Soviet diplomat stresses need for cooperation among nations

By Tom Boud

Mikhail Ahtioukhine, Russian United Nations diplomat, explained the Soviet perspective of nuclear disarmament at a CINA-sponsored lecture on Mon., March 31 in Richardson Hall.

Ahtioukhine began by saying that Russia is interested in global peace. “Russia believes that we live in a dangerous world. We fear the nuclear weapons of the United States just as much as the United States fears our armaments. Thus, we aim to halt the arms race before it becomes completely uncontrollable.”

Ahtioukhine said that the Star Wars program proposed by the United States would not contain nuclear proliferation. “The Soviet Union has always kept up with advances in nuclear armament technology ranging from the invention of the atomic bomb in 1945 to the innovation of cruise missiles. If Star Wars were to be carried out, Russia would be able to counteract it within three or four years.”

Ahtioukhine mentioned a tentative nuclear arms reduction plan discussed recently at the 27th meeting of the Soviet communist party. “This is a plan which would reduce both the United States and Russian nuclear arsenals over the next fifteen years. It would eventually include the three other nuclear powers of the world (France, England, China) and could eventually lead to total nuclear disarmament if both sides agree,” Ahtioukhine said.

Ahtioukhine emphasized that a willingness to cooperate is essential to make nuclear disarmament a reality. “The United States and Russia must find a place in Europe to sit down and seriously negotiate. The powers must come to terms on arms reduction conditions and verification methods,” he said.

Powerless organizations communicate with terrorism

By Tom Boud

“Terrorism is the means of communication of powerless organizations,” according to Louis Fields, retired United States ambassador and former advisor to the United States government, who addressed the issue of terrorism to a crowd of 500 students in the Student Center Mall, Tuesday afternoon.

“All groups who resort to this type of reckless bedlam hardly have any real political power. In other words, terrorism is the weapon of the weak.”

Fields said that terrorism is perpetrated by extremists who only think of themselves. “Terrorists are blinded by the illusion of their own cause. They think the philosophies they espouse are above all other philosophies to such an extent that they massacre innocent civilians and blow up airplanes, airports, and transportation terminals.”

“They always ignore the fact that their victims are never related to the issue that drives them to kill.”

Fields demonstrated how terrorism affects our lives. “I remember a time decades ago when you could board a plane in five minutes or less. Today, the same process takes anywhere from thirty to forty-five minutes due to security checks; all because of the menace of terrorism.”

Referring to the media, Fields stated that television, radio, and the newspapers are the allies of terrorism. “Terrorists use the media to spread fear and panic throughout the world as well as to assert their demands and beliefs.”

Fields continued, “It’s just like the old Chinese proverb: kill one, scare a million. If the media would give less attention to terrorism, terrorists themselves would be less influential.”

Elaborating on anti-terrorist measures, Fields said that there is no effective means to prevent terrorists from striking. “In order to stop terrorists from attacking, we would have to know what group will attack what...”

The American press says that backing terrorist camps and squads. we detect no evidence that Libya is supporting camps. As far as our government sees, and maintaining terrorist training by firing missiles at U.S. ships" he said. When in reality, they are pressuring the United States naval presence in the Gulf of Sidra is provoking trouble. The United States claims that they are there to protect international law and that is the purpose of diplomacy,” he said. “But nuclear disarmament will not be possible if there is continued experimentation and proliferation.”

Regarding to Libya, Ahtioukhine said that the United States claims that there are to protect international law and they are pressuring Libya into using force by intimidating them, which resulted in Libya retaliating by firing missiles at U.S. ships” he said. “It is the same as if a fleet of Russian ships were stationed thirty miles from New York City.”

Ahtioukhine said that there exists no evidence that Libya is supporting and maintaining terrorist training camps. “As far as our government sees, we detect no evidence that Libya is training terrorist camps and squads. The American press says that Khadafy’s regime encourages terrorism but they have not proven this,” Ahtioukhine said.

Ahtioukhine stressed that Libya is no threat to the United States. “How can a country of 3 million conquer a nation of nearly 230 million people? Libya doesn’t have the military means to subdue the United States. Thus, Khadafy is incapable of bringing down America.” Ahtioukhine said.

Alluding to the Korean Airlines incident in Sept. of 1983 (in which a jetliner was shot down over Soviet airspace), Ahtioukhine said that the Soviet Union had no knowledge that the plane was a commercial liner.

“The airliner in this incident crossed twice into Soviet territory. It was during the jet’s second entry into our airspace that it was shot down. The point is, the plane in question here was undoubtedly on an espionage mission.” Ahtioukhine said.

In conclusion, Ahtioukhine said that no nation has the right to act as policeman of the world. “Neither the United States nor Russia nor any other country in the world can act as a guardian. Every nation has different views and ideological differences which must be settled peacefully. After all, that is the purpose of diplomacy,” he said.

Outcome of recent court cases

The following is the outcome of recent court cases involving MSC.

1. On Jan. 21, 1986, Frederick Thompson (non-student) was found guilty of trespassing by Judge Gavenda in Little Falls Municipal Court and fined $175. Thompson had been arrested on Oct. 13, 1985, along with a 17 year old male after they entered Webster Hall by running past the desk and acting in a disorderly manner.

2. On Jan. 29, 1986, William Casey (student/resident) pleaded guilty to trespassing in Little Falls Municipal Court and was sentenced to one year unsupervised probation and fined $225. Sean Poniatowski (student/resident) pleaded not guilty but was found guilty by Judge Gavenda and was fined $150 and given one year unsupervised probation. Both males had attempted to enter a dormitory room using a credit card, but the resident, hearing the commotion, opened the door. The males then entered the resident's room and refused to leave when asked. Prior to this incident, the males had been drinking alcohol at a party in one of their rooms on campus.

3. On Feb. 4, 1986, David Epstein (student) was found guilty of trespassing by Judge Fenygain in Clifton Municipal Court and was fined $150. Epstein had been arrested on Oct. 24, 1985 after he illegally entered Bohn Hall through a window.

4. On Mar. 4, 1986, Louis Manganiello (student) was found guilty in Little Falls Court by Judge Gavenda for charges stemming from a fight outside of the Rathskellar which lead to the breaking of a window and injuries to two bouncers at the door. He received $500 in fines, but is appealing the decision.

5. On Mar. 5, 1986, George Blomn (non-student) and Harold Skuglond (non-student) had been charged with six counts each of burglary and theft involving cars in the parking lots on campus. They pleaded guilty to lesser charges through a plea bargaining agreement reached by the prosecutor and their attorneys. They were found guilty of two counts of theft, one count of criminal mischief and three counts of trespassing each.

Epidemic of "stiff little fingers" spreads throughout SGA cabinet

Yorkshire, GB April 1 (UPI)

A new study released today by the Yorkshire Independent Psycho-Economic Society (YIPES) indicates that there is an increasing trend in the conservatism of treasurers and money handlers across the world.

Dr. Floyd R. O'Burt, chair of YIPES and author of the study, noted that more and more public officials and private controllers are refusing to allow the payment of bills and the purchase of goods and services without adherence to the standard financial procedures, often misnomered "statuettes.

