How an education can work for you

By Shawn M. Smith
Staff Writer

Have you ever wondered, "How can I apply my liberal arts education to the business world?"

Wonder no longer. Beginning February 22, MSC will be hosting Thomas G. Gaspar, executive director of Merck's International Division, as part of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation's Visiting Fellows program. The program was established by the Department of Higher Education to demonstrate the value of humanities and liberal arts studies as preparation for careers in business and other vocations.

The New Jersey Visiting Fellows are senior executives of major New Jersey corporations who spend a week on the campuses of participating colleges helping students and faculty relate a liberal education to the business world.

They will be available for public presentations, classes, informal conversations and counselling.

Gaspar, the Visiting Fellow at MSC for 1987-88, is active in the Governor's Commission on World Trade, Subcommittee on Education, and strongly believes in a liberal arts preparation.

He sees the undergraduate years as a time for exploration and expansion of knowledge, and is interested in making graduates of New Jersey colleges competitive in the job market.

"This is a wonderful opportunity to speak directly, in an informal setting, with a leader of one of the state's, and nation's, corporations," Dr. Edward Martin, MSC dean of students, advises. "I plan to meet with him, and would encourage as many students as possible to also take advantage of this week-long visit."

Professor Robert McCormick of the Spanish/Italian department will be coordinating Gaspar's visit. Questions can be directed to him at 893-4314. Yes, it's another price increase. The SGA legislature approved an increase for prescriptions provided by Singac pharmacy of Little Falls. The new prices are $7 for birth control pills and $4 for most other prescriptions. Previously a Set charge was assessed on all prescriptions purchased through the plan. The new prices went into effect on Jan. 28. For more information visit the SGA office in the lower level of the Student Center.

Landfill nearing its close

By Paul Mampilly
Assignment Editor

Cleanup of the controversial landfill located next to the New Jersey Broadcasting station on Clove Road is underway and could be completed within a few weeks.

Part one of a two-part series
Pat Nieder, director of public information and spokesperson for the college, reported that the work was "almost two thirds of the way done," and is optimistic it will be completed by early February.

Work began late last semester on cleaning the former landfill site. Enroser Inc., of Clayton, has been excavating the garbage and dirt dumped there under a 1975 contract between MSC and Carrino Trucking and Contracting Co., of Belleville.

The garbage, according to Nieder, "was non toxic and non hazardous and was not dangerous to the surrounding environment."

The contract, which was signed in February 1975, was approved by the MSC administration despite serious reservations raised by students and residents of the surrounding communities.

Several months after dumping had begun, MSC revoked the contract with Carrino citing violations of the terms proscribed in the contract.

After a protracted litigation lasting almost eight years, the college was ordered by the court to fulfill the contract.

The public once again began to protest against the landfill, charging that it was a health hazard for students and surrounding residents. Governor Thomas Kean finally put the issue to rest by signing a bill in 1983 that permanently closed the landfill at MSC and prohibited any college in New Jersey from having the same on its premises.

Approximately $450,000 was allocated to MSC in order to close the landfill and clean up the 6700 cubic yards of non-hazardous solid waste dumped there.

Under the clean-up contract, the dumpsite is to be restored to its original state—a rock quarry.

Nieder said, "We hope that eventually when funds become available, the area will be landscaped for a field area."

William H. Griffith, vice president for administration and finance at MSC, was quoted in The Newark Star-Ledger as saying, "The contract (with Enroser) stipulates that several control measures be employed during this removal to mitigate odors and nuisance."

"The Star-Ledger adds that, 'Griffith said trucks transporting the excavated material are required to be watertight and completely covered, and they must use the most direct route to and from the site, mainly Route 46 to Clove Road."

The cleanup of the garbage is expected to be completed by this Friday. However the clay bottom which was placed there will be removed by next week.

In next week's article we will have the chief engineer in charge of the clean up describe its progress and the MSC administration's view about the landfill.

Walters undergoes radiation treatment

By Paul Mampilly
Assignment Editor

MSC President Donald Walters, hospitalized last year for a brain tumor, is recovering from successful radiation treatment according to Acting President Dr. Richard E. Lynde.

Lynde said, "Dr. Walters continues to improve and gain strength. He has just undergone a series of tests after successful radiation treatment and is doing well. The treatment does take its toll physically on a person and hence I can't give any definite date as to when he will be back."

