Dan Moldea speaks out on the Mafia at MSC lecture last week.

Dan Moldea claims Reagan has Mob ties

By Tom Boud

An unusually high number of Class One Uniform Report Offenses occurred during the winter break according to campus police records. This comes in the wake of a semester-long crime wave, the highest and longest in MSC history. "This is the most criminally active winter break we ever had". Campus Police Sgt. William Hotaling said. "It's a trend which goes all the way back to September of 1985."

Hotaling pointed out organized crime flourished during conservative administrations because "conservatives decentralize the system, which invites corruption because more power is given to local levels" in political terms.

Moldea expressed concern over this administration's power to appoint federal judges. Said Moldea, "Federal judges are going to be or are mobbed-up, organized crime) cases are being dropped left and right." Moldea named Attorney General Edwin Meese among those in the present administration with known organized crime connections.

The New York Times and other top news teams are investigating the Reagan administration's involvement with organized crime. Moldea expects these reports to be in the media soon.

"The Mob is always going to come out on top," said Moldea. "And in my opinion, the only person in this country who can stop the Mob is Ted Kennedy."

Though Kennedy announced he will not seek the democratic ticket in 1988, Moldea predicts that not only will Kennedy run for president in '88, but will win. According to Moldea, popularity of the Reagan administration will sharply decline due to the upcoming investigation. This decline should give Kennedy the winning edge over George Bush in both the House majority and the polls.

"The war the Reagan administration has declared on drugs is bull---" Moldea explained. "It's all bull--- convictions and self-proclaimed victories."

Moldea calls this "war" a popular front for the American public, which he believes the American public has not fallen for.

Moldea also spoke of former administrators' connections to organized crime. He explained the actual reason for Richard Nixon's resignation was that Nixon offended "the House majority and the polls."

MSC sees largest rise in campus crime rate ever

By Eric Acree

In an effort to correct misconceptions concerning African Contribution in human development, Richard Bartell spoke, at a lecture Tues. Feb. 18.

The presentation was one of many events sponsored by BSCU in celebration of Black History Month.

Richard Bartell is an historian of Afro-Asian Studies. Bartell's aim was to clear up the misconception that Africans never contributed anything worthwhile in human development.

Bartell shared information that not only showed that Africans played a part in the making of history, but also that they laid the foundations for the first civilizations.

One of the things that Bartell touched upon was the finding made by Mary Leakey, the anthropologist who discovered the oldest-known human fossil remains in Africa. This was important because it helped prove that Africa was the birthplace of humankind.

Another interesting point that Bartell touched on was that artifacts from each important period (Stone, Bronze, and Iron) can be found in Africa.

According to Bartell, Africa was the land of firsts. It not only produced the first humans, but the domestication of plants and animals first took place there, the invention of math, science, the calendar, weaving of cloth and the formation of the family unit, all originated there.

The importance of the Nile River Valley was pointed out, too. Many believe that the first civilizations were formed here, not in what is referred to as Mesopotamia. Along this Nile Valley region is Kush (Ethiopia) and Khartum (Egypt). These two countries are closely related because Egypt is referred to as Ethiopia's oldest daughter.

This is because Egypt got many of its ideas (religious, cultural and social) from Ethiopia.

Egypt's first pharaoh came from Ethiopia; his name was Menes (or Narmer). Menes was an important figure in history, because he united Upper and Lower Egypt, thus creating the first historic dynasty. Another important figure who was mentioned was the Egyptian Inhotep. Inhotep was the first recorded "multigenius."

He was an artist, scientist, physician, architect and chief advisor of King Zoser. He is also responsible for the building and design of the Step-Pyramid of Saikara.

Bartell showed that the oldest drawings and carvings found in Southern France, Northern Spain, Palestine and India resemble people from Ethiopia. Included in these drawings and engravings are gods, goddesses and people who are worshiped not only by Africans, but by Europeans and Asians. An example of two are Hercules and Buddha. Hercules was said to be an Ethiopian and Buddha an Egyptian priest.

The next lecture will feature Rosa Parks on Thursday, Feb. 20 at 8:00 p.m. in Ballrooms A and B.

