New policy prohibits alcohol in Rat and dorms

By Mary Miele

Students returning to MSC this fall will notice some changes regarding alcohol on campus.

Since the establishment of tougher drinking laws throughout the state, the Rathskeller has stopped serving alcohol. The drinking age is now 21, but the “grandfather clause” allows those under 21 who were able to drink under the old law to keep their right. This expires Dec. 31, 1984, after which only 21 year olds will be able to drink legally.

Due to this law, only a maximum 30 percent of the college community is of drinking age. According to Dr. Jean Armstrong, vice president for student affairs, the Rat has to remain “economically viable.” This would be achieved if the greatest number of students are allowed to continue to patronize the Rat if only to buy food.

Last year the Rat set up non-alcoholic and alcoholic sections, separated by a check point station. Armstrong said that reinstating such a policy where only some people are allowed to drink would create a “class society” in the facility. “How much fun would it be to watch others drinking?” Armstrong said.

Last year, beginning at 8:00 p.m. on Thursday nights, only those of legal age were admitted in the Rat, and alcohol was served. According to Dan Cappa, general manager of the Rat, there weren’t any problems at that time, even though it’s traditionally been known as a party night for students. When the Rat had an identification check, there was a controlled method of keeping underage students and guests from drinking.

Last semester, a committee was formed to discuss options for those who are of legal drinking age. The committee, consisting of members of the Faculty Student Co-op, the SGA, and Armstrong’s office, decided to create a pub in the Formal Dining Room on the second floor of the Student Center. Alcohol is now being served there from 2:00 p.m. until 11:00 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

Responding to complaints that there are no signs posted for the pub, Armstrong said that she “has no feelings about whether or not the pub is advertised. But, the college does not want to go out of its way to promote the pub because of the new drinking laws.”

Cappa said state laws govern alcohol advertising; bars are prohibited from promoting brands of alcohol or incentives such as dollar drinks. According to Cappa, most students who now patronize the pub go in only at night, whereas the Rat regularly attracted a daytime and an evening crowd.

Currently, there are no bands scheduled to perform in the upstairs pub, nor is there a jockey box for the students’ entertainment. Hence, students have no place to informally meet and dance. To compensate, many students are having parties in the Clove Road apartments, despite restrictive changes in housing alcohol policy.

Under this new policy, Raymond Stover, director of housing, said that no alcohol is allowed in the dormitories and no kegs are allowed in the Clove apartments. A first offense would place a student on probation and a second offense would warrant a recommendation for dismissal.

Thus far, 12 people from the dormitories have been placed on probation and two Bohn Hall residents have been recommended for dismissal. One of these individuals was said to have used alcohol excessively last semester and was warned to stop. The student was immediately dismissed this semester because this violation was viewed by housing as a second offense.

Board commemorates deceased faculty

By Dianne Traflet

Resolutions commemorating four deceased MSC professors were read at last week’s board meeting. Professor Joseph Bella of the speech and theater department, Dr. Leah Koditschek of the biology department, Dr. Doris Kraemer of the psychology department, and Dr. Larry Stanton of the philosophy and religion department all died during the summer recess.

Bella, who was on sabbatical last spring, taught classes such as, “History or Costume,” “Stage Make-up,” and “Costume Construction.” He joined the staff in 1973 with a bachelor of fine arts degree from Carnegie Mellon University, and two years later, completed graduate studies at the Catholic University of America. The masters degree in fine arts he received is considered the highest degree in his field.

As overall supervisor for the Major Theater Series (MTS), Bella received wide acclaim for his MTS costumes. In 1980, he received the American College Theater Festival’s Citation of Excellence in costume design.

In addition, Bella designed many productions of the Olney Theater, the Great Lakes Shakespeare Festival, the Philadelphia Drama Guild, the Baltimore Opera, the Washington Opera, the Minnesota Opera, and the Lake George Opera Festival. Bella made his Broadway debut with the Circle in the Square production of the “Waltz of the Toreadors.”

Bella was in his mid-forties when he died on Aug. 10 of a cerebral hemorrhage in Glen Falls, New York.

A memorial service conducted by the theater division of the department of speech and theater, will be held Fri.

September 28, at 4 p.m. in the Studio Theater. All are welcome to attend and pay tribute to Bella.

Dr. Leah Koditschek, 67, of the biology department died on May 21, after a painful bout with cancer. Because of her illness, she did not teach classes at all last semester.

Koditschek, who joined the staff in 1960, held a bachelor of arts degree from Hunter College, a master degree from Oberlin College and a doctorate degree from Rutgers University.

Koditschek had an international reputation for her research on microbial pollution, and had numerous articles published in scientific journals. According to colleague, Dr. Marie Kuhnen, “She always put her heart and soul in her work.”

Enrollment decline key issue at trustees meeting

By Eileen Oleksiak
MSC's new president, Dr. Donald Walters, addressed the issue of declining enrollment at the college Thursday night where he addressed such issues as enrollment decline and state college autonomy.

Citing the Report on Future College Enrollments, published by the College Planning Committee in May, Walters said a low birth rate in the late '60s and '70s and the migration of employers has caused a drop in high school graduates. He said out-of-state colleges would account for a possible 12 percent reduction in the number of full-time equivalent students (FTE) attending MSC in 1990. Currently, MSC has approximately 9,600 FTE students.

"If we go on without resistance to it then, a certain amount will be cut. This forces the conclusion that we need to assess our priorities," he said.

