Workshop gives rape victims courage and support

By Tom Boud

Rape awareness is helping more victims to come forward, according to Essex County Assistant Prosecutor Robert Laurino, who spoke at the Date Rape Prevention Workshop held Tuesday.

Laurino, who directs Sexual Assault Rape Analysis (SARA), the county’s (anti-sexual assault) unit, said that today’s law enforcement agencies are more sensitive to rape.

“Eight hundred and fifty rapes were reported last year in Essex County (about half were solved). Although this represents a small number of all sexual assaults committed, the police and the courts are nonetheless taking the sexual assault problem more seriously than they did 20 or 30 years ago,” Laurino said.

Laurino estimated that only one out of every four rapes are reported.

He said that sexual assault awareness efforts involve rape crisis centers. “In Essex county, there are four rape crisis centers located in Newark, East Orange, at Mountainside Hospital, and at St. Barnabas Hospital in Livingston.”

Referring to crisis treatment, Laurino emphasized that the victim is not forced to press charges. “The purpose of crisis intervention is to help the victim cope with the experience. Since rape is traumatic, we don’t insist that the victim sign a complaint.”

“But at the same time, we encourage prosecution of the offender.” he said.

Laurino said that those who decide to press charges are given help. “We have mock trial sessions available for victims who wish to become familiar with the court room environment before the actual trial.”

In terms of criminal law, Laurino said that the victim does not need to prove resistance to the assailant. “In New Jersey, it’s not necessary to substantiate that the victim resisted the assailant. All she must do is prove that she was forced to have sex.”

Laurino said that the sexual assault conviction rate is 90 percent for plea bargains, in which defendants plead to a lesser charge and 60 percent for regular trials, in which they receive the full charge.

Campus Police Chief Jayne Rich said that sexual assault does not only apply to females. “Anybody can be a rape victim. I’ve seen them from all walks of life. Rape is also not confined to any particular age group,” she said.

Rich stated that every person has a right to his/her body. “A person’s body belongs to that person and to no one else. Nobody has the right to invade your sexuality and that also holds true for sexual harassment,” Rich said.

Rich denied that carrying a handgun will protect the victim. “If you have a gun, you better know how to use it. Too many people carry such weapons illegally without knowing how to handle them.”

“Remember, any weapon you carry can be turned against you.”

Rich stressed that good communication can deter date rape. “When you date, make it clear what your intentions are. This way, your date won’t react on a misinterpretation.”

Rich urged the audience to be firm in light of the threat of sexual assault. “When you travel alone, look tough and walk purposefully. Rapists utilize the fear of the victim and thus are more likely to attack people who look scared or uncertain,” she said.

MSC pride is kept alive in Spring Week ‘86

By Maureen Freeburg

MSC students kept the “pride alive” during Spring Week ’86 held on campus last week.

The Spring Week tradition was revived last year, after an eight year absence. In hopes that it will remain an MSC tradition.

With the SGA class organization taking a great interest in the event, their combined efforts produced a very successful Spring Week overall.

Highlighting the weeks events, College Life Union Board (CLUB) sponsored a Lip Sync, which attracted over 300 people, some of which had to be turned away due to lack of room in the Student Center ballrooms.

Later on in the week, CLUB also sponsored Springmania: which featured musical comedian Marty Bear and turtle races with Screwey Louie.

One of MSC’s Spring Week enthusiasts sports her “balooning spirit” in front of the Student Center Mall.

Residence life asks "What's your problem?"

By Patricia L. Crooks

Students at MSC often have questions about different areas of college life and yet sometimes find themselves without a road to the answers. The Residence Life department has a solution. Len Roberts, director of Bohn Hall, has organized a program which provides a forum for question/answer sessions for the students with various college officials.

The program is called "What's your problem?" Working with Roberts on this project is Clove Road Apartment Manager Mary Ann Grundy, Stone Hall Director Sandra Newhart-Walsh, and Webster Hall Director Beverlee Kuzio. "What's your problem?" takes place in the back room of Blanton Hall cafeteria. Prior to this program there have been three other sessions for the MSC students to participate in.

Bob Baylor, assistant director of financial aid, answered students' questions on April 17 about attaining a degree and an officer's commission. Be all you can be. On April 29, Dr. Jean Armstrong, campus police will answer questions from students. Campus police often get questions about parking, towing, and security. This segment of "What's your problem?" will be from 12 noon until 1 p.m. in the back of Blanton Hall Cafeteria. This is a chance for students to get some answers and additional insight.

Sandra Newhart-Walsh, Director of Stone Hall, feels that this program has been a real success. "It gives the administration the chance to speak with the students in a student surrounding."

Len Roberts also feels that this program is important for the student and he believes it has been successful. "I saw a need for an increase in the understanding between the college administration/faculty and the students. These informal programs are a means to that end."

