Error results in long lines

By Jamie McHugh

Because of a new type of mailing document for student tuition and billing, Business Services failed to realize that the automatic billing system would not be sufficient for mailing parking decals. This resulted in students having to wait on line to purchase parking decals this semester.

Mr. William Kervick, director of business services, said that he didn't anticipate the problem. "We failed to realize that the automatic billing would not accommodate the billing for parking decals. When we did realize it, it was too late," he said.

However, MSC did save money by foregoing the mailing and material costs of mail decal billing, which more than offset the increased labor cost incurred by on-campus decal registration. It was a savings that was "at the student's expense, unfortunately," said Kervick. On a positive note it fed more funds into the maintenance and upkeep of the parking lots, which is what the ten-dollar decal fee is used for.

Students who owed parking fines were refused decals until fines are paid in full. Due to an error at Business Services, students were forced to purchase their parking stickers in the Student Center Ballrooms. Last year the decals were mailed to students' homes.

Police wait to boot

By John L. Connolly

According to Jayne Rich, chief of campus police, individuals with outstanding parking fines have not had their car immobilized because there are still problems with the "booting" process.

The Rhino Immobilizer, frequently called the "boot," is a device which is planned to be used on campus to immobilize vehicles whose owners have accumulated three or more outstanding parking tickets. The plan to use the "boots" was devised in 1980 and designed to go into effect during the 1981-82 school year. "We still have some wrinkles to iron out," explained Rich about the delay. "The basic problem is getting a regular appeals process set up because we can't put a boot on a car if the ticket has been appealed.

The information then must be fed into the computer so we have a new printout which lists the tickets that have been appeal-ed successfully.

Rich said that the number of outstanding parking fines is "very large figure," and will result in further sanctions against parking violators. One new sanction would forbid students with outstanding parking fines from entering the bookstore. The extra space allowed for a line to form at one entrance, while the other doors could be used for exiting. Check approval was also located outside the store, unlike past semesters. Phill Karali, a student worker at the College Store, explained that the addition of the annex helped with lines waiting to get into the bookstore. The extra space allowed for a line to form cont. on p.6

Board meeting is tonight
By Harold Lowry
The Board of Trustees of Montclair State College is meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Kops Lounge, Russ Hall. Elections of officers for 1982-83 will be held, followed by board committee appointments and consideration of the new meeting schedule.

News Analysis:
Your presence is needed
By Laura Pedalino
- As we look at MSC this fall, we see many changes: a new dorm, an annex to the Student Center, new softball fields and locker room facilities where a rocky quarry once was. These changes affect all of us, yet how many of us know how they came about and who decided who made these decisions?

The Board of Trustees made the final decision in each case. Some of the decisions were made years ago; some stirred much controversy. In all the above matters the board had the final word.

Tonight is the first Board of Trustees meeting of the fall 1982 semester. Your presence, as students of MSC, can have a profound impact on the MSC of tomorrow.

As student representative it is my job to represent your interests and feelings to the board. I am a source of information for the students, for the Student Government Association, and for the board. My role calls for me to keep you informed of new issues, and to communicate your reactions to the board. Most of all, this position provides the most essential part of the decision making process—student input.

At tonight's meeting there will be a conference session on financial 1984 budget. The board was obliged to submit proposals to the Department of Higher Education (DHE) without prior involvement of faculty or students because of an August 16 deadline.

Two attachments were sent to the DHE. The first, entitled "Supplemental FY 84 Budget Analysis," represents our approval to the potential five- or ten-percent reduction in 1984 budget.

Saturday night could be increased 'to 200 or 300 people.'

There was much debate over the issue. No vote was taken but several alternative suggestions were submitted to the president for reconsideration. Bills F82019 through F82024 were passed unanimously. These bills appointed John Lavaso, Rosemarie Castro, Patrick Gorman, Margaret McKevey, Howard Leon and Carol Lynch as SGA legislators.