Dr. O'Burt named the trend "Stiff Little Fingers," correlating that the study began six months ago in June 1984, coincidentally the same time Frank Little took office as the Student Government Association's treasurer.

An example of this trend can be seen in the recent surprising bipartisan coalition on Capitol Hill. Late last month, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole (R-KA) and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill (D-MA) presented a joint statement to the press and a challenge to President Reagan saying, "We want to fill in while Rogers took a few days of personal leave. No one noticed the difference.

When reached by phone for comment, Dave A. Handal, president of the student government, said, "I always knew we had a kick-ass organization. We are the best damned one in the country. Now we even have a mental disease named after our treasurer." Little, who happens to be a psychology major with an economics minor could not be reached by phone...he refused to pay the bill.

Terrorism by powerless organizations location at what time. Unfortunately, our intelligence gathering agencies

(CIA, FBI, U.S. Army) are not that good at doing that.”

In terms of security measures, Fields said that diplomats and business executives are protecting themselves.
"It’s common practice for diplomats and important businessmen to ride in armored limousines with security guards armed with fully automatic weapons.”

Fields cited a need to adopt a more aggressive foreign policy in order to deter terrorism. “The West needs to surgically bomb terrorist training camps in Libya and elsewhere using elite commando units such as England’s
Special Air Services (SAS) or America’s Delta Force.

“And bear in mind that it has been proven with aerial photographs that terrorist training camps do exist, contrary to what the Russians and the communists claim.”

Fields emphasized that only a vigorous foreign policy can deter terrorism.
“The more dynamic we are, the less powerful the terrorists will be. Direct raids on terrorist training grounds will effectively deter and hopefully put an end to terrorism altogether.”

The lecture was sponsored by the Affairs.

SGA: use it or lose it

In the wake of international terrorist problems and national involvement in Nicaraguan affairs, students may be distracted from political issues closer to home. Students may think, “The SGA elections aren’t so important; why bother voting?” Yet, later on, students find fault with their SGA’s conduct in affairs which directly concern how their fees are being spent.

You pay for your SGA, which is one of the very few autonomous student government organizations in the country. You, as an MSC student, are eligible to take part in the elections. As every college is a microcosm of the world, the political process begins here at MSC. Your executive officers aren’t just playing house; MSC graduates, like Rep. Steven Adubato, can go on to a political career in the “real” world.

Your fee-supported SGA should therefore represent your political interests. Find out what the candidates’ views are and what types of activities they plan to support at the Student Center Mall.

Throw your weight around. Cast a write-in vote for yourself if you think you’re the best person for the job, or campaign for your favorite candidate. Organize a protest. Join a newspaper. Vote. Make yourself heard. So if you don’t vote in the upcoming SGA election, you don’t have much right to complain about the consequences. Your valid MSC I.D. card is all you need to vote. So use it.

So it’s that simple, right? Well, to become an educated voter, you should find out what the candidates’ views are and what types of activities they plan to support at MSC.

Debates will take place on Sat., April 5 at 2:30 p.m. at the Weekend College meeting; Mon., April 7, from 11 a.m. - 1 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms; Wed., April 9, from noon - 2 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms; and Fri., April 11, from noon - 1 p.m. in the Student Center Mall.

For a closer, personal look at the candidates, read the profiles in next week’s Montclarion. Elections will be held from Sat., April 12 through Wed., April 16 in the Student Center Lobby.

What else can we tell you? Vote! And remember, if you don’t vote; don’t complain.

A Wizard’s study in Thrash

Heavy Metal is on the rise and has been growing steadily for years. It’s taking a while to rise to the top, but this will create a foundation which will ensure its existence for a long time to come. Look around, it’s happening everywhere! Why? It’s simple. What kind of music do the majority of today’s younger people (ages 12-17) listen to? Heavy Metal. Power Metal. Thrash Metal. Times are different today than back when I was their age.

I first started listening to Kiss in the 7th grade. I was 13. This was just the first crack in the flood gates of heavy metal. By the next year, I was into Black Sabbath, and by the age 15, I had graduated to Judas Priest. That kind of music was considered loud and obnoxious by most, an opinion that, if anything, is stronger today. But today’s younger headbangers are into such groups as Metallica, Slayer and Venom. I am also, although it wasn’t until about two years ago, when I became a disc jockey at WMSC-FM, that I really knew about these groups. My taste in music got louder and faster or, you could say, “heavier.”

Mine was a gradual change. For example, Kiss can now be considered just hard rock, for, by today’s standards, it is not metal. If today’s headbangers are starting with Metallica, Slayer or Venom, where are they headed for in the future? Who knows? While this heavier audience is continually growing, the audience of lighter, slower (or what I call “poser”) bands such as Ratt, Motley Crue and Quiet Riot remains strong. Heavy Metal offers much to many people.

And don’t believe anyone trying to tell you there are any other concerts more electrifying than metal concerts! There’s something in the air, an energy and excitement unique in concerts. Anyone there can let loose and go totally nuts without having to worry about going “overboard,” because everyone else in the concert hall will be doing the same. I have gone to many good rock shows over the years, loving good rock and roll and the way I do. Some of the many bands I’ve seen include Jethro Tull, Styx, Heart, Cheap Trick, Yes, Rush, Foreigner, Journey, and Van Halen.

All of these shows were great, but none compared to metal shows such as Iron Maiden, Judas Priest, Dio, the incredible Yngwie Malmsteen and even bands that could only been seen in the smaller clubs, such as Metallica, Anthrax, Exodus or Slayer. These bands are hungry, and the fans are even hungrier! With everyone around you so excited, it’s difficult not to get caught up in it and join in yourself. As the smaller, “heavier” bands grow in popularity, Metal never even gave it a chance. So give it a try. Crank it up and join the bandwagon.

Barbara Chasin describes South African situation

Prof says MSC's divestiture is "toothless package"

To the editor:
The March 13 issue of The Montclarion's headline regarding the divestment policy of the MSC Board of Trustees was inaccurate. The Board did not choose to divest MSC funds from companies doing business with South Africa. Instead they stated that college investments should be only with companies following the Sullivan principles.

These principles set forth a code of conduct for U.S. businesses operating in South Africa, calling on these companies to establish fair employment practices and non-segregation in their workplace. These principles do not address the realities of racism in South Africa and have been called by black workers in South Africa "a toothless package."
The principles make little difference in the lives of black workers in South Africa. Ford Motor has received the highest Sullivan principle ratings, yet black workers there claim 98.5 percent of the workers in the top jobs are white, while 86 percent of the workers in the lowest job categories are black.

In addition, the company follows the South African law that forbids blacks from exercising any supervision over a white.

U.S. companies employ less than two percent of the black labor force, and even if they did improve their black workers' positions, the structures maintaining apartheid would be untouched. U.S. companies, however, are important props to the regime in South Africa and that is why there is a growing divestment movement in this country.

These corporations manufacture vehicles, computers and communications equipment, refine and distribute oil, and provide banking services to the regime. As a result of their activities, the military and police are strengthened and South Africa is better able to withstand international pressures to end apartheid. Furthermore, laws in South Africa require corporations to assist the government in military vehicles to be used by South Africa in the repression of its own black population. It is illegal in South Africa to advocate divestiture, indicating that the South African government fears divestment. In spite of the penalties, spokespersons for the anti-apartheid movement in South Africa urge divestment, and groups all around this country support this demand. More than 25 cities have accepted some form of divestment, as have over 50 U.S. colleges and universities, and numerous churches and unions.