Also in Residence Life, Valerie Reynolds, a Bohn Hall Resident Assistant has arranged for the viewing and discussion of a videotape of Dr. Charles King's controversial workshop "Impact on Racism" on Monday, May 7, in the Bohn Hall Main Lounge at 7 p.m. This tape is controversial because of its provocation. Anyone who sees this tape will feel the need to discuss it during the scheduled payment available if it is needed. Len Roberts also feels that this program has been a real success. Prof. Hadis to conduct a summer tour course

Dr. Benjamin Hadis, professor of sociology and a native Argentinian, will be conducting a course for 3 credits called Comparative Social Analysis: South America and the United States in the August weather on the beaches of Buenos Aires. Also, in addition to the main tourist attractions Prof. Hadis will lead walking tours of neighborhoods which are not part of the normal tourist’s plan. Here students will be introduced to the phenomena and problems discussed in class on site. Students will be encouraged to enjoy the August weather on the beaches of Copacabana or Ipanema. There will also be disco's, nightclubs, tangoing and shopping in the sophisticated shops of Buenos Aires.

The course runs from August 6 to August 20, with the tour from August 14 to August 28. The cost, excluding tuition, is $1,150, ($272 additional for a single). This price includes round trip airfare, and hotel accommodations for 4 nights in Rio at the Copacabana Excelsior, 1 night in Iguassu at Hotel das Cataratas and 8 nights in Buenos Aires at Hotel Bisonte. All of these hotels rated three stars or above. Also included in the price is buffet breakfast in Brazil and continental breakfast in Argentina, half-day city tours of Rio and Buenos Aires, airport transfers and porter gratuities. There is scheduled payment available if it is needed.

Prof. Hadis feels optimistic about this course and tour and its impact on students. "This course has been very significant for students in their life, and students who have taken this course in the past have found it to be far beyond their expectations."

The course is open to the community on a non-credit basis. For further information on the tour or the course, please contact Dr. Ben Hadis, Department of Sociology, or call 893-7276.

Students' Works Published

Three of Dr. Thomas Millard's students at MSC have recently had their works published. Dr. Millard, who encourages his students to submit their works for publication, was cited in a resolution from the General Assembly of the State of New Jersey for bringing "national recognition to Montclair State College through his excellent teaching methods, which incorporate writing skills into the traditional curriculum." The most recent student writers whose work has been published are Evelyn K. Houston of Succasunna, Angela Martin of Closter and Barbara Spiegel of Rockaway.

Houston's article entitled "Jumping to Conclusions" was published in the April 1986 issue of NJEA Review. Her article evolved out of her own personal experience with chronic illness; systemic lupus erythematosus, which she has had since the age of 16.

Also in the April 1986 issue of NJEA Review is an article by Martin entitled "Reflections of a New Teacher in an Urban Setting." The article discusses her frustrations at the inadequacy of her preparation in teacher training for dealing with inner city children. Martin, a graduate of Fairleigh Dickinson University, is working on her MA degree in student counseling at Montclair State.

Benefits obtained from participating in Co-op

By Janet Hart

Many of the benefits derived from participation in Cooperative Education are obvious. Students receive a salary while earning credits. They are pre-screened for potential long-term employment by their co-op employer. And, even if they are not kept on after graduation, they leave MSC with relevant work experience.

Other benefits are more subtle. Students mature both personally and professionally, and are in a better position to make choices about their career and future educational needs.

Take as an example Latiffah Abdus-Salaam, a graduating Home Economics Major who was recently accepted by three highly competitive American Dietetic Association Approved Dietetic Internship programs.

When asked how she had developed an education/career plan which included post graduate study in therapeutic nutrition, Abdus-Salaam said "Originally, I was interested in physical therapy, but as I became more aware of holistic approaches to health my interests turned more to nutrition."

Abdus-Salaam continued her education outside of the classroom by becoming active in the MSC Student Home Economics Association. She became the Coordinator for the Foods and Nutrition Club in that group, and eventually served as president of the association. Besides holding fund raisers and educational events such as a Holistic Health Day, the association invited guest speakers to talk about the highly diversified offerings within the field of home economics.

"I found out that there were many career paths available in nutrition, marketing, advertising, food service and food science just to name a few. Professors Martha Conklin and Carol Sokolick were particularly helpful in advising us about the requirements in each field, including how to become A.D.A. eligible."

"There is a move towards professional certification of all dieticians so that the public can be protected from incompetent people who pass themselves off as experts. I would suggest to anyone seeking nutritional advise that they check credentials."

When asked about the highly competitive nature of internships, Abdus-Salaam explained that each hospital accepts only small numbers of students. The three programs to which she applied and was accepted last fall were in New York City. "I am accepting the offer from the Bronx Veterans Hospital because after the 17 months I will receive a Masters degree in Clinical Nutrition as well as being A.D.A. eligible. The co-op experiences I have as Food Service Manager at Prospect House in East Orange helped me tremendously. My co-op work supervisor, Ed Schneider gave me a great letter of recommendation which pointed out that, although I had no strictly clinical work experience, I did have the ability to make individual assessments and deal with moderately to severely disturbed clients in a therapeutic environment.

"I had the opportunity to cook and learn the business aspects as well, including ordering, purchasing, specifying the kinds of food I wanted, keeping detailed reports, and working around government commodities and donated goods. Carol Sokolick was the faculty supervisor during my first co-op term. John Specchio supervised the second. Both were extremely helpful and supportive."