Stephanie Smith was elected President-pro-temp. The following club charters were put into committee for review: Delta Kappa Psi, Zeta Phi beta, the English Club, the Conservation Club, Students' for Social Responsibility, I.A.S.O., and Health Professions association.

Lynn Mesu, Director of Public relations, announced that Wednesday, September 29 will be SGA Information Day. This program is designed to familiarize the students with the diversity of programs, activities, services and organizations available to them.

By Lisa Fochesato and Peter Stankov
Laura Pedalino, student representative to the Board of Trustees, presented to the legislature a general description of the board's plan to change Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) requirements and the enrollment policies of the school. She reported that in the program, entitled "Bold New Vision," the SAT requirements for admission would be raised by at least 57 points, and enrollment would be decreased by 500 students at admission.

Pedalino said she has assurance from the administration that the new plans would affect the drive for increased minority enrollment in the school. Pedalino expressed concern for the students who would not be able to meet the requirements of the Educational Opportunity Fund (EOF) or Tutorial Program (STP). The EOF gives opportunities to people with low SAT scores and/or those with a family income less than $14,000. The STP is designed to aid those with low SAT scores.

The primary objection to the proposal is that no input was requested from the students or the faculty.

A consensus vote was called to support or reject an administration plan to eliminate the sale of alcohol in the Rathskeller on Saturday nights. Dan Kappa, manager of the Rathskeller, told the SGA that if this plan were implemented the attendance on

career corner

By Peter Prichard

This marks the third year that the Careers Corner is appearing in The Montclarion. It will appear every other week and provide information about job search strategies, resume design, graduate school, interview techniques, job trends, career opportunities for college graduates, seminars and services which help with the career planning process; full-time, and part-time job listings, and off-campus related programs.

The staff of Career Services help Montclair State College (MSC) students and alumni with all career related questions and activities. The office and staff have recently moved from Life Hall into the Student Center Annex, room 104. Counselors are available to help students determine what they want to major in and what they might do with their degree upon graduation.

Full-time and part-time jobs (see the attached box for a sampling of current listings) are available in loose leaf notebooks which are updated daily. These listings are also mailed to eligible students who have registered with the office. Career seminars are offered (see the attached schedule), as are resume critiquing, and one of the most extensive career libraries in the metropolitan area.

campus police report

By Kathy Carroll

A student's car was reported stolen on September 7 from lot 28. Campus police are now investigating the theft.

On September 8, three robberies occurred. In Bohn Hall, at about 6 p.m., a girl's purse was stolen from her room, with approximately $175 in it. In Blanton Hall money was also taken from a room which was left unlocked. Jewelry and money were stolen from a Clove Road apartment. The perpetrator gained access to the room by cutting a screen from a back window.

Also on September 8, an attempted robbery took place at a Clove Road apartment. Someone tried to climb into a window by cutting a screen, but fled when the girl residing there sought help from other roommates. Blanton Hall was evacuated on September 9, when a live hand grenade was reported in a room. The bomb squad removed it successfully and no injuries were reported.

Blanton Hall residents were again threatened by explosives on September 11 when an anonymous caller claimed there was a bomb in the building.

Students are encouraged to come into the office as early as possible in their schooling to start identifying and preparing for careers that are of interest. Those graduating this year are strongly urged to come in now and register so we can help you prepare for entrance into an extremely competitive job market.

Two interesting off-campus career related programs are being offered in October. The fifth annual Expo on Business Ownership for New Jersey Women will be held on Saturday, October 16 from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Busch Campus of Rutgers University in New Brunswick. Particular emphasis will be placed on new challenges in business ownership, sources of financing, issues of survival in the present economy, and technological innovations. The program is open to all women, either established in their own business or starting one. For more information call 201-648-5950.

The Graduate Management Admission Council is sponsoring a 1982 MBA Forum in New York City on Friday, October 15 from 1 to 7 p.m. and on Saturday, October 16 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. It will be held in the New York Sheraton at 7th Avenue and 56th Street and admission is $4.00 per day, payable at the door. Admissions representatives from more than 70 management schools will be present at each forum to answer questions about admissions, curricula, financial aid, and career opportunities. Further information can be obtained from folders available in Career Services or by calling the national forum coordinator at 609-734-1539.

