Candidates gain little in debate

by Naedine Hazell

Although poll results following Tuesday night's debate between President Jimmy Carter and Gov. Ronald Reagan are not yet in, the consensus is that neither presidential candidate gained significantly by their appearances.

Nothing new was said by either candidate and the theatrics were kept to a minimum, some commentators feel, due to the bland content of the questions.

State coordinators for the three main presidential campaigns contacted yesterday afternoon held diverse opinions of the debate and how it will affect NJ voters.

Kathy Hall, state coordinator of the John Anderson campaign, felt the League of Women Voters, did a "great disservice to the American people," by not having Anderson take part in the debate. The debate, in her estimation, "would influence voters two ways: "People may think," after having seen the debate, "My god, they're both losers and vote for Anderson," which is what we're hoping for. On the other hand, they may feel that because he wasn't a part of the debate he is not running," which isn't true, she said. The media is not treating Anderson as a viable candidate for the presidency. She said NJ voters are traditionally independent and hopes they will continue to vote in this tradition.

Steve McManush, field director for the Reagan/Bush campaign said "We are very pleased with the debate. We feel that Reagan put a lot of people at ease last night." He felt however that it's difficult to say so soon just what the public's reaction to the debate would be. "It usually takes time to sink in," McManush said. He felt Carter was helped by not having Anderson there because the incumbent had at least one of his flanks protected. Press Secretary for the NJ Carter Mondale campaign, Jim McQueeny, said, "Reagan was a bit simplistic. He just reiterated whole segments of his standard speech." McQueeny thought the debates "would lead the electorate to consider the vagueness of Reagan's speech. He freely criticized, but never said what he would do," McQueeny charged. As to the vote in NJ, he felt since Carter is pro labor, an important issue in this state, he represented their interests. McQueeny claimed that most of the latest Eagleton polls conducted in NJ showed that of the previously undecided voters, percent were now in favor of Carter and 32 percent were favoring Reagan.

According to reports in yesterday's New York Times, Carter seemed to have a slight edge during the debates until the closing remarks when Reagan asked "Are you better off than you were four years ago?" There was more or less unemployment than there was four years ago? Is America as much respected? Throughout the debate Carter concentrated on criticizing nearly all of Reagan's points, calling them "dangerous" and "disturbing." In reference to Reagan's stand on the SALT II treaty he said, "There is a disturbing pattern in his attitude of provenor Reagan. When a man who hopes to be President says take this treaty, discard it, do not vote, do not debate, do not explore the issues, do not finally expel on this long negotiation—that is a very dangerous and disturbing thing."

College to put 'bite' in tickets

by Mike Davino

Students who have been ignoring campus parking tickets may be in for a surprise when they attempt to register this semester. Efforts are underway to prevent students who have three or more unpaid tickets from registering.

Campus police and security have shifted emphasis from municipal to campus tickets in an effort to, "keep money from fines in the college," according to Sgt. Charles Paige of the campus police.

Charles Moore, assistant director of business services, said, "We're going to step up enforcement in the future. Students who have ignored three or more tickets will probably be prevented from registering. The new policy may be in effect by the end of this semester." According to Moore, between July 1979 and July 1980, 4,669 campus parking tickets were issued. Of these, 1,723 or 39 percent were unpaid. The loss of revenue due to unpaid tickets during that period amounted to $8,615, Paige said. "We originally shifted from campus to municipal tickets because the campus tickets had no bite."

Efforts are underway to prevent students who have three or more unpaid tickets from registering.

This semester however we're again issuing more campus tickets. Around 1,000 have been issued in the past two weeks," Paige said. "We'll see how it works out. We may have to go back to municipal tickets again," he added.

"The campus tickets are issued by campus police, security, and by student aides," Paige said. "There are seven students aides who work varying hours, depending on their class schedules," Paige continued.

C campus tickets may be appealed to the Board on Transportation Affairs. BOTA, Paige said. "Students can pick up the appeal form at the Business Office. BOTA meets every Thursday to consider the appeals," Paige said. He is a member of BOTA added. Dennis Bloshuk, another BOTA member, said about 60 percent of the appeals were approved last year.

According to the parking rules printed in the Schedule of Classes booklet the fine for the first violation is $5 and for the second and third violations is $10. The fines may be paid within 10 days of the issuance at the Business Office.

Moore said, "Security is being sent computer printouts periodically to make them aware of who the repeating offenders are."
Stockton guilty of sex bias

(POMONA, NJ)—Stockton State College SSc was found guilty of sex discrimination when Dr. Jeanne-Anthel Nelson, assistant professor of French, was denied tenure in December 1979. SSc was ordered to reconsider her for reappointment conferring tenure, The Voice of Higher Education reported.

"This award is a landmark in our nation's efforts on behalf of minorities and women," Maria Antonia Lacatena, president of the NJ Council of State College Locals, American Federation of Teachers-AFT AFL-CIO who represented Nelson, said in an Oct. 13 press release. "Stockton's affirmative action policy has been grossly skewed in favor of males, and that the distribution by rank was even more gross." An arbitrator, Milton Friedman, found SSc's affirmative action policy, since its inception in 1972, was "wildly skewed in favor of males, and that the distribution by rank was even more gross." The arbitrator noted that SSc's weekly student newspaper, said Nelson took another job in Texas and that it was not known at this time if she would return to SSc.

Hostage ceremony planned

(UPPER MONTCLAIR, NJ)—On Tue., Nov. 4, a peaceful, nonreligious service commemorating a year of captivity for the US hostages in Iran will be held at noon in the Student Center Mall. Dr. David W.D. Dickson, MSC president; Brian Cage, SCA president, and Rev. Kenneth Herbst will discuss the hostage situation.

The service is organized by SCA legislators Meryl Yourish and Deanna Baron.

"It's her conclusion that the hostage matter in a larger perspective and try to understand the Iranian cult as well." Herbst added, "International events such as this should touch each of us in our everyday lives—let's see what we are not islands."
Carter favored in student poll

by Dennis Bloshuk

A recent poll conducted by The Montclarion showed President Jimmy Carter as the marginal favorite in next week's presidential election. The poll, conducted last week, shows of the 100 students interviewed, 38 percent favored Carter; 28 percent said they would vote for the independent candidate, John Anderson, and 20 percent favored the Republican candidate, Ronald Reagan. Eleven percent of the students polled said they were undecided. Between the two, Carter received 21 percent, while 16 percent were undecided.

Although considered unlikely to win the election, Anderson was actually favored over Reagan in several of the questions. Both candidates tied on the question dealing with qualities needed to handle foreign affairs, while a margin of 10 percent considered Reagan the better choice for leadership qualities.

A state coordinator for the Anderson campaign felt The Montclarion poll was atypical in terms of other college polls, "People are forgetting that Anderson is still running because the mass media has been telling people that he's no longer running," she said.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Montclarion election poll</th>
<th>If the presidential election were held today, who would you vote for?</th>
<th>Whom do you think has the best qualities for dealing with foreign affairs?</th>
<th>Whom do you think has the best qualities for dealing with domestic affairs?</th>
<th>Whom do you feel has the best leadership qualities?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Carter</td>
<td>36%</td>
<td>50%</td>
<td>41%</td>
<td>32%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reagan</td>
<td>23%</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>31%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anderson</td>
<td>28%</td>
<td>20%</td>
<td>28%</td>
<td>21%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Undecided</td>
<td>11%</td>
<td>10%</td>
<td>11%</td>
<td>16%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Vp of academic affairs:

Police charged with harassment

by Regina Brezak

Andy McCormick, SGA vice president of academic affairs, has accused two campus police officers of harassment stemming from a report he made public last semester which revealed what he considered unprofessional conduct on the part of the campus police force.

The two officers, Sgt. John Johnston and Michael Potaski, were suspended from their jobs and referred to Jayne Rich, chief of campus police, and McCormick yesterday to discuss the allegations.

McCormick's investigation, conducted and presented to the board of trustees, included Johnston and Potaski.

In recent months, McCormick encountered the officers in several unfavorable circumstances, one of which led to his car being towed from the faculty parking lot near Freeman Hall.

Johnston, a senior political science major, said after the meeting that Johnston promised to talk to McCormick if he had a chance to talk to him.

"It's a matter of professional behavior on my part," Johnston said. McCormick's complaint centered on three separate incidents that occurred last week.

McCormick explained, "As I got out of my car, flashlights were shined in my face by Potaski and Johnston. I explained I'd be right back to move my car. Officer Johnston, who recognized my face by saying 'I don't give a...who your father is, you better wise up around here,' They did not ticket my car, McCormick said. According to Rich, the officers denied using improper language.

CCM McCormick said this next encounter with the officers was on Fri., Oct. 10, at approximately 3:40 a.m. in the Clove Rd. parking lot. "I was on my way to the Primrose Diner when the officers flashed warning lights at me, so I pulled alongside their car.

