Psychological ‘tool box’
key to success and sex

By Joanne Barclay
Staff Writer

Dr. Joyce Brothers lectured on “Success” and provided the audience with “a psychological tool box” to achieve success.

To begin her list of “tools,” Brothers stated the significance of revealing “signals of body language and small symbolic escape movements.” “Forgetting can be a sign depending on what is forgotten,” said Brothers. An example is the boyfriend, who makes an introduction, and forgets the name of his long-time girlfriend. Brothers’ commented that this situation gives one insight into the importance “picture of which way the emotional and intellectual wind blows” in a given relationship.

Brothers moved onto the topic of learning. “Learning is not only for the young. If you are bright you can always become brighter.” One “goal gradient” premise is that of competition increasing work performance. Brothers’ various learning techniques were the chrono-biological identification and memorization methods.

Chrono-biological identification involves discovering the time of day your body works best and using that time in the “most effective way.” Some basic guidelines that pertain to everyone’s 24-hour energy cycle are: mental activity is at its optimum between 8-10 a.m.; mental reflection at 4 p.m. and 12 noon is best for aerobic activity. According to Brothers, it is also important to remember that a person can only work at their peak for 4 hours per day.

Body processes are also related to this energy cycle. Brothers suggests that since sex hormones are on a half-hour cycle, this energy cycle. Brothers suggests that it is the “recitation” or reading aloud method, according to Brothers. For short term retention, the greatest success is attained when the new learned material is immediately followed by sleep. However, more than 4 hours of sleep is unnecessary.

Brothers’ additional advice towards successful “goal” graduation was the importance of objective realization. “Goals need not be unattainable if you approach them in the right way,” she said. Brothers stated, “Small daily advances can be made, even on a bad day, and it is important to ‘lower your standards and reward yourself along the way.’” Brothers cautioned, “If you think you see the light at the end of the tunnel, just make sure it’s not an oncoming train.”

In conclusion, the audience took two quizzes on their “love lives and their understanding of the opposite sex.” Brothers later elicited chuckles from the audience when she commented that rather than living together, young couples could better evaluate their compatibility by “borrowing someone’s 3-year-old child” for a while.

A question and answer period followed the quizzes. When asked if it was possible to love two people at the same time, Brothers responded, “Love is not like a pie with a larger piece for one person and smaller piece for another. While this love is possible, caring for another person’s happiness does not allow the second love to develop.”

During the lecture, Brothers emphasized “Love takes a long time to develop.” At the conclusion, she left the audience with an optimistic note. According to Brothers, when surveyed, 1 out of 6 married couples were found “to have retained feelings of deep romantic love. This durability of loves gives us important goals” for our relationships.

United States Congresswoman Marge Roukema (R-Fifth District) will deliver the Commencement Address and receive an honorary doctorate at MSC’s 77th graduation exercise on May 28.

Roukema received a Bachelor of Arts degree from MSC and did her graduate work at the college. She was elected as representative of New Jersey’s Fifth District in 1980 and gathered large voter support in three subsequent re-elections. The Fifth District includes portions of Bergen, Passaic and Sussex counties in northern and western New Jersey.

While in Congress, Roukema has led the effort to control growing deficits and federal spending. She also worked to foster fairness in government-sponsored programs in education, student loans, job training, child support, environmental issues, and welfare.

She serves as a member of the Education and Labor Committee and the Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee. Roukema is the ranking Republican on the Select Committee on Hunger where she is currently the only woman in either party in the House or Senate to lead a committee.

Roukema is credited with protecting the Guaranteed Student Loan Program for low and middle income families and saving $3 billion in the program over three years. She also helped prevent $2 billion of extra Pentagon spending from being added to the Defense Appropriations Bill.

A repeal of income tax withholding on interest and dividends was successfully co-sponsored by Roukema. She wrote a fundamental pension law reform and sponsored legislation to require accountability in Congressional pay raises. The Roukema Amendment to the Job Training Partnership Act ensures that training under the act is linked to existing and expanding private sector job opportunities.