Peter Prichard is Assistant Director of Career Services. Any questions about this column should be directed to the Career Services office at 893-1193.

agreed that “more room because of the annex” was a big part of the successful running of the store. “Paul McCormick has everything under control,” Karali added.

Cindy Boer, a senior management major, was very happy with the bookstore this year. “One of the girls was very helpful when I couldn’t find one of my books and this year, I got them all in one shot!” Dr. Elliot Mininberg, vice president of administration and finance, summed it up in one word when asked how he felt about the opening of the fall semester. “Terrific!” Mininberg exclaimed.

He said he was pleased the way things ran during the first hectic days. “It’s been good; let it stay that way.”

Margaret Bychek, acting director of the Faculty Student Cooperative “knew the quality of the personnel was there all along.” Bychek was not surprised. “I knew it could be done.”

Student input needed

The second is entitled “A Bold New Vision of Montclair State College.” It is a paper which the board developed in response to the challenge of the DHE to chart positive direction for the college.

An injustice has been done to the students of MSC. How can there be “A Bold New Vision Plan” without student input? This new plan would raise the average combined SAT scores of our entering freshmen at least 75 points and the academic index at least 15 points over a five-year period. It would also have a reduction of targeted full-time equivalents enrollment by 1,000 from the present 9,700 to a figure of 8,700 by the fall of 1987.

These changes can have a major impact of the MSC of tomorrow. You, the students of MSC, have the power to revise, add, or delete from this plan. I urge you to attend tonight’s meeting and let your feelings be heard.

Company president to speak

Dr. Suresh Desai, Dean of the School of Business Administration, said that the school will present a unique program during the fall semester entitled "Entrepreneurial Management Lecture Series." The series will feature company presidents who will discuss their organizations’ successes and failures. They will focus on the kind of entrepreneurial decisions they have had to make as well as describing the industry in which they compete. Each entrepreneurial lecturer will also discuss critical elements for personal and organizational success within their own company. They will discuss any career opportunities which might exist, and will describe the desirable characteristics of potential new employees. The guest lecturers are all members of the Young Presidents Organization (YPO).

"We are extremely grateful to the YPO for its involvement in sponsoring this lecture series," said Desai. "Students will have a rare opportunity to hear successful company presidents discuss their successes and failures, and students will also have an opportunity to test theories and principles against reality."

The series will be presented in the Student Center Annex, Room 207, every second Thursday at 7:00 p.m. from September 23 through December 2.

The series kicks off with Dominic Cossa, baritone, who sings with both the New York City and the Metropolitan Opera. Other faculty includes Chaim Zemach, principal cellist with the American Symphony Orchestra; Edmund Barterby, who recorded the complete Mendelssohn Songs Without Words for the Music Heritage Society; Andrew Schulman, a former student of Andres Segovia; and Don Butterfield, principal tuba player with the American Symphony Orchestra, who performed in the NBC Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Arturo Toscanini. Other faculty performing include Murray Present, Jonathan Lautman, and David Jolley. The series will consist of eight recitals. There will be four recitals in the fall, and four in the spring. All concerts will be held in the Edna Meachem Recital Hall at MSC starting at 8 p.m. Tickets are $20.00 for the series of eight recitals, and $3.00 for a single concert. For senior citizens and students with a college ID the cost is $10.00 for the concert series and $1.50 for a single concert. Tickets may be obtained by calling Laura Woodson-Hammond at 893-4237 weekdays from 1-4 p.m. Checks are payable to the MSC Meachem Fund. All contributions are tax deductible. to register for classes this year, and, as in past years, seniors with unpaid fines would not receive their credentials at graduation.

