Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden stresses the importance of a clean environment at the Conservation Club's Earth Care '87.

By Paul Mampilly

On November 18th, the Conservation Club held "Earth Care '87," a seminar on current environmental issues.

The seminar was opened by assemblywoman Maureen Ogden. It covered a variety of environmental subtopics, such as the wetlands, recycling, etc., through workshops held by environment experts. Among the organizations represented were New Jersey Audubon, New Jersey Environmental Federations, Alcoa Recycling, and the MSC-owned New Jersey School of Conservation. This year's Earth Care was the fourth seminar of its kind conducted by the Conservation Club.

The seminar was attended by over 400 senior high school students from the New York and New Jersey area. According to a spokesman from the Conservation Club, most of these students are in the top ten percent of their class. The seminar is not only an attempt to introduce them to environmental issues, but also to expose MSC as a choice for prospective college students once they graduate from high school.

The Conservation Club tries to promote environmental issues through seminars and lectures. A recycling plant is being organized and inaugurated on November 24th. The Conservation Club's primary goal is to make the public aware of environmental issues. Earth Care is just one of the activities that are being sponsored and conducted by the Conservation Club.

Addressing the seminar, assemblywoman Ogden gave a broad overview of environmental issues of concern. She spoke of the bill now pending in the assembly which incorporates safe-guards in flood control and water quality.

She also explained why there was so much opposition to the bill from developers and real estate agents who claim the bill will deny people of employment opportunities.

Ogden also talked of a "quiet crisis" with regard to the extinction of many species among plants and animals. She stated that more than 1,000 species become extinct every year. This makes for a definite need for environmental protection to preserve the diversity of a species. Preservation was previously possible through the preservation of areas like the wetlands.

The Conservation Club hopes to conduct Earth Care again next year with the help of the Youth Environmental Society with whom this year's event was coordinated.

The club would also like to involve the students on campus. By doing this the Conservation Club will be able to utilize campus support for practical programs. Also, the club would like to educate on campus students as to the dire effects of exploitation of this country's natural resources.

Lecture places focus upon the U.S.S.R.'s 'Refuseniks'

By Chris Kelley

No Hebrews allowed, said the poster for a lecture given by Robert Freunglass, spokesman for the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry. The lecture was sponsored by the Jewish Student Union on Nov. 5 in the Student Center.

The poster referred to the Soviet Union's emigration policies concerning their Jewish population. "Official anti-Semitism is on the rise," said Freunglass.

Freunglass is the executive director of C.A.S.E., Committee for the Absorption of Soviet Emigrees and has been to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe 3 times in the past 4 years. According to statistics cited by Freunglass, 480,000 Jews have applied for emigration. "As of November, the Soviets released only 764 Jews. In 1985 they released 1,139 and in 1984 they released 896. The rest have to wait. Some have been waiting more than 12 years."

Once a person is turned down for emigration, he is known as a "Refusenik." Freunglass said, "To become a Refusenik is to become an outcast."

Not all Refuseniks are Jewish. According to Freunglass many seek to emigrate. Freunglass said, "Those who are not Jewish or ethnic German have even less chance of getting out. These people's original homelands lie within the borders of the USSR. Jews and Germans, however, have the excuse of repatriation to their homelands (Israel and West Germany). If the Soviet Union does decide to release a Refusenik of this type, Soviet officials save face by saying he was not a "true Russian.""

Bomb threat caller nabbed

By Mike Heelan

Recently, a bomb threat caller was apprehended by Campus Police. According to Dean Martin, the individual, who is an MSC student, will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. In the meantime, the student will remain "separated" from the institution.

Also, Dean Martin stressed that implementation of new technology at MSC will increase the chance of catching future bomb scare callers.

In other news, the college administration rejected the moving of the candy store into the book store. As of now, the administration does not feel such a move will financially benefit the college from such a transaction.

At last night's SGA meeting, the legislature approved $600 from the Mass Transit Account to the International Student Organization for a trip to Philadelphia. This trip has been scheduled for the Thanksgiving weekend beginning on Friday, November 28, 1986.

