup and threw it in my pocketbook. If anything bad was going to happen, I was going to look good when it did."

"I didn't have any shoes on when I got back downstairs, but it would have been too dangerous to go back. I gathered with the other neighbors who were being instructed by the firemen to move away from the building so they could extinguish the fire."

"I was going on at my house, you can be sure to find my father in the bathroom."

"I had to weight 350 pounds. It would have taken three whole police departments to hold me down, not just four puny guys," she laughed."

"I was petrified. I couldn't even move."

"Then he grabbed me and demanded that I show him the way. I was petrified. I couldn't even move."

"I'm sorry to have brought you to the police headquarters for a written statement."

The statement was taken and typed by a detective at the police station. Consequently, the report had to be retyped after the fulltime college student, part-time clerk had corrected six spelling errors.

Later, the victim was told she would be asked to make a composite picture of the armed robber. She unhappily consented and by and large, to the surprise of another detective, an extremely warm and compassionate individual who was also working on the case, theagain tan clerk proved to be a very cooperative witness. The police officer had given us, the chance of finding your robber is very good."

Admit it. Yeah you. Don't look around. I'm talking to you. And by the way, everybody knows it. They all know that you have done it before so don't try to deny it. Don't even pretend. How do you think we all know? That's simple; it's because everybody has done it. And I'll be the first to admit it, I have done it (but, please I beg of you-don't tell anyone).

You know what I'm talking about—don't you?

Example:

Scene: You walk into a store; a grocery store, clothing store, liquor store, drug store—any store (get the picture?).

Action: You choose an item, any item which you "intend" to buy.

Meanwhile: You have lots and lots of things on your mind. A paper was due two days ago; a paper is due today; five or six times. "I lucked out-today: tomorrow. You wonder if you have enough money for gas to get to where you want to go, or if you will have any money left after you get there to afford to do anything?! You wonder etc., etc., etc.

Then: You leave the store.

Question: But what has happened?

Answer: You have forgotten to pay for the item (Naughty, naughty).

Result: A guilty conscience.

Now, I'll admit it happened to me (notice that I didn't "do" it—but it "happened" to me)! It seems like only yesterday that it occurred. (It was yesterday. 14 years, three months, and four days ago—something you never forget).

When this occurs you can do one of two things—return to the store to convince the owner that it was a "mistake." But that would be stealing—or would it?

Well at first I did neither of the only two things that a person can do. I simply went off the deep end. I became paranoid and shook at the sound of every siren (be it an ambulance, fire engine or police car). "Oh no. They're coming to take me away. I will never see my family or friends again. I will never see anything but stripes and chains and sledgehammers I thought cringing.

Of course I brought back the six pack (of coke) and was rewarded a candy bar for my good and honest deed. But some things one will never forget—like forgetting to pay for something.

So if anyone of you want to face up to your duty as a good, honest person, take it back.

by Donna Cullen

"I was walking home from school one day when some guy in a car passed me. He got out of the car and showed me a piece of paper he was holding in his hand. He said, "Do you know what this is?" I didn't even think about it. At first I didn't see he had his pants opened. When I did, I panicked, but pretended I didn't notice and walked away—quickly."

Theresa, an MSC sophomore who preferred to be identified by her middle name only, continued. "He went down a side street for a minute and then drove away. I guess he pulled up his pants there."

Recalling the incident, Theresa giggled, "Now that I think of it, it was funny. But then, I was so upset and it happened on my 17th birthday."

Theresa, now 19, said this sort of thing has happened to her five or six times. "I lucked out. I was with someone most of the times," she added. "Don't worry why it always seems to happen to me," the pretty blonde complained.

"Another time, I was walking with my girlfriend on an overpass. Some man pulled his car to the side of the road. He whistled for our attention and then exposed himself," Theresa said.

"In Barnberger's, " she continued, "a guy was watching me try on bathing suits. It was one of those temporary dressing rooms, the kind with no roof, and he was fixing a light bulb."

"I told my parents and they made me file a complaint. My mother to tell her what my boyfriend did."

When asked what she thought about these people, Theresa replied, "I think they're sick. They must have a problem. My mother says they're the kind of men that rape girls."

