The autonomy bills pass in Senate and Assembly

By Maureen Freeburg

At last week's Board of Trustees meeting, MSC President Donald E. Walters announced that the three autonomy bills passed in both the Senate and Assembly in Trenton on March 7.

The autonomy bills are designed to give all New Jersey state colleges the ability to be self-governing in fiscal, operational and personal decisions. Walters said that in early February, although the full senate passed all three bills on the floor, one of the bills was amended in two respects. The amendments state that the colleges will not be allowed to contract outside employees for work such as construction if there are on campus workers available. Secondly, faculty and staff will be included as civil service employees.

"There has been a strenuous struggle as to whether these amendments are good or bad," Walters said. The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) and Communication Workers of America (CWA) seem to be the only ones who are in favor of it." The next step is for Governor Thomas Kean to sign the bill.

In other news, Middle States Accreditation will be evaluating MSC in 1987. This evaluation takes place every 10 years. In preparation for the visit, Walters plans to appoint a self-study team of faculty and students this spring. The National Association for the State Directors of Teachers Association (NASTEC) will begin an evaluation this semester. A team of 21 people will evaluate MSC's undergraduate and graduate programs March 11 through the 14. After a long time in legislation, the Board of Higher Education has approved the plans for a Masters Program in Education at MSC.

SGA Board of Trustees representative, Eric Hartman, reported the SGA is currently reviewing all class one organizations' budgets and evaluating them for recharter. SGA elections will take place April 13-17. Positions for president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and Board of Trustees representative are open. Petitions are available in the SGA office.

In regard to the $10 million Kean has agreed to give state colleges who show significant improvement, Walters said, "We must do something important to alter the character of the college. I am very excited about this opportunity and hope by June we will have achieved substantial improvement here at the college." In order for any state college to be eligible for funding, it must comprise a three year planning statement. By the fall semester of 1985, Walters hopes to attain partial funding for the college.

MSC alumnus Raymond Young, a judge in Hudson County will receive honorary degree at graduation. Young will be awarded a Doctor of Laws degree.

Finally, Walters discussed an invitational seminar he recently attended in Boston. During the seminar entitled "Involvement in Learning," presidents from colleges nationwide discussed some problems of state colleges. Walters plans to hold a similar forum discussion involving the entire campus community.

New VP for Administration and Finance selected

After a nationwide search, MSC's Board of Trustees has selected William H. Griffith as the new vice president for Administration and Finance. Griffith is currently reviewing all class one organizations' budgets and evaluating them for recharter. SGA elections will take place April 13-17. Positions for president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and Board of Trustees representative are open. Petitions are available in the SGA office.

New VP for Administration and Finance selected

After a nationwide search, William H. Griffith was chosen to serve as new VP. Griffith will manage the finances of the Auxiliary Services and the Faculty-Student Cooperative Association. Griffith, a native of Des Plaines, Illinois, took the office previously held by Elliot Mininberg, on March 4. He has 19 years service in public higher education administration and extensive experience in such areas as finance and accounting, organization and human resource management, development of administrative policies and procedures, and liaison activities with state and federal agencies. For ten years he served as budget officer for the Illinois Board of Regents for five years, and as an accountant at the University of Illinois for four years. Griffith received his Bachelor of Science degree in accounting from the University of Illinois, and holds a Master of Science degree in Management and Development of Human Resources from the National College of Education. He is a member in the National Association of College and University Business Officers, and the Central Association of College and University Business Officers.

Stolen vehicle recovered

By Wendy Deja

On Fri., March 8, someone stole a '77 Chevy Camaro from lot 30 between 1 and 2 p.m. The auto, valued at $3,000, was recovered the next day in Kearny by the Kearny police department.

On Thurs., March 7, a theft was reported in Freeman Hall. Sometime between the evening of March 6 and 7, a person entered an unlocked dorm room and stole $353 worth of jewelry, $145 worth of albums and $13 in cash. The room was also ransacked in the process of the theft.

No suspect has been apprehended.

An automobile was entered in lot 30 on March 8 between 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. In an attempt to steal the vehicle someone ripped the ignition switch out of the '71 Firebird.

On March 7, someone stole the louveres off a '78 Chevy in lot 13, valued at $100. They have not been recovered.

On March 10, between 4 a.m. and 10 a.m. in lot 20, the owner of a '74 VW returned to his vehicle to discover that someone had stolen a part from his car, worth $45.

A theft was reported in the women's locker room in Panzer Gym on March 5. Between 8 and 8:45 p.m., someone stole $123 worth of clothing and $20 in cash from a student utilizing the room.

A waste-can fire was reported in the women's bathroom in Sprague library on Mon., March 4. Employees were able to extinguish the fire before campus police arrived.

Blanton Hall was again the target of a bomb threat on March 8. A male caller contacted the building at 12:45 a.m. and the premises were evacuated. No bomb was found.

MSC slasher awaits his trial

By Wendy Deja

The 18-year-old male who was arrested by MSC campus police for the Feb. 10 slashing of a visiting Philadelphia student, attended a probable cause hearing on Wed. Feb. 27.

At the hearing, probable cause was determined lawful and the case has now been referred to the Grand Jury.

No suspect has been apprehended.

On Thurs., March 7, someone stole the carburetor worth $45.

On March 6 and 7, a person entered an unlocked dorm room and stole $535 worth of jewelry, $145 worth of albums and $13 in cash. The room was also ransacked in the process of the theft.