Roukema has written amendments to legislation connected to the Federal Food Stamp Program that closes loopholes in the system and protects the benefits for people in need of programs such as New Jersey’s “Life-line” program.

Roukema is a lifelong resident of Ridgewood and served in many community activities prior to her election to Congress. Her community services included a trustee seat for the Leukemia Society of Northern New Jersey, the Family Counseling Service of Ridgewood and Spring House. The Family Counseling Service is a residential treatment center for women recovering from alcoholism.

SGA opposes Reagan's education budget cuts

By Mike Heelan Staff Writer

A resolution opposing President Reagan's proposed federal financial aid budget cut of $3.9 billion, or 45 percent, was approved unanimously by the SGA legislature.

If passed, the bill would be effective for the fiscal year 1988. These cuts would completely eliminate the Federal College Work Study Program, the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant, the National Direct Student Loan and Pell Grant Programs.

An estimated 500 MSC students currently eligible for these types of aid would lose no longer receive assistance. This would ultimately leave the student to find alternate means of financing his/her college tuition.

The SGA has initiated a letter-writing campaign addressing their concerns of this matter to members of congress. Bob Helland, SGA external affairs chairman said, "The SGA has taken the initiative and now it is up to the entire student body to fight for what they still have."

In other news, the annual Sports Intramural Leisure Club (SILC) volleyball marathon will be held tomorrow, April 24, in the Panzer Gym. The men's competition begins at 4:00 p.m. and lasts until 2:00 a.m. Several student organizations are participating in an effort to raise money for the multiple sclerosis foundation. All student are welcome to attend or tune in to WMSC-FM, 101.5 for play-by-play action.

The International Student Organization received $410 from the Mass Transit Account (MTA) for their trip to the Statue of Liberty and the Empire State Building on Sun., Apr. 26.

Lastly, The Montclarion received a First Class rating from the Associated Collegiate Press. Only those with a mark of distinction in editorial/opinion pages for the 1986 fall semester. The ACP rates college newspapers from first class to fourth class. Newspapers receiving four marks of distinction are considered All-American.

Women's Fare at MSC

The physical, mental and emotional dilemmas faced by women daily will be discussed during the Women's Fare sponsored by the Women's Center at MSC on April 28, 29, and 30.

The Women's Center, an organization known for addressing topical issues concerning the needs and wants of women will begin this three day series with a lecture titled "Knowing Your Body," scheduled for Tuesday, April 28. Topics to be discussed include eating and protecting health.

On Wednesday, April 29, "You're a Woman, Hear Me Roar" will be covered by departmental experts including money, goals, careers, and female in a male world.

"Knowing Your Feelings" will be presented on Thurs., April 30, and will explore intimacy, being superwomen, sexuality, and the implications of sex and love in the office.

Each lecture will begin on the hour, starting at 9:00 am. More information on the Women's Fare can be obtained by calling the Women's Center at 201-893-5106.

Define interests in career-related fields

For some students, an ideal summer job is one that introduces them to the "real" world of work: a job that is career related. For those goal-oriented students, a career-related experience can provide the time and opportunity to explore job possibilities that are being considered for after graduation. For students whose goals are not so clear, a career related summer job in an area of possible interest can help to define interests and resolve concerns.

Career Services

Career-related summer jobs exist in business, industry, government and recreation. Students can locate those specialized jobs that match their interests through the Career Services computerized job matching program. "Real" jobs are often part of the hidden job market - that is never advertised, but students can have access to those positions by using the many resources of Career Services. "Job Hunt" is a special seminar designed to show students how to uncover that hidden market. Internships are a special kind of "real" summer jobs. Internships are learning experiences, extensions of classroom education. They can be paid or unpaid. Internships offer a way of broadening one's horizon to the world of work: a job that is career related. For those goal-oriented students, a career related summer job in an area of possible interest can help to define interests and resolve concerns.

The Maritime College Department of History will culminate celebration of the bicentennial of the American Constitution by inviting one of the country's leading experts on the Constitution, Professor Gordon S. Wood from the History Department of Brown University, to the college on Wed. April 29. Wood will teach an afternoon lecture on "The Origins of the Constitution."