Another approach to help solve this problem is listed in the planning committee's report as a recommendation to "embrace the marketing concept." Walters elaborated on this saying the educational process is not a commodity. He added, "We will not be overtaken by these forces and have a graduate plan for it." For Walters, planning might mean gradually reducing some of the services at MSC proportionate to a declining need. "This forces the conclusion that we need to assess our priorities," he said.

At the meeting, Walters informed the board that he would be meeting with the chancellor for a few hours, and he added that "meeting with the chancellor for a few hours won't begin to answer all questions.

Nobel winners speak at MSC

MSC's department of mathematics and computer science is sponsoring a unique visiting lecture series this year, featuring Nobel Prize recipients. Co-sponsored by the MSC Alumni Association, the Nobel Laureate series has been arranged by Gideon Nettler, assistant professor of the department. Nettler said he was interested in "speakers who combine science with technology and human values."

Dr. Ildiko Reiter, the 1944 recipient of the Nobel Prize in physics, will be the first speaker. Well-known for his work in magnetism, Reiter will present a lecture on quantum mechanics, Rabl holds a Ph.D. from Columbia University where he became a member of the faculty in physics. A consultant to many national and international organizations, Rebi has held a number of related and general advisory committee to the Atomic Energy Commission and chairman of the Presidential Advisory Commission.

Rabl's lecture, which will be delivered Fri. Sept. 14, at 11 a.m. in Richardson Hall Room 106, will concentrate on the question, Can Civilization Survive Science and Technology? This topic focuses on the growth of science and technology and the increase in human capacity for both constructive and destructive aims accompanying the growth.

Dr. Joshua Lederberg, president of Rockefeller University delivers the second lecture, on Wed. Oct. 10 at noon. The speech, titled The Birth and Prospersity of Expert Systems, will deal with computer programs.

On Fri. Nov. 16 at 10 a.m., Dr. Wally Lee, an expert in the field of economic analysis will speak about Industrial Applications of Input-Output Analysis. He will also answer questions from the audience.

The final lecture on Fri. Dec. 7 at noon, will be presented by Professor Arne Wigner from Princeton University on A History of Symmetry Principles in Physics.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Nettler at 893-4294. All lectures take place in Richardson Hall and are open to all, free of charge.

Preachers cause disturbance

By Dianne Traflet

Responding to a call from the SGA concerning a disturbance in front of the Student Center on Friday, the campus police quieted a confrontation between two Christian preachers and a group of students.

When the preachers, Denny and Doug Kleber, arrived on campus at approximately 3:30 a.m. they proclaimed warning of eternal punishment for the sinners of the world.

After about an hour of preaching, students angrily began questioning the brothers' sincerity, and interrupted Denny's sermon with such statements as, "You're forcing your religion on us!"

A large crowd had assembled by the time the campus police arrived at approximately 12:45 p.m. Sgt. Herbert Lloyd, who responded to the call, said, "At this point, the educational process is being interfered with here."

Professors' memorial

An associate psychology professor in 1981, died on Aug. 13 of pulmonary insufficiency. She was 67.

Kramer, who held a doctorate from Yeshiva University, was considered an expert in the administration and interpretation of Roschak tests. While teaching here, she maintained a private practice in clinical psychology. Very active in the American Psychological Association, Kramer served a term as president of the division of consulting psychologists.

According to Dr. Herbert Hauer, a colleague and friend of Kramer's for almost thirty years, "She was always willing to share her vast experiences with students, and she was well-respected and admired by the faculty."

Dr. Larry Stanton of the philosophy and religion department was pronounced dead on Aug. 3 after being found in his Bloomfield apartment. Well-known for his research into the relationship between the mental and "physical, Stanton presented a paper on this topic at an international conference at Rutgers in April. According to Dr. David Benfield, associate professor of philosophy, Stanton was "extremely popular with MSC students."

New MSC president Donald Walters meting at the college Thursday night, with T. Edward Hollander, chancellor of higher education, and other state college presidents on the following day to discuss the terms of a contract providing such fiscal autonomy.

"If we don't like what we're hearing, then we'll know early so we don't sign on for a ride while we're unsure of our destination," Walters said.

According to Dr. Robert Birnbaum, board member, the proposal may "reduce rather than enhance autonomy," and he added that "meeting with the chancellor for a few hours won't begin to answer all questions.

Birnbaum's reservations about the proposal include a provision that would allow the chancellor to be an ex officio member of the board of trustees of each state college. "I personally wouldn't like to see the chancellor at a board meeting. The board couldn't han...

Vandalism and thefts plague first week of fall semester

By Mary Ellen MacIsaac

Numerous incidents of theft and vandalism took place on campus during the first week back from summer break.

CAMPUS POLICE REPORT

On Wed. Sept. 5, the vending machine on the main floor of Maloney Hall was broken into; $30 and some food items were stolen. Sgt. William Hotaling of campus police said the theft may have occurred sometime between the afternoon of Sept. 4, and the morning of Sept. 5. Hotaling said the machine was not noticeably damaged which is why so many hours elapsed before the theft was recognized.

On the first floor of Partridge Hall, two vending machines were forced open and $40 was taken. One change machine was also severely vandalized; estimated cost of damage is $1,000. The time of this theft is unknown, but campus police say it may have happened between 10:30 p.m. Sept 4 and 6:30 a.m. Sept 5.

Early on Thurs. Sept. 6, a burglary and theft took place in the Student Center. It is believed that two or more persons entered through a door on the west side of the building. There was no sign of forced entry.