Warning: Illegal parking can be hazardous to your wealth

Dr. Edward Martin, dean of students, wants to advise all students that starting Monday, March 18, campus police will be steadily enforcing all parking regulations, particularly those relating to fire zones, campus thruways, and faculty-staff lots.

Both Martin and William Griffith, who was recently appointed to the position of vice president for administration and finance, want to be sure that all students who have fallen into the habit of parking illegally are forewarned.

Also, students should be aware that the ticket and towing charges related to the removal of vehicles which violate campus regulations can amount to almost $100, plus a major inconvenience. The garage that is contracted to tow the vehicles accepts cash only.

SGA renews CINA's charter

By Susan Ryall

After the constitutional review committee (Con Review) negotiated the Council on International and National Affairs' (CINA) charter, the club was reinstated as a Class One Organization at last night's meeting.

At last week's meeting, SGA president, Dave Handal proposed to amend CINA's constitution by cutting out the cinema line of their budget. However, after Con Review negotiations yesterday afternoon, it was decided to change the name of the cinema committee to the multimedia committee.

The change of name specifies that not only movies should be presented, but also plays slide shows, and video tapes.

CRS discusses African famine

By Maureen Freeburg
Steve Callahan, representative from Catholic Relief Services (CRS), gave a presentation on the wide-spread famine currently affecting 29 African nations.

Lynn Schurda, Raenell Foreman, Katie Herbst and Diane Zimmerman, all resident assistants from the various dorms, arranged the presentation as an R.A. project. This presentation focused on a segment from 60 Minutes. The taped contained footage from a refugee camp in Africa. The camp has over 25,000 refugees, one doctor and three nurses.

Presently, 7.7 million people are directly affected by the drought and starving. Death from starvation is a daily occurrence.

Callahan stressed the need for food as well as many non-food items such as medical supplies, blankets, and shelter materials.

CRS is currently formulating an

Greek Life
Council makes progress

Many notable people from other fraternities have visited MSC. Some of these people have been involved with the Greek system for more than 30 years and are still reaping its benefits. Their visits have enabled the council to accomplish in months what may have taken years to complete.

The Greek Council has been progressing steadily toward establishing a regulating body for the MSC fraternities and sororities. The Greeks at MSC total nearly 500 men and women in organizations ranging from social to professional. This number is on the increase not only at MSC but nationwide.

In an attempt to initiate this regulating body, members of the Greek organizations are representative to the Greek Council. There have been close contact with all the State Colleges of New Jersey along with many out of state institutions. The members have visited these colleges and universities to observe how their organizations are run. The insight that has been attained from these visits has been a valuable asset in helping the council’s efforts at MSC.

New MSC chaplain hopes to minister student needs

By Karen Hughes
When Reverend Clement Ndovie took over as MSC’s new chaplin at the beginning of this year, he realized he had a big job ahead of him.

“My purpose here has many facets,” he said. “First, I want to minister to the students and their needs. Ndovie also wants to get the students to relate what they have learned in their liberal education to their religious beliefs. “I want them to be more sensitive to their academics, use such learnings as Mencken and bounce these learnings to their academics, use such learnings as Mencken and bounce these learnings against their faith.”

As a representative of the Presbyterian church, his mission had a two-fold purpose. For 18 months, Ndovie traveled around the country educating the Canadian Presbyterians. For the next two years, he worked as a pastor at St. Mary’s church in Toronto and did some graduate work at the University of Toronto as well.

Ndovie said, “I just have to be careful not to get myself into trouble.”

However, he did adjust. On March 11, 1984, he married an American woman, who is a chaplin at East Orange General Hospital. In addition to serving their community, the couple have shared in the upbringing of their two sons.

Dr. Silva examines present Portuguese program

By Warren Thomas

Dr. Odete Botelho Silva, MSC's visiting specialist in Portuguese Studies, is presently analyzing the existing curriculum of Portuguese studies at the college in an effort to refine and expand the program.

Silva's part-time position is funded under a foreign languages sub-grant of the New Jersey Grant for the Humanities. Silva hopes to accommodate the increasing number of Portuguese-American students at MSC and encourage new students to participate in the program.

Silva received a Doctoral Degree from the Graduate School and University Center of the City University of New York where she majored in Portuguese and Brazilian languages. She has been working with Dr. Philip Cohen, dean of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, and Dr. Roland Garrett, vice-president of Academic Affairs in expanding the Portuguese curriculum. Two new courses, "Translating I" and "Commercial Portuguese" have already been added to the curriculum.

In regard to her reasons for taking on this assignment Silva explained, "Because I am a Portuguese-American I have a great interest in having a solid foundation of Portuguese studies at MSC." She said MSC is the only college in New Jersey that offers four levels of Portuguese language courses. This fact, combined with a Portuguese population of over 50,000 in Newark and the surrounding areas, has made MSC the first choice among Portuguese-Americans who attend college. There are over 100,000 Portuguese-Americans in the state altogether.

After reviewing MSC's directory of Portuguese-American students, Silva has found 36 prospective participants in the new program. Silva estimates that there are over 300 Portuguese-American students attending the college.

Silva's interest in Portuguese studies is not restricted solely to the MSC. She is also doing community outreach to encourage the study of Portuguese by residents of neighboring communities with sizable Portuguese populations.

