Students support library hours extension

Twenty percent turnout in referendum success

By Paul Mampilly
Assignment Editor

The referendum conducted last semester, mainly to see if students would support an SGA fee increase was a success. The organizers mobilized more than 20 percent of the student body to vote on five questions that included extending library hours, increasing the SGA fee, replacing the freshman representative election with a freshmen petition process, removing the student body referendum and also removing grammatical errors and inconsistencies from the constitution of the SGA.

Over 85 percent of the voters favored the fee increase and nearly 95 percent were in support of the proposed library hours. The other questions were passed with favorable percentages falling between 85 percent and 95 percent.

The campaign for the referendum started in December with flyers posted all over campus encouraging voters to Just say yes.

The campaign cost the SGA approximately $1000. Rob Acerra, president of the SGA said, "The financial benefits of the fee increase outweigh any cost incurred for the publicity and advertising campaign of the referendum." Although the students have ratified the five questions, the fee increase has to be approved by the Board of Trustees.

Acerra stated, "The fee increase will help solve some of the SGA's financial problems and will also be used for more programming through Class I, Class II and Class III organizations of the SGA.

Acerra was confident that the board would approve the fee increase and that it would be implemented by Fall '89. Acerra has scheduled meetings with Acting President Dr. Richard Lynde, Acting Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. Gregory Waters, President of the Faculty Senate, Lois Guthrie and Director of Library Services, Dr. Blanche Haller for the extension of library hours with immediate effect.

"I am sure the administration will see the academic benefits which would be made possible through an extension," said Acerra.

The Faculty Senate has also passed a resolution urging the administration to look into the extension of the library hours.

Tom Mergola, a legislator said, "The election was a success. We were able to pool the efforts of the entire SGA to gain the necessary votes. The student voice has been heard, now it is up to the administrators to act upon the results.

The tabulated results to the referendum questions are given below.

The first question was, "Should the SGA constitution be amended to eliminate gender references and obsolete portions and to clarify and rearrange sections?" and received 1906 (94.6 percent) favorable votes and 108 (5.4 percent) unfavorable votes.

Question 2 asked, "Should the Student Government Fee be increased by the maximum allowable up to 5%?" This question received 1754 (86.4 percent) votes for and 277 (13.6 percent) votes against.

"Should the SGA constitution be amended to change freshman representative elections to freshmen representative appointments to the legislature?" One thousand six hundred and thirty five (82 percent) supported the amendment and 334 (18 percent) did not.

Question four, which asked if "the SGA constitution should be amended to eliminate the power of referendum by the student body and to include general referendum provisions for the legislature?" was approved with 1590 (80.3 percent) in favor and 391 (19.7 percent) unfavorable

The fifth question asked if "Sprague Library hours should be extended to 12 midnight Sun. through Thur. and to 10 p.m., Fri. and Sat." and received 1967 (96.8 percent) votes for and 64 (3.2 percent) against.

Student dies in tragic accident

By Shawn M. Smith

Blanton Hall students will hold a memorial service tonight at 10:00 p.m. in the Blanton Hall atrium for a Blanton Hall resident who was killed by an automobile last week.

Patricia Ann McLoughlin of Red Bank, 19, was killed after being struck by a car on Route 35 in Middleton, according to Edward Martin, dean of students at MSC.

The college administration and residents expressed shock about McLoughlin's sudden death. "It is a terrible tragedy when anyone passes away," said Martin, "but to lose someone who was apparently so bright and vivacious only magnifies the heartache we all feel. I'm sure everyone in the college is concerned about her family and her many friends who have been touched by this tragedy."

Martin indicated that McLoughlin was interested in gymnastics and the student council at Middletown High School South. She was an honors student there, and also maintained a grade point average of over 3.0 at MSC.

Leeann Tucker, a friend of McLoughlin, said her friends have had a "real bad time this week." She described Patricia as a "good resident," very active and "spunky."