Unger explores social bias for physical attractiveness

By Regina Slavinski

Less attractive people are placed in socially undesirable categories, according to studies conducted by Dr. Rhoda Unger, professor of psychology at MSC.

Unger discussed psychological assumptions based on physical attractiveness on Wed., Feb. 12, at the third in a series of programs offered by MSC's Women's Center.

"It's a self-fulfilling prophecy," said Unger. "People expect you to behave a particular way because of the way you look, and you come to behave the way they expect."

MSC students have participated in two experiments over the last five years which have supported this statement. Without any additional information, students sorted photographs of men and women and, on the average, associated the less attractive people with socially undesirable behavior. They could not explain the reasoning behind their selection and a few refused to participate because it required making character judgements based solely on physical appearance.

Researchers, consisting of Unger, student assistants and colleagues, randomly selected men and women for photographs used in the two experiments. A sexually-integrated panel rated the photos on a 5-point scale, with 5 being the most attractive.

MSC students participated in the first experiment; 60 females and 60 males sorted the photos of women into categories. The second experiment used a different group of 120 MSC students and substituted photos of men. Each person participated in only one sorting test.

The categories used were: feminist versus nonfeminist; radical political group versus student government association; homosexual versus heterosexual; and stereotypic masculine career choices versus stereotypic feminine career choices. Researchers selected the four categories because they are on the fringes of acceptance by the majority of people in our society.

In similar studies conducted in 1975, people chose less attractive individuals as feminists. Results did not correlate with the MSC experiments done since 1979. There was no difference in attractiveness for women in regard to career choice, while less attractive men were thought to want traditionally "feminine" careers.

Unger speculates that these differences can be attributed to people's acceptance of feminism today, as well as their understanding of a woman's desire to have a well-paid, high-status occupation. However, Unger believes society cannot accept a man opting for a lower status "woman's" job.

In the remaining categories, MSC students chose the less attractive people to be the radicals and the homosexuals.

Judging people by appearance was tested in other studies. Madeline Heilman of NYU distributed copies of an identical resume with two different photos attached and two different positions applied for. The attractive woman was selected for the receptionist position and the less attractive woman was chosen for a managerial position. Substituting two men applying for both positions, the less attractive man lost out on both accounts.

According to Unger, this supports the traditional view of attractive females being feminine and attractive males being masculine. This puts women in a "double bind." A pretty female appearance helps social acceptance, but competency is thought to decrease. However, when based on looks alone, "the unattractive man is hurt more because he has nothing going for him."

"It is a two-edged sword," Unger said. "We disapprove of it and yet if we pay attention to it, we're buying into it, if we don't. If we don't we're hurting ourselves by ignoring a reality."

"Standards of beauty change, but whoever doesn't have them, suffers," said Unger. "There are no resounding conclusions. People must simply be aware."

$4000 theft of Datsun

By Vivette Watson
Thieves stole an 81 Datsun, worth $4,000, from lot 24 between 6 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. on Wed., Feb. 12. The car was recovered on Fri., Feb. 14 by the Newark Police Department. A '77 Chevy, worth $2,000, was stolen from lot 21 between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Thurs., Feb. 13. The car was recovered on Sun., Feb. 16 by the Livingston Police Department.

On Sat., Feb. 15 between 12:15 a.m. and 10:35 a.m., persons broke the passenger side window of a 76 Toyota in lot 24, entered the car, and stole an AM/FM radio and a coat. The dashboard and trunk lock were also damaged. Total value of the items is $460.

A student returned to his '82 Volkswagen on Feb. 15 at 11:15 p.m., and discovered the left vent window smashed. His brown leather briefcase, 20 cassette tapes and a radar detector were stolen. Total value of the items is $315.

On Feb. 12 between 6 p.m. and 9:40 p.m., persons damaged the driver's door and ignition of an '80 Datsun in lot 23 in an attempt to steal the car. In a similar incident, the driver and passenger door locks and the ignition of an '82 Datsun in lot 21 were damaged between 6 p.m. on Feb. 11 and 1:15 p.m. on Feb. 14.