In addition to the academic programs, Silva hopes to improve the cultural opportunities for MSC's Portuguese-American students. One way she says this can be accomplished is through the establishment of a Portuguese Club. "There are certainly enough Portuguese-American students here to start a club," Silva said. "There are many students new to MSC who would find it useful and enjoyable."

According to Silva, one way students can participate in the Portuguese studies program is by minoring in Portuguese, so students can register for them according to their own aptitude.

To publicize these new developments in the Portuguese studies program a "Portuguese-American Day" is scheduled for April 10 in the Student Center. A videotape on Portugal will be shown, and several Portuguese-American educational leaders will speak. Dr. Antonia Simoes, a professor at New York University, will deliver a lecture on Portuguese culture and literature.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER M/F
Civil rights advocates are displeased with the Reagan administration's attitudes toward affirmative action. Some employers, however, are celebrating their release from the restrictions to hire in order to ensure racial balance.

Many corporations do not share that attitude; recognizing instead the benefits of having the contributions of employees from different ethnic backgrounds. These companies continue to make special outreach efforts to minority individuals.

This commitment is demonstrated by the number of companies that continue to attend minority career fairs and conferences, which sponsor special information days and offer special internship opportunities for minority students.

State Farm Insurance and Prudential are two employers that are currently sponsoring summer internships and information meetings.

All December '85 and May '86 graduates who are minority students with a 2.6 minimum GPA may sign up for State Farm's summer internship. This is an excellent opportunity to learn about the insurance industry, become familiar with various departments, and possibly be assigned to a special project.

The internship will begin on June 10 and run 10 weeks with a salary of $300 a week. Those interested must have resumes and applications (obtainable in Career Services) in order to sign up for on-campus interviews to be held on March 25 and 27.

This internship is open to minority students, and the students with Career Services, will be hosting its first Minority Career Forum on Fri., March 22 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at their Roseland location.

This will be an opportunity for minority students to meet with representatives from various departments and learn about possible employment options in their specialized areas.

Those interested in attending must pre-register and send their resumes to Career Services by March 15. Transportation will be provided, and those who attend will be Prudential's guests for lunch in the corporate dining room.

Biology major gains work experience in sunny Florida

By Janet Hart

If you find yourself in the Florida Keys over Spring break and see a slightly familiar face on the streets of Key West or Marathon, it might be Sophomore Biology major Frank Riker. Riker has been a co-op student at the New Harbor Marine Institute (NHMI) in Big Pine Key (90 miles south of Miami) since early January.

Riker responded to Co-op flyer sent to his home last fall. When he expressed an interest in marine biology, his counselor advised him of a five-month teaching assistantship at NHMI. He applied immediately, and within three weeks received a call to arrange a telephone interview.

The intern director asked Riker questions about his education, hobbies, career accomplishments, work experience and personal and leadership qualities. Having recently attended the Co-op Professional Preparation Seminar, he was well prepared for the interview. He received a job offer two weeks later and was packing his bags shortly thereafter.

In a recent letter Riker reported, "During the first few days I became acquainted with many of the staff members. Everyone was very friendly and willing to help me adjust to the system. The first month was one of intensive training." Most of an intern's time is spent outdoors being taught by instructors working at the Institute for at least a year.

"The interns represent all the regions of the country with an age range of 19-26. We work nine hours a day, six days a week, so we have very little time for ourselves. We use our free time wisely and to our best advantage," he said. "Many of us intern scuba dive, snorkel, fish, windsurf and tour the area. Riker states. Besides hobbies and partying, some interns are working on or helping others with personal research.

Riker believes that working in the field is one of the most valuable experiences a student could have. "Besides gaining an immense amount of marine science knowledge, I am getting a good background in teaching and teaching techniques which can also benefit me in the future."

"The idea of living and learning out-of-state interests you, there are quite a few opportunities to do so each semester. Besides Riker, five other MSC students are co-oping at Disney World this term. The Govemment has summer openings for virtually every major in the D.C. area, the Department of energy hires for Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and Brookhaven National Labs on Long Island has internships, as do a number of other institutions from Puerto Rico to California."

"It's amazing the amount of knowledge that can be learned, just by talking with people who have masters and doctorate degrees. This place is really overflowing with marine science information. The majority of what I've learned here couldn't be learned in a classroom. Being in the field has given me the opportunity to do small-scale studies on my own. It's made me realize how much work a scientist puts into his or her research and also how often it seems as though the only thanks come from colleagues," Riker reports.

Riker believes that his studies at NHMI have had a big impact on his work and study. "Being away from home has helped me mature as a person. I realize now that if I really want to enter the world of marine science, I've got to do my research, read ten times more information, and continue talking to the right people."

He reports that his intern experience has helped him make professional friends and contacts in the field. "I know what I must do to get where I want to go, so I will be working a bit harder when I get back on campus than I did before," he said.

SGA's new plans to balance their budget

Balancing a budget is no easy task. Look at the problems Reagans having. Our SGA has undertaken the annual job of doling out the students' money to itself and the SGA organizations. Although you, as SGA fee-paying students, may not have been overjoyed to part with your hard earned cash, at least you'll be pleased to know this administration is doing a better job than recent ones. Some, however, may disagree. Some will gripe that it has taken longer for all the budgets to be completed than in past years.

A major reason for the delay is, that unlike prior administrations, both the SGA president, Dave Handal, and treasurer, Frank Little, are individually meeting with each Class One to work through the budgets before they come before appropriations for approval.

