SGA seeks last minute voters

The SGA referendum currently taking place has many students confused as to what exactly they are voting for. With some of the referendum questions being introduced for the first time in the history of the SGA, there are bound to be some misconceptions as to the intent of the questions or the process involved.

The first seems to be Question Number Two: "Should the SGA Fee be increased by the maximum allowable up to $1.00?" Through this question the SGA is not asking the students to vote "Yes" or to a tuition increase. Rather, the SGA has been seeking the support of the Student Body during the past week in hopes of relaying a message to the Board of Trustees. Rob Acerra, SGA president, states it as "When the Board decides to raise the tuition for the Fall 1988 semester the students want their fee increased, not one of the others."

This increase is being proposed to maintain the quality of services the SGA currently offers the students, for example, free phones, discount pharmacy and $5 copies. Furthermore, the proposal will give the SGA the opportunity to increase the number of events and programs sponsored by the student—run organizations like concerts, movies, and comedians.

One would think this is an easy task. However, the SGA Constitution requires a 20% majority of the undergraduates to vote (2011 this year). In addition, a majority of these students must vote "Yes" in order for such an increase to even be considered by the Board. This precaution, taken by the writers of the SGA Constitution, is to ward off any hasty changes by the legislature and the students.

The second misconception deals with which students are eligible to vote. The student who is taking a one credit tennis class, a commuter or resident student, each is able to have a vote counted in this campaign. Thus far, there have been 1,180 students who have voted. The SGA needs an additional 831 students to cast their votes. The polls will be available in Blanton Hall, Freeman Hall, College Hall and the Student Center at various times. Stop by the SGA office for more information on the referendum or exact voting hours.

MSC goes hi-tech

By Mike Bullerdick
Staff Writer

A study that last year placed MSC in a campaign to develop a revolutionary telecommunication network system is now in its completion stage.

The study, labeled "Project 88" by its proponents—New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. and AT&T Network Systems—concerns the development of an integrated voice, data and video telecommunications network system for use nationwide.

MSC was chosen to host the communications giants last April when the college agreed to provide input for the project. "MSC's role is to determine communication needs," said Lynn Truesdell, the head of Computer Services at MSC. "and create technology that will handle our governing communication needs.

The technology to be developed has already earned itself an acronym: ISDN, which is short for Integrated Services Digital Network. When completed in 3-5 years, the system is expected to revolutionize the telecommunication industry.

"People in different parts of a building, or even in different cities, will be able to see, hear and transmit information to each other at the same time," said Marsha Schaffner, an executive at Bell. Schaffner said uses for the system in educational areas include a home studies program via television, making it possible for ill and severely disabled students to obtain a college education.

The system would be expected to have the capability to interface with national data bases for use as research facilities.

One outcome that the college expects is publicity when the national advertising campaign that Bell and AT&T are putting together for the college hits the airwaves.

But a reserved Truesdell said, "The ensuing prestige is just the icing on the cake. The main thing is that MSC will become an updated, more efficient school and a better place to learn."

Although there is no guarantee MSC will purchase the system, the college is already making preparations. Fiber-optic lines that will make it possible to interface with ISDN have been installed.

Truesdell said, "If all goes well, the college will be ready to meet the future."

Alcohol and drugs found in Stone Hall

By Jill Ficarra
Staff Writer

During the administrative search in Stone Hall, before the Thanksgiving break, an extensive amount of alcohol and drug paraphernalia were found in two residents' rooms. The situation is under investigation by campus police.

On Dec. 1, at approximately 5:30 p.m., a resident of Freeman Hall, during an altercation with her boyfriend, was pushed and hit her head on the corner of her desk. The resident was taken to the school infirmary. No charges were filed.

A bomb threat was made against Bohn Hall at approximately 3:00 a.m. on Dec. 4. The building was evacuated and no bomb was found.

The Rathskeller received a bomb threat at 12:15 a.m. on Dec. 4. A search was made but no bomb was found.