In addition, the SGA approved $325 from the same account to the Political Science Club for a trip to the United Nations in New York City on December 2, 1986.

The tickets for this event will be on sale at the information desk of the Student Center in the near future. Tickets will be $5 each.

Finally, MSC football will go up against Hofstra University in the first round of the playoffs this Saturday on Long Island. The tickets for this event are $6.00 with a valid MSC ID card and will be on sale today between 1:00 p.m. - 3 p.m. on the second floor of the Student Center. This price includes transportation and game admission. The bus will depart from the Student Center Annex at 10:00 a.m.

News Note

Steam shut down

Campus steam will be shut off from Wednesday, Nov. 26 at 8 p.m. until Sunday, Nov. 30 at 4 p.m., to allow for the removal of asbestos materials from the campus boiler plant. This means there will be no heating or hot water for main campus buildings (north of Normal Avenue and east of Clove Road).

Flea Market sees a decade of promising growth

By Lynda Groschel

The Student Center is the main gathering point for recreational and social activities on campus. This large, modern building houses a variety of clubs, organizations, and student services. The Rathskeller offers pizza, the gameroom supplies entertainment and the candy store shelves a variety of snacks. These services are well-known, but there exists another service of equal or greater student value, the Student Center Flea Market.

The Flea Market has a ten year history in the Student Center. Vendors set up tables or wares along the Rathskeller windows. Their space was crowded, but their service was rewarded.

After seven years in the hall, the vendors found a home. In 1983, the unprofitable ping-pong room was sealed off from the gameroom. This glass front room later earned $32,000 in 1985. The low operating costs allow this service to gross more money annually than other Auxiliary Services such as the gameroom and the candy store.

Karen L. Katt, Assistant Manager of Auxiliary Services, said, “The Flea Market makes money, but moreover it provides a valuable service to both students and faculty.” The great prices and convenience are the Flea Market’s real benefits. Much competition exists in the Flea Market, but price competition is to the buyers advantage. Competition allows for the best buys.

The business rivalry between flea market vendors is healthy. The same healthy competition is not allowed between the Flea Market and the Bookstore. Items sold in the Bookstore are not to be sold by the vendors.

Stuffed animals, T-shirts and sweats comprise some of the “forbidden” merchandise. A monopoly on merchandise does not create a favorable atmosphere for the buyer. Wouldn’t it be nice if the Bookstore had some price competition?

Flea Market prices have, in comparison, been found to be true bargains. Gold jewelry was 10 to 50 percent cheaper than department store prices. A MSC merchant sold the same ladies’ belt cheaper than a New York City street vendor. Records, clothing, sunglasses - the list goes on. Daily merchants offer refunds, accept checks and allow try-ons. The vendors and their merchandise may vary, but their quality service remains the same. Monday through Friday, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., the Flea Market offers quality merchandise, low prices and convenient shopping to all who enter.

a smoker’s day of reckoning

Today, November 20, 1986 is the Great American Smokeout. This day has been designated by the American Cancer Society to ask smokers not to light up.

The Great American Smokeout is a day that society has set aside to intercede by asking each individual to refrain from a habit that can shorten his/her life. For 24 hours the American smoker is challenged to break this habit he may have had for years.

The ACS has created the Great American Smokeout not for publicity, not for fundraising, but in genuine effort to increase public awareness. In actuality, if the ACS had its way and all smokers "kicked the habit," they would be very happy to be out of business. This is not a game to be taken lightly but rather an opportunity for smokers to help not only themselves but their friends, family, co-workers, lovers, etc.

The Montclarion, on occasion, runs free public service announcements in our pages on behalf of the ACS. We take pride in the fact that we do participate in helping increase cancer awareness. While many people suggest that these announcements are no more than "fillers," we disagree.