Rich explained that the boot, which is locked onto the front wheels of a car, will immobilize the vehicle and can not be moved until the campus police do so. They will not take the boot off until the parking fines are paid. This will apply to faculty, staff and students.

Although this method of collecting parking fines has its problems, Rich still feels positive about using the boots. She said, "Once this program gets under way and people realize that they are going to have to pay the campus parking tickets, two things will happen," she said. "One is we will not have to give as many municipal tickets, which will be a blessing to us and the community. The other is that people will be forced to pay their parking tickets, so we will not have as many violators."

“STUDENTS SERVING STUDENTS”
Bad buys, big mistakes

Standing in lines has become an unfortunate fact of life in our society. We wait in lines for just about everything; cashing our checks, paying our bills, buying our food. Line standing is both an annoyance and an inconvenience, but when the wait is caused by an "oversight" of an unseen, unknown bureaucrat, the annoyance and inconvenience is doubled.

Such was the case this week as thousands of students spent countless hours standing in line to purchase parking decals that had previously been mailed to their homes.

The "oversight" was blamed on new equipment purchased by Business Services this summer. It was discovered, after the purchase, that the equipment could not process the decals. The equipment, however, is not to blame, but rather those responsible for its purchase.

The incident reminds us of a commercial for a major computer company. In the commercial, a well known, mustachioed comedian is shown boxing cakes as they come off an assembly line. Suddenly the cakes become larger, but the boxes do not. An "oversight" by some one resulted in the purchase of too small boxes. We can be amused at the results in the commercial, but we are anything but amused about the results of the Business Services' oversight.

Another purchase is also in the news this week, the difference being that this one is causing headaches for the Campus Police rather than for students. The Rhino Immobilizer seemed to be an idea whose time had come. It has worked well in Washington, D.C. and other major cities, but has fared poorly on this campus.

Affectionately known as the "boot," this device is designed to immobilize the cars of scofflaws, forcing them to make good for their tickets. Great idea for a city that has tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars at stake. Not so great for a college campus where the scofflaws owe the college thousands, possibly hundreds of dollars.

It has been almost a year since the "boots" were purchased and one has yet to be used. The transitory nature of the college's population, the ticket appeal process, and the reluctance of officers to lie under the cars and install the device have all contributed to the "boots" continued disuse.

It is obvious to us that the college should admit its mistake, sell the "boots" and devise some other less bothersome method of collecting parking fines.

I refuse to pay for a decal when I have to walk to my car at night without lights. It is not worth having to stand on line.

- Nancy Sanderson, office systems, freshman

I don't think we should have to stand in line.

- Mark Dooley, management, junior

I feel it is ridiculous to come here and wait on line. Still, the lines weren't too bad because they moved fast.

- Linda Rosa, undeclared, freshman
Everything you ever wanted to know about MSC but . . .
We're sure that you've been bombarded with pamphlets and flyers and have sat through hours of orientation lectures all telling you where to find what on campus, and who to talk to about what problem. We are also sure that if you are anything like us, you tossed the pamphlets in the garbage and slept through most of the orientation lectures.

The Guide, then, will be your saving grace. We have tried to compile a complete listing of everything a newcomer to MSC would possibly need to know. We've used our collective experience of being inexperienced freshmen and transfers to come up with the information that would have made our first year here a little easier.

In The Guide you'll find everything everyone else has told you and you'll find that we've included some things the Dean of Student Affairs never thought you'd want to know. Things like where the local bars are; the phone numbers of pizzerias and liquor stores that will deliver to the dorms; a rundown of area clubs and their cover charges; music; and the usual clientele.

We've also included a listing of restaurants and movie theaters—for those of you who have a date but don't know where to take him or her. And for those with money burning a hole in your pocket, a rundown of the local malls and shopping areas.

However, as diligent as we have been, we may have missed something. If we have, we're sorry. But with time, and your suggestions, The Guide will evolve and improve to become the authoritative publication for freshmen that we want it to be. So welcome to Montclair State College. We think you'll enjoy your stay as much as we have.