Health fee proposal discussed

By Kathy McDonough

At last night's SGA meeting, a proposal for a health fee was discussed by the legislators. A representative from Internal Affairs met with Dr. Jean Armstrong regarding the availability of a full-time doctor at the health center.

During this meeting, the fee, which would be separate from the general service fee, was introduced to cover the cost of a full-time doctor at the health center.

The fee would be imposed on all students, residents and commuters alike. No action was taken because more discussion and information pertaining to the fee is needed.

In other news, a bill was passed by the legislature of the SGA, urging Congress to investigate a matter pertaining to the forceful removal of thousands of Navajo and Hopi Indians from their reservations.

Also at last night's meeting, a bus trip sponsored by Delta Kappa Psi to Shea Stadium on May 9, 1986 was approved. The operations budget of the Council on International and National Affairs (CINA) was also approved.

In search of . . . nutrition on campus

By Allyson Schwartz

Ever hear the saying you are what you eat? If this phrase is true, then half the students at MSC are Big Mac clones. Kean's cafeteria. One McDonald's item bought? A Big Mac.

Wunderlich says if this is the problem then the substitution game should be played. Some alternative vendors are using meats with fillers such as beef with soy for hamburgers, because they're cheaper and easier to cook. Or a student can replace meats with other foods high in nutritive value. "Vegetables are always a fine substitute," Wunderlich comments. "Because the only preparation required is washing and slicing. Cheese, milk, yogurt are even better because they are highest in protein. And they are all cheap!"

If students still do not want to try these, there remains one other alternative—the campus cafeteria. About 80 percent of the students in the survey felt that this was not even a choice! In talking with students some of the following complaints were made: "They don't clean enough." "The meat is gray." "Soups are salted too much." After I responded, "There's too much grease on the grill. There are green rings around the bologna, and nothing tastes real." When asked why he ate there in the first place, he said, "I don't have time to eat anywhere else."

Taking these complaints to Henry Nesbitt, Director of Food Services, The following interview was held:

Q. Students have complained of heavily salted soups. Who decides how foods are salted/spiced?
A. Salting is done according to recipe cards. We've gotten our most complaints on our soups actually. We do not make a salt free soup.
Q. How is food delivered to the college—how is it paid for?
A. All food is bought from local vendors. It is not subsidized by the state.
Q. While students who live on campus pay a fixed rate for their cafeteria meals, students who want to cook at home don't have this option. What advice can you give to students that would like to eat well, but who don't have the option of cooking at home?
A. We do. It is not a profit making organization. The price of an item is calculated according to the labor, the supplies it is served on, such as the paper dishes, and the condiments.
Q. How often are the cold cuts bought?
A. We buy them in loaf form twice a week.
Q. What advice can you give to students that would like to eat well, but who don't have the option of cooking at home?
A. We have a lot of pride, using all the best foods. We use 100 percent beef, no fillers. Our wide selection of foods gives us an advantage in places like McDonald's. We have the deli with cold cuts, tuna, chicken, and egg salad, the hoagie station, an Italian food corner that serves a different pasta dish each day, sweet foods. The salad bar is the most popular. Students can ask for vegetarian plates if they want to. Any special request will be more than happy to try to accommodate those conscious with this diversified selection of foods.

In conclusion, Nesbitt said that surveys are taken to find out what students like and dislike. No matter what it's done, it seems that students will always prefer the tastes of fast foods. There is good news in that area though, fast food chains are becoming more sensitive. "Like Wendy's and Roy Rogers have salad bars. McDonald's has a paper now that tells the calories, protein, vitamins, etc. in a Big Mac and fries or Chicken McNuggets and fries meal. Both White Castle and McDonald's claim to use 100 percent beef with no fillers."

A recent consumer report told fast food fanatics that McDonald's is one of the better choices to eat at, just below Long John Silver's. At the bottom was someone whose name is unmentionable, but initials are BK.

Could it be then, maybe—just maybe—these students at MSC aren't eating as badly as their mothers might think? "They could be lacking iron," says Wunderlich. "Nothing a few vitamins won't take care of."

Students—you can eat foods from the four groups, or chance the cafeteria. But, this author is off to get a Big Mac.

Forty years later, Weiss is still in college

By Maureen Freeburg

"I loved every minute of college," recalls Nathan Weiss, MSC alumnus and current president of Kean College.

"When you're so excited to lose your life in a war, you learn to look at things differently."

Weiss entered MSC in 1942, but that same year he enlisted in the U.S. Army to fight in World War II. He was stationed in the Pacific for three years. After the war, he returned to the MSC and graduated in 1948.

Weiss, president of Kean for 16 years, claims much of his success can be attributed to higher education.

"Without an education, I wouldn't be where I am today," he said. "An education has opened up a world that wouldn't have been possible."

Throughout the years, Weiss has retained fond memories of MSC and what it was like to attend college in the 1940's.

"When we came back from the war we lived in army barracks that were set up on campus. They even had separate barracks for those who were married. They allowed us to name the halls ourselves. We came up with a lot of names, such as "Albatross.""