The state of New Jersey has divested its pension funds; why does MSC lag behind? The board of Trustees should be setting a moral example for our country and we should all be urging the Board to reconsider its decision and divest now.

"Old Guard" takes offense at omission of clerical title

To the editor:
As "OLD GUARD" I take exception to the letter written by Jacque Rubino printed in the March 6 issue of The Montclarion.

Ms. Rubino is entitled to her opinion and beliefs but I object to her referring to a man of the cloth as "Art Humphrey" rather than Father Art Humphrey. And as a point of information, Father Humphrey is the Catholic Chaplain of the Montclair State College community and not just the Newman Community, as noted.

Perhaps if we gave respect as due we could expect to receive the same.

Students returning from Spring break may or may not be happy to learn that MSC has acquired a Big Sister. No, I mean, a Big Sister has acquired MSC.

Anyone who has driven past the Normal Ave. college sign will no doubt find a clue as to who this Big Sister is. Carved across the bottom is the signature of our new sibling, the now all too familiar red and white logo reading Beertrice.

As most know, Beertrice, as heart, soul and brains of the corporation known as Beertrice, Inc., has been buying up American corporations lock, stock and barrel and left, right, and straight down the middle.

Said a spokesman for Beertrice, Inc., "This has largely gone unnoticed because since 1984, everyone has been looking out for Big Brother and his corporation."

"Anyway, we just took advantage of President Reagan's repopularization of chauvenistic attitudes and fooled them all. After all, with such an attitude, who would suspect that Big Sister is Big Brother?"

Questioned as to why Beertrice would want to acquire a state college, namely our state college, the spokesman said that the academic acquisition is an experiment.

"By the time these kids all graduate," the spokesman said, "Beertrice will have bought up all American corporations and probably a few foreign ones too. In other words, these kids will one day be working for us, Beertrice. We want to see if we can install in them now, while their minds are still flexible, the Beertrice creed and goal of "One World, One Corporation."

Donald F. Falters, MSC president, was jubilant about the acquisition, noting the distinct advantage MSC students will have over other college students upon graduation.

"Having been Beertrified," Falters explained, "we will slide into the job market as easily as Beertrice's Lizzy's Fruit Cocktail, packed in its own natural fruit juices, slides down the throat. Another distinct advantage Falters sees is that the problem of declining enrollment is no longer a problem.

"Lovingly known to MSC President Donald Falters as "Aunt Bee," is Beertrice, head of Beertrice, Inc. She says she's happy with her acquisition of MSC and looks forward to employing many graduates in the future. Asked what her next move is, "Aunt Bee" says she's considering running for the presidency in 1988. "If I lose, it doesn't matter; I'll own everything anyway."

A terrorist butterfly, suspected to be backed by the Campus Communist Consolidation Party (CCCP), sabotaged today's Board of Distrustees meeting by setting off a chemical explosion.

The incident occurred shortly after 8 a.m. in Student Center room 426 as Dr. John Matador of the Chemistry Department began his scheduled board presentation which consisted of jug-gling four test tubes filled with nitroglycerin.

No sooner had Matador started juggling when according to witnesses, a dark red butterfly darted into the meeting and landed on Matador's nose. He consequently lost control and the nitroglycerin in test tubes soared upward and burst. This resulted in an explosion that disintegrated the entire 50 foot long ceiling and all four walls of room 426 and shook the entire campus for 30 seconds.

Immediately afterwards, Board Chairman Merry Bowl attempted to subdue the fleeing butterfly by throwing his official board hammer, but he missed and hit Faculty Tenant Representative Careen Silkskins on the head, knocking her unconscious until emergency crews arrived.

Kampus kops, firemen, and members of the P Team (an elite commando unit headed by kampus cop Lt. Mark Potatokey) were on the scene in two minutes.

Miraculously, no one was injured besides Silkskins, who was revived by paramedics using a combination of chocolate milk and Fruit Loops cereal. Silkskins was then rushed by limousine to Charlie Brown's in Montclair for treatment of shock, where she is listed in stable but intoxicated condition.

Outrage was expressed by members of the board. "Who ever thought a butterfly would undermine a board meeting!" Bowl exclaimed. "And it had to happen just before the board was to consider a proposal to install anti-fly-g insect traps in all campus buildings."

"Furtherm ore, keep in mind that I didn't go through the trouble to get an eight million dollar construction and repair budget fund for nothing."

However, Kampus Kops Detective Webby Haircomb emphasized that the CCCP is a dangerous organization. "Our sources have revealed that the CCCP has strong footholds at WMSC radio and in the SAG (Students Against Government)."

Haircomb continued, "We were tipped off three weeks ago when WMSC started broadcasting in Russian and playing Marxist and communist music."

"The distinct advantage Falters sees is that the problem of declining enrollment is no longer a problem. MSC President Falters downplayed the CCCP's act of terrorism. "They destroyed our meeting room ceiling and its four walls. So what! Spring is here and we can use a couple open air board meetings," Falters said. "Furthermore, keep in mind that I didn't go through the trouble to get an eight million dollar construction and repair budget fund for nothing."

enrollment now facing MSC "could very possibly be alleviated," he said. "I believe prospective students learn that the doors of MSC open onto the wonderful world of Beertrice." Haircomb said that the enrollment pop will up pop up, growing as large and full as Beertrice's own gourmet poppy ponders.

According to Haircomb, who lovingly refers to Beertrice as "Aunt Bee," many ties lie in stores, I mean, store for current MSC students. The first will be the changing of MSC's often misunderstood motto, "Carpe Diem."

"Carpe Diem' or 'Seize the Day' has been the source of much confusion to our undergraduate, who builds a system which will play the Beertrice musical motto, "da dum, Da Dum..."

SAG President Dave Handlers, in reaction to the recent Beetrice take over, has decided to bypass SAG plans for their leadership conference considering alcohol will now be provided by Beertrice on the campus. Said Handlers, "We can drink it there or we can drink it here. Why not save the time and money by staying here."

In other news, the Programming Bored, which, though put on the back burner weeks ago, will come to a boil in a new light, with a new name and a new style. The new name is Beetrice Programming. It is designed to bring the Class Organizations of MSC closer together with less repeat or overlap of events, much like the old program. However the new program has a twist. All Class Organizations will be provided with an endless supply of breakfast cereals, laundry detergent, and toilet paper.

Winding up the meeting, Gary track Delorian, asked all SAG executive board candidates to submit their petitions for forgery analysis by April 5, 1986.

New transfer program offers MSC cool change

By B. Ilicit

President Falters last Monday welcomed three Alaskan transfer students. The students, I.B. Abe, Fuzzy Wuzzy and Breezy Bruin, are currently in an experimental transfer program, designed to bring an awareness of each state's culture to MSC. Falters said of the program, "We have much we can learn from the lifestyles of other states." He stated as an example, "basic ice fishing has yet to be explored." N.J. State residents, though lack of ice may be a problem.

A formal banquet was held in Krops Lounge. Falters, "in order to make them feel more at home," was dressed in the traditional ceremonial Eskimo parka throughout the ceremony.