The next Santini

By Harold Lowry

A common complaint about popular fiction is that there are no new plots, but an inventively constructed new novel can easily lure the reader away from the "it's-all-been-done-before attitude. The Lords Of Discipline, by Pat Conroy, the author of The Great Santini, and Conrack, is that kind of novel.

The Lords Of Discipline is the story of an intelligent and sensitive young man's odyssey into the rigorous and brutal 'system' of a southern military academy. But this book is not just another razz at the narrow and dreary side of military life. (Conroy has left that chore to the movie makers.) The young protagonist, Will McLean, sees past the grey walls of his dormitory barracks and must deal with the world around it as well. Will McLean is exposed to a number of different worlds during his years at the academy. His friendships bring him in contact with both poverty and wealth. The academy is set in the mysterious and colorful town of Charleston, North Carolina, where Conroy's pictorial style of writing gives a haunting and meaningful discription of the three faces of Charleston: the fog shrouded wildness of the harbor, the workaday life of the city, and the haughty, almost mandatory perfection of Charleston upper-class enclaves. The narration explores a variety of sensibilities. Will McLean plays the poet, the athlete, and the bumbling commoner among the high mannered Charlestonian elite. Through his adventures he discovers love, hate, and the call of duty.

The Lords Of Discipline makes old twists seem new and leaves lively images. But it is a novel about the military, and it gives a broad view of this world of ranks and discipline. Will suffers the cruelty of freshmen hazing, then watches as the victims change into the torturers. He questions the lack of disidence among the cadets, and probes the underlying motives of the honor code. He dreams of graduation and aspires to join the special group of men who have graduated from the academy to be one of those strange mixtures of courage and cruelty which the school refers to as the 'whole' man.

But the most interesting feature of the novel is its ability to withhold from the reader any blanket of understanding of the plot. At times the novel veers toward being a love story; then it takes drama; suddenly it turns poetic. It would be hard to label this book with any of the popular genre labels. It deals with racism, Vietnam, and violence, but it also speaks of roses, lovers, and betrayal.

Jon Voight played the title role in 'Conrack,' which was based on the first book by Pat Conroy (inset). 'The Lords of Discipline' is his third.

The Lords Of Discipline makes old twists seem new and leaves the reader with lively images and a strong emotional impact. A good story with lots of variety: it is certainly a novel novel.

The Lords Of Discipline

Off, or telling us there is nothing to fear but fear itself, the underlying theme of the album. No, nothing to fear at all. Especially on the title track where Elfman sings, Hey little girl / won't you take a ride in my big car / don't be afraid / won't you make an old man happy / let me show you paradise / don't ask your mother for advice. Oingo Boingo comes close to funk rapping here, only to change to a heavier, guitar-laden sound midway through, then to a driving punk beat, and back again. But this has become Oingo Boingo's essence. They surprise us at every turn. The three-man horn section, never overpowering, lends nicely to the melodies. Reptiles and Samurai is close to synth-pop, while Grey Matter, with its dueling xylophones (a top add-on in dance clubs), may just be pure Oingo Boingo.

Album spotlight

Oingo Boingo

By Darrell Lippman

When hearing the title for the first time, one might think Oingo Boingo is a new trampoline company with a poor sense of humor, instead of what it is: an innovative rock band.

The insanity continues on Nothing to Fear, the follow-up I.P, which includes I Love Little Girls. Lead singer/songwriter/rhythm guitarist Danny Elfman is one of those musicians with a knack for the strangely funny. Wild Sex (In the Working Class) attests to this as he chants, Wild sex in the working class/after five it's a gym / wild sex in the working class ten minutes gotta get home fast.

When Elfman isn't singing about wild sex, he's looking for his girlfriend on his Whole Day.

Three members of Oingo Boingo don't look like they believe that there is Nothing to Fear.
Solid MSC drama

By Harold Lowry

Players present a solid dramatic season debut in Arthur Miller's All My Sons in Studio Theatre. Solid may not sound like lavish praise but in this case it is; the performances in All My Sons create a well-rounded, insightful, and entertaining show.

