Students veto Blanton alternative; opt for paper plates

By Joanne Cummings

A proposal made to close down Freeman Hall Cafeteria was rejected at a meeting with Residence Life administrators and selected members of SAGA Food Services, on Fri., Jan. 31.

The decision came as a result of a survey given to Freeman Hall residents that gave them the choice of eating at Blanton Hall or using paper products.

Due to a broken dishwasher in the Freeman Hall Cafeteria which occurred four days prior to the end of last semester, SAGA was forced to use paper plates, paper cups, and plastic utensils for serving food.

According to Dr. Ruth Lugo-Alvarez, associate director of residence life, the paper products will cost approximately $12,000 from now until the end of May, when the new dishwasher is expected to be installed. Lugo-Alvarez added, "This money will come from our food service budget, and could have gone towards supplies, maintenance, or new equipment for the cafeteria."

Both the members of residence life administration and of SAGA said that the students opinions were the most important consideration. Lugo-Alvarez said, "We held a survey to Freeman Hall residents to inform them on what was happening and see how they felt."

"We want to give the students an option. We don't want to inconvenience them," she said.

Freeman resident Dane Clayton said, "To close Freeman Hall Cafeteria would be an inconvenience to students. It's not healthy to walk down to Blanton three times a day in bad weather."

Another resident, Jennifer Bernhardt added, "Because Blanton is located on the other side of campus, there is no way we should have to eat there. If you want to catch lunch between classes, it's too much of a hassle to walk up to Blanton."

Aside from Freeman Hall residents, some of the faculty, commuters, and residents from the other dorms eat at Freeman when they are near that end of the campus.

According to John Hicks, director of SAGA, there had been problems with the dishwasher for over a year. He said, "In August, 1984, we were told a new dishwasher would be installed." Hicks explained that because MSC is a state funded college, they had to send out bids for the lowest priced dishwasher. MSC accepted a bid from one company. This was disputed by another bidding company. The disputes resulted in lengthy court procedures.

John Goscinski, assistant coordinator of residence services, explained that the company which filed the complaint felt their dishwasher was of equal quality and lower price than the bid that was accepted.

Goscinski added, "The dispute ended at the end of the (1985) fiscal year. By this time, the Division of Purchase of Property in Trenton required that the bidding procedure be repeated."

Hicks said that for the duration of the Spring semester "it looks as though students will continue with paper products. Meanwhile, since students will not have trays, SAGA will be taking some of the food off the serving line and into the dining room for convenience."

"Commenting on the use of paper products, Freeman resident Jeryl Zaraca said, "Eating off of paper plates doesn't bother me, but still I think they should have trays for students. Maybe SAGA could wipe the trays down."

Proposed Class One reorganization still undecided

By Maureen Freeburg

Discussion will continue tonight on a proposal to reorganize the present Class One system, in which eight of these thirteen organizations would form a programming board.

According to Rob Acerra, SGA director of programming, "Everybody realizes there's a definite need for improvement. The SGA and Student Activities both feel that Class Ones are not performing up to their full potential."

In an effort to improve the system, Class One representatives, Acerra, Romano, SGA legislator Karim Mahmud, and Patricia Crookes, director of Residence Life for the SGA, formed a committee to assess the need for a change in the present system.

After listening to pros and cons of the present system, the committee decided there is a definite lack of communication among the Class Ones. As a result, there is an overlap of programming, financial waste and a lack of recruitment and retention of members.

RoseMarie Savino, Vice President of College Life Union Board (CLUB), said, "If a change does take place, there will be a loss of identity among the Class Ones."

When the committee met again, over the winter break, the idea of the programming board was introduced. The programming board will combine eight Class One's and divide into individual committees, which will specialize in specific areas," Acerra said.

"We still have cooperation in working towards a common goal," Romano also pointed out that, according to the National Association of Campus Activities, most colleges and universities with the same size student body, operate under a programming board. "It's less diversified, more operational, and cost-efficient."

If the programming board does go into effect, five Class Ones would not be affected: The Montclarion, Quarterly, WMSC-FM, La Campana and the Student Intramural Leisure Council (SILC). These clubs will operate as independent organizations.