"That's-Hall."

Throughout his college career, Weiss was very active in student government and athletics. He was an offensive lineman for the football team and has been recognized for his outstanding achievements in both sports. He is in MSC's Athletic Hall of Fame.

His interests aside from sports included two discussion groups called the Forum and The American Forum. Weiss was part of the club for two years, his second year as club president.

"On Friday's, we'd go to Tierney's to talk about current controversial issues and for one dollar we'd eat steak, fries, and all the beer you could drink, not bad huh?"

After graduating from MSC in 1948, Weiss attended Rutgers University and received his Masters in Political Science and his Ph.D. in Government in 1950.

He was appointed to the Kean College Faculty in 1961 and was eventually promoted to professor of Political Science. In 1967 he was elected chairperson of the Department of History, Political Science, and Social Sciences. Weiss was named acting president of Kean College in June of 1969 and appointed to the position on March 17, 1970.

As president, Weiss is very committed to students.

"If there are no students there is no college. They are very concerned with the students' needs. We've recently received a Challenge Grant from the New Jersey $3 million in an effort to promote excellence in higher education and foster competitiveness."

Aside from being president of Kean College, Weiss has had many of his works published. His first in 1950 was entitled Occupied Japan and published in American Yearbook. Most of his published work deals with law and education. His last is the introduction to From A Normal Beginning by Donald R. Rafael, in 1981.

Weiss also takes a lot of pride in maintaining good health. "I was active in college and since then I've tried to keep in shape. Every morning I run the Jogging course we have at the town park; about three miles. I also enjoy swimming and hiking. Keeping fit is a lot of fun and that's why I enjoy it so much," Weiss said.

In Weiss' spare time he enjoys reading historical novels by Kenneth Roberts: one of his favorites: and the works of Faulkner and Hemingway. When asked what he would take to MSC, he chose John for literature. He was a dynamic teacher and an eye opener to the world of literature.

"MSC gave me a great education and I'm grateful for all the doors they've opened for me. My interests were broadened because of the excellent teachers and programs at MSC."
The Soviet's reactor disaster and its possible consequences

Whether the Soviets like to admit it or not, they have a very serious problem on their hands. According to a report in The New York Times, this is their official statement on Monday: "An accident has occurred at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant as one of the reactors was damaged. Measures are being taken to eliminate the consequences of the accident. Aid is being given to those affected. A Government commission has been set up."

This "terse" statement, as it is being called by the press, was made only after a worker at the Swedish Forsmark nuclear power plant set off an alarm Monday morning when his clothing registered unusually high radiation levels. Denmark and Finland also reported high levels of radioactivity in their skies, and Sweden demanded international help. Now we are no denying that this is, as one Soviet diplomat in Finland put it, "the worst (nuclear accident) ever in the world." "Apparent" U.S. spy satellite photographs show the reactor burning uncontrollably, its roof blown off and walls partly caved in. Although Soviet officials report that only two people died in this disaster, LPR quoted a contact in Kiev as saying that 2,000 people are dead.

The radioactive cloud now covering the Soviet Union and the Scandinavian countries could reach the U.S. by the end of the week and "could increase radiation levels slightly." Still, Federal officials urged states to monitor radiation levels daily instead of weekly as a precautionary measure.

The Soviets have sought the advice of the West Germans on how to fight the fire at the plant, yet have not answered offers of U.S. help.

Some questions: Why did the Soviets not warn the world of such a disaster immediately? Why won't they let us help them? Why won't they install containment structures and other such "expensive, redundant safety measures typical of U.S. commercial plants..." According to some U.S. scientists, these "could have alleviated the accident at Chernobyl."

"Perhaps it's a matter of pride that the Soviets thought it could handle such a disaster as this all by themselves. But the point is, in an international crisis, countries have to put aside their differences and work towards solving these problems. And, if an international safety check is done on all nuclear power plants, maybe a disaster like this can be prevented."

Even with all our safety measures, it's stupid to say it could never happen here. Remember Three Mile Island in 1979? Although no one was killed, "a significant meltdown of nuclear fuel did occur." U.S. officials have said health risks from this accident are small.

Yet, if "small" and large accidents, as in the case of Chernobyl, continue to occur, the air will be nothing but radioactive gas.

Keep the dream alive

This past February BSCU celebrated Black History month with hopes of continuing the great dreams of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Dr. King initiated the dream of freedom, but it is up to us--every one of us--to live the dream. Are you living the dream or will you let it die?

It is so important for us to remember the past because without yesterday we would not have today. The past is like a shadow, it will stand as long as the light will shine. However, it seems as though the youth today have forgotten where they came from. We have failed to realize that the struggle is not over.

We live in a world where we are afraid to leave our homes because of the high rate of crime. Daily we witness the destruction of our youth. We must learn to face these problems and deal with them head on because they are not going to go away by themselves. We have built our history from the lessons of slavery, white prohibition and black protest, law and injustice, and now we must fight the struggle against our own weaknesses.