Johnston asked me if I knew it was against the law to drive with one headlight. I told him that I didn't know the headlight was out, because I didn't, McCormick said. "And when the meeting was over, I came back and John said, 'There was clear indication that the officers were following regulations,' Rich said. McCormick said the officers were particularly harassing McCormick.

"No one's opinion was particularly changed as a result of the meeting," Armstrong commented. "The meeting allowed for the grievances to be aired and gave an opportunity for the parties involved to begin with a clean slate.

SGA addresses Chi Alpha charter

by Mary Ann D'Urso

Last night the Constitutional Review Committee of the SGA scheduled an emergency meeting for Monday to recommend changes to the charter of Chi Alpha, a campus religious organization that has been the subject of controversy for the past two weeks.

Chi Alpha, a nondenominational religious group chartered by the SGA, was brought under review after an MSC student complained that Chi Alpha's policy was not being policed. The suit would have involved the law of separation of church and state, and would have been heard before Nov. 5, the next SGA meeting.

In a press release, the Anti-Defamation League/ADL of B'nai B'rith reported that "The encroachment of religious organizations into public institutions, and the willingness of judges to accommodate perceived community desires even though constitutional principles may be eroded in the process.

When asked if the ADL believed religious organizations should be kept out of state property, i.e. public schools, Jeffrey Maas, NJ director for the ADL, said the league believes there should be strict separation of church and state. He said, "The constitution safeguards against the abuse of public property where public funds are used for sectarian purposes.

He went on to say the state constitution, which is incorporated with federal law, safeguards the separation of church and state and should also be adhered to.

Steve Esparza, a Chi Alpha chaplain, said "I think that religious organizations have every right in the world to be on campus. I don't see why everyone has trouble tolerating things that professors say today, which might not have been accepted ten years ago, are easily accepted today, when so many other things are tolerated. For example things that professors say today which might not have been accepted ten years ago are easily accepted today. People are open minded toward the gay community and toward premarital sex. I don't understand why they are not open to Christians."
Confusion over the meaning of the word "cj." in blueprints for the construction of the Student Center resulted in faulty construction. That's the latest development in a case that MSC's $182,000 lawsuit with the center's contractor and architect continues.

In the blueprints drawn up by the architect, Charles Luckman of Los Angeles, CA, the letters "cj." were written on bricks to be placed in the center mall. The architect intended the abbreviation to mean contraction joints—joints that would permit contraction or expansion due to temperature changes. The contractor, the Thomas Construction Co. of Wayne, thought the letters stood for construction joints, a term used to divide the workload into portions. The confusion caused the construction joints not to be installed, resulting in loose bricks, leaks in the center walls, and loose aluminum posts, among other faults.

(The confusion cost MSC $52,130 to replace the loose bricks. $18,888 to repair provide fraud, $72,800 to repair leaks, plus $83,162 in other repairs and expenses, totaling $182,000.)

"The contractor is blaming the architect, and the architect is blaming the contractor," Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning, said. Because of the confusion behind "cj." MSC had to pay $182,000 to repair 15 faults in the center last spring, he said.

MSC is suing the architect, Luckman, and the contractor, Thomas. The Educational Facilities Authority/EFA is available for an $8 charge.

Although the connection between toxic shock and tampons has been established, the evidence is still somewhat fuzzy. The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, GA is conducting tests to determine more substantial data. What they do know now is that toxic shock is caused by staphylococcus aureus, a bacterium which secretes a toxin that gets into the bloodstream and causes the symptoms. What they are attempting to determine is if tampons contain anything which might enhance the growth of this bacterium.

Until more definite conclusions are available to the public, several actions have been taken to keep the situation under control. Store managers have removed all tampons--the brand linked most to toxic shock—from their shelves. The Food and Drug Administration/FDA has decided to require a label on all tampons warning that a link has been established between these tampons and toxic shock.

The Los Angeles Times also reported that "Women can almost entirely eliminate the risk of toxic shock by not using tampons." Should they choose not to change their personal habits, it might be wise to use tampons for only a part of their period, Quinn said.

According to statistics from the Los Angeles Times, "There have been 408 cases reported with 49 deaths. The incidence varies from region to region, according to how effective the region's surveillance is. Although the connection between toxic shock and tampons has been established, the evidence is still somewhat fuzzy. The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, GA is conducting tests to determine more substantial data. What they do know now is that toxic shock is caused by staphylococcus aureus, a bacterium which secretes a toxin that gets into the bloodstream and causes the symptoms. What they are attempting to determine is if tampons contain anything which might enhance the growth of this bacterium. Until more definite conclusions are available to the public, several actions have been taken to keep the situation under control. Store managers have removed all tampons—the brand linked most to toxic shock—from their shelves. The Food and Drug Administration/FDA has decided to require a label on all tampons warning that a link has been established between these tampons and toxic shock.

The Los Angeles Times also reported that "Women can almost entirely eliminate the risk of toxic shock by not using tampons." Should they choose not to change their personal habits, it might be wise to use tampons for only a part of their period, Quinn said. Currently, there are very similar to those of the fluids, high fever, vomiting, and diarrhea. A rash and peeling of the skin about 10 days after onset.

According to statistics from the Los Angeles Times, "There have been 408 cases reported with 49 deaths. The incidence varies from region to region, according to how effective the region's surveillance is. Although the connection between toxic shock and tampons has been established, the evidence is still somewhat fuzzy. The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, GA is conducting tests to determine more substantial data. What they do know now is that toxic shock is caused by staphylococcus aureus, a bacterium which secretes a toxin that gets into the bloodstream and causes the symptoms. What they are attempting to determine is if tampons contain anything which might enhance the growth of this bacterium. Until more definite conclusions are available to the public, several actions have been taken to keep the situation under control. Store managers have removed all tampons—the brand linked most to toxic shock—from their shelves. The Food and Drug Administration/FDA has decided to require a label on all tampons warning that a link has been established between these tampons and toxic shock.

The Los Angeles Times also reported that "Women can almost entirely eliminate the risk of toxic shock by not using tampons." Should they choose not to change their personal habits, it might be wise to use tampons for only a part of their period, Quinn said. Currently, there are very similar to those of the fluids, high fever, vomiting, and diarrhea. A rash and peeling of the skin about 10 days after onset.

According to statistics from the Los Angeles Times, "There have been 408 cases reported with 49 deaths. The incidence varies from region to region, according to how effective the region's surveillance is. Although the connection between toxic shock and tampons has been established, the evidence is still somewhat fuzzy. The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, GA is conducting tests to determine more substantial data. What they do know now is that toxic shock is caused by staphylococcus aureus, a bacterium which secretes a toxin that gets into the bloodstream and causes the symptoms. What they are attempting to determine is if tampons contain anything which might enhance the growth of this bacterium. Until more definite conclusions are available to the public, several actions have been taken to keep the situation under control. Store managers have removed all tampons—the brand linked most to toxic shock—from their shelves. The Food and Drug Administration/FDA has decided to require a label on all tampons warning that a link has been established between these tampons and toxic shock.

The Los Angeles Times also reported that "Women can almost entirely eliminate the risk of toxic shock by not using tampons." Should they choose not to change their personal habits, it might be wise to use tampons for only a part of their period, Quinn said. Currently, there are very similar to those of the fluids, high fever, vomiting, and diarrhea. A rash and peeling of the skin about 10 days after onset.

According to statistics from the Los Angeles Times, "There have been 408 cases reported with 49 deaths. The incidence varies from region to region, according to how effective the region's surveillance is. Although the connection between toxic shock and tampons has been established, the evidence is still somewhat fuzzy. The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, GA is conducting tests to determine more substantial data. What they do know now is that toxic shock is caused by staphylococcus aureus, a bacterium which secretes a toxin that gets into the bloodstream and causes the symptoms. What they are attempting to determine is if tampons contain anything which might enhance the growth of this bacterium. Until more definite conclusions are available to the public, several actions have been taken to keep the situation under control. Store managers have removed all tampons—the brand linked most to toxic shock—from their shelves. The Food and Drug Administration/FDA has decided to require a label on all tampons warning that a link has been established between these tampons and toxic shock.

The Los Angeles Times also reported that "Women can almost entirely eliminate the risk of toxic shock by not using tampons." Should they choose not to change their personal habits, it might be wise to use tampons for only a part of their period, Quinn said. Currently, there are very similar to those of the fluids, high fever, vomiting, and diarrhea. A rash and peeling of the skin about 10 days after onset.
Ex-custodian threatens supervisor

by Chris Carroll

A former custodian in the Student Center allegedly threatened the supervisor of student center personnel during a telephone conversation on Oct. 24, according to officer Robert Williams. The custodian had been fired on Sept. 15 for "excessive absenteeism and insubordination" and had complained to his supervisor of his troubles with unemployment, Williams said. In the telephone conversation, the custodian allegedly said, "I'm going to get you," Williams said. No charges have been brought against the custodian, but he has been warned of his actions, Williams said.