Sigma Phi Rho provides MSC with conscientious activities

By Shawn Smith
Staff Writer

Objective: to aid the campus and surrounding communities, to promote higher education, and to uphold their motto: “Strong character and good moral judgement are the essence of dignity.”

This is the objective of Sigma Phi Rho, a two-member fraternity whose record of activities this semester boasts that they have indeed met their goals and that they have every intention of doing so again next semester.

In a recent interview with Rho President Gardner Walker, the fraternity's purpose, its past activities and its future activities were discussed.

“Sigma Phi Rho was founded at Wagner College in 1979. They didn’t expect it to grow, but the members began to transfer to other colleges, bringing the fraternity’s concepts with them,” said Walker. He added, “Earl Perser was the founder of MSC’s chapter, and seven members joined in the first month.”

“Like other small organizations,” he said, “we have our problems. We’re a young organization competing against established organizations. We must do things to attract attention to ourselves. We don’t care about quantity. We can operate with a minimum membership. If a member can’t do the job, we don’t need him.”

The fraternity is well-known for its extensive and beneficial programming at MSC. This semester, they sponsored a book raffle to help winning students pay for all or a portion of their books; a fast to remember Ethiopia and other starving countries; an informative AIDS seminar; a canned food drive co-sponsored with LASSO; and safe Halloween trick-or-treating at MSC for Bradford Elementary School students.

“We mostly base our events on what’s current, but we also want to educate our community,” said Walker. “We try to invest in fund-raising or anything that will make money so that we can finance other community projects. Our goal is to be financially able to help organizations and students in need.”

In addition to their conscientious programming, the Rhos program social events like the upcoming “Club Nite” concert co-sponsored with BSCU.

Their calendar is filled with events planned for next semester. A “Black Family Day”, a seminar on resume writing and interviewing skills, a lecture on “The importance of Political and Economic Development in the Minority Community”, and a benefit for the United Negro College Fund are just a few of the activities the Rhos have planned.

John Holloway, national advisor for the Rhos, said, “I expect the Rhos to fulfill their purpose in aiding the development of the school community.”

The fraternity was rechartered by the SGA this month. “I was disappointed,” said Holloway, “with the amount of time it took to get rechartered. We would have had more programs, but because of the time it took to get rechartered, we had to cancel a lot of events.”

Accepting a contribution from Merck and Co., Inc., to MSC’s center for legal studies is director Marilyn R. Taylor, center, shown receiving a check from James F. Naughton, the firm’s director of administration. The presentation took place during a recent meeting of the legal studies advisory board at the college whose legal studies program includes pre-law paralegal studies with the nation’s first patent law and trademark copyright specializations as well as a Hispanic specialization. MSC is the only four year college in NJ whose legal paralegal studies program is approved by the American Bar Association (ABA) and the college has pioneered in offering educational programs designed to help improve translation and interpretation service in the courtroom. Pictured left to right are Dr. Gregory L. Watters, acting vice president for academic affairs; Naughton; Taylor; Dr. Philip S. Cohen, dean of MSC’s School of Humanities and Social Sciences, and Barbara Nagle, Esq., assistant director of the legal studies program.

Motion to extend the voting hours rejected

By Mike Heelan
Staff Writer

At last night’s SGA meeting, the legislature narrowly defeated the motion to extend referendum voting until Mon., Dec. 14, 1987.

The referendum includes the SGA fee increase and the extension of library hours. Those legislators in favor of additional time for voting contended that the hours are needed to reach the necessary goal of 2,011 ballots.

In opposition SGA president, Rob Accra, said, “I think the legislature was looking for a way out. I feel they were a little discouraged about the number of votes thus far (approximately 1,200 ballots). I’m confident we will obtain the needed votes on time.”

Management club sponsors lecture

The Management Club works toward inviting speakers who can enlighten students on the trends of unemployment, the importance of appearance and presentation, and advancement potential.

On Nov. 24, the club sponsored a lecture featuring guest speaker Joseph Sherry, northeastern district manager for Glemby Salons International. Sherry, who is the fourth speaker sponsored by the club this semester, spoke of the organization, its potential for new employees to advance, and of the business sector in general.