Dr. King believed in a strong foundation of faith and determination. We have the power to build, to tear down, and to rebuild. It is our responsibility to see that nothing more is destroyed and beneficial things are built. Not only the material things, but the hope, the faith, and the strength of the people must be preserved.

The unequivocal strength and determination of our forefathers has brought us to a point of no return. Therefore, we must devote our energies toward a progressive movement of positive change for ourselves and humanity by working together.

Togetherness is our key word in all things we do in life; if we cannot stay together, we cannot exist as a human race and as a race of God. Susan Taylor, the editor of Essence magazine said that, "No miracle is going to just happen and order your life the way you want it to be. But you can create your own good, your own miracles, by making meticulous plans and putting them into action daily. Being committed isn't easy, but in the long run it's easier than falling. Not moving beyond the rhetoric of what you wish to accomplish gives you the blues, while accomplishing your mission makes you feel grand."

Whatever you're dissatisfied with in your life is where you must focus your energy and make the commitments necessary to foster the changes you desire. And the bottom line is that only you can do it.

Don't give up and don't let the dream die for nothing; the great Martin Luther King Jr. exclaimed in his famous speech: "I have a dream," he said. "And when this happens, when we allow freedom to ring, from every village and every hamlet, from every state and every city, we will be able to speed that day when all God's children, black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics, will be able to join hands and sing in the words of the old Negro spiritual: 'Free at last. Thank God Almighty, we are free at last.' Are you living the dream or will you let it die?"

TO THE EDITOR:
On Saturday, April 12, 1986, I was proceeding north on College Avenue in the right lane. Up ahead was a parked car in front of Partridge Hall. Seeing this, I turned on my left blinker and moved into the left lane. Ahead of me, there was another car proceeding in the right lane and the same direction. This vehicle became aware of the parked car in front of Partridge. As I was passing the moving vehicle, it turned to avoid the parked car. When that area more; 3) give citations for parking there; 4) place signs that specifically state that there is to be no parking in this area. Any combination of these steps would greatly assist the students, faculty, staff, and administration in safer travel around campus.

Implementation of solutions to this problem should occur now to avoid further damage to cars and people. Other students, faculty, staff, and administration have experience accidents in this same area or have had near misses.

Dean thanks all carnival helpers

To the editor:
Like the rockets bursting over the campus last Friday evening, Carnival 1986 exploded out of Spring Week to the credit of all associated with MSC.

Congratulations and many thanks to everyone who organized, staffed and participated in the largest and most successful Carnival I’ve ever seen on campus.

Liz Reifinski, General Chairwoman;
Rob Acerra, Pyrotechnics Specialist;
Rich Hoffman; Patty Jones; Martha Losche; Patti McDonald; Chuck Nankivell; Judy Rosenbush; Rose Savino; Wendy Shultz; Gary Takvorin and Lynn Watson are but a few of the many students who worked so hard to make everything happen.

When you’re ready to start, it’s hard to reach the starting line. You’re suspected of you – but you did! Great job!

Citibank & APO

To the editor:
As MSC students we were greatly offended by A.P.O.’s sponsorship of Citibank credit card applications. A.P.O. is a service and we recognize that providing applications for credit cards is a service. However, Citibank supports Apartheid through extending credit to the South African government. Citibank is also the only U.S. bank that still has an office in South Africa.

We feel that neither the fraternities nor this college should support racist South African government by associating with Citibank. We feel A.P.O. has an obligation to inform its cardholders of the above and to stop accepting applications from Citibank.

Clove Road parking-the pits of MSC

To the editor:
There is a never ending problem, right here at the Clove Road apartments. Although every enrolled student at Montclair State College knows there are extreme parking problems on campus, there is one in particular that really must be dealt with.

There are only two accessible parking lots for the over 350 students residing at Clove Road. With 85% of the students owning cars, there is a definite shortage of spaces to accommodate these vehicles. There is available parking in a large parking lot called the pit, and that’s just what it is, a pit. Poor lighting, no steps leading up to the street, and a steep rock hill that leads to the lower lot which itself has a few problems. There are only a few of its problems. It’s an unpaved dirt lot which is mud when it rains and a dangerous sheet of ice when it snows. There is also a huge tree in the middle of the northern end of the lot which I know numerous students have complained about and have nearly hit.

Another problem that stems from this is cars that refuse to park in the pit for good reasons. Park behind other cars in the lower lot and double park in the upper lot making it impossible to drive safely through the lot, or even move your own car at all.

I think this problem should receive some attention and be dealt with when you consider the amount of money we pay to live here.

Exotic dance, costumes make Carnaval '86 a success

By Perry Schwarz

Traditionally, MSC's Memorial Auditorium has been utilized for plays, concerts and lectures. However, Carnaval '86, which opened Thursday, April 26, transformed the auditorium into a cruise ship. Approximately 400 people were transported around the world through a series of cultural dances performed by different groups.

Carnaval '86 was a success. It was a well-organized, well-publicized event. The auditorium never looked better than it did Saturday. The staff was dressed in sailor suits, and the decorations helped create a nautical atmosphere. That was the talk of the crowd, but once the lights dimmed and the show began, the focus of attention for the next three hours was on the stage.