The rear window of a Datsun in lot 20 was smashed and a pair of jumper cables stolen between 11:30 p.m. on Feb. 15 and 12:30 p.m. on Feb. 16. Persons entered a locked room in Stone Hall on Tues., Feb. 11 between 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. and stole a tape deck and equalizer valued at $370. On Feb. 14 at 2:30 p.m., a white tapestry pocketbook, worth $282, was stolen from Life Hall.

Garbage which is stored in the stairwells in Webster Hall before it is moved outside for collection also attracts roaches. Additionally, garbage sits outside of the dorms creating a hazardous mess. Dr. Stover responded by saying that the garbage is collected within two to three hours, whereas dumpsters are just as dirty and the refuse would sit for periods as long as twenty-four hours if dumpsters were not used.

The general condition of the halls was also addressed by Stover. Stone Hall received new beds and fountains. Bohn received buzzers to replace the phones in the elevators, and other equipment which has worn out is being replaced. As for the plumbing, ventilation, and other structural problems, he noted that the college is currently in litigation with the architects concerning these flaws. Litigation over the continuing asbestos problem in Bohn Hall rooms is also pending.

Stover, whose office is in Bohn Hall stated that if there was a problem, then "you would see me moving my desk out," although there is no indication that asbestos is present in the Residence Life offices.

Complaints about the quality of the food served were aired by legislators and guests. Stover indicated that the current food service contract will expire soon and that his office refuses to allow a twenty per cent price increase requested by SAGA. He plans to seek another contract for meal plans next year.

In legislative business, an MTA to Washington, D.C. for $715 was approved. The bus will go to the March for Women's Lives on Sun., March 9. The debate focused on whether the trip is political and the propriety of using state funds for this trip. Representatives from the Women's Center, the sponsors of the trip, indicated that although there is a rally, lobbying is not the objective, but rather the information which can be obtained.

The MSc Ski Race Team, a Class Two Organization, received an appropriation of $2560 to assist them in this year's competition. The team has done a great deal of fundraising to offset the $9325 total. The group will be fielding three teams of six people each, two men's and one women's.

International housing is provided at Clove apts.

Living on campus is a unique experience because of the close community atmosphere. Moreover, for the international student, the experience can be challenging, exciting and perhaps even frightening.

Quite interestingly, only a very small percentage of our international students choose to live on campus. There are many reasons for this. Living on campus can be a financial burden. International students face the problem of finding a place to stay during Residence Hall “Down-Time,” that is, when the halls are closed to the students. It seems to these students that it is more feasible to rent a room off campus. Unfortunately, some of these students might be missing out on some of the intercultural experiences that are available here.

Through the efforts of Dr. Stover, the Residence Life Office, Dr. Curtis Jackson and Dr. Harriet Klein, we will now have an International House at Clove Rd. beginning in the Fall of ’86. This International House will include American and international students in equal proportion. There will also be an attempt at a balance between the male/female ratio even though a larger percent of international students are male.

The apartments to be used for this International Community will be 101, 102, and 103. A, B, C. This makes nine apartments in total, enough for 35 students and one resident assistant, who will live within the community to help the students. Some apartments may be used for five students, which would raise the total of students in the community and at the same time cut back on the expenses to these students. This practice is done throughout the Clove Apartments.

It is understood that some international students have trouble getting money out of their home country. Because of this problem, the Residence Life Office is working on the possibility of allowing students to pay on an intermittent schedule.

Through this International Community, we hope to bring the international students back on campus. Clove Rd. affords the students the opportunity for year round occupancy, so there would not be the usual problems with “Down-Time.” Also, the students that have come to this country to study will be able to benefit cross-culturally and interpersonally from their experience living in the close, diverse atmosphere of the student residence apartments.

Applications for this community are available at the Bohn Hall Residence Life Office and the Student Center. They are due by Fri., March 7 at 4:30 p.m. in the Bohn Hall Lounge. We encourage both American students and international students to attend this meeting. Perhaps you would like to become a part of this exciting and distinct community of students.

Snow removal inadequate

It's the best news on a cold, snowy morning: the radio has announced that all classes at MSC have been cancelled due to snow.