Two change machines on the first floor were pried open and $220 was taken. In the dining room on the second floor, 15 six-packs of beer were stolen. Evidence also shows the thieves attempted to break into the bookstore and a vending machine on the second floor. The intruders apparently left after sounding an alarm at 3:46 a.m.

On the same day, sometime between 11:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m., a wallet containing $60 was stolen from a knapsack in a Partridge Hall classroom.

On Wed., Sept. 7, a purse and two headphones were taken from a knapsack left unattended in an office. The estimated cost of the item is $60, campus police said.

In the Panzer Gym on Sept. 7, a man grabbed $20 from the open register in the candy store and ran. Campus police have no suspects.

SGA asks for new Rat policy

By Wendy P. Schultz

Dave Handal, SGA president, announced that the Formal Dining Room is available for students who are of legal drinking age, and that he and students should make the most of this facility. He is also meeting with Dean M. Armstrong, vice president for student affairs, on Friday and hopes to negotiate a compromise regarding new alcohol policies at the Rathskeller. Further details will be announced as they develop, and Handal said, "It looks very favorable that there will be alcohol in the Rat again."

In other news, Handal announced a meeting of the Student government association presidents on Sat., Sept. 15 at noon. The formation of a new organization called the United Student Government Association of New Jersey State Colleges would replace the New Jersey Student Association and serve primarily as a student lobbying group in Trenton. Handal and Thomas Stepnowski, assistant dean of students, have worked to reopen the Student Center cafeteria in the evening due to demands made by night-time students.

Frank Little, SGA treasurer, said a drop in student enrollment may cause a decrease in the amount of funding the SGA and Class I organizations will receive. He said that four faculty members died during the summer, and commemorative resolutions were passed by the board. Also, a nine-member search committee has been formed to find a replacement for Dr. Elliot Mininberg, former vice president of administration and finance. The next board meeting will be held on Oct. 4.

Judy Susser, director of public relations, announced an SGA logo contest. The winner will be awarded $69.71. Entries must be submitted to the SGA office by Oct. 15. The logo must include the letters "SGA, Inc." Susser said.

Funds for a trip to Great Adventure on Sat., Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. have been approved by the legislature from the Montclair Transportation Authority account. Contact for further information: Mike McCann, Stone Hall R.A.

The following people were nominated for the position of president pro-tempore: James Danatos, Donna Juliano, Angel Ramos, Wendy P. Schultz, and Gary Tavlorian. The president pro-tempore works with the executive board and the legislature as a liaison and chairs the constitutional review committee. A vote will be taken next week for this position.

Scholarships offered to undergraduates

The Scholarship Research Institute of Washington, D.C. is offering three $1000 scholarships this fall to full-time undergraduates with a GPA of 2.0 or better. Applicants will be judged according to their academic performance, leadership abilities, and college and community activities. The deadline for applications is Dec. 10 and recipients will be notified by Jan. 15, 1985. For application and information, write to the Scholarship Research Institute, P.O. Box 50157, Washington, D.C. 20004.

MSC's Public Telescope Night continues

Astronomy enthusiasts are invited to attend MSC's Public Telescope Night again this fall. This free event takes place every clear Thursday from 8-9 p.m. in front of Richardson Hall, beginning Sept. 13.

For further information, call Dr. Mary West of the department of physics and geoscience at 893-4166.

New alcohol policy

Slover expected the new policy in the dormitories to encourage many people to migrate to Cove in search of parties. Since no freshmen are permitted to live in these apartments, alcohol is permitted there, and no resident assistants patrol the area. Stover and some staff members went to the apartments last Thursday night, because he said it was considered a "pretty wild night."

When Stover arrived he said people were drinking outside the apartments which is "contrary to the rules" governing the residences. The parties were broken up because the number of people in attendance exceeded the 30 person limit and undergraduate students were drinking. Students there are not subject to any controlled identification checks, making it easier for them to obtain alcohol. Ten people hosting the parties were put on probation, bringing the overall number of students on probation to 22.

Students may appeal probationary notices by contacting Margaree Coleman at 893-4156. To appeal dismissal recommendations, students should see Dr. Edward Martin, dean of students. Negotiations are now in progress to reinstate the serving of alcohol in the Rat. Working on solutions are Armstrong, Dr. Edward Martin, dean of students, Thomas Stepnowski, assistant dean of students, and the SGA executive board. Dave Handal, SGA president, said, "Negotiations look favorable." Handal asks students to utilize the pub until negotiations are complete.

Dennis Quinn, SGA vice president said, "I feel the new alcohol policy has not solved any problems, but created more. I believe the importance of the Rat lies in its ability to provide a meeting place on campus for people to drink in a controlled atmosphere as opposed to hanging out at Clove Road or driving away from campus."

Students united in wish to see alcohol returned to Rat

The new alcohol policy implemented this semester has its merits and its pitfalls. Restricting alcohol from the dormitories will help keep it out of the reach of undergraduate students, but a "dry" Rathskeller is causing some problems.

Now that the "Rat" is dry, students of legal drinking age are going off campus to drink, and some are driving back intoxicated. While these students are irresponsible and should find themselves a safe level of alcohol intake, they are increasing the risks of alcohol-related accidents and possible death.

An open "Rat" (at least week nights) would deter students from leaving campus to go drinking; something which they are encouraged to do by local bars that offer everything from free pizza to sandwiches to attract MSC students.

If students don't go off campus to drink, they end up drinking in the parking lots. They leave their bottles to be run over the next morning by the thousands of commuter students, adding to the litter of the lots.