Romano, who acts as advisor to the committee, said, "There are flaws in the present system. I'd like to see definite improvements, but we need cooperation in working towards a common goal." Educational improvements cited in Walters’ speech

By Tom Boud

Educational and structural improvements on campus are the items outlined in this year’s current college budget, according to MSC President Donald Walters. These improvements were cited in Walter’s Jan. 29 address to the faculty and the administration on the state of Montclair.

Walters said in his speech that a total of $539,000 has been allotted for a variety of program expansions. “This includes more material for our library, more offerings for our liberal arts and humanities program as well as more support for our teaching skills project,” he said.

Walters also stressed that the international studies program will also be broadened. “The international studies program will focus on student and faculty exchanges, a curriculum accommodated for international study, and even special residences at Clowe Rd. for international students,” Walters said.

Walters discussed the structural changes allocated in the present budget. “A total of $75,000 has been earmarked for the construction and refurbishment of classrooms and laboratories; another $70,000 has been set aside for the construction of a microcomputer classroom.”

“Also, substantial additional funding has been reserved for us this year for special renovation projects: $400,000 for fire and safety needs and $650,000 to complete the removal of asbestos from Bohn Hall,” Walters said.

In terms of next year’s budget, Walters further stated that the Fine Arts Building will be upgraded in order to meet current safety standards and that repairs will begin this spring on the facades of Russ, Chapin, College and Morehead Halls.

Walters pointed out that the administration has received supplementary funds for technological improvements. “In our fiscal year 87 request, we have been approved for $1.8 million extra in our operating budget by the Board of Higher Education. This includes a half million dollars for academic computing, one quarter of a million dollars for science and high technology equipment, and a half million for our administrative computing system,” Walters said.

These improvements were cited in Walter’s Jan. 29 address to the faculty and the administration on the state of Montclair.

Professor Lovasco remembered at Memorial service

By Georgette Goergladis

A memorial service was held yesterday for Professor Anthony Lovasco who died Dec. 10 of a massive cerebral hemorrhage. Kops lounge was filled with faculty, friends and students, who, along with Prof. Lovasco’s sisters and niece, came to pay tribute to a man greatly admired and respected.

“The service was led by Father Art Humphrey, who read a biblical passage from the First Book of Kings,” Father Humphrey welcomed Prof. Lovasco’s sisters and niece to the family the professor had created at MSC.

Dr. Janet Cutler of the English department spoke of the “passion for life that inspired his students, colleagues and friends. He will always be in the memory of the MSC community.”

Dr. Murray Prosky of the English department spoke of Lovasco’s quiet, good-humored nature. When thinking of Lovasco, Prosky can’t help thinking of his dahlia plant. “His office was the envy of the Horticulture department,” he said. During the memorial service, Prosky also read a poem by Shakespeare.

“He was the sweetest, most incredibly selfless and unpretentious person around,” said Dr. Cutler. “He had a passion for life that inspired his students, colleagues and friends. He will always be in the memory of the MSC community.”

SGA expresses concern about new financial aid cuts

By Terry Rehm

Financial Aid to students in New Jersey state colleges has been drastically reduced, according to Mike Rodak, SGA vice president of external affairs, at last night’s meeting. Rodak explained that in an effort to reduce the nation’s deficit, Congress passed the Gramm, Rudman, Hollings Bill (the Federal Budget Reduction Act). According to the bill, the federal government will allocate less money to each state for their state college programs. “They’re going to cut aid to our state,” explained Rodak. “That means that every student who now receives state aid will probably receive cuts.”

Because of the Federal Budget Reduction Act, New Jersey state colleges will see cuts in several of its financial aid programs. The total amount of aid given through Pell Grants will decrease by 34%, College Work Study Programs by 72%, and Supplemental Education Opportunity Grants by 56%. “This will all take effect on March 1, 1986,” said Rodak. He added that students who are presently entitled to financial aid will be affected, as well as new recipients.

In addition to the cuts mentioned above, interest rates on Guaranteed Student Loans will be increased from 8% to 10% for new borrowers, as of July 1, 1986.

