MSC projected enrollment down 12.6 percent by 1990

By Maureen Freeburg

The projected total enrollment at MSC is expected to decrease 12.6 percent by 1990, according to MSC President Donald E. Walters report at last week's Board of Trustees Meeting.

According to the Adjusted Enrollment Projections this is a 1.3 percent increase compared to 1985's projection. "All this exercise in computation is not necessarily an indication of what will happen, it's just meant to keep people informed," Walters said. "I don't want to see this decrease but I can't ignore the demographics."

Recently, Walters met with members of his staff and faculty from the marketing department to determine the feasibility for marketing and fund-raising projects. During the past four months, Walters has taken several steps to help decide how MSC can best use the available resources and accomplish these aims.

Walters hopes to reach the legislature, other state-wide agencies and potential donors. In addition, he wishes to gain the attention of prospective students and their parents. Their interest in MSC as a college of choice will be influenced by the quality of programs and faculty. For the development of a marketing plan, MSC is considering the help of Hill & Knowlton and Barton-Gillet, two nationally known firms experienced in college marketing.

"I hope that with proper funding we will be able to engage one of these firms in assisting us during the next two or three years," Walters said.

At the meeting, Walters discussed a report submitted by Edward Miller, former vice-president of Katchum Inc., one of the nation's largest fund-raising firms. The report stated that while the fund-raising potential at MSC is high, the readiness is low. It also suggested MSC strengthen the staff, alumni, public relations and the administration, while comprising a comprehensive prospect list and developing key leadership.

Walters has met with faculty and students regarding ideas for fund-raising events. He wants to get a better view of the campus community on the whole.

Referring to a statement made by Governor Thomas Kean in his State of the State address, Walters said, "Kean has observed that state colleges have made great progress in recent years, and now 'face an opportunity to become among the very best state colleges in the nation.' The Governor is willing to set aside $10 million in grant funds to assist state colleges in this challenge.

In other business, both Walters and faculty representative Dr. Kathleen Wilkins gave up on the autonomy bill. The legislation, which is actually divided into three bills, proposes that the state legislatures increase autonomy under one governing body, while allowing the colleges to become more independent.

The new body would consist of nine voting members, one from each of the state college's board of trustees, with the chancellor of higher education and the college presidents sitting ex officio as non-voting members. If passed, colleges would have more control over their own financial and administrative affairs.

"This is a serious issue of concern, and although there has been no particular progress on the bill, we must consider the possible layoffs that could occur," said Wilkins.

"We are very much in favor of the autonomy bill," Walters said. "To vote against anyone of them would throw it out of committee."

The SGA's executive board attended the meeting. SGA representative Eric Hartma reported that students came to the SGA office seeking legal advice on a matter concerning the National Teachers Exam. SGA vice-president Dennis Quinn added, "The students were wondering if there was anything that they could do legally to be exempt from the exam because they felt it was such late notice."

"I am sorry, but the legislation is all that we can do," Dr. Nicholas Michelli, dean of professional studies, said. He added, "We empathize with the students, but as soon as we were aware of the exam we let them know. In my opinion, the board has a right to do this."

A documentation on Student Rights is still being developed by the Faculty Senate. When completed, it will include a policy on sexual harrassment.

Finally, a motion was made to invite public advocate Joseph H. Rodriguez, to receive and deliver the commencement at this year's graduation ceremony.

For the past nine and one-half years, children of all ages have had the opportunity to develop their musical talents through classes offered by the Music Preparatory Division at MSC.

In Music Prep program, children may choose to learn any instrument in the orchestra or any type of guitar. A musicanship class, which teaches everything from ear training to composition, usually accompanies private instruction. A few of the other programs include a percussion ensemble, a string ensemble, and a chorus, as well as classes in piano, Suzuki violin, and Dalcrose Eurhythmics.

Any child between the ages of three and 18 is eligible. Admission to the group classes is based on an interview with the teacher and the assessment of musical skills. For private instruction, a child's acceptance is contingent upon an audition and a personal interview. The cost of the lessons vary depending upon the type of class offered. Classes are held in the music building 'or Life Hall after school and on weekends. The program is not restricted to children from the immediate area. Some students come from places as far as Butler, N.J.