A report of a suspicious person in Panzer Gym was filed by a graduate assistant on Oct. 21 at 8:02 pm. Officer Charles Jones spoke with the assistant, who said she saw a person, who she believed was a male, standing behind a shower curtain. The assistant told the person he was in the wrong area of the gym; then she left the area. The lifeguard on duty was notified, and the area was checked. No one was found in the area, the report stated.

Two thefts occurred on the fourth floor of the Student Center between 5:40 and 6:30 pm on Oct. 20. The first theft occurred sometime after a member of Players left the Class I Organization's office. When the president of Players returned to the office, he found a typewriter and an adding machine missing. Officer James Fassnacht responded. Officer Debra Newcombe was dispatched to the center that afternoon and returned to the office, he found a typewriter and an adding machine missing. Officer James Fassnacht responded. Officer Debra Newcombe was dispatched to the center that afternoon and returned to the office, he found a typewriter and an adding machine missing. A member of the Class I Organization's office was notified, and the area was checked. No one was found in the area, the report stated.

A report of a suspicious person was filed by a graduate assistant on Oct. 21 at 8:02 pm. Officer Charles Jones spoke with the assistant, who said she saw a person, who she believed was a male, standing behind a shower curtain. The assistant told the person he was in the wrong area of the gym; then she left the area. The lifeguard on duty was notified, and the area was checked. No one was found in the area, the report stated.

Two thefts occurred on the fourth floor of the Student Center between 5:40 and 6:30 pm on Oct. 20. The first theft occurred sometime after a member of Players left the Class I Organization's office. When the president of Players returned to the office, he found a typewriter and an adding machine missing. Officer James Fassnacht responded. Officer Debra Newcombe was dispatched to the center that afternoon and returned to the office, he found a typewriter and an adding machine missing. A member of the Class I Organization's office was notified, and the area was checked. No one was found in the area, the report stated.
PARKING LOT--OR A COLLEGE?

Commuters have cars, some 8200 with decals. MSC has parking spaces, some 4400. Campus police have tickets, some 1000 in the last two weeks. And course booklets and registration forms go hand in hand. You wonder how it all ties together--simple. The administration is considering banning registration for those students who have three or more parking tickets. The move is intended to inhibit the creative Parker, the one who stops due to frustration and fatigue and refuses to find two painted white lines.

This possible move by the administration will not work. The college is obligated to provide parking spaces for all decals. When the institution does not meet its responsibility, how can anything less than angry students be expected?

MSC is allegedly an institution of higher education. The administration is turning its back on the very principles of its existence should this plan be adopted. How can a learning facility deny its body food for thought? An empty classroom is no place to learn. Does the backbone of MSC lie in parking lots or ticket happy police?

MSC is a commuter college. Parking is a very real problem for the majority of the student body. Students cannot be expected to pay for the problems of a construction happy campus. Students did not create the parking dilemma on this campus. Being locked out of classes is a high cost for not paying a parking ticket written out in very absurd conditions.

Parking in the pits has become a jungle. Commuters hunt and peck, creep and crawl, accelerate and brake all in the hopes of finding a parking space.

Why should students buy decals for nonexistent parking spots? Why should students pay for tickets they receive when they have to make their own parking areas because the administration cannot provide such areas?

The administration cutting off the education of its students is like the child who says it’s my toy and you can’t have it. Does the backbone of MSC lie in the hopes of finding a parking space?

Does the backbone of MSC lie in the student body? In the end does education mean playing the parking game?

What if we had registration and no body came?

“Now, I won’t do it. I’ve been trying to avoid it for weeks. I will not do it, Nora.”

“You’ve got to do it. It’s your civic duty. You just can’t ignore it and hope it will go away.”

“I just watch me.”

“You have to write about the election.”

“What election?”

“I’ll forget you just said that.”

“And I’ll forget what you just said. Why can’t I just write about the parking problem?” Nora said.

“Meryl, nobody wants to hear about the parking problem,” Nora said.

“The administration wants to hear about the election, either. One-third of this nation is still undecided. If the election were held today, ‘None of the Above’ would win it hands down.”

“None, just look at the choices we have. A peanut farmer, a retired actor, and a congressman. Translated, that’s four more years like the last four, ‘Bedtime for Bonzo’d cost, or—well, you’ve read all about Abscam, I presume.”

“You can’t judge people by their former occupations. As I recall, you were washing dogs three years ago,” Nora said.

“Bathtime,” I corrected. “Not washing, I was a dog barher. Besides, I only held that job for a month.”

“What happened? Were you all washed up?” she asked, breaking into hysterical laughter.

“Funny, Nora. You ought to write a humor column or something. Wit like that shouldn’t be wasted.”

“You’re getting nasty lately. Are you still upset that you didn’t get the Pulitzer last year?”

“I knew I didn’t have a chance,” I lied. “I just said that to see if you were awake. I just can’t believe they gave it to Mailer! He couldn’t write his way out of a Hemingway novel.”

“You’re changing the subject,” Nora said. “What about the election column?”

“I don’t like serious columns! And neither do my readers. Don’t you realize that I was serious for nearly two whole weeks during the strike? I almost lost my sense of humor!”

“Almost!”

“You don’t wish it, Nor. I made you, and I can break you,” I snarled.

“You still haven’t discussed the election.”

“What do you want me to say?” I screamed. “I feel like we’re choosing between Woop, woop, woop or sticks his finger in your eye or has curley hair.”

“Now look, Meryl, I think you’re going a bit too far. None of them have curley hair.”

“Do you realize no one even knows what color Reagan’s hair really is? Or even if it’s all his.”

“Who cares?”

“Exactly!” I cried. “Who cares? I will read the papers, and I will listen to the debates, and I will definitely vote, but I will not write a column about Huey, Dewey, and Louise. Phill’s doing an excellent job tearing each of them apart. Let him do it. I refuse.”

“OK, OK, I get the message,” Nora said. “Let’s change the subject. What did you think of the American League playoffs?”

“I gave Nora one of the evilist looks I had ever given in my life, and slowly poured her pitcher of hot water over her head. She had had enough.”

Meryl Yorush is a staff writer for The Montclarion.
Carter chosen hands down
by Georgia Panagakos and Phil Lanoue

Who do you think you’ll vote for in the upcoming presidential election?

"I'm voting for Johnson because I don't believe in voting for the lesser of two evils. I believe the Anderson can do the job and it is very unfortunate that not too many people feel the way I do." — Mike Tropeano

"I'm voting for Carter because I don't believe in voting for the lesser of two evils. I believe the Anderson can do the job and it is very unfortunate that not too many people feel the way I do." — Cathy Lauer

"My vote is going to Carter because I think that he has gained a lot of experience in his four year term. Also, because he believes in peace and in helping the common man." — John Zor

"I'm voting for Reagan because President Carter has shown a lot of weakness in his dealings with foreign affairs." — Steven McQueen

"I'm voting for Carter because he has the experience of four years, and so he can finish what he has already started." — Shirley Arpin

Guest Spot

Karali's column questioned
by Mike Sinatra

Obviously, The Montclarion columnist Phil Karali has had little experience on an extracurricular basis, otherwise he would not have written such a trite and trivial column on President Jimmy Carter for the Oct. 2 issue of The Montclarion. Karali did not bother to examine the truly relevant factors of this election, namely the stands of individual candidates and their parties on key issues. Instead, he chose to deliver a rather halfbaked rabble punch at the image of Carter. I am writing this rebuttal because I believe it is necessary to bring Karali out of the clouds and reveal to him the true nature of US politics.

First of all, Karali alleges that Carter's 'misused political power' has had a harmful impact on his major opponents during this campaign. Politics is a rough game, Karali; you do not get penalized for hitting your opponent from the blind side, or for stealing his 'Get out of jail free' cards. Any possible advantage must be seized, quickly and decisively, by a candidate. Besides, the scheduling of an optimistic news conference on the day of a primary hardly constitutes 'misuse of political power.' — Richard Nixon endorsing Ronald Reagan, was the true epitome of a president misusing his power, and no one with any political acumen at all would even remotely consider Carter's actions analogous to Nixon's. Carter's stress on Chappaquiddick and his emphasis on Reagan's ultraconservative (yes, nearly racist) background demonstrates a shrewd, incisive, politically sharp mind, and not the haphazard rambling of an inept candidate attempting to disguise a less than sparkling career behind a flurry of political counterpunching, la Reagan.

Instead take offense to some of Karali's alleged 'facts' pertaining to the Carter campaign. First, the 'faithful delegate' rule, which bound each delegate elected in state primaries to the candidate chosen by the voters, had been enacted in every Democratic Party convention since the institution of the primary reform laws in the early part of this century. Such a rule is essential to a democratic process because it gives the average voter, not a convention delegate or a backroom party boss, the power of candidate selection. Karali attempted to portray this standard procedure as a Carter ploy concocted out of fear of Senator Edward Kennedy's delegate strength.

