Tentative contract agreement is reached

By Tom Boud
A tentative contract agreement between the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) and the state of New Jersey was reached on Sept. 29 at 5:50 am - two hours before MSC's faculty were to strike.

The agreement was reached after 48 hours of continuous negotiations. Among the negotiators present for the AFT were college union president Catherine Becker, Vice President Jose Magdalene, Dr. Judith Shillcock of the biology department, Roland Flynn of the chemistry department, and Howard Wallace of the geography department.

The tentative contract gives the state's 3,000 faculty and non-teaching professionals (NTPs) a 6%, 5%, and 5% increase over the next three years. The entire salary package will be 16.9%.

However, the promotion caps will remain in place. Becker explained the reason for this. "The college presidents throughout the state pressured the faculty into accepting the caps because they want to leave more administrative positions open."

The merit money program will exist under a different line. Instead of being used in the budget as in the state proposed, the merit program will be used as one-time cash award for those professors whose performance justifies an additional sum of money. MSC President Walters retains control of the program.

The two sides came to terms on the issue of office mail search. They concurred that the state's nine colleges will not have the right to seize any professors personal items for examination.

As for academic freedom, the faculty possesses the authority to air any grievances they have. The same privilege pertains to the rest of the professional staff.

The tentative contract is protected from any unilateral changes concern ing personnel issues (job reclassification, salary increase) that formerly fell under the classification of the new defunct civil service structure. The structure for college employees was abolished with the July 9 passage of autonomy.

"The contract is subject to ratification by the state's faculty. No definite vote date has been set by the union. Nevertheless, it is expected to be passed within the next two weeks." Becker said that the contract was fair with the exception of the promotion caps. "The institutional autonomy law is going to require more administrators to manage it and because of this, the administration wasn't to keep more positions for themselves."

Becker discussed two key negotiation problems. "The state does not take the faculty seriously because we're the smallest group of state employees. They think they can push us around. Also, all the college presidents follow the Chancellor's (of the Board of Higher Education) line and that makes it harder to see what they are really thinking about."

Becker advocated a change in the state's attitude. "I wish that these historical patterns could change; that the administration won't have to accept an adversarial attitude towards the faculty when it comes to a strike situation."

Contra activities are brought to light by Costa

By Kirsten Dawn Cipri
Michele Costa, a physical therapist from Connecticut, who lived and worked in Nicaragua since October of 1983, spoke of her experience there last Friday at a lecture.

Three years ago Costa believed the United States media was misinform ing the public about the Nicaraguan civil war and felt the need to get her own perspective on the situation. At the age of 25 she went to live in Nicaragua.

Costa introduced the lecture by giving a brief history of Nicaragua. "For many years Somoza, who owned 25% of the land, never took an interest in the country. Nevertheless, 14,000 people have been killed since the war broke out."

In the town of Esteli, Costa worked closely with Nicaraguan women. She observed that even though women occupied 24 million dollars in 1983 to contras. "It is in the best financial interest of the United States to support the contras. "The latest proposed aid package for the contras has been passed by both houses of congress. It amounts to $100,000,000."

When Costa lived in Nicaragua, her Nicaraguan family asked her to return to the United States and spread the word. "The Nicaraguans just want peace. This can only be achieved if the United States withdraws its support," she concluded.

Michele Costa's lecture was sponsored by the Latin American Student Organization, School of Humanities and Social Sciences and the Women's Center.

Philip Calitre assumes role of police chief

By Tom Boud

Philip Calitre has assumed the role of MSC’s new director of police and security, effective September 2. He replaces former police chief Jayne Rich who retired last May.

Calitre’s appointment was the result of a summer-long effort by a search committee chaired by Nancy Carver of Student Life Services. He was chosen from a group of 170 candidates.

Calitre has 28 1/2 years of experience working as a police officer, in the areas of special investigation (specializing in the use of a polygraph), narcotics and drugs, and alcohol beverage control. He retired with the rank of lieutenant.

Focusing on major priorities, Calitre cited a need for improving police practices and procedures. He said that internal functions such as report filing and administrative duties will be streamlined so that “more personnel could be utilized for priorities other than desk work.”

On the agenda are improved techniques concerning criminal investigation, medical training, and police surveillance methods.

Calitre said that he intends to deal with the current personnel shortage by filling all vacancies as soon as possible. He mentions that plainclothes police will be bolstered at key hours when students are the most vulnerable (late at night).