Ah, the joy of rolling over in bed and sleeping until noon. Unfortunately, you try to find an available parking space the next day back at school.

On a "normal" day, the search for a parking spot within reasonable hiking distance to campus is a familiar but frustrating challenge. Yet, the day after a snowstorm, like last Wednesday, Feb. 12, this quest for a space seems nearly impossible because the lots are not properly plowed.

It seems the drivers of these snowplows push the snow without direction: some snow is piled in the corner of the lot, while other huge masses remain in the middle of the lot. Also, early that Wednesday morning, many lots still contained a layer of snow, making it impossible to determine the designated lines for spaces. Thus valuable parking spaces are lost.

Of course it's understandable that no snow removal system is perfect. Yet at 9 p.m., the night of the snowstorm (Thu., Feb. 11), the lots were still filled with snow. When are these lots plowed? Late at night? The next morning? One or two hours before students are arriving on campus?

Maybe if more time was allotted for snow removal, the lots would be more thoroughly cleared. If parked cars are obstructing the path of the snowplow, maybe an announcement could be made in the dorms so these cars can be moved. If potholes are unavoidable, maybe better snow removal will cut down on the number of potholes. Maybe, in the meantime, when drivers haphazardly invent parking spaces, they should be considered and remember not to block other cars in.

Parking is difficult enough without having to worry if one can remove the car later.

Maybe some of these suggestions will be heard. Since parking fees have been doubled, couldn't some of this money be put toward snow removal expenses?

Why Virginia will not be getting her financial aid check this year

Washington, D.C.—The Reagan Administration's proposed budget cuts in aid to education would, if adopted, "close the book on federal commitment to education reform" triggered by the Administration's own "Nation at Risk" report, declares the National Education Association.

The Administration budget proposals, which call for an overall cut of more than 15 percent in education programs, were sent to Congress for the 1987 Fiscal Year Feb. 5.

In the new budget, President Reagan is asking about $23 billion in domestic program cuts that affect education directly or indirectly—while adding about $33 billion to military spending.

The Administration suggests reducing the federal education budget to $15.2 billion in Fiscal 1987. This is $3.2 billion less than the original 1986 education appropriation. In 1985, the federal government provided $19.1 billion in aid to education.

The Administration's proposed cuts come on top of $678 million that will be slashed from federal education programs March 1 under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget law. The federal government's new fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

The heaviest of the federal education cut would come in vocational education and in financial aid for college students.

The Reagan Administration budget proposal calls for 1986 rescissions—$1 billion in cuts that will automatically go into effect in 45 days if Congress fails to act—in vocational education, college student aid, libraries, immigrant education, and many other programs.

In higher education, some $1.4 billion less in college student financial aid would be available if the Administration's rescissions are allowed to stand and President Reagan's 1987 budget is approved by Congress.

This cut would deny more than one million students financial aid, reports the American Council on Education. There are currently about 8.7 million college students receiving grants or loans.

Cuts in higher education programs would eliminate millions of dollars for poor as well as middle-income students and shut the door for most students from low-income families to attend the college of their choice. The cutback proposed for the special allowance to college loan lenders threatens the collapse of the entire Guaranteed Student Loan program, the largest of the student aid programs, which now aids more than three million students.

More than 800,000 of the nearly three million students receiving Pell Grants—290,000 this fall alone—would lose their eligibility for aid if the Administration proposals are approved by Congress. And special remedial programs for nearly 500,000 disadvantaged students would be cut in half.

In addition to education, the Reagan Administration has targeted billions more dollars for cuts in domestic programs that affect the poor. Among those programs: child nutrition, Job Corps training centers, summer youth employment, medicaid, and federal housing subsidies.

Other programs affecting education that are slated for cuts—or for total elimination—including the new GI Bill; direct farm crop insurance, and agriculture extension; energy research and development; mass transportation, general revenue sharing, highway aid, urban development action grants, and community development block grants.

"Cuts in education and in other domestic programs that affect our daily lives constitute a double or even triple whammy," explains NEA President Mary Hartwell Futrell. "States are going to be hardpressed to make up lost federal funds for education at the same time they face huge shortfalls in other vital services."