The theme of the evening was "A Fantasy Cruise." The objective was to take the audience around the world through a series of dances. The trip originated from New York and ended in San Francisco. The audience was alive and the performers never gave them a dull moment. The spectacular dance groups which sparked the most interest and motivation in the audience were Ballet Raices, who performed dances from Argentina, and the Roots of Brazil, who fascinated the audience with their musical and athletic talent.

The number "Matambo," performed by Ballet Raices, consisted of four men and women. They utilized props and drums in this dance number and amazed the audience with some of their maneuvers.

The Brazilian group related to the audience through their entire act. The Brazilians were on stage and three other band members meandered their way to the stage while playing their instruments. A solo performance by one of the dancers was stupendous. He juggled, threw, and spun his tambourine. In addition to the male dancers, a few females, who were dressed in exotic outfits, performed some unusual and difficult dance steps.

The groups' costumes were original and eye-catching. Their clothing enhanced the Latin American atmosphere of the dances.

The event concluded when all the dancers from each group filled the stage and people from the audience came on stage to dance and participate.

This was a spectacular event and the weekend college student organization should be commended on putting such an organized, well-publicized and enjoyable evening. The four months of work put into setting up this program showed. Everyone in the audience left with a smile on his or her face. That is the way one is supposed to feel after a cruise - even if it was a fantasy cruise.

MTS updates Moliere classic

The MSC Major Theatre Series concludes its 1985-86 season with Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid," a classic farce with a contemporary twist.

"The Imaginary Invalid" is the story of Argan, a chronically hypochondriac, and the quacks who abuse his health and his purse. This spoof of the medical profession lampoons both doctors and those who are easily fooled by their prescriptions. Part of Argan's illness is created by his desire to marry his daughter, Angelique, to a medical student, although she much prefers her music teacher. In the MTS version, the play has been modernized and the style will be farcical and packed with energy.

The drug addictions of the characters range from coffee to Bloody Mary and their professions run the gamut from medical doctor to punk rocker.

Ramon Delgado is the director, assisted by Thom Sweeney. Set design is by Jim Noone. The cast includes: Kevin Fabian (Argan), Patrick Keenan (Pharmacist), Michele Tauber (Toinette), Nicolette Vajay (Angelica), Christine Yacovelli (Beline), Keith George (Bonnesof), Richard Eigen (Glante), George Abboud (Thomas Diao-Forous), Jillian Armenante (Dr. Diaforous), Emi-Rae Hartman (Louise), Marissa Altamura (Mme. Beralde), Joe Caruso and Geory Lavigne (The Drs. Purgens).

The production runs in Memorial Auditorium Wed. through Sat., May 7-10 at 8 p.m., with a matinee performance on Fri., May 9 at 2:15 p.m. Ticket prices are: Standard, $5; Senior Citizens and MSC Faculty and Alumni, $4; and students with I.D., $2.50. Call 746-9120 for ticket information and reservations.

C.L.U.B. brings laughter to the Rat

Once again, the College Life Union Board is sponsoring a comedy show featuring three professional performers. The show will be on Wed., May 7 at 8 p.m. in the Rathsickel Auditorium. In addition, students are invited to tell their favorite jokes to win cash prizes - first prize, $50; second prize, $25; third, $15. The jokes will be judged by the three featured comedians. The show is free and all ages are welcome.

Headlining the show will be the musical comedy of Keven Sullivan. One of the country's hottest comedy acts, Sullivan's original tunes and song parodies have audiences singing with laughter.

Comedian Andy Scarpati is a popular club and college performer on the East coast. Scarpati recently appeared in his first movie, "Ryder, P.I." due for release this summer. He also hosts his own TV show in Delaware and can be seen in several commercials in the Philadelphia area.

Philadelphia comedian Myke Green is one of the brightest comics on the East coast. Green's clever standup act is popular with colleges and comedy clubs.

"Conversation in the Arts"

The MSC Department of Speech and Theatre will be conducting its annual "Conversation in the Arts" day of professional workshops and panel discussion seminars. The symposium, which takes place on Fri., May 9, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Life Hall, is for high school students seriously interested in a career in the arts.

Seminar sessions will include workshops in make-up, scenic design, acting, speech communication, voice, movement and listening skills. There will also be a professional panel discussion related to career goals in the performing arts. A special feature of the symposium is the opportunity to attend the Major Theatre Series production of Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid."

MSC's lacrosse team suffered a tough loss on Saturday at Panzer Field in overtime 13-12. The Indians played a good game but just came up empty in overtime.

In the last home game for MSC, the Indians' record dropped to 4-8 while Westchester evened their record at 10-3.

Brian Walter and Eddy Sargent both scored for the Indians in a 2-1 lead at the seven minute mark of the first quarter. At 5:43 Nugent used his speed to score an unassisted goal, giving MSC a 3-1 lead. The Golden Rams responded with a charge of their own at the five minute mark to draw closer 3-2. Westchester then scored 30 seconds later to even the score 3-3.