In relation to parking, Calitre emphasized that cars blocking traffic as well as vehicles with no parking stickers will be towed and that vehicles with no parking stickers will be ticketed. “We will be enforcing the laws in regard to illegal parking and so far, the campus police have been doing a good job.”

He said that more student aides have been added to ticket illegally parked cars (3 new aides have joined the force to make a total of 9 parking attendants). Further elaborating on parking security, Calitre called on the student population to be more cautious with leaving their valuables inside their cars. “I have walked around the lots and I have seen a lot of radios, CB’s, and books in plain view. They also leave their doors unlocked which is careless.”

Calitre advised the students to slow down and not be complacent with their valuables to avoid attracting thieves. “Having these items in open view is a temptation for thieves.”

Calitre stressed that the escort service will be revived. According to Dr. Julia Dutka, department of education, in the past, a minimum of 3 escorts are needed to efficiently operate the service which is available Monday through Thursday until 2a.m. (Thursdays until 3 a.m.).

Campus police officers will handle all escort-related calls until civilian escorts are hired.

Postaski said that $5,000 from the police budget has been allocated for finding escorts and for the first time, escorts will be equipped with whistles, armbands, and flashlights in order to provide an increased sense of security.

Pertaining to public relations, Calitre said that he will speak to the students by meeting with the various campus organizations and thereby gaining their input. “I want to hear what the students have to say and find out about the current situation. At the same time, I want to educate them on crime prevention.”

Looking towards the future, Calitre stated that he will consider more reforms; particularly having civilian dispatchers to handle non-police duty. He declined to reveal anymore details on other future reforms.

“Future campus police reforms are a low priority at this time.”

Calitre concluded by describing his job as “challenging because you must address the problems as they come up.” He said that one of the keys to solving problems is to use a “preventive medicine” approach.

Do you really know Career Services?

What does the name Career Services mean to you? Often students have misconceptions about the office and career planning. Check out your own ideas.

Myth # 1. Career Services is an employment agency.

Not so. Career Services is much more. The office provides a full range of services, including career counseling, a career library, workshops to aid job hunting seminars, and a computerized guidance system called DISCOVER. Employers do contact us, not really. Career Services is much more.

Myth # 2. Books found in our office and mailings you can't begin career planning.

Not so. The first step in the career planning process is developing a self-guiding, a career library, career planning techniques concerning criminal investiga­tion, medical training, and police surveillance methods.

Myth # 3. If you have made a career choice, you don't have to use Career Services until you are ready to graduate.

Even if you have made a career choice, it is best to test it out while you are still at school. You can do this by getting related part-time or summer jobs or speaking to people in the field. We can help you find such a job and identify MSC graduates in specific fields for you to talk to.

Myth # 4. Your major determines your career path.

It is a prevailing myth that your major is intimately linked to the work you will do in the future. This considera­tion is certainly true for accounting, recreation, or food service management, but huge numbers of college graduates use their skills in settings which had no obvious connection to their college majors. Remember you are a whole person, not just a major.

Myth # 5. Career Services only works with seniors.

According to a national survey, 77 percent of today's workforce entered college with knowledge gained by choice. Counselors in the Career Services office want to work with you as soon as you start at MSC and for the rest of your time so that you can number among the 23 percent who have planned and have made a choice. Freshmen, sopho­more, juniors, and seniors are welcome. Myth # 6. I need a GPA of at least 2.4 and must have completed 45 credits to work as a counselor.

There are no guidelines that you must meet to use the Career Services office. You can begin whenever you choose to know what you want to use the services or can pick the ones which meet your needs. But remember, planning ahead puts you ahead.

Affirmative action committee evaluates students problems

By Mary Donnelly

The president’s commission on affirmative action met on Thursday, September 25 for the first time this semester.

The affirmative action committee at MSC is designed to recommend to President Donald Walters any special concerns regarding minorities in the state's higher education system.

The committee is strictly policy-oriented and does not serve in any operational capacity. Walters constructs any operational changes he regards appropriate.

One of the biggest issues reviewed by the committee is the recruitment and retention of minority students at MSC. In previous years, statistics have shown a marked drop in the retention of minorities in the state's higher education system.

The affirmative action committee studies the problems inherent to the system and recommends any policy improvement and changes needed to maintain MSC's equal opportunity and affirmative action program.