Although review comes after only having seen the dress rehearsal, no one could say that the performance was less than given its best effort this year, and the first move in the right direction was the play chosen. All My Sons is a drama about a 1940s American family, and about war-the war which cannot be put behind because it is an internal as well as an external war. The war goes on at home although it has ended abroad. In the play Miller cleverly juxtaposes idealism and skepticism about war-the war which can go on at home in a personal maelstrom: a conflagration of emotion and like-harshness.

Several of the actors capture this battlefield within their characters, often showing mixed extremes of emotion and like-realistic, but to list their special contributions would risk revealing the whole plot. They are played by Kelly McBride, Terry Burnett, Katie Gans, Chris Andrus, Steve Gravatt, and Timothy Looker.

The setting, the Keller's patio, captures diverse moods. Like everything else in the play, it is both homey and sinister, ordinary and elemental. The staging flows naturally and unobtrusively. The lighting sets up a growing seriousness, and the costumes, especially the hairstyles, create a 40s atmosphere that is only weakened by the fact that the son's post-war fashion happens to be in fashion again today. Also the pace starts slowly but this is a trifling inconvenience.

A hearty congratulations go to director Natalie Sokoloff, who must have worked very closely with her producers, Kathy Cuneen and Dennis Brito, to produce such a well integrated and professional show. All in all, All My Sons is a solid dynamic show. It continues tonight Friday, and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and there will be a matinee on Friday at 2:15.

Joe Keller, the father, a difficult character goes through the most extreme transformation of the play. Mark Pinhiero plays Joe Keller, the father, a difficult and realistic, but to list their special contributions would risk revealing the whole plot. They are played by Kelly McBride, Terry Burnett, Katie Gans, Chris Andrus, Steve Gravatt, and Timothy Looker.

Robin Williams takes on a serious role in Garp

By Judith Norkin

The World According to Garp, the film adaptation of John Irving's best-selling novel, is the story of an eccentric nurse/feminist, Jenny Fields. Fields is an unusual woman who conceives a child by a lobotomized and dying soldier achieving her main aim of being a mother but not a wife. In due time she gives birth to a son whom she names T.S. Garp (in memory of the dead soldier). From the city of Boston Jenny and her bastard son move to the cloistered world of Steering Academy, a boys prep school, where Jenny nurses and Garp grows up. While at Steering Garp decides that he wants to be a writer. So Jenny, the ever dutiful mother takes him to New York City so he can pursue his literary career. Jenny also begins to write and eventually publishes her autobiography, an account of the unusual circumstances of Garp's birth, single motherhood, and her radical feminist views. Her book, an instant best-seller, makes her a cult figure to oppressed women worldwide.

In the meantime, Garp's story garners little more than the praise of critics and provides a way to impress and win the hand of his childhood sweetheart. Tired of sharing his mother's celebrity status, he goes to live in a small college town to settle down and to write.

But while sales of Jenny Fields' controversial book soar, Garp's career crawls at a snail's pace.

Robin Williams, as Garp, copes with marital problems, crazed truck drivers, bands of radical women and the drudgery of domestic life. Garp is frazzled but hopeful. Mary Beth Hurt, in the role of Garp's wife, plays the sometimes dissatisfied but intelligent and loving Helen. But it is Glenn Close who steals the show with her wonderful portrayal of the consistently calm but eccentric nurse/feminist/author Jenny Fields. Swoozie Kurtz, as a gum-snapping, painted face prostitute whom Jenny questions about lust gives a fine performance.

As the strange circumstances of these many lives unfold they lead one to wonder about traditional sex roles and how they affect families and politics. Sometimes the movie is very funny, at other times pathetic. At times the screenplay does get a bit confusing (which is the disadvantage of working from a serious novel) but whether you have read the book or not, the movie is one that should not be missed.