Falters wished to make clear the availability of the program to MSC students interested in attending other states' colleges. Said Falters, "Perhaps if we could present some of our Jersey City, Newark and Hoboken students to other states, we could undermine the 'tough' image N.J. residents have been given."

Any interested students can inquire at Queen's Super Market, Valley Rd., Upper Montclair.

Kampus Kops crash after the nitro splash

By Bomb Cloud

A communist backed butterfly sabotaged a Board of Distrustees Meeting today at 8 a.m. in room 426 of the Student Center. This was according to Detective Webby Haircomb.

Kampus Kops Korner

The scenario was as follows, the dark red butterfly flew into the room and disturbed Chemistry Chairman John Matador as he was juggling four nitroglycerin test tubes in a presentation to the board. This resulted in an explosion that blew out the ceiling and all four walls.

No injuries were reported except for Faculty Tenant Representative Careen Silkskins who is now recuperating at Charlie Brown’s in Montclair. It is suspected that the Campus Communist Consolidation Party (CCCP) is behind the sabotaging.

Upon returning from the sabotaging, seven campus cop cars collided with one another in lot 30 at 9 a.m. The mishap occurred when Sgt. N. Notelting’s car slipped on a banana peel and hit a car driven by Lt. Mark Potatokey which in turn, demolished Chief Jean Wich’s personal chauffeur.

Wich’s car then totaled three motorcycles operated by Sgts. Snarles Sage, Sherbert Void, and Ron Krud. Finally, a pogo stick unit manned by Sgt. Maul Hell tripped over the entire pileup.

All officers involved were treated for minor boo-boos and bruised egos at the campus infirmary.

The incident is being investigated further by Chief Wich. However, she did comment “I don’t know what really happened, but I know the fact that none of us passed our driver’s test is not at all a contributing factor.”

At 10:30 a.m. a male student reported that his coat, shirt, pants, and undergarments were stolen while he was wearing them in the student center cafeteria. “I don’t know what happened. One second, I was wearing my clothes, the next second I was naked.” A wallet containing 35 French francs and 7 condoms was also reported stolen.

Two males were arrested at 10:45 a.m. from in front of the Pillbox State Bank after selling 10,000 stolen books to an undercover agent who identified himself as Phil Blewit. Thieves are in custody at campus cops headquarters but Blewit has been reassigned to the Strove Rd. Troll-Patrol Unit. “Blewit is a good cop but he better keep out of trouble this time,” Chief Wich said.

At 11:30 a.m. a female student faint-ed after biting into a piece of Batcellar pizza. She was promptly revived and escorted to an oil detoxification center in Bayonne. Two Batcellar workers, Marie Greasy and Marie Slimy are under arrest in connection with the felony. More arrests are not pending.

The Montquierer's staff asks: what's wrong with apathy?

This is the place where we, the editors of The Montquier, spout our beliefs, disbeliefs, and other sorts of bull. We're trying to promote student awareness about things in life that mean absolutely nothing. We're trying to get rid of apathy on this campus.

But then again, what's wrong with apathy????

We say nothing because, frankly, we're faithful followers of apathy. We know most of you don't even read these editorials because you're too apathetic yourselves.

So, because we really don't like writing these editorials anyway, we've decided to list a bunch of our favorite apathetic quotes. If you are reading this, and are disappointed because you were looking for some stimulating, intellectual insight, too bad, you won't find it here.

— "I don't think; therefore I am apathetic." Descartes — "Everybody talks about apathy, but nobody does anything about it." Mark Twain — "Apathy: it's not all glamour." Jerry "the Pest" Watz — "Apathy is the opiate of the masses." Karl Marx
— "I think I shall never see / A poem so lovely as apathy." Joyce Kilmer — "To be in love is merely to be in a state of perpetual apathy." H.L. Mencken — "Better to remain silent and be thought apathetic, than to open your mouth and prove yourself a fool." -- — "Apathy is such a lovely word." Silly Bowl — "Apathy is just another defense against the universe." Smell Books.
— "The highest conceivable enjoyment lies in apathy. To be apathetic is higher than anything else in the world." Soren Kierkegaard — "Apathy is the spice of life." -- — "Apathy...is not always pretty." The Montquierer Staff.

As I Smell It

Spike Hoods

An exercise in sarcasm

Dear President Reagan,

I hope that you will find time to read this column. I realize that you are a busy man with those long flights between Santa Barbara and Camp David, but I feel that my case warrants attention.

I am an undergraduate at Montclair State College in New Jersey. I recently read in my college newspaper, The Montquier, that student financial aid will be cut once again next year. I realize that our national government needs to save money for good republican causes, but I appeal to your sense of fairness and ask that you spare me, personally, from these cuts.

I am aware that you have been trying to realign the economic and political attitudes of Americans for the past six years. Perhaps if I could prove to you that I have learned well your lessons of individualism and self-sufficiency, perhaps you could see your way clear to front me my tuition money for next year.

So I will cast aside my liberal attitudes and, in the spirit of rugged American individualism, ask you to cut the student aid program for the good of the country but spare my student aid for the good of me, Spike Hoods.

No dice, you say? This is not true American individualism, but mere selfishness and dependency on my part? Do you truly believe that I am but one of the alleged millions of college students who take advantage of government grants and spend their money in Ft. Lauderdale? O.K., Mr. President, how about if I swear to you that I need money for new shoes and similar necessities? I have a pair of shoes that I've been wearing so long that they are becoming organic! I would like a new pair of shoes.

You say that the point is not how badly I need the money, rather that I must learn to become economically independent? Perhaps I should be going to Economic Independence University instead of MSC.

Sorry, just kidding.

Government grants amount to nothing more than public charity, and charity should be privately funded. Certainly there are those in this country who are far worse off than myself. Thank you, Mr. President, for teaching me to stand on my own two feet!

Spike Hoods' was recently released from Attica Prison, which gave him the character necessary to be an editor of The Montquierer.

Housing head Grover’s new Ratburger plan

To the editor:

Due to the many complaints that we have received about the dorm cafeterias, we made a complete, thorough and expensive study of student preferences and needs. We at MSC Housing now feel that the present cafeteria system just isn’t working!

Therefore, the Blatant and Freeburg Hall cafeterias, as of April 7, 1986, will serve nothing but White Castle hamburgers, Domino's pizza and Coke. The present selection of cakes and ice cream for dessert will continue.

This is a radical departure from the standards of the past, but we feel that there is good reason to believe this plan will work.

First, the yearly "Rat-eating" contests in Stoned Hall have proven to be a major boost in both the morale and nourishment of Stoned Hall residents. Secondly, the waste that the cafeterias deal with in un-eaten fruits and vegetables will be eliminated now that these foods will no longer be served. In other words, since nobody eats them anyway, we won't serve them. Finally, this will provide a boost to the local economy by increased business to the local fast-food restaurants and pizzerias.

Of course, we'll be able to serve plenty of those delicious, nutricious Beantrice products, now that they've acquired MSC. I am anxious to work with the fine, fine people there and, of course, their products will only help our new selection of hamburgers and pizza to be even better.