SGA Legislator describes new escort program

To the editor:

I want you and the campus to know that the MSC Police Dept. and your SGA have provided you with an escort service every night after 10 p.m. Like any populated environment, MSC has its share of potential muggers and rapists (for this case, let's assume these are only males). Likewise, a share of potential victims exist (let's assume these are only females). Most victims never believe they could become one, until it's too late.

According to Lt. Kenneth Wilson, the Commander of the Sex Assault and Rape Analysis Unit of the Newark Police Dept., it is those who appear vulnerable that become easy targets and turn potential attackers into crime suspects. Statistics show that just about all females are considered vulnerable that become easy targets. The most obvious one is to one can do to prevent becoming a victim. The most obvious one is to have a visible form of protection. No.

There are a number of good things one can do to prevent becoming a victim. The most obvious one is to have a visible form of protection. No.

Statistics show that rape is usually an act secondary to mugging. A victim might not be raped, but is almost always mugged, so if you're carrying a purse, hold it tightly, don't let it hang. If you must walk anywhere unescorted at night, walk quickly. Get from point A to point B as fast as possible. If you've got to do the walking, you might as well get some exercise. Walk with your head up and your eyes open. Look like you are ready to scream if a stranger touches you.

Don't trust strangers! This might sound obvious, but it apparently wasn't to a student who was raped last semester. If she had an escort, things would have been different. MSC escorts have been screened and are well equipped. Please beware, however, of people posing as official campus police escorts. I don't care how official they look or sound. If you didn't call for one, you shouldn't have received one.

The escorts are paid by your tuition and taxes, so utilize them. They are stationed at the campus police station in Chapin Hall every night from 10 p.m. on. If you don't call, they don't work, but they still get paid. Also, if we see the service being used often, we might be able to attain more funds and allow the service to begin earlier in the night. Don't be attack-prone! Never walk alone!

Now we can detect a breast cancer smaller than this dot.

At such an early stage, your chances of living a long, healthy life are high. But we need your help. The only proven way to detect a cancer this small is with a mammogram. A mammogram is a low-radiation x-ray of the breast capable of detecting a cancer long before a lump can be felt. If you're over 50, a mammogram is recommended every year. If you're between 40 and 50, or have a family history of breast cancer, consult your doctor.

In addition, of course, continue your regular self-examinations.

Never a dull moment at MSC dance company concert

By Delia Matula

The MSC Repertory Dance Company presented "An Evening of Dance" last Thursday, and Friday night. The company consisted of eight dance majors who performed 10 modern dance pieces.

Modern dance combines ballet and jazz to form a unique and abstract type of movement which also allows room for the imagination to take flight. Last week's show displayed the mastery which the company has achieved in this difficult dance form.

The entire company performed mini-dances that were related to the main theme of "Charades." Each dance was introduced with a pantomime, showing the performers' acting abilities. The dancers entertained the audience with their stories and sketches as if they were actually playing the well-known game of "Charades."

In "Transitions," the dancers responded in pantomime to a taped voice of hard rehearsal certainly has paid off for this talented, enthusiastic company. The long weeks of practice and hard training have paid off in the final result.

The 1950's style of the bowling outtakes and the fun-loving music of The Raybeats and Cyndi Lauper's "Girls Just Want To Have Fun" added spirit and excitement to the piece. The company strutted around the stage with bowling balls and danced as they rolled the balls into the pins. Many times the dancers ran on and off stage, which gave this dance a continuous flow of activity.

Choreographer Donna Oberstein provided an excellent upbeat end to the show.

Overall, "An Evening Of Dance" was fresh and unique with a variety of themes, from the serious to the amusing. With strong solo dancers like Dawn Ward and Kathy Seiz, and appealing choreography by Oberstein, there was never a dull moment. The long weeks of rehearsal certainly paid off for this talented, enthusiastic company.

Or Roy Combo, a Montclair-based musical managerie, has an album worth checking into. Or Roy Phono, released on Faka Boom Records, contains five songs that have absorbed the sounds of funk, jazz, wave and rap to create avant-garde music with rhythm.

