Library staff claims asbestos hazard remains unrectified

By James S. White, Jr.
Library personnel and students alleged that Elliot Mininberg, vice president for administration and finance, and Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning, did not adhere to Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) reports in dealing with the asbestos problem in Sprague Library. The EPA said, "any exposure to asbestos involves some risk and no safe level of exposure has been established."

Mininberg and Quinn repeatedly maintained that asbestos levels in the library are "not unsafe." Mininberg cited Occupational Health and Safety (OSHA) standards for workers in an industrial setting to back up his claim. Library personnel, however, said that OSHA standards do not apply to the library.

Janet Boscalino, vice president of Communications Workers of America Union (CWA), said the union is filing a grievance against the administration to force them to recognize the EPA report.

Mininberg: "We have to take chances. If we don't, we'll wipe out everything that you and I enjoy."

Mininberg admitted that the (OSHA) guidelines do not apply to the library, but said, "What do you suggest we use?"

In reference to the EPA report, Mininberg said, "Everything is a hazard. Exhaust is bad. Are we going to stop driving? We have to take chances. If we don't, we'll wipe out everything that you and I enjoy."

Asbestos: the white powder that won't make you high

By Frank Rosa
The public was unaware of the dangers of asbestos until 1964, when Dr. Irving J. Selikoff, director of the Environmental Science Laboratories of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, released a study of 632 insulation workers in Paterson, NJ. The study found the group suffered from unusually high cases of asbestosis and cancer caused by inhaling asbestos.

Since then, many extensive studies have been made on the matter. They believe that once the particles get into the air, it is virtually useless to get rid of them. Contact with a person who works with asbestos may likely cause that person to inherited those diseases.

However, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in their March 16, 1979 Guidance Document to Asbestos-Containing Materials in School Buildings said the "EPA and the scientific community believe that any exposure to asbestos involves some health risk."

"The EPA and the scientific community believe that any exposure to asbestos involves some health risk. No safe level of exposure (or threshold exposure level) has been established. Further, it is impossible at this time to confidently estimate the exact degree of risk associated with low-level exposures."

Cut in notice may prompt teachers to strike

By Frank Rosa
A teacher's strike this semester may be the result of an amendment proposed by the board of higher education, which would reduce the number of advance notice days given to tenured and untenured faculty before being laid off.

If a strike does occur, Dr. David W.D. Dickson, president of the college, said he will keep the school open.

"No responsible administrator can agree to a strike because strikes by state faculty are illegal," Dickson said.

If the strike goes beyond three days, Dickson said the semester could be extended to June 30, if necessary. Although graduation ceremonies would be held on May 25 as planned, seniors would still have to finish up the term in order to receive their degrees.

Whether dormitories would remain open or not has still not been resolved.

The problem began in January of 1981 when the board voted for the State College Reductions in Force Regulations (RIF), which allowed state colleges to reduce their faculty, tenured as well as untenured, in the case of a "fiscal exigency." The Council of NJ State College Locals, the union representing MSC and other state college faculty, had not been invited to force some of them to declare a fiscal emergency in order for the state to allow them to fire faculty "in some fields of study that might be in less demand."

According to T. Edward Hollander, chancellor of the department of higher education (DHE), in his memorandum to the board, the old, longer advance notice requirements would have hampered the colleges in doing that.

"In order to affect economies through the layoff of personnel," Hollander said, "the state colleges would have had to declare a fiscal exigency and send out layoff notices by Nov. 15, 1982 in order to effect a layoff on or about June 1st of 1983 under the existing provisions of the contract. Since the salary savings from a layoff in June would be very small given the fact that the academic year is almost over, a college would be compelled to substantially increase the number of persons laid off in order to balance its budget. This would, in effect, shut down the colleges."

Dr. Catherine Becker, faculty union representative at the college, said, "We will be the only state in the nation where the chancellor can call a fiscal emergency at his whim. He wants to negotiate the proposed regulations, and subsequently, sue the state. But the state supreme court voted in favor of the board in August of 1982."

A strike by state college faculty at that time was averted by a stipulation in the 1979 contract between the state and the union which required that tenured teachers be given 195 days notice and multi-year contract employees 180 days notice prior to job termination. The union regarded this as a safeguard for the faculty because it made it more costly for the colleges to "RIF" (lay off) tenured teachers.

On March 17 of this year, the board proposed an amendment to the RIF regulations which would reduce advance notice for tenured and untenured faculty to 45 days, the same as most other state civil service employees are given prior to layoff.

The impetus behind the proposal was the current financial stability of the state colleges. Earlier this year the state colleges suffered a 1.56 percent cut in state aid.

Dickson said at present neither MSC nor any of the eight other state colleges are so financially strapped that they have to fire tenured faculty. But, Dickson said, if another budget cut is imposed on the state colleges, it could See Extended semester p.4

Dr. Ruth says ignorance is biggest problem in human sexuality

By Lori Henry

"Sexually Speaking," WVNY's sexual talk show, has received a lot of talk on topics ranging from intercourse to abortion. Dr. Ruth Westheimer, a noted sex therapist, was the guest on Sunday night talk show, spoke about sexuality to MSC students at a lecture sponsored by CNA recently.

She talked about birth control, herpes, premature ejaculation, sexual intercourse, masturbation and menstruation. Her presentation was witty, candid and educational. She spoke openly about sexual functions and dysfunctions. Westheimer made the audience feel relaxed and comfortable. She entertained the audience while educating them, too.

Westheimer preached against the pill because in 1967, when it was introduced as a form of birth control, researchers did not know about the many side-effects. Although there is no perfect form of contraceptive, she said condoms and the diaphragm are the best contraceptives. While talking about birth control, she also mentioned abortion. "Abortion should not be used as a form of birth control. But, abortion would be available for contraceptive failures," she said.

Westheimer has a philosophy about teaching human sexuality. She makes it a point never to ask a personal question or put someone on the spot during a lecture or class discussion. However, she said she will always find time afterward to talk privately to someone with a personal question or problem.