"I suppose fires aren't all that uncommon. You read about them a lot in the newspapers, but you never dream of it happening to you. It wasn't a real crisis, thank God; no one was hurt, but it still shook me up. I wasn't able to sleep all night for fear the fire would start again, and no one would smell it. So do you know what I did?" Theresa questioned the student with a twinkle in her blue-green eyes. "I went back to Class Reunion to find out who Alexander wanted for his next lover."

Saturday in the park

by Stephen J. McLean

As a number of concerned people and rock superstar Elton John set out to prove last Saturday, truly one of NYC’s greatest treasures is Central Park. Central Park alone encompasses several lakes, walking paths, a zoo, tennis courts, baseball football fields, and playgrounds. The park also offers the chance to participate in and enjoy: road races, concerts, art exhibits, and a number of other exciting activities.

In the interest of preserving this park Elton John performed a free concert on Central Park’s 18 acre great lawn for a record breaking crowd of 400,000 fans. The concert was sponsored by Victoria Michaels, Glen Klein Jeans, WNEW fm, and the New York City Department of Parks and Recreation.

Through the sale of T-shirts and buttons an estimated $75,000 has been raised for the Parks “Keep it Green” program. With this money, plus 5 percent interest on TV and film rights, the park department plans on restoring and renovating a number of NYC’s landmarks and parks.

Elton John lends his talents to a worthy cause.

Elton John’s first day on the job is, of course, a disaster. He is dejected and verbally abused by the show’s director for his inexorable backstage. He is also befriended by the company star, Harry Crystal.

Langella is at his best—he has to be to play such a loser as Crystal with such finesse. Crystal is a veteran actor, still waiting for his big break. He is unfaltering in his hope, and dreams of Shubert Alley dance in his head.

As bread and water are to us, hopes of Broadway are to Crystal. He is a lovable, compassionate sucker. He is also a mediocre actor. The truth of the matter is: Crystal is far more successful in his personal relationships than he ever can be in his chosen profession.

The relationship established between Crystal and Shoemaker seems a bit unrealistic. What actor in his right mind would pay any attention to a lowly prop master? Throughout the movie, the relationships explored are depicted as transient, self-serving, and virtually nonexistent.

The performance in Central Park showed a marked upswing in musical quality as compared to John’s last few years of solo concerts. The music was much more lively and upbeat than previous years, comparable to that of concerts during his earlier glory of the theater. By title, it brings to the silver screen all of the elements, tribulations, and debilitating, how pathetic. By title, it brings to the silver screen all of your conventional boy meets girl—boy falls in love with girl, but boy meets theater—boy is obviously a love story. Not the elements, tribulations, and glory of the theater. By title, it brings to the silver screen all of the elements, tribulations, and debilitating, how pathetic.

As far as the future, for those who missed the concert, or even those who made it, look forward to the radio rebroadcasts of the concert and even a TV special. But best of all one can probably look forward to more free concerts and other equally fun events in NYC’s parks.

Shoemaker strikes again

by Victoria Michaels

Ah...the greasepaint, the lights, the crowds...the theater. Anything to be on the stage—anything to hear that applause night after night. The rejection; the pain. How debilitating, how pathetic. How very wonderful.

Those Lips, Those Eyes brings to the silver screen all of the elements, tribulations, and debilitating, how pathetic. How very wonderful.

The concert began at 3 pm with an opening act by singer Judie Tuzek. At 4 pm in the midst of a multicolored barrage of balloons, released from behind the stage, Elton John, sitting at a white piano and wearing one of his typical garish suits, began his three hour concert with a striking performance of Funeral for a Friend.

Working with a five member band, including Dee Murray on bass guitar, and Nigel Olson on drums, John performed a number of his greatest hits such as Benny and the Jets, Saturday Night’s Alright for Fighting, Philadelphia Freedom, and Tiny Dancer. He also did a few of his more recent hits from his 21 at 3 album, and the number Imagine by one of his close friends, John Lennon.

Changing his outfit three times, John showed off a variety of his outfit laden wardrobe ranging from a red, white, and blue, glittering jumpsuit with a red boy hat, to a yellow and white duck costume.

Shoemaker is torn. We are torn. Crystal is sure. He tells Pressman has Crystal also...
by Stephen Kantrowitz

I recently had two wonderful recitals, both of which were thoroughly impressive, and one not so impressive, recital in West Orange. On Sept. 14, Richard Hirsch and Angela Kausis, soprano, performed at the YM-YWHA of Metropolitan New Jersey. They were the winners of this 10th annual Young Artists Competition. The concert followed a reception honoring Leonard Shiman. Shiman is the cofounder of the chamber music series that the YM-YWHA sponsors. In 1943, Shiman founded the Y’s chamber series in association with Eugene Parsonner of Millburn.