In fact, my only complaint about the record is that it is too often familiar, as if certain riffs were borrowed from established pop groups, but this can be overlooked since the album is such a blend of musical styles.

There are two songs on the record that offer great dance beats. "Boom Blast Off" intertwines jazz-hot horns with off-beat soppas. The other song is "Hold On," which uses a stylistic rock guitar with a steady drum beat. This song is my personal favorite of the five on the album.

The other three songs on the record rely more on the message in the lyrics than a motivating beat. "Man in Paradise" incorporates a variety of percussive instruments into a speedy tempo. The lyrics satirize the materialism of relationships.

"The Master Mind" is the most lyrically interesting song. Rapping vocals are combined with new wave lyrics such as "I've got bats in my beehiv" and "give the man a new life."

"You're the Guy" is more musically interesting, with the horns and guitar used in a fast paced funk tempo. "You're the guy with the golden one;" could this song be a testimony to a man's sexual abilities? The song continues: "You're the guy having the most fun." I can't deny that this record is indeed fun, but the lyrics are often jarred.

Or Roy Combo is a group of diverse musicians, featuring a seven piece ensemble and a full horn section. Roy Roy, lead singer and master mind of the group, is a 1978 alumnus of Montclair State College, Roy Roy, according to the sleeve, performs simply the role. With him on the record are vocalists Sylvia Athans and Jayne Bond. The musicians include Christian Micca on bass, Joe Montini on saxophones and Pete Moss on guitar. Drums and percussion are performed by Alfred Muller, and Don Sternecker is featured in one of the songs.

The group has played together for two years in such showcase clubs as The Dirt Club in Bloomfield and The Court Tavern in New Brunswick. Or Roy Combo was also the house band in New York City's The Dive and has played other Manhattan clubs as well. Most recently they participated in a USA for Africa benefit concert at Caldwell College last weekend.

I rate the record a B+, and encourage anyone interested in something different to go out of their way to find this record. Or Roy Phono can be found at either Crazy Rhythms in New York City. In addition, Or Roy Combo will be receiving airplay on 101.1 WMSF-FM.

Broadway’s “Corpse” is an evening of mystery and fun

By Lynda Fox and Jim Giordano

The curtain goes up and the audience is brought back to the year 1936, to a lower-class flat in London, home of starving actor Evelyn Farrant (Keith Baxter). The detailed set and smooth, dim lighting emphasize the impoverished lifestyle that Evelyn is forced to live. Thus the stage is set for an evening of mystery and fun.

Evelyn Farrant is planning a simple murder. He wants to have his wealthy twin brother, Rupert (also portrayed by Keith Baxter), killed. Rupert has inherited the family fortune upon their mother’s death. Evelyn believes it is time to grab what is rightfully his, so he plans to kill Rupert and then steal his identity.

He hires Major Walter Powell (Milo O’Shea), a washed-up hitman with a very long record, who happens to be a specialist in killing brothers. Powell will do anything if the price is right.

The scheme is interrupted by Evelyn’s landlady, Mrs. Me Gee (Pauline Flanagan), who seems always to have one hand open to receive the rent, and the other holding a drink. Also, she is constantly planning ways to seduce Evelyn.

The stage rotates to Rupert’s glamorous home on the upper side of town. Powell has come at Evelyn’s request to bring the unsuspecting Rupert back to the flat. Upon his arrival, the confusion of the twins commences. Throughout the rest of the play, the mystery of which is the correct brother boggles the mind.

Pauline Flanagan gives a wonderful characterization of the drunken landlady. Her comical antics divert the audience’s attention away from the confusion of the plot. Milo O’Shea, who won a Tony Award nomination for his Broadway performance in “Mass Appeal,” again graces the stage with another outstanding performance.

Keith Baxter is a name to remember. His versatile portrayal of both brothers was one of sheer talent, both detailed and accurate. Thanks to his amazing performance, “Corpse” is one show that should live a long time.

“Corpse,” directed by John Tillinger, is playing at the Helen Hayes Theatre, 240 W 44th St. For ticket information, call (212) 391-1072.