According to Westheimer, ignorance is the biggest problem in talking about human sexuality. There are so many myths and falsehoods about birth control, pregnancy, sexual diseases and other topics of sexuality. People are afraid to ask a question about something they are confused about because they fear others will laugh at them, she said.

Presently, she is a professor of human sexuality at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center. She also teaches at Adelphi University and works as a therapist in private practice. Westheimer was once an instructor of the Planned Parenthood Association, where she was compelled by recurring questions on sexual matters to train as a sex therapist at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

About two years ago, while at Cornell University, she was asked to address the broadcasters of the tri-state area about sex education and sex therapy. Within one week, WVNY radio agreed to give her 15 minutes of taped airtime on Sunday at 12:15 a.m. She did this for a few weeks and asked her audience to write in and tell her what they would like her to talk about. As her show grew more popular, it was moved into the 10 p.m. time slot. It has been rated the number one talk show in the tri-state area. She averages 600 hundred calls a show, but she can only answer 20-22 calls. Half of the calls are about relationships and the other half are general sex questions.

Westheimer does not provide sex therapy on her radio show, as some critics say she does. Rather, she is educating people and giving general advice. "With my radio show, if I can prevent one unwanted pregnancy, then I have done my job," she said. She claims that you can't possibly perform sex therapy on someone you don't know and can't see.

The show has been successful, because in today's society there is a need for sex education. People want to know more about their own sexuality. There are a quarter of a million listeners and over 100 letters received each week. She tries to answer as many as possible personally, because the people want to hear from her, not her assistants.

SILC sponsors marathon to benefit blind athletes

By Corrine De Moll

The Student Intramural Leisure Council (SILC) held the Sixth Annual Volleyball Marathon recently to benefit blind athletes. SILC is expecting to raise at least $5,000—comparable to last year's figure of $4,300 from the marathon.

The team pledges, due by April 15, are estimated to raise the total from $2,000 to $5,000, according to Lisa D'Elincque, SILC's president.

Sponsors paid each participant $1 for every hour played. Teams included the SGAs, Alpha Kappa Psi, Lambda Psi, Lambda Chi, and groups for area high schools. WMSC provided non-stop music.

Proceeds will be awarded to the NJ chapter of the National Association of Blind Athletes. The chapter hopes to compete in the national championships for the blind in June, which will be held in Missoula, Montana.

Last year, transportation, hotel accommodations, and uniforms cost $15,000, according to Angelo Magnino, head coach in the chapter. He anticipates the marathon will decrease the need to be raised by additional fundraising.

If the chapter is successful in the national Olympics, winners will then compete in the International Olympics held every four years. The next international meet is scheduled for 1984.

Seperate dean's list proposed for MSC's part-time students

By Cathy Clarke

"Part-time students feel they are neglected by the administration and by the SGA. This is one reason why I believe they should have their own Dean's List," said Mark Spinelli, president of the SGA, said.

Spinelli and Dr. Roland Garrett, vice president for academic affairs are trying to get the list passed for part-time students. "If all goes well, the list will be put into effect for the fall semester," Garrett said.

Some would have liked to have gone to school recently, but weren't accepted into the program when they graduated high school.

Garrett said the administration has not decided on a specific number of credits that would be required before a part-time student could be considered. "We feel that the administration does know that the required grade point average would be 3.5, the same as it is for full-time students. A student who takes just one course and receives an A would not be eligible."

Mike Carbone, a part-time student, proposed the idea of a Dean's List to the SGA. "Right now the only recognition part-time students receive is through the Second Careers Club soon to be changed to the Non-Traditional Careers Club, to encompass all part-time students, not just the older students. They need to know that the administration does show an interest in both full- and part-time students. There are a few quirks that need to be ironed out first, but I think the chances of it being installed are good."

According to Spinelli, most part-time students are over the age of 24, have full-time jobs, and are night students, "We think it's terrific. Arise second class citizens! I feel full-time students are an elitist group."

A joint art major said, "It's great. It will give part-time students initiative to work harder."

By Patricia Winters

"Young people are on a natural high. Why accelerate it with drinking?," said Angela Peruni, assemblywoman from the 17th District, said during Alcohol Awareness Day, held recently. The one-day program emphasized the danger of drinking and driving, and was sponsored by the office of the dean of student affairs and the SGA.

According to James E. Harris, assistant dean of student affairs and co-coordinator of the program, the purpose of the day was to focus attention on the implications of alcohol use and abuse in our society and on our campus. Harris said alcoholism is an issue that people don't want to confront "even from an information standpoint."

"Most students who drink and drive don't realize their potential to cause harm to themselves and other people. We could all be victims," Harris said.

He added that Alcohol Awareness Day is only effective if people take part in the program. According to Harris, "People just don't participate. We must re-think our methods of getting students involved. We must go when they can't avoid us."

During the day the Rathskeller did not serve any alcohol.

Bruce Myers, a sophomore fine arts major and a bartender at the Rat, said more students should have attended the day's activities in order to become "aware of the psychological and physical effects of alcohol."

Michael Miller, SGA vice-president and a co-coordinator of the program, said, "Personally, one of the reasons that I stopped drinking was with an Alcohol Awareness Day that I attended. It can be effective only if students want it to be."
Latin American Literary Conference recently held at MSC

By Jackie Lola

International and national writers and critics attended the sixth annual Latin American Literary Conference at MSC recently. The conference was entitled "El Cono Sur: Dimensiones de su literatura" (The Southern Cone: Dimensions and Dynamics of its Literature). Participants came from Arizona, Ohio, South Carolina and New York, as well as Chile, Argentina and Canada, and included writer Gonzalo Rojas and sociologist Juan Corradi. A welcome was extended to all participants by Dr. Roland Garrett, vice president for academic affairs, and Dr. Phillip Cohen, dean of the schools of humanities and social sciences. According to Cohen, "The society is currently obsessed with business and commerce. Literature, on the other hand, remains a great vehicle for sanity and logic, but will represent humanistic elements. These conferences will continue as long as the faculty involved is willing to put forth the dedication and commitment it takes to organize such an important gala."

