explored by MSC students

By Chris Kelley
Correspondent

Vernon Walters, U.N. Ambassador, addressed a group of 33 MSC students and faculty members during an excursion to the United Nations complex in New York City.

This trip, which took place on Tuesday, December 2, was sponsored by the Political Science Club and Dr. Edward Johnson of the political science department. The students and faculty literally "left the country" when they crossed the international border to enter the United Nations. The U.N. is sited on land donated by the U.S. and is designated an international territory.

The trip's highlight was a presentation by Vernon Walters, the American Ambassador to the U.N., to the MSC students and faculty in attendance. After briefing the students about the functions of the U.N., Walters moved into the many economic and political problems the U.N. is facing.

In America's eyes, some of the U.N.'s problems are the three-world block, which tends to be anti-American, the bloated bureaucracy, and the out of proportion control over U.N. monies by poorer countries, whose contributions total less than 3% of the U.N.'s budget. The problems are many and the answers won't be easy. As Walters stated, "We need the courage to swim upstream."

And Walters admitted that "the language spoken at the United Nations is not the language of democracy" this because "only 45 of the 159 member countries are democracies." Despite these faults, however, he feels it is important for the United Nations to remain in the U.S. and for America to remain active in the organization.

Walters, who is also this month's president of the Security Council (the body of 15 nations who maintain world peace) stressed that the U.N. is a forum for the greater part of mankind. "Countries who won't listen to the United States might listen to the United Nations" he said.

Careers for minorities spotlighted for students

By Paul Mamphilly
Correspondent

There are advantages and disadvantages in being a minority in the workplace; learn how to exploit the advantages and adjust to the disadvantages. This was the underlying theme for the Minority Career Conference that was held in the Student Center ballrooms on Dec. 3.

The conference, which consisted of two workshops and an employer information session, was well attended. The first workshop focused on the "Game Plan For Success: Making Your Minority Status Work For You" and the second workshop dealt with "Special Issues For Minorities In The Workplace."

The evening culminated with a dinner for employers, students, alumni, MSC staff and faculty. After dinner, Marien Shephard, Director of Administration Personal at AT&T Bell Laboratories spoke about "What Corporations Seek When They Recruit At Colleges."

The Minority Career Conference was organized, conducted and sponsored by the Black Alumni and Hispanic Alumni Committees of the MSC Alumni Association, MSC's Career Services, the Latin American Student Organization (LASO) and the Black Students Cooperative Union (BSCU).

The speakers spoke mainly from personal experience, describing the conditions in the workplace when they started out and also giving a personal view on work conditions for minorities today.

The most important event of the conference was the "Employer Information Exchange" where the students and alumni participating in the conference could talk informally to the employer representatives and submit their resumes. Among the long list of employers attending the conference were AT&T, JC Penney, Xerox, Lockheed Datacom, NCR Corporation and Prudential. While some of the organizations looked for specific majors, many employers were willing to look at all majors. Part-time summer jobs, full time jobs, advanced jobs and internship programs were offered for those candidates who were successful.

More than 300 high school students throughout New Jersey and New York converged on the MSC campus recently to attend the annual Earth Care Day program sponsored each year by the Conservation Club. The event is intended to heighten awareness among the state's young people about the importance of sound ecological policies and about things they can do in their local communities to preserve the natural environment. On hand for the event were, left to right, Marc Seelinger, president of the Conservation Club, Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden of Millburn and faculty advisor to the Conservation Club, Dr. John Kirk, director of MSC's New Jersey School of Conservation located in Branchville.

At the SGA meeting convened last night, the legislature approved the funds needed by the Montclarion to purchase new typesetting equipment.

SGA NEWS

According to Oyde Blackman, senior sales representative of Varityper, the new typesetters will replace the "obsolete" machinery in use. The present machinery is "insufficient," and therefore repairs are not cost effective.

Jim Nicosia, Editor in Chief of the Montclarion said, "This new equipment is going to be a real benefit to us, and the college as a whole. I would especially like to thank Mark Skrabonja and Oren Zeve for all the hours of research they put into this project. Nothing could have been possible without their help; especially Mark who made a $67,000 purchase a very simple one financially." The SGA approved the bill unanimously.

In other news, Mike Rodak, student representative to the Board of Trustees, gave a statistical report concerning faculty employment status. As of Fall 1985, the faculty at MSC consisted of 455 full-time members, 309 adjuncts and visiting specialists, and 83 graduate assistants. However, these figures are misleading to students because not all the full time teachers teach a full course load. Some of the full time teachers perform administrative duties and other various activities. In their absence, adjuncts are forced to fill in the gap.