Tucker said that Patricia's parents have opened a Patty McLoughlin Trust Fund in order to provide a scholarship for a needy high school student. Any student wishing to donate to the Fund can contact Resident Assistant Dawn Van Der Meulen, 5B22, in Blanton Hall or send donations directly to The Patty McLoughlin Trust Fund, 7, Brook Street, Red Bank, NJ 07701.

Prices of SGA pharmacy program increased

By Mike Heelan
Staff Writer

During the first SGA meeting of the spring semester, the legislature approved an increase for prescriptions provided by Singac pharmacy of Little Falls.

Acerra said, "Last fall, the owner of Singac pharmacy ran approximately 300 dollars in the red from dealing with the SGA. This was primarily because of the large number of birth control prescriptions provided at a lower than average cost by the pharmacy to students."

According to Acerra, "Until now, a set charge was assessed on all prescriptions purchased through the plan. An average of 150 prescriptions per month were filled for birth control last semester. This formed approximately 60 percent of all orders filled."

The new price effective today is seven dollars for birth control pills and four dollars for most other prescription drugs. For further information, visit the SGA office in the lower level of the Student Center or by calling 893-4202.

A recruit drive is in progress to raise the number of SGA legislators. According to Acerra, "The student government is very anxious to see a broad representation of the student body sitting on the legislature. I encourage all concerned to attend the open-house and pick up a petition to become a legislator."

Any student interested may attend the open house on Feb. 2, in ballroom B of the Student Center between 12 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. Another open house will be held on Feb. 3, in Room 413 of the Student Center between 3:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m.

The free-phone service available from the SGA to the students has been suspended indefinitely stemming from the most recent vandalism of the phones. A study has been initiated to see if it is worthwhile replacing the damaged phones.

More funds allocated for clean up of landfill

By Jane Bech

With a small agenda, the MSC Board of Trustees met for the last time in 1987 on December 10. For the first time since he was appointed acting president, Dr. Lynde presided over the board meeting. He reported that Dr. Walters' treatment has been completed and tests will now be performed.

Additional funds for the removal of the landfill located at the Clove Road apartments was approved. The new marketing campaign, initiated during the fall of 1987 has proved successful. Lynde reported that two highly successful open houses were held during the fall for prospective students and their parents. Attendance was double that of last year's events.

DROP-IN CENTER TRAINING SESSION

The Drop-In Center, (an information, referral and peer counseling service) is staffed entirely by student volunteers. The caliber of the services offered to the student body cannot be maintained without you. If you want to help people, learn more about yourself, and do something constructive with your time for 10 hours (min.) a week, this could be the toughest non-paying job you have ever loved. While the training is rigorous and the commitment level high, the experience will be carried throughout your life.

The Drop-In Center is a good place to grow for students of all majors. We will teach you the lost art of listening as you learn by doing.

In-service instruction will include; On-campus referrals, Bus and Rail routing, Psychological referrals, Health referrals, Sexual Health referrals and Publicity.

Registration and counseling needs

Registration. MSC students hear that word and cringe. They've become accustomed to mass confusion, poor organization, and a great amount of time spent waiting for classes that they either may or may not get. So many believe it is an unavoidable fact of college life.

Counseling. This word strikes no particular reaction in an MSC student, because many have never been given a good example of what it means. Students know their counselors (if at all) as the people who will sign their registration forms regardless of the classes they've taken, and without any advice on their choices. This task has been accepted as a fact of college life.

Perhaps we are too parochial on our views on life. Evidence has been observed on other college campuses about their methods of registration. Imagine one displaced student's shock when she found herself on the campus of Syracuse University, one of the east coast's largest institutions, listening to undergraduates describe their computerized registration system. They actually walked into a building and discussed courses with a counselor who then scheduled the courses by computer. The students then walked out a half hour later, schedules in hand!

Of course, Syracuse University is very large. But how does one explain the fact that a smaller college, such as Union County College, has a system where students can actually phone in their registration requirements, and so few counselors for so many students, the new system will not guarantee that your entire schedule will be delivered intact. But registration procedures will certainly be more efficient.