One of the controversies about the amendment was that the new amendment would pose an "attack on their academic freedom." Becker said. "Some 17 states have cut tenured faculty. I hope it doesn't happen in New Jersey." Dickson said the amendment issue will be raised at a meeting of the council on April 12 and at the MSC board of trustees meeting on April 14. If a strike does occur, Dickson said his office will notify the students through flyers, memorandum and the media.

Dickson: "They're fearful some of these ill-tempered, judicious, wicked, old presidents will get rid of some of these rabble-rousers who don't kiss their toes regularly."

Dissatisfied with the guidelines a state college must follow in order to declare itself in a financial emergency, Becker said he doesn't know who proposed the amendment and that the union was never consulted on the matter. "The chancellor wants to turn a closer look at these possibilities. Becker said feedback from Co-Op students who have received jobs in fields will be essential in the decision-making process." Becker said that the union representative told Dickson that the new amendment would create a "second class faculty" and would pose an "attack on their academic freedom" to speak out on controversial issues in the classroom.

The board went from no activity to radical activity without exploring any alternatives," Becker said. "Many faculty members could earn higher salaries in industries other than teaching. It's truly disgusting." Dickson said he sympathized with the union. "Some 17 states have cut tenured faculty. I hope it doesn't happen in New Jersey." Dickson said the amendment issue will be raised at a meeting of the council on April 12 and at the MSC board of trustees meeting on April 14. If a strike does occur, Dickson said his office will notify the students through flyers, memorandum and the media.

In the meantime, both sides are hoping the students understand their position. "In the long run, the students will suffer more than anybody else," Dickson said. "I think that's very unfortunate." "I think the students should consider the consequences of this action," Becker said. "Will faculty still be able to speak out on subjects that may anger the administration? Without protection, the faculty's ability to speak freely without reprisals will be greatly eroded. If that happens, you will attract less able people to the state colleges. Only hope it's not too late to prevent a strike," Becker said.

The EPA's finding are supported by the Encyclopedia of Occupational Health and Safety (EOHS). Asbestos was first used in Finland in 2,500 B.C. to make clay pots more durable. 1983 Graduates must work harder to find employment

By Janine S. Myatt

The present recessionary period has caused vast changes in the employment process. Major employers are laying off massive numbers of employees (and not necessarily only those "last hired"). Additionally, many also have hiring freezes in effect. That means that the members of the class of 1983 will have to work much harder to help themselves find employment than did prior classes. The difficulties are increased for African and Hispanic Americans who are also faced with the persistent barriers of discrimination.

Furthermore, the recent government movement toward the weakening of Affirmative Action will permit corporations to implement whatever hiring practices they choose.

We cannot afford to relax and depend just on our college degrees, race, and Affirmative Action.

We must see to it that we develop the skills that employers in our particular career field will be looking for.

We must keep in mind that there are so many qualified individuals unemployed that the employers can list as many qualifications as they please and there will be candidates who can meet those qualifications.

We must see to it that we meet those qualifications and effectively market ourselves. We must have the most "effective" resume possible and energetically communicate our competency to the employer during the interview.

According to Linwood McDaniel in Business Week's Guide to Careers, "Success within the corporate structure is not easily obtainable by anyone and the margin of error is not wide enough to cover average candidates; to be chosen, minority applicants must often appear to have superstar ability or unique credentials."

To pull ourselves up to these standards, however, requires a great deal of planning and preparation—planning that should start as early, or earlier, than freshman year.

The corporate world has its written and unwritten rules and its captains and team players, and thus has often been compared to a game. As in any game, the four factors that are essential to success are getting into the game, knowing all the rules of the game, knowing the key players, and being able to compete.

Referendum fails for third consecutive year due to low voter turn out

By Mona Sehgal

The SGA referendum failed for the third consecutive year because of low student voter turnout. Approximately 11 percent of student voter participation was needed in order for the referendum to pass. The referendum would have raised SGA fees from two dollars to three dollars per credit.

Two percent or about 300 additional votes did not register because students did not know how to use the machines. They mistakenly returned the voting lever to the original position when they should have left the lever down. Students who will be graduating can get measured for caps and gowns beginning next week in the MSC bookstore.

While seniors are preparing for graduation, MSC is getting ready for its 75th anniversary. Dr. Thomas Stepnowski, director of student affairs, said that all MSC clubs and organizations must submit what they plan to do for the celebration by May 1.

Fifteen hundred dollars was appropriated for the annual SGA banquet to be held in May. Weekend College was appropriated $5200 for the Latin carnival to be held on April 17. The Human Relations Organization was granted a renewal of its Class I charter and the karate club was granted a Class II charter.

Health effects of asbestos

Another hazard of asbestos is asbestos corns. These are warts which penetrate the skin, usually around the fingers or under the eyelids. In the latter case, if the warts are not removed, a person will eventually go blind.

It is estimated that six out of ten people with high exposure to asbestos will die. As quoted in The Voice, "Twenty-seven million Americans with significant exposure—plumbers and shipbuilders, boilermakers and auto mechanics—can anticipate a death rate 50 percent higher than the general population and cancer death rates three times as high. Asbestos-related cancer will claim 200,000 victim by the century's end, or about one every hour."

About one out of every ten people with high asbestos exposure will die of mesothelioma. An estimated 1,500 people will get the disease this year and about 40,000 by the turn of this century.

Other lethal dangers of asbestos include cancer of the lungs (the most common), stomach, pancreas, larynx, esophagus and kidney. Four out of ten with high asbestos exposure will die of these.

Preventive measures must take place in the form of enclosing machines that produce asbestos products and putting local exhaust ventilation at specific areas where the equipment has to be opened.