Commode’s latest movie review called “a crock”

To the editor:

I write this letter to comment on Blob Commode’s review of the latest Woodpecker Alley film, "Roseannadanna and her Sisters." While I think it is a fine film, better than most, I can’t agree with an article that states right off the bat that it’s "the only alternative to suicide!"

Well, other that the fact that the only reason not to commit suicide is that I heard the laundry service in the afternoon is slow, the entire concept of a movie about Roseann Roseannadanna is slightly warped, but then again, so is Alley.

One of Commode’s big points was that "Roseannadanna" was a great motion picture because of its realism. What a crock! People encounter realism every day, that’s why it’s real, really. I mean, Woodpecker’s greatness is that he throws reality out of the Empire State’s 86th floor observatory, only to worry in the elevator whether it will hit him on the head when he steps onto the street.

His neurosis is what makes him the greatest movie-maker of all time, and is the only way to handle this film. Roseannadanna’s reality? Gag me with a fork.

Presenting the Peter Garrett Awards

By Hairy Gruff

Now that the thrill and suspense of Oscar night has faded like a Schaefer buzz, let’s admit to ourselves that the Academy Awards is a farce. Once again, millions of people have sat through the three-hour ritual of rehearsed witthisms and obligatory expressions of gratitude, only to find that the self-appointed judges of the entertainment industry have no more taste than an ABC network programmer. When Cher’s neo-Iroquois getup provides the highlight of the evening, you know it’s a dull year for Oscar.

Accordingly, the Society of Critics for the Advancement of Mediocrity (SCAM) in association with Beerticks, Inc., held its first annual Peter Garrett awards for Obscurity in the Arts. The purpose: to recognize those artists and entertainers in the Montclair area for whom success does not—and should not—come easily.

This year’s host was the beloved Mr. Ed, a 30-year veteran of stage and stable. “It’s really great to be here tonight,” Mr. Ed joked, “but this tuxedo is making me sweat like a horse.” Mr. Ed followed his opening comments with the words, “It’s really great to be here tonight,” Mr. Ed joked, “but this tuxedo is making me sweat like a horse.”

Leather industry is often overlooked. Beerticks, Inc., held its first annual Peter Garrett awards for Obscurity in the Arts. The purpose: to recognize those artists and entertainers in the Montclair area for whom success does not—and should not—come easily.

Most Offensive Drama— “Hyperboles,” by Mediocre Theatre Series. This heart-rending tale of a poor defenseless rapist whose needs are cruelly ignored by a merciless, pesticide-wielding woman won rave reviews for its astonishing inaccuracy and contrived plot. Accepting the award for MTS was convicted child-abuser JoJo Giorgianni, who quoted Kierkegaard: “Rape is only an imagined enjoyment.” Indeed, “Hyperboles” has shown us that being a rapist is not all glamour.

Most Annoying Actor: Pastel Di Ficil. “No Brains.” His performance as a perplexed preppie pedestrian did not garner the Garrett for Pastel; rather, it was his role as president of PLAYRS, the world’s only CIA backed theatrical company, in recent acts of terrorism involving coffee cups and other items of dubious value. PLAYRS was also recognized for Best Rap Single by a CIA-Backed Theatrical Company. The cast of “Fanatics”—with prorapster Jerry “The Pest” Wertz, have recorded “Not Gonna Play Memorial,” a rap song to promote some vague cause. Debts from the single will benefit the Starving Artists’ Guild.

A special Mediocre Merit award was presented to the producers of “Uptown—It’s Not,” a Broadway flop which featured MSC alumnus Jerry Mackery. Jerry was not available for comment; it is believed that his short-lived success has gone to Jerry’s head; he is currently negotiating with Abc-rythmical Pictures to do a film version of Ralph Ellison’s “The Invisible Man.”

Most Shameless Trademark Ripoff in the Entertainment Industry— “Summer-man,” a blatant clone of “Summer-pon.” MSC’s long-running theatre program and sexorgy, Thisseason’s Summer-fish productions will include “Cod on a

It should be noted that Peter Gar­ratt, an obscure Australian rock-singer of large size and fearsome visage, has no idea that he is being exploited for the purpose of these awards. If you don’t tell him, we won’t either.

Hot Tin Roof,” “The Taming of the Troil,” “Death of a Fisherman,” and “Seashore with Sharks and Dancer.”

Most Insipid Concert Performance—Marshall Coleslaw at MSC. One of rock’s least dynamic personalities, Coleslaw is noted for his mastery of three basic guitar chords. Coleslaw’s third album came as a surprise to those who thought the singer had died of a boredom overdose in 1978. Equally mediocre musicians have covered Coleslaw’s songs with more success. The highlight of the Feb. 24 concert occurred when students hurled raw fish at the band in response to Cole­slaw’s demand for 100 pounds of sushi.

Stevie Way Gone in concert

MSC is in for a musical treat when rock and roll’s premier blues guitarist, Stevie Way Gone, performs a one-night-only concert in Pansy Gymnasium on Sun., April 13 at 8 p.m. Stevie Way’s music is best described in the words of Trick Stagger, middle-aged singer of the Flintstones. “Stevie Way is, like, cool, man. We wanted him to be a Flintstone but he made it on his own. Can you dig that?”

Stevie Way attributes much of his early musical influence to rock and roll legend Gimme Mandrax. When asked why Mandrax’s music was so inspiring, Stevie Way responded, “He played loud, man. Real loud.” In answer to his critics, who claim he has the personal magnetism of a catatonic schizophrenic, Stevie Way said, “Look, man, them guys like Gimme Rage from Lead Zipper and Keef Preacher of the Flintstones are good guitarists, but they jump up and down like clowns. I want people to dig my music, not my personality or looks.

Whatever one may think of Stevie Way Gone, he is without a doubt the best blues guitarist around. Rabid Bowow, who gave Stevie Way his break on the Why Dance album, said “You gotta see this guy play man.” We at The Montquirer agree— go see Stevie Way Gone, before he’s long gone.

Romantic Poet Series begins

Samuel Taylor Coleridge will read from his works on Fri., April 4 at 8 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms. Coleridge’s poetry, described by one critic as “decadent and weird,” includes hits like “Rime of the Ancient Mariner” and “Kubla Khan.” A lavish reception will follow; guests are advised to bring their own opium.

Zoological art exhibit

MSC student Garde Avant will present his unique artwork in the Sprawl Gallery from April 5 through April 5. The exhibit features various wildlife stuffed in comic positions and painted in an array of Day-Glo colors. Admission is $2, $45 with valid MSC ID. Vomit receptacles will be available.

Hooked on classics

The Boston Flops Orchestra, led by the late Arthur Fiedler, is coming to MSC on Sun., April 6 at 5:30 a.m. The concert will be held in the men’s room of the Student Center Annex, and will include symphonic versions of the Beatles’ “Helter Skelter,” “Kill the Poor” by the Dead Kennedys and “Some Heads Are Gonna Roll.” Seating is limited, so order tickets three days ago.

THE CHANGING OF THE GUARD. Assistant baseball coach Rick Pepsicola gets the bad news of his firing from his replacement, P. Opus.

MSC's baseball team has been put on probation because of ex-head coach Kevin Looney's illegal recruitment of pre-teen players. Here, Looney is seen giving pointers to 7-year-old pitching phenom Dwight Binkley.