In addition, Mike Rodak discussed the signing of a $50 million dollar water bill by President Ronald Reagan. The purpose of this bill is to buy out homes built directly under MSC. According to Mark Brancato, SGA president, the Who's Who applications are due in the SGA office by Dec. 19. Also, a reminder was given in regard to the free phone call service made available by the SGA.

Free phone calls can be made to the 609, 212, 718, 914, 703, 301, and 202 area codes. The phones are located in the multipurpose room, lower 609, 212, 718, 215, 914, 703, 301, and 202 area codes. The phones are located in the multipurpose room, lower level of the Student Center. Each call is limited to ten minutes per person.

The SGA approved $2,500 for the Ski Team Club. All money will be put toward practice, races and other activities. This appropriation makes up 12.5 percent of the club's total expenses.

Finally, a Class II Charter was granted to the Marketing Club for the academic years 1986-88.

EXCITEMENT IS FOR THE BIRDS.

Soar above the treetops. Skim over rivers. Fly through the night. It's all in a day's work to an Army helicopter pilot.

With our Warrant Officer Flight Training Program, you'll learn all it takes to keep 2,000 pounds of high-tech excitement in the air. To qualify, you'll need a high school diploma, and preferably two or more years of college, in addition to completing Army basic training.

When you finish the flight training, you'll be an Army pilot. And you thought only birds got to wear wings. See your local Army Recruiter to find out more.

Co-op aids students in future career planning

By Joanne O'Connor

For the past six months, I've been working in the Personnel Department of Automatic Data Processing in Clifton, and learning a lot about what I really want and don't want to do with my future. Although the picture is becoming more focused for me now, things weren't always so clear.

My first interest was in the field of counseling, with my original focus being in one-on-one counseling, and later shifting to group therapy. I took several courses in which I actively counseled individuals and facilitated groups, while at the same time learning the course material.

Although I thoroughly enjoyed the courses and the personal contact, I found myself becoming too emotionally involved, and consequently bring others problems home with me. It was then that I decided that this wasn't right for me.

Cooperative Education is a program that enables students to earn credits and money while gaining experience in their chosen field. With their help, I was better able to determine that I might want to work in the corporate setting, specifically in the Personnel Department.

After several interviews, I finally obtained a Co-op in the Personnel Department of Automatic Data Processing. As with all of my other career choices, I entered this position extremely excited, enthusiastic, and loaded with a lot of preconceived ideas of what it was going to be like. After three months, I became discouraged, and I was pushing more paper than dealing with people; statistical reports, Affirmative Action Plan, Turnover Analysis, and other small projects. Needless to say, my eyes were opened to the real work involved in a Personnel Department.

Near the end of my stay there, I was changed to the Training Department, which is a division of Personnel. There I observed and became involved in the conducting of training courses offered to the employees. I am happy to say that it was when doing this job that I finally felt happy and content, and realized that here I could not only use my skills but also teach them to others.

For any of you who may be experiencing many of the same feelings of ambivalence that I did, I urge you to utilize the benefits of the Cooperative Education program. It was a tremendous help to me in determining what I really wanted to do when I graduated college.

Trials, tribulations, and the semester's end blues

It's the end of another semester and anyone who has been in college knows what that means. It means having two days left to read that 800-page novel for English class, having a dozen computer programs to run and all the terminals are taken. It means your car breaks down and you miss the class you just have to attend because the professor will review for the final exam and you haven't had time to show up for class lately. It means selling your books back early because the only money you have left is the 25 cents you paid for your book.

It means your professor has moved up the final exam date and the 20-page term paper you never started is due tomorrow. It means your roommate will review for the final exam and you haven't had any time and you haven't had to study.

The end of the semester is often equally troublesome for professors. They must read all those horrendous term papers which usually consist of a five-page introduction, five-page conclusion, and a bunch of modified modifiers and dangling participles in between. They must also decide whether or not to pass the student who only showed up for class five times during the semester.

In a week and a half, however, it will all be over and many of us will be in the company of our friends and family. We can attend all those parties without feeling guilty and enjoy all those Christmas or Chanukah gifts. Most of all, we can take some time off and relax. But while we are, we should also take some time and reflect on the past semester. We should look at what we have done and accomplish, how we've treated our roommates, professors, friends, and family.

We should look ahead to the spring and try to avoid our past mistakes. We at The Montclarion will do the same and once again try to be the best we can be next semester. We hope we've served the college community well this semester and we will strive to do so in the future. Have a happy and safe holiday! See you in January!

Once again, Hollywood has had a less than productive year, and it’s the critic’s job to comment on their bad fortune. This year, in fact, was worse than most. I couldn’t even think of ten films that I would recommend, so I settled on five.