Students interested in joining the management club can speak with Professor Essor of the management department, located in Morehead Hall.

Final examination policy

All final examinations must be given during the regularly scheduled examination period. The Schedule of Courses lists days and times of final examination for each class period.

No final examination may be given during the last week of classes before the examination period.

If no formal examination is scheduled, the class must meet for the scheduled final examination time, for a class evaluation session. Thus all classes are required to meet during the final examination period.

Holiday charity arrangements through Newman Center

Each year at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter, the Newman Campus Ministry Center gets a few last minute calls about food, clothing or toys that were gathered for the poor, asking where they can be sent.

Since those who assist the poor on a full time basis try to plan ahead, students might consider the same. Father Art Humphrey, chaplain of the Newman Center, would be happy in these days before the holidays to put students in touch with an actual person, rather than just a case, so that they might tailor their group/organization’s giving. In this way you could help a person, a family, or a service group directly. Even though most of the contacts come through the Catholic church, they do serve a multi-racial, multi-lingual, and multi-cultural economic need.

If you would like some assistance, please call the Newman Center, extension 7240 or 746-2323, Mon. through Fri., 9:00 am to 3:00 pm. Either Father Art or Mary Ann D’Angelo will help you.

Guest lecturer from Medgar Evans

Guest lecturer Bhadhur Tejani from Medgar Evans College will lead a discussion of the Sudanese writer Tayeb Salih’s Season of Migration to the North on Friday, Dec. 11, from 12:00 to 3:00 p.m. This lecture is sponsored by the International Studies program of Montclair State College.

Don't get too caught up in all the hub-bub

Amidst all the holiday season hub-bub we—the college students—remember the unfortunate ones. As college students we claim we no longer have time to spend our nights dreaming about a White Christmas or have visions of sugarplums dancing in our heads. Whose fault is it anyway?

With the semester coming to a close, we begin to reflect and ask ourselves "Where did the semester go?" and "Why didn't I start my term papers in September like I said I was going to." Sure, you could blame it on your roommates, your dog, maybe even your little sister.

Realizing it's one's problem but your own, you come to terms with the fact that it's a little too late to drop all your classes. But somehow you find the strength to face up to the challenge and confront that 12-page term paper head-on, with guts, determination and several cups of coffee. Procrastination is something we all know too well, and fortunately it's never too late to do something about it. Then again, there's always tomorrow.

In all seriousness, folks, this is the time of year when it's easy to get caught up in our own problems and forget about everyone around us. Showing the people around you how much you do care can make a big difference in both their lives and yours. Now is the time to start thinking of ways you can contribute and make the difference.

It's easy to go to the nearest shopping mall and pick up a pair of Reeboks or Levis. It's the things that we take time and special care with that are worthwhile. With college students being on such tight budgets, what better way to show your love than by making a special gift for that special someone. Bake cookies, make a Christmas card, knit a scarf, whatever suits you. The important thing is to make it count and make it a gift that's from the heart. After all, isn't that what the holiday spirit is all about?

This season is also a time to remember those we don't come in contact with every day. These are the people we read about in the newspapers. Families who pray for their heat to turn on when it's 28 degrees outside or the little children who won't get a visit from Santa. The sickly who will have to spend another night in the hospital, alone.

Devoting some extra time and some extra dollars to a charitable cause never hurt anyone. In fact you'll probably be pleasantly surprised.

Dear Santa Claus,

I know you're very busy at this time of year, but I hope you could help me out. I want to get some of the people I love Christmas presents. Ever since they closed the factory, Mommy complains that Daddy drinks too much and I can tell he's unhappy. So could you please get him a steady job?

Mommy gets up at 5 AM everyday to go to work but doesn't get to bed until real late. If you could give her a new sweater so she can be warm and happy every morning, I'll know that you tried. I'll leave you one of my cookies on Christmas Eve.

Thank you, Mary.