Also, I'm sure louder cries can be heard from the Class One's whose budgets Handal is recommending be cut. But this SGA is faced with a different problem; making up for the wasted time and money of past SGA's. One viable way of doing this is tightening the belt and dropping the excess pounds. However, the Class One's shouldn't be the only ones cutting back. The SGA should also consider trimming its own allotments. If we all don't take steps this year, the SGA could be one step closer to going under. And if the SGA doesn't handle their own money wisely, who will? The college administration?

One reason for intervention is mismanagement of funds. A prime example occurred in 1982-83 when both WMSC and The Montclarion needed replacement of expensive capital equipment. These major replacements weren't planned for and the SGA almost depleted its funds.

However, Handal and Little are taking steps to prevent this from happening again. They are setting up a capital equipment line that will fund only planned replacement of existing equipment. In doing this, the depression of capital equipment will be closely monitored. Some of the money is indirectly coming from the capital equipment lines of the Class Ones. For example, $10,000 SGA was saving for this purpose is being used by the SGA.

Cuts such as this are needed if the SGA is to get off the road to bankruptcy and bring their budget back into the black.
To the editor:

I don’t own a stereo, I am struggling to pay for my sister for a car I had to buy in order to get to school, and my vacations to the beach last only a few days, if that long.

Was Mr. Bennet, the secretary of education, talking about me when he suggested that college students “divert” their cars, stereos and vacations at the beach? He must have been, because he supports President Reagan’s proposal to cut back on student aid. He seems to be confusing a “free ride” with a plea for help. These are the students Bennet should be talking about.

I don’t own a stereo. I am struggling to pay for my sister for a car I had to buy in order to get to school, and my vacations to the beach last only a few days, if that long.

I think it’s a good idea. I think people should work as long as they want to.

I own a stereo, I am still paying for my college expenses, and I have three part-time jobs, leaving school to earn money and then coming back. Sound familiar? I’m sure it does.

The article, “Waging War on Students,” that appeared in the Feb. 28 issue of The Montclarion prompted me to write this letter. It expressed the views of students at American University who responded to Bennet’s sarcastic comments about college students and student aid.

Some of these students are struggling to pay for their college costs by holding down two or three part-time jobs, leaving school to earn money and then coming back. Sound familiar? I’m sure it does.

I am also sure that there are students who don’t need aid, but are receiving it somehow. Colman McCarthy called them “campus leeches.” I can think of a better name. These are the students Bennet should be talking about.

But no, Mr. Bennet is talking about all college students who need aid. He seems to be confusing a “free ride” with a plea for help.

To the editor:

We are sure that the gap in newsprint on page three of the March 7 issue of The Montclarion is significant.

In the surrounding article on the March 6 meeting of the SGA, the reporter states that the difference between Human Relations Organization (HRO), and the Newman Community, (Catholic Campus Ministry), is a “paid leader from the Archdiocese.” Surely something must have been left out in that gap.

We would hope that Father Art Humphrey and Anne Leap are more than just “paid leaders” to the Newman Community and to the larger campus.

While it can be said that both Newman and HRO have relationships at the core of their existence, our charter defines Newman as “A student led Catholic group, chartered as a Class III organization of the SGA, in which people came together in an open and innovative atmosphere for spiritual, educational and social growth.”

Both groups are “short changed” when a budget is reported as the only difference!

There is no doubt that one of the most important problems that every MSC student has to face every day is parking. This semester the problem has gotten worse, especially in the parking areas around College Ave.

During previous years the custom was that the person who came first would take the first space to be vacated, regardless of where he was waiting.

This semester the custom is not being kept and people who just arrive take the space being vacated without any concern for those who waited there for an hour.

This is very unfair. It would be beneficial if the college administration sets up a program that would fairly bring a solution to this problem.

Quentin Crisp’s message: “Everybody can be redeemed”

By S.C. Wood

If you haven’t heard of Mr. Quentin Crisp, or think he’s the newest breakfast cereal, pray stand by and be enlightened. Quentin Crisp is...is...well, perhaps it is easier to say what he isn’t.

He isn’t an actor, although he acts in shows off-Broadway and, most recently, in a movie. He isn’t an artist, although he was once a commercial designer and is now a living Work of Art. He isn’t a politician, although he is a fine public speaker with a razor-sharp wit and clear-cut ideas about just about everything.

Mr. Crisp is New York’s finest ornament. Imported from London four years ago, when he did a revival of his hillarious hit off-Broadway show, An Evening With Quentin Crisp, he is America’s leading authority on happiness. “I think the only thing that I could claim to understand happiness, he says.

His adulation of America and Americans is embarrassing, and when goaded to say something bad about the place, he shudders at the prevalent use of handguns and admits that “Everybody has a right to a gun, but it’s a mistake.”

His newest adventure is a movie role in The Bride. “I was a laboratory assistant to Mr. Sting, and I was allowed to play the part as though I had no idea what I was doing—which was just as well.” He confesses that after the experience “I’m through forever with wishing to be a movie star. On the one hand you are pampered, and you’re looked after, and people bring you cups of tea every few hours—along with this, you must expect to be tortured.”

“I was deluged with sand. Then I was sprayed with steam. Then I was threatened with a wall of flames. Then I had glass thrown in my face. Even then, I had a danger man who allowed rocks the size of armchairs to fall on his head.”