1. Hannah and Her Sisters: Woody Allen’s masterpiece
2. Witness: Robert Redford
3. Kiss of the Spider Woman: William Hurt
4. The Man Who Fell to Earth: David Bowie
5. One Flew Over the Cuckoo’s Nest: Jack Nicholson

For young audiences. His first Off-Broadway musical called “Joan of Arc at the Tower”. His body of work includes the critically acclaimed “Men.” He soon was awarded a sum of money by a professional actors’ union - by working on the board of Governors, he was able to win the prize in Virginia. He received his Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in professional setting. “I wanted to help him learn more about the craft, and I missed a lot here.”

WHEN IS THE RIGHT TIME TO CALL YOUR BOYFRIEND?

a) When the president of Phi Gamma Delta asks you to Saturday night’s Fiji Formal.

b) After racquetball class, to tell him that the instructor with the Australian accent and those blue eyes did wonders for your serve.

c) When you just feel like telling him you miss him after all.

Maybe you shouldn’t tell him everything that’s going on. But if you still care about him, why not call and whisper some sweet things he’ll never forget?

Like why you call using AT&T Long Distance Service, and why you trust AT&T’s high quality service and exceptional value.

When you tell him that AT&T gives you immediate credit if you dial a wrong number, he won’t be able to get you out of his mind.

And telling him you can count on AT&T for clear long distance connections will drive him crazy.

All of which will probably inspire him to drive out for the weekend, giving you an excuse to blow off that silly frat party after all.

MSC 65 - Buffalo State 53

What speed and quickness did for MSC in the opening game of the tournament, shooting and inside strength did in the final. Phillips and Ehrmann combined for 40 of the Indians' points in a 65-53 victory over a scrappy Buffalo State team. "I think Buffalo State matched up very well with us speed-wise and they had a lot of size. They were going for them, too," said Jeffrey. "That's the beauty of our team. You can shut down one side of our offense but we still have the ability to score." The one player was senior co-captain Lorraine Bratton who got in early foul trouble and saw less than 20 minutes of playing time. The one part of the offense that was shut down was the MSC transition game. In fact, it was the transition game that almost hurt the Indians' title bid. Buffalo forced 19 turnovers with its swarming full-court and half-court pressure. The MSC offense was forced to alter its attack.

After opening up a 30-19 lead with 2:45 left in the first half, MSC found itself with the problem of trying to push the ball upcourt against a tough full-court pressure. The Indians had full-court pressure for the next two minutes, the Indians were outscored 10-0 and found themselves in a new ball game. With 8:33 remaining, Sue Becker and free throw by Tomasina Powell kept them on top at the half, 33-30. "We have to be able to respond," said Jeffrey, "in the first half we played right into their hands," said Jeffrey. "We let them dictate the tempo. Their press took our out of our game. At halftime we made some adjustments, some mental and some strategic. Then we came out in the second half and took control."

The Indians' defense forced Buffalo to shoot 33 percent from the floor in the second half after a 65 percent effort in the first half. MSC also limited them to 20 points.

Offensively, the inside game was forced into the limelight. After MSC opened a 18-point lead, the tandem of Ehrmann and Phillips accounted for 21 of the last 29 Indian points of the game.

Buffalo State wasn't through, however, until only about four minutes remained in the game. After the Indians went 45-36, MSC fell victim to the press and saw its lead dwindle to one, 47-46. "Barry forced the fast break for a three-point margin. Kaigler then made a pretty drive to the basket for two, and Ehrmann finished off a three-point play to give MSC a cushion again," said Jeffrey. "It wasn't until Phillips followed one of her own shots then connected on a pair of free throws with 3:43 remaining to give MSC a ten-point lead that the Buffalo stampede was subdued."

"That was a big game for me to be played with a lot of heart and won with a lot of pride," said Jeffery. "In the second half, we let our defense dictate the tempo. Their press took our out of our game. At halftime we made some adjustments, some mental and some strategic. Then we came out in the second half and took control."

With three minutes remaining in the game, MSC led 64-57, but the Indians were having trouble getting the ball in play. The Gothics applied pressure. Jersey City Cut the lead to two with two:30 remaining, but Karl White free throws put the game out of reach, giving MSC a three-point lead.

Scott paced the Indians with 14 rebounds to go with his 25 points. Johnson and Swinton chipped in with nine and eight points, respectively.

MSC 60 - Ramapo 53

Last Saturday night saw the Indians capture their first win of the season by defeating Ramapo College, 60-53 at Ramapo. It took a big MSC rally in the second half to pull out the win, but when it all was over, the Indians had claimed their first New Jersey Athletic Conference win against 4 losses.