Members of the college constituency not only includes black and Hispanic representatives, but also women, Latin American representatives, Chinese and Asian/Pacific Islander organizations and faculty and members of the student body who are minority members (those without voting rights) also participate in committee meetings.

The committee chose two chairpersons, a full-time chairperson and vice chairperson was appointed at the first meeting. These officers serve a one-year term for no more than three consecutive terms. Joe Magdaelen of Career Services, and Or. D. Hay, departmental president, were elected as this year's chairperson and vice chairperson.

The committee serves a purposeful role in the moral commitment inspired by the federal affirmative action program.

Continued strike threats leave students as pawns

Well, we (the students, the faculty, the administration) made it through another state teachers contract dispute. We're safe again for another three years. Still, the question remains, why must we constantly re-live this nasty process? The whole sordid business can be likened to being forced to watch Love Boat repeats. The characters, the situations and problems always remain nearly the same.

Invariably, the common denominator in the whole scenario is the fact that no real bargaining ever gets done until the last week/day/hour. Some professors, those who assign term papers, would like to see these done long before the last week, and many professors, those who assign tests, would like to see these done long before the last week. They simply cannot be put off until the last week. They are supposed to be delivering this education.

As Catherine Becker, MSCs faculty union president has said, the historical pattern of last-minute negotiations has got to change. She contests that the state does not take the teachers seriously. To some extent, the state does show a blatant disrespect for its employees when it fails to sit down and start negotiating until the strike deadline approaches.

The teachers have not been as innocent at they would like us to believe, either. This isolated case might have put the teachers in a better light than the state, but everyone knows that at the end of all these strike threats, the students are the ones who are inconvenienced. The bottom line, is the students are no more than pawns to the teachers that are supposed to be delivering this education.

These people, remember, are the "higher-ups". They are the leaders of this community and this state. Yet, for some reason, they just don't seem to want to get things accomplished. Teachers and administrators.

Yes, teachers. Those same people who assign term papers to their students 8 weeks ahead of time, and constantly insist that if they are going to be done properly, they cannot be put off until the last week. They are sure of that fact.

Yes, this is the administration that sets up registration for the spring semester in the first week of October in order to make things run smoothly.

As students can't be too sure, but maybe they are really trying to tell us, as the adage goes, "do as I do, not as I say."

Co-op student praises the programs’ value

To the editor:
Experience is the best teacher. I proved that to myself when I accepted an internship with The Editorial Services division of The Prudential Insurance Company. Since this was a Co-op position, I was not only working in my major field, but also getting four credits.

My first assignments were very short news items for the Corporate Courier, a newspaper distributed to most New Jersey employees of the company. Within a few weeks I "graduated" to features and news articles and, finally, front page. Soon I was also writing for the magazine and company-wide newspaper. I had other responsibilities too, such as cropping pictures, attending photo shoots and proofreading the paper once, twice and thrice if necessary before it's printed.

An internship also gave me the chance to build something a class can’t– a portfolio, the published proof that I knew how to write articles. Now, when I go for an interview with prospective employers, I don't just say, "I've taken Newswriting, Feature Writing and Editing," but also, "Here are a few stories I have written."

And there are some skills that can not be taught in a classroom. For example, how to sit at my desk in Newark and explain to a freelance photographer in Canada the type of pictures I want to illustrate my story properly.

Working in a career related field helped me clarify my future goals and showed me the many opportunities available for a journalist in the publications field. I am also very fortunate to be working with a staff that doesn't expect me to know everything and is willing to help me learn. So, naturally I didn't hesitate when they asked me to work full-time during the summer and part-time for the fall semester.

Now, as I prepare to enter the job market, I'll have not only a degree, but a portfolio, letters of recommendation, and one year of experience. I advise everyone to do at least one semester of Co-op. It's one of the best programs Montclair has to offer.

MSC student wants to improve the Student Center cafeteria

To the editor:
The issue that I'd like to raise is of great interest to me, and I'm sure that others at MSC share my sentiments. If the mere thought of the Student Center Cafeteria makes you lose your appetite, I can certainly sympathize. In the three years that I've eaten there, the selection of food hasn't changed. Regardless of this the prices continue to rise. As if this mysterious price rise isn't enough, we were greeted with ready-made sandwiches in plastic containers this fall. What's next?