Beth Hannigan's flowing red hair is her 'mane' attraction

By Eileen Oleksaik

In the 60's, growing one's hair long was usually considered an act of rebellion. The number of long hair enthusiasts in the 60's, however, has dwindled considerably and their focus has shifted from a defiant to an aesthetic nature.

This is especially true for Beth Hannigan, a junior office systems major, who abandoned her Farrah Fawcett hair-do about five years ago for a look that she says is more natural and ultimately more beautiful.

Beth arrived at the decision to grow her hair with the help of her hairdresser, George Michael of Madison Avenue, whose long list of clients include Liv Ullman and Valerie Harper. His motto is, "If you have long hair, we love you. If you want to grow your hair long, we'll help you."

For Beth, the result of her effort has been mostly positive. Michael said she looks even more striking because of her hair color, which he calls cherry silver. Beth just calls it "plain old red."

"When I was younger I used to get teased by the boys. It's funny, because from people. I'll be eating in a restaurant and someone will say, 'hey, is that your own hair color? If it is, it's beautiful.' I figure that it's my turn to show them that because she is only 5'5" she really is too short for the profession. "I was approached by a local photographer who took a few rolls of film of yours truly. He told me that there are many alternatives to high fashion modeling and that for some reason, there is a demand for red-heads. He said he's going to show my pictures to the producer of the new movie, Ups and Downs. I'm not going to get excited until I get some actual offers. Until then, I have enough to keep me occupied."

Indeed she does. Presently, Beth has a part-time job with IBM, which she obtained through Career Services. She trains secretaries how to use electronic typewriters and coordinates computer and word processor seminars. She said she loves to teach and is even involved with a volunteer tutor program at MSC through which she helps a bilingual student learn the English language.

For exercise, Beth likes to run. So far, she has worked her way up to two miles a day and is hoping to reach the six-mile mark by summer.

Beth has also developed an interest for target shooting. "It takes an extreme amount of concentration and also a fair amount of skill, but I do find it very relaxing. I know this may seem like an unusual pastime, but it really isn't something out of the ordinary when your dad's a cop."

In addition, Beth likes to write. She is a transfer student from The Berkeley School at Garret Mountain. While there, she was a co-editor of the school newspaper. For a semester now, she has been eager to write. Finally, she made the decision to join The Montclarion. Look for her upcoming feature article on student defaulter.

Summer advanced registration changed

There has been a change in the advanced registration procedures for the 1983 summer sessions. Students who register during advanced registration, which runs from April 4-15, will be mailed a bill on April 28, 1983. Payment of tuition and submission of completed financial aid forms are due back in the business office by May 6, 1983. Tuition must not be submitted along with the course request form.

Advanced registration materials will be sent to graduate, part-time and weekend college students who were enrolled in the Summer 1982. Students who submit their bills with payment by the May 6, 1983 deadline will be scheduled. The established time frame does not allow for extension of payment. These students will be sent schedules on May 23, 1983. This will give any student who does not receive a full schedule the opportunity to attend in-person registration with a priority time. Students who receive the courses they requested through advanced registration will not have to attend in-person registration and will use their schedule as an admit slip to class.

Students who do not take advantage of advanced registration are advised to follow the procedure for in-person registration as described in the "Summer Sessions" booklet.
The Media must show greater concern with the news they report

In print journalism, cracking the "big story" is every reporter's dream. In TV journalism it's getting that spectacular piece of film footage. But today, especially in TV journalism, a line must be drawn as to what is news and what is not. Sometimes a story that people consider newsworthy is really just a cruel, senseless display of madness.

There were only three people in the newsroom when they received the call at WHMA-TV. Having made a quick decision, they decided to cover the story and notify the police. The newspeople went to the scene and setup their cameras. When the caller approached them, he doused himself with lighter fluid and set himself on fire. A nearby fireman extinguished the flames a few seconds later, but the man had already received second and third-degree burns over half of his body. WHMA showed the edited film footage the following evening on its news program.

What happened at WHMA is tragic and raises a number of questions as to what should and should not be covered. The decision to cover a story such as this was a poor one, but stations as well as newspapers are entering a difficult era. The power of film and the printed word should not be used carelessly or hastily. Yes, news teams and film crews work under a great deal of pressure, but definite guidelines pertaining to these situations must be set up. Everyone working for the station or newspaper must be aware of the potential hazards that could arise in dealing with stories of this kind. Yes, first amendment rights must be protected, but the media must carefully consider when a story is news, and not a cruel display that will only be encouraged. A good example of this is the case of Doctor Ruth Westheimer.

I was on campus last week and discovered a heart-breaking thing: college life actually goes on without me. Sigh. And here I thought MSC would fall apart without someone pointing out its flaws every week—in writing. I went to the Rat for solace. "Merry! You're back! I knew all those rumors were lies." "Not true, Rich. I'm just slum—er, visiting. What's new? Why are all those pennants on the walls? Did the athletic department start bringing home souvenirs or are the Ivy League banners just wishful thinking?" "They're supposed to add atmosphere. Can't you feel the improvement?" "No." "Oh. Well, have you been keeping up with the news? What do you think about the deadbots in Partridge Hall?" "I'm surprised that nobody caught on to the real reason behind them, Rich. The fire hazard wasn't the front." "What do you mean?" "How many professors have offices on the fourth floor? How many are up for tenure this year?" "Really, Meryl, starting a fire just to prevent a few professors from getting tenure is a bit drastic, don't you think?" "Oh, there wouldn't have been a fire. That's not necessary. Being locked in Partridge is enough. Think about it: you're a professor at this college, working late on a Friday night, nothing but leaving the college for a weekend of peace and quiet on your mind. Then you find yourself unable to leave your office building. It's enough to cause anyone heart failure, and some of those professors are getting on in years."

I never thought of that: I guess it would be cheaper than tenure. "You know it. Mininberg's no fool." "Do you think he's got a shot at the top spot now that Dickson's made it official?"