This self-funded program has expanded enormously in the past several years. In the beginning, there were fewer than 40 students enrolled. Now, there are 31 faculty members and more than 200 children involved. Within the faculty there are several Music Preparatory Division Specialists.

The Music Prep Division has been one of the schools selected to participate in the European Youth Festival of Music in Munich. A group of 22 children from the Advanced Ensemble will perform at the Munich Olympic Hall in May. According to Sheila McKenna, Co-ordinator of the Music Prep Program, the trip will be the most exciting event this year. The children have been practicing since September, and they will be playing both classical and American music.

McKenna describes the diverse selection of pieces as "anything from Joplin to Bach." The students who will perform in this event are children between the ages of 12 and 17. The Music Prep Division has already raised $3,200 toward the trip, and they are also planning future fund-raising activities.

Some of the students in the Music Prep program are planning to pursue careers in music. "I'm thrilled to say that several students have gone through Prep to win scholarships to colleges," says McKenna. "There are two kinds of students; those who make music their life's work, and those who make it their life's love."

Young children can also develop musical abilities through the program. Thomas and Robert Kelly have been taking violin lessons at MSC for the past five years. They started at the ages of three and five. According to their mother, Pat Kelly, the program teaches discipline and structure at an early age.

Autonomy: what MSC’s future could look like

Last fall a state Commission on the Future of State Colleges recommended that the nine state institutions be combined into a University of New Jersey. According to MSC’s Alumni Life, “the idea was ultimately defeated because of the fear that a highly centralized administration would only add additional layers of bureaucracy and diminish, rather than enhance each college’s autonomy.”

However, the concept of self-governing state colleges is far from abandoned. Last October, the Board of Higher Education adopted an altered plan which would bring the colleges under an advocate body (The New Jersey State Colleges Governing Boards Association), while giving each college autonomy.

“Within ceilings set by the Department of Higher Education, the colleges will be able to charge their own tuition rates and fees, and keep those funds, instead of turning them over to the state treasury. They would have far greater freedom over purchasing and contracts, and they would handle their own payrolls,” February’s edition of Alumni Life stated.

Autonomy is a good idea; the three Senate bills that would carry out this plan would help the state colleges run more smoothly and efficiently by cutting out a lot of bureaucratic red tape.

We agree with Governor Kean that it would “allow each college the autonomy which the pursuit of excellence requires.”

But in “the pursuit of excellence,” we trust that students will not be overlooked. If and when MSC’s Board of Trustees has the power to raise tuition fees, we would hope they keep the following student concerns in mind:

— a state institution should serve the general public, both rich and poor.
— financial aid and student loans are tougher than ever to come by.
— if there is to be an increase, the students should feel the benefits of their additional cost.

An eye for an eye makes the whole world blind.
—Mohandas Gandhi

JSU questions Farrakhan lecture

To the editor:

On behalf of the Jewish Student Union (JSU), I would like to express our deep regret at the Black Student Cooperative Union's choice of Louis Farrakhan as a speaker for Black History Month.

While I personally object to Reverend Farrakhan's well-publicized views on Judaism (which he has described as a "gutter religion") and Zionism (which he believes will ultimately be the cause of a global war), what disappoints me is the disregard displayed by the BSCU for the feelings of the Jewish Students at MSC.

During the course of his speech, Farrakhan alternated pleas for black unity and productivity with slurs aimed at Jews and all whites in general. He spoke of the need for self-respect among blacks while denying the rights of Jews to respect their heritage and accomplishments. Although he preaches the teachings of the Nation of Islam that "one must respect oneself before others will respect him," he also preaches, "I cannot dislike a people because they believe in Moses or the Torah...but when we dislike a people, their wickedness causes us to dislike them," and "Religion promotes white supremacy" and "It is not my intention to anger Jewish people; if you don't reason with me that's a way of going to hell."

Farrakhan states, "You should not judge before you have knowledge of the facts." Although he says that he believes that all the media, including the video taping of several talk shows, have "taken him out of context," I question how every newspaper, every magazine, every live broadcast could be "guilty of the facts."

I question a man who preaches that white professors are satisfied in their ignorance and tells blacks that if you become a slave to your teachers, to what they believe is the truth, then you're going backward in time; you must go against the popular line.