Reopening the "Rat" at night would provide students with a safe place to gather and socialize on campus over a few beers. If those students who don't know when to stop drinking get drunk, they will only have to walk to their rooms instead of navigating the dark and twisting roads which lead back to MSC.

The formal living, located on the second floor of the Student Center, now serves beer at night, but it does not serve food, have a jukebox or other forms of recreation. The beer that has been spilled and which will be spilt is ruining the rug, not to mention making it smell. Members of the faculty have voiced their disapproval of this situation and so do we.

The SGA, "Rat" staff and student body are united in their quest to bring back the "Rat." This student unity cannot only be felt, but heard all over campus. People are talking about the "Rat."

The Montclarion urges the administration to reconsider its position on alcohol and the "Rat," before any students are seriously hurt.

"If all printers were determined not to print anything till they were sure it would offend nobody, there would be very little printed."

Women's Center
Making changes for the better

The Women's Center at MSC is dedicated to making changes for the better for men and women alike. Our goals include increasing individual growth, offering encouragement in attaining career goals, and encouraging nurturing and leadership characteristics in both women and men.

The Women's Center is located on the fourth floor of the Student Center in Room 420. Our offices contain current reference files of clippings and articles from magazines and newspapers, as well as an excellent library of books related to women's lives, careers, finances, and roles. We offer a peer-counseling drop-in service as well as a referral service. Hours for peer-counseling will be posted.

Dr. Constance Walker is the Director of the Women's Center. Dr. Walker does both personal and career counseling which is a free service to college members and to the community.

The center provides an on-going, free Wednesday noon program. On Sept. 12, Lewis Goldstein, Assistant Director of Employer Relations, Dept. of Higher Education in Trenton, will discuss "Employer Related Child Care." He will speak about the types of programs and services available and how to implement child care programs.

On Sept. 19 Carole Oliver will give a brief introduction to her workshop on "Assertiveness Training." On Sept. 26, Dr. Walker will discuss "Sexual Harassment: What it is and How to Deal with it." These noontime programs begin shortly after noon and end about 1 p.m. All are welcomed to attend. Coffee and tea are available at a minimal charge.

The workshops which are scheduled or the remainder of September are "Women and the Media" and "Assertiveness Training." "Women and the Media: Meet the Producer" will examine several aspects of women and the media: the status of women in the communications industry, films, tapes and TV programs produced by women, and the strategies and responsibilities possible for the independent producer. The workshop will consist of screenings, optional readings and discussions. Janet Jaller Weiss, President of Women Make News, Inc. will lead the workshop. There is a $30 charge for the three day series; $15 for MSC students. It will begin on Sept. 15, 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.

An "Assertiveness Training" program will be given by Carole Oliver on Saturday, Sept. 29 and Thursday Oct. 4 in the Student Center, Room 418. The program is designed for any private individual desiring to improve one's self image, develop better, more appropriate ways of expressing thoughts, and protect themselves from being taken advantage of by others. Areas covered will range from learning how to say no, asking for a raise, expressing anger, engaging in social conversations, improving self-image and role-playing for job interviews. There is a $40 fee for the entire workshop.

Workshops planned for October are "Perfectionism: A Destructive Syndrome" on Oct. 20 and "Empowerment Workshop for Women" on Oct. 27 and 24. A workshop on "Financial Planning" will be done by Michael Lockhart from Merrill Lynch.

In addition to workshops we also sponsor the Annual Women in Business program which is funded by the Alumni Association. We are currently working with LASO to plan a program for Oct. 10 on "The Professional Women of the 80's."

We welcome ideas for programs and services. If you wish to have your name placed on our mailing list, or wish further information on upcoming workshops or events, please call 893-5106.
Students Speak

Since the removal of alcoholic beverages from the Rathskeller, many legal-age students are driving off-campus to drink. Would you be in favor of the return of alcoholic beverages to the Rat?

"You can't necessarily correlate drinking and driving. It can happen in any pub anywhere and the same rules should apply. By taking away alcoholic beverages, they are forcing people to break the rules. People here are supposed to be educated enough to know better than to drink and drive. You can't assume that on the outside."
George McDonough
Senior/political science

"Yes, I am in favor of bringing it back because of the stricter drunk driving laws. If the people are of legal age, I see no reason why they shouldn't be allowed to drink."
Jim Kenney
Senior/English

"I am in favor. Anyone with the proper I.D. should be allowed to drink on-campus."
Lisa Edwards
Freshman/undeclared

"I don't drink myself, and I think that it should not be allowed on a college campus. School is not the place for drinking anyway."
Tawarat Smakchan
Senior/fine arts

Samuel Beckett’s Endgame epitomizes absurdity

By Harold Lowry

Twenty-six years after its premiere at the Cherry Lane Theatre in Manhattan, Samuel Beckett’s cosmic comedy, Endgame, returns. This definitive and culminating production is anticipating a triumphant run. The performances are superb, and rising from last year’s jubilee presentations of The Beckett Plays and Rockaby at the Samuel Beckett Theatre, Endgame is expected to quickly outstrip the run of its 1958 progenitor.