These "free ads" from organizations such as the ACS serve a definite purpose. When you see them in our newspaper, or any other periodical, read them. You might find out that they make an awful lot of sense. These groups are not out for money. They don't say, "Oh well, it's too late now," because it isn't. It's never too late to take a chance on living longer.

Today, take the Great American Smokeout seriously. Even if it is only for just one day, it may be the beginning of the end of a deadly habit. Even if you’ve already smoked a cigarette this morning, don’t say, "Oh well, it’s too late now," because it isn’t. It’s never too late to take a chance on living longer.

Kathlene McDonough
Kathlene McDonough is the Assignment Editor of The Montclarion.
To the Editor:

This letter is being written to correct the unprofessional journalism that was displayed in the October 9th edition of The Montclarion.

First, let us explain that the fraters of Tau Kappa Epsilon (TKE) International Fraternity have been patiently awaiting the writing of this letter for five weeks while we were involved in legal proceedings which may have been complicated had this letter been published earlier.

Secondly, TKE would like to question The Montclarion policy. Since when does The Montclarion feel it appropriate to publicly report on the "off-campus" affairs of MSC students? This section of The Montclarion is the "MSC Police Report," can you please tell your reporters this. Yet, if you continue to report on the summons or tickets that every MSC student gets, TKE would like you to please follow-up on these reports to effectively inform the campus community of the outcome.

Now let's get down to the facts, which it seems campus police incorrectly provided to The Montclarion. The headline: "TKE members arrested by Little Falls Police" is full of unsupported information. First, those individuals which The Montclarion alluded to in their article were not TKE "members." Technically, they had no official affiliation with TKE. Our Associate Membership program had begun two weeks earlier, however our Induction Ceremony was not scheduled until that month. Although they had chosen to partake in this program, they, by no means, had to participate in every activity. To add to the uncertainty, The Montclarion contradicts itself by referring to the four students as "members" in the headlines, then as representatives within the article.

Also, the word "arrested" was used improperly. At no time were the four students ever arrested. Also, at no time did the four students ever "...have to make restitution to N.J. Transit to undo the damage," as Detective SGT Nelson Romaine said.

Despite what was written, a court date had been set at the time the summons was given. The first two court dates were postponed. Finally, on November 4th the four individuals, now fully initiated fraters of TKE, had their charges down-graded to a non-indictable offense and a small fine was paid to the municipality of Little Falls (which the fraternity paid in full).

These are the facts as they have taken place over the past six weeks. We the fraters of Tau Kappa Epsilon, Rho Zeta chapter thank you for the time to explain what really happened.

TIME: 7:30 p.m.

By John Tibbetts

The second play of the 1986-87 Studio Theatre Series, "The Rise and Rise of Daniel Rocket," promises to be a big success. An enthusiastic cast, marvelous direction, an interesting stage set, and a rather unusual script should make this weekend one to look forward to at the Studio Theatre.

The play, which is mainly about a boy who finally pulls together by the second act, which includes the same characters twenty years later. This difference in time is handled very well and makes the play play very interesting to watch. Its two hours seem like ten minutes, so the show is kept at a fast, steady pace.

By far the most impressive aspect of the play is the acting. Joseph Collins, for instance, makes a remarkable job in playing the main character, Daniel Rocket. He not only portrays Daniel as a twelve year old kid and a thirty-two year old adult, but he also has to play a convincing role as a social outcast. When his ability to fly finally makes Daniel famous, the other characters have to adapt to this change. This is extremely well-done by the supporting actors.

Richard (Brian Shnipper), plays Daniel's best friend and finally marries Daniel's secret love, Alice. Nicolette T. Vajtay. Alice loves Daniel, but she isn't willing to give up her son and her marriage to Richard. This ultimately causes the downfall of Daniel. The message is that fame won't make a person happy without love. It is up to the audience to decide how to apply Daniel's philosophy to their lives. The play has a certain touch which leaves the audience with a unique feeling.

The relationships between the other actors also develop well, especially over the twenty-year hiatus. Friendship, love, hate and jealousy are mixed together and produce a highly emotional effect. Even though the plot is somewhat complicated, the play does not lose the audience's attention, due to remarkable performances by each actor.

