Dr. Ruth talks sex at MSC

By Mike Butcher

Media personality Dr. Ruth Westheimer spoke openly and explicitily about her philosophy of human sexuality,“ she said at the Memorial Auditorium on Monday night.

"The more we talk about human sexuality," she said at the Memorial Auditorium on Monday night.

explicity about her philosophy of human sexuality," she said at the Memorial Auditorium on Monday night.

"Human sexuality should be taught by parents in the homes, and teachers in the schools and by religious leaders in religious institutions," she said.

She feels her work has an effect on the population at large. She said emphatically, "I like to know that after my speeches students will use contraceptives and not forget to do so for the rest of their lives."

Westheimer suggests that most of the problems we will have.

problems we will have.

"I don't want a kindergarten class to talk about safe sex. All I know is that dates back to America's puritan and Victorian past.

"I am not a theologian, I am not a politician. I'm talking as an educator and from where I stand, abortion must remain legal," she said.

In answer to critics of her show, Westheimer said, "anybody who doesn't like the show because of the language or the context can move the dial."

When asked about the merits of being a star and about her livelihood, Westheimer's tone turned serious. She admitted that though she liked the attention of the public and of her producers, "all of it comes secondary to the serious issue of sexual ignorance."

Westheimer recalled the years she taught at the College of Education in New Jersey and the role of New Jersey Bell's toll fraud investigation unit.

"When I open my mouth, people certainly know who's speaking."

Obscene callers plague campus

By Lynn M. Cowan
News Editor

Between Sept 18 and Sept 19, stereo speakers were stolen from a 1979 Pontiac parked in lot 21. The vehicle's side window was smashed.

On Sept. 19, a Blanton female was harassed by three non-students who refused to leave her room. The males were escorted from the building at 1:30 am. No complaints were filed.

Two female residents of the Clove Road apartments received obscene phone calls on Sept. 19. The residents were concerned as the caller knew their names and address.

On Sept. 21, an ongoing dispute between a Blanton R.A. and student resulted in both parties filing complaints with Campus Police. A Freeman Hall resident was arrested on Sept. 21 for stealing Dominos Pizza.

On Sept. 24, a Blanton female met with a male who had been harassing her on the phone. The male became violent while on campus and the resident became alarmed.

Campus Police is advising any residents who receive phone calls from 'Pat' to report them immediately.

Two female residents of Bohn Hall reported receiving phone calls from 'Pat' on Sept 24. A purse was stolen in the library on Sept. 24. A student left it unattended for an hour under her coat, and when she returned, it was missing.

A 1983 Toyota parked in lot 22 was stolen on Sept. 24. In its place was a car that had been stolen from Newark previously.

Between Sept 22 and Sept 24, speakers were stolen from a 1981 Subaru. The vehicle was parked in lot 23.

On Sept 24, a student was removed from his class at the request of his professor. The student will not be allowed to return until the dean of the school permits it.

College credit while you work

Students entering college want to achieve solid academic success and most want to reach graduation prepared to succeed in the workplace.

Co-operative education offers qualified MSC sophomores, juniors and seniors the pre-professional experience they need to help achieve that second goal.

The program enables students to work in an industry or service organization for pay while earning college credit.

Students take advantage of the co-op education option to confirm a career choice, to help finance their education, to practice classroom knowledge and to establish professional contacts leading to jobs.

Co-op staff members help participants clarify goals, evaluate their expectations and prepare resumes.

Faculty advisors assist in the development of an individual "learning contract."

Interviews are arranged by the Co-op office with approved firms and agencies.

During a student's paid internship, academic faculty and employer supervisors provide guidance and periodically evaluate performance.

The Co-op program is open to students who have accumulated 45 credits and earned a grade point average of 2.25. Individual departments may have further requirements.

For further information contact the co-op office in the Student Center, Annex, room 104 or 893-4426.

An SGA financial report was presented at last night's meeting. Student fees collected to date total $143,700, with an estimated $37,631 still to be received from the college. "The SGA financial position is not at an optimal level. Our budget will be tight this year," said SGA treasurer, Jeannie Lamboy. The SGA is operating at a net loss of $20,284. This figure does not include a carry-over of $34,225 from last school year's unappropriated surplus.