"Not a chance. He should know by now that search committees don't pick in-house candidates any more. The last administrator to rise up through the ranks was probably Blanton."

"Were you here that long ago? I know you spent more than four years here, but didn't Blanton have 22 years at MSC?"

"You know, Rich, for someone who's on the 10 year plan, you make an awful lot of noise about the time I took to graduate. When's the 1985 yearbook coming out? Will we see it by the end of the decade?"

"You don't have to get nasty about it. Forget it. What about Armstrong? Will she have a chance?"

That's a tough one. I don't think so, but even if she doesn't, it will hardly matter. So many departments have been restructured under student affairs that some people have started to call her "The Dean Who Ate MSC." If she keeps it up, nobody will even notice that MSC's changing presidents."

"That's not very nice." "I don't have to be nice any more. I'm not a student." "Did you catch the big news of last semester?"

"You mean the faculty senate censuring Dr. Dickson? Yes, I read about it." "And?"

"For an organization that's done absolutely nothing in the past to influence the way Trenton allot our money, they've got an awful lot of chutzpah to blame all our financial problems on one man. It's not Dickson's fault that he hasn't got the power of a Blustein."

"Yes, but he's president. Don't you think he could have done more?"

"Short of kidnapping the governor and holding him for ransom, no., I think Dr. Dickson did his best. You can't ask for much more than that. And given the choice between academic excellence or an abundance of money. I would choose the academics. More money doesn't necessarily buy you better teachers. Only better-paid ones."

"I think you're being awfully hard on the faculty senate."

"Really? What did they do during the student strike? How effective were they during the teachers' strikes? Where were they when Trenton raised tuition year after year after year? They have a new president and suddenly they're roaring like tigers. Better watch out. Nobody puts a match to them."

"You haven't changed, Meryl," Rich sighed. "Sure I have," I assured him. "I'm not as nasty as I used to be."

Right-winger's fascist lecturer blasted by Furr

To the editor:

In his letter to the editor (The Montclarion, March 17), Mr. Intorre corrects the error he made in a guest lecturer discussion. But little else he says is correct.

The speakers he mentions are all effective supporters of the system of capitalism that "right-wingers" like Mr. Intorre worship. If he chose to study the students of the 1960s against the Vietnam War and racism by promoting drug use.

Rather than using "verifiable facts" to expose and oppose them, however, Mr. Intorre proposes simply to go a little farther along the same lines. The CIA has been crushing workers' movements and democratic unions around the world for 30 years in a manner the CIA fighters can only envy but which It be of the larynx or any other part of the body. Asbestos can be found in offices, practice rooms, locker rooms, student rooms, lounge areas,-stairwells, and lobbies. All of these places are used by students and the administration at least once during any given day.

The condition of the asbestos in many instances, as stated in the re­port, is "in excellent condition" or with "minimal damage." But even if the material is in "good condition" or with "minimal damage," it should not even be present on this campus because of documented reports and studies that have proven that asbestos causes cancer.

The recommendation for the care of the asbestos, included in this report, only provides measures to contain the present asbestos. The asbestos present on this campus must be removed for the safety of everyone.

Every minute that a person is in a room that contains asbestos increases the chances that he/she will in later years, develop cancer. It is true that some people may never develop cancer, but the ones who do may attribute some of the cause to being exposed to asbestos while working and/or attending classes here at MSC.

The asbestos problem needs to be resolved with the removal of all asbestos materials from the campus for the safety and welfare of everyone who visits, works, and/or attends classes at MSC. There are enough materials that have been proven to cause cancer. There was also another cancerous material exposed to us so that we are in even greater danger of losing our lives to cancer.

Group discusses race relations

To the editor:

Dean James E. Harris decided to stop talking about the racial issue here at MSC and do something about it. He formed a group of students from different races and backgrounds who were concerned about the issue and felt positive things can change. This slight change, which may ripple outward toward the rest of the college community began March 2.

The group has been badly needed. Races at MSC tend to segregate vol­untarily. Although Dean Harris does not promote integration per se, he feels, along with the students involved, that a college [environment] could be used to learn about the differences of races and to determine first hand if these beliefs are valid.

At the first meeting we introduced ourself and numbered about 30. Our homework was to discuss with three members of our race to determine what barriers existed between the races and why we didn't associate more often with different races. In our second meeting on March 9, on the fourth floor of the Student Center, it was determined that ignorance is a major barrier. Our homework was the same as before except that it was to talk with three people of a different race as to what the barriers are.

It is important to maintain somewhat of an equal balance in our discussions so that it will not make people defensive.

I believe this group is very functional in that we are at least talking to each other for one hour every two weeks. Through this it is hoped that better communication will continue.

Basing loans on student grades would be unfair

To the editor:

I am writing this letter because I was enraged after reading a letter to the editor by Mr. White (The Montclair, March 17). He compared the students who fought against the financial aid cuts to "children just notified of diminution in their allowance. At worst, revolutionaries." First of all, people who stand up for their rights when it is so much easier to be apathetic are hardly children. They are adults. Secondly, Mr. White talks of revolutionaries as though they were something horrible. Has he forgotten his history? If it had not been for such revolutionaries as Jesus of Nazareth, Thomas Jefferson, and Martin Luther King, Jr., the world would be in a much worse state.

Next he wrote, about the fight against the cuts, "we lost ourselves in this thing..." This is not the students' fault. If President Reagan did not do so much to offend the people he serves, these students would never have gotten lost. As for the students' proposals, which he said were "...beret of new ideas..." I ask Mr. White to maintain the old ideas. (Now who is the revolutionary?)

Mr. White goes on in his letter with an idea to base financial aid on a merit system, that is to base it on some type of academic test. As a future educator, I feel Mr. White is missing the point. Such a school system would be unfair to some segment of the population. However, even if an absolutely fair test were produced, the result would still be unfair.

Those schools which are high in academic quality are usually in wealthy or middle class areas, such as schools in West Essex. And those schools which are lower academically are in poorer areas, such as schools in the poor sections of Newark or Jersey City.