At 4:11, a Walter shot was deflected in front of the net and Peter Franklin pounced on the loose ball to score and put the Indians back on top. Walter scored with 13 seconds remaining to give MSC a 5-3 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

The Rams opened the second quarter on the attack, but the Golden Rams goalie made some great saves to keep MSC at bay. The Indians used a spread offense to score at 10:49 and nine minutes later they surprised the Indians with a quick goal to draw even, 5-5. Both teams played cautiously with the game tied, but the Golden Rams scored at 5:22 to forge a 6-5 lead.

The next few minutes could be called the Tony Petrone and Marty Toomsoo show. First Petrone set up Walter's goal for MSC to tie the score at six, then Toomsoo, in one of his patented drives, ran the length of the field to set up Petrone's goal, giving the Indians the lead 7-6. The lead did not last, though, as with two minutes remaining, Westchester scored to tie the game 7-7.

The Golden Rams scored a quick goal to start the third quarter. Ro刑Francisco scored to knot the game yet again, 8-8. Westchester scored to tie the game 9-9. With goals for MSC to even the score 10-10. The Indians succumbed to the Golden Rams when Westchester scored five minutes into the extra period.

Quality not quantity is an adage MSC women's track coach Miechelle Willis has stressed throughout the spring season. With somewhat less than a full squad, the Indians have still been competitive in every meet this season. This saying was never more apparent than MSC's fifth place finish Saturday at the Stony Brook Invitational.

MSC scored 18 points on the performance of just three athletes, most notably Ellen O'Connor.

O'Connor set a new school record and qualified for the nationals when she triple jumped 36 feet, five-and-a-half inches. She also finished fourth in the long jump with a distance of 16-2.

"This will be her (O'Connor) third appearance as a triple jumper," noted Willis. "She's been the Jersey Athletic Conference triple jump champion the last two years and is already more than a foot ahead of what she was jumping last year at this time."

Sylvia Battista also had a strong performance at Stony Brook. She finished second in the long jump and high jump with distances of 17 feet and 4-10, respectively.

"Sylvia's getting closer to qualifying for the nationals in the long jump," said Willis. "She's just 10 inches away from the mark now."

The Indians' other point scorer was Amy Lefebvre, who finished fourth in the high jump with a jump of 4-4.

The Indians took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on an RBI single by Tim Johnson instantly pumped life into the Indians to within 11-9. Jim Fasano followed Johnson and his at-bat in the eighth told the whole story of the game for MSC.

The Indians took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on an RBI single by Tim Johnson and a Ramapo error. For the next three innings, they seemed to content to sit on that lead. After enduring the nine-run Roadrunner outburst, the worst inning suffered by MSC all year, they faced an uphill battle.

"We really had to get together," said Kevin Cooney. "We played terrible in that inning. We opened the door for them, and we don't usually do that."

The Indian defense committed three errors in the inning and the pitching allowed eight walks.

After the fourth, the Indians regained control and slowly clawed their way back into the game. They tallied a run in the sixth and four in the seventh to close the gap to 9-7, but fell victim to a two-run Ramapo eighth to drop behind, 11-7.

By the time the Indians got to bat in the eighth, the game was over three hours old, and in danger of being called on account of darkness. Trailing by four, the Indians were running out of time.

Ron Spadaro started things off in the eighth by walking with one out. Tim Johnson instantly pumped life into the MSC bench by stroking a two-run home run to left-center to bring the Indians to within 11-9. Fasano fell behind 0-2, fouled off three pitches, then finally earned a walk on four straight balls. Fasano delivered a single to left to send Fasano to third, then Andy Welter smacked a 1-2 pitch to right-center field and brought the Indians to within a run, 11-10.

"I just choked up a little with two strikes and decided to get my bat on the ball," said Welter of the timely hit. Ramapo pitcher Steve Anderson and Welter dueled in a high school baseball together, and Welter admitted to a bit of rivalry between them.

"Even if you go up against each other, there’s definitely something extra there," said the MSC left fielder. "It’s like you weren’t going to throw it at me, and I definitely wasn’t going to try to get caught with the bat on my shoulder."

Welter’s single sent Jones to third, allowing him to score and tie the game on Lou Blanco’s groundout. Pepe Herreró flied out to center to end the inning, but MSC had at least ensured themselves another inning.

Torrid Indians on nine-game win streak

By Kristin Brooks

The MSC baseball team proved its competitive nature while taking sole possession of first place in the New Jersey Athletic Conference Thursday as they thrashed local rival William Paterson, 16-8 at Pittser Field. Prior to last Thursday's game, the Indians were tied with the Pioneers for first place in the Northern Division of the NJAC with two losses apiece.

MSC starter Anthony Foti brought his mound record up to 5-0 as he pitched 6-2/3 innings and limited the Pioneers to one run on three hits while striking out six. Shaun Garrity and Paul Nelson wrapped up the last two innings of the game to help the Indians secure the victory.

Foti, a freshman transfer from St. Leo's College (Florida), gave his teammates all of the credit. "They played great defense for me," he said. "They compliment my pitching very well."