NEW LOOK FOR FOOTBALL TEAM? Beertrice officials test out new football equipment by plunging into 5-degree waters. If successful, the Indians will be donning the new garb next season.

Beetrice names Steinbrenner as MSC's new baseball Boss

By Gym Precocious

In an unprecedented move last week, Beetrice, the new owners of MSC, named George Steinbrenner as general manager in charge of baseball operations. Immediately after taking over the reigns, Steinbrenner laid down the groundwork for a slew of changes in the MSC baseball program. "I took over the team because I felt college baseball needed a winner," explained the Boss. "I will do everything in my power to bring MSC a winner." Steinbrenner's first move was to release Kevin Looney from his position as head coach and name Billy Martin as his replacement. Looney had earlier been reported to have been involved in the illegal recruitment of seven-year-old Montquirer. Martin and Looney reportedly were "appalled by Looney's lack of ethics," and also promised that he end his new team would "pass out upon reaching the office? (Hey. how'd that get in there? -Ed.)"

Latin Quarter LP reflects modern times

There's a message in their melodies

By Perry Schwarz

The band Latin Quarter got their name from an area in Paris that is a traditional center of social and cultural awareness. Appropriately, their music communicates concern over social problems; at the same time, Latin Quarter performs a diversity of sound that should interest a variety of listeners.

Latin Quarter's songs deal with topics like apartheid, neo-conservatism, the war in the Falkland Islands, soccer violence, the exploitation of John Lennon's memory, and mass unemployment. Yet, they explain, their music is designed for listener enjoyment. "At the moment, political songs in England mostly have to be blasted out loudly and aggressively, but we are simply proof that protest can be produced melodiously, expressively, musically and, as far as we're concerned, artistically as well."

The diverse musical and social background of the band members has resulted in Latin Quarter's diverse musical persona. Their latest album, Modern Times (Arista Records) includes reggae, rock/soul and ballads. The group's musical mastery. Their latest album, Modern Times, is an enthusiastic song, expertly engineered and helped by good backup vocals. "Radio Africa" is another good cut. It's an insistent reggae tune which reflects the troubles in South Africa. The unique vocal style is as penetrating as the message.

"New Millionaires" is one of the slower songs on Modern Times. Most of the vocals feature female singers; on this cut, the singer sounds similar to Olivia Newton-John. Another slow song, "Cora," rounds out the album. It is the slowest of the 11 cuts. The female vocalist is accompanied by a piano.

Latin Quarter's hits are co-written by a non-performing member of the band, Mike Jones. The band sends him music through the mail and he sends lyrics back. Band members include Steve Skait (vocals and guitar), Richard Wright (lead guitar), Martin Lascelles (keyboards), Greg Harewood (bass), Dave Charles (drums), Carol Douet (vocals and percussion), and Yona Dunsford (vocals and keyboard).

While still on the independent Rocking Horse label, Latin Quarter sold 60,000 albums during a one-week visit to Germany in 1985. The group's success has become so successful because their music is able to reach so many listeners. For any listener who enjoys new sounds with distinct meaning, Modern Times should be a special treat.

MSC anticipates Double Trouble

By Gary Ruff

The walls of Panzer Gym will shake to the foundations with the exciting sound of Texas blues when Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble appear April 13, courtesy of Class One Concerts.

Stevie Ray can be credited with single-handedly reviving American rhythm and blues. His slick, original treatment of this time-tested genre has launched all three of his albums into the Top 40. This master of the Stratocaster was designated "Best New Talent" and "Best Electric Guitarist" by the 1983 Guitar Player Reader's Poll. Also, his debut Texas Flood (Epic Records) was voted "Best Blues Album."

While Stevie Ray's mind-boggling blues fingerings is not his only distinction. He is capable of rendering "Voodoo Chile" and "Third Stone From the Sun" with a dynamic genius that rivals The Master, Jimi Hendrix. On Soul to Soul, his latest album, Stevie Ray has spread his wings. While offering his usual staple of R&B tunes, blues jams and soulful melodies, Stevie Ray also experimented with jazz (in "Stang's Swang"), and has added Reese Wynans on keyboards to round out his band's sound. Besides, Stevie Ray's songwriting and distinctive Texan vocals are more impressive than ever.

While Stevie Ray's self-produced albums capture all the energy and impact of his music, like any blues performer he is at his best on the stage. Born and raised in Dallas, he started playing guitar at eight and perfected his craft in thousands of gigs in Texas clubs. Stevie Ray quit high school in his senior year to dedicate himself to the guitar. His break came at the 1982 Montreux Festival, where his scorching performance thrilled and amazed everyone, including David Bowie and Jackson Browne. Soon Stevie Ray was adding his fretwork to Bowie's Let's Dance album, and was recording with Double Trouble (bassist Tommy Shannon and drummer Chris Layton) in Browne's Los Angeles Studio.

It's been all uphill from there—but success hasn't softened Stevie Ray's musical sinews. He continues to register on Richter scales wherever he and his Strat set up amp. As Stevie Ray has said, "The blues genre is just as viable and exciting as it was 25 years ago." Come check out his only MSC appearance at 8 p.m., Sunday April 13, and find out what makes this blues favorite Texas rocker the most exciting guitarist of his generation.

Comedian's dream almost realized at The Feedbag

By Bill Normyle

For as long I can remember, I have wanted to be a stand-up comedian. Many wonder what it is that drives one to pursue such a dream. Is it the possibilities for fame and fortune, or just an incurable desire for public humiliation? Well, whatever the reason it is something that I have been threatening to do for many years, but never really seemed to have the time. I always had some excuse, like school, work, or waiting for the guy to show up to fix my cable TV, but recently I ran out of excuses and decided the time was right to make my comedy debut.

The place I chose for this momentous occasion was a cozy resort known as The Feedbag, located in scenic suburban Bloomfield. The club is a quaint little place done in early Roy Rogers, which features assorted nightly entertainment, including a comedy showcase every Sunday night at 9 p.m. It was there that I met the host and star of the show, MSC's own Danny Ezra; but I decided to return anyway the following week to actually try to work out some issue or problem in the psychodrama. This person will work to solve many issues and roles in my own family and how I can relate better to my parents and others.

When I arrived I was amazed at how nervous I was. Although I have been making a fool of myself in front of total strangers for years this was something completely different. The same state I used to feel before every show and as it got closer to my time I became more and more uncomfortable.

Finally it was my turn to step up and to do that comedy voodoo that I do so well before an ugly crowd of spandex and polyester. Despite the crowd and my slight case of the jitters, the rotten fruit that I expected to come out didn’t, but then neither did the big laughs. In short, I am pleased to say that I left them completelywhelmed, but that was really as much as I expected. Since then I have been back once more to similar results, but I do intend to go back again till I get it right. I may not be getting paid yet, but on a Sunday night it sure beats the heck out of "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous." So if you’re looking for something to do next Sunday besides hanging out with Robin Leach and a swimming pool shaped like Don King’s hair, why don’t you stop by at The Feedbag at 36 Broad Street in Bloomfield? Because the admission’s too expensive, right? Wrong, olive leaf breath - because it’s FREE! Because of the strict dress code? Well, not unless you consider wearing to clothes to be too restrictive. So, as you can see, you have now run out of excuses. There is even a bar where the adults among you can get really tanked: while all ages are admitted, you must be 21 to drink. Show time is 9 p.m., and anyone who brings in a copy of this article next week will get $1 off a sandwich or a pitcher of beer. Many of the performers are much funnier than I look (and we all know how funny that is). It’s a lot of laughs, a lot of fun, but not a lot of bucks - and it sure beats the heck out of Robin Leach.