Speech waiver

The Speech and Theatre Department is sponsoring an evaluation service to help students determine whether they will be able to waive MSC's speech communication requirement.

Students can register for $15.00 at the Speech and Theatre Office, 126 Life Hall. For further information, contact Diane Holub at 893-4217.

Free tutoring

The College Tutorial Center, located in Annex E, is posting its hours for fall '87. The center is open from 9 am to 5 pm, Mondays through Fridays, and remains open until 7 pm on Mondays and Thursdays.

Workshops in study skills are also available for the fall semester. Topics such as "Adding time to your 24 hours," "Learning success skills," and "Test-taking strategies" will be discussed.

Sign-up for tutoring services will continue through Nov. 6.

Faculty and professional staff are encouraged to refer students to the center before this date.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Tutorial Center at 893-4244.

"October '87 "A Time to Remember."

These Dates Are Subject To Change.

The Montclarion/Thurs., Oct. 1, 1987
Don't get hung up on your future

Over the years, colleges across the country have developed many harmless traditions. Here at MSC, people have put soap or goldfish in the library fountain or stolen the tape from the College Hall bellower. Fraternities and sororities have pledged spray painting Greek letters on the Clove Road bridge.

The letter from NJ Bell on the front page warns us that some people won't hold the line, though. Students have been illegally obtaining AT&T credit card calling numbers and using them to make "free" phone calls. Not only are these calls not free, they also endanger future careers. NJ Bell must waste time correcting customers' bills, thus increasing the cost of phone prices and services in general.

Remember that honesty and integrity now will pay off in the future. Don't let a stupid mistake ruin your life.

Personal safety

The students of MSC have two opportunities to consider their personal safety this week. As the Campus Police Report notes, a person who identifies himself as "Pat" has been making obscene phone calls to campus residents. This illegal activity invades the privacy of the individuals and upsets daily lives. It seems like a harmless prank, but it's actually a threat to your life. If you receive an obscene call or have any information leading to an arrest, contact Campus Police immediately.

For the Parade insert in Sunday's newspapers, Dr. Joyce Brothers wrote an article on date rape. This issue has been prominent on the campuses throughout the Eighties, yet many people still do not understand it. Date rape is the crime of rape in a personal setting. It often occurs between a boyfriend and girlfriend, of any age, when he doesn't believe that she means "No" when she says, "No." As Dr. Brothers indicates, just because he loves you, or you love him, doesn't mean he is free to do as he pleases.

Even more than an obscene phone call, date rape is an invasion of privacy, both mental and physical and a direct threat to your life. If you believe that you are a victim, contact Campus Police immediately. For more information, read the article or contact either the Women's Center or Campus Police.

By Ellen Goodman

BOSTON—What an unexpected way to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the long hot summer that produced the U.S. Constitution. Instead of commemorating the document, we're going to argue over a new interpreter.

The fierce debate emerging over the nomination of Robert Bork can only increase the impression that a Supreme Court justice has more leeway than a home-plate umpire. It's sure to add to the uneasy sense that the law is a matter of opinion or appointment.

The left has accused the President of playing politics with the Bork appointment. The right has accused the left playing politics with the Bork opposition. They both hold their noses at the very word. We know instinctively that the prestige of the Supreme Court, perhaps the last institution that Americans overwhelmingly respect, is undermined by these personal games.

Consider the most vulnerable right that's left to judicial politicking: privacy. Bork, who stands at the intellectual outer edge of the right wing, has said that the right to privacy simply doesn't exist. Does a right exist with one judge and disappear with another?

"As I said years ago, I thought the 'privacy' notion had little to do with the intent of the framers," Bork has explained. Indeed the Constitution doesn't spell out the private sphere, nor does the Bill of Rights list privacy. The concept of an intimate family life protected from the government appeared in the 1920s when the Supreme Court ruled that raising your own family the way you saw fit was a kind of "liberty." It wasn't until the 1940s, when the Court struck down a law that punished buggery with sterilization, that they called the right to procreate a basic and fundamental one.

The case that put the word privacy itself into the language of rights came in 1965. Connecticut still had a law then that banned birth control for married couples. In striking that law down, the high court said in "Griswold" that it violated the basic privacy rights of these couples.