The lecture, at 7:30 pm in Kops Memorial Lounge, Rues Hall, is open to the public free of charge. For further information, contact Dr. Joel Schwartz in the Department of History at 201-893-7652. He is the campus coordinator for this event.

The answers to this puzzle may appear in next week's Montclairian; or they may not. They were stolen by a roving band of rapscallions dressed in black silk robes and sporting gold sequined masks. Could this be the end of our aid?

Ronald “Let’s Cut Education” Reagan is at it again. The President has proposed a federal financial aid budget cut of $3.9 billion, effective fiscal year 1988. These cuts would mark the end of the Federal College Work Study Program, Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant, National Direct Student Loan and Pell Grant Programs.

Bringing this closer to home, 500 MSC students receiving aid will be left without it next year. This does not sit too well considering the college’s Board of Trustees is proposing a 10 percent tuition increase effective next year.

So, once again Reagan has shown his preference towards spending in the Middle East (and Central America) rather than on America’s future. Maybe he should look to clean up his own backyard before looking at others’. Reagan should take a little advice from Matthew, Chapter 7: “...how can you say to your brother, ‘Let me take the speck out of your eye,’ and behold, the log is in your own eye? You hypocrite, first take the log out of your own eye...”

Who does Reagan suppose is going to do all the work at colleges without the College Work Study Programs? Their positions will be left for the colleges to fill, costing the schools more money. Therefore, it will cost the states more money. This seems to be right in line with Reagan’s policy—cut and cut, then leave it up to the states to make up for the losses.

Reagan says he’s interested in building for the future. But what kind of future will America have if no one can read? A bleak future indeed lies ahead if more cuts in education occur. College will become an institution for the elite groups in society—the richest and the poorest. The middle-class, which depends on the College Work Study Programs, will be left without it next year. This does not sit too well with the middle-class, which depends most on financial aid, will be left in the cold.

Maybe if this generation really did something now it could affect a change before it’s too late. The reason it has been so easy for Reagan to make wholesale cuts in education is because, as a group, we do not make a fuss; we do not vote. Our voice is less than a whisper in the government.

So, what can we do? The SGA is organizing a letter-writing campaign and is circulating a petition to be sent to New Jersey Senators Bill Bradley and Frank Lautenberg. The SGA has taken a big step in affecting a possible change.

In addition to this, on page 13 you will find a form letter The Montclarion has written for you to sign and send to Bradley and/or Lautenberg. This is our opportunity to ensure future opportunities. Don’t pass up the chance.

Welfare is not a dirty word

I can not think of another word that provokes as much self-righteous indignation as welfare. Well, maybe communism. If you don’t believe me, try this the next time you go out. Walk up to a person you’ve never met before and ask him what he thinks about welfare. Go ahead, I dare you.

I’ll bet that person would say something like this: “Why should the government hand out my tax money to some lazy jerk who probably never had a job in his/her life?” Just the mention of welfare creates the image of a person who is content to live his/her life from hand to mouth, going to the welfare office on the first of each month and blowing the money on crack for the next 30 days.

And politicians are aware of the symbolic value of the word welfare. They associate Aid to Families with Dependent Children (for example) with waste and dependency. They then blame these problems on the welfare recipients themselves. Thus, cutting funds becomes bloodless—after all, who would object to taking money from cheats and hums.

Recently though, I was reminded that there is another way to define welfare in this country. Frances Fox Piven, in giving this year’s Sheldon Polack lecture, described the expansion of social welfare programs in the ‘60s and ‘70s as “achievements” toward a more “human” society.

She said that waste was attributed to inefficient administration; that attention should be paid toward reforming the system, not eliminating it. The theory that welfare causes dependency is false; in fact, people who receive social welfare benefits want a job with a rewarding salary that provides them with a sense of pride as much as any American does.

Regardless, welfare remains a dirty word. The W word is not discussed in most social circles. In fact, the only time one hears the W word mentioned is always in reference to third parties—“Oh Henry, we work so hard for our money, not like those people on welfare.” The W word is not one a polite person would use in front of his mother, especially in the interrogatory form—“Mommy, did you cash the welfare check today?”