The Indians started off slowly, hitting only 33 percent of their shots from the floor. It was in the first half, meanwhile, where they scored 21 of 22 shots to pull out to a 28-20 lead.

The second half was MSC turn things around, however. They hit on 15 of 29 shots in the final 20 minutes, combined with 10 of 17 from the free throw line to storm the Roadrunners.

Mark Scott was the scoring star for MSC. He hit for 17 points on 7 of 18 shooting from the floor, adding eight rebounds and eight assists.

MSC 67 - Jersey City 52

The women's basketball game inside Panzer Gym Tuesday night was as sloppy as the weather outside. For all intents and purposes, the ice on the court. It would have made little difference.

Fortunately for MSC, the team's talent was enough to overcome what was mostly a sub-par performance to defeat Jersey City Athletic Conference foe Jersey City, 67-52. The win boosted the Indians' record to 7-1 (3-1 in the JAC), while dropping Jersey City to 3-2 (1-4 in the JAC). The game was a "classic" example, if you will, of post-Dial tournament let-down.

"When your team is involved in a big tournament like the Dial, you get all pumped up and pumped up about it," said Jeffrey. "After the tournament is over and you have to play a 'regular' game, it's tough for everyone to stay up and put out a consistent effort. Tonight we were just sluggish and sloppy."

The Indians staked themselves to a 26-20 lead with 1:15 remaining in the first half, but never got untracked. Only after outscoring the Gothics 11-4 going into the half did the Indians begin to take control. Still, the 37-24 halftime score was not impressive for the heavily-favored MSC squad.

"It took us awhile to get started," said Jeffrey. "That took us a while to get started."

Lady Indians capture second straight Dial title

By Jim Nicoletti
Editor-in-Chief

Chalk up another Dial Classic Championship for the MSC women's basketball team.

With wins over Lebanon Valley (65-44) and Buffalo State (65-53) this weekend at Panzer Gym, the Indians knocked their second straight Dial title and fifth in the eight-year history of the tournament. The terms Dial champs and MSC are fast becoming synonymous.

It was a weekend that saw the 6-1 Indians come up with a pair of impressive all-around efforts. In both wins, the defense shut out its opponent to the final, scoring 22 points and gathering as three Indians were named to the defense.

MSC took over. From there, the inside game was instrumental in capturing the title, but the steady play of their speed advantage over Lebanon. Kaigler led the Indians to a 20-8 points in the first half and half of them. That pressure helped the Indians run off a 16-2 streak in the first half.

The opening game of the tournament saw the Indians take advantage of their speed advantage over Lebanon. Kaigler led the Indians to a 20-8 points off the bench to follow Ehrmann in both games. The guard wore out the Pennsylvania team could not keep up with.

MSC already owned a 32-18 lead and built on it from there. With the Indian guards wearing out the Lebanon team, Ehrmann was free up in the middle and she became a major force on both sides of the court. She scored 11 of her game-high 15 points in the half and grabbed (also a game-high) 16 rebounds.

Nine Indians figured in the scoring on the night. Kaigler finished with 14. Junior forward Nancy Phillips was a big force in the final, scoring 22 points and gathering 13 rebounds. Freshman guard Cynthia Kaigler had 24 points in the tournament to earn her all-tournament status.

All three Indians proved to be instrumental in capturing the title, but MSC head coach Jill Jeffrey reminded everyone. "Our defense led to a lot of our points," said Jeffrey. "We scored 32 points in the first half and half of them came as a result of our defense. Cynthia Kaigler put good pressure on the ball early and that got us some transition points."

That pressure helped the Indians run off a 16-2 streak in the first half. The outburst turned what was a 10-8 ballgame at the 6:33 mark into a 26-10 runaway with 7:00 remaining.

"I think we're beginning to see the difference the quickness we now have on this year's team makes," said Jeffrey. "We have been getting out to quicker starts and keeping our intensity for 40 minutes. That's really a lot to say for such a new team."

"We got strong performances out of everyone," Jeffrey said. "Though three of them made the all-tournament team, I don't want the other players to feel slighted, because they all played a big part.

"It's very nice to single out players for individual achievement, but I don't want my players, or anyone else, to feel that this was anything less than an 11-player effort."

Accolades didn't escape MSC either, as three Indians were named to the tournament. Junior center Sue Ehrmann led the way by taking Most Valuable Player award. Ehrmann notched 34 points and 22 rebounds in the two games. Junior forward Nancy Phillips was a big force in the final, scoring 22 points and setting a pace that the Pennsylvania team could not keep up with.

"Our defense led to a lot of our points," said Jeffrey. "We scored 32 points in the first half and half of them came as a result of our defense. Cynthia Kaigler put good pressure on the ball early and that got us some transition points."