In response to Rodak’s announcement, the SGA legislature passed the Financial Aid Cut Resolution. The resolution formally states that the student body of MSC disapproves of the cuts. It is hoped that this ratification will aid Rodak in his active lobbying, concerning student affairs, in Washington, D.C.

In other news, Patrice Crooks, SGA Director of Residence Life, announced that a portion of the Clove Rd. apartments will be reserved for the housing of international students. “It was suggested that we have a place for international students to live so that they can be involved on campus, and so that they can have a home over breaks,” stated Crooks. Thirty-five units will be set aside for these students. Crooks also informed the legislature that Dr. Raymond Stover, Director of Residence Life, will attend the Feb. 19 SGA meeting. All MSC students are invited to attend.

There will be a 24-hour marathon on April 4 and 5 to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Lisa Venezia, the MSC student who is organizing the marathon, attended last night’s SGA meeting. “We hope to raise money for both children and adults with MD,” she said. The marathon will take place in the Blanton Hall atrium from 10 p.m. Friday, to 10 p.m. Saturday. This will be the second time the marathon has taken place at MSC. “At last year’s marathon, we earned over $5,000 with only 50 dancers,” said Venezia. She hopes to greatly increase the amount of both dancers and money this year. Prizes are awarded to top dancers. Look for more information around campus.

Dave Handal, SGA president, announced that February is Black History month at MSC. The opening ceremony will be on Tues., Feb. 11, at 7 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms. Folders which list the numerous events that will take place can be picked up in the BSCU office, Rm. 119 in the Student Center.

Liz Refinski, SGA Director of Public Relations, asked for assistance in planning Spring Week 1986. There will be an organizational meeting on Fri., Feb. 7, at 11 a.m. in Rm. 126 of the Student Center. All students are urged to attend. “There’s a lot to do and there’s a lot of spirit flowing around the campus,” Handal said.

Also at last night’s meeting, Student Representative to the Board of Trustees, Dennis Mudrick, announced that there will be a Trustee’s meeting tonight at 5 p.m. in Rm. 419 in the Student Center. All students are urged to attend.

In other news, the legislature voted to appropriate money to a number of organizations. The Dance Club and Political Science Club both received Class II charters.

The SGA appropriated $1,761 for six MSC students to attend the National Association of Campus Activities Conference in Washington, D.C. The conference will take place from Feb. 15-20. MSC will send one representative from BSCU, Class 1 Concerts, CLUB and CINA, and two representatives from the SGA. The conference will teach programming techniques on college campuses.

CAMPUS POLICE REPORT

By Vivette Watson

Thieves stole an '82 Mazda RX7, valued at $13,300, from lot 22 between 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. on Wed., Jan. 29. The car has not been recovered. The advantages of small companies seen

Beth graduated from MSC with a degree in office systems administration two years ago, yet she has just computerized all the manual systems for her employer, a small insurance agency. The fact that she lacked significant prior work experience did not prevent her employer from having her tackle an assignment usually reserved for a senior employee. She had been hired by the vice-president of the company right off the campus. He had trained her and given her free reign.

Beth's experience is unique because she made the big decision to work for a small company. Most seniors buy into the "bigger is better" syndrome when choosing employment. Just as brand labels outsell the unknowns, so do identifiable corporations attract considerable interest while small companies receive little play.

There are some advantages of working for a small company which are either unknown or overlooked. Employees at small companies are more likely to have greater responsibility. They often get involved in projects from beginning to end, thereby seeing the tangible results of their efforts. Work environments are more informal, and employees, whether junior or senior, are on a first-name basis with each other. New employees usually have access to top management, and do not have to deal with formal hierarchies which exist at large companies. Higher visibility permits good work to be more readily noticed, making the chance for recognition, promotion, and salary increases usually very good.

The point to remember is that choosing the right company is a personal decision. Numerous arguments can be made for working for either large or small organizations. Being aware of your own work style and career goals will help you decide which setting is more appropriate.
The Drop-In Center, (an information, referral and peer counseling service) is staffed entirely by student volunteers. The caliber of the service offered to the student body cannot be maintained without you. If you want to help people, learn more about yourself, and do something constructive with your time for 10 hours (min.) a week, this could be the toughest non-paying job you have ever loved. While the training is rigorous and the commitment level high, the experience will be carried throughout your life.