Ironic isn’t it, that those who have controlled the welfare debate for the past six years have been those least willing to improve the system. American minds have been captured by a conservative ideology—that the poor are poor because they deserve to be. When a whole class of people are dehumanized, society frees itself from the responsibility of caring for the well-being of that class. Welfare was intended to carry out this responsibility—it was never intended as a dirty word.
Two aware students differ with ‘Limbo’ editorial

To the Editor:

I disagree with your editorial entitled “MSC Campus is Stuck in Another Limbo Period” (April 16, p. 8). There is a lot to look forward to, and to complain about. (I will leave the complaining for another letter).

Some upcoming events to look forward to were advertised in the same issue of the paper in which the apathy editorial appeared. Future events include:

- Earth Day ’87 (April 21—23)
- Lecture by Dr. Eva Fleischner (April 22)
- Drop In Center Open House (April 27)
- Balloon Launch
- Spring Week
- Women’s Fair
- Carnival (April 31—May 2)
- Senior Banquet

Commencement: I am certain if one were to look at the Datebook column and at the monthly calendar published in The Montclarion, one would find even more to become involved in.

I have heard that the MSC student body is apathetic. Even if that is true, the school newspaper should not also fall victim to apathy. A journalist has an excellent opportunity to arouse interest and generate action—too bad The Montclarion missed this chance to make a positive impact on the campus community.

LASO thanks all who helped to ‘Spread the Latin Fire’

To the Editor:

Another “Latin Week is history for the Latin American Student Organization (LASO). I would like to use this opportunity to thank a few people among the staff, administration and students that provided input, support, and hard work into making “The Latin Fire Spreads” at MSC.

I should start by thanking the members of LASO, the Latin Week Committee and our advisors for their diligent, selfless and motivated attitudes throughout the whole week. A few of these people include Kristen Cipri, Mayra Rosa, Yvonne Bermudes, Alicia Munoz, Daisy and Uzette Valentin (the twins) Yolanda Siron, and Carolyn Vachier. Special thanks goes to Johnny Rodriguez, Jose Gonzalez, and Juan Taveras for their efforts in many of the areas surrounding Latin Week.

I would also like to thank Mark Bancato and Mark Skraborga for their SGA efforts in accomplishing us in tight situations and for their presence at the activities. Also the Black Student Cooperative Union, Class I Concerts and The Montclarion deserves thanks for programming assistance, as well as the other Class I organizations of the SGA for their constant support. It was great to see each organization pull for us.

In addition to the students credit goes to Student Activities, Dean James Harris, Camille Bartlett, Bob Gee, Food Service Special Functions, Bob Ritz, and Carol Santiago who worked every special event during the week; Kristin Brooks, who photographed the entire colorful week for LASO; MSC’s media and duplicating centers; campus police; Residence Life; the Alumni Association; Student Affairs, Dean Ed Martin; the Admissions Office, Rich Alvez; and Father Art Humphrey. Sincere thanks and appreciation go to all those people for their continued and devoted effort.

Finally, I would like to thank the entire student population for their interest in Latin Week and for attending the events. Without these people there would be no need for this event. As a footnote, LASO will be selling the “Latin Fire Speads” T-shirt during Spring Week ’87. Look out for LASO and the shirts because they are hot!

Police Academy 4 lacks force

By Tom Boud
Correspondent

Police Academy 4: Citizens on Patrol was released, but it lacks the force it needs.

Producer Paul Maslansky tried to inject more spice by introducing a subplot involving teenage skateboard fanatics. Alas, it only compounded the problem by adding more immaturity in an already supersilly flick. He would have done much better by omitting the skateboarder antics altogether and revising the whole picture so we could see more citizens in action instead of citizens in training.

For some unknown reason, there seems to be a lack of accuracy concerning the photography. In a chase scene, Captain Harris is straddled on a ten foot tall fence in an attempt to nab a few skateboarders. As the fence starts to collapse, the camera turns away and returns when Harris is sprawled out on the ground. The humor would have been stronger if the camera followed Harris as he fell.