Second, a presidential debate is supposed to be a one-on-one exchange of personal and party ideas conducted in a formal, organized manner. John Anderson, a selfstyled Republican, does not deserve a place in a presidential debate. His presence in a debate with Carter and Reagan would only succeed in creating a three-ring circus, which would cause enough chaos to thoroughly confuse anyone attempting to acquire a clear understanding of the differences between the candidates.

Third, the attempted rescue of the hostages in Iran was a cold, levelheaded decision made on the Oval Office when Carter perceived that rising public opinion in the US demanded some type of action to break the stalemate. That the attempt failed is tragic, but to call the rescue mission an 'act of aggression' is a distortion of reality.

Fourth, Karali attacked the release of information pertaining to the Stealth, or invisible bomber, as a political move designed to deflect criticism away from his defense policy. There is no doubt that the leak of information was intentional; however, considering that technology of this sort has been in use for at least 10 years, a leak of some general information is not as earthshattering as Karali would have us believe. The reason why the leak occurred now is quite obvious. Reagan has been portraying himself as a 'man of action' and has been saying over and over again that he, unlike Carter, is a man of integrity or if he is just doing anything to win. My response would be that Carter is certainly a man of integrity, who is doing everything necessary to win in November.

Reagan may rant and rave, and Anderson may insist that third party candidates espousing $.50 a gallon gasoline taxes could win, but the shrewd, honest and intelligent political talents of Carter should prevail on Nov. 4.

Mike Sinatra is a junior political science major.

Point of information

Winter housing made possible in Freeman
by Brian Cige

An opportunity not available to MSC students for the past several years will be an option for many during this winter session period. That option is housing in Freeman Hall.

I initiated the idea not only for those who need an extra three credits to graduate, but also for those who find commuting too expensive, if not impossible, and for those who have not yet experienced dorm living.

Furthermore, athletes need to be here to train for their winter sports, students have to be here to rehearse for school plays, and foreign/indienational students either can’t make it home, or don’t have a home to make it to.

Many students have to consider their employment. On campus, jobs continue, and, more importantly, it is very difficult to take a month’s leave of absence from an off campus job. We should make every possible attempt to help students earn their salary when it helps them pay their way through college.

The cost for this program will lessen with the number of participants. Of primary importance is that the room, board, and tuition are covered for those who qualify for financial aid.

Meal tickets guarantee a hot lunch and dinner five days a week. Costs may seem high, but the overhead varies little in preparing food for 100 or 600 students. The room will cost less than $35 a week. Look for more information in the Housing Office, fourth floor, Bohn Hall, or contact John Shearman, assistant director of housing at (893-5252).

Take advantage of this opportunity. Applications are available now through October 31. Contact Shearman if your interest arises after the deadline. Good luck and thanks.

Brian Cige is SGA president.
Between the lines/ Phill Karali

TV: impact that makes or breaks a presidential candidate

With the recent debate in Cleveland, on Tuesday night, the question arises of the impact that TV can have on a presidential election. From the 1960 election until the present, TV has aided or hindered candidates for the presidency. A closer examination shows the tremendous impact that it actually has.

The history of TV and presidential elections goes back to 1948, but its power was felt beginning with the 1960 election. It was then John F. Kennedy took advantage of this electronic media to overcome Richard M. Nixon. Although many who listened on radio felt Nixon had “won” the debates, Kennedy’s appearance and confidence convinced the country to vote for him.

President Lyndon B. Johnson was affected by TV in a negative fashion, for the graphic pictures of the war in Vietnam were his apocalypse politically. It is ironic to note that Johnson had three sets in the Oval Office, so that he could watch all three network news programs.

Nixon also felt the power of the tube, both positively and negatively. The pictures from his 1972 trip to China portrayed him as a grand leader of the Western world. But his pitiful face across the screen Aug. 8, 1974 proved in the end that it did him in. The nation was reminded constantly of his political mistake through the Watergate hearings broadcasts, and the constant reports on the news for over a year.

The 1976 election produced the Eastern Europe gaffe of President Gerald R. Ford in a television debate. (“I don’t consider Eastern Europe as a Soviet sphere of influence.”) This mistake was crucial, and many considered it to be a major reason that Ford lost.

The 1980 presidential election has shown how the political campaigners have used TV as an accessible and cheap way to get exposure. Thus, the campaign strategists have their candidates hold rallies around noon or 1 pm so they will appear on the local news and possibly national news that night.

TV also lends credibility to a candidate, whether it be advertisements or reports on his campaign. Because of this, John Anderson, Ed Clark, and Barry Commoner, as well as the other candidates, lack credibility, a crucial element in an election. Yet, although a commercial may be superficial and not quite address the issues, the more commercials a candidate has aired, the better off he is. Of course, an incumbent running has the biggest advantage, for he can also call a press conference, which is almost guaranteed publicity.

Important conclusions can be drawn from the argument presented. One is that everything in a campaign revolves around the coverage that can be obtained, for every rally is staged for TV. The other unfortunate conclusion, in this writer’s opinion, is that TV has more impact on people than newspapers. But the most important idea is that TV’s power can not be equaled in determining an election, for it can either make or break a candidate.

Phill Karali is a columnist for The Montclarion.

Latin Insights

LASO symbolizes brotherhood and pride

by Barbara Bonilla

The Latin American Student Organization/LASO symbolizes the brotherhood among Latin American students. Our goal is to make known the cultural roots of all the MSC Hispanics by having dances, films, speakers, lectures, concerts, art exhibits, and plays.

During the next two weeks (Oct. 27-Nov. 7), LASO will be sponsoring a clothing drive for the recent Cuban refugees in this country. LASO will be collecting clothing for them; especially needed are winter clothing and blankets, socks, shoes, gloves, jackets and or coats, and anything warm you can contribute to help these people out in these harsh winter months of NJ. Collection areas will be at LASO, fourth floor of the Student Center and Dr. Enghbert, professor Janet Saitz, on the fourth floor of Partridge Hall. We would greatly appreciate your donations.

We invite you to join our organization and cooperate in our goal; if you are Latin—cooperate, if you are not—unite.

Barbara Bonilla is vice president of LASO.
CLUB Presents: The Montclair State College

WINTER BALL "1980"

Time: 8pm to 1am
Date: December 4, 1980
Price: $36. per couple

Place: Grand Ballroom,
The Cameo Lounge,

Cocktail Hour: 8-9pm Garfield, N.J. and then continuously until 1am

Music: The famous "Frank Bennett Orchestra"

Bids go on sale on Thursday
November 6th from 8am until 12pm in the Student Center Ballrooms...
WHILE THEY LAST!!!

COME CELEBRATE THE END OF THE FALL SEMESTER!!!

Under the laws of the State of New Jersey, students and their guests who are under 19 years of age are prohibited from drinking Alcoholic Beverages. Bid purchasers are responsible for guests as well as themselves regarding these laws.

A CLASS ONE ORGANIZATION OF YOUR SGA
The 1980 presidential election is drawing nearer and nearer. For many students, this is the first presidential election they are eligible to vote in. To find out what the students are thinking, we interviewed a group of them and discovered positive as well as negative reactions to the three main candidates and their campaigns.

by Linda Martelli

"Reagan is a responsible candidate, and I believe he will do a good job as president. The people in the US need a change. I like Reagan's defense policy. Our country must maintain certain standards and try to keep our defense up to that of the USSR. He also has good ideas on SALT II that I agree on."

Iida Bruno, a political science major at MSC, continued, "I am interested in politics and am working on the campaign in my hometown of Westwood. When I entered college I was a history major and changed to political science after taking a course in politics. I was not interested in politics before I was able to vote. After reading literature on both of the candidates, I decided to back up Reagan. I wanted to know more about the campaign and the candidates, so I am working on the election."

Because of his interest in politics, Bruno gives up her free time and puts aside her studies to help out the campaign of the candidate of her choice. "I like talking to people and trying to persuade them to vote for the best candidate," Bruno added.

Dressed in a white ruffled blouse, Bruno continued, "Reagan has made his ideas very clear. He pointed out the problems in government and will stick by what he says. Reagan tries to show the American people what past faults have been made. A president should be a good representative to the country it represents. Carter is a weak man, and therefore the country appears weak. The hostages have been in Iran for one year, and Carter is still not doing anything about the situation. It's possible that Carter will release the hostages now in order to get re-elected. I only hope that the people will realize why he is trying harder now."

Her views on Anderson are that most people will vote for him because they are not sure of the Democratic party or Republican parties. The party system is not trusted by the majority of people, she added.

"We need a strong president. The Republican Party is what we need to represent our country. Carter does not deserve another try. The only way things get done is if a Republican is in office. The strong sense of responsibility of the Republicans can help our country stay strong," Bruno added with a concerned look on her face.

Bruno ended with, "I am enjoying working on the campaign and believe Reagan has a good chance of winning. Many people are wrapped up in their own lives and don't get involved in elections. They should realize that who is running their country does involve them. I enjoy making people aware of their candidates. Carter has done this country wrong because he hides many things from the people. I think Reagan is capable of restoring faith in the American people, and I am behind him all the way."

by Barbara Spalitta

"I always say that we should leave well enough alone, and I think Carter is doing a pretty good job of running our country," Kelly, a 19-year-old sophomore, said very matter-of-factly.