They are handwritten, not typeset. The English isn't very good most of the time either. But children send letters to Santa Claus like this one every year.

The United State Postal Service handles them. They are addressed to "The North Pole" or "Santa Claus." The Postal Service collects them in large bags. Most go unopened, unread.

Johnny Carson has a number of them sent to him to be read on "The Tonight Show" every year. He gets them from New York City, the collection point. They will send them to anyone who asks, anyone who wants to help out someone. Just ask your local post office for the address or number.

The holiday season is the perfect excuse to do something for others less fortunate. In and around the buckle of getting something for a relative or friend, many people forget. Not being related to or knowing someone doesn't mean you can't do something helpful or kind.
Cheating on tests: a selfish act

To the editor:

I am writing this in reference to the recent alleged display of dishonesty that occurred in the biology department over a genetics lecture exam where students apparently obtained entry to the professor's office and removed a copy of the exam from her filing cabinet.

I am shocked at the brashness of anyone doing this, and am amazed that at a teaching institution with high professor visibility and availability for extra help that anyone should feel compelled to commit such an act of quiet desperation to make a grade.

Cheating is such a selfish act. It reflects a definite lack of maturity and an outright violation of Robert Fulghum's prose (“All I EVER Really Needed to Know I learned in Kindergarten”) in two words: fair play. It breeds mistrust and resentment. It affects others' lives as well as those of the person(s) committing the act. Thirty-five people must now retake the exam on December 16th, so close to deadlines for term papers and projects and finals.

I am a member of that class. I cannot sit back and not acknowledge this affair, because for once it affects me. The rights to honesty and fairness were violated for thirty-five people by a small few. That was not a Jeremy Bentham-Utilitarian principle decision. Someone did not pay attention in Intro Philosophy, if that someone took it all at. One question for you: Can you look in the mirror in the morning with pride?

Critics should lend a hand

To the editor:

I'm writing in response to last week's editorial by Michael M. Menza and Michael L. Kronberg concerning a review of Players' production of The Lady From Dubuque in the November 19 issue of The Montclarion by Michael J. Cullen.

To begin, I want to point out that I am not well versed in the arts. However, the purpose of this letter is not to argue whether or not Cullen did a good job. It's main function is to point out, in my opinion a major misconception about the members of The Montclarion by Menza and Kronberg.

Both seem to feel Cullen is inexperienced and that "someone" else should have written the review. The misconception is "someone" is not always at the door where Cullen was willing to serve students to the best of his ability.

Perhaps, Menza and Kronberg being "educated" in the arts would be wiser in serving students rather than arguing against those that already do.

In conclusion, it is always far easier to complain than it is to act upon it. The door is always open for those who seek improvement.

Hooters hanging on a heartbeat

By Jennifer G. Stelovich
Arts Editor

Tuesday was not a Nervous Night for the Philadelphia band the Hooters. They rocked the Memorial Auditorium along with opening act Glen Burtnick. With a pulsating drum beat, Burtnick performed "Spinning My Wheels" off his Heroes and Zeroes album. Each of the band's numbers was marvelously energetic.

The first single, "Follow You," had the crowd on its feet. Burtnick leaped off the stage and roused the audience to cheer with him. For an second-billing band, Glen Burtnick was impressive.

The "One Way Home Tour" is an appropriate title for the Hooters concert. Their last show for 1987 was a smash at MSC.

Powerful surges of energy emanated from each member of the band. Their choreography was smooth and the harmony was fantastic.

"Nervous Night" (from the album of the same name) opened the show. The performers entered one by one grasping their individual instruments and pleasingly vibrating the crowd's eardrums.

Other favorites from Nervous Night included the upbeat tunes "Hanging on a Heartbeat" and "South Ferry Road." Both songs brought the older spirit of the Hooters back to life.

Fans roared and bopped to "Engine 999" and "Satellite Man," two red-hot songs from their newest LP One Way Home.

Rob Hyman performed a beautiful piano interlude to "Johnny B." This recent release kept the fans singing. The flip side to this single is Beatles' hit "Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds."