HR & Psych Club co-sponsor dramatic therapy

"Psychodrama" is a learning experience

By Cynthia L. Slavinsky with Rodney Stubina

The Human Relations Organization and the Psychology Club are co-sponsoring a psychodrama in Kopper Lounge of Russ Hall at 8 p.m., Tues., April 8.

Robert L. Fohridt from the Montclair Center for Psychodrama and Psychotherapy will direct. Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

Psychodrama is a method of psychotherapy developed by J.L. Moreno, M.D., who came to America from Vienna in 1925. Since that time, it has been applied in a variety of settings. It is primarily used in group settings, but can also be used with individuals, couples and families.

Psychodrama helps to develop action approaches to many problems. It has been successfully used with alcoholics, law enforcement personnel, artist and astronauts.

In the beginning of a psychodrama, the director will explain the theory behind psychodrama and various terms associated with it. Then, he will get the audience involved by having them participate in various exercises to help them get to know one another. These exercises usually break the audience up into groups and assign them various family roles to see how they interact.

Someone will volunteer to become the protagonist, or the main character in the psychodrama. This person will try to work out some issue or problem he had with others in his life. The protagonist will then choose others from the audience to play certain roles, be it mother or father, boyfriend or girlfriend or a sibling. People are chosen for factors such as physical appearance, personality, clothing, etc. Then the director takes charge and the role-playing begins.

Finally it was my time to stand up on somewhere near the middle of the stage. I had tried to work out some issue or problem to be in the psychodrama. This person will try to work out some issue or problem he had with others in his life. The protagonist will then choose others from the audience to play certain roles, be it mother or father, boyfriend or girlfriend or a sibling. People are chosen for factors such as physical appearance, personality, clothing, etc. Then the director takes charge and the role-playing begins.

There are different techniques used in psychodrama to help the role-playing along. One such technique is "role reversal." This is when the protagonist and another character switch roles in order for both to gain a clearer understanding of each other. Another psychodrama technique is called "alter-going." The "alter-ego" is a character in the psychodrama who says what the protagonist may be really thinking and feeling, but may be too painful for him to admit. This can help the protagonist focus on his main concerns and emotions.

The third technique is called "socio-drama." Here the protagonist and the other characters form a circle, those two in the protagonist feels closest to, standing nearest. The protagonist tells each person how he feels about them, starting with the closest and proceeding to those whom he has the most difficulty. The point, again, is to help the protagonist understand and express his feelings.

After the role - playing is over, the audience is asked to participate. The audience can give feedback to the different characters, and also share their impressions and experiences with the rest of the group.

I have participated in two psychodramas, where I have played the role of a sister and a mother. I have learned about the way I "play out" various roles in my own family and how I can relate better to my parents and others. However, psychodrama is definitely something that you may want to experience firsthand. Learning the theory behind psychodrama is fine, but participating in one is a unique learning experience.

The trick is catching it early. And that’s exactly what a mammogram can do.

A mammogram is a simple x-ray that’s simply the best news yet for detecting breast cancer. And saving lives.

If you’re over 35, ask your doctor about mammography.

Individual MSC performances highlight Domino track relays

By Tom Branna

Outstanding individual performances by the MSC men's track team highlighted the Indians' efforts at the Domino Pizza Relay at Florida State University over spring break.

Freshman Amod Field qualified for the nationals by running the 400 meter intermediate hurdles in 53.86 seconds. The time was good enough for third place and also only one second off the MSC record.

Godfrey Brown, a sophomore, took fourth place in the 400 with a time of 49.01.

In the relay events, Leander Knight, Field, Brown, and Ed Chavis finished sixth in the 4 x 200 relay with a time of 1:29.8. Those same runners also took eighth in the 4 x 100, running a 43.1.

"I had some outstanding races in Florida," said Head Coach Vic Mizzone. "With 28 quality athletes on the team this year (last season there were just 18) we're looking forward to the league competition."

Coaches bolstered the program by having all of last year's runners returning and the addition of seven new football players.

"I'm really happy to have the football players involved," said Mizzone. "I appreciate the football coaches convincing the players to come out for the team."

INDIAN NOTES — The lone seniors on the squad, distance runner Ron Kulik and Knight, were recently named co-captains...April 1st meet against William Paterson was postponed due to problems with the MSC track...MSC's next meet is the New Jersey College Track Championship on Saturday.

Softball

Kean 5-MSC 3

MSC suffered its first defeat of the year at the hands of Kean on March 23.

Kean broke a 3-3 tie in the third inning when its winning pitcher, Mary Deutsch, singled home Kathy Flannery for a 4-3 lead.

MSC 10-Wisconsin-Platteville 2

Theoebald, Cumberland, and Deutsch had two hits apiece to lead the Indians to a 10-2 win over Wisconsin-Platteville in their second game of the season, on March 22. Theobald drove in three of the MSC runs, and Emery picked up her first-win of the year going the distance on the mound.

DeAguino's two-hitting enabled the Indians to escape with a 1-0 victory over Kean on March 22.

The lone run of the game came in the sixth inning. Donna Brooks singled, stole second and scored on Andrea Peters timely single.

MSC 6 - LaSalle 2
MSC pitcher Gabe Noto limited LaSalle to five hits and three walks while striking out nine as the Indians pounded LaSalle in Philadelphia Monday, 6-2.

In the first inning, Ron Spadaro singled in the first run, then second on a double by Andy Weiler. Weiler scored on a wild pitch for the last Indian run of the inning. Tim Jones cracked a solo home run to aid the MSC cause.

MSC 10 - Boca Raton 5
The day Tim Johnson had been looking forward to throughout his college career finally came on Tuesday, March 26.

The senior MSC centerfielder prides himself on stolen bases. When he stole two bases against Boca Raton on March 26, in Florida, to help the Indians to a 10-5 victory, he became the new MSC career stolen base leader with 30. Pete Horn's 29 was the previous MSC best, set in 1978.

Johnson's two stolen bases weren't the only highlights for the Indians, however. He also belted a second-inning grand slam home run to boost the MSC into a 5-4 lead. With MSC trailing 4-0 in the second, John McClain smacked a two-run home run to provide the power hitting for MSC.

In Game 1, senior pitcher Gabe Noto kicked off his year by pitching a complete game two-hitter to lead the Indians to a 19-0 pasting of Niagara. Noto had a no-hitter going before he gave up a leadoff single in the sixth.

In Game 2, the Indians rode a 13-hit, five-run home run attack to defeat Niagara, 15-3. DeiSol, Mike Hronich, and Deutsch hit solo home runs, Johnson smacked a two-run home run, and Pepe Herrero hit a three-run blast for MSC.

On the mound, Brian Cheswick threw a three-hitter to gain his first win of the season.