Can we possibly compare students from these two areas, fairly? I think not. Under Mr. White's system the better educated would be the poorer people, the people who could use the financial aid the least would most likely get it. Those people who are worse educated would be the poorer people, the people who would use the financial aid the most. Hence, simply because someone is poor or someone lives in a poor section, they should be denied the right to attend college.

But Mr. White argues this by saying, "Life is full of standards." I think education is far too important to set standards, such as he proposes. And what right does anyone have to say which people get an education and which people do not. The system is already very unfair, let us not make it any worse.

Finally, I would like to comment on Mr. White's remark which read, "...we, the students..." Students should be denied the right to attend college [without them MSC would be a ghost town]...I do care. And I know you would be here. I do care. And I know many other people who would be here with me from your point of view. Mr. White, you would most likely be one of them.

Services of the Women’s Center

* The Women Helping Women (W.H.W.) program is a peer counseling and referral service located in the Student Center, Room 421. It consists of a group of 15 women counselors of various ages who have been carefully chosen through an interview process, and trained in counseling techniques. The peer counseling commitment includes an intensive weekend training seminar and four counseling hours weekly in the W.H.W. office. Personal growth, as well as helping others, is a benefit of being involved in the program.

* One new student member of the Women’s Center Advisory Board is: Jodi Walsh, Sharon Caruso, and Cathy Orazum. They serve as student representatives of the Drop-In Center.

* On Monday, April 4, and Wednesday, April 6 a table will be set up in the Student Center Lobby. Information about the Women’s Center and its programs, the Women’s Studies minor, W.H.W., and Students for the Awareness of Gender Equality (SAGE), will be available. Materials from off-campus organizations will also be on hand.

Upperclassmen only in Freeman

To the editor:

It is to my understanding that as of fall 1983 an upperclassmen dormitory will no longer exist. Freeman Hall will be considered a residency hall for all students—including freshmen.

As a resident of Freeman Hall, I strongly disagree with this decision. I feel the upperclassmen should have priorities, as well as privileges, and having their own dormitory is one of them.

Most upperclassmen are more serious, mature, and settled down. On the other hand, freshmen tend to be more free spirited and care less about what the questions are. Stating that any of these speakers are unpatriotic or care less about our country that so called right-wing advocates is ludicrous. As to his notion that they are polluting the air, I suggest that Mr. Intorre take a good look at President Reagan's stand on big business and environmental protection, and see who is doing the real polluting.

I would like to point out that these speakers urge social reform and civil rights. It is possible that Mr. Intorre would like to see us return to attitudes such as those of Mr. Intorre himself.

We would like to conclude by agreeing with Mr. Intorre on one point, that is that no one can fertilize the right-wing side of the fence like G. Gordon Liddy. We would like to see us return to attitudes and programs which we feel are more conservative, but instead of being right-wing extremists, we favor a more middle of the road course. We favor hearing such lecturers as Dick Gregory, Ralph Nader, and Abbie Hoffman. Not because we totally agree with them, but because we are open minded.

We realize that they may not have all the answers, but at least they know what the questions are. Stating that any of these speakers are unpatriotic or care less about our country is not true. It is this type of belligerent nationalism that confines us and prevents us from reaching our goals.

We would like to see us return to the attitude that Mr. Intorre himself is doing the real polluting.

Reagan’s stand on big business and environmental protection, and see who is doing the real polluting. I suggest that Mr. Intorre himself return to the right-wing side of the fence like G. Gordon Liddy.

Liberals met with open minds

To the editor:

To the editor: I recently had a photography show in Gallery II in the Calcia Arts Building, and I was surprised by the immature actions of some people.

Gallery II provides a valuable service for the MSC. All members of the MSC can display their artwork and receive constructive criticism, and that's why I was surprised by the immature actions of some people.

Some of the '4-letter' epithets I received had nothing to do with photography, but were better suited to a bathroom wall. It also hurts to see my prints, which I have spent time and effort preparing, spoiled and torn, as I see them.

You can help keep Gallery II open for the serious critique of art! Thank you.

The Uncle Floyd Show's first album is devoid of any humor

By Frank Rosa

On January 29, 1974 an obscure, young vaudevilleian named Floyd Vivino made his first appearance on an equally obscure station in West Orange known as WTVG (now WWHT) in Newark. The boondocks of television's vast wasteland included, Floyd, and a station known as UHF. Through his comic guidance and door-to-door salesmanship, "The Uncle Floyd Show" became a cult classic in NJ and eventually the highest-rated UHF program in the history of the medium, with over 100,000 regular viewers. Recently, a collection of songs and comedy bits from the show were assembled in a record album aptly entitled, The Uncle Floyd Show Album.

Produced and arranged by Floyd's brother Jimmy, recorded at the Biola Studios in Totowa, and distributed by Mercury Records, this lp represents an unfulfilling synopsis of a show that became the pride of the Garden State before the Meadowlands became a major sports center and Atlantic City became a gambling mecca.

Side one starts out nicely with the familiar "Uncle Floyd Show Theme," a crazy carousel of sounds in the Spike Jones tradition.

However, the whole album goes downhill from there. "Oogie's Boogie," sung by Floyd's little sponge-headed puppet, is a stupid little ditty that pitifully takes the place of the usual, lively banter between the two.

From there, we go to "September in the Rain," a nice old standard that would sound much nicer on another album.

The Dull Family does a nasal-twanged, anaesthetic, unhumanized version of "There's No Business Like Show Business." It is funny enough, but a comedy bit would have been even funnier.

Mugsy follows with his impersonation of Bruce Springsteen—called Bruce Stringbean—singing an original composition called "On the Boardwalk." Unfortunately, Mugsy's Springsteen sounds more like his impression of Tom Waits.