The remake is a memorable routine in the concerts. Guitarist Andy King gave a fantastic performance and sang with Hooters style and magic.

The famous "hooter" preface to the Hooters in concert. Their last show for 1987 was a smash at MSC. Hooters concert. Their last show for 1987 was a smash at MSC.
Godspell keeps the faith

By Caroline Scott
Correspondent

The following review is from a dress rehearsal of Godspell.

The Studio Theatre Series production of Godspell brings back a reason to have faith.

This musical, which is based on the gospel according to St. Matthew, has done and outstanding job of showing how to believe in God and in each other.

The cast, which consists of twelve members is difficult to identify by their roles since each takes on a specific character but use no character names.

Two persons who were most recognizable were, of course, Jesus, played by Stephen Bienski and John the Baptist who was portrayed by Rob Del Guidice. Bienski presented a very aimable, playful and lovable Jesus.

The cast most often works together as an ensemble and proceeds to act out parables and stories involving the Good Samaritan, Mary Magdelene and others. These parodies are told in a comic manner but you don’t miss the serious and sincere undertones. Organized religion plays no part in this show and brotherly love is a make-believe.

There is almost no set, and very few props are used throughout the performance. The costumes worn by the cast, aside from Jesus who is adorned in a simple black and white outfit, were extremely colorful. They brightened the show without having to add a complicated set.

If the parables did not arouse a person’s attention, the music did. Musical Director, Eric Diamond did a fantastic job of combining the sounds of rock, gospel and even rap music. He truly made the show a musical success.

The cast’s energy with the music was not very strong in the beginning of the first act. But as the energy level built up, until the audience was completely enveloped. Memorable songs included, “Day by Day” and “I Know I Am My Soul”.

To say that any one cast member stood out would be senseless since all were equally important to the overall performance.

Kimberly Palmisano, who directed as well as choreographed the show did excellent work. Everyone who worked on the show has reason to be proud.

The Studio Theatre series production of Godspell is well worth seeing and is guaranteed to make you laugh and maybe even bring a tear to your eye.

Godspell runs Thursday to Saturday, December 10th through the 12th at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theatre.

Tickets are $2, students $1.

For three years, Aztec Camera seemed to be in a dark, artistic theme. After two promising albums in 1983 and 1984, frontman Roddy Frame and his band were relatively quiet, releasing just a live 10 inch record. But a few months ago, the band’s third LP was released, albeit with an entirely new lineup. And this, in November 1987, the Ritz in New York City, Frame and company reemerged as one of the budding superstars of the 80’s and maybe the 90’s.

Frame’s songs are based on various themes of romanticism and optimism tied up in literature, not literary terms. But Aztec Camera is a quintessentially dimensional band that pours out ballad after ballad. In fact, the great majority of their songs are bouncy, pulsating, four-out ballad after ballad. In fact, if not literary terms. But Aztec Camera succeeded to “Walk Out to Win” himself with made the switch to the new lineup, “Frame and company.”

For three years, Aztec Camera seemed to be in a dark, artistic theme. After two promising albums in 1983 and 1984, frontman Roddy Frame and his band were relatively quiet, releasing just a live 10 inch record. But a few months ago, the band’s third LP was released, albeit with an entirely new lineup. And this, in November 1987, the Ritz in New York City, Frame and company reemerged as one of the budding superstars of the 80’s and maybe the 90’s.

Frame’s songs are based on various themes of romanticism and optimism tied up in literature, not literary terms. But Aztec Camera is a quintessentially dimensional band that pours out ballad after ballad. In fact, the great majority of their songs are bouncy, pulsating, four-out ballad after ballad. In fact, if not literary terms. But Aztec Camera succeeded to “Walk Out to Win” himself with made the switch to the new lineup, “Frame and company.”

Hard Rain

In concert together quite wonderfully.

To say that any one cast member stood out would be senseless since all were equally important to the overall performance.

Kimberly Palmisano, who directed as well as choreographed the show did excellent work. Everyone who worked on the show has reason to be proud.