Michigan St. 9 — MSC 4
The Indians fell victim to NCAA Division I school Michigan State (4-3), 9-4 on Sunday, March 23.

A four-walk, seven-run explosion by the Spartans in the seventh inning proved to be the downfall for MSC.

The only highlight for the Indians Johnson's 4-for-5 performance at the plate.

MSC 19 — Niagara 0
MSC 15 — Niagara 3
The Indians blasted Niagara University in both games of a doubleheader in Miami, Saturday, March 22, 19-0 and 15-3.

In game 1, senior pitcher Gabe Noto kicked off his year by pitching a complete game two-hitter to lead the Indians to a 19-0 pasting of Niagara. Noto had a no-hitter going before he gave up a leadoff single in the sixth.

Offensively, MSC punched out 14 hits. Ron Spadaro smacked a three-run home run in the first inning and John Deutsch hit a two-run homer in the fourth to provide the power hitting for MSC.

In Game 2, the Indians rode a 13-hit, five-run home run attack to defeat Niagara, 15-3. DeiSol, Mike Hronich, and Deutsch hit solo home runs, Johnson smacked a two-run home run, and Pepe Herrero hit a three-run blast for MSC.

On the mound, Brian Cheswick threw a three-hitter to gain his first win of the season.

Student trainers are deserving of some recognition

By John Davis

I'd like to take this opportunity to introduce you to a group of students who may make up the most important team in the MSC Athletic Department. It's not the baseball team, the men's or women's basketball team, or the football team. It is the group of students who act as student athletic trainers for the athletic department.

Surprised? I bet most people are. Now why do I make this claim. Well consider the following.

MSC's student trainers arrive in August with the football team and help the team prepare for the upcoming season. They assist the staff trainers and team physicians, provide first aid, evaluate and treat major and minor injuries, and help rehabilitate injured athletes. When the other fall sports begin their seasons, they provide care at all home and most away contests, and man the training room daily for practices.

When fall draws to a conclusion, the football and field hockey teams hang up their equipment and get ready for a long off-season. The student trainers then turn their attention to the winter sports: wrestling, basketball, gymnastics and swimming. Again they're there at every contest providing necessary medical support to MSC athletes. All through winter break and into the second semester these volunteers work. Some have the intention of making athletic training a career, others just lend a hand to help all the athletes, coaches, and teams to be as successful as possible.

As the basketball and swimming seasons finish up, the successful baseball and softball teams we have become accustomed to along with lacrosse and track, are just beginning.

The student trainers continue to provide our athletes with medical care and helping hand until every sport has completed its schedule. Not exactly a short season for these 'team members'.

Now that I've introduced you to the team as a whole and highlighted the important function they provide for the athletic department, let me finish by acknowledging these caring, special people;

Jolene Piazza, Christine Carmean, JoMarie Cumberland, Peri Carlin, Colleen Brenn, Caryn Heftet, Christina DeZenzo, and Gail Meneghin.

Thanks from all the athletes, coaches, and especially the staff trainers.

John Davis is MSC's head trainer.

American Cancer Society
Athletic department oversights leave Ashton out in cold

by Jim Nicolsa

When the MSC baseball team left for Florida two weeks ago, to kick off its 1986 season, one player was left off the list of travelers—Mike Ashton.

No, Ashton, up for this spring's club baseball and entailing thoughts of being drafted by a major league baseball team.

"I was at practice one day and (MSC Head Coach Kevin) Cooney called me over and said, "We have a problem. We're looking to have a right fielder, first baseman, catcher and designated hitter for the Indians."

A transfer last year from George Mason University in Virginia, the 6-4 leftfielder was initially told when he arrived by the MSC athletic department that he had four semesters of eligibility left to play baseball. What he was not told was that he only had three semesters to use up his eligibility.

An NCAA regulation states that a player loses one semester's eligibility for every season he was not academically ineligible. That would have reduced Ashton to zero.

There would have been no way for him to participate this spring.

"I don't think that very easily could've been avoided," said Ashton, matter-of-factly. "It was an obvious mistake that happened. There was nothing I could do about it. I spent a day and a half in Florida last season, and I never got to play."

Ellis also attributed the successful season as the Toronto Argonauts' star player, but a class act, as well. "He will be missed."

The history major will be going for his degree in education. "Then we'll see where we go from there." Ashton admits that he feels the loss inside, but it's time to make the adjustment as best he can. "It's a complete change of lifestyle. These weren't easy decisions to make."

Baseball is something I've done all my life," said Ashton. "I'm not bitter with anybody."

Winning the championship, Ashton said, "is what I got last year with having a winning record, going to the NCAA Division III regional and winning it."

Ellis wants to show the college administration another solid year of consistency in order to advance.

Money is the bottom line, but the top priority is the team. He was also willing to accept constant changes from position to position. Among his honors last season, Ashton was voted to the All-New Jersey Athletic Conference, the All-Northeastern Regional Tournament, the All-World Series and All-World Series Team.

Ashton's achievements last year were many, and his departure from the team is a loss not only to him but to the team as well. Ashton's hitting prowess made him a valuable asset to the team. He was also willing to accept constant changes from position to position. Among his honors last season, Ashton was voted to the All-New Jersey Athletic Conference, the All-Northeastern Regional Tournament, the All-World Series and All-World Series Team.

MSC baseball, softball teams make big hits in Fla.

Baseball squad record at 8-3; ranked #3 in Division III poll

By Jim Nicosia

The MSC baseball team took a little bit of magic out of its cap in its home opener Wednesday afternoon, the Indians rallied behind a five-run sixth inning to beat Temple, 6-4.

For 5 2/3 innings it looked as if Temple had the Indians' number. The Owls grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first inning, and behind effective pitching of Brian Meltzer, held that lead until the sixth inning. Meltzer hadn't allowed a runner past first base and the Indians sent four batters to the plate in only one of the first five innings.

In the sixth, the Indians staged their comeback. With two outs and nobody on, centerfielder Tim Johnson started things off with a walk. Second baseman Ron Spadaro singled to send Johnson to third, then rightfielder Tim Jones came through with an RBI single to right. Jones' hit knocked Meltzer out of the box. Catcher Lou Bianco greeted Temple reliever Rich Danson by driving in the go-ahead runs when his fly ball to right. Jonesy really picked us up with those hits, said Cooney. The Indians had been kept rather quiet offensively before Jones's sixth-inning RBI opened the floodgates.

MSC starter Anthony Fotii won 7 1/3 innings, allowing two earned runs while walking 5 and scattering five hits. Fotii overcame control problems early in the game to keep the Indians within striking distance. Ray Castellano pitched the final 1 1/3 innings, allowing an unearned run in the ninth on one hit.

We're a big-inning team, said MSC Head Coach Kevin Cooney. It was just a matter of time before we exploded and hit (Meltzer).

"You can't give a team like ours a break, and they made the one error that opened the door."

The Indians got their sixth run in the seventh inning when Jones drove in Johnson for the second time in the game with a single.

"Jonesy really picked us up with those hits," said Cooney. The Indians had been kept rather quiet offensively before Jones's sixth-inning RBI opened the floodgates.

Debbie Emery's no-hitter against Dubuque on March 26th was one of many softball highlights.

Indian softballers open up season with an impressive 11-2 mark