MSC's band on the move

By Bruce Meyers

While the football team toils in the hot sun every afternoon, another group of Montclair students practice diligently, awaiting the home football opener this Saturday. This group is the Montclair State College Marching Band. The band was able to hire Mr. Daniel V. Panessa as the band's director. The Montclair State College Marching Band consists of 107 students, 40 of whom are musicians: the other 67 are in the color guard. The band practices every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 4:15 to 6:30 p.m. under the direction of Mr. Daniel V. Panessa and assistant director Mr. Paul Gerbino.

Two years ago, as a student here at Montclair, Gerbino got the idea that the college should have a marching band and started on the long road to making his idea a reality. He visited other state colleges with marching bands such as Rutgers and West Chester State College in Pennsylvania to see how their bands were set up. Then he met with President Dickson as well as the deans of the fine arts and music departments. The SGA pushed for funding for the band, and it almost got off the ground.

So during the half-time of the football game this Saturday, instead of running off for a hot dog or beer, hang around to check out The Montclair State College Marching Band. They'll be sure to give you something to cheer about.

Butler, Forester, and Bachison lead team on a 15-4; 9-5 romp

By Frank Di Pietro

MSC romped to a double-header sweep Saturday with explosive 15-4, 9-5 victories at Holster Park, Clifton.

In the first game MSC dominated from the start with six runs in the bottom of the first. Following the walk of leadoff batter, Jim Hill, Glen DiLeo drilled a single to right and Mike Nicosia ripped a double, scoring Hill. John Seymore then singled to right, scoring two more runs.

After a walk to Ricky Heyer and a single by Bob Yeager, Andy Como knocked in two runs with a bases-loaded double. After John Cowan walked Dan Stanslanscyk brought Como home with a sacrifice fly.

Following a scoreless 2nd inning, MSC rallied one, two, four, and two runs respectively in the next four innings to seal the victory.

MSC’s pitcher Mike Butler struck out eight and walked none in four innings while Greg Bachison worked the last three with four strikeouts and no bases on balls. Nicosia and Seymou r went three-for-four in the 1st game with two RBIs each.

In the nightcap Pace (1-5) played impressively, giving MSC a fight before succumbing. The Setters scored three runs in the second inning, but the Indians answered with an explosion of their own, scoring three in the third and adding a six-run barrage in the fourth. Key hits included two-base hits from DiLeo, Don Rossi and Hill, and singles by Nicosia, Heyer, and Yeager.

Pitcher Tommy Forester went the distance in the second game, striking out four and walking five. Heyer went two-for-three including a triple and two RBIs.

In the Indians’ season opener, Dan Olsson struck out five and walked only two in an 11-1 romp of Long Island University (LIU).

MSC plays Fairleigh Dickinson (FDU) on the road today at 3:30 p.m. and is back home for Bloomfield on Tuesday at 3:15 p.m.

Junior Patty Leisher finished first overall with teammate Carla Gambill placing second. Eight teams competed in the festival and MSC won with 37 points, followed by Stony Brook with 47, and Kings College with 87.

Last year the team finished fourth in their division of the NJAIAW and lead runner Leisher placed 12th, qualifying her for the national champion ships.

However, Leisher didn't compete in nationals last year because of MSC policy which only sends runners who place in the top 10 to the nationals. Coach Michelle Willis said, "We were disappointed that Leisher couldn't go, but this year she should make it without a problem. I'd like the entire team to go."

Another national hopeful is Carla Gambill, who transferred from Springfield, Mass. "Leisher and Gambill have been battling each other at every practice," Willis said. "Both girls can qualify for the nationals this season."

This season the team has 12 members compared to the needed minimum of seven last year, which caused problems. "In bigger meets the first five members scored points, but in dual and triangular meets, the first seven scored, so we couldn't afford any injuries," Willis explained.

This season the top seven are Leisher, Gambill, Dana Caruso, Amy McLaughlin, Pat Salmon, freshman Cindy Maddox, with either Sarah Samon or Laura Frisch filling the seventh position.