One of the justices wrote that privacy rights were deduced from others in-the-first eight amendments: the freedom of expression, the freedom from unwarranted search, the freedom from having soldiers quartered in your home. A second found privacy in the fifth amendment. A third, the conservative John Marshall Harlan, said privacy was covered in the 14th amendment as personal liberty.

Later, in Roe v. Wade, the abortion case, the Court extended privacy to include the right to choose an abortion. Anyway you define privacy, wrote Justice Blackmun, it's "broad enough to encompass a woman's decision whether or not to terminate her pregnancy."

Bork has disagreed with all this. Not just the 1973 abortion decision, which he called "unconstitutional," not just the 1965 birth-control decision, but the whole emergence of a right of privacy. He disagrees because he says the "framers" of the Constitution and its amendments did not "intend" to create such a right.

I have no idea what the original collection of men who spent that tortured summer of 1787 in Philadelphia would have thought about birth-control pills, suction aspiration, or contraceptives. There is nothing in the Constitution or its amendments about reproduction. But I know that they and their followers "intended" a stronger government for public life, not one that would reach intrusively into personal life.

Bork has said that the job of a judge is to figure out what "intends" of the framers and to uphold it, nothing more. Anyone looking for new law should go to the legislature. He opposes a so-called activist judiciary. Yet, if approved, this anti-activist judge would create enormous action, or should I say reaction. His swing vote could upset decades of law.

So we have this uncomfortable lesson for the 200th anniversary of our Constitution. The new candidate for the Supreme Court holds the view that the politics, even the personality, of a justice should make no difference in deciding the law. And by his very presence, he reminds us just how much difference it does make.

50 years of Light

By Michael Bollerick

Question: What’s the longest running show in broadcast history? Fans and trivia buffs know it’s the 53-year-old soap Guiding Light.

The Beginning

The story goes that Guiding Light was founded on Irna Phillips’ admiration for a preacher named Dr. Preston Bradley (The Reverend Dr. Ruthledge on the show). His reading lamp hung in the window of his home as a ‘guiding light’ to troubled parishioners. Their story is the story of GL.

Created by Irna Phillips (creator of As The World Turns and Days of Our Lives), GL premiered on radio January 25, 1937. While other soaps—called "soap operas"—weren’t about to stop the dawn, their audiences were stuck with depression-era issues: labor unions, national prejudice, and isolationism.

On To Television

“‘If it ain’t broke, don’t fix it.’ That’s the type of attitude that Irna Phillips had to contend with when she began her drive to transfer GL to television.

Men weren’t home to watch the show in the afternoon, and women, the sponsors thought, were too busy tending house to actually sit and watch. Because it was both affordable and convenient (pun intended), radio in the early 1950’s was reaching a larger audience. Television was in its infancy.

Irina Phillips was determined to prove herself after failure with her first television show, These Are My Children. Eager to capitalize on the growing television market, she went ahead and developed two pilots with her own money.

Proctor & Gamble liked the pilots but were leery of their audience. Would people actually like the physical personas of the Baur family? To play it safe the sponsors continued the radio version concurrently with the TV show. (That was discontinued in 1956).

The first TV episode aired on June 30, 1952. The show hasn’t stopped since. GL competed with Search For Tomorrow on pg. 13.

Wow! Bananarama (Polygram)

Wow! does not quite live up to its name. A little more is expected from a group that is considered the most successful British “girl” group of all time. Wow! just does not have the quality of music in Banarama’s last album, True Confessions, which included the number one hit “Venus” and was certified gold.

Wow! has released their current hit “I Heard A Rumour” from the film Disorderlies and includes a new mix of the Supremes’ “Nathan Jones.” Two other songs that could possibly become hits are “Love in the First Degree” and “Some Girls.”

Peart’s lyrics are directed to the listener to prove herself after failure with her first television show. These Are My Children. Eager to capitalize on the growing television market, she went ahead and developed two pilots with her own money. Proctor & Gamble liked the pilots but were leery of their audience. Would people actually like the physical personas of the Baur family? To play it safe the sponsors continued the radio version concurrently with the TV show. (That was discontinued in 1956). The first TV episode aired on June 30, 1952. The show hasn’t stopped since. GL competed with Search For Tomorrow, cont. on pg. 13.

Richard Marx

Richard Marx is a class act with a great debut album and at the very least it is good to hear some old Eagles on some new vinyl!