With two outs in the bottom of the third inning, the Indians took a 3-0 lead over the Pioneers. Second baseman Ron Spadaro and centerfielder Tim Johnson, after reaching base on single, scored when Jim Fasano hit a line drive double for a 2-0 lead. That was followed by a Tim Jones triple which scored Fasano.

From that point on, the Pioneers never had time to catch the Indians, as they thrashed local rival William Paterson in 16-8 at Pittser Field. Prior to Monday, the Indians were 16-6 in conference play and 24-9 overall. Their last nine victories were accomplished by a combination of hard-hitting and strong pitching.

In the first game, sophmore Dina DeAquino continued her fine mound duty for the Lady Indians, raising her impressive record to 14 wins against only 6 losses. DeAquino had little trouble with the Lady Pirates, allowing just two singles in 7 innings of work. Her control was excellent, as she walked none and struck out 3. Pirate pitcher Barb Kavanagh also pitched well, allowing MSC just four hits and walking none. Kavanagh ran into trouble in the third inning, however, as MSC pushed across the only run of the contest. Freshman centerfielder Donna Brooks continued her fine hitting with a single up the middle and came around to score on senior standout Debbie Emery's booming double.

Emery and freshman Andrea Peters had two hits apiece for the Indians, while Janet Fordyce and Lisa Flannery had one each for the Pirates.

In the second game, it was Emery's turn to showcase her pitching prowess, as MSC again shutout the Pirates, 2-0. The senior righthander was nearly untouchable as Seton Hall managed only two hits. Emery walked only two and struck out one but was ahead on the count on most of the hitters she faced.

In game two, the MSC bats weren't so silent, as they banged out 11 hits against losing pitcher MaryAnn Lyons. Emery again knocked in the winning run this time with a double to rightfield to drive in Brooks, who had singled to lead off the third inning. Sophomore infielder Stacy Barbosa scored MSC's second run when an errant throw by the Pirates catcher railed over the first baseman's head, allowing Linda Morgenthien to reach second.

The Lady Indians raised their record to 25-8 with the win, while the Pirates fell to 11-22.

What more could anyone ask of the MSC baseball team? Going into their game against Upsala Wednesday, the Indians had won their last nine consecutive games, blasted the New Jersey Athletic Conference's North Division second-placed team William Paterson last week, 16-8, and moved out to a 1-2 NJAC record best in the entire conference.

Two of the Indian's wins came in the form of 9-0 shutouts, as Rutgers-Camden failed to field a team for the scheduled doubleheader at Pittser Field Saturday. It probably would not have made much of a difference if they had. The Indians hadn't lost since April 15th, and few teams have posed a threat to the torrid MSC team since then.

As the Indians climbed two games up on the Pioneers last week, MSC Head Coach Kevin Cooney stated simply, "We're in very good shape in the conference. I'm pleased."

The Indians were on their way to an 11-1 conference's North Division second-place finish with two games to spare. The Pirates were 16-10, while the Lady Indians were 24-9 overall. Their last nine victories were accomplished by a combination of hard-hitting and strong pitching.

Two of the Indian's wins came in the form of 9-0 shutouts, as Rutgers-Camden failed to field a team for the scheduled doubleheader at Pittser Field Saturday. It probably would not have made much of a difference if they had. The Indians hadn't lost since April 15th, and few teams have posed a threat to the torrid MSC team since then.

As the Indians climbed two games up on the Pioneers last week, MSC Head Coach Kevin Cooney stated simply, "We're in very good shape in the conference. I'm pleased."

The Lady Indians were on their way to an 11-1 conference's North Division second-place finish with two games to spare. The Pirates were 16-10, while the Lady Indians were 24-9 overall. Their last nine victories were accomplished by a combination of hard-hitting and strong pitching.

In the first game, Sophmore Dina DeAquino continued her fine mound duty for the Lady Indians, raising her impressive record to 14 wins against only 6 losses. DeAquino had little trouble with the Lady Pirates, allowing just two singles in 7 innings of work. Her control was excellent, as she walked none and struck out 3. Pirate pitcher Barb Kavanagh also pitched well, allowing MSC just four hits and walking none. Kavanagh ran into trouble in the third inning, however, as MSC pushed across the only run of the contest. Freshman centerfielder Donna Brooks continued her fine hitting with a single up the middle and came around to score on senior standout Debbie Emery's booming double.

Emery and freshman Andrea Peters had two hits apiece for the Indians, while Janet Fordyce and Lisa Flannery had one each for the Pirates.

In the second game, it was Emery's turn to showcase her pitching prowess, as MSC again shutout the Pirates, 2-0. The senior righthander was nearly untouchable as Seton Hall managed only two hits. Emery walked only two and struck out one but was ahead on the count on most of the hitters she faced.

In game two, the MSC bats weren't so silent, as they banged out 11 hits against losing pitcher MaryAnn Lyons. Emery again knocked in the winning run this time with a double to rightfield to drive in Brooks, who had singled to lead off the third inning. Sophomore infielder Stacy Barbosa scored MSC's second run when an errant throw by the Pirates catcher railed over the first baseman's head, allowing Linda Morgenthien to reach second.

The Lady Indians raised their record to 25-8 with the win, while the Pirates fell to 11-22.