Unfortunately, the counseling MSC students receive can not be replaced through computerization. The fact remains that any student at any college, large or small, is still in need of personal academic guidance. At the late registration for the spring of 1988, those in Panzer gym found that the small circle of counselors in the center were outnumbered by students hired by the registrar's office to work for minimum wage during the three-day session. With all the departments having different requirements, and so few counselors for so many students, the academic advising center might need a major overhaul to complement our new registration system.

It is wonderful that MSC will soon catch up with other educational institutions in registration procedures. However, our counseling system is still the most important factor in registering for new classes.

A dangerous “press-edent”?

Two weeks ago, the Supreme Court handed down its decision in Hazelwood School District v. Kuhlmeier. The Court upheld the authority of the high school's principal to restrict what is printed in the paper. The reality of this decision will take time to set in though.

While the ruling should be applauded, Justice Byron R. White's majority opinion leaves much to be desired. In place of sound, narrow reasoning, Justice White leaves the door wide open to the dangerous censorship about which many are fearful.

In May, 1983 the students in Hazelwood East High School's Journalism II class were preparing Spectrum, the school's newspaper, as usual. The paper came out every two to three weeks and sold for twenty-five cents a copy. They were taught and advised by Mr. Emerson, who was paid by the school district.

As usual, Emerson submitted the paper to the principal, Mr. Reynolds, for approval. Reynolds was concerned that real stories on teen pregnancy and abortion and divorce were inappropriate for some students and might turn students away from the school. This reasoning concludes that the school must be able to “disassociate itself” by simply censoring the students' ideas.

Reynolds instructed Emerson not to print the two pages with the questionable stories. Cathy Kahneiner, Lee Ann Tippet-West, and Leslie Smart, student-journalists, claimed that the actions constituted a violation of their First Amendment rights.

The decision, which overturned the Court of Appeals decision for the Eighth Circuit, needs to be an amalgam of public school's missions is to teach, that readers are not exposed to activities that [may be] perceived to bear the public forum for its intended audience.

The majority wants the “educator to assure that the participants learn whatever lessons the activity is designed to teach, that readers are not exposed to material that may be inappropriate for their level of maturity, and [emphasis added] that the views of the individual speaker are not erroneously attributed to the school." This reasoning concludes that the school must be able to “disassociate itself” by simply censoring student-journalists.

The dissenters appropriately counter that “the state education's mandate to inculcate values is not a general warrant to act as ‘thought police' stifling discussion of all but state-approved topics and advocacy of all but the official position.”

The balance must be struck between these majority and dissenting views. As the Court noted in Fraser, there are “special characteristics of the school environment.” One of the public school's missions is “teaching children to respect the diversity of ideas that is fundamental to the American system.” (Tinker) The Supreme Court should be careful not to insulate students from the “real” world even more than presently. Its reasoning in Hazelwood runs that very real and dangerous risk.
Bookstore gets a bad rap

Once again, the spring semester has arrived at MSC. As with the beginning of any semester, it's time for registration lines, bills, and book-buying.

Book-buying has always been tough—especially when it follows the tuition bill. Every semester, there are the same complaints. Professors request we purchase books that they rarely refer to. Money is spent with the aggravating thought that not even a quarter of it will be refunded at buy-back.

Students make the mistake of blaming the high prices on the College Bookstore, viewing it as a profit-hungry monopoly out to claim the first-born child of each of its customers. Richard Ammerman, manager of the College Bookstore, says this is not the case. The College Bookstore's mark up follows the national averages of current industry mark ups: 20 to 25 percent.

So what's the story behind the College Bookstore's high prices? "Textbook prices (even for bookstores at wholesale) are literally outrageous," says Ammerman. In the past one and a half years, however, the bookstore has tried to deflect the wholesale prices by selling more used books at reduced prices. There are, according to Ammerman, "Three times the amount of used books being sold this year than last year."