"For some reason, I trust him. There aren't any specific occurrences which I could point out, so I just say that it's a gut feeling I have about Carter. And when I'm really not sure about something, I just follow my instincs," the brunette said, shaking her head.

"At first I didn't even register to vote. I figured that it didn't matter. I thought that my vote wouldn't make a difference—so why bother? Right? I felt that the rest of the world should be able to make the right decision about a presidential candidate without me. Then all of a sudden it hit me. I realized that our country—was in a lot of trouble and at any moment it could get worse, so I began to pay attention to the candidates and the issues."

"At the beginning of the campaign I was very confused and possibly even leaning toward Reagan. But Reagan took care of that very quickly by selecting George Bush as his running mate. Bush seems to have such a commanding and arrogant air about him that you can't help but believe him. Reagan took care of that very quickly by selecting George Bush as his running mate. Bush seems to have such a commanding and arrogant air about him that you can't help but believe him."

"I honestly feel that Carter is doing a decent job, and I'll stick with him and hope that he wins. Either way the vote goes, I hope our next president will have the power and courage to keep the US safe and allow each and every one of us to be proud of our country," Kelly said as she took a deep breath.

by Carla Zarro

"It's all the way with Carter again," Kathy Marone shouted.

"I believe President Carter has proven himself to the American people. He hasn't backed down and apologized to the Iranians to get our hostages released. That's the way to do it. We have to show the rest of the world that we are still number one, the new 5-foot 2-inch sophomore said, emphasizing the point.

"I'm not worried about the party being a disaster. Carter will beat Reagan. Everyone must know by now that Reagan is for war. When he gets into office he'll be shipping our boys— including my boyfriend—off to some foreign country. People have to realize this and vote for Carter."

"This is all volunteer work and I love it. On election day I will be down at the polls handing out fliers and encouraging people to vote for Carter," the pretty brunette said, as her brown eyes lit up in the afternoon sun.

"I don't see an end to the situation, Toledo, a junior at Toledo continued, "What are you going to do? Reagan and Carter are just like two sides of the same coin."

"Who do you think is going to win the election?"

"I'm not sure, but I know that we'll be voting in 1980. I'll probably vote for Carter too."

"How do you feel about the election this year?"

"I feel that it's very important that we vote. We need a strong leader to bring the country back to where it was before."

"I hope that the election will be a turning point for the country. The people who are in office now are not doing a good job. They need to be replaced."

"I don't see an end to the situation, Toledo continued, "What are you going to do? Reagan and Carter are just like two sides of the same coin."

"Who do you think is going to win the election?"

"I'm not sure, but I know that we'll be voting in 1980. I'll probably vote for Carter too."

"How do you feel about the election this year?"

"I feel that it's very important that we vote. We need a strong leader to bring the country back to where it was before."

"I hope that the election will be a turning point for the country. The people who are in office now are not doing a good job. They need to be replaced."

Toledo, a junior at Toledo continued, "What are you going to do? Reagan and Carter are just like two sides of the same coin."

"Who do you think is going to win the election?"

"I'm not sure, but I know that we'll be voting in 1980. I'll probably vote for Carter too."

"How do you feel about the election this year?"

"I feel that it's very important that we vote. We need a strong leader to bring the country back to where it was before."

"I hope that the election will be a turning point for the country. The people who are in office now are not doing a good job. They need to be replaced."
in a balanced constitutional leadership. And with society open to women on an equal basis with men.

CARTER

Pledges to attack the recession with a $12 billion job program, a $1 billion railroad renewal program to create jobs.

Calls for targeted cuts to stimulate job creation and business growth. Personal tax cuts would be weighted to help low and middle income families.

Believes in policy of equal rights in countries all over the world, maintains strong but stable defense.

Supports the rights of states to turn down the location of waste storage sites and would phase out nuclear plants as soon as alternate sources are available.

Commits itself to a constitution, economy and society open to women on an equal basis with men.

Voting does count; at least, John Stouter and Cheryl Rose agreed it does. And both will vote next month because of their belief.

"Someone has to get involved; hopefully those in college-those who are educated-can make a better choice," Stouter said. He added that voting "can eventually help.

Rose's fear of dictatorship was her main reason for voting. "If anything, they're letting other people make decisions for them. We could just as well have a king for a ruler," she said.

Stouter said he's an independent—"I voted for Bill Bradley and Gerald Ford, a republican." Rose said she's not declared but leans toward the Democratic party. Both are senior English majors, and both are not voting for Reagan.

"I'm voting for Anderson," Stouter said. "I'm leaning toward an antivote."

According to Stouter, if Anderson gets enough votes, it might make the other candidates realize that they are not representing the people. "It would be an interesting situation to startle the two major parties into realizing that they're not representing us."

He added that although it's idealistic, perhaps it could be started in this country. "It would be nice to get a triparty system.

On the other hand, Rose is supporting Carter. "I feel, contrary to what most people believe, Carter has done a worthwhile job, and, compared to the other candidates, he has had the experience in office," she said. "He's been able to understand the system and find out how it works and doesn't work."

"I look at the candidate as a person, not as a machine. The other two candidates are machines. Carter is the everyman type," she added. "And I don't want to go to war," Stouter said—this being his reason for not voting for Reagan.

Rose agreed, "Carter will go out of his way to keep peace in the world." Rose has another reason for not voting for Reagan. "I would never vote for someone like Reagan who's trying to force certain religious ideals on us when he deniers equal rights and abortion," she added. "Especially when the majority of people are women.

Does either one of them feel that people are aware of the political issues at stake in this election?

"Most people, myself included, are not aware," Stouter said. "I watched the Anderson/Reagan debate and read some 'material' about the election. However, he admitted that he was more concerned with getting through school.

Anderson, who doesn't consider herself politically minded, added, "People are affected when an issue hits them in the face, like Reagan and the ERA and abortion.

"Somewhere we have to find an honest politician—somewhere, sometime. That's why my vote is for the Republican."

Sharon, a 21-year-old business major, said, "I really don't think w have much of a choice when it comes to choosing a political leader, but from what I have seen and read about Carter, he just hasn't come through. All candidates make promises until they get into office, and then they forget about them," the red haired senior said.

As a matter of fact, if Reagan is elected and he does do what he promises, it will be a first. And if Reagan doesn't do it, we'll just have to try someone else four years from now," Sharon said, with her blue eyes reflecting the belief that someone has to help our country.

"There are so many problems that the US has to deal with—economy, high interest rates, energy and the US' prestige in the world."

Sharon added, "I'm sure about his chances of winning the election. I voted for Gerald Ford in the last election. Carter was a farce. Reagan, after four years, and now I think that he has done a crummy job since he entered the office."

"Reagan has some beliefs which I agree with. I don't believe in abortions. I don't think the federal government should have to pay for hundreds of thousands of abortions. I am sold on ERA."

"I'm sure about his chances of winning the election. One minute it seems like he has a good chance, and the next poll comes out and he has slipped. But, I don't want to go to war," she said.

"I think I would vote for anyone other than Carter," Sharon concluded.—by Barbara Spallita
In association with Orpheus Entertainment

presents

Tom Browne
plus Special Guest

Bobbi Humphries

November 17th
Memorial Auditorium
Reserve Seating

$4.50 with MSC I.D.
$6.00 others

Tickets on sale
10 am — 3 pm everyday
Starting Friday in the Student Center Lobby

Class One Concerts is a Class One Organization of the SGA
Controversial comedy

Suicide worth committing

by Darrel Lippman

The Suicide, the critically acclaimed comedy which opened at the Anita Theater (245 W. 42nd) on Sept. 22, might very well be one of the most satirically controversial plays to make its way to Broadway in a long while. The Suicide has had a hard time "making its way" to the US since it was banned by the Soviet government in 1932.

Russian playwright Nikolai Erdman's brilliant comedy clearly ridicules the Soviet system, thus provoking Stalin to intervene in 1931. Stalin did not have a very high opinion of the play, and his comrades considered it to be very dangerous and even harmful. Still, he allowed those comrades who knew more about the arts to judge the matter.

One year later, The Suicide was refused permission to open by the Central Licensing Board and remains unperformed in the USSR (except for one closed dress rehearsal). It is a mystery what then happened to Erdman, who was seemingly relegated to die in obscurity a mere 10 years ago at the age of 68.

The Suicide was smuggled out of the USSR and published in Providence, RI by the Trinity Square Repertory Co. in 1975. It was never disclosed how the play made its way here, in order to protect those involved.