I don't understand why the prices and the quality of the food have to be so far removed from each other. I can't seem to convince myself of any logical reason, but I have come up with an answer. Either the food should be improved or the prices dropped. Both food and money are important to life as a student.

Maybe MSC could try to slightly improve one of these lots for its students eating in the Student Center Cafeteria. I certainly wouldn't object to some improvement in either area. Would you?

Montclarion praised

To the editor:
I am a Montclair State College student who enjoys reading The Montclarion. This newspaper tells a lot about campus life. Like most commuters, I do not know about the activities that go on weekly. The Montclarion provides that information for me. It is also good to know that the paper provides a personal column and a lost and found column. These are very rewarding to students. I suggest more college students to take time to read The Montclarion. The Montclarion staff is doing a good job. Keep up the good work.

What is your opinion on mandatory drug testing at colleges and in the workplace?

Jill Katarsky
Sophomore/health, phys. ed.

"Yes, I would be willing to be tested. If a job involved the safety of other lives it should be mandatory. In other areas, the decision should be left to the employees."

Ed Hernandez
Junior/phys. ed.

"I believe it's fair, and I would abide by it. If you have nothing to hide, you don't see why you should be afraid of taking the test."

Michala Marie Samarya
Senior/health education

"I believe drug testing should be periodic and mandatory in occupations where other lives are dependent upon him or her. In all occupations, I feel drug education should be required as a preventative measure."

Diana Saenz
Senior/economics

"I don't agree with drug testing. It's an invasion of a person's privacy. If drugs don't interfere with a person's performance, it shouldn't have to matter."

September 30, 1986- This bill was introduced as Emergency Legislation during an Emergency Session of the Legislature.
New safety proposals suggested for campus

To the editor:

In the interest of Campus safety, I'd like to make some suggestions for the people in the MSC community. I'd like to bring up the point of constructing stairs connecting the lower parking areas with the parking lot behind the Student Center. There have always been well-worn paths made by the students looking for a direct route from point A to point B. These paths are awkward and dangerous. Safe and convenient access from the parking lots to the buildings should be an administration priority.

Similarly, construction of stairs connecting Clove Rd. with the lower Clove Rd. parking lot is a must before any more accidents occur. Too many people have fallen, slipped, and stumbled down these dangerous paths. How many more need to fail or get hurt before the school decides to take some positive action. Again, safe and convenient access from the parking lots to the buildings should be an administration priority.

Also, the north exit of the Clove Rd. apartments is only designed for a south—Clove Rd. exit. Anyone wanting to exit north on Clove Rd. toward Rt. 3 must make an awkward and dangerous left turn. This problem can be removed with the construction of a split exit onto Clove Rd. Why wait until accidents happen?

Safety to and from campus facilities should not be thought of as an expense, but as a mandate for the well-being of all.

Class One protests Montclarion's treatment

To the editor:

In regard to your "Eye on MSC," page 7 of the September 25, 1986 edition, the Conservation Club, under the direction of Dean Stepnowski and Dean Martin were attempting to relocate the goldfish and carp which were placed in the fountain in front of the library. These goldfish and carp were in a very inhospitable environment and we were moving them to better conditions.

Steve Lavorone, who took the pictures, was asked by the Conservation Club to photograph the event to promote concern for these endangered fish. However, The Montclarion misused these pictures, resulting in an inaccurate depiction of what was going on.

We of the Conservation Club feel that The Montclarion was irresponsible in its journalistic technique. The Conservation Club feels an apology is in order.

The Montclarion's editors' response

The Montclarion wishes to express that our weekly feature, "Eye on MSC," is a photo essay. It is not, nor is it intended to be, a news feature. We apologize if we've offended anyone's sensibilities, but we in no way attempted to make a farce out of The Conservation Club's, Dean Martin and Stepnowski's actions.

The purpose of "Eye on MSC" is to do no more than capture students' activities through the eye of the camera lens.

Murderously funny classic revived on Broadway

By Tony Bavaro

"Arsenic and Old Lace." is currently in a most successful run. On September 20th the cast gave their one-hundredth performance of the current production. Once again, it proves that people do enjoy murder and mayhem, especially when it is mixed with many a good laugh.

Originally produced on stage in 1941, "Arsenic and Old Lace," has achieved the status of an American classic. The 1944 film version, which starred Cary Grant, is also a classic in its own right.