His verdict on modern movies is that they’ve gotten bigger, not better. “They’re more expensive. But the movies that make the most money tell you less. On an airplane I saw a movie called Star Wars: it gives you the sensation of travelling fast—that it does absolutely wonderful things.”

Heisees that the future of movies is to play music. Soon as you hear the music you think, “Oh, it’s only a movie, and you relinquish it.”

As a moralist, he objects to music in general. “In all tribes, the purpose of the music is to arouse and unite the male population. The men meet—they jump up and down—then they arouse themselves, usually for war.”

“Now you have no war, so you have united and aroused male population with nothing to do—hence all the violence. You stop the music, the world would become absolutely calm. You lose everything.”

He says this with an all-too-satirical seriousness, but you know he means it: sincerity is the cornerstone of his art, and he strictly insists that “Only a lie is boring.” His sense of individuality.

On the one hand you are pampered, and you’re looked after, and people bring you cups of tea every few hours—along with this, you must expect to be tortured.

“I was deluged with sand...Then I was sprayed with steam. Then I was threatened with a wall of flames. Then I had glass thrown in my face. Even then, I had a danger man who allowed rocks the size of armchairs to fall on his head.”

“I don’t have time to say what I wish to say.”

He writes movie reviews once a month for Christopher Street, an occasional play review for New York Native and goes on tour to lecture and promote his books.

Quentin Crisp later, a hero in the cause of cultivated individuality.

“Do not read any more books,” he will advise you. “If you read books, you will try to write literature, and that is always a mistake. It always makes the place, he shudders at the prevalent use of handguns and admits that “Everybody has a right to a gun, but it’s a mistake.”

Cintas Collection exhibit displays paintings of Spain’s Golden Age

By Jennifer Slechta

The Cintas Collection, now being exhibited at the Montclair Art Museum, is a fine show and worth seeing. The beautiful, exciting paintings belie the quiet, staid air of a museum.

Located in one big room on the left side of the building, the collection of Spanish paintings belong to Cuban collector Oscar Cintas. The works represent the art of the Spanish Golden Age, spanning the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

The naturalism of the early Baroque period is represented by Ribera’s painting, Christ Carrying the Cross. The work portrays a solemn character, lifelike in the details of his wrinkles and fingernails and the fine white hair etched in his beard.

The painting has many deep, dark shadows, giving it a dramatic effect. This painting should be seen in conjunction with the works of Caravaggio now being displayed at the Metropolitan Museum in New York. Ribera was deeply inspired by the work of Caravaggio and this influence shows in the histrionic and overemotional nature of his grapes.

Another work in a Caravaggesque vein is a painting formerly attributed to Caravaggio, entitled The Virgin of the Cross. The vintage in the painting is a happy peasant character, proudly showing off his grapes and the abundance and goodness of his grapes.

Although the background of the work is dark and stormy, the viewer is attracted to the up close vision on the vintager’s face and to the brightness and fertility he displays. Again, the painting has a strong forground quality, notably in the subject’s direct interaction with the spectator.

Several religious paintings are included in the exhibit. Two of them portray the Virgin of the Immaculate Conception. A truly great painting for New Jersey base is found for The Acting Center. Sessions will be held at the United Methodist Church in Leonia until a North Jersey base is found for The Acting Center.

The Acting Center’s philosophy is “growth in the human being leads to change.” For more information contact Isac Dostis, 944-3547.

An Evening With Noel Coward

Two serio-comic plays by Noel Coward, Fumed Oak and Still Life will be presented by the Studio players Thursday and Friday nights at 8 p.m. in the studio. Admission. A donation to the plays is free.

Both shows deal with more serious themes than Coward’s more famous play, Blithe Spirit.

Doris Blanchl is directing both Studio Productions, which feature players Michelle Tauber, Diane Ashton, Brett Bottrill, Patrick Gorman and Jim Heaton. The lights and set are designed by John Ehrenberg.

Singer Ronnie Spector rocks in class act at the Pony Club

By Bill Normyle

When you think of Asbury Park rock n roll, you have to think of John Eddie. When you think of John Eddie, you have to think of Stone Pony, that legendary New Jersey hot spot made famous by such New Jersey shore rockers as Southside Johnny and Little Steven. Since I have been a big fan of all of those bands since way back in the late ’70s, I have wanted to go to the Pony practically all my life. Since I recently turned the big 21! I wasted no time getting my denim jacket down to Asbury, especially since Ronnie Spector, the original “Queen of the B-52s” was there playing that night with the Cruisers.

As many of you may recall, the Cruisers played here at the Rat several months ago. They are a regular part of the Jersey shore music scene. The band features lead singer and guitarist Eddie Testa and has nothing to do with the movie of the same name, except for the fact that Testa once had a beer with her.

 Needless to say, they have borrowed from the Jukes, Ed Manlon and Richie Carpenter diet. The lights and set are designed by John Ehrenberg.

CLUB IS A CLASS I ORGANIZATION OF THE SGA
Rian Draegon and Museum perform with style at the Dirt Club

By Lisa Martucci

The Dirt Club, a quaint gathering-place in charming downtown Bloomfield, is presently sponsoring a showcase of new talent every Thursday evening during the month of March.

Last Thursday night I had the curious pleasure of hearing New Jersey’s own Rian Draegon and the band Museum. The frenetic Rian, lead vocalist and lyricist, and drummer Paul Bergen (illustrious MSC graduate) recently joined forces with guitarist Richie Floyd Heath and bassist Georgie. Heath and Georgie composed all but one of the tunes in the set.