Endgame is absurdity at its finest. The non-story regards a blind cripple, Hamm (Alvin Epstein), and his long-suffering servant, Clov (Peter Evans) who are apparently among the sole survivors of a vast cataclysm. For reasons unknown, the blind man cannot stand up and the servant cannot sit down. Besides these two, there are others: upper torsos that occasionally appear out of huge metal drums. They are identified as Hamm’s mother Nell (Alice Drummond), and his father Nagg (James Greene). The plot merely involves the four characters’ interactions as they prepare for the inevitable—death. Evans portrays the moping servant as a grey, tortured, narcotic wreck who can still snap to attention at the whim of his master. Epstein’s truly disagreeable Hamm quivers with booms of agitation and sighs in pretentious world-weariness; really he only wants sympathy from Clov, and from his cantankerous father. Stripped of effectiveness by their situation in garbage cans, Nagg and Nell serve as harmless, grasping upper torsos who symbolize the desire to live by complaining for a sugarplum or pantomiming a kiss.

All of the performances are excellent, disturbingly fine—they never just let you tag along—their comic distraction and mental gear—shifting disallow a passive role. The viewer either struggles to follow, or is lost.

The set, two grey walls, keeps the focus on the actors and constantly reminds the audience that these people are alone. The greyness, the mausoleum, slit-windows and archaic tombstone-like chair back are all reminders of death, as are the more mundane trashcans.

The cast of Endgame shares a moment of tragicomic intensity on the stage of the Cherry Lane Theatre.

The names are symbolic pairs: Nell and Nagg could be Death Knell and Funeral Nap; Hamm and Clov for a close-stuck ham at a banquet. Death and Life, rituals and preparations, all of them are endgames, attempts to touch death. Clov finds a rat in the oft-cited kitchen (off-stage) and says, “If I don’t kill it, it’ll surely die.” This is reminiscent of the old Irish-American song which ends, “I’ll live till I die,” and is another reminder of impending death “We begin with an ending...” As Hamm says, “We are born with a death.”

Of course, Beckett is an absurdist and a clever playwright, so nothing is ever exactly what it seems. Characters die or fall asleep; in another context Hamm asks, “What sleep?” meaning which sleep, death or slumber? The ending remains ambiguous. Does Clov leave or stay? Will Hamm live or die? Do I ever really die or is life just rehearsal for a myth? The questions each audience poses will be fascinating and different.

The great bleak comedy will run Mondays through Saturdays at 8:00 p.m., with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Tickets may be reserved by calling the Samuel Beckett Theatre box office, (212) 804-2926.

C.H.U.D. is a garbage heap of outdated horror movie cliches

By Patrick Kervan

C.H.U.D. just may interest you if you are rabidly obsessed with mysterious acronyms and initials. The ads tell us that C.H.U.D. stands for Cannibalistic Humanoid Underground Dwellers. But it may also stand for Contamination Hazard Urban Disposal. You see, the NRC may or may not have dumped atomic waste into NYC’s sewer system. The resulting heavy RAD’s seem to have turned the city’s sewer-dwelling bums into hungry BEM’s (bug-eyed monsters). As NY’s inhabitants are being dragged down manholes and devour, who will find out about the EPA’s coverup—the FBI, NYPD or the BSA?

For those of us not too thrilled with monster movie abcs’s, C.H.U.D. may also stand for Corny Humorless Unintelligible Dreck. The film is a compilation/potpourri/garbage heap of outdated horror film cliches—monsters from radioactivity, heroes trapped in sewers with monsters, rescuers with flamethrowers, etc.; all the goodies you thought were long forgotten resurface in C.H.U.D.

While a movie made of rehashed cliches could be fun, contemporary, and even scary (Alien is a good example), C.H.U.D. commits celluloid suicide by combining a deadpan approach with some of the poorest screenwriting in existence. Daniel Stern of Diner fame, and a bunch of other people you don’t know, speak lines and do things that only an anthropologist would recognize as being vaguely human.
Professor deals with retirement in Lester Sims

By S.C. Wood

Imagine your career on the rocks, and your mistress attacking you with matrimonial ultimatum: this is, put yourself in Lester Sims' shoes. For these are the dilemmas that weave and work themselves out for the title character of Lester Sims Retires Tomorrow. This new play by William Curtis is an effective, exciting dialectic of life and death, love and work.

Sims (George Murdock) is an idealistic, energetic English professor whose contract has expired at the age of 65. To a man who has equated life with work, the finality of retirement is like signing a contract with death. Despite this grim theme a comic element is immediately introduced as Lester, fumbling with a gun and philosophizing about his end, spews quotes from T.S. Eliot.

With the arrival of Margaret (Jennifer Rhodes) his mistress, the conflict of the play accelerates: will Lester commit suicide? Or will he join forces with the Stompers?

Margaret, the intelligent sociology teacher, and complete his book on T.S. Eliot?

Skirting the issue, Lester and Margaret spend the evening flirting, frolicking and fighting. Their dialogue is surprisingly quotable, witty and outrageous, though it sometimes reduces them to textbook caricatures. Margaret, ridiculing Lester's suicidal intentions calls him an existentialist. Lester retorts: "What does a sociologist know about existentialism?"

Anyone who loves such academic jokes will be endeared to Lester Sims. The play is often erratic in focus. At first, a mood of realism is established, but then Lester delivers a monologue which becomes an address to the audience. Margaret recites their conflicts in a wry manner through a lens brush which she uses as a microphone.

It is these sorts of stylized speeches and flamboyant gestures which give the play its appeal. Although the nostal­gic anecdotes are often recited in a stilted manner, the snatches of teasing put-downs add a delightful spice to their relationship.