As mentioned earlier, the characters are portrayed twice, the second time twenty years later. Two of them have picked up the habit of smoking marijuana, which is somewhat disturbing and does not seem to fit in the plot at all. But this is a minor scene and does not make a difference overall.

Finally, credit must be given to the set design. The stage appears to be perfect, and makes this play very interesting to watch. The relationships between the other actors also develop well, especially over the twenty-year hiatus. Friendship, love, hate and jealousy are mixed together and produce a highly emotional effect. Even though the plot is somewhat complicated, the play does not lose the audience's attention, due to remarkable performances by each actor.

As any filmgoer knows, the success of a film is due to a combination of factors, such as an interesting script, good acting, and good direction. Scorsese scores with 'Color of Money'

By Bob Carmody

Before I begin, let us examine the facts. The Color of Money is: (a) a sequel to the 1961 film, The Hustler, (b) a sports movie, (c) a superstar vehicle for Paul Newman and Tom Cruise, (d) the top box office grossing film as I speak, and (e) director Martin Scorsese's 13th film. From these facts, it should be relatively easy to envision what the film will be like, right? Sorry, Charlie.

The film begins as Fast Eddie Felson (Newman), who is now a liquor salesman and a stakehorse who bank-rolls young pool players, runs across Vincent Lauria (Cruise), who obviously has a natural talent for playing 9-ball. Eddie sees a winner in Vince, and convinces him to go to the road to prepare for the Atlantic City championship tournament. The two begin the long journey through small town pool halls, along with Vincent's girlfriend Carmen (Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio).

The main conflict in the film concerns the character's different attitudes toward pool. Eddie plays down for money, while Vincent plays just for fun. Eddie becomes Vincent's tutor in the fine art of hustling, which involves fooling your opponent into thinking you are a lousy player, and then showing your true talent and winning back more than your opening loss.

Vincent's morals. At the start of the road trip, Vince sticks to his righteous guns, and shows his talent bluntly and as often as possible. However, by the end of the film, he is just as corrupted as Eddie himself.

Scorsese describes the theme of the film: "It's about a man who goes on a journey towards self-awareness. It concerns a man who changes his way of living, changes his values. The arena happens to be pool, but it could be anything else. The movie is about a deception, and then a clarity, a per­version and then a purity."

The theme, as Scorsese describes it, is very similar to that of his 1980 film Raging Bull, which concerned a boxer on his way to self-fulfillment. Although perceived as a "boxing" movie, there were only 12 minutes of actual boxing footage in the entire film. Strangely enough, in The Color of Money, pool-playing footage abounds, meticulously photographed by cinematographer Michael Ballhaus.

Overall, The Color of Money is a portrait of two conflicting ideologies. Both Newman and Cruise give powerhouse performances and Scorsese brings the story to life through the use of dynamic camera movement and meticulous direction. As in his previous films, Scorsese uses color as an impressionistic visual tool, which gives the viewer a lasting impression of the pool table as a battlefield.

At the end of the film, with both psyches corrupted, Scorsese makes his point clear: the color of money is blood red.
Jersey, especially at MSC. Joey, unlike the rapid-fire succession of numbers pleased the audience with his opening presented The Ramones in the Memorial Auditorium. Their blaring music and rebel black, some with chains and spiked hair, the crowd created a mood equal to the band's hard-rocking performance.

Songs such as "Rock and Roll High School," "I Wanna Be Sedated," and "Love Kitts" generated a large response of cheering and dancing in the aisles. Their "return to rock" sound was evident in songs from their previous LPs, as well as those performed from their new album, soon to be released.

At the end of their regular series of songs, Joey lifted a sign displaying the phrase "Gabba Gabba Hey!" The audience joined in a chant and shouted for more. The Ramone's upbeat tempo was maintained as they concluded with encore songs "Chinese Rocks," "Do You Wanna Dance?" and "California Sun."