Kausis is an attractive young performer who needs quite a bit of polishing before she will be ready to pursue a professional career. She has a certain amount of potential, but she is not in full control of her voice. Her range is limited, which presents her with some problems when she reaches for high notes. Her glides into the middle and lower range were quite sloppy. Her voice was pleasant to the ear, and her variance of volume was more than adequate.

She began her part of the recital with songs by My Mother Taught Me by Antonin Dvorak. I was unimpressed with Kausis’s part to perform this particular piece as her opening number. She was obviously not warmed up properly and it was reflected in her singing. At times her diction was unclear, and her tone was rather thin and weak. Towards the end of the piece, her sweet, tender voice was apparent and Dvorak's beautiful expression and sustained notes were brought out.

Worth mentioning in this third piece she sang, titled Come Read and See Me, it was written by her accompanist, Richard Hirsch. Hirsch is a fine accompanist and a modest composer. The music was fairly interesting, but the lyrics left something to be desired. I had some difficulty in understanding Kausis.

I believe she has a great deal of talent and wishes were written for the theater, but not opera songs. Wearing a flashy red dress, it would have been much better if she had worn a tuxedo. As it was, she sang music from the Broadway genre of entertainment.

The second performer, Alston, is a fine young artist with tremendous abilities. He is an exciting and talented pianist with enormous potential. He literally "stole the show" from Kausis. However, the pieces he performed were not musically balanced to give an overview of his talent. Alston is capable of unleashing tremendous bursts of energy or electricity in his playing. But he doesn't seem to be quite in control of this aspect of his playing. At times it may seem to be a surface facet when it is needed.

Another time, when it was appropriate, it meant a top point that will certainly rectify itself in the future. Alston opened by playing Polonace in F minor, op. 44 no. 3, by Fryderyk Chopin. It was an amazing piece of pure piano wizardry. It was obviously chosen to showcase Alston's talent, which it certainly did. However, I noticed a trend to impress the audience with the musical variety that they look for in their artists. Alston needed to balance his program by performing pieces that would exhibit all the facets of his musical and technical personality.

One piece that came close to doing this was Song Without Words, op. 38 no. 6, by Felix Mendelssohn. Alston handled the flowing, constantly moving, melodic lines that dominate the piece. I noticed with a great deal of emotion that gave his performance validity.

After a tremendous response from the audience, he followed his last piece with a dazzling encore. He soared through the enormously difficult piece, Liszt's La Campanella effortlessly.

Alston has a wonderful career in store for him if he recognizes and improves upon his few weaknesses. One of these that could present him with some difficulties is the way he leaves his left hand. At times it literally crashed down upon the keyboard, threatening the balance. I wish him the best and look forward to hearing him again in the future.

Alston has the talent and capability to improve upon the difficult passages.

Wild Planet

B-52's

Harmon Bros. RRK 4547

Post... want to know how you can make some easy money? All you have to do is bet with someone that you can make dance. When the sucker agrees to the bet you sit him down in front of your stereo, turn the volume up, put the new B-52's album Wild Planet on, then just wait a few seconds and collect your money.

The group which a year ago made Rock Lobsters practically a household word has just released their second record on Warner Brothers Records and this year’s model is just as good as last year’s. The group: Kate Pierson (vocals, organ), Fred Schneider (vocals), Keith Strickland (drums), Cindy Wilson (vocals, percussion) and Ricky Wilson (guitar), have indistinguishable on this cut. Ricky Wilson’s Ventures-like guitar style is most prominent on Runnin’ Back to Yesterdays a song which made a favorable impression on me last year when the group opened for The Rolling Heads in Central Park.

The two most adventurous tracks on the album are Quiche Lorraine and My Man. Quiche Lorraine is a midtempo number featuring ceric keyboard and background vocals. In the song Fred tells us about how he lost his love “a dog died dark greenout two inches tall.” Fred, it seems just lost out to a better savior: “Here comes a Great Dancer Frotting down the lanes. Quiche. Quiche come back Don’t leave me I’m insane.”