I question a man who needs $1000 in travel expenses and is only coming to MSC, our home, for Black History Month, the theme of which is "Striving for a Better Future; Remembering Yesterday; Living Today; For Tomorrow..."

I question a man who is brought to MSC, which is primarily a commuter college, for the administration does not right. Two days later the roadways were still not clear of ice, and neither salt nor sand were in evidence. The prevailing sound all over the campus was the whine of squealing tires on the ice, or jaunty four-letter word epithets shouted by students whose limbs went out from under them while struggling to get to class.

In addition to the obvious hazard, this situation is a disgrace on the part of the administration and an insult to the entire student body. Please somebody do something!

Student says icy conditions on campus are a disgrace

To the editors:

The icy conditions encountered around the MSC campus are deplorable. The treacherous condition of the student parking lots is an outrage! It is hard to believe that the administration has such complete and utter disregard for the student body. That these hazardous and unsafe conditions exist at MSC, which is primarily a commuter school, is an absurdity beyond belief.

There is absolutely no acceptable reason. The college certainly has the necessary equipment to get the areas properly cleared, sanded and salted. It is a false economy for the administration not to think first and foremost of the welfare of the student body. If safe conditions cannot be provided, classes should be cancelled.

Frantic City plays to please

By Rich Hango

Those who withstood the rigors of last semester’s Super Dance marathon in Blanton Hall are already aware of the considerable talents of Frantic City. Everyone else will have their chance next Wednesday night when the Rat hosts the band for another night of dance-filled entertainment.

Composed of two Connecticut men and two native Jerseyans, Frantic City boasts Bruce Domizio on lead vocals and guitar, Tom Hunt on bass, Jeff Ganif on drums and MSC graduate Paul Bergen on drums.

The band has only been in its present incarnation since November when Bergen joined the lineup. As such, Frantic City is still feeling its way around its audience, dominating its sets with cover versions while giving way to an occasional new song.

Bergen doesn’t feel that this detracts from the band at all. It’s not important, he says, for them to play only their own material just because it’s the thing for bands to do. The important thing is for the audience to have a good time, to have a high energy experience.

To this end, Frantic City has designed sets that show off the writing talents of the Pretenders, Elvis Costello, the Jam and REM, as well as a twist medley complete with Domizio playing Chubby Checker.

Among their original works are “Tomorrow Is Here” and “We’re On To You” by Ganif and Bergen. Their first single, however, is a rock song penned by Domizio called “Laughing Matter.” Frantic City starts at 8:00 p.m. next Wednesday. Come early and bring your dancing shoes.

Film: Vision Quest is a journey to nowhere

By Vladimir Koupal

Vision Quest is a film with all the ingredients to be great—but it fails. It is like Karate Kid, except that it features wrestling instead of karate. Unlike Karate Kid, at least in the picture I didn't want to see more.

The main character is high-school wrestler Louden Swain (Matthew Modine). One fine day Louden decides that this is going to be his year and he is going to fight Shute (Frank Jasper), the state champion wrestler. In one scene we see Shute training for a match by carrying a telephone pole up and down the bleachers of a stadium.

So throughout the film Louden is working out and losing weight, preparing to meet this formidable opponent. But I never got a good sense as to why Louden made up his mind to take on Shute. The only possible explanation is offered by his friend and sidekick, Kuch (Michael Schoeffling). Kuch has some kind of revelation that tells him Louden is on a "Vision Quest." We never find out much about the Vision Quest except that it is supposed to change one's life.

Then we have Carla (Linda Fiorentino). She is some sexy young woman with a low voice from Trenton, New Jersey, on her way to San Francisco to become an artist. By some fine chance she gets stuck in Spokane with no place to stay and ends up living with Louden and his father. Louden is infatuated with her and desperately wants to go to bed with her. But Carla's addition to the film was merely distracting. She did not add much to the plot and, with her around, the other characters are not allowed to develop.

Matthew Modine (Louden) and Linda Fiorentino (Carla) of Vision Quest

Vision Quest had a number of interesting characters that I wanted to know more about: characters who could have added a great deal to the film. Kuch is a fine example of such a character. He claims to be an American Indian; later we find out he just made up a story about being an Indian. We also see Kuch's father as a drunk who beats him. We discover all this about Kuch and then are left without knowing why screenwriter Darryl Ponicsan and director Harold Becker bothered to include these unexplained details. I found this throughout the film. The filmmakers had the habit of giving us information that didn't make any difference to the film.