Their performance at The Dirt commemorates the newly-formed ensemble’s first. This was definitely one of the best “firsts” I have ever experienced!

The performers have undergone dramatic readjustments in their musical orientation. When I first saw the “old” Museum at The Jetty some time ago, the band lacked a strong focus. Maybe it was the spacing percussion. They were loose, exotic and rather mystical. Playing as they did Thursday night, with a traditional three-piece arrangement, the band delivered febrile rock and roll.

Rian now characterizes the band as “strongly poetic, gusty, breathing rock and roll.” I concur.

Rian Draegon and Museum at the Dirt Club

Museum kicked off the set with “Whisper” a lively piece to which Rian performed a spastic, David Byrne-ish strut across the stage. “Tafetta” and “Riddles” were a little too heavy-handed, though the audience appeared to delight in these heavy metal compositions.

“One More Time” included numerous clever solos but the relentless throb of alternating bar chords throughout the song grew tedious after a short time.

By Gloria Dec

John Valby, a raunchy and perverted comic/musician, delighted and offended the senses of over 300 people in a sold-out performance, sponsored by CLUB, in the Student Center Ballrooms on March 7.

In the opening act comedian Mike Koval warmed up the already rowdy crowd with a series of off-color one-liners, certain to evoke abusive responses from the audience. One irate Valby fan joined Koval on stage charging that he “paid to see John Valby, not an imitation.” Koval was professional; he handled the hecklers well. It’s unfortunate that the impatient audience cut his act short and didn’t give him a chance to entertain them.

Taking his cue from Koval, Valby arrived onstage amid the rowdy fans who upheld the usual tradition of screaming obscenities at him. Smiling, Valby dressed in the usual white suit. “I’ve found that wearing a white suit makes me appear innocent. I can get away with being dirtier dressed this way,” says Valby.

If dirt is what the audience wants, Valby obliges them in abundance. His tongue-in-cheek approach makes fun of every possible part of a woman’s anatomy. Men get their fair share of ribbing also. What is “one eyed trouser worm” anyway?

The audience itself is a part of Valby’s act. The crowd’s participation reached its peak when Valby invited four volunteers to join him in an off-color version of “Barnacle Bill.” By dumbing the words of the song and persuading the girls to sing the punchline, the tune became “To hell with the dance, down with your pants,” said Barnacle Bill the Sailor.

At the piano, the 36-year-old musician mixed his musical talent with shocking dirty lyrics, delighting Valby fans who sang along with him.

Valby’s style is to blend the clean and the dirty and come up with some uproarious results. For example, “Leprossy, all my skin is falling off of me,” is Valby’s version of the Beatles’ “Yesterday.”

This is a mild example of Valby’s satire. The majority of his material is replete with expletives so obscene and profane that they are unprintable. He does play some clean songs to soften the impact of the dirty ones. “The dirty songs are what the people come back for.”

Valby performs his shows at colleges and clubs on the east coast and is expanding into other parts of the country. “At colleges, the people know each other,” says Valby, comparing the two types of audiences he reaches. “At bars they’re drunker and more wild.”

The only person who enjoys his shows more than the audience is Valby himself. The secret of his intensity and enjoyment in doing his act is to perform only two or three times a week, with several weeks off a year. “Anything becomes a job if you do it too much.”

Rian Draegon and the band Museum at The Dirt Club

Two of the best originals of their set, “You Intrigue Me” and “Time Dance” contained innovative and tumultuous chord progressions. Georgie’s intelligent bass line and Richie’s phlanged guitar provided effective counterpoint to Paul’s bright percussive accentuation.

Here Rian’s vocals demonically soared above the band’s thunder. Her caustic flirting with mere fragments of melody reminded me of a despondent, half-crazed Wagnerian anti-hero. But watching her take sips of beer between verses and frantically pacing the stage in her sweaty sleeveless T-shirt evoked fond memories of the late, great Patti Smith (no, she’s not dead, just “retired”).

These songs were followed by “Outer Fringes,” an acid rock tribute, and “Tender Scream,” a slow, moaning menace juxtaposed against the familiar strains of “Bolero.” “Richie’s Rocker” emerged, dark and full of delayed-effect guitar solos ricocheting early off the walls of the cavernous club. I must confess that I am not a very big Led Zeppelin fan, so I did not include “Richie’s Rocker” among my favorites of the set.

When the band left the stage the ample crowd went wild. Rian and Museum returned and plunged into an exciting cover of the late 1960’s top-40 hit, “Venus.” The song got everybody on their feet and created impressive resounding in the audience.

Their tight and enthusiastic performance at The Dirt forcefully provoked the full attention of their listeners. If you missed this intense and energetic band last Thursday night, don’t sweat it. Rian and Museum will be performing at The Bitter End on Bleeker St. in NYC, Friday evening, March 22. Be there!

Schramm and Gabriel earn All-Conference honors

MSC seniors Bob Schramm and Bryan Gabriel have been elected to the New Jersey Athletic Conference's All-Star basketball teams. Schramm, a 6-5, 190-pound forward, was a First Team selection. He placed ninth in the league in points scored with 260 (114 field goals-32 free throws) and wound up with an 18-game 14.4 scoring average.

In his final four conference contests, Schramm poured in a total of 93 points, including a season-high 31 in the final game against Jersey City State. Overall, Schramm played in 24 games for a 18-game average of 16.8.