Through a constant exchange of ideas and a complex blending of personalities, Lester Sims transcends such later-life crisis stories as Bernard Malamud's Dubin's Lives. For Malamud in his novel concentrates on Dublin's single-minded assessment of his situation, while in Lester Sims Curtis has created a play in which an older man's death wish is challenged by an intelligent young woman.

This witty, well-written play is performed with gusto by Murdock and Rhodes. Murdock is a veteran performer, and has won a Los Angeles Drama Critic's Circle Award for his work in the past. He is well-known to television aficionados as Scanlon of Barney Miller.

Murdock's mischievously sparkling eyes add a touch of both the risque and the innocent to his performance. Through Murdock, one can see Sims young again. Yet another side of his character must also be portrayed—that of the proper professor, the defender of the English language. His love of the great writers—the giants—he communicates to his students. When Murdock utters the line: "I never let Lester Sims come between the giants and the students!" he convincingly portrays Lester's greatness as a teacher.

Rhodes is equally challenged by her role. She must turn her emotions on and off like faucets in this fast-paced drama. Together, the actors' performances are even more worthwhile than the fine script, for it is with their emotional and physical natures that the audience finally sympathizes.

Above all, the play earns its entertainment value: it is uplifting for the pessimist and a feast for the humor­quist. It is refreshingly unsentimental. The theme of enforced retirement never denigrates into a manifesto or a sob story; it is simply used as a dramatic event in the life of an individual. Never­theless, Lester Sims is a thought-provoking play. It forces us to question our values of fame and financial success while it reaffirms the importance of work and love.

Lester Sims Retires Tomorrow is playing at The Cubiculo, 414 West 51st Street, NYC. Box office: (212) 265-2138.

Stompers' new LP recycles old material

By Bill Normyle

One Heart for Sale, is not a kingly personal in the Village Voice, but the latest album from the popular Boston-based band, the Stompers. While they may be relatively unknown in this area, the Stompers have managed to build a solid cult following throughout the New England area, and with the release of their new album on Mercury/Polygram records they are hoping to expand that following.

The four-member band first received local attention with an independently produced single, Coast to Coast. Later they were signed by a major label who released their debut album last year. The band received some critical attention for it, but it was un­successful and they were eventually released from their contract. Fortunately, they were able to retain the rights to the master tapes from the first album, which unfortunately they chose to rerelease here.

For those who are unfamiliar with the Stompers, this album is an excellent introduction, but for those who already have the first album it is not the album they were waiting for; they must be content with the band's two new tracks which are included on this LP, including the title song.

"Rock, Jump and Holler" to the Southside Johnny-like strains of "Temptation." Almost every song is a party tune, making it difficult to pick out any one in particular. However, there are some that are truly outstanding like the title track "One Heart for Sale" and "First Kiss." Both of these songs are filled with enough "ooh-ahhs" and "sh-diddles" to make the Four Seasons green with envy. Oddly enough, "One Heart for Sale" also features some great sleigh bells that can turn any beach party into Christmas Eve.

While none of the music here could be called original, so what? Elvis borrowed from the blues, Paul McCartney only wanted to be Little Richard and since then, everyone else in music wanted to be either them or someone else. The Stompers are only the latest in rock 'n roll tradition that has been going on for the last thirty years, and compared to many—one of the best. There is no way of telling where the Stompers' music will go from here, but one thing is certain—no matter what they do, the good times will follow close behind them. Like a pair of Con­verse high-tops and a leather tie, the Stompers' sound means the party's just begun. To quote Steve Martin, "these guys are good!"
We are the College Life Union Board and we program all kinds of activities for you, the students at M.S.C.

TIME: Tuesdays at 1:00 pm, beginning Oct. 2

PERSONAL GROWTH — Taking Charge of Your Own Life
- 50 Drinks and FREE ADMISSION

A group designed to help students/teachers expand their awareness and develop their potential. Each one helps the participant to take a close look at one dimension of their lives and make any changes that are necessary. They will meet one hour a week for six weeks. These workshops are in addition to the regular program of individual and group counseling and psychotherapy offered by the Psychological Services Center.

DEVELOPING YOUR PERSONAL POTENTIAL

RELATIONSHIPS — Breakups and Makeups
- This workshop will focus on understanding the dynamics in relationships that cause us so much pain and pleasure. Participants will have an opportunity to share and learn about different styles of dealing with a partner.
  - TIME: Mondays at 12:00, beginning Oct. 1

PERSONAL GROWTH — Taking Charge of Your Own Life
- This workshop is designed to help people move toward greater self-awareness, self-direction, and self-actualizing behavior — toward freedom, productivity, and joy.
  - TIME: Wednesdays at 12:00, beginning Oct. 2

ISSUES IN LEADERSHIP
- This group will explore various ways of being a leader. The group will also focus on problems and coping strategies related to the leadership role.

ADULT CHILDREN OF ALCOHOLICS
- Participants will have the opportunity to think about how their development was different from that of others, how they can break the cycle, and how they can more effectively deal with the alcoholics in their families.
  - TIME: To be arranged

OVERCOMING TEST ANXIETY
- This is a group for those students who become especially nervous before or during an exam. Several methods will be discussed that may help to reduce this tension.
  - TIME: Thursdays at 2:00 pm, beginning Oct. 4

WOMEN IN TRANSITION
- The decision to come back to college takes a lot of courage. Often it means leaving children and/or husband behind at home to fend for themselves. The change is stressful for everyone involved, especially for YOU. This group will help participants learn to cope more effectively with their combined roles of student/mother/wife.
  - TIME: Tuesdays at 1:00 pm, beginning Oct. 2

To sign up for these workshops come to the Psychological Services Center, Gilbreth House, extension 5211.