Nevertheless, The Suicide is here, and the directorial debut of Soviet emigre Jonas Jurasas is quite impressive. The comedy, which makes no bold comment about Soviet life, was first staged by Jurasas in Providence, RI by the Trinity Square Repertory Co. The time is the 1920's. The place, a Moscow tenement. The plot revolves around the would-be suicide, Semyon Semenovich Podексаликов, played by the star, Derek Jacobi, who has been unemployed for a year. After a last ditch effort to get rich quick by learning to play the tuba fails, Semyon contemplates suicide. When it is learned that he is going to commit suicide, Podексалиkov's comrades come out of the workroom to convince him not to die, and they do not come about without a cause. For example, an intellectual (John Heffernan) tells Semyon to leave a note saying that he died on behalf of the absurd intelligentsia. Others, from a Marxist to a butcher, also suggest that Semyon leave behind a note on their behalf. The living think that through a dead man's note they will be able to lodge their complaints to the government. The controversy surrounding The Suicide erupts when Semyon realizes the power that comes with the moments right before the act of suicide. He decides to phone the Kremalin and voice his opinion of the "system." What could they do if he were to die in an hour? Jacobi then races up some side stairs to a platform extending over the audience, where there is a phone. "Hello?" he says, "I want to speak to someone at the top. What? There's no one there?" The audience laughs heartily as Erdman continues his conversation.

Everyone swelters when they hear Podексаликов tell the person on the other end of the line that he doesn't even like Karl Marx ("They hung up on me," he says). "Shoot him!" they exclaim. The comedy takes a serious turn as Erdman has Semyon again voice a comment towards the government, "While they're ridiculing the Soviet government, especially during that time period (the 1920's)"

The play was deliciously crazy at times, sending the sold out audience into raucous laughter. Semyon's comrades give him a feast before his designated noon suicide time, and he becomes a bit drunk. It is now 2 pm, and Semyon yells, "I'm two hours late to die!" "Take that gun out of your hand, you're in no condition to kill yourself," shouts his mother-in-law (Grayson Hall). Jacobi then loses all control as anxiety strikes. How shall he kill himself? A hilarious scene ensues. Semyon sticks the gun in his mouth, but decides against it. "Don't want to mess up the face. Need to want to live," he says, holding the gun to his chest now. "One, two... three, four... five... But," he says, "I think I'll forget about the counting. If I do that I might as well put the gun back in my mouth."

Thinking the whole thing a joke, Semyon's comrades make some matter. One year later, Semyon was seemingly relegated to die in the USSR. He was unperformed in the USSR, and his comrades who knew more about him would come to him and say,"You're wrong," Semyon, we will come back some other time."

For director Jurasas, to stage a controversial play as satirically, and at times movingly, as he did here, is a triumph. At the play's end, I heard nothing but adjectives of praise for The Suicide, which goes to show that this kind of suicide can be fun.

Christopher shines; movie fades

by Darrel Lippman

Fade to Black

Starring Dennis Christopher, Tim Thomerson, G. Scott Snipes and introducing Linda Kerridge. Written and directed by Vernon Zimmerman.

What is Dennis Christopher, that marvelous actor who handed in a brilliant performance as a bicycling champ in last year's Breaking Away, doing in this drab, dull Black? Once again Christopher proves to be an adept actor, this time in the role of Eric Binford, a dangled movie fanatic. But Christopher is not only a talented actor, but also an actor's actor, the one thing that keeps this shock shackl off its Once. Once you pass his fascinating performance (he gets to assume the roles of movie greats), all that is left is a silly suspense flick with little substance.

Eric Binford's life is dracy at best. First, he lives in Venice, CA, with his crippled stepmother, who is always nagging him to pick up his movie cluttered room. Secondly, down at the film rental company where he works (where else?), his boss is always about to fire him for his incompetence. Thirdly, the guys he works with push poor Binford around endlessly. A detective (Tim Thomerson) feels sorry for poor Binford and tries to figure out the "mussaphen product of the environment's settings, where the more he strikes again. At this point of the movie, the supporting cast flops, overacting to the last, all too plausibly. The detective gets shot in the leg, but pushes on valiantly to stop the crazed Binford. "I'll be fine," he says. Sure, he'll bleed all over town, but don't worry folks, he'll be fine.

Also, many of the supposedly scary moments get responses of unintentional laughter rather than screams. The chords are played, but there are no words to them, descending up the hooker. Needless to say, it was quite amusing to see him chase her down an alley to her death.

Fade to Black, rated R, contains some bloody gore and strong language. It would be worth seeing, however, just for Christopher's interesting performance—you'll laugh a little too.
The Joffrey Ballet experience

by Deborah J. Johnson

The New York Yankees have their Columbus farm club. The highly acclaimed Joffrey Dance Company has the Joffrey II Dancers. Last Friday night this second group of 12 performed before a sold out crowd at MSC's Concert Hall. Judging from the warm reception they received, it is clear Joffrey II has established a reputation and following of its own.

Joffrey II, which will celebrate its 11th birthday in November, is the training ground for the NYC-based Joffrey Ballet. This same company grew out of the Joffrey affiliated American Ballet Center's scholarship program. It is a way of giving promising new dancers performing experience.

The group, whose alumni comprise three-fourths of the present Chicago company's personnel, performed four ballets to music piped in over the auditorium's PA system.

The backdrop and lighting for Rammaker were appropriately done in dry, subdued shades of orange, yellow, and brown. The dancers were costumed in frontier dress common to the early 1900's— the women in long grannny dresses, and the men in britches and cowboy hats. The Rammaker indeed ends with rain— a sun shower— characterized by bright lighting and an exuberant Starbuck highkicking and tossing his hat into the air.

The grand finale of the evening was the "Hubba Huba Ding Dong" of Thursday's hit Joffrey II, Swing, by Daryl Gray. The setting was a high school dance of the '40's, complete with crepe paper streamers, a punch table, argyle socks and saddle shoes. Couples enthusiastically "jitterbugged," "frugged," and "monkeyed" the carefree night away to music by The Cigarettes and the eerie sound of a dance piece that is more of a ballet than a baller. This scenario seemed to bring back a rush of memories to the primarily middle aged audience.

For all those in attendance— old or young— Joffrey II was a totally enjoyable experience from beginning to end. The metropolitan area is fortunate to have such a winning farm club.

Elephant man in a word— touching

by Donna Marino

Beautiful and realistic black and white photography, combined with incredible acting, made The Elephant Man a poignant and touching film. The most entertaining ballet of the '40's, complete with crepe paper streamers, a punch table, argyle socks and saddle shoes.

Beautiful and realistic black and white photography, combined with incredible acting, made The Elephant Man a poignant and touching film. The most entertaining ballet of the '40's, complete with crepe paper streamers, a punch table, argyle socks and saddle shoes.

In this scene, especially, the theme of the movie is intensified. People cannot and will not accept someone who is different, whether it be in appearance or manner. No matter how hard Merrick tries to live in peace, it seems that there are always people there to remind him that he is a 'freak' and therefore unacceptable.

By the time that this man's mother was four months pregnant, she was trampled by an elephant, hence the name and the deformity.

At this point, the movie had the potential to be a horror film. By this time, the audience has been so horrified by the attraction he has made so much money from, as pulsating music pounds in the background. But the movie is not after shock effect; all we see is Treves' face as he looks first in horror and then in pity at this man. Slowly, his eyes fill with tears.

After learning that this man's name is John Merrick and he is 21 years old, Treves makes a deal with Bytes to "lend" him out for the day so that he can be examined.

Merrick arrives at the hospital the next day dressed in a floor length black cape and a large headpiece. He is covered with a burlap sack with one eye hole, topped off with a black cap. Using a cane, he walks with some care and breathes loudly, making growling, raspy sounds, as if he's out of breath.

The real Merrick is beaten by his owner and must be taken back to the hospital. Treves puts him in the isolation ward, so that no other patients can see him. It is here that the audience finally sees Merrick, first through a blurry, faraway lens, and finally up close.

It was as if the audience was being shown to see him. He reacts as if he's been given a treasure. He barrages the doctors with questions. He tries to make improvements.

The interview goes well, but Gomm concludes that Merrick has no real intellect. "He's only repeating words you've told him," argues to Treves. "But as they stand outside his door, they overhear him fervently reciting the 23rd Psalm and Treves says in amazement, "How does he know that part? I never taught him that!" When they confront him, he admits that he can read. "It's my favorite prayer," he says in a timid voice.

The doctors soon discover that Merrick has outstanding intellect and intelligence and decide to make him a permanent resident of the hospital. Much to his great joy. As a welcome gift, they give him a dressing case and some medicine. When he's left alone in his tiny attic room, he examines the contents like an enchanted child, running his fingers over the combs and brushes as if they were jewels.

Using a cane, he walks with difficulty and breathes loudly, making growling, raspy sounds.

In time, Merrick becomes famous and makes Treves an admired doctor. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.