In another chase scene, the camera seems to have trouble keeping up with the combined motion of the airplanes and air balloons. It switches so much that the chase is hard to follow and you have a tough time telling the good guys from the bad guys.

Police Academy 4 has many low points. For one thing, the humor is childish, the jokes foreseeable, the acting overdone and immature, and the plot slow and uneventful. It’s a miracle that producer Maslansky and writer Gene Quintano have not been indicted for cinematic fraud. Alas, it only compounded the problem by adding more assininity in an already supersilly flick. He would have done much better by omitting the skateboarder antics altogether and revising the whole picture so we could see more citizens in action instead of citizens in training.

The Metropolitan Police Department is upset that they can not be everywhere at once, so Commandant Lassard (George Gaynes) orders the police academy to recruit citizens and place them on routine patrol. However, Captain Harris (G.W. Bailey), opposes this idea calling it, “an insult to departmental integrity.” Nonetheless, he goes along with the program. As actors, George Gaynes and G.W. Bailey are the only two who act in a somewhat normal manner. Gaynes as Commandant Lassard is serious and down-to-earth.

Bailey’s portrayal as Captain Harris is like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Sometimes he behaves as a calm-minded police supervisor but most of the time he reacts to ordinary situations as if he were a hyperactive ten year-old brat. Captain Harris needs to be down-to-earth.

Citizen’s patrol in training and little time is spent with the activities. These include hanging from trees, vandalizing locker rooms, dressing up as voodoo sorcerers, and pursuing adolescent skateboard lovers. They even play simon-sez with inmates. It seems to be a lack of accuracy concerning the photography. In a chase scene, Captain Harris is straddled on a ten foot tall fence in an attempt to nab a few skateboarders. As the fence starts to collapse, the camera turns away and returns when Harris is sprawled out on the ground. The humor would have been stronger if the camera followed Harris as he fell.

In another chase scene, the camera seems to have trouble keeping up with the combined motion of the airplanes and air balloons. It switches so much that the chase is hard to follow and you have a tough time telling the good guys from the bad guys.

Police Academy 4 has many low points. For one thing, the humor is childish, the jokes foreseeable, the acting overdone and immature, and the plot slow and uneventful. It’s a miracle that producer Maslansky and writer Gene Quintano have not been indicted for cinematic fraud. Alas, it only compounded the problem by adding more assininity in an already supersilly flick. He would have done much better by omitting the skateboarder antics altogether and revising the whole picture so we could see more citizens in action instead of citizens in training.
Dear Senator:

I would like to make you aware of the proposed educational budget cuts for the 1988 fiscal year. As a student, I oppose any such action; it will be extremely detrimental to the education of all students. If passed, the proposed cuts would deny some students the opportunity to receive a higher education.

I believe America is the Land of Opportunity and a higher education should not be denied to any person.

I strongly urge our New Jersey representatives to vote against the President's proposals.

Sincerely,

The MSC tennis team had no problem in disposing of the Jersey City State Gothics Tuesday, sweeping the event, 9-0.

John Trinity won the first singles match against Curvi McMurray 6-2, 6-4 to start the rout. JJ Martinez defeated Warren Kongchatree 6-1, 6-1 in second singles. Trinity and Martinez teamed up in first doubles to defeat McMurray and Kongchatree 6-3, 6-4. Joey Caputo won the third singles match over Vinny Khanna 6-2, 6-2. Peter Shrambron won a three-setter from Gothic Gary Snithin after losing the first set, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. Caputo and Schrambron then defeated Snithin and Khanna in second doubles, 8-2.

Rich Pastor shut out Louie Rodriguez 6-0, 6-0 in fourth singles. Mark Lasalle won 6-2, 3-6, 6-0 over Lester D’Costa. Pastor and Lasalle then defeated Joe Racelis and D’Costa in third doubles to complete the sweep, 10-7.

DeAquino tosses another O-hitter

The Pioneers, who got a three-RBI performance from Cheryl Stetz, fell to 7-12 with the loss.