The Security Department of Class 1 Concerts, under the management of Geoff Gibbs, deserves special recognition. With anticipated alcohol smuggling and a sold-out crowd, security demanded keen eyes and much tolerance. The audience, except for slam-dancing, offered few problems. The overly eager fans did pounce onto the stage but were quickly apprehended by the stage security.

Executive Producer of Class 1 Concerts, Kathi Brennan, remarked, "I think the concert went excellently. The crowd looked wild but was mellow for a Ramones concert." She said she was very proud of her organization, and felt that the concert was professionally done.

Future plans for Concerts include the "Rock-n-Roll Time Tunnel," a film spanning the history of rock from Chuck Berry to Elvis Costello, to be shown early in December. Also in December the club is sponsoring a band to play in the Rat, name to be released at a later date. Plans for a concert in February are under way, including three bands playing to benefit two families with cancer. The groups to perform include Third Wish, a pop-rock band with a female lead singer, Sir Thomas, a Metal band, and the Young Americans.
Whole Theatre breathes life into ‘The Sea Gull’

By Gary Ruff

“The Sea Gull” is a moving drama which depicts the struggle of youth to realize its ideals and ambitions. It brilliantly reveals the irony of the human condition, the disparity between fact and imagination which makes our lives at once comic and tragic.

Although playwright Anton Chekhov’s depth, range and sensitivity are virtually unmatched in modern theatre, “The Sea Gull” depends on the vision of a talented director and cast to bring it to life. This perfect artistic partnership is evident in the current Whole Theatre production of Chekhov’s classic.

Directed by Suzanne Shepherd, who co-directed “Master Harold and the Boys” with writer Athol Fugard, the Whole Theatre cast brings together thirteen excellent performers. The play, nearly two and a half hours long, is sustained by the extraordinary performance of the show. Trepleff’s emotional state swings from defiant to melancholic to desperate, yet Germann’s mastery of context lends the character a degree of consistency. His acting style is bold, impetuous, and full of vitality.

Whole Theatre Artistic Director Olympia Dukakis is also excellent as Madame Arcadina, Constantine’s mother. A famous actress, Madame Arcadina in a scene from the Whole Theatre production of “The Sea Gull.”

Nina’s shallowness is forgivable because one sympathizes with her yearning to escape the limitations of provincial life. By the end of the play, Robins has compellingly transformed this innocent young girl into a confused and bitter outcast.

The other side of love in “The Sea Gull” involves Masha (Alma Cuervo), whose black-clad personification of melancholy is tempered by her remarkable wit and intelligence. Too timid to declare her love to Constantine, she settles for marriage to the schoolmaster Semyon Medvedenko, a diminutive twit who adds humor and contrast to Masha’s morose character.

Memorable performances are also given by Joseph Warren as the elderly, good-natured Peter Nicolayevitch Sorin, and Mitchell Jason in the role of the tiresome steward, Ilya Shamreyeff. Apollo Dukakis is Dorn, the doctor who tries to serve as a mediator in many of the drama’s conflicts. Dukakis plays with an appropriate air of detachment, yet Dorn’s potential as a character seems not to be fully realized.

In a cast of this size, it is important that each character is given a highly individualized personality. This is the strength of Whole Theatre’s “The Sea Gull,” to the credit of both the actors and director Suzanne Shepherd.

“The Sea Gull” is a complex, profound and powerful drama, with an ingeniously intertwined plot and elements of both comedy and tragedy. The Whole Theatre production is smooth and professional, capturing the many facets of Chekhov’s play with outstanding expertise.

WHEN IS THE RIGHT TIME TO CALL YOUR GRANDPARENTS?

a) Five minutes into "The Lawrence Welk Show"

b) About a week before your birthday.

c) When you just want to tell them you miss them, and that you ate the last of Grandma's chocolate-chip cookies this morning.

There's nothing grandparents like better than a call from a grandchild in college. But if you do accidentally happen to interrupt Lawrence, you ought to have something worth telling them.