Give Me Back My Man preceded the album by a few weeks. It was the British single and as such was the first song from the album to reach my ears. The first few times I heard it I was underwhelmed by a little atypicity of the B-52’s and is definitely the most produced song the band has ever done. There are some strange percussion sounds throughout the song.

This is the type of song that people can put on and do not feel the need to be with the old problem of man stealing and Cindy wants her man back. “I’ll give you fish I’ll give you candy I’ll give you everything I have Give me back my man.” Pierson also lends vocal support, “Head’s in a whirlpool Swimming ‘round and ‘round If she don’t get her man back She’s gonna drown.”

The great thing about the B-52’s is that they have no pretentions. They are a dance band from Georgia and they know it. Unlike so many other bands who have come from humble beginnings to achieve fame the B-52’s have kept their spirit and their sense of humor.

They’re a lot of fun too. Buy Wild Planet today; it won’t let you down. My suggestion is that you start making your bets.

Jackson Browne

Hold Out

Anyone wondering what life’s uncertainties found on The Pretender. Gone too are the ballads about one night stands and life on the road found on Running on Empty. Why? Well, it seems that sometime during the last three years Browne has found love. True love. The kind of dedications are made of Hold Out even has a dedication of its own. After the customary many thanks to David Geffen on the dust cover, it says “This is for Lynne.”

Of course, some of his fans will be comforted to know that after all this time, love does indeed need a heart like Browne’s. Others will notice that in Hold Out, too. Browne makes the point that too much time spent writing about love and the struggle for the legal tender,” has since graphed with the dreams of flesh and love dancing” in his mind.

Gone are the questions about love’s uncertainties found on The Pretender. Gone too are the ballads about one night stands and life on the road. Instead of The Only Child’s “Let the disappointments pass, let the laughter fill your glass, let your illusions last until the shock, they’ve been Boulderville’s “The kids in shock up and down the block, the folks are home playing beat the clock.”

It should be noted that Boulevard, the album’s first single release, is currently climbing the top 40 charts. Many will argue that Running on Empty received just as much airplay but they lack some of Browne magic. This album contains upbeat, catchy tunes. In the song Hold Out Has the potential for at least two more releases, something which neither Running on Empty or The Pretender had.

This appeal to a pop oriented audience causes Browne to lose much of his lyrical strength. For in the past, his albums contained upbeat, catchy tunes. However, with the possible exception of Hold On Hold Out, there is nothing comparable to such older Browne classics as The Load Out, The Last Deluge, or For a Dance.

The searching, the struggle with uncertainty have all but disappeared. Browne, once the inspiration behind Phoebe Snow’s Poetry Man, no longer encourages his listeners to seek their own interpretations of life’s problems. The poetry and prose has been replaced by time-worn cliches and double meanings. The answers are given to us in the form of “Nobody rides for free,” and “Talk about celestial bodies.”

On a commercial level—putting the money where Browne’s mouth is—this album has potential. Artistically, it’s a lot better than the past couple. Apocalypse, Call it a Loan, and Boulevard will get plenty of airplay, but they lack some of Browne’s magic.

The thing to ask ourselves is not whether Browne has become a hold out. The real question is how his fans will react to this new album, whether he has simply sold out.

The NAD 3020 and 4020.

Audio Design

Phone: 744-0600
Address: 193 Bellevue Ave.
Upper Montclair, NJ 07043

In today's inflationary economy it is hard to find a good quality stereo system at a moderate price. For the very best sound you usually pay extra for high power and elaborate features. But now we can offer NAD.

NAD eliminates the frills and incorporates advanced circuitry to produce budget-priced components with state-of-the-art performance.

The NAD 3020 integrated amplifier and 4020 FM tuner, at $675 each, epitomize NAD's philosophy that good audio design need not cost any more than a poor or mediocre one. The 3020, for example, at a nominally rated 20 watts per channel drives low efficiency (and low impedance) loudspeakers as loud and clean as most of the expensive heavyweights. The results of stringent laboratory testing of the 3020 were reported in the July issue of Stereo Review. After successfully driving four sets of loudspeakers (with a combined impedance as low as 1 ohm at many frequencies), Julian Hirsch declared that even "... without knowing its power rating and price, one could well conclude that it was one of the fine amplifiers of our time." He went on to say, "Certainly its distortion, noise and other electrical characteristics could hardly be improved upon."