The 6-0, 180-pound guard set the season record for most points in a league match. Against Glassboro State on February 2nd, he tossed in 39 points and led the Indians to a 90-76 victory. Overall, Gabriel played in 24 games and topped the Indians in total points scored (402), points per game average (16.7), rebounds (132-5.5 a game), and steals (93). He was second in assists with 73.

Among the MSC starting five, Gabriel and Schramm finished one-two in free throw accuracy. Gabriel netted 52 out of 71 foul shots for 73%. Schramm, 47 of 67 from the line, shot 70%.

Gymnasts Wendy Bossier and Meredith Galloway have qualified for the NCAA Division II Regional Championships. Both gymnasts qualified at-large in the all-around competition. This Southeast Regional meet will be held Saturday, March 16 at Indiana University in Pennsylvania.

Galloway, a sophomore, is seeded number one in the at-large all-around category, while senior co-captain Bossier is seeded number three. In order for either MSC representative to continue on to NCAA National competition, one of them has to be the top seed in the at-large category at the conclusion of the Regionals.

According to head coach Judy Bell, both Wendy and Meredith have to peak at Regionals in order to make it to Nationals. Both are physically stronger and better prepared. Their routines are more precise. All they have to do is hit on every routine.

If one gymnast should advance to the NCAA Nationals, they will be on their way to Springfield College in Massachusetts on March 29 and 30.

Yes No

□ Do you want to be the only one who knows when you use an early pregnancy test?

□ Would you prefer a test that's totally private to perform and totally private to read?

□ Would you like a test that's portable, so you can carry it with you and read it in private?

□ And how about a simple, one-step test with a dramatic color change that's easy to read and is 98% accurate?

If you checked "Yes" to the above, EPT PLUS is for you. Use it, and only you will know your test score.

USABA track meet seeks volunteers

Five hundred visually impaired athletes from throughout the country will compete in a national tournament on the MSC campus June 16-21. Conducted under the auspices of the United States Association for Blind Athletes, the tournament is being cosponsored by the Lions Club of New Jersey. MSC's department of Physical Education, Recreation and Leisure and the Association for Blind Athletes of New Jersey.

Help is needed in all facets of the tournament. Volunteers are needed to act as hosts and hostesses. These volunteers would stay at the Clove Road apartments with the delegation for the entire tournament. Volunteers are also needed for assisting with organization and the setting up of such events as the power lifting competition, wrestling, swimming, track and field, the opening ceremonies. Help is also needed in the transportation of the athletes to and from the airport and to provide shuttle service around the campus.

A meeting of the Association of Blind Athletes will be held Tuesday in the Brown Lounge of Panzer Gymnasium from 3 to 4 pm. Volunteers may help out anytime during the tournament. Volunteering for this event should prove to be a rewarding, fun and memorable experience for all.

the 400 meters in the relays this year. Shot putters and discus throwers this season will be freshman Jim Horgan and Bob Wagner.

Freshman javelin thrower Dan Dooley was "all-state last year at Butler High School. He is throwing the javelin 202 feet which is outstanding. He was also the punter for the football team which demonstrates his varied athletic abilities," Mezzone said.

"We'll be up against some teams that are out of our league like East Stroudsberg a Division II school but even this kind of meet is a good experience for the guys. When you run against better teams you tend to perform better. You set your goals higher," Coach Mezzone said.

"For a young team like this it will take time to reach their full potential. Hopefully I'll be able to recruit some additional high school athletes to form, in a couple of years, an outstanding team. In the meantime we'll be representative and we'll be getting experience. It takes time," the coach said.

"We're trying to rebuild this program. Any track candidates that are on campus are welcome to come out for the team. I'm usually on the track from 3:30 to 5:30 pm. They can also leave a message for me in the athletic office," Coach Mezzone said.
SILC volleyball gives aid to Cystic Fibrosis Foundation

By Perry Schwarz

The plans are just about completed for SILC's 8th annual volleyball marathon. The event which stimulates both campus and community involvement is probably one of SILC events of the year.

All the proceeds of the 24-hour marathon will be donated to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. The marathon will run on two hour shifts at $0.75 for 24 hours. However, there are some entrants that will play the full 24 hours at a fee of 600.00 dollars. Two or three of the MSC Alumni Associations purchase the 24 hour slots.

According to McKinley Boston, director of campus recreation and advisor to SILC, the charity is picked according to a proposal which is submitted to a committee that looks at proposals and scrutinizes their needs and purposes. Once the charity is selected, the proceeds of two marathons will be donated to the organization. The proposal, once selected, will receive the monies from the marathon for two years. This is the second year Cystic Fibrosis will receive the donation from SILC.

Many of the SILC members work industriously each year finding sponsors, as well as donators for prizes. At a fee of 600.00 dollars. Two or three of the faculty members that have purchased a slot and support the cause.

With this college support from all sides of the administration; including the students, faculty staff and outsourcing, another SILC marathon will be run on two hour shifts at 50.00 a shift. The plans are just about completed for SILC's 8th annual volleyball marathon. The event which stimulates both campus and community involvement is probably one of SILC events of the year.

Seven MSC swimmers gain NCAA Division III finals

Freshman Gail Meneghin, who is among the top seeds in the nation and has qualified for seven events, heads a group of seven Montclair State swimmers into this weekend's Fourth Annual National Collegiate Athletic Association Division Three Championships in Atlanta, Georgia.