The Drop-In Center is a good place to grow for students of all majors. We will teach you the lost art of listening as you learn by doing.

In-service instruction will include; On-Campus referrals, Off-Campus referrals, Bus and Rail routing, Psychological referrals, Health referrals, Sexual Health referrals and Publicity.

The following list of workshops will be offered to those who train and make staff during the semester in order to increase staff awareness on these issues.

1) Suicide Intervention
2) Sexual Assault
3) Feedback
4) Facilitating Loss and Grief
5) Human Sexuality
6) Campus Security

Class Ones should rethink the Program Board proposal

The identity of Class One Organizations is being threatened; in the future, Class Ones as we know them may no longer exist. Instead, a programming board, divided into separate committees, will organize all major activities at MSC.

Programming boards have been successful at other colleges, but they are not part of the MSC tradition, which fosters autonomous organizations. With a programming board, eight autonomous organizations—LASO, BSCU, CLUB, CINA, HRC, Class One Concerts, Players and the Conservation Club—would no longer exist. Instead, the programming board would function as a centralized unit, with labels for different committees, such as "movies," "concerts," and "lectures."

Presently, each Class One is characterized by the variety of its goals and activities. For instance, would LASO—which sponsors films, lectures and dance events—be labeled as an ethnic, cultural, or entertainment organization? Such divisions would be impossible by a programming board.

The benefit of the proposed programming board would be to eradicate conflicts in scheduling programs. Class One leaders acknowledge that lack of communication between organizations is what causes the programming conflicts. If this is the case, a simpler solution might be in view: the old standby of monthly meetings for the Class Ones. Class Ones could set dates and stringently enforce meeting attendance as part of the duties of their leaders. At such meetings, programming conflicts could be resolved.

Wouldn't such meetings among separate organizations be preferable to being swallowed up into one big organization? The separate identity of each Class One is the feature which has attracted students to the organizations. Students have a good idea about what kind of club they're getting into simply by the name of each organization. Does a Programming Board sound better to you? Or would you be anxious to join?

Some Class One members think that the programming board is a distasteful inevitability; others might be lulled into it in lieu of a better suggestion. However, as SGA Director of Programming, Rob Accara has pointed out, the programming board is only a proposal; it's "the best idea, because it is the only idea." If the Class Ones don't want to die out, they have to brainstorm and find the right solution.

Each Class One leader has one vote to decide on whether or not their organization has a future. Don't the Class Ones have strong enough leadership to work among themselves and yet remain autonomous, offering students a variety of clubs with individual identities?

The Program Board solution is not a cure-all; it has yet to be fully planned. No-one has explained how the committees will be chosen, how the executive board would be set up, or how the autonomous organizations' future depends on you. You must choose between being independent, or being absorbed into a monolithic program board.

Student craves a clean MSC

To the editor:

Although the subject of which I am writing is not as controversial as the recent rises in tuition, the suspension of Scott MacConnell or the stricter alcohol policy on this campus, I feel that it warrants attention. The people on this campus are pigs! MSC has a pleasant campus and some excellent academic buildings. Some of those buildings, however, are constantly defiled by people who behave as if they were brought up in a barn.

A few examples: It’s not hard to see people just strewing about candy wrappers and soda cans. It just seems like such an effort has to be made to walk a few steps to a garbage can. (Is that what that is? I thought it was modern sculpture!)

If you’re upset about this letter or any issue going on, don’t write on the bathroom walls about it! This is a free forum for discussion. The same energy it takes to scribble four letter words on the bathroom stall can be used to sit at a typewriter and write a decent letter (apologies, of course, you have the IQ of a lawn and don’t understand anything but four-letter words).

Spitting is something the human species has to do every now and then, but don’t do it on the floor. Learn to use a tissue! If you don’t have that, at least don’t do it on the floor. Learn to use a trash can. (That modern sculpture mentioned as worth their caring, and make it a garbage dump, and don’t think of it as their garbage can, world is not their garbage can.)