For example, you could mention that you called using
AT&T Long Distance Service because you can depend on AT&T's high quality service and exceptional value.

And then you can tell them that AT&T gives you immediate credit if you dial a wrong number.
And that you can count on AT&T for clear long distance connections.

Finally, of course, you should quickly reassure them that you're eating enough, then let them hurry
back to the TV to catch the rest of the

MSC 6 - Pace 5

The superstition that bad things happen in threes went out the window Saturday night in Monsey, New York. The MSC hockey team, 0-2 at the time, might have been a little nervous coming up against Pace University, 2-1, but they managed to shake it off. With some genuine team effort, the Indians did alright for themselves.

It was a night that saw Mike Ashton score his first hat trick of the season, Frank Alesso account for three points on two goals and an assist, and Jon Capristo slip one more goal int the net for insurance. This added up to a 6-3 victory for the MSC hockey team. 0-2 at the start of the game, with his contribution of 31 saves, the story might have been a little nervous time, might have been a little nervous for insurance. This added up to a 6-3 victory for the MSC hockey team.

The tight-checking game saw many big hits and numerous injuries on both sides. Among the injured players was Steve Ruggerio. At the start of the second period Ruggerio collided with Pace's Mark Herman in front of the MSC bench. Ruggerio suffered a serious knee injury, but the extent of the severity hasn't been determined yet.

MSC 4 - Wagner 4

Sunday night, MSC faced its chief playoff competition of last year, Wagner College, and the intensity of emotions at Montclair Arena were running high. The physical aggressiveness of both teams kept most of the spectators on the edges of their seats as they watched the fierce rivalry battle to a 4-4 tie.

Wagner came into the game with a 4-2 record while the Indians were 1-2. It looked like the Staten Islanders had come out here to hold a hockey clinic for MSC's benefit. They might have, considering the score was 4-1 in their favor by the middle of the second period.

The third period began and the Indians decided to change the script. Ashton managed a breakaway, took the puck down to the Wagner net, faked the goalie and tipped the puck in at 16:39. With the goal, the already-fierce physical game became even more so. Alesso scored with 1:26 remaining to bring the score to within a goal. Alesso scored with 1:26 remaining to bring the score to within a goal. The Indians had recovered the momentum. Alesso scored with 1:26 remaining to bring the score to within a goal. The Cooperative Education program here at MSC is often regarded as "The Competitive Edge," the 1986 women's varsity tennis season can be referred to as the "competitive experience." Although the Lady Indians did not finish with an outstanding record or a first place finish in the league, the season still deserves to be labeled a successful one.

"We had a few losses that could easily have gone our way, but they were tough matches. I am confident, though, that we will be able to turn things around this year," said Pat Lassen, Indian head coach. Lassen best described the season as an essential rebuilding one.

Trenton State College presented the toughest competition, however, Monmouth and Rider College were tough matches as well and the Lady Indians gave it their best shot-fighting until the end.

On Oct. 7, MSC lost to Monmouth by just one point. A fine performance was exhibited by junior captain Lisa Montenegro in a comeback match at first singles, winning in three sets, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4. Senior Cindy Masaluso easily took the two sets in the second singles position, beating her competitor, 6-1, 6-2. Junior Vicki Corso lost a tough three-setter in the third singles position, 7-5, 2-6, 4-6.

On October 10-12, MSC was finally represented at Rutgers, New Brunswick in the N.J.A.I.A.W. State Tournament. Montenegro finished seventh in the competition in the first singles position. Masaluso finished fourth in the state by upsetting the number two and three players in the first round of the second singles competition and fourth singles player Prattorito captured a doubles title with her partner.

The third doubles team of freshman Lisa Rieck and sophomore Nancy Gavura finished sixth in the state. Montenegro faced another tough competitor, Rider College on Oct. 21 without two key starting players. Montenegro successfully dominated the first singles position with a 6-7, 6-1, 6-0. Both Corso and senior Joan Prattorito were moved up in the line-up and demonstrated fine play and determination.