This wildly funny play takes place in the Brewster home in Brooklyn in the 1940's. Here reside the Brewster sisters, two kindly old spinsters, and their nephew Teddy, a Theodore Roosevelt enthusiast who is actually congressman himself. The Brewster sisters are a generous, sweet pair, who do anything that they believe will help someone, including giving them money, feeding them, finding them a place to stay - or killing them. As it turns out, the sisters have developed a rather lethal habit of murdering elderly men in their home by serving them homemade wine laced with poison.

Luring the old men to their home through a real estate ad that lists a room for rent, the two sisters truly believe that what they are doing is their Christian duty - seeing as these lonely old men with no place to go and surely are better off dead.

Midway through the first act, their nephew, Mortimer Brewster, a theatre critic who seems to be unaffected by the bizarre behavior that afflicts his reluctant family, discovers his aunts' little secret, much to his dismay and hysteria. How Mortimer approaches his character in a more refined, worldly manner, seeing as these spinster women are already old enough in their role, though he never loses our credence. It is his ability to make us believe everything that she is doing and, in turn, to make us believe it, that makes her character seem so real. Her performance is thorough delight.

Polly Holliday, well known for her performance as the fast and funny Flo in the popular TV series "Alice," approaches her character in a more low-key style. Gigling under her breath like a shy school girl, her more controlled performance offers a good contrast to that of Miss Stapleson. Together, the two actresses make a deliciously funny pair, warm and witty in their work.

In the role of Mortimer Brewster, Tony Roberts provides the one weak element in the lead cast. The role of Mortimer proves to too burdensome for him, as he tries very hard to be both the harried and hysterical man and the refined, worldly critic. Despite his obvious efforts he never quite makes it.

Confused as to which direction he wants to take his character, his performance detracts from the entire effect of the play. The play feels better when he is off stage; unfortunately, he is on stage throughout much of the show.

Abe Vigoda, as Mortimer's older brother Jonathan, a deranged criminal recently escaped from prison, is good enough in his role, though he never quite realizes the fullness of his character's sinister, menacing potential. As his sidekick, Dr. Einstein, William Hickey, just coming down off of his Academy Award nomination for the film "Prizzi's Honor," nearly steals the show. As Elaine Harper, Mortimer's fiancée, Mary Layne seems too well-spoken and articulate to be credible as a girl who has spent her entire life as a preacher's daughter in Brooklyn.

Aside from the one weak link, that being Tony Roberts, the otherwise strong chain of talent remains an enjoyable time for all through the evening. Director Brian Murray, fresh from his success with the recent revival of Noel Coward's "Hay Fever," is very successful in providing an atmosphere of suspense and excitement.

This Swiss mime group performs a startling and innovative repertoire

By Jennifer Stelevich
Reach inside yourself... escape to a silent world of mystical figures which come alive to entertain and amaze you. "Mummenschanz-The New Show," at the Helen Hayes Theatre, defies reality and introduces new forms of entertainment and visual effects.

"Mummenschanz" is a unique show which appeals to the childlike qualities in everyone. Although the company is derived its name from the German "mummen," meaning game or play, and "schanz," meaning choice, Mummenschanz is per formed by only three people: the same Swiss performers who conceived the show have kept it alive for fifteen years. Andreoss Bossard is a native of Zurich who believes he can communicate better through the use of masks than through spoken words. Bernie Schurch met Bossard while studying mime with Jacques Leopd in Paris. In 1969 they performed their first show. After several modifications, the show became the first Mummenschanz in 1972.

Floriana Frassetto was born in the U.S. and studied dance, acrobatics and pantomime in Rome. While searching for new means of expression she performed their first show, and soon after joined Bassard and Schurch. As a member since 1972, she creates most of the troupe's costumes and masks. As the lights are dimmed in the theatre, two large hands introduce the audience to the world of mystical figures which emerge to join in square and triangular shapes like a jigsaw puzzle. Humor is developed through the trial and error antics of the group and the childlike magic of mime fills the theatre.

Throughout the show, the curious audience members are in awe of the bodily manipulation of mimes disguised as vacuum cleaner hoses, slinky spiral tubes, a giant pancake, and oversized objects used in our everyday lives. In another segment, different shaped pieces of Velcro are placed on the mimes' giant head coverings, and expressions are created through body movement and placement of the objects on their faces. Through this transformation of facial features, the artists are able to develop actions and feelings.