Also, spring will soon be here, when I enjoy doing my studying on the grass. Also, spring will soon be here, when I enjoy doing my studying on the grass. At 1 p.m. it should be the rule to pick up the class not to find out if it’s open. It is like a relay race on this campus. People cut lines, students cut lines, they act like slobs when they’re there. Others see this school as a garbage dump, and don’t think of it as worth their caring, and make it worse. I do wish that people would care about MSC and realize that the world is not their garbage can.

Cancelled class complaint

To the editor:

I thought it was going to be great getting back to school, for I made a naive decision that my classes were finally adjusted. Then my troubles began.

When I attended my class on Mon. the 27th I was greeted by a sign that read “class cancelled.” I contacted the teacher and he said that he had to cover for a retired teacher. This class cancellation was made on Thurs. the 23rd, after I attended in-person registration.

I’m sure many students empathize with my dilemma. Luckily I solved my problems when it looked and smelled like a Newark sewer. There are even polite signs telling users of the room to keep it clean. But they are ignored, and I constantly see scrap papers and cigarette butts on the floor, and scribbling on the phones and tables.

The issue of litter seems to be another vicious cycle caused by apathy on this campus. People don’t care about this school, so they act like slobs when they’re there. Others see this school as a garbage dump, and don’t think of it as worth their caring, and make it worse. I do wish that people would care about MSC and realize that the world is not their garbage can.

Student craves a clean MSC

To the editor:

Although the subject of which I am writing is not as controversial as the recent rises in tuition, the suspension of Scott MacConnell or the stricter alcohol policy on this campus, I feel that it warrants attention. The people on this campus are pigs! MSC has a pleasant campus and some excellent academic buildings. Some of those buildings, however, are constantly defiled by people who behave as if they were brought up in a barn.

A few examples: It’s not hard to see people just strewing about candy wrappers and soda cans. It just seems like such an effort has to be made to walk a few steps to a garbage can. (Is that what that is? I thought it was modern sculpture!)

If you’re upset about this letter or any issue going on, don’t write on the bathroom walls about it! This is a free forum for discussion. The same energy it takes to scribble four letter words on the bathroom stall can be used to sit at a typewriter and write a decent letter (apologies, of course, you have the IQ of a lawn and don’t understand anything but four-letter words).

Steven Spielberg paints a powerful Color Purple

By Gary Rust

"I began reading The Color Purple casually," said director Steven Spielberg of the novel which inspired his recent return to the screen. "I couldn't put it down. I got angry, I laughed, then I cried." With the skill of an artist who knows precisely how to mix his ingredients, the director monochromizes his colors. Spielberg has evoked this entire range of emotions in this screen adaptation of Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel.

This powerful, heroic story provides the perfect material for Spielberg, a proven master of cinematic sentiment. It takes place in a small Georgia town in 1909, where two sisters, Celie (Whoopi Goldberg), and Nettie (Akosua Busia) live, first under the inhuman domination of their incestuous father (Adolph Caesar), then in separation, forced upon them by Celie's equally-brutal husband (Danny Glover). Robbed of the close, supporting bond with her own father, Celie is left to fend for herself. Herein lies a profound, tragic, and morally compelling story about oppression, which are cast on every scene and are never forgotten. Spielberg's sensibility is not crushed, but repressed; his spirit is not crushed, but repressed; she endures the hardest indignities with a hope that manifests itself in letters to God and to her lost sister.

Finally, a savior comes into Celie's life: blues singer Shug Avery (Margaret Avery). This tawdry woman's arrogance melts into sympathy and concern for Celie, whom she sits into awareness and self-esteem. At last Celie finds the strength and means to bring the tyrant low and seek out her dear sister. The pathos of Celie's desperate years of hardship is resolved in a soaring and triumphant climax.

The shadows and highlights of emotion which are cast on every scene lend the film a remarkable depth. Spielberg brings his charm to some of the film's most poignant moments. Other cast members include Rae Dawn Chong, Oprah Winfrey, Willard Pugh and Carl Anderson.

The brief summary above does not truly give justice to the story, for each supporting character is as roundly and warmly defined as those in the leading roles. These characters, whether evil or good, inspiring or foolish, are bound together by their humanity, their capacity to change and to be changed. While this film is about isolation and despair, the power and command that rock music was born with.