We go through five—count 'em—five songs before we get to a comedy bit, which is entitled "Pasquale's Pizza." Mrs. Giambalone (Charie Stoddard): My daughter Carmela... she's a finally getting married. Pasquale (Floyd): She's a gonna get married!? How old is Carmela? Giambalone: She's 47-years-old. Pasquale: Oh, why she wanna rush into marriage like a crazy girl? Giambalone: Ah, whatta ya gonna do?

The side ends with Symon Offkey (Floyd) singing "On the Sunny Side of the Street."—you guessed it—off-key. About this time, avid Uncle Floyd fans would probably be asking: "Where's Don Gumba? Where's the Billionaire? Where's Larry Bling? Where's Joe Frankfurter?" The answer: Nowhere on this album.

Instead of comedy routines, we get more muzak.

Side two begins with Cowboy Charlie (Floyd) crooning two songs. The first is "T—For Turnpike," an insipid tune that deserves to be run over by a speeding diesel. The other is an old Uncle Floyd standard, "Deep in the Heart of Jersey," which many Jerseyites think should replace "Born To Run" as our state anthem.

"Oh, the factory smoke will make you choke, deep in the heart of Jersey/ The city of love in big packs, deep in the heart of Jersey."

Beside the theme, it's the only song that belongs on the album.

Next is the "Interview of the Week" with host Scott Gordon talking with Komrad Komik (Floyd) of Russia.

Gordon: The crime rate in your country is really low... what do you attribute this? Komik: We've got nothing to rob.

The bit seems a little stale, but it's still very humorous. Nevertheless, where was "Loony" Skip Rooney and his cast of human laugh tracks? We go through another old chestnut, "Exactly Like You," before we get to the "Polka Show," where we're bombarded by yet another insipid song. Stoddard, the most talented of Floyd's cast, is the laughing crooner on this one. Where's Tiny Thomas? Where's Sylvester Gavone? What a waste of talent! Stoddard should sue.

Next up, Rooney does his famous Mr. Oh Yeah. Instead of an ancient comedy routine, we have to settle for his poor imitation of Jimmy Durante singing. Oh, no. "Josephina Please No Leans on the Belt" is an old Italian novelty song that should please the old Italians in his audience. "Felicia No Capisha" would have pleased them more, however. The Vivino Brothers Band combines with three other musicians to do "Alabama Jubilee." They seem to be having a wonderful time. If only the same could be said for the people listening to this album.

Floyd ends the album with Jacques DuCrow, a gargling frogman, accompanied by the Tidy Bowl Men, who inexplicably get flushed down the toilet bowl. It is perfect metaphor for this album.

All totaled, there are only four good tracks out of 16 on this lp. Four out of 16! For a slick fielding shortstop, it's a respectable batting average. For an Uncle Floyd album, any album, it's a lousy output.

A year ago, NBC telecast "The Uncle Floyd Show" during the graveyard hours and, shortly afterward, cancelled the show. In mid-February, Uncle Floyd took his last bow on Channel 68. Now, WHT broadcasts the "best" of Uncle Floyd once a week. Many fans said Uncle Floyd sold out. Floyd said he didn't.

If this album is any indication, the fans are right.

Canadian rock band 'Triumphs'

By Julius Spada

Rush, the most popular band to come out of Toronto, is running into strong opposition these days from the Toronto based band Triumph. Triumph consists of Rik Emmett on guitars and vocals, Mike Levine on bass, piano, and organ, and Gil Moore on drums and vocals.

Triumph's latest album Never Surrender combines all of the characteristics that have been attributed to them throughout their eight year existence. Their style of music is loud, crisp, and precise.

Rik Emmett's fluent style of guitar playing and his clear voice are as steady as ever on this album. Rick, whose name was misspelled from its original Rick, on an earlier Triumph album decided to have it legally changed to Rik. His name was misspelled from its original Rick, on an earlier Triumph album decided to have it legally changed to Rik. "I've had enough experience with music business bureaucracy to know that it would be easier to change my name than to get the album corrected" he said. All avid readers of Hit Parader magazine know about Rick from his "Rocktoons" cartoons that are frequently featured in the magazine.

To date, Triumph has put out six albums (six in Canada, and five in the U.S.) five of which have gone gold, and two of the five later achieved platinum status. They have come a long way from their first concert appearance at Simcoe High School where they performed for the small fee of $750 in 1975.

Many bands are asked the infamous question, which do you prefer more, recording or performing? According to Gil Moore, "If you want great sound, sit at home and listen to your stereo. Nothing can match the feeling of the building actually vibrating, but live rock is power, and there is nothing else like it.

This album, like their previous one, seems to be making a statement about the times. "Fathom if you can burning bridges, concrete and clay," is a line from the song "Too Much Thinking," which is about the threat of a nuclear attack. The song "Battleground," focuses on the uselessness of war. "The Thrill Of The Fight, killing's such a noble deed/ and John said 'love is all we need'/ should we forget or pause a moment to regret where have we been."

All of the songs seem to be telling people to take time out and read the writing on the wall. If this is where we want to be going, then let's go all the way. If not, then we must veer off this beaten track. Then again, the meaning could be different in every head.

What makes this album different from past "Triumph" albums? According to Rik, "It is a gargantuan ambient drum sound and an attention to lyrical detail and vocal performance. The songs are better written and arranged than on previous albums. They are tighter, shorter, and more coherent, without any b.s."

Marshall Tucker Band boogies

By Dean A. Cannarozzi

Categorizing the music of The Marshall Tucker Band is as difficult as predicting what Bob Dylan will do on his next album. Their newest release, Just Us, further exemplifies their diverse and buoyant sound.

Born in the early '70s, "Southern Boogie" bands were distinguished by prodigious guitar solos termed "jarrs." Newer trends in the music business call for less voluminous tracks with a greater concentration on the quality of recording rather than the quantity. Bands such as The Allman Brothers and The Charlie Daniels Band have not successfully integrated their music to down-home country blues. All these Boogie bands were distinguished by their...