The audience is called upon to free its imagination, to see again through a child's eyes.

"Mummenschanz" is an enjoyable production presenting light stories through shapey costumes and physical gestures. Clad in black to be invisible against the dark walls of the stage, the performers use various accessories to create the illusion of life. Objects become animated characters instead of being lifeless props.

"Mummenschanz" incorporates playful ideas and skilled movements into a fantasy world which invites the audience to escape. The troupe's years of study and development are easily recognized in their unique and creative expression of the art of mime.

Elton John enchants audiences with showmanship

By Jonathan Benjamin
The crowd was black as night as fans waited anxiously for British rock star Elton John to take the stage of Madison Square Garden, September 14. As the lights dimmed, a spotlight flooded an area of the stage, showing off a large all-silver costume which covered him from hat to toe. At the encore, he changed into an all-silver costume which covered him from hat to toe.

Elton John has an established style in his music. As a performer, he also has an established character which is incorporated into his repertoire. He has become famous for his flamboyant stage behavior and extravagant costumes. Before the concert started, I could hear the "regulars" debating which outfit he was going to wear that night. Would it be the Donald Duck outfit? Or something else? When Elton John came out with a large pink Mo hawk on his head, this conveyed to other fans.

Huddle service: a new strength

By Perry Schwarz

"Strengthen yourself to strengthen others and when converted strengthen your brother." - Luke 22:32

Every athlete has their own way of dealing with emotions before a game. Some play loud music, some read, work out, eat, or find an empty corner and think about the game.

At MSC, the football team has a group known as the "huddle service." The huddle service is another way for an athlete to deal with a game situation. This pre-game activity isn’t mandatory for any player. If one wants to join they are welcome to do so.

The huddle service, which lasts 20 minutes, is held an hour before each game and away game. Defensive back coach Terry Porter is responsible for implementing the huddle service at MSC. Porter, who belongs to the National Chapter of the Fellowship for Christian Athletes, was introduced to the huddle service activity when he was with the Chicago Bears in The National Football League. He felt a need for something like this to be initiated for the athletes at MSC.

"Some feel that relaxation occurs through external motivation, but motivation is internal and must come from the individual," Porter said. "I think it’s important to bring the word of God to our players and share it with them. The huddle service is a way for them to do it."

Assistance in the service is provided by Father Art Humphrey and Reverend Mike Durning. They work at MSC's Campus Ministry and they lead the activity before each game. They serve an important role to the football program and are visible among the players.

"A player may encounter a problem during the season and may need someone to talk with," Porter said. "If they can’t find a coach or teammate to discuss the problem they know that Father Art or Reverend Mike are around for them."

Porter stressed that the service is optional and no player is forced to attend. He started the program four years ago and it has been well-received by the players. The number of players increased from two to 25. He said the players are aware that Jesus is alive and there’s a message to be shared with them.

The huddle service is not a motivational, psychological coaching ploy to make the players perform better on the field. The service gives the athlete another alternative to pre-game activity. Adjustments were made to the huddle service to make it available before every game and usually a different speaker is invited.

"This is a way for the players to share in the Word of God and have the opportunity to hear the Word from other athletes, and clergy," Porter said. "After all, the Lord gave them their athletic ability and I believe this should be used for the upbuilding of God’s kingdom."

Pregnancy, drugs, and sexuality are a few topics of importance. Another place the athletes can turn to is the Campus Ministry where Humphrey and Durning spend most of their time. The phone numbers are 893-5264 and 746-2323. They are open to the athletes as well as any other person on campus.

MSC outduels upstart Kean in battle of offenses

By Perry Schwars

The best comparison of Kean College’s NJAC performance against MSC last Saturday would be of a train. The Cougars’ engine was in gear and the tank was filled, but in the end they were derailed by the Indians 31-26 in front of a Kean Homecoming crowd of 2,500.

This was not the same Kean team that MSC had faced in the past. This team was scrappy and intense. Kevin McGuirl, John Mattos hit his first of three extra points and the Cougars had themselves an early 7-0 lead.

The defense has enabled the team to score four goals in a 4-1 win at Sprague Field on Wednesday, falling 2-1 in overtime. The MSC soccer team came on strong first-half performance by Dominic Lucivero, Vinnie Nicosia, Robert Chesney and Daniel Simon, the Indians completely dominated play.