Six MSC wrestlers gain NCAA national tournament berths

By Jim Nicols

Four MSC wrestlers won titles Sunday at the Southeast Regional Wrestling championships at Trenton State College to advance to the NCAA Division III tournament. Two other Indians finished second place to qualify for the nationals.

John Monaco, the defending Division III national champion at 167 pounds, pinned Kean's Ed Hay at 2:30 of the match to record the only pin of the finals. Freshman Karl Monaco defeated Stony Brook, despite being paced by Michelle White's 28 points, proved to be no match for the Indians, who got scoring from every player who set foot on the court.

#1 National champion at 167 pounds, Jeffrey said. "It fit right into her style of play." With her athletic ability, it allowed her to be creative on defense.

The competitive fires in Bratton were dampened when having to endure a 5-21 record, she admits. Considering the level of excellence that the Women's Basketball program had maintained in the past, she felt that many had judged the team as being on its down side. Enter Jill Jeffrey and the situation reversed itself.

Bratton, a political science major, has no intention of rewriting the MSC record books, but she hopes that history is kind to her and her teammates when they are compared to past teams. That comparison, she knows, is inevitable. But when the comparison is made, she'd like people to remember that the team brought itself back from the level of excellence that the team brought itself back from the Indians suffered their only lapse of the first half to 11-15 last year.

While a record of 16-6, the Indians are certainly that, and she remains optimistic about the team's chances of getting into the playoffs. The success that the team has achieved over the last two years she attributes to second-year coach Jeffrey and the dedication of the players to the coach's system. The team improved from a 5-21 mark in her freshman year to 11-15 last year.

The arrival of Jeffrey saw the team switch from a zone-tow to a man-to-man defense. Did the new defense pose a problem for her? On the contrary. Playing point guard was tailor made for Bratton.

It allowed her to roam on defense. Jeffrey said, "It fits right into her style of play." With her athletic ability, it allowed her to be creative on defense.

"She is definitely our best athlete," Jeffrey said.

In a cruel trick of irony, the Indians (13-12) lost out on their bid to claim the final spot in the NJAC playoffs. The Indians beat Jersey City on a timely steal by Dunn, but on Monday night at William Paterson, it was Pioneer forward Don Forster making the steal against Dunn and following with a layup to seal a William Paterson victory in overtime, 65-61.

And so, William Paterson advanced to the playoffs, while the MSC season came to an abrupt end. But it took three periods before an opponent for Jersey City could be found for the conference tournament.

In the first half of the game, the Pioneers moved out to a 30-26 lead, but they couldn't hold on to it. As their shooting grew cold in the second half, the Indians made their move.

With 2:14 left in regulation, Smith converted a foul shot to give the Indians the lead, 53-49. WPC's Alex Coates responded by hitting back-to-back field goals to send the game into OT where the Pioneers claimed the final playoff spot.

Smith led all scorers on the night with 24 points. The senior also came away with 12 rebounds, 3 blocked shots, and two steals in the loss. Dolan contributed nine assists despite being hampered by a sore leg.

Lady hoopsters win two, wait for playoff news

By Jim Nicolsa

Well, the 1985-86 Women's Basketball regular season is over. With the Indians' record an impressive 18-6, all that's left for them to do is sit back and wait until the NCAA Division III playoff committee makes its selections for this year's tournament. With the Indians sitting in third place in the New Jersey Athletic Conference though, the odds aren't too favorable for a tournament berth.

"We have a slim chance," said MSC Head Coach, Jill Jeffrey. "Our two losses (to NJAC's second-place) Trenton hurt. If we don't make it, then those two losses will have made the difference. Of course, being the eternal optimist, I'm going to be waiting by the phone all day Sunday," Sunday just happens to be the day the at-large bids are given out.

Last week's results can only help in the cause of soothing the eternal optimist's heart. The Indians handed two successful teams convincing defeats with remarkable poise in their last week of regular season play. If the playoff committee had seen the last two MSC performances, it would have no question about the quality and character of this MSC team. But it might just be a question of too-little, too-late.