This contingent, the largest MSC has ever sent, gives MSC the most representatives of any N.J. school at the tournament.

Meneghin, who holds six MSC records and shares three others, led the Indians to an 11-1 season and Regional, Metropolitan, and N.J. State Athletic Conference titles.

Among Montclair State's All-Americans competing for national honors are co-captain Janet Taylor, who holds or shares thirteen MSC marks, Jeanne Bauer, a record-holder or co-holder of five standards, co-captain Lisa DeNero, who shares two records, and Cindy Lepore from Freehold, who also shares two MSC records.

Also competing for the Indians are Lisa Sorensen and Kim Wilkinson, who each share one MSC record.

Close to 100 schools are expected to contend and MSC swim coach Greg Lockard is optimistic about his team's chances. He said, "Our swimmers have trained very hard for the competition and have prepared themselves well to compete against the best in the country."

Dave Stainslawczyk cennining the infield. Transfers Chris Pagano, and Mike Ashton will be looked on to fill Cuomo's vacancy at catcher, and Tim Johnson will use his speed and range in center. Off-set the loss of Nicosia's bat and arm.

The Indians will be spending the next two-and-a-half weeks in Florida, tuning up for their return home and the start of their conference schedule. If all goes well, and the pitching holds up for MSC, Cooney hopes to bring home the World Series title. After all, they've got a tradition to uphold!
MSC Baseball sets sights on NCAA World Series title

By Jim Nicosi

If there's one thing the MSC campus has gotten used to over the years, it's the success of the Indians' baseball team.

Last year's Indians, in their first season under Head Coach Kevin Cooney, finished with the most successful season in MSC baseball history. They posted a 35-12-1 record, swept the NCAA Northeast Regional tournament, and eventually finished third in the Division III World Series.

As the 1985 Varsity Baseball Outlook, release says, "Last year will be a tough act for the Indians to follow." Four Indians from the 1984 squad were lost to graduation: Mike Nicosi, John Setm our, Mike Butler, and Andy Cuom o. Cuom o, the senior pitcher will come in and pitch to one of the four who are unproven and inexperienced.

"The key to success is how we get our hitters used to facing good pitching," said Cooney. "There's no sense in feasting on some Humpty Dumpty's. I want to keep our hitters primed.

What Cooney's plan to do is to prepare his team for the kind of top-notch pitching they're going to see in the Northeast Regional Tournament and, hopefully, the World Series. "Our record might suffer, and it's taking a chance, but I think it's going to help us in the long run."

The long run, for the Indians means the World Series. The title has eluded MSC before, but Cooney is hoping the competitive schedule will better prepare his team for the crucial tournament contexts. "I think that as disappointed we were to see Ramapo win it (the World Series) last year," said Cooney, "it did help us to see that the other teams aren't some kind of supermen. They're just like teams in our conference. To see someone right in our neighborhood win, who we know we can beat, it makes us aware of the quality right here, too. There is no 'S' on anybody's uniforms."

If there's one important component that needs to come through for the Indians, it's "going to be pitching," admits Cooney. "Our frontline is strong, with Danny Olson, Shaun Garrity, Lorenzo Gentile, and Bage Noto. Then after them we've got a lot of people who are unproven and inexperienced." We're really going to have to use a lot of pitchers.

"The key to success is how we orchestrate our pitching. Maybe one pitcher will come in and pitch to one batter or so... They key is how well we're going to pull that off."

The Indians' defense appears strong, with Tobia, Yeager, and first baseman Nicosia, the 1984 conference basketball team co-captain of the track team, takes over as head coach of the present team this season. Though the team is for the most part young and inexperienced, the talent is there. "I think MSC could be great again because we have the potential and the facilities," said the MSC coach.

The team had a late start this year, "so they are starting to come together. The players are working hard and I think we'll have a good season. Being that they are such a young team the future is promising," Mizzone said.

Distance runners include juniors Jim O'Hara, George Krauss; freshman Luis Marreiros, John Hogan and Greg Spedevecchia and sophomore Frank Cuzzo. "Cuzzo is averaging about 60-70 miles a week for the past ten weeks. I expect some excellent times from Frank; he's a real hard worker," Mizzone said.

Men's track team ready for a rebuilding season

By Anne Schiavo

MSC alumnus Vic Mizzone, former co-captain of the track team takes over as head coach of the present team this season. Though the team is for the most part young and inexperienced, the talent is there. "I think MSC could be great again because we have the potential and the facilities," said the MSC coach.

The team had a late start this year but, "they are starting to come together. The players are working hard and I think we'll have a good season. Being that they are such a young team the future is promising," Mizzone said.

Sophomore Michael Hawkins is expected to be the team's top sprinter. Hawkins is a transfer from Grambling. He's going to be running the 100, 200 and 400 meter runs. I think he'll break 50 seconds in the 400 meters which is an excellent time. Not many runners will beat Mike this year," said the MSC coach. Also sprinting for the Indians are sophomores Jim Annon, Anthony Cleveland, John Jewel and junior Frank Liebel. "I think Liebel will run under two minutes in the 800 meters," said Mizzone.

Hurdlers this year are John Jewel and John Bocchino.

Rick Barron is expected to be the top Indian high jumper. The assistant coach W ernar Prenner, who was the Austrian Decathelon champion for three years, feels that Barron could jump 6'6 to 6'8 this year if he can just improve on his technique. Barron is a versatile athlete who will be running...