To facilitate the sale of used books, the bookstore has increased its buy-back list, which helps students financially by increasing the amount of books they can sell at buy-back. The buy-back policy, of course, has its drawbacks. Why must students sell books for less than half of what they paid for them? The crucial factor in the amount of money a book will return at buy-back is based on the demand for it. If a professor will request a book for the bookstore, the book is guaranteed a spot on the buy-back list. If the book isn't needed, then students will receive a 50 percent refund on their purchase. If the book is outdated, or if there is no demand for it, or if the bookstore's stocks have been filled, then the student is at the mercy of the wholesaler's buy-back rate, which is significantly lower than the bookstore's.

There are about eight major wholesalers on the market today. If anyone can be branded a greedy monopolizer with an eye for our first-born, they're the ones. The College Bookstore does what it can by selling as many used books as possible. Private-owned bookstores were cornering the market, driving the prices of certain services.

The SGA feels confident that with this endorsement the Board of Trustees will unanimously vote in favor of such an increase, thus enabling the SGA to vastly improve the programs and services offered to you.

The SGA legislature has been decreasing in size for the last several years while the number of issues concerning the students have dramatically increased. Although the Legislature is able to adequately represent the views of the student body, the need for more legislators is a major thrust of the SGA's current recruitment drive.

Become a part of it! Experience the benefits the theme of the recruitment program. The benefits of becoming a legislator are many. A student will be able to gain great leadership and organizational skills which may be put to use when searching for a job. The opportunity for $4000 is made available for all legislators.

If all this sounds interesting and you would like to make a difference in what goes on at MSC, take time out to attend the SGA Open House. SGA Executive Board will be on hand from 12:00 to 2:00 p.m. in the SGA Office in the Student Center, Ballrooms and Wednesdays, February 3 at 3:00p.m in room 413 of the Student Center.

$4000 is made available for all MSC students who are aware of this opportunity and who want to run for a position in the SGA.

Let me start by welcoming all of you who are transferring into the MSC campus community. From the professors who make announcements in their classes to the Student Affairs administration who continually support our efforts, your assistance and encouragement were greatly appreciated. Still, it was you, the students, who made this idea a reality of many.

Moonstruck shines
By Jennifer G. Stelevich
Arts Editor
As the sun sets and the moon reaches its apex of radiance, magic fills the air. This ivory body brightly glows upon the people in its path. So does Norman Jewison's new film, Moonstruck. Shining brightly, the movie entertains with its own warm glow. The characters invite the audience to care for them and join their lives.

Set in Little Italy, Moonstruck touches the lives of the Castorini family. From the kitchen to the living room, the Castorini's welcome the movie-goers to their humble abode.

Cher (Suspect, Mask) stars as widow Loretta Castorini. With a tough drawl and hopeless brown eyes, she portrays a vibrant character. Cher performs marvelously, this is possibly her best film. Her lines are delivered naturally as she reveals the inner depth of her role. Cher's father Cosmo (Vincent Gardenia) doesn't approve of her relationship with Johnny (Nicolas Cage). Cage (Peggy Sue Got Married, Valley Girl) plays a mixture of gruffness and sensitivity. His tender performance reveals what-cast abilities.

Loretta's mother Rose (Olympia Dukakis) wisely interjects anecdotes and insults. Maternal wisdom and pasta are definitely her specialties. The film is wonderfully directed by Jewison. Each glance and phrase glides rhythmically throughout the film. The Castorini family reveals compassion and strong will. The audience can easily recognize aunts and uncles, or even closer relatives, in the lovely characters.

Moonstruck combines happiness and confusion in a well performed film. This movie is a delightful, heart-warming comedy. Leaving the theatre, patrons hummed and sang Amore, the closing tune. Not every film stirs an audience so well. Moonstruck deserves three and one half stars.

The symbolic theme of the moon is combined with the love among the many characters. Its brightness gives them hope and revitalizes their lives. For those of you who hate the Morton Downey Jr. Show, check this out. On a show about Catholicism (which was never aired) a gay rights activist suggested that Downey's three marriages did not reflect well on the depth of his faith.

Downey intelligently responded, "Keep your bodily fluids to yourself!"