MSC 66-E.Stroudsburg 56

The Indians ended their season with a bang Monday night as they dismantled a physical East Stroudsburg Bratton with 14, Sue Becker with 12, and Nancy Philips with 11. For Emery and teammates Judy DeFrancisci, Sue Ball, and Beth Harrington, it was the last time each would suit up in an MSC uniform at Panzer Gym, maybe the last time period.

The Indians made the best of their home finale, sending the seniors out in style. Emery, DeFrancisci, and Ball have been the cornerstone of the program Jeffrey put together just a year ago. And Jeffrey doesn't want to let them go.

"It doesn't seem fair," she joked. "I don't care if they played four years. I've only been here for two years. I should be able to have them for two more."

On the court Monday night, MSC started out on the right foot, opening up an early 18-7 lead. The Indians went on to shoot a remarkable 67% from the floor in the first half, while East Stroudsburg struggled to keep it close. The Lady Warriors (13-10) had their best chance of catching the Indians with 10:00 left in the first half. They outscored MSC 11-2 to cut the MSC lead to 20-18, but the Indians were more than up to the task.

Bratton and Emery hit back-to-back jumpers to stretch the lead to six. The Warriors responded with a basket by Pat Gallagher. Becker then hit for a three-point play and Bratton followed with another bucket to up the MSC lead to 29-20. That was the last time the Indians would hear Warrior footsteps on the night.

"We certainly came ready to play," said Jeffrey, summing up the evening perfectly. "We really wanted to finish the season with a bang, and we had to win this one to get looked at (by the playoff committee)."

It was one Indian who ended the year on a high note. Fortunately for MSC, the freshman's career is just beginning. Her 12-point effort represented a career high and her feisty style of play left no doubt as to her ability to lead the Indian offense in the future.

"I only regret Sue Ball not being able to end her career on a winning note with her teammates," said Jeffrey of the player whose role Becker has assumed. Ball's season ended two weeks ago when she came crashing down on her left ankle while driving to the basket.

As for the rest of the Indians, they're hoping this season lasts at least one more game.

MSC 81 - Stony Brook 64

Jeffrey could afford to be generous with the compliments about her team after Saturday's showing at Parent Hall.

Indians beat Jersey City; fall to Paterson in playoff

By Jim Nicolsa

The MSC Men's Basketball team found its last week of the season to be quite a hectic one and a disappointing one, too. After finding themselves in a half game behind William Paterson in the New Jersey Athletic Conference standings, they had the task of hosting first place Jersey City State College Saturday night.

Being the last game of the season for MSC, that meant that the Indians had to find a way to beat the Gothic Knights in order to force a one game playoff with William Paterson. They did find a way, however, then travelled ability to play on the Phillies. Unfortunately, after a three-game playoff, the Indians fell to the Pioneers in overtime.

With one free throw, MSC forward Alex Dunn turned what could have been a depressoing end to the season into a last-second extension.

Dunn took the Indians (13-10) into a tie with William Paterson for the last NJAC playoff spot by hitting for a three-point play with three seconds left on the clock to boost the Indians to a 68-67 win over Jersey City State (17-6).

Two weeks ago, the Indians struggled through three straight losses that saw them slip out of fourth place in the conference. After the Indians' last loss, Galloicomplained of the team's lack of production from the free throw line in pressure situations. He called it the team's Achilles' heel.

After Dunn's shot that sunk Jersey City State, Galloicomplained to the Indians' last chance to make the playoffs. They earned that chance on the heels of Bob Smith's 22-point effort and a balanced offensive attack that saw eight Indians figure in the scoring. Dunn

The Karate Kickboxing club will be having meetings this week for all interested in joining. They will be meeting at the Student Center Annex, Room 402. Friday at 12:00 and again Monday at 12:00.

The Women's Basketball team will have to wait until Sunday to find out if the season is over or not. Bids for the NCAA Div. Ill playoffs go out then and, despite owning an impressive 18-6 record, their third place finish in the NJAC doesn't afford them a great chance, but it does grant them at least a look. Call or write your congressman to back them up.

Debbie Emery finished the regular season with a 19.9 scoring average, good enough for first place in the NJAC and sixth in the state.