At this time, Bytes, his former owner, kidnaps him and drags him back to the life of a side show freak. Merrick, however, escapes and is brought to a mental hospital. Merrick becomes somewhat of a celebrity and is visited by society people and an actress named Mrs. Kendal, played by Anne Bancroft. They receite lines from Shakespeare to each other, and when they finish, she kisses him on the cheek, explaining: "Why you're not an elephant man at all— you're Romeo," and a single tear falls down his throat, and as a final degradation force him to look into a mirror at a face he's never seen, until he screams and faints. In the background, circus music plays and coarse laughter fills the room.
Rumors are spreading about a new pub

"RUMORS"
Thurs.: OLDIES
Rock Party
50¢ drinks
8 pm - Midnight

Music of the 50's, 60's, & 70's
"You name it, we'll play it" a friendly atmosphere

a contemporary look

Attire - Casual but Neat - No Slobs

437 MAIN ST. WEST ORANGE, N.J.
325-3230

THE AWAKENING
A ROBERT SOLO PRODUCTION
CHARLTON HESTON
"THE AWAKENING" SUSANNAH YORK
JILL TOWNSEND and STEPHANIE ZIMBALIST
DIRECTED BY MIKE NEWELL
PRODUCED BY ROBERT SOLO
DIRECTED BY MIKE NEWELL

Defines your ad with this ad.
appointment
necessary
204 bellevue ave
(behind carvel)
upper montclair, nj
phone
746-5557

THE AWAKENING
A ROBERT SOLO PRODUCTION
CHARLTON HESTON
"THE AWAKENING" SUSANNAH YORK
JILL TOWNSEND and STEPHANIE ZIMBALIST
DIRECTED BY MIKE NEWELL
PRODUCED BY ROBERT SOLO
DIRECTED BY MIKE NEWELL

STARTS FRIDAY,
OCTOBER 31ST. at a
FLAGSHIP theatre near you.
FOLK DANCING: MSC folk dancers. Life Hall, Room 12F 8-10:30 pm. MSC Students $5.00, others $1. Instructions and request dancing in international dance. Great fun and exercise. Meets every Thursday.

CLUB: Information meeting for C.L.U.B.'s trip to Acapulco will be held from 10 am - 12 pm in meeting Room 1 of the Student Center.

CONCERT: Resurrection Band from Chicago, Jesus Rock Music, in Panzer Gym, 9 pm, Oct. 31. Tickets $4 sold at door, sponsored by Chi Alpha, Class '81 Organization.

ISRAELI DANCING: Jewish Student Union sponsors Israeli Dancing, Student Center Ballroom C, 8-9:30 pm. Students $5.00, others $7.50.

MEETING: Marketing Club meeting. Student Center Room 1, 10:30 am. New members welcome.

HOSTAGE SERVICE: There will be a service for the American hostages in Iran at 12 pm in the Student Center Mall, rain or shine. Sponsored by the Student Government Association. Remember them.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Are you interested in photography? Then help to start the photography club by becoming a member. Call Louis at 744-9889 or come to Rm. 1135 Bohn Hall.

ANNOUNCEMENT: Anthrosite newsletter now available outside Rm. 215, Russ Hall.

MEETING: Riding club meeting. Student Center, Purple Conference Room, 8 pm.

---

Join the paper!

Come enjoy your Winter Break with C.L.U.B. in

ACAPULCO

Jan. 6 - 13

8 days, 7 nights

$429 per person includes: airfare hotel transfers

MEETINGS:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Location</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Oct. 31</td>
<td>10 am - 12 pm</td>
<td>Meeting Room 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nov. 3 &amp; 4</td>
<td>12 - 1 pm</td>
<td>Ballroom C</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nov. 7</td>
<td>10 am - 12 pm</td>
<td>Ballroom C</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

FINAL PAYMENT DUE DEC. 1

Any questions call: 893-5232

C.L.U.B. is a class one organization of your SGA
C.L.U.B. Presents A Trip To ATLANTIC CITY
Fri., Nov. 21
Buses leave from Partridge Hall - 7 pm
Buses leave from Park Place Casino, Atlantic City - 3 am
COST: $14 per person
$10 returned upon arrival at Park Place Casino
TICKETS ARE ON SALE in the C.L.U.B. office on the 4th floor, Student Center.
C.L.U.B. is a class one organization of your SGA
You Can Still Make A Difference

While careers in public service may not be as fashionable as they were a decade ago, such careers can be very rewarding and personally satisfying.

After just three months of intensive training at The Institute for Paralegal Training, you will be prepared to work in government agencies, public service organizations and law firms as a Legal Assistant in the fields of Administrative and Public Law or Criminal Law. You will do work traditionally performed by attorneys. You will work in the dynamic field of government legislation and regulation and be involved in such areas as: Environmental Law, Food Drug and Health Law, Criminal Justice, Equal Opportunity, Welfare, Energy, and Product Safety Law.

Furthermore, you will earn graduate credit towards a Master of Arts in Legal Studies through Antioch School of Law for all course work completed at The Institute.

We are the nation's first and most respected school for paralegal training, and since 1970, have trained more than 4,000 college graduates from across the country.

If you are a senior of high academic standing and looking for a meaningful career, contact your Placement Office for an interview with our representative.

We will visit your campus on: Thursday, December 4

The Institute for Paralegal Training
235 South 17th Street
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19103
(215) 732-6600

(Operated by Para-Legal, Inc.)
Approved by The American Bar Association
Programs Earn Full Credit Toward M.A. in Legal Studies through Antioch School of Law.

Attention All Students
Tickets will be given to cars parked in Lot 9 blocking the aisle that parallels the Baseball Field
Effective Friday, Oct. 8
For more info call B.O.T.A. ext. 4204
A service of your SGA

ALPHA PHI OMEGA
and
BURNS COUNTRY INN
presents:
the Ugly Prof. On Campus contest or U.P.O.C.
LOOK FOR OUR AD NEXT WEEK, AND VOTE ON YOUR CHOICE OF NOMINEES!!!!!
Corpora, Zurichin lead Eastsiders to men's title

The men's football league ended last week with one of the most exciting games of the year. Mickey Corpora hit Bob Zurichin with 23 seconds on the clock to give the Eastsiders a 13-12 victory over the Vegetables/VEG. This is their first title losing the previous two years in the finals.

MSC was led by Gordon (second place), in a time of 25:57. Following Gordon were Wiggins (second place), in a time of 27:10, and Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the conference final, the MSC Harriers were second only to GSC—regional powerhouse of coaches. Don Shula is a Caesar in his field.

For those viewers who tune into collegiate football this weekend, watch the nationally televised South Carolina-Georgia game. The favorite for this year's Heisman Trophy, George Bohners, will display his awesome talent for the Gamecocks.

Chris Wiggins (27:10), Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Frank Nelson rounded out the top five. Others finishing in the top were Tom Schwarz and Pete Smith. This Saturday, while many of MSC's students were enjoying the indoors, the Harriers were running in a torrential downpour and three inches of mud and water. The team was defeated by Rider 20-39 on a flooded Garret Mtn. in West Paterson, NJ. It was truly an experience for the rain running in a torrential downpour and three inches of mud and water. The team was defeated by Rider 20-39 on a flooded Garret Mtn. in West Paterson, NJ. It was truly an experience for the rain runners.

Shula also has had experience with building an organization from scratch. Look at his success with Miami; two Super Bowl titles and an undefeated record in 1972. He is a big man surrounded by the famed "no-name defense." Shula is quite capable of ending the glaring deficiencies the Giants' display each weekend.

What every one must keep in mind is that to build a winner from zero, and the Giants are far from zero, isn't going to be immediate. Rome wasn't built in a day, and the fans should remember that. But what management must remember is that they have an obligation to build a winner and not just provide bandaid solutions when major surgery is needed. What's needed is a coach of coaches. Don Shula is a Caesar in his field.

But would Shula want such a tremendous challenge? Does he believe the Giants' problem can be solved in a time frame acceptable to him and the fans? It's no sense kidding; Giant fans are getting justifiably annoyed at half hearted efforts. They want positive signs for hope.

Getting Shula won't automatically guarantee respectability and success, but it will put the club on the right road and get them off the dead end street they've been on for nearly 17 years.

Despite all the talk to the contrary, you can be sure of two things when the smoke clears; either Dave Winfield will be a Yankee or George Steinbrenner will have another run in with commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn has long had a policy of watching over potential trades and free agents with the same intensity of a mother hen over her eggs. There is widespread speculation that if a deal can be made, legal action from the Major League Players Association may ensue. There is also a strong belief that other clubs are getting together to insure that the Yanks don't get Winfield.

Congratulations are in order to MSC's Keith Sahlin. This fine kicker and holder of his career record in 1978 had his final record--career extra points (79). After this National Football League (NFL) season, Don Shula, head coach of the Miami Dolphins, will end his current contract with that organization. It's no secret that Shula has had consistently poor relations with general manager Joe Robbie, and unless there is a sudden turn of events his tenure with the team will end.

The good news concerning the Shula situation deals with the Giants. It's time the team openly get busy in figuring out a way to seek a qualified coach. It's also no secret that over the last few years the Giants have gone through coaches like Italy has gone through prime ministers. The team is in disarray, and it's all in Shula's head as coach. The team has done nothing since his arrival, and without much hope for the future, the Giants are indeed a sad club.