Another unexplained scene occurred while Louden was at work at a hotel. Louden took a room service order to a salesman staying at the hotel. When Louden walked in he saw the salesman practicing Tai Chi. This looked a little like karate done in slow motion. The salesman tells Louden how wonderful Tai Chi is for athletic training and offers to show him how to do it.

Here I expected Louden to get some kind of grand knowledge that will make his wrestling unbeatable and perhaps to gain a mentor who will guide him through his vision quest. No such luck. The salesman makes a pass at Louden and Louden leaves in a hurry—and that's it. I don't understand why this scene was included in the film. For it made no difference to the plot.

On the other hand, Vision Quest did have a few funny scenes that were fairly well done. These humorous scenes made the film tolerable and sometimes even good. My main objection comes from the film's lack of depth.

The film had a lot of music in it although the volume was a little too high. I counted fourteen songs, including a special appearance by Madonna. The music was used a number of times to pace Louden's workouts. In several scenes we see Louden running with the music pounding in the background and the scenery of Spokane as a picturesque backdrop. Spokane has some nice waterfalls and bridges.

Overall, Vision Quest was not too bad. But I found it to be a film where I kept on waiting for the characters to get to the heart of the story. In the end it turned out that the film didn't really have much of a heart. This is of course my view: the audience seemed to be getting more out of it than I was. So if I had to rate this film on some sort of scale, I'd have to give it an average rating. If you want to have a few laughs without much message, this may be the film for you.

HARRY performs at MSC

Senta Driver's dance company is daring, original, innovative

By Mary Heffernan

The dance company HARRY, led by Senta Driver, graced the stage of MSC's Memorial Auditorium on Feb. 8. This five-member team gave a performance that was exciting and inspiring. HARRY's style was refreshingly untraditional and very entertaining.

The most striking feature of the performance was its daring originality. The four dances were performed barefoot. Three of the dances began in silence, with a delayed musical accompaniment; one was performed without music. Each was unconventional and innovative.

The first dance, "Four Pair," was set to the tempo of a fast-paced guitar piece. The dancing was rapid and displayed many interesting movements, like break-dance pirouettes on the head. The action of the dance would focus on two or three dancers at a time. The action was so engaging that the other dancers left the stage unnoticed. Another interesting feature of this dance occurred when one dancer simply laid down on her side onstage and watched the action.

Both "Second Generation" and "Survivors (The Black Trio)"] were performed by three dancers. "Second Generation" began with a ghostly, eerie light cast on the dancers' faces. "Survivors" was performed without music; instead, the dancers spoke to each other or cried out names in unison. Both the dancing and the speaking was done with great urgency. In both dances the focus of attention flowed smoothly from one combination of dancers to the next.

"Missing Persons," the final dance, was especially interesting. All five dancers performed with a continuity characteristic of all of HARRY's work. The quick and exciting movements also continued to grasp the attention in this work; however, a series of slow, peaceful songs was used as a musical score. The dancers' movements were thus out-of-sync with the slow music. This produced a captivating effect: it kept the attention as one tried to resolve the conflict between music and movement.

Overall, the performances were excellent. Dancer Senta Driver has been working as a choreographer for the past ten years in order to present dance in a totally new way. HARRY's Friday night performance was a challenging show of innovation and creativity.

Lady Indians find heroics & heartaches

MSC 53-Trenton St. 51

By Jim Nicosia

Picture this: The score is tied, Trenton State 51, MSC 51. The clock’s running down, Sue Ball dribbles up to the top of the key, and with six seconds left, puts up a shot that hits the rim and bounces off to the right. Debbie Emery gets her first rebound of the game, puts up a quick 12-foot turnaround jumper that goes through the net and bang—a four game losing streak is over.

It sounds simple, but don’t tell that to MSC Coach Jill Jeffrey. It took all of last Saturday’s game’s 40 minutes for the Indians to emerge with their ninth victory of the season, and not one second of it was easy.