More insults were exchanged and finally Downey slapped the man across the face. The scuffle has since resulted in a lawsuit.

Finally, Late Night talk show host David Letterman has split with his live-in lover/former Head Writer Merril Markoe. Fortunately, Dave has maintained custody of his two German Shepherds, Stan and Bob.

Things to watch for: Thursday night at 8:30 p.m. ABC will air Roger Moore's first performance as James Bond in Live and Let Die.

Personals
—American Buffalo is coming!

—Dude, are you going to take off the skirt, grow up and get a real job? APO, C.L.R.D.T.
—To the discriminating person who sent me the Godiva’s. Thank you. You made my day and then some. Pat N.
—To Chris P./Mr. 42K a year—When you gonna take me for a ride in your new BMW? Stuck in Traffic, Roxy.
—Mindy—When you’re done rocking the cradle, hop into my playpen. Waiting “The Pacificer.”
—Dear Brothers of APO—Welcome back! Get ready for a great semester. Your executive board.
—Kris—You’ll make a great legislator. Keep up the good work. Tommy.
—Dear Art—the brothers of APO would like to thank you for your previous help and support. We’re all looking forward to seeing you soon.
—Father Art—Thanks for all the help, Tommy.
—Anthrax at L’Amours and Capitol. The establishment will never be the same. Keep moshing Frank and Joe. Love you always, Moshette.
—Well Injun Joe, another semester of personals or what? Saw you at L’Amours, you were great, but that eyeliner? Love ya, Moshette.
—Fran—Don’t worry, you can’t smell a thing. No one will ever notice. Frank and Joe. I couldn’t be happier...OK, I lied. The extermination of Fofana. Never forget 13 shots and one more for Letterman. Love ya.

—Tomboy—Smile, man. There’s no more Fran. And now we’re gonna rock. No more Rich. Goodbye you witch. Montclair will be in shock.
—Hey soft lips—if we keep this up, we’ll never get any sleep. Just one obstacle. We will be together eventually. Late Nights.
—Patty—Thanks for understanding. I know it was tough, but you can still forget your earings; If you want. 19th to the 23rd? Bonhead.
—Tracy—See what happens when you let me out of your sight for even one minute. Next time you better hold my hand. Love, Karin.
—Dana Baxaro—Congratulations! Now it’s just you and Rambo. I couldn’t be happier.

—For your previous help and support. We’re all looking forward to seeing you soon.
—Father Art—Thanks for all the help, Tommy.

Men's Swimming

The 400-meter relay team, consisting of Andy Pecoraro, Bob Bagnato, Mike Pavolony and Karl Angersbach, grabbed a first place finish but the Indians could not overcome five first place berths captured by Glassboro State as the Profs defeated MSC by a score of 104-60.

Pecoraro and Angersbach continued to shine against NY Maritime, as each swimmer captured two victories. Pecoraro won the 1000 and 500 meters freestyles in 10:36.95 and 1:57.21 respectively, while Angersbach took the 200 meter freestyle in 1:57.21 and the 100 meter freestyle in 52.92.

Women's Swimming

Gail Meneghin walked away with two first place victories against Glassboro State but the Profs accumulated five wins of their own to secure the victory, 97-63. Meneghin was part of a winning 400-meter relay that grabbed first place in a time of 4:22.71. Kim Muller, Tabitha Jacobus and Jackie Press were Meneghin's teammates in the race.

Against Southern Connecticut, Muller, Jacobus, Meneghin and Alycia Witten took first place in the 200-meter medley in a time of 1:58.25. Witten also won the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:07.15 while Meneghin took the 200-meter breaststroke in 2:09.21. The combination of Leslie DeLuca, Kathleen LaRosa, Press and Whitten also was victorious, capturing first in the 200-meter free medley in 1:58.25. The Indians, however, were on the short end of a 129-92 decision.

Wrestling

In a triangular meet at Ithaca, John Kadarsha pinned his opponent at 3:24 of the second period in the 118 pound class to help the Indians to a victory. Jim DeSopo also notched a win in the heavyweight division.