The album contains ten songs, none of which grabbed my attention. The songs are typically melodic rock, with a limited sound range. They lack the solid base of sound that U.S. audiences tend to like in music. This album is lightweight in contrast, missing the power and command that rock music was born with.

One song, "Live Is Life," has received American airplay, I'm still not impressed. The same lyrics are weak and simplistic, which is typical of all the lyrics in the album. Once you've read the song titles, you know most of the lyrics.

Opus has been successful throughout Europe, Canada and South America. This group claims the title of one of the world's most popular rock and pop bands. Opus has gone gold in their home country of Austria, silver in Italy, and held the top spot in West Germany, France, Spain, Portugal, Greece, and the Netherlands. That's impressive.

Now Opus looks to bring America under the spell of their worldwide success. Perhaps, but I don't predict their European successes will spill over into the American mainstream.

Getting back to the album, I rate it a C minus. Up and Down is by no means offensive. I simply found it weak in both music and lyrics. What's left? Not even the album cover stimulates interest.

Opus can probably look forward to a little more U.S. airplay, but I wouldn't encourage anyone to buy their album. This doesn't shadow their popularity in other countries, of course. In the world of rock and roll, however, the U.S. is where immortality is made, and in the U.S., Opus should remain very mortal.

Jeffrey is sure she'll be ready for Trenton.

"I had her guarding (WPC leading scorer Janet) Schwartz to give her some work," said Jeffrey. "Trenton is going to pressure her."

As for her entire squad's play going into the Trenton matchup, Jeffrey said, "I think we're playing very well. We're playing with a lot of confidences as a team, and everyone's contributing."

MSC 91 - Glassboro 56

Jeffrey wasn't happy after watching her Indians dismantle Glassboro State, 91-56, Saturday at Panzer Gym. MSC played consistent, inspired defense, combined with an awesome, effective offensive attack to give Jeffrey every reason to be happy. Every reason but one, that is.

With under seven minutes to go and the game well in hand, 73-38, Sue Ball drove to the basket and came crashing down on her left ankle. Ball had surgery performed on the ankle two years ago, and the injury had recurred many times since then. This time she wasn't getting up off the floor, and the situation appeared very dim. Ball had to be carried off the court and after the game, left the bench on crutches.

"It looks bad," said Jeffrey after the game. "She's used to playing in a lot of pain, but I don't see her coming back in a game. "She's used to playing in a lot of pain, but I don't see her coming back in a game."

Jeffrey termed that upcoming game "our last hope of any postseason play." Trenton stands a game up on MSC in the conference standings, and a win against MSC would virtually assure them a second-place finish.

Before attacking the state capital, however, the Indians had to dispose of the Profs. They did so with the help of their power game. Phillips, DeFrancisci, and Bratton all had big games on Saturday. DeFrancisci came up with a 19-point performance. Bratton hit for 14 and pulled down nine rebounds. Phillips had game-high totals in scoring with 20, rebounds with 16, and blocked shots with three, re-establishing herself as a force inside.

Until Saturday's contest, the MSC inside game had been very inconsistent. "I try to convince them that everyone must be an offensive threat," said Jeffrey. "I'm very pleased with the way they all played today." Emery added 16 points to the Indians' offensive cause, including 10 in the second half.

"We played extremely well. The game was a very good confidence booster," said Jeffrey. "We went out and did what we had to do. The team played consistent defense. Offensive-wise, we passed the ball well, moved well without the ball, and our shooting has come around."

Despite all the optimism, Jeffrey's words sounded hollow. Her mind was still on Ball's injury as she praised her team's offensive output. On Saturday, that offense proved to be more than enough to destroy the Profs. Surely, Jeffrey would give up that one last basket by Ball to have her healthy against Trenton.

MSC 83 - Wm. Paterson 51

The first MSC-William Paterson meeting of the year turned out to be no contest, as the Indians turned a 46-23 halftime lead into an easy 83-51 victory.

Emery led the Indians with 20 points, 12 of them coming in the first half. All five Indian starters hit double figures in the game — DeFrancisci (12), Phillips (12), Bratton (11), Ball (10), and Emery. Ten MSC players figured in the scoring, and freshmen Toinette Boyd came off the bench to hit for eight points, her highest total on the year.