The Studio Theatre series production of Godspell is well worth seeing and is guaranteed to make you laugh and maybe even bring a tear to your eye.

Godspell runs Thursday to Saturday, December 10th through the 12th at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theatre.

Tickets are $2, students $1.

Mahabharata: Hindu epic reborn

By James Curran

"It's the poetic History of mankind. If you listen carefully, at the end you'll be someone else." That's how Vyasa describes his poem, which he narrates to mankind. If you listen carefully, at the end you'll be someone else. Peter Brook, merely described "The Exile in the Forest" and "The War" as stick to the lives of its main characters.

The story is mainly concerned with the power struggle between two sets of cousins of the royal family of India. Now, brace yourselves, this part gets weird. The families are the Kauravas, the 100 sons of the King, Dhritarrashtra. They were all born from a single pregnancy which lasted two years. Their cousins are the Pandavas, the children of Dhriratharashtra's brother, Pandu's two wives. Pandu himself wasn't their father, since he was cursed, so that if he has sex, he will die. Eventually, he does, and does, but in the meantime, his wives call down the gods, and have five children by them. Got all that? Just be glad I didn't bring up the man with the head of an elephant or the woman born from a fish.

In the final preparation for the battle to come, both Yudishtirsha and Duryodhana try to enlist the support of the prophet Krishna. He says he will give all his armies and supplies to one side, and will advice (but not fight for) the other side. The Pandavas chose the consul, the Kauravas take the armies. And the stage is set for the third play, "The War." It is the focal point of the whole drama. Its one act lasts 3 1/2 hours, and is based on the section of the Mahabharata known as the Bhagavad Gita. The cousins armies square off in a battle that lasts years, and kills 60 Million. At one point the Kauravas unleash their sacred weapon, a "flame that's devouring the world. Men, animals, the earth itself. All are shriveling to ashes."

Remember, this was written 2000 years ago.

Through the war, the honest Yudishtirsha tries and tries to kill off his cousins, who slowly gain our sympathies, and Krishna is shown to be the ultimate villain—and the ultimate hero. In the end, everyone is dead, and arrives in a place that is neither Heaven, nor Hell, just Transquil. The whole production is performed in the deceptively simple set. It's wide open and covered with sand, like a desert plain, but with a pond up front and a river in the back. Occasionally fire shoots up from it.

Props are kept to a minimum. Interiors are shown by laying out a rug. Chariots are just a wheel, y'know, all are effective.

Another unique aspect of the show is the music. A five-piece band plays Indian instruments throughout the performance, providing incidental music, such as a movie. The cast of twenty-four come from a Ely couple, and4ounded. They divide up forty-five roles, with virtually none of the characters having a name that's easy to remember.

The play can be seen three different ways. Three consecuutive evenings, once a week for three weeks, or "The Marathon" all three parts in one day (1 pm to about midnight, with 90 minute intermissions.) Presently there are eight scheduled performances left before it closes in January. All but one are marathons.

At the Movies
Martin and Candy move on

By Tom Boud
Staff Writer

Laughter has always been a big success on the moviegoing crowd ever since Hollywood came into existence back in the roaring twenties. After all, there's no better form of entertainment to get your mind off your troubles. Bearing this in mind, Paramount Studios released "Planes, Trains, and Automobiles," a boisterous comedy about two misfits as they travel by different modes of transportation. This technique enabled Martin to be both critical and comical at the same time. In addition, this technique also makes the viewer see considerable differences between the characters: Martin's critical self versus Candy's free-wheeling frivolity. "Airplanes, Trains, and Automobiles" is altogether a fine movie. There are a few times where the comedy is slow and the swearing is extreme yet the comedy will make you laugh again and again. I highly recommend this film for anyone who could use three and one-half stars worth of a good time.

SILC is a Class I of the SGA
Intramurals to be handled by Athletic Dept.

By Kenny Peck
Sports Editor

The Intramurals/Campus Recreation Department, formerly under the direction of the Student Activities office, will be placed under the supervision of the Athletic Department beginning January 1.