MSC also faced the number one ranked Division III team in the nation in Trenton State and came away with a loss despite strong showings by Pete Gonzalez (134) and Karl Monaco (150), who each pinned their opponents. Mike Massefski (142) and Pete Georgoutsos (190) both registered decisions for the Indians, who are ranked sixth nationally.

Gymnastics

In a triangular meet at Ursinus University, Carrie Spender took third place in the all-around competition with a 27.2 total, while teammates Valerie Vogler and Danielle Oehlich won the floor exercise and the balance beam respectively. Vogler grabbed an 8.05 on floor, while Oehlich finished with a 7.8 on beam.

Trivia Time-Out

Each week, The Montclarion publishes a list of sports questions and answers to test your knowledge of sports trivia. In addition, there is a sports stumper which will be answered in the following issue.

If you think you have the correct answer to the stumper, drop it off at The Montclarion office in Room 113 of the Student Center Annex. The names of those submitting the correct answer will be published in the next week’s issue. Deadline for submissions is Monday at 3 p.m.

1. What is the name given to sports teams at the University of Massachusetts?
2. Who was the only baseball player to be named Most Valuable Player in both major leagues?
3. What NFL team played in the Super Bowl four times but never won?
4. What boxer was known as the Manassa Mauler?
5. What famous 1892 fight was the first world’s championship ever settled with gloves?

This week’s stumper:
What is former NFL great Sonny Jurgenson’s real first name?

Men fall to Kean

By Kenny Peck
Sports Editor

Pressure defense by Kean yielded costly MSC turnovers in the second half, enabling the Cougars to escape Panzer Gym with a 62-58 win in a New Jersey Athletic Conference men's basketball contest last night.

"I'm pleased with the way we played," Indian head coach Ollie Gelston said afterward. "We just played a little panicky when we were pressed."

MSC took a 32-30 lead into the locker room at halftime, and built it into a five point bulge on a Chris Albertson basket 3:09 into the second half. But Kean ran off seven straight points to take a 39-37 advantage, and the Indians never saw the lead again.

The Cougars led by as much as ten with about four minutes left in the game, but MSC fought back and got within four points, 60-56, on a Greg Givelmore basket. Albertson led the Indians with 15 points, while Wilbert Jones and Greg Favel added 10 each.

MSC's Chris Albertson scores on a layup last night against Kean. The Indians lost, 62-58.

Three new coaches named by Athletic Dept.

By Sid Banditt
Correspondent

The MSC Athletic Department has recently appointed three new head coaches to fill openings in the lacrosse, baseball, and gymnastic coaching staffs.

Norman Schoenig was named as the new head baseball coach for the 1988 season. Schoenig is a 1973 graduate of MSC with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Social Studies. He is a former member of the 1972 Indian baseball squad.

He returns to the MSC staff after accumulating 14 years of coaching experience on levels varying from grade school to semi-professional.

He began his coaching career at Rockaway Valley School in Boonton, N.J., where he started out as a history teacher, and later went on to become head baseball coach.

Schoenig returned to teach and coach baseball and football at MSC from 1977-83. While at MSC, he led the team to several Division III Regional, State and National Championships.

In 1983, Schoenig left MSC to be the assistant coach at Rutgers University. He helped the team to an NCAA Regional berth as well as a number one ranking team defensively in the nation.

Cooney resigned to take over the head coaching job at Florida Atlantic.

Coach Schoenig makes his return to MSC to take charge of former coach Kevin Cooney's 1987 championship team, as Cooney resigned to take over the head coaching job at Florida Atlantic.

Jena Agosta was named the new gymnastics coach for the remainder of the 1988 season.

Agosta is a 1977 graduate of Kean College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Special Education.

She is the former coach of the Valley High School girls gymnastics squad, where she also was a teacher and head cheerleading coach for three years.

Coach Agosta replaces Keith Harris as head coach of the team. Harris was recently relieved of his duties as a result of illness.

MSC welcomes Douglas Al-