NAD's uncommonly rational approach to audio design is evident in the 4020 tuner, as well. No compromises whatsoever are made in the performance areas directly related to its listening quality—good sensitivity to weak signals, quieting of background noises, wide stereo separation with very low levels of audible distortion and very flat frequency responseno...
If you’re in college, now is the time for total health coverage.

Students over 19 may no longer be covered under their parent’s Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans. That’s why now is the time to apply for Student coverage—protection against health care costs at special low rates.

Apply today for this special coverage that includes Blue Cross, Blue Shield and Rider J—a most comprehensive health care package.

Complete the application and mail it to us. We'll send out membership contracts and identification cards promptly. A bill will follow—only $31.59 every three months, all inclusive.

Highlights of coverage

- This program includes three types of protection: Blue Cross Benefits, Blue Shield Benefits; and Extended Benefits—Rider J.
- Blue Cross Benefits—covers up to 120 days of eligible health services in each benefit year, including semi-private room and board, use of operating room and other facilities, medicines and supplies. These basic hospital benefits are comparable to the most widely held Blue Cross contract.
- Blue Shield Benefits—covers surgeons' and anesthesiologists' bills to the limits of the Rider J contract. In addition, Blue Shield Benefits also covers medical care beyond the limits of Rider J. This plan may be of particular interest to students who have had a previous claim for Rider J benefits and need additional coverage.

Harriers aim for national finals

by Fran Harwell

The MSC men's cross country team is once again on the move. Coach James Harris was encouraged by the team's performance during the recent weekend they spent at the Poconos. The team ran an intense workout of approximately 60 miles in three days. Harris said that most of the runners were in excellent shape.

"The goal this year is to improve on our record of last year, and to qualify for the national finals," Harris commented. The veterans who are returning to help achieve this goal are: senior captain lan Gordon; juniors Julius Munde and Steve Boyle; and sophomores Dan Wiggins, Tom Schwartz, Charlie Cilwik, and Dave Henigan.

The newcomers are: juniors George Ciloshinski, Kevin Leonard, and Jeff Holt; sophomores Frank Nelson, Peter Smith, and Peter Gethers; and freshman Lloyd Mandell.

Those interested in joining the men's cross country team may come out up until Sat., Sept. 20. The team meets at the rear of Panzer Gym everyday at 3 pm. Freshmen are especially encouraged to come.

Come out and contribute to our cross country team.

10-0 possible again

The outlook for the women's varsity cross country season for 1980 is clouded right now.

With only four returning runners, after losing their first and third scorers to graduation, MSC faces a rebuilding year.

The team will have greater balance in 1980 with stronger performances expected in larger meets where running in pack is essential for high team scoring.

The schedule has been expanded this year, opening with a strong US Military Academy team on Fri., Sept. 19.

The Squaws meet four division I schools and one division III team when they trek to Princeton University on Fri., Sept. 26.

The early start of the season this year will mean rough going in dual meets. MSC will be pointing to the state championships on Sat., Oct. 18, followed by the Eastern Association Intercollegiate championship meet at Indiana University of Pennsylvania on Fri., Oct., 31 and Sat., Nov. 1.

The Squaws expect to have a winning season, but it is always tough to follow a 10-0 season, as they had in '79.

Tribe uses long ball to rout LIU, Pace

Playing second base will be Billy Schoenig. Schoenig was drafted in the 41st round by the Cleveland Indians last June. He's been on the varsity team for two and a half years.

On the left side of the infield, at shortstop, is Mark Bujnowski, a veteran of two and a half varsity seasons. Playing the hot corner will be Bob Fortunato. Fortunato batted .384 last season, 31 RBIs, and five home runs. He made second team all New Jersey State College Athletic Conference /NJSCAC last spring, and will be starting for his third season. Glen DiLeo is a reserve infielder.

Tiberi, a power-hitting senior, will do the catching. Tiberi will be backed up by Don Rossi, a freshman from Holmdel.

Starting pitchers include Bob Buccino, a senior transfer student from Seton Hall. Aldridge, a sophomore from Pequannock; and Roger Lope, who pitched short relief work in the spring. Glen Rowe was also supposed to be a starter, but due to the fact that he's still recovering from mononucleosis he contracted in June, he'll miss the fall season but will return to pitch in the spring 1981.

Schoenig, who's been coaching baseball for four and a half years at MSC, adds one more element to the advantages of fall baseball—a mental one.