Boyd, one of the most vocal supporters from the bench, had a chance to contribute from the field against the Pioneers.

"She gets very anxious. I try to settle her down before she goes into the game," said Jeffrey. "She has so much energy and is such a team player. She contributes in her own way, not only at the game, but by her encouragement from the bench and at practice."

In gambling, there are no winners

According to an NBC newsman, over $2 billion was gambled away during the two weeks of the Super Bowl media hype. Of course, gambling has always existed in society, legally and illegally, but today gambling is out of control.

Once the teams were confirmed for Super Bowl XX, the betting line became known and fluctuated during the two weeks before game day. In addition to the spread on the score, other "non-sense" bets were made. Things like how many field goals would be scored, if William Refrigerator Perry would score first, or the number of penalties a team would accumulate at the end of the game, were all gambling possibilities. All of these football items were part of the Super Bowl and, gamblers actually bet on them.

Why does gambling reach such outlandish proportions? I'll tell you why. The media is the culprit.

During the Super Bowl weekend, the temptation to bet was never out of reach. Even if you liked music and hated sports, the music channel, MTV, devoted the whole weekend to the game.

Where do the professional gambling personalities flock to when the game is over? Back to the hotel and off to another game to make more predictions and give advice on other matchups.

Television has made gambling bigger in professional sports, but there is no way to dispose of it. It's like a cancer. Two people that caught it and got rid of the disease were Art Schlichter (Baltimore Colts) and Alex Karras, the guy knocking through the glass on the TV guide commercial and co-star of the TV series Webster.

The disease has spread even to high schools. Did you know there are betting lines on high school basketball games? High schools!!

Professional sports should bring pleasure, not tension. But tension does play a part if a person has bet their house on a game. So when those NBA games are on television, keep those few dollars in your pocket.

Once you start gambling you are on the same level as the junkies that dwell on 42nd street. Except you are getting your dope from indoors. And if you do win, the money, just like a high is gone within a few hours. The game should be played on the field, and not in a betting hall.

Papa Bear George Halas probably had a smile on his face up above in his resting place when his team won the championship, but I'm sure he was distressed when he saw those bets placed on the game. Think about it.
MSC on 5-game winning streak

By Jim Nicosia

MSC moved one step closer to the New Jersey Athletic Conference (NJAC) Playoffs as they downed Glassboro State, 75-67 Friday night in Glassboro.

The Profs needed a win to pull within a game of the fourth place Indians in the playoff picture, but instead found themselves three games behind MSC (12-8, 10-4 in the NJAC). The victory was the fifth in a row for MSC, and was paced by 6-5 center Bob Smith's 18 points and Ulysses DelRio's 14.

Glassboro (9-12, 8-7 in the NJAC) played the Indians tough throughout, and even held a 35-34 halftime advantage. With 9:30 left to play, the Indians pulled away for good, as they ran off a 10-2 spurt to take a 55-45 lead.

MSC has now won ten of its last eleven conference clashes, not including Wednesdays night's game at William Paterson. They finish off the regular season by playing the three schools ahead of them in the conference standings — Trenton, Stockton and Jersey City.

A PUBLIC SERVICE MESSAGE FROM THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE
MSC's Dan Zakashefski is honored as All-American

By Perry Schwarz

It was a banner year for the MSC football squad as they captured a third consecutive New Jersey Athletic Conference (NJAC) title, to the second round of the Division III playoffs, and compiled a 10-2 record.

The points came from the defense, but the defense was the backbone of the team this season. The defense ranked seventh nationally and that in itself was accomplishment. Each player contributed to the team’s success, and one who has been recognized for his efforts is Dan Zakashefski.

The junior defensive tackle was named as an All-American player at the New Jersey Sportswriters Association last Sunday at the Pines Manor in Edison and MSC Head Coach Rick Giancola was happy for his player.

"I’m glad Dan received the honor. There are many players that go unrecognized for their efforts and Dan really deserved it.\" Giancola said. He is always listening to comments and is striving to be better and it shows in his performance on the field.