The Indians held the lead throughout most of the first half, at Panzer Gym, after opening up a 10-2 lead over Trenton. Judy DeFrancisci (8 points), Ball (6), Emery (6), and Lorraine Bratton (4) all had a hand in the scoring, as the game took on the tone of a defensive struggle. Emery, the 3rd leading scorer in the state, and first to surpass 400 points, was held pretty much in check for most of the first half, but the rest of the team didn’t fall apart.

Everyone looked to be an offensive threat today,” said Jeffrey, noting that during the team’s losing streak, “the forwards got into the habit of watching the guards. All five players were active, contributed to the win today.”

Siena 60-MSC 59

By Jim Nicosia

“I wish ‘almost’ counted towards our chances for making the (Cosmopolitan Conference) tournament.” Those words from Jill Jeffrey, MSC Women’s Basketball Head Coach, summed up Tuesday night’s game vs. Siena at Panzer Gym to a T. The Indians almost upset Siena for their much-needed victory of the season, and not one second of it was easy.

The Indians found that our Friday had Siena’s back to the wall. The mistakes were there, but the Indians can’t dwell on them. MSC played sound, aggressive basketball for most of the game, and had Siena’s back to the wall.

MSC 84-Stockton St. 80

By Tom Branna

MSC 24 of 35 foul shots and dropped Stockton State 84-80 in Wednesday night’s men’s basketball action. The Indians went over the 500 mark (12-11) on the year behind forward Bob Schramm’s 24 points.

MSC led throughout the game, but the contest was in question until Ulysses Del Rio converted four free throws late in the game to give MSC a 78-74 edge. Del Rio finished with 17 points.

Bryan Gabriel was the only other MSC player to reach double figures, finishing the night with 18 points.

The Indians held a 37-32 halftime lead and went on to victory behind Schramm and Gabriel both of whom had ten points in the second half.

Jay Phillips paced the losers with 35 points and fourteen rebounds.

Men’s basketball team has its ups and downs

MSC 69-MSC 56

By Tom Branna

It would have been a difficult assignment on any night; but when the undefeated conference leaders shoot 61 percent from the floor in front of their home crowd, the odds on coming away with a victory are one in a million.

Not that the Indians didn’t have their chances. They had leads over ten points, and even held a 39-26 advantage with 17:00 left in the game. MSC held off three Siena rallies in the second half, but the Moscatel Indians have found a way of slipping away from you. That’s what happened to MSC, as Siena emerged victorious, 60-59.

Lineman Renae named Kodak All-American

By Perry Schwarz

Usually when a football player or any athlete achieves great success and honors in his sport, an extensive high school background is accompanied with it. Well, in Jim Renae's case, this is not true.

Renae, who now joins an elite athletic group in the category of Kodak All American, had only three years! When Renae transferred from Old Dominion to Montclair State, the program was looking for linemen at the time. "When Jim joined the squad he was put on defense and then was moved to offensive tackle due to fact that he had strength we were looking for," said Rick Giancola head football coach said. "We took a chance on him, due to necessity, and it paid off," he added.

Accompanying Renae's All American Honors were his past award of 1984. Some of them were All New Jersey State Athletic and ECAC Conference honors as well as Pizza Hut All American. Accompanying Renae's All American Honors were his past award of 1984. Some of them were All New Jersey State Athletic and ECAC Conference honors as well as Pizza Hut All American.

Some of them were All New Jersey State Athletic and ECAC Conference honors as well as Pizza Hut All American. "My friends and I were into bodybuilding, if you called that a sport," Renae said.

Renae has already received his degree, but if he wanted to come back and play for the Indians one more season he would be eligible. That way, he would be able to play if he was a full time student again. Right now Renae is looking for a tryout with any pro team. He has been sending letters to many football teams particularly the New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles. "If I do get the opportunity to play pro ball I will take it no matter where I have to go," Renae said.

If you are superstitious or believe in fate then Renae will have his shot to play. Every Kodak All American from Montclair State has stepped on the field for a pro team. A few games to mention in this All American cliche were Sam Mills, Terry porter, and Marc Casale. Mills is entering his third year with the USFL. Porter finished a short career with USFL after seeing action with the Canadian Football League and National Football League.