Rock-n-Roll Corner

Pasquale DiFulco

Hello, baby hello...Last week I ripped apart Sting’s new song. Well, I’ve reconsidered my position. It kinda grows on you after a while. The album, Nothing Like the Sun hits stores Oct. 5. Guest artists include Eric Clapton, Mark Knopfler and a gentleman who goes by the moniker Andy Summers. Hmmm, wonder what Stewart Copeland is up to lately...Richie Havens, late of Woodstock fame, has a new album out...Lever’s “Casanova” is a real fine tune. Funky bass line...Hey, don’t look now, but Pink Floyd played for three hours at their tour-opener in Montreal...Sounds like Yes has recycled some old lyrics and chords on their latest effort...New Aerosmith sounds like they’re going to be back with a vengeance...194 days to American Buffalo...Last week’s trivia answers: 1. Uckers 2. The Steve Miller Band...This week: Who was Peter Wolf married to?...Don’t all....

row and Love of Life for the number one spot, using as its weapon a realistic approach. These other soap operas resembled the land of dreams with surrealistic sets and characters surrounded by impending doom. GL brought to television the philosophy of social documentary. And to this a refreshed audience responded with a roar. Not long after the TV show began, Susan Douglas' character, Kathy, was killed. It was the "who shot J.R.?" of the 50's and GL took off, its producers wading knee-deep in a flood of hate mail.

In response, Phillips soothed her viewers with a memo which seems: now to best represent GL's formula for success. Summarized, it read: In life there is death. It is our duty to reflect on this thing called life. We are sorry.

Later, during the 1961-62 season, with GL still at number one in the ratings, Irna Phillips' successor, Agnes Nixon, took the show's matriarch, Bert Bauer (who was played by long-time favorite Charita Bauer), to battle with uterine cancer.

The result was another barrage of letters from women all over the country saying that after years without a check-up, they were going back to their gynecologists. Several letters read: "My God, Bert Bauer saved my life! Such is the power of television.

Awards Abound: GL Today

The eighties has turned out to be the most powerful period for both GL and its fans. Brilliant writers like Douglas Marland and Pamela Long created characters—Roger (Michael Zaslow), Kelly (John Wesley Shipp), Lujack (Vincent Irizarry), Reva (Kim Zimmer)—who, played by dynamic individuals—helped GL to sweep the Emmy's. The show was named Outstanding Day Time Drama Series twice for the 1979-80, 1981-82 seasons, and was nominated for 1984-85.

Behind The Scenes

Guiding Light is videotaped in a pale grey box of a building on West 26th St. between 7th and 8th Aves. There's nothing fancy about it—inside or out. "It's the old, grey building with the small CBS eye," says assistant producer Mary O'Leary to appointment makers. "It's nothing fancy but we're here."

And they are there, and GL thrives because of that sincere "let's talk about it, we're all family here" type attitude.

"There's a camaraderie here," says Ian Ziering, who attends William Paterson College while playing Cameron Stewart on the show. "We all help each other out and recognize each other as dedicated professionals," he added.

Others associated with the show agree, but say it's more than that. One crew member says, "We're all family here, the cast and crew. We all know each others' business. People often come in on their days off just to sit and chat."

Everyone at GL wants to do well. Each is aware of the show's marvelous history and wants to add to it.

Though still fairly new on the show, Ian Ziering says, "There's a history here. You can feel it. There'll be times when someone will say, 'Oh, you did that just like so and so.' Or 'that's like the time when...It makes me feel good. I'm proud to be a part of it.'"

Years of love and hate, life and death, good times and bad—and more to come. That must have been some congregation.

Good Luck to Guiding Light on another 50 years.

Fans must ‘back up’ Indians

Although the Indians lost to Kean College 16-14 Saturday, there was electricity and excitement in the air. Fan support and participation covered Sprague Field in a way that MSC hasn’t seen for a long time. Fans were standing, shouting, and doing the wave, never giving up on the team.

Fan support will be an important ingredient in 1987. They are promised competitive gridiron action, but they are asked for one thing in return: loyalty. Their support and presence will be a nonverbal implication of confidence in the program.

MSC is 1-2 this season, but it is not over yet. This is where fan support plays a major role in the success of the program. For the last few years, the Indians have been on top, but right now they are still trying to get back on track.