"Although we lost to Monmouth and Rider, I wasn't disappointed. I was impressed with the overall competitively, development skills and, most importantly, improve. Junior Vicki Corso moved up considerably in the lineup from last year's sixth singles position to this year's third singles position. Corso definitely gained competitive experience and had a successful season despite some injuries which prevented obstacles from the season. Along with junior Lyn Kaseta, sophomore Lisa Zisa and sophomore Nancy Gavura represent the talent and potential for next season."

"I feel we had a very successful season in many ways. Not only did some of us finish with winning records but every team member pulled together to help each other achieve our set goals. We were all very supportive of each other throughout the entire season. This surely is a sign of a winning team," said Captain Lisa Montenegro.

Montenegro also led the Lady Indians at the top of the lineup in the first singles position, finishing her successful season with an impressive record of 7-7. This .500 record is the best 1st singles record within the past five years at MSC. Montenegro also teamed up with 2nd singles player Cindy Masaluso to form the winning combination in doubles with an outstanding record of 9-5. As far as individual record is concerned, Masaluso, a second singles player, last year with the Indians in style. With an impressive season record of 9-3, she had the best record on the team.

The third doubles team of freshmen Lisa Rieck and sophomore Nancy Gavura finished sixth in the state. Montenegro faced another tough competitor, Rider College on Oct. 21 without two key starting players. Montenegro successfully dominated the first singles position with a 6-7, 6-1, 6-0. The MSC golf team recently finished up its fall season and though the team didn't place, it was highlighted by individual performances. As a team, the golfers finished third at the Rider College Invitational, and individually, Michael O'Gorman finished ninth at the Rutgers Fall Classic. Lack of team depth kept the squad from placing in the top four tournaments played during the season.

Number one player and co-captain Michael O'Gorman played exceptionally well. O'Gorman started the season right by winning the Rider tournament on September 25. His round of 71, which included five birdies, bested the field by two strokes. The following week, in less than ideal conditions, he shot 74 to finish in a tie for fourth at the South Jersey Intercollegiate Tournament.

After narrowly missing an ECAC berth by two strokes, O'Gorman made an outstanding showing at the Rutgers Fall Classic. After an opening round 75, the senior golfer put rounds of 76 and 76 together. His final round 76, which included two birdies, was an extremely cold and rainy day, vaulted him into a tie for third with Darrell Farleigh of Ramapo, one stroke behind the winner, O'Gorman had a 74.6 stroke average for the fall. The team will look to the senior for more good scores and leadership in the spring.

Two other players, Ronobio Datta and Norm Kopack, also played well during the season. Datta, a sophomore from Calcutta, India, shot 73 to finish second at the Rider tournament. A round of 74 at Kings Grant landed Datta a tie for fourth. Although he hit a mild slump at the end of the season, Datta finished with an overall average of 80.3.

Kopack had a season average of 80.3. The senior co-captain had three rounds under 80, including a career-best 75 in the second round at Rutgers. His finishing score of 239 earned him a top twenty (out of 70) finish in the Rutgers tourney.

Both Datta and Kopack will be counted on to provide solid support as the number two and three players in the spring. Rounding out the fall team were Dennis Brancato and Gerald Carter, who both showed very consistent improvement in the Fall. Both players will be valuable members of the team for the duration of the year.

Although the team had some success in the fall, the biggest problem was lack of depth. With the addition of one or two good players, the team could contend for the NJ.SAC, the MGA interleague, and a possible NCAA berth. For the squad to be considered for post season play, they must make a consistently strong showing in matches and tournaments.

Anyone who wishes to try out for The golf team is welcome, and urged to call either coach Peter Famiano at 731-0833 or 325-2125, or team co-captain Norm Kopack at 444-1563. Everyone who tries out will be considered.
Playoffs, here we come!