"The Student Intramural Leisure Council (SILC) will continue to program and organize activities for students," according to SILC advisor Frank Petrozzino. "The only difference is that the supervision of the department is being shifted from the Student Activities office to the Athletic Department."

"There was talk that SILC would lose out on their rights to use the facilities, but that's not going to happen," continued Petrozzino, a former member of SILC while a student here at MSC. "SILC will still be run business as usual, and their activities and other recreational events will not suffer in any way by the transition."

SILC treasurer Don Phelps felt the change would benefit the organization and its events.

"As long as it doesn't affect us negatively, it doesn't bother us," Phelps said. "It will probably even help us, as we might be able to use more facilities more often."

The roadrunners got back into the game as their pressing defense forced the Indians into turnovers and they cashed in on offensive rebounds to tie the game 48-48.

Ramapo took their first lead of the second half as two free throws gave them a 50-48 lead. Rodriguez and Scott's jumpers upped their lead to 48-39.

The Indians increased their lead to 68-60 on Edward White's jumper, and Albertson's three-point shot from Rodriguez and Scott's jumpers.

The Indians increased their lead to 68-60 on Edward White's jumper, and Albertson's offensive rebound, off Vincent Filippone's missed free throw gave MSC a 71-60 lead with less than two minutes remaining. Ramapo applied all out defensive pressure to get back into the game but the Indians were able to hold on and preserve the win.

Phillips named MVP

Women take Dial Classic

By Jim Agostine
Staff Writer

MSC hosted its ninth annual Dial Classic Basketball Tournament at Panzer Gymnasium on December 4 and 5 and saw the sixth year captured first place honors.

Senior Nancy Phillips was named Most Valuable Player for the tournament, as she averaged 19 points per game. MSC Head Coach Jill Jeffrey felt the tournament was ‘competitive’, and ‘each team was strong.’

“It’s tough when you have two games back-to-back, especially a day game after a night game,” Jeffrey said. “But all of the teams involved with the tournament played well.”

Buffalo St. 87- Miskungin 73

The first round of eliminations was played on Friday night between Miskungin College of Ohio and Buffalo State College of New York.

The Bengals advanced to the championship round on Saturday with the win.

MSC 78 - Upsala 47

The lady Indians, led by sophomore Tomasena Powell, went on to beat Upsala College (2-2) in the second game of eliminations on Friday night.

Powell, who along with Phillips was named to the All-Tournament team, had an outstanding game, sinking five field goals, two three-pointers and one rebound.

Freshmen Lauren Singleton made an impressive showing as she scored 14 points, which came in the form of five baskets and four free throws in addition to her eight rebounds.

Freshman Kim Wilson added 11 points for the Indians.

With just over 10 minutes left in the game, MSC went on an 11 point scoring spree, which pushed the Indians ahead 62-38.

Senior Nancy Phillips and sophomores Jackie Martinez and Francis Collins each scored three baskets for the Indians.

MSC 63 - Buffalo St. 62

In the final round of the Dial Classic, MSC faced Buffalo State in a very closely matched Championship game.

Phillips took control for the Indians with an extraordinary game, which included 14 baskets and three free throws for a total of 31 points.

The teams went into halftime with the Indians leading 32-29. At one point in the second half, the Indians were up by nine and threatening to pull away. But Buffalo State fought back and took a four point lead with about 2:30 left in the game.

With 1:05 left, Phillips took a pass from Sue Ehrmann and gave the Indians the lead for good, 63-62. Buffalo State had a chance to win the game, but missed on consecutive shots as time expired.

“Everyone played to the best of their abilities,” an obviously excited Jill Jeffrey said afterwards.

“Sue Ehrmann had a few clutch turnaround jumpers, and Carolyn Savio grabbed some clutch rebounds. Our individual strengths really came to the surface,” said Jeffrey, adding proudly, “We played with a lot of heart.”

Jersey City State 46- MSC 44

The Indians (3-2) faced the Goths of Jersey City State College (JCSS) in their first match since the Dial Classic, suffering their first defeat at the hands of JCSS in the school’s history of women’s basketball.