After an MSC fumble, Kean drew first blood and scored on a six-yard pass from Anthony Fischetti to Kevin McGuiir. John Mattos hit his first of three extra points and the Cougars had themselves an early 7-0 lead.

However, the Indians matched blow for blow with the Cougars. They tied the score when MSC quarterback Walter Briggs hit on a 70-yard scoring strike to split and Bryan Scipio on the Cougars back on top, 24-21.

With Mullin and Nicosia providing the defensive punch, and midfielders Chesney and Simon playing well, this team's performance: “We controlled the game, we had bad breakdowns in the defense,” Dan Zakashefski said. “We didn’t have people where they were supposed to be and Kean capitalized on that. Major adjustments were to the passing game and the option run, but most of all we got our intensity back.”

The Indians returned in the third quarter and tied the score. Ed Hernandez scored from the six to cap a seven-play assault. Once again, the Cougars retaliated. They started a drive from their 26 and marched nine plays. Mattos’ 35-yard field goal put the Cougars back on top, 24-21.

MSC maintained its composure and struck back for another score. Scipio, who caught eight passes for 197 yards, scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 49-yard pass with 1:43 left in the third. They added another score to help run the clock down. Colasurdo’s 43-yard field goal ended a 16-play, 85-yard drive that tied the team’s point total at 31. This was a comfortable, but not secure, lead as the Cougars had two chances to score.

They drove to the Indians’ 11 before Jim Dudley intercepted a last-minute pass. The MSC coaches instructed Scipio to score a safety so the time would hopefully expire. However, the Cougars received the ball and had five seconds to score. Fischetti was intercepted to seal MSC’s victory.

“We killed ourselves on many of the drives,” MSC’s Amod Field said. Field caught five passes for 55 yards. “The penalties hurt us, and we lost our composure at times, but we did what we had to do and didn’t give up. This was definitely a learning experience and the same thing won’t happen again.”

The Indians return to Ramapo College next. Kickoff is 8 p.m.

Defense leads booters to 1st victory

Coaches will tell you that playing good defense is the key to a successful season. The MSC soccer team came up with a strong defensive effort against New Jersey Athletic Conference Stockton State and exploded for four goals in a 4-1 win at Sprague Field on Friday.

During the early part of the season, the defense has enabled the team to be competitive in all its games. With two games decided in overtime, the Indians’ rugged brand of defense has been outstanding.

The Indians came up with a near win against Jersey City State last Wednesday, falling 2-1 in overtime. The momentum from the Jersey State game carried over to the Stockton State game as the Indians came out fired-up. Riding strong first-half performances by Dominick Lucivero, Vinnie Nicosia, Robert Chesney and Daniel Simon, the Indians completely dominated play.

After falling behind, 1-0, the Indians got on the scoreboard when Lucivero scored off a Chesney feed at 11:23 of the first half to tie the score 1-1. The goal sparked the Indian players as they took complete control of the game. Lucivero had a chance to score off a great pass from Simon but his shot went just wide.

Drew Mullin played his first game for MSC as a defender in fine fashion by handicapping the Stockton State scoring attack. He and striker Simon were instrumental in dictating the tempo of the game and creating scoring opportunities.

Freshman Raymond Sterling scored his first goal of the season to give MSC a 2-1 lead in the first half. The game could be called the Daniel Simon show, as the midfielder dominated the game by picking apart the defense with precise passing and long solo runs that created problems for the Stockton State defenders.

The Indians kept up the pressure, and Chesney pounced on a ball in traffic to put the game out of reach 3-1. Chesney closed out the scoring when he received a long pass from Simon to feed Scott Logan for the final tally. MSC head coach Tony Attilio on his team’s performance: “We controlled midfield, in soccer, when you control midfield you control the game. The passing was better and we capitalized on the scoring chances we got.”

The coach commented on his scoring draw Mullin from Stockton State defender, “Mullin is a versatile player. He plays solid defense, and he has made the difference with his play.”

Assistant coach Joe Deliafera had words of praise for the Indian defense. “Defense is the key to the whole game,” Deliafera said. “The strength of the team is defense, it never lets us down.”

Attilio said the coaching staff was looking for the right combination to provide a spark to ignite the team. With Mullin and Nicosia providing the defensive punch, and midfielders Chesney and Simon playing well, this lineup is the most explosive.