Song for the Sea

Tell me love, do I have to say the words to you?
Your gentle solitude always helps to soothe my restless soul.
We are apart often and for too long a time.
Yet when I'm with you, nothing else matters to me.
When we become one, I lose myself in your rhythmic motion, always accepting and never rejecting what I have to give.
Singing to you, I feel our spirits become one.
Alone with you on a starry night I feel the surge of the universe.
As much as I know you, you still hide so much in the depths of your soul.
Are you afraid? You always reach for me, then pull away.
Your surface never reveals your true hidden beauty.
How I wish I could have you all to myself and not have to share you.
I'm foolish to think ours is your only love affair.
Even knowing that, I can't stay away.
Being near your beauty brings out the gentleness and beauty in me.

Your beauty and allure are wasted on most who know you.
Your calmness shines radiantly in the sun and moon.
But when you are angry love, your temper knows no bounds,
and your wrath shows little mercy.
Even in your throes of anger, your beauty still awes.

I leave you now, feeling drained, at peace with our love.
I must move on, for ours is only a temporary affair.
Though I love you, I can not be with you always.
Someday I will return to you, to be as one...

I leave you as silently as when I first came.

Get down to business faster.
With the BA-35.

If there's one thing business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator. The Texas Instruments BA-35, the Student Business Analyst.

Its built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions - the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

The BA-35 means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many.

The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom.

A powerful combination.
Think business. With the BA-35 Student Business Analyst.
Can MSC repeat spring season?

"We're hoping that pitcher Shaun Garrity, who was 3-0 with a 2.38 ERA, can fill a starting role for us this season," said Cooney.

The offense will be led by John Cowan who was drafted by the L.A. Dodgers in June but chose to return for his senior year at MSC. Last season Cowan batted .366. He led the team in RBIs with 50 and in home runs with eight. Senior second baseman Jody Tobia "should be the leader of our defense in the infield. He is also a fine hitter, he batted .346 last year," said Cooney.

Junior outfielder Andy Welker will be an asset to the team. Last season he batted .348 with five home runs.

Senior Bobby Yeager, a fine third baseman, had 35 RBIs last season and a .296 batting average.

Yeager feels that the team is "looking good. We didn't have a big break between summer league and now so we're still in good shape."

Book Review:

“Carl!” is golden for all ages

By Perry "The Jet" Schwarz

The overall presentation of the book is crisp, informative and it is written on a level for all ages. Even young children can read and understand the problems that the hero encountered and his long trek to get to the Olympics.

According to Stuart Applebaum, the assistant director of public relations at Bantam Books, Devaney was given the job to write “Carl!” because of his journalistic abilities, his past experience with track and field and his impressive background of writing books. Devaney, who is the former editor of Sport magazine, is the author of a dozen other books including “Secrets of Super Athletes.” He did considerable research on Lewis before the Olympics began, so most of the book was already complete.

The book presents Lewis’ life in an open, unblemished way. There are facts in the book about Lewis that would surprise the average sports fan. A few surprises would include Lewis’ involvement with pro football and basketball teams, such as the Dallas Cowboys and the Chicago Bulls. If you can believe it, Lewis never played either sport but he was still drafted to play the sports. The book also goes into detail about Carl's knee injury when he was young. I bet you didn’t know about that little fact. The book is full of these trivia facts.

With these two peculiar events that occurred in Lewis’ life, Devaney keeps the reader on a steady interested pace. Every time you want to put the book down, there is another exciting moment or depressing event that will grab you and keep you in awe.

Overall the book presents facts in a realistic storyline manner. That’s why the book can be read by people of various ages. The book makes for pleasurable and interesting reading and gives the reader a good sense of what Lewis had to go through to accomplish his miraculous feat. His accomplishment of winning four medals wasn't an easy one and if you read the book you will know what I mean.

Indian Whip Wagner, 24-6

Tony Naporano, MSC’s freshman football coach, is a remarkable individual, but not because of wins and losses or the way he coaches. Naporano is entering his 48th season as a coach and his fourth season here at MSC. Naporano began his trek in the game of football in 1928.

In high school Naporano lettered not only in football, but in baseball, track and basketball as well. He was given an athletic scholarship to Notre Dame, but graduated in 1937 with a degree in physical education. After Rutgers, he obtained a masters degree in the same field from Columbia University.

From 1938 to 1940, Naporano coached many Newark schools until he went into the army in 1941 and spent four years there. When he came home he was at Newark East Side for a year, and then in 1947 he went to Barringer High School and began a 20 year career there and established the school’s “Tradition of Triumph.”

“Coach Nap” was appointed Montville High School’s athletic director when the school first opened in 1968, and 1972 he implemented and designed a physical education program for the merging of Morristown Prep and Beard Schools.

“He has seen it all. There is nothing in the game today that would surprise him,” Rick Giancola, MSC’s football coach, said. Giancola also described Coach Nap as being a tremendous teacher. He has a fantastic recall of facts, dates, people and events. At age 71 he is still going strong and is still involved as if he were back in his youth. “When I was an assistant coach, Coach Nap could always answer my questions,” explained Giancola.

Another person Naporano had a big effect on was Larry Peccatiello, linebacker for the NFL’s Washington Redskins. “Coach Naporano was a father figure to me and he had a positive impact on my life,” Peccatiello said of his former coach at Barringer.