"When players play fall and spring baseball they don't feel like it's been a long time between seasons," he said. "I want to keep the intensity level up, so when we start practice for spring in January, the players will feel like their season just ended and is starting again, instead of that seven month wait you have between spring seasons," Schoenig concluded.

SMOKE SIGNALS: The Indians defeated LIU 15-12 in last Friday's season opener. In the first game of Saturday's twinbill, Pace won 8-4 on the strength of three home runs. Last spring MSC won the NJSCAC championship by defeating Ramapo in a one game playoff.

New Indians open season tomorrow night vs Mercy

by William Delorm

When the sweetie Indians take the field tomorrow night in their home opener vs Mercy College, Mercy (Sprague Field, 8 p.m.), it will mark the beginning of a new era in MSC sports.

New coaches, a dozen new players, a new winning atmosphere, and an all-around running atmosphere will enhance Sprague Field.

The '80 Indians are out to show MSC that they are winners and that they deserve the recognition that some of the other sports on campus receive.

MSC's opponent tomorrow night, Mercy, has always been a difficult team for coach Phil Santiago. During his coaching days at New York Institute of Technology, they were one of only a few teams that really outplayed his club.

Tomorrow, however, will hopefully be a different story.

"Mercy is one of the biggest games on our schedule. A victory here is a must," Santiago commented about MSC's opener.

"Every game is a big game. We must have them all if we want our team to win this season," Santiago added.

Under the lights tomorrow night, the Indians' offense will be fueled by returning veterans Marco DeFilippis, Paul Debo, Alvina Frazzaro, and Zeenon Uleczak, newcomers Tom "TC" Conners, and freshman Lori D'Astoro.

DeFilippis and Conners are two leather hanged wingers that never stop running. Both can be found during a game taking out passes from the goalkeeper, winning 30-50 balls at midfield, or making a run at the opponent's net.

Uleczak, known to his teammates as the "Pirate," possesses the hardest shot on the team. Known for his minute like yelling and bowing to distract an opponent, Uleczak's shot can be effective from as far as 30 yards.

The man with the most pure skill on the front line is Terriann. After missing most of '79 with a back injury, he hopes to be able to bring home some key goals for the Tribe.

D'Astoro, a freshman from Verona, N.J., has been nursing a thigh injury, but has shown that he can put the ball in the back of the net.

MSC's midfield will be commanded by three returnees - Joe D'Agosto, Gary Holt, and Steve Reiterberger.

D'Agosto, a native of Newark, N.J., is a deceptive dribbler who steals the ball to either wing with accuracy.

Second-year man Holt can also play fullback or winger. His superb ball control and his body in under pressure make

Squaws serve up victory

The women's tennis team made their '80 opener a success last Friday by defeating Fairleigh Dickinson University FDU, 6-3. Sue Dobosh and Mary Tuffy contributed victories in both singles and doubles to pace the Squaws.

In first singles action, Dobosh blanked FDU's ace 6-0, 6-0 in a quickly played match. Dobosh's awesome power serve was rarely returned by her opponent and rarely was she threatened with as much as a short rally.

Mary Lee DeFeo won almost as easily, knocking off Sue Chong in straight sets, 6-2, 6-0. DeFeo's philosophy of attacking the net worked to her advantage as she contemptuously caught Chong off balance and running all over the court.

Third singles was all Mary Tuffy, as her blistering overhead, baseline smashes shelled her opponent, 6-2, 6-0. Throughout the match, Tuffy laid back and waited for the time when she could ram the ball back past her less agile opponent.

Sandy Ficera's long volleys finally took their toll on FDU's final singles competitor as she was also victorious, 6-2, 6-0. Donna Spector rallied for a 6-2, 6-3 decision in MSC's final singles victory.

Dobosh and Tuffy clinched the win for the Squaws by taking the first singles match 6-2, 6-1. This worked well as a unit, switching off and running their opponents into the court.

Mary Tuffy displays form that earned her victories in both singles and doubles last Friday vs FDU.
The upcoming heavyweight fight on Oct. 2 between WBA champ Larry Holmes and three-time champ Muhammad Ali can only be described one way — who cares? Of all the boxing divisions the heavier in recent years has to be the heavyweight. There really isn't a fighter with the flair of a Sugar Ray Leonard or the talent of a Roberto Duran or a Tommy Hearns. What's Left? Well, you've got the promiscuous referee scheme. This means for a period of years you get sucked into watching dead beat fights with dead beat fighters. This includes, among others, such losers as John Tate, Mike Weaver, Jimmy Young, Scott Lea and Duane Boback. What next? The promoters, men like Don King and Bob Arum, realize the sad condition of the heavyweight division, so they wave greenbacks in front of an overweight former champ. They are counting on Ali's charisma and showmanship to excite the public and build up the gate. What they fail to understand is that Ali doesn't have it anymore. Ali ended his career with the second Spinks fight and he is only doing this fight for either money, stupid pride, or both.