The Indians had the advantage by a score of 18-16 against the Goths at halftime.

JCSS pulled ahead, however, in the latter part of the second half with three points from freshman Aleta Faggan and stole the lead 45-39.

MSC scored five of the final six points in a last ditch effort to decrease the deficit.

Freshman Kim Wilson cut the lead to 46-44 with one of her three baskets.

The game’s leading scorer, senior Nancy Phillips, collected a total of 18 points, including eight baskets and two free throws.

MSC freshman Tomasena Powell also had a good game, hitting for three three-pointers.

Ice Hockey

The MSC ice hockey club jumped out to an early lead only to have it evaporate as Rutgers battled back to secure a 4-4 tie at the Brendan Byrne Arena.

Fresh from last Sunday’s win from Columbia, MSC moved out to take the lead in the first period as John Capell scored unassisted with just 3:27 on the clock.

Three minutes later, Jon Capristo added a goal on a power-play off a Frank Alleso pass to give MSC a 2-0 advantage.

Rutgers then broke through MSC’s defense and scored two goals in quick succession, tying the score at two. Alleso then responded for the Indians by scoring a goal at 10:21 to give MSC a 3-2 lead. Rutgers was unable to add anything to the scoreboard through the rest of the period, thanks to the tightened defense provided by Indians Angelo Appio and Bill Talady.

The second period saw MSC dominate the Knights defensive zone, but with little benefit and much frustration for the Indians. Tony Scalzo scored with an assist from Talady, but the period was one of bad breaks for MSC, as an apparent goal was disallowed by the officials.

Rutgers played ‘catch up’ in the final period, mostly on powerplay opportunities, and was able to knot the score, giving the Scarlet Knights a 4-4 tie.

Bowling

The MSC bowling team was in action Sunday at Lodi Lanes. In the opener, the Indians dropped 224-626 decision to New Jersey Institute of Technology, Senior Bob Draney led the way for MSC with a 251-636 series. The Indians bounced back to top Bryant College in the second match of the day by a score of 18-8. Team Captain Gary McCarthy led all bowlers with a 232-624 series. Dave Oldenhage also bowled well with a 597 series.

Indians crack win column with victory over Ramapo

MSC withstood a furious charge by Ramapo to come away with a dramatic 74-66 win at Panzer Gym Saturday.

The victory upped the Indians to 3-2, as they were able to take control of the game early in the second half and hang on for the win.

MSC Head Coach Oliver Gelston said, “We still have a long way to go, but we played with much more intensity. We were troubled by the press in the end we handled it well.”

Both teams started the game slowly as the Roadrunners’ trapping defense stymied the Indians’ attack. The result was easy fast break opportunities for Ramapo.

The Indians crept back into the game as their forwards found the shooting touch. Both teams played evenly with the score staying back and forth with four minutes remaining in the first half, Mark Scott’s dunk tied the game 31-31.

The Roadrunners then forged ahead 33-31 on a steal and fast break basket. Guard Wilson Rodriguez, however, gave the Indians the halftime lead as he stole the ball and fed Chris Albertson for the basket and a 35-33 advantage.

The Indians opened the second half with a full court defensive blitz, and it paid off as MSC reeled off five straight points. Rodriguez stole the ball and fouled on the drive to the basket.

On the Roadrunners’ next possession, the Indians knocked the ball out of bounds. Junior co-captain Mike Wegryznak intercepted the inbounds pass and fed Scott for the jam. Rodriguez penetrated the Roadrunners’ defense and dished the ball out to Brunner for an easy score. The Indians held Ramapo scoreless to grab a 40-33 lead.

The Roadrunners called a quick timeout as MSC started to take control of the game. The timeout helped the Roadrunners regain their composure, as they managed to score inside on their next play.

Wegryznak gave the Indians a 42-36 lead as he scored on a drive to the basket. The forward picked up the offensive foul but his basket ignited the MSC fastbreak.