By Perry Schwarz

What was planned to be a high-scoring game resulted in a one-sided matchup Saturday, as MSC combined an explosive offensive aerial barrage with an aggressive defense to run over Glassboro State College, 42-14. The victory wrapped over Glassboro State College, an aggressive defense to run offensive aerial barrage with Long Island to play Hofstra and propelled them into the seventh consecutive New Jersey Athletic Conference NCAA Division III playoffs.

The Indians (9-1) will travel to Long Island to play Hofstra College (9-1) for the first round of the Eastern Regional Championship. Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m.

"We have shown our explosiveness week after week and now that we are in the playoffs, our offensive unit must keep on their guards," lineman Mike Kostecki said. "Last year we were a little young when in this situation, but it was a learning experience. Our guys are going into the playoffs full force and we want a rematch with Ithaca," Ithaca defeated MSC 50-28 in last year's playoff.

MSC opened the scoring with a 30-yard run by Leroy Horn in the opening quarter. Tony Caulsorso kicked his first of six extra points. That was the only score in the first, but the Indians would add 35 additional points in the second and third.

Ed Chavis scored on an 87-yard punt return with 12:18 left in the half. He also caught a 49-yard pass in the second quarter from Walter Briggs who threw for 326 yards on the day. Chavis grab capped a four-play, 69-yard drive. The original pass was intended for tight end Tony Sweet, but the ball went through his hands and Chavis scooped it up.

"I was running a post pattern and when I made my break to the post, I saw the ball go to Tony," Chavis (five catches, 194 yards) said. "He tipped it and I ran with it from there."

The only score Glassboro (5-5) managed was a two-yard pass with 51 seconds in the half. The drive covered 49 yards on ten plays.

"Our defense played another great game," Briggs said. "They stopped the Prof's passing game, flushed them out in four plays and then our offense took over."

The Indians accumulated 435 yards offensively. Every score in the third was a result of a pass. The senior quarterback locked with Bryan Scipio for a 62-yard strike. Briggs also hit Chavis from 53 yards not on the first play after a Prof punt. The final score came on a 16-yard reception by Ed Pedicine.

"Our strategy was to score points as soon as possible, continue to put them on the board and keep passing," Briggs said.

It is now playoff time and the Indians will continue their assault for a national title. They are four games away from doing that. Their first test is this week against Hofstra. The game will be at 1:30 p.m. and WMSC-FM will air the game live from Long Island.

"Our defense played another great game," Briggs said. "They stopped the Prof's passing game, flushed them out in four plays and then our offense took over."

A new twist: random drug testing

By Perry Schwarz

The MSC football team is in the same exact situation as they were a year ago - with two exceptions.

Their first playoff opponent is Hofstra College instead of Western Connecticut and the second is that drug testing will take place at some point in the playoffs.

The legislation was passed in January, 1986, by college athletic directors. In the past the drug testing idea was presented, but voted down.

Drug testing can occur at any time within the playoffs and any player can be subjected to it. The NCAA will test a total of 24 players at random. No one will know when or how many times the testing can occur. Officials can test from the first round to the championship game or every round before that. The players are tested at the end of a game.

For example, if the Indians defeat Hofstra, an NCAA official can pull players from both teams. So 22 players from MSC could be picked and two from the other school or all players can come from one team. The number can vary and the player tested doesn't have to be a starter.

If an athlete refuses to consent, then he will become ineligible for a minimum of 90 days to play an NCAA sport. If the person tests positive to illegal drugs, then the same penalty will be assessed.

The first idea people imagine when they hear the words "Drug testing" is cocaine. That is one illegal drug. However there are prescribed or over-the-counter drugs illegal in the NCAA playoffs. The NCAA committee is made up with three doctors and seven officials. The Drug Testing Commission devised a 64-page book that lists the illegal drugs. The drugs could range from cocaine to cough syrup. If an athlete has a prescribed drug, but it falls under the illegal drug list, then the athlete must change the prescription.

The NCAA rules are strict, but will limit the use of any type drug (legal or illegal) to be used. Anyone wearing a uniform is subject to this test and must be aware of the implications.