It's time for fresh new blood to enter the heavyweight division. The public will always pay to see a top fight (witness the success of the Duran/Lenard fight). What the public is tired of is being blood sucked by money hungry promoters who stage worthless fights with even more worthless fighters.

EXTRA INNINGS: After completion of the indoor arena at the Meadowlands next April or May plans are being completed for the construction of a baseball stadium, the world's largest shopping center, and another Disneyland operation....After two weeks of pro football the following observations can be made: the New York Jets have let their preseason headlines go to their heads, and as a result are 0-2. The Giants, meanwhile, are a surprise and could finish the season with a 500 record.

At the end of this baseball season the New York Yankees should realize that third baseman Craig Nettles has had it. Of course, he's had a run-in with hepatitis, but let's face facts. If Yankee Stadium didn't have a 310 foot porch in right field, Nettie's home run power would be zero, or close to it. A player the Bombers should concentrate on getting is the Atlanta Braves' Bob Horner. Horner is young (23) and his future is promising. Beyond that, his hatred for the Braves owner, I'd Turner, rivals that of the Ayatollah for Jimmy Carter. Ho new wants out of Atlanta and George Steinbrenner could solidify the Yanks for years at third by getting him...Born Borg has every right to be disappointed in losing in the final of the US Open. What amazed me was the thoughts of former tennis great Don Budge and Bobby Riggs who believed Borg not to be the greatest they've seen in tennis. Come on now, they've got to be joking. Borg has won five consecutive Wimbledon singles titles and has been practically unbeatable the last couple of years. If it wasn't for John McEnroe, Borg would be untouchable. Of two thing you can be sure; when the Swede finishes serving and volleying he'll be rated as the greatest in tennis, and he'll have won at least two US Open titles. The business of sports writing can sometimes make writers look like idiots, a case in point being Jack Nicklaus and Chris Evert-Lloyd. Practically every sports writer had written these greats off. Well sports' best story is the comeback and both of these superstars did it in spectacular fashion. Nicklaus won the US Open the PGA while Evert-Lloyd won the Women's Open. So much for predictions.

Wagner shocks Tribe in opener, 12-10

Sahlin FG attempt falls at :05

by John Huegel

"We had a chance to win it...and we didn't," coach Fred Hill commented dejectedly after his Indians' 12-10 loss to Wagner College/Wagner last Friday night.

On the last possession of the game, MSC took over possession on their own 48 yard line with less than a minute remaining. However, an ensuing two point conversion attempt was incomplete.

Quarterback Joe Rebholz hit flanker Tim McMahon up the middle for a 40-yard gain. McMahon ran for four and two yards, while Bob Wojtowicz was stopped for no gain. With Mitch Pack diving down the right sideline for a first down, the ball was usually hit into the teeth of the Tribe defense. The kick would usually have been a chip shot, was rushed and sailed wide.

The key play on the drive was a 31-yard pass interference call against the MSC safety Carl Adams. The Seahawks converted on a fourth and one on the two, and also scored their touchdown on fourth down. The extra point attempt was blocked by the Tribe's Terry Potter and was good.

MSC finally got on the scoreboard with 20 seconds left to play in the first half. Vernon Hall, the Seahawks' speedy kick returner, took an Al Merusi punt, broke two tackles, and went the distance up the right sideline for a touchdown. However, an ensuing two point conversion attempt was incomplete.

The Seahawks' first score also came late in the second quarter. After an interception by safety Paul Santillo, Wagners drove 47 yards in 10 plays for the score.

Hall commented: "I liked Paul's composure," Schocnig stated. "He fell behind the line and sucked in a defender, led by the Tribe's Terry Potter and was good."

The key play on the drive was a 31 yard pass interference call against MSC safety Carl Adams. The Seahawks converted on a fourth and one on the two, and also scored their touchdown on fourth down. The extra point attempt was blocked by the Tribe's Terry Potter and was good.