Besides qualifying for the nationals, the cross country is looking to defeat rival school Trenton State. "Last year we beat Trenton at their own invitational but lost to them in our dual meet," Willis said. Other tough competition will be East Stroudsburg, and competing in invitational will be Stony Brook, Layfayette and Trenton.

"I'm excited about our strong top five runners this season," Coach Willis says. "It should be very successful one."

MSC Ties at Wagner 40-40

Spellbinding game opens new season

By Gary Takvorian

Despite an exciting exhibition of offensive football, the opening game for both the MSC Indians and the Wagner College Seahawks ended in a 40-40 tie. Led by quarterback Mark Casale, the Indians pounded 40 points out of the Staten Island defense. The score was indicative of the game-excellent offense and poor defense. The Indians gave up 525 total yards to the Seahawks offense. There was one interception for the Indians, one fumble recovery, and one quarterback sack.

The Indians rampaged for a total of 488 yards on offense. They rushed for a total of 102 yards, of which only 47 yards on 15 carries belonged to junior running back Bob Yannoy. Against a dangerous man like Yannoy, the Seahawks defense did well. Junior sensation Mark Casale completed 26 of 38 yards and 3 touchdowns. He was intercepted twice.

On the very first drive, the Indians came out on the war path. From the 12-yard line, they drove 46 yards before Casale hit senior receiver Darrin Small for a 42-yard touchdown pass. Senior Dan Deneher kicked the extra point. The Seahawks bounced right back with an 83-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Tim Kelley to split end John Tramblc. The extra point attempt by kicker Phil Marak was unsuccessful.

MSC's second touchdown started with a deflected pass which ended up in the grasp of senior split end Ken Oliver. Casale then hit Oliver from the 31-yard line for the touchdown. The score was 14-6 at the end of the first quarter and Casale had completed a phenomenal 14 of 17 passes for 216 yards. In the second quarter, Wagner struck first with a 31-yard field goal by Marak. MSC retaliated with another Casale-Oliver touchdown pass and a Deneher extra point to make the score 21-9.

Wagner came back with a 5-yard touchdown run by Bob Flaherty. Kelley tried to pass for the 2-point conversion but failed. Later, the Seahawks fumbled and it was picked up by MSC's senior corner-back Bernie Arrington on the 44. That led to junior running back Jerry Wessel's 29-yard touchdown run. Deneher kicked the extra point.

In the third quarter, the Seahawks struck again on a one-yard run by Bob Flaherty and a Marak extra point. The Indians then added a 27-yard field goal by Deneher to make the score 31-25, MSC.

In the fourth quarter, Flaherty again rushed in from one yard run by Bob Flaherty and a Marak extra point. The Indians then added a 27-yard field goal by Deneher to make the score 31-25, MSC.

In the fourth quarter, Flaherty again rushed in from one yard to score. Marak scored the extra point and the Seahawks went ahead for the first time in the game by a score of 32-31. With 7:42 left in the game, Bob Vannoy received a pass from Casale and, with some powerful rushing, turned it into a 27-yard touchdown pass. With the score 37-32, Casale attempted the 2-point conversion; but the pass failed.

With 4:20 left, Wagner scored 8 points on a 10-yard touchdown pass from Kelley to Gene Buckley, and a pass from Kelley to John Van Abner, for the 2-point conversion. With a little over 4 minutes to go, Casale engineered a superb drive, throwing completion after completion. On third down and five yards to go, Wagner 12 with 45 seconds on the clock, Casale, in trouble, lobbed a pass to Vannoy, who was open in the end zone. The pass bounced in and out of Vannoy’s arms to bring on fourth and five. With 40 left in the game, Coach Hill made the wise decision to go for the field goal. Dan Deneher, from 22 yards out, split the posts and tied the game at 40-40.

With 9 seconds left and Wagner with the ball, Kelley tossed up a "hail Mary" pass that landed in the hands of MSC. The season opener ended in a 40-40 tie.