MSC 4-So. Connecticut 1 (1st)
MSC ace Dina DeAquino won her eighth game in 10 tries in the opener of a doubleheader last Wednesday against Southern Connecticut, 4-1. But DeAquino winning isn’t exactly unexpected. Then again, the fact that she threw a no-hitter doesn’t come as a surprise, either. Wednesday’s was her third of the season.

Marge Theobald singled, doubled and scored twice to provide the Indians and DeAquino with all the offense they needed to claim victory.

So. Connecticut 4-MSC 1 (2nd)
So. Connecticut turned the tables on MSC in the second game of the doubleheader in New Haven, winning 4-1. MSC was four-hit by So. Connecticut pitcher Shawn Danielson. Andrea Peters had two of those hits and drove in the Indians’ lone run. So. Connecticut went to 13-10 with the win.

Levinskas record leads MSC in Saturday's Rutgers Relays

By Jim Nicosia
Editor-in-Chief

Jessica Levinskas placed third in the 10,000-meter run to highlight the MSC women's track team in the Rutgers Relays this weekend.

This was an outstanding performance," said MSC head coach Michele Willis. "This is Jessica's first time running a 10K on the track. She'll only run this distance four times this season because it is not an event run at every meet."

Regina Ladson and Kathy Drummond also represented MSC well at the Rutgers Relays. Ladson placed sixth in the long jump. Drummond took eighth in the discus.

Jill Robertson, Ladson, Rosa Dominguez, and Levinskas also figured in the scoring in the distance medley relay. The foursome placed seventh in the event.

Dina DeAquino (9-2) scattered three hits for MSC to earn the victory. MSC 9-Wm. Paterson 8 (2nd)

The 21-6 Indians trailed 8-3 going into the sixth inning when they erupted for six runs to overtake the Pioneers. Lisa Hallock had a two-run double to spark the rally. Stacey Barossa was the game-winning RBI when she singled to right to put MSC ahead, 9-8.

MSC 10-Wm. Paterson 0 (1st)

A six-run outburst in the first inning carried the MSC softball team to a 10-0 trouncing of WPC in the opener of the doubleheader Tuesday at Quarry Field.

The sixth-ranked Indians were paced by Marga Theobald's four-RBI performance. Theobald highlighted the first-inning attack by smacking a three-run homer. Andrea Peters aided the attack by knocking in two runs of her own.

Breaking down barriers

Color discrimination in baseball, football, hockey and many other sports has been a negative part of our society for a long time. Finally, the color barrier has been broken in what is a very relaxing weekend type of game for most people.

That's right. The color black is not unusual in the game of tennis anymore. In fact, black players such as Zina Garrison and Lori McNeil are two of the top-rated players in the world. Athletes which pave the way in professional sports enable amateurs to get a chance at the professional or major college game - in any sport.

Malari Washington, Stacey Martin and Iulani Callii, all black amateur tennis players, are three top-ranked players. They all belong to private tennis clubs or take regular lessons from a private instructor. That is a change from the public park recreation programs. These type of tennis lessons are responsible for developing McNeil and Garrison into professional stars.

They both began their careers in Houston. A survey has revealed that the tennis-playing base in the United States has dropped from a high of 20 million to 11 million. There are not many blacks or Hispanics within today's circuit, but that should not bother a player from attempting to make it in the tennis field. Blacks are beginning to populate the sport.

Challenges are not just found on the field, but off. If you feel your aspirations to achieve a great athletic feat is being hindered, we now live in a world where it is at least possible to overcome the hindrances. In the end, all that matters is that you have the talent and tools needed to succeed - inside.

Power-lifting at MSC - consistent commitment

By Perry Schwarz
Staff Writer

This is the first part in a series on the strenuous sport of power-lifting.

Springtime is here and in one month the massive, muscular bodies will occupy MSC and local beaches. However, there are a select few at MSC that developed muscular, envious physiques for other reasons.

Endless hours of time and preparation go into a well developed body. While many of the "muscle-men" flaunt their physique 90 percent of the time, there are four MSC physical education majors that lift a majority of their free time.