Zakashefski had 14 sacks in 1985 which was unusual for him. At 240 pounds I was handling guys at 280 and I used my quickness to outmaneuver and overpower them.\" An All-State player at Middlesex High School, Zakashefski chose to attend MSC because of winning, football program and the education he could get.\n \"Zak\" said if a person graduates from Montclair it means something.\" The key to the junior’s success is that he really wants to be out there. MSC offers no scholarships, so he has to love the game in order to be out there.

Presently Zakashefski is preparing for his senior year and is not worrying about professional football. It’s a fact every All-American football player from MSC has stepped onto a professional athletic field once, so the chances are good he’ll get the opportunity.

Another MSC athlete, wrestler Nick Milonis, was honored at the same banquet as an all conference selection.

The key to the junior’s success is that he really wants to be out there. MSC offers no scholarships, so he has to love the game in order to be out there.

Women’s basketball wins three, seeks playoff bid

By Jim Nicosia

For two weeks, the MSC Women's Basketball team has been looking forward to Friday night. With the season winding to a close, and the Indians only one loss behind second place Trenton State in the New Jersey Athletic Conference standings, Friday takes on that much more importance.

And just what's the big deal about Friday night?
The Indians take to the road tomorrow to meet Trenton in the team's second and last matchup of the year. Trenton won the first game two weeks ago at Panzer Gym, 63-53. On the line for both teams is a possible at-large playoff bid to the NCAA Division III Tournament. With no playoff system in the NJAC, only conference champion Kean is assured of an invitation. Whoever finishes as runner-up to Kean, ranked second in the country, will have a good chance of receiving an at-large bid. The Indians want to be that team.

MSC enjoyed three of their most productive games of the year this past week, outscoring their opposition almost 17 points a game in three MSC wins last week.

MSC 83-Wm. Paterson 45
MSC wasted no time in disposing William Paterson, 83-45, Thursday night at Panzer Gym.

In their first game without Ball, the Indians took on a business-as-usual attitude, ran out to a 23-7 lead and never looked back. The game was a chance for the Indians to showcase their talent, and for Ball's replacement, Sue Becker, to run the MSC offense for a whole game.

MSC Head Coach Jill Jeffrey utilized her entire roster, starting her regulars and reserves at the midway point. The Indians will make the best of their last chance at first place.

Center Nancy Phillips (23) averaged almost 17 points a game in three MSC wins last week.

On Thursday night, the MSC Hockey Club recorded its third victory of the year, defeating Hofstra University, 6-4. Strong performances by Frank Alessio, Mike Ashton, Doug Barrett, and an exceptional goal by goalie Mark Harrison spiked the Indians (4-6) to victory. Goals by Barrett and Alessio proved to be the margin of victory in the game.

On Sunday, the Indians fell to Fordham opening up an early 6-0 lead from which MSC could not recover. Alessio tallied two goals for the Indians in the losing cause. With the loss, MSC fell to 4-7.

The Women’s Basketball team travels to Trenton on Friday night to play one of their most important games of the season. Trenton (6-2) is one up on MSC (9-3) in the loss column. A win for either team might result in an at-large bid for the NCAA tournament.

Senior captain Jeanne Bauer swam as predicted, turning in an excellent performance to lead MSC to a second place finish in the west division of the Metropolitan Conference Swimming Championships. The competition was held at Hofstra University from Jan. 31-Feb. 2.

During this three day meet, the Indians accumulated 643 points, but fell 57 points short. Stony Brook, the team winners, set meet records in the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 22.22 and a time of 2:16.48. Bauer also swam a 2:16.48 in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 55:36. She also won the 50- and 100-yard freestyle and the 100-yard butterfly. Bauer also swam as the third leg in the 200-yard medley relay, leading MSC to a first place finish. She teamed up with Lisa Sovaason, Pam Rossell and Ann Marie Kwiatkowski to finish in 1:58.71.

Gail Meneghin also turned in fine performances by swimming the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:32.22. Meneghin, Bauer, Frances Derossi and Jackie Press combined for a 3:46.54 time which put them in first in the 400-yard medley relay.

Meneghin, a sophomore from Clifton, finished first in the 100-yard 200-yard breaststroke, establishing a meet record in the 200-yard individual medley with a time of 2:16.48.