The team is so bad that if they played Alabama, I believe the point spread would be a pick 'em. If the Maras have any ambition to build a winner, then get Shula. Besides Tom Landry and Chuck Noll, no one is regarded higher.

In the Spring League the Maras brought in a new kick off team for the spring. Unfortunately, they didn't do as well as expected. The kicking team was not as sharp as in years past. The kicking team was not as sharp as in years past. The kicking team was not as sharp as in years past.

In the Conference final, the team raced a very tough Rider College/Rider squad. All the Bohners touchdowns were scored by their women. Eran Klak had two touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards. Jill Alexander and Eisa DiBisiglie both had touchdown of 10 yards.

The score at halftime was 12-7. The Bohners were Dan Wiggins (27:10), Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the state meet, held at Holmdel park, MSC placed third to Glassboro State College (35) and Rutgers University (38). This was MSC's finest showing all year considering the injuries they have sustained.

The Shore Boys Plus' offense could not do anything all night. Their closest penetration was to the 40 yard line. The Bohners defense did its job holding the Shore Boys Plus to less than 200 yards of offense.

All the Bohners touchdowns were scored by their women. Eran Klak had two touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards. Jill Alexander and Eisa DiBisiglie both had touchdown of 10 yards.

The Shore Boys Plus' offense could not do anything all night. Their closest penetration was to the 40 yard line. The Bohners defense did its job holding the Shore Boys Plus to less than 200 yards of offense.

The Bohners were led by Gordon (second place), in a time of 25:57. Following Gordon were Wiggins (second place), in a time of 27:10, and Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the conference final, the team raced a very tough Rider College/Rider squad. All the Bohners touchdowns were scored by their women. Eran Klak had two touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards. Jill Alexander and Eisa DiBisiglie both had touchdown of 10 yards.

The score at halftime was 12-7. The Bohners were Dan Wiggins (27:10), Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the state meet, held at Holmdel park, MSC placed third to Glassboro State College (35) and Rutgers University (38). This was MSC's finest showing all year considering the injuries they have sustained.

In the conference final, the team raced a very tough Rider College/Rider squad. All the Bohners touchdowns were scored by their women. Eran Klak had two touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards. Jill Alexander and Eisa DiBisiglie both had touchdown of 10 yards.

The score at halftime was 12-7. The Bohners were Dan Wiggins (27:10), Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the state meet, held at Holmdel park, MSC placed third to Glassboro State College (35) and Rutgers University (38). This was MSC's finest showing all year considering the injuries they have sustained.

In the conference final, the team raced a very tough Rider College/Rider squad. All the Bohners touchdowns were scored by their women. Eran Klak had two touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards. Jill Alexander and Eisa DiBisiglie both had touchdown of 10 yards.

The score at halftime was 12-7. The Bohners were Dan Wiggins (27:10), Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the state meet, held at Holmdel park, MSC placed third to Glassboro State College (35) and Rutgers University (38). This was MSC's finest showing all year considering the injuries they have sustained.

In the conference final, the team raced a very tough Rider College/Rider squad. All the Bohners touchdowns were scored by their women. Eran Klak had two touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards. Jill Alexander and Eisa DiBisiglie both had touchdown of 10 yards.

The score at halftime was 12-7. The Bohners were Dan Wiggins (27:10), Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the state meet, held at Holmdel park, MSC placed third to Glassboro State College (35) and Rutgers University (38). This was MSC's finest showing all year considering the injuries they have sustained.

In the conference final, the team raced a very tough Rider College/Rider squad. All the Bohners touchdowns were scored by their women. Eran Klak had two touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards. Jill Alexander and Eisa DiBisiglie both had touchdown of 10 yards.

The score at halftime was 12-7. The Bohners were Dan Wiggins (27:10), Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the state meet, held at Holmdel park, MSC placed third to Glassboro State College (35) and Rutgers University (38). This was MSC's finest showing all year considering the injuries they have sustained.

In the conference final, the team raced a very tough Rider College/Rider squad. All the Bohners touchdowns were scored by their women. Eran Klak had two touchdowns of 10 and 15 yards. Jill Alexander and Eisa DiBisiglie both had touchdown of 10 yards.

The score at halftime was 12-7. The Bohners were Dan Wiggins (27:10), Peter Guthrie (27:19), Charles Cilwik, and Prank Nelson (sixth place). Cilwik, and Julius Muinde. All of the team's losses have come from the same teams.

In the state meet, held at Holmdel park, MSC placed third to Glassboro State College (35) and Rutgers University (38). This was MSC's finest showing all year considering the injuries they have sustained.
Tribe crowns Kings, 5-0

Booters unbeaten in last three

by William Delorm

After snapping a five game losing streak on Oct. 17 vs New York University NYU, the soccer Indians have gone on a tear. undefeated in their last three games, the Tribe made a two and one half hour trip to Pennsylvania last Wednesday to play Kings College/Kings. The long boring bus ride, however, was worth it, as MSC came away with its most impressive victory of the season 5-0.

On Saturday, a torrential rain ended MSC's game with conference cellar rival Glassboro State College/Ramapo in a 1-1 tie. Forward Joe Mysliwiec has played a major role in the Tribe's resurgence, having discovered how to put the ball in the net. It was his first half goal that knotted Ramapo on Saturday, and on Wednesday, his hat trick buried Kings.

In Wednesday's game, it wasn't the fact that Kings was that bad; it was the fact that MSC had finally zeroed their shots in on goal instead of at the crowd and the airplanes overhead. They did, however, miss a pair of penalty kicks. Steve Reitberger and Mysliwiec were the culprits. MSC has converted only one of four attempts this season. Such has been the Indians luck.

Goalkeeper Mike Tropeano recorded his first shutout of the year while still nursing a badly sprained thumb. His play of late could make him a strong candidate for all-conference selection along with sweeper Paul Laddy.

Midfielder Gary Holt netted his first goal of the season and Alvaro Tarrago got his team leading sixth for the Tribe.

Not even Sprague Field's astroturf could withstand the storm on Saturday. After one-half of play and the game tied at 1-1, both sides decided that rowboats would make offside a little different to call and so the game was called.

Both sides had scored on poor goals as a result of the field conditions. The ball would hit the carpet, skim once then plop to a dead stop, making it difficult for the goalkeepers to decide when to go after it. As it turned out, both goalies were only burned once each, however.

The booters face their toughest test of the '80 season when Glassboro State College/GSC comes up to Sprague Field this Sat., Nov. 1 (1:30 pm).

The Pros are having another sensational season on the pitch, having already clinched the New Jersey State College Athletic Conference title.

Last year, GSC reached the division III finals before being ousted for the title by Baldwin University, 2-1. The Pros have all of their starters back from that squad including prolific scorer Scott Salisbury and goalkeeper Walt Gorrell.

Their biggest victory so far this season, was a 17-0 destruction of Jersey City State College.

MSC hopes that things will continue to click for them and that the astroturf and a large crowd can help them disrupt the Pros.

Indians take sixth straight

by John Huegel

Tallbacks Bill Grundy and Mike Horn once again added the offensive fireworks and the MSC defense continued their dominance, as the Indians nipped a pesky Central Connecticut State College/CCSC football team, 14-6, Saturday in New Britain, CN.

On the first play following the second half kickoff, Grundy supplied the Tribe with what would turn out to be all the scoring they would need. The senior tallback took the handoff and swept wide left, broke a tackle and darted 80 yards to the end zone. Kicker Keith Sahlin booted the extra point and MSC led 7-6.

Quarterback Ferry Hogan hit Tribe killer, John Klein on a 45 yard pass play. Grundy picked up more than half of his game total of 141 yards on that carry. CCSF struck in the first quarter when a roughing the passer penalty gave them a first down at the four.

Minutes after Grundy had put the Tribe on the board, Horn, too, used the left side of CCSC's defense and dashed 43 yards for the final score. Midfielder Gary Holt netted his first goal of the season and Alvaro Tarrago got his team leading sixth for the Tribe.

Not even Sprague Field's astroturf could withstand the storm on Saturday. After one-half of play and the game tied at 1-1, both sides decided that rowboats would make offside a little different to call and so the game was called.

Both sides had scored on poor goals as a result of the field conditions. The ball would hit the carpet, skim once then plop to a dead stop, making it difficult for the goalkeepers to decide when to go after it. As it turned out, both goalies were only burned once each, however.

The booters face their toughest test of the '80 season when Glassboro State College/GSC comes up to Sprague Field this Sat., Nov. 1 (1:30 pm).

The Pros are having another sensational season on the pitch, having already clinched the New Jersey State College Athletic Conference title.

Last year, GSC reached the division III finals before being ousted for the title by Baldwin University, 2-1. The Pros have all of their starters back from that squad including prolific scorer Scott Salisbury and goalkeeper Walt Gorrell.

Their biggest victory so far this season, was a 17-0 destruction of Jersey City State College.

MSC hopes that things will continue to click for them and that the astroturf and a large crowd can help them disrupt the Pros.