Laxmen axe FDU over break romping to a 21-10 victory

By Jim Fritz

The men's lacrosse team played their most crucial game of the season against Fairleigh Dickinson University (Madison) at Sprague Field over spring break. The Indians have only defeated FDU once in nine years and they wanted this win for a shot at the NCAA playoffs. The Indians came through with a 21-10 victory over the Devils.

The first quarter was extremely close as each team continually traded goals. Kurt Sahslstrom kept MSC alive with three goals while FDU tallied with three as well. Kevin Oxley's goal with an assist by Sal Guastella early in the period gave MSC a 2-1 lead at the end of the quarter.

In the second period, MSC took the lead on goals by Jerry Jacob, Chris Strazza and Mario Miraga. Goalie Steve Dudasik shut down FDU's attack with superb saves to keep MSC ahead. By the end of the first half the score was 7-5, MSC.

With runners on first and second, Sue Klein drew another walk to load the bases. That set the stage for Ann Marie Smith's line drive base hit to left field, bringing in Zocard.

With the bases still loaded, Debbie Dietrich lined a base hit to left-center field, scoring Whidden and Klein. Right fielder Lori DeLuca then followed and grounded out to third, forcing Smith for a double play.

After Debbie Dietrich easily stole third base, she then scored on an errant throw by the Lehman catcher. With a runner on second base, captain Lisa Baginski singled to left, driving in the runner. Hughes came up with a single, sending Baginski to third, and then caught everyone off guard by stealing second base.

With runners on second and third, Dana Fantel reached first base on an error, scoring both Baginski and Hughes. With Fantel on first and two outs, Zocard singled to move Fantel to third. Whidden followed with a walk to load the bases, but Klein then grounded out to the pitcher to end the inning.

The Indians struck for two more runs in the second inning, highlighted by DeLuca's RBI single and consecutive errors by Lehman infielders resulting in the other run. The Indians struck for two more runs in the third inning, taking the lead to 10 with Klein's sacrifice fly to right field.

The Indians scored their fourth goal in the third inning with the aid of a deflected shot and immediately Maritime answered with a goal of their own. In the meantime, starting pitcher Carol Dorozio was nothing but fantastic. We continue our strong hitting and our aggressive base running.

An Indian defender closely guards an FDU Devil to help MSC defeat the Madison campus team for the first time in nine years. High scorers Kevin Oxley and Sal Guastella led the Indian attack, downsing the Devils 21-10.

By John Peterson

The MSC varsity softball team opened their season with an impressive 22-0 rout over Lehman College behind the heroics of Ann Marie Smith and Debbie Dietrich.

The first baseman Smith and the left fielder Dietrich combined for six hits and seven runs batted in (RBI) as the Indians exploded for 16 hits in the game.

The Indians erupted with eight runs in the first inning. The rally began when Karen Hughes led off with a walk, then took third on a sacrifice by Dana Fantel. Catcher Toni Zocard followed with an RBI single to right field and scored. Zocard then stole second and stayed there as Sharrin Whidden drew a walk. With runners on second and third, Sue Klein drew another walk to load the bases. That set the stage for Ann Marie Smith's line drive base hit to left field, bringing in Zocard.

With the bases still loaded, Debbie Dietrich lined a base hit to left-center field, scoring Whidden and Klein. Right fielder Lori DeLuca then followed and grounded out to third, forcing Smith for a double play.

After Debbie Dietrich easily stole third base, she then scored on an errant throw by the Lehman catcher. With a runner on second base, captain Lisa Baginski singled to left, driving in the runner. The Indians struck for two more runs in the second inning, highlighted by DeLuca's RBI single and consecutive errors by Lehman infielders resulting in the other run. The Indians struck for two more runs in the third inning when Klein began the rally with a two-out walk. Smith then followed with an RBI double to deep left-center field. With Smith on second, Dietrich then singled to left field, scoring Smith. The rally ended when DeLuca grounded out to short to end the inning.

In the meantime, starting pitcher Carol Dorozio was nothing but fantastic. In the four innings she pitched before being removed because of the inclement weather, she struck out an amazing seven batters, while walking only one.

Dorozio was constantly ahead of all the batters and continuously frustrated the Lehman team, which was only able to get one hit off of her.

In the second inning, Dorozio struck out the side as the Indians supplied her with a commanding 8-0 lead.

While so much is being said about their hitting and pitching, the Indians' aggressive base running must also be taken into consideration. The Indians stole an impressive five bases during the game and were caught only once.

Altogether it was a very impressive outing for the Indians, about which Olson was very happy. "We played very well today and our pitching was fantastic. I hope we continue our strong hitting and our aggressive base running," Olson said.

MSC third baseman Ron Koos readies for an incoming Warrior in Friday's game against ESSC. The Indians took both games for their fourth win in a row continuing their winning streak to defeat Bloomfield, Rutgers and Pace earlier this week. Their overall record is now 10-5.

Season opener victorious for men's lacrosse by one over Maritime

By Frank DiPietro

The MSC lacrosse team opened their season with a narrow 14-13 victory over New York Maritime lead by team co-captain Kevin Oxley's seven points and two assists. Oxley's nine points of the game brought him within 11 of the MSC all-time scoring record of 167 points.

Midfielder Jerry Jacob opened the first period with an unassisted goal followed two minutes later by Oxley with two points. Kevin Manrielli earned Maritime's only goal of the period between Oxley's first two points of the game.

The Indians scored their fourth goal by consistent passing. MSC worked around the Maritime laxmen with perseverance looking for an opening in their tight defense. Maritime's goalie blocked an attempted shot but cleared the goal to an awaiting Indian, enabling Doug Matthews to score unassisted.

MSC's last goal of the first period came after a fast break by the Indians. Oxley quickly ran the ball up the middle to the Maritime zone, passing it to the left corner of the net where MSC's Sal Guastella speedily put it in. The Indians led 5-1 at the close of the first period.

Guastella scored the introductory goal of the second period with the aid of a deflected shot and immediately Maritime answered with a goal of their own by Mike Matthews. That...