Indian wrestlers capture Metro title

By Anna Schiavo

With the Intercollegiate Metropolitan Tournament setting the stage, the MSC wrestling team pulled off an outstanding performance.

The Tribe came away with four champions, including Nick Milonas at 126, Jim Petty at 177, heavyweight Joe Galioto and at 167 pounds John Monaco.

Monaco also won the Most Outstanding Wrestler award.

John Schumatti, a 134 pounder, placed third. Co-captain Dan DaCunto who wrestles in at 158 and Mark Gaspich, a 190 pounder both placed second in their respective weight classes.

The Indian squad overwhelmed Trenton State who held the title for six years. Coach Steve Strellner came away with the Coach of the Year award.

Petty who beat two time All-American and two-time Metropolitan Champ Jim Andrich, feels that this match was his biggest match of the year.

Beating Andrich has helped me mentally in preparing for the nationals,” said DaCunto.

“I feel I could have wrestled a lot better. I lost to Latinsics twice in the Essex Cup and semi-finals in the Metropolitan Tournament. I realize a lot of my mistakes and I am working harder for our next confrontation in the national qualifiers at Trenton State this weekend,” said Schumatti.

“This is my second time winning this tournament and I feel that the team did a fine job in dominating the rest of the field. We led in the team standing all the way through the tournament with fine efforts from the team,” Galioto said.

Gaspich feels that being in the Metropolitan Tournament has given him confidence in his “ability to win the bigger tournaments. It was a good warm-up for the regional qualifiers for the Nationals. The hard competition that was there enabled me to get a high seed in the National Qualifier Tournament.”

“Through hard practices and extra individual effort the team has a chance of capturing the Division III Nationals,” said Gaspich.

Co-captain Dan DaCunto who came in at second found it “difficult at first because the loss came in the last six seconds. I should wrestle him again this weekend and that loss should inspire me.”

DaCunto feels the “team as a whole wrestled excellently and a lot of team unity and spirit showed. In every match wrestled the entire team was at the edge of the mat cheering and supporting whoever was wrestling. I feel this is very important since a team without spirit cannot win a national title.”

“My feel I can win the qualifier and since the number one team in the nation is at our qualifier we can end the weekend as the number one team in the nation,” said DaCunto.

“I stated earlier in the season that I felt Steve Strellner would have the justifications he deserves and winning the team title at the Metropolitan Championships and his being named Coach of the Year are the beginning of that justification. The icing on the cake will be winning the National Championship. Myself and all the team members will give him everything we’ve got,” said DaCunto.

MSC gridiron stars receive ECAC honors

By Perry Schwarz

State Legislator Steven Adubato presented a plaque to the MSC Football Program on Tuesday. In Adubato’s company were Head Coach Rick Giancola, Athletic Director Bill Dioguardi, and football players Jim Renae and Ed Poveromo. Bob Knudsen was unable to attend the event due to a personal problem.

Adubato, who was a 1979 graduate and former Indian place kicker, felt a need to present an award of this caliber to show many citizens of the state what kind of excellent football program is established at MSC. “Once I graduated college I still followed the school’s progress through the papers and when I heard about the honor they accomplished I felt it was a necessary thing to bring out,” Adubato said. The college has come a long way and MSC is a fine academic as well as athletic institution, according to Adubato.

Ed Poveromo, who achieved First Team All Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference honors, felt this was his biggest accomplishment in his football career. The physics/math major would like to do work in research field upon graduating; but if an opportunity of professional football comes around you’re sure Poveromo will take it. Terry Porter, secondary coach, explained this year’s football success was keyed on the fine athletes on the team including Renae, Knudsen and Poveromo. They brought experience as well as leadership to the squad.

Coach Giancola was very happy to see three of his players achieve ALL ECAC honors. The ECAC includes many colleges in the New York and Metropolitan area. “For three to make first team from the same school is a great accomplishment”, Giancola commented.

Jim Renae, who achieved All America honors as well ECAC honors, looks forward to a pro career if he is afforded the opportunity. Renae graduated in January achieving a degree in office system management.

Adubato hopes to return to the state legislature with Giancola and a few of the athletes that contributed to the team’s success and publicly voice his enthusiasm over the success of the football squad and athletic staff.