Dan Ippolito, Fred Wagner, Miguel Hernandez and Lori McNeil are all athletes and share in the common health conscious activity of power-lifting. Their goals are continually changing and challenging. They banded together to share struggles, accomplishments and ideals about power lifting with the campus community.

Wagner achieved a personal best of 295, bench press. The sophomore stands 5'4" and weighs an astonishing 132 pounds. Ed Hernandez, who is an accomplished MSC running back, achieved success as a power lifter also. He can leg squat 745 pounds and placed second in the New Jersey State Power-Lifting Championship with a 700-pound squat.

Ippolito, nicknamed "thigh" because of his massive lower body, finished his power lifting career as a noseguard and will coach the junior varsity next season. Miguel Hernandez, a junior linebacker, will return next season. He plans to be much stronger and quicker next year. The power lifting is a plus in his direction.

Ippolito has been active with weights for 11 years and has not missed a day.

"One of the main commitments to lifting is that it must be done consistently," Ippolito said. "It takes time management, but eventually lifting will become a common routine like brushing one's teeth. I have not missed a morning workout yet."

MSC 8-Pace 3

The MSC lacrosse team rebounded from a 8-6 loss to FDU to post an impressive 8-3 win over Pace at Sprague field Sunday. The Indians ran their record to 8-2, taking control from start to finish to post an easy victory.

The Indians started the game tentatively but picked up the intensity as they got on the scoreboard; Tony Petrone scored the first goal off a feed from his brother Joe at 3:40. The Indians created numerous scoring opportunities, but were unable to convert them into goals. Ed Sargent's shot was blocked by the Pace goalie. George Thack and minutes later Ron Francisco, open in front of the net, shot wide.

With the Indians dominating the game, midfield Joe Petrone weaved his way into the heart of the Pace defense but his shot went wide of the goal. Mike Nugent scored off a pass from Derrick Godfrey to give MSC a 2-0 lead. Joey Petrone picked up loose ball and went coast to coast to set up the third goal. The Petrone brothers got into their scoring act again with Joe getting the assist from Tony running the total margin to 4-0.

The Indians batted around in the third frame, erupting for six runs to break the game open. With the Indians whipped Jersey City State College 16-3 in a New Jersey Athletic Conference game at Pitzer Field Thursday.

The game was called in the sixth inning due to inclement weather. MSC opened the scoring in the first inning as Fasano singled with one out and advanced to second on a walk to second baseman John Deutsch. Junior Pepe Herrero was then issued a walk to load the bases and Horn followed with a two-run single to give the Indians a 3-0 lead.

In the second inning, catcher Bill Coyle walked with one out and scored on a double by sophomore John McClain. Joe Petrone led off with a walk and scored on an error by Principato, giving the Indians a 7-0 edge and the victory. Coyle made a great defensive play on a hard hit ball that was dropped by the second baseman to give the Indians a 7-1 lead.

The Indians improved their record to 10-1 overall.

goalkeeper and Tony Petrone pounced on the ball to score, stretching the lead to 6-2. Pete Franklin scored off of a Dave Francisco pass for a 7-2 lead.

MSC defense neutralized Pace the rest of the way as head coach Tim Sullivan used his bench extensively. Ron Francisco closed out the scoring for the Indians.

MSC 8-Kutztown 6

The Indians improved their record to 9-2 as they squeaked by Kutztown by scoring two goals in the final minutes to come away with an 8-6 victory. Joe Petrone scored an unassisted goal with 10 minutes remaining in Kutztown to give the Indians a 7-6 edge and the win.

Kutztown played the Indians tough, Indian Al Reinoso was not surprised by the gutsy performance by the Kutztown team. “Their overall record is not indicative of their talent,” he said. “They play a very tough schedule, with most of their games against Division I schools. Traditionally, though, they have always played us tough.”

Last year, Kutztown used its speed to wear the Indians out in the second half. This year, said Reinoso, was different. “This time the key was our transition game. We moved the ball quickly,” said Reinoso. “We picked up a few loose balls and made quick passes."

Tony Petrone paced the Indians with three goals. Joe Petrone had two. Derrick Godfrey, George Limite and Pete Franklin each had one goal.