When the Indians arrived at Wagner, they were greeted by a banner with the words "Beat Montclair" and banners and posters with the phrase "We'd rather die than tie." Well, the Indians didn't tie the Seahawks, as in the past two years, instead they soared to a 24-6 win.

There were many bright spots and big plays but the best way to describe the game was four quarters of intensified football on the part of the Indians. Whenever something went wrong, the team got even more fired up and showed real character. It was a hard fought team effort. On the second play of the game, running back Archie Peterson bruised his left hip and was unable to continue in the game but will be ready for Saturday's home opener. James Overby was given the duty of filling Peterson's position for the day. He carried the ball 11 times for 73 yards and one touchdown. In the second quarter after a 10 play 61-yard drive, Overby scored the first points of the game with an 8-yard run. "I was nervous when Archie got hurt, but also excited when I was told to go in," explained Overby. "It was a messed up situation, but everyone was behind me and had confidence in me, so I couldn't let the team down or myself," he said. "We are very fortunate to have quality running backs in our program, and I would have been confident in putting in any of them," said Indian Head Coach Rick Giancola. He was referring to Phil LaGreca, Lorryn Hoyt, Pat Luzzi and Overby.

After Walter Briggs threw an interception, Seahawks' kicker, Tom O'Riordan popped a 21-yard field goal with 3:26 left in the half. Joe Perri, MSC's kicker, booted a 28-yard field goal with no time left in the half and later chipped in for a point after. "I feel our kicking game improved tremendously and Joe has been very consistent for us as well," commented Giancola. The Indians led 10-3 at the half. O'Riordan hit another field goal with 2:26 left in the third quarter to up the score to 10-6.

Briggs overall threw three interceptions during the course of playing my game," stated Briggs. "I was trying to perform like a Mark Casale because everyone expected me to. I was doing things that Mark would have done like standing in the pocket and taking the ball before throwing it," explained Briggs. Briggs was 6 of 19 for 116 yards in the first half but, in the second half he was four for eight for 97 yards.

"In the second half I had to crack down on the plays and I had to do the things Walter Briggs would do and not what people expected Mark to do," said Briggs. The sophomore quarterback did just that when he completed a 67-yard touchdown strike to Van Johnson. According to Giancola, the play should have been a 14-yard gain but Johnson put a move on two Seahawks defenders and outran any others to score in the fourth quarter.

Johnson's touchdown pass was the icing on the cake because going into the final quarter the score was 10-6 and the Seahawks could have got a lucky break, but they didn't. Johnson's score boosted the moral of the team tremendously for the rest of the game.

With 5:51 left in the game, Ed Hernandez, scored on a 2-yard run completing a nine play 56-yard drive making the final 24-6. Giancola praised the offensive line led by co-captain Bob Knudsen for decent pass protection, giving Briggs time to throw, and good rush blocking enabling the running backs to score.

At the end of the fourth quarter, Wagner was on the verge of scoring, but a tough goal line stand at the Indians' 1-yard line prevented the doomed Seahawks to score against us. O'Riordan kicked the extra point giving the Indians a 24-6 victory.

The Indians won their season opener Tuesday afternoon by crashing Ramapo 11-2 at MSC's Pittser Field.

Can baseball team repeat its record spring season?

By Anna Schildo

Last Spring MSC's varsity baseball team finished the season with a spectacular 32-12-1 record which was the most wins by a varsity baseball team in college history.

With the combination of outstanding talent and fine coaching there was only one place for the Indian squad to go—the NCAA Division III College World Series.

It was the "best showing ever by an MSC team. We finished third in the nation. Probably the highlight was the opening game. We scored a victory over Marietta, the defending champion," said Head Coach Kevin Cooney.

In the opening game of the world series Danny Olson hurled a one hit shut out. Mike Nicosia blasted a double off the center field fence to score Andy Cuomo in the bottom of the ninth to win the game 1-0.

Although MSC lost to LaVerne College of California the next day, the Indians bounced back from defeat to score another victory. This time the victim was the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

The Tribe was 2-1 when they took on conference rival, rival Ramapo. In the first half this team had beaten Ramapo, they would have been in the final game of the series the next day. "We came pretty close. We just had to win it all this year," said Cooney.

Graduation took some of MSC's finest players away from the familiar turf of Pittser Field. Among them are Andy Cuomo, Mike Nicosia, John Seymour and Mike Butler.

Cuomo was the team's MVP and also MVP of the Eastern NCAA regional tournament. Nicosia, a first team All-American, led the team in hitting with a .393 batting average. Seymour, a district All-American, was the team's designated hitter. Pitcher Mike Butler, who was drafted and signed by the California Angels, finished 8-3 with the Angels' this season in the Pioneer class A league.

The highly successful season the Indians enjoyed will be a tough act to follow but, the Indians have no qualms about it.

Cooney said, "We have a good nucleus returning from last season led by a strong pitching staff.

Olson enters his senior year as "one of the best pitchers in MSC history," said Cooney. Last season Olson had a record of 10-4 and 1.67 ERA. His combination of talent and concentration make him the outstanding pitcher he is.

"Instead of just taking the ball and throwing it, I always think about how to fool the batter with something he is not expecting. The biggest part about being a good pitcher is having a good team behind you because without them you're not as effective as you could be," said Olson.

Another outstanding pitcher is Lorenzo Gentile, who posted a 5-1 record last season and had a 3.42 ERA. Last season pitcher Gabe Noto was 2-0 with a 3.67 ERA.