One should not abandon a team when they are struggling, but should instead lend the additional support that is needed. The MSC program has traditionally been a winning one and will continue to be one.

Competitive football and athletics in general are part of the total MSC experience. Without it, one would be denied a true feeling of catharsis, which is needed in everyone’s life. Therefore, a tremendous cheering crowd should follow the Indians Saturday to Mahwah when they play Ramapo College.

The support and enthusiasm was tremendous Saturday evening, but now the support should not fade. It is time for the fans to join with the program, players, and staff in making this season a successful one.

In many instances, fans mean the difference between a team winning and losing a game. In some cases, fans are even responsible for making a fair team good, or a good team great. With the help of the MSC community, the Indians can also achieve greater heights.

Indian upset by Cougars, 16-14

By Kenny Peck
Sports Editor

Kean overcame a 14-3 fourth quarter MSC lead to register a 16-14 victory over the Indians (1-2) Saturday. The game marked the first NJAC contest of the season for both teams. Things were looking early for MSC as Kean (3-0) fumbled the opening kickoff. Nine plays later, Senior Ed Hernandez scored from three yards out. Tony Colasurdo booted the extra point, and the Indians had an early 7-0 advantage.

The Cougars came right back and drove down to the MSC three yard line. But the Indian defense held Kean to a 21-yard field goal by John Mattos, cutting the lead to 7-3. The Indians took that lead into halftime.

"Even though we had the lead at the half, we weren't happy with our performance," said senior tight end Ed Pedicini. "We knew we didn't play a good half at all."

In the third quarter, senior tailback Leroy Horn, who finished with 168 yards rushing, scampered 71 yards for a touchdown, upping the Indian advantage to 13-3. Colasurdo added the extra point, making the score 14-3.

The biggest plays of the quarter, however, were two plays that weren't. Long runs by Horn and freshman Scott Vegari were called back because of penalties. Kean went on to convert, add a gain from the outcome of the game.

The Cougars began their comeback with an impressive drive, moving the ball 71 yards in 18 plays and scoring on a two-yard run by freshman Brian Gallager. Kean went for the two point conversion, but failed and MSC held a 1-4-9 lead.

After the ensuing kickoff, the Indian fumble and Kean had the ball on the MSC 24 yard line. Seven plays later, Daryl Butts scored on a five yard run, and Kean had its first lead.

MSC had one more chance to pull the game out but turned the ball over on another fumble, and Kean was able to consume the remaining time.

"We had mental breakdowns both ways—offensively and defensively," Hernandez said. "We just have to come back stronger next week."

Things were looking up early for MSC. "We had an early 7-0 advantage," said coach John Mattos. "We just have to forget about the game, so give them credit. But we're just getting started."

On defense, Ramapo is led by the midfield faked left outside the wall of defenders to blast it home for the 1-0 lead. The Indians dominated the game early as they took control of midfield. Robert Chesney had a chance to give MSC an early lead as he took a pass from Derek Lewis and blasted it straight at the goalkeeper, who made the save.

The Pioneers went to a man defense as they tried to control the MSC midfield. The game got more physical as the Pioneers tried to wear down the Indians. At the 26 minute mark, Lewis was brought down, resulting in a free kick awarded to the Indians.

The victory moved the Indians' record to 3-2 overall, 2-1 in the NJAC.

Derek Lewis was again the spark that ignited the MSC offense, scoring two goals. His first goal tied the score at one after Stockton scored early in the second half. Lewis cut off a short goal kick and made a tough angle shot with the goalie out of position.

The score remained 1-1 for the remainder of regulation. The Indians went up 2-1 with two minutes remaining in the first overtime when Lewis took a pass from Rick Caruso, weaved through three Stockton defenders, and shot the ball into the back of the net.

Just thirty seconds before the first overtime ended, the Indians scored again. Bob Bigg took a punt from goalie Chip Hyde, dribbled to the end line, and crossed the ball in front of the goal. Rick Caruso scored the goal, securing the win.

MSC 3- Stockton St. 1

The Indians, down 1-0, came back to score goals two, three, and four, to come away with their biggest win of the season over Stockton State at Stockton.

The victory moved the Indians' record to 3-2 overall, 2-1 in the NJAC.