MSC finally got on the scoreboard with 20 seconds left to play in the first half. After Wagner's second touchdown, the Tribe took the ensuing kickoff and marched 56 yards on four plays to set up a 25 yard field goal by Sahlin. Rebholz completed 34 yard pass to Dennis Senerchia and a 24 yarder to tight end Hubert Bond on the drive.

With 13:30 to play in the game, the Indians tallied again on a one yard scoring plunge by Horn. The key play in the drive that saw MSC go 51 yards in nine plays was a 23 yard pass play from Rebholz to McMahon. Rebholz had one of the best days of his career, completing 11 of 31 (while being intercepted twice) for a total of 215 yards. Horn carried 25 times for 86 yards including a touchdown. The brightest spot of the game centered around the receiving corps, led by Senerchia's four receptions (70 yards) and McMahon's two for 59 yards. Linebacker Sam Mills had 15 tackles for the Tribe.

The MSC football team will face East Stroudsburg State College this Sat. Sept. 20, at Sprague Field in Upper Montclair. Game time is 8 pm. "ESSC is always one of the better teams we face," coach Fred Hill commented. "Barry Kennedy (ESSC's quarterback) is someone we're going to have to reckon with, and their defense is always tough to run against," Hill added.

Kennedy has been named to the all-Pennsylvania conference team the past two seasons. Other offensive standouts for the Indians include split end Jamie Maier and tailback Sam Granteed, who scored three touchdowns in ESSC's opening 14-7 victory over C.W. Post. Linebacker Dan Geccher leads the Warriors' defensive unit.

The Indians will be hoping to bounce back from an opening 12-10 defeat at the hands of Wagner College. In that game, MSC received a strong defensive effort from all-American linebacker Sam Mills (15 tackles) and end Steve Zrowka (11 tackles). MSC quarterback Joe Rebholz had career highs of 11 completions and 215 yards against Wagner. Tailback Dennis Senerchia was on the receiving end of four of those passes for 70 yards.

ESSC has won the last five meetings between the two teams and leads in the overall series, 18-8.

Sabato, Tiberi HR's sink Pace, 5-3

by Vic Palumbo

The fall college baseball season is usually not as publicized as the spring season. In the spring there are state conference playoffs, regional tournaments, and other postseason tournaments for the teams to compete in.

In the fall, however, there are few tournaments and some players that play in the spring baseball program, don't play in fall baseball, but instead participate in fall sports such as soccer or football.

But to Norm Schoenig, fall varsity baseball coach at MSC, the program is important as a preparation for the spring campaign.

"In the fall we try to select the players who have a chance to help us in the spring and if we like to see if they can make the varsity team," the Indians' pilot said. "They (the players) are the ones who benefit from the program. The transfer students and freshman are given the opportunity to show themselves, and the returning players can improve their play for the spring," Schoenig added.

One case in point is Paul Lampert, a freshman pitcher. Lampert went the distance in the second game of last Saturday's doubleheader against Pace University Pace at Patrice Field, winning 5-3. After a rocky first inning, in which the Indian righthander gave up three runs, he settled down to blank Pace the rest of the way.

"I hit Paul's composure," Schoenig quoted. "He fell behind by three runs early, but battled the rest of the game," he noted.

Lampert received offensive support in the game from catcher Vin Tiberi, who drilled a two-run homer in a three-run second inning, and center fielder Tony Sabato's solo shot in the third.

Defensively, third baseman Steve Zrowka (11 tackles). Lampert received offensive support in the game from catcher Vin Tiberi, who drilled a two-run homer in a three-run second inning, and center fielder Tony Sabato's solo shot in the third.

Defensively, third baseman Steve Zrowka, who also had a good day at the plate—two-for-three with one RBI—was flawless. Zrowka handled seven plays and made good defensive efforts, going to his left on high-hop grounders. Additionally, centerfielder Mark Baker, a transfer student from Brookdale College, made an excellent game ending defensive play. With a man on first, two out, and the score 5-3, a line drive was hit in the left-center field gap. Baker made a diving snare, saving one run and possibly two.

"Mark's a good player. He'll push some of the varsity players," Schoenig commented.

This season's varsity infield is an experienced one with all seniors at the positions.

Starting at first base this fall will be Gene McDonald. This will be McDonald's second season at first after winning the starting role midway through last spring.