"President Walters has undergone radiation treatment mainly as an outpatient and is at home going through the recovery period," said Lynde. "Walters still needs medication in certain dosages but will be off that in the near future."

"President Walters is looking forward to getting back on his feet," said Lynde, "but will take some time, since radiation treatment is quite traumatic to the system."

"The president is constantly apprised of college business while he recovers and is very much in touch with what is going on. We all hope he will be back soon."

Lynde is the acting president until Walters is fit enough to take over his duties once again. He has been granted leave of absence until May 12 by the Board of Trustees.

A FUN CLASS ONE ORGANIZATION OF THE SGA
Gospel choir celebrates in style

By Mike Heelan
Staff Writer

The SGA Legislature, after a lengthy discussion last night, appropriated $3000 to the Black Student Cooperative Union (BSCU) for gospel choir robes.

An argument opposing the approval of funds was raised concerning BSCU’s lack of participation during the SGA fee increase referendum voting in December. However, a new BSCU executive board has since taken office. The BSCU for gospel choir robes.

The college administration has employed Compass, a consulting firm, to recommend the optimum method for meeting the colleges existing auxiliary service needs. The Faculty-Student Cooperative Association, is currently responsible for auxiliary services on campus. Some services are the bookstore, candystore, Rathskellar, gameroom, flea market, and the vending operation.

"Hopefully, this will prove to lower the amount of people who park in these spots,” said Michele Lawrence, legislator and Handicapped Committee member.

The college administration committee passed a recommendation to increase the fine from five to twenty dollars for those who park in handicapped spaces. It is awaiting approval from William Griffith, vice president for Administration and Finance.

"Hopefully, this will prove to lower the amount of people who park in these spots,” said Michele Lawrence, legislator and Handicapped Committee member.

The recommendation which is forthcoming will undoubtedly provide the college with a plan for delivering higher quality services, hopefully at a reduced price,” said Rob Acerra, SGA president. A final report will be given to the college during mid-March for review by college officials.

An ounce of prevention is a must for college life

Since the first wave of AIDS phobia, it has become more acceptable to discuss sexually transmitted diseases (STD's) and their prevention. The American public got its first taste of condom commercials and conservatives caved up on sex education policies. The British government instituted the practice of dispensing clean needles to drug addicts to prevent the spread of AIDS, and a similar program might be adopted in New York city and state. High school and college campuses around the nation were bombarded with safe-sex information. At MSC, lectures have included facts about AIDS, Dr. Ruth has addressed students on several areas of sexuality, and the manufacturer of Ramzes condoms has distributed the product on campus campuses.

Although MSC's Health Center tests for venereal disease, and the college is conveniently located near Planned Parenthood of Essex County, one lack one basic necessity in the war against STD's: condom vending machines on campus.

Yes, abstinence would give us the infallible security that the STD spread on campus would be controlled. But what young adults need today is practical prevention, not idealistic morals. Celibacy sounds good to parents and politicians, but it doesn't do the trick when forced on another person's lifestyle.

Condom vending machines aren't just for parkway and hotel bathrooms anymore. They are an intelligent and appealing to students. USA Pharmaceutical, Inc., began manufacturing and selling condom vending machines seven months ago, when they were approached by the University of Wisconsin-Madison. The campus was looking for safer ways to make use of safe sex and condoms, and vending machines were appealing to students. USA Pharmaceutical designed quality vending machines for the campus, and then began selling them across the country to other institutions.

MSC students could have these same vending machines on their campus. Not only are the machines supplying a necessary product for students, but they are profitable as well. For each condom sold, the college could retain a net profit of 80 to 90 percent. If the SGA or Resident Life were needed to make a wise investment and cosmopolitan, it would take into serious consideration the idea of purchasing condom vending machines. Or the college could use the profits to offset Health Center costs. The campus community could benefit all around—healthwise, safety-wise, and economically.

Rob's Remarks

Students should be heard

Do you as a student ever wonder why those administrative decisions which you feel should take a relatively short time to make, for some reason seem to never get answered?

Well, one only needs to study the MSC college-wide committee structure at work to find the cause for these unexecusable delays.

Let's take a typical request which has fallen victim to this system. The students who reside in the Clove Road apartment complex have been bombarded with safe-sex information. At MSC the path becomes a proverbial mud slide and a sheet of ice after a steep path is made up of loose gravel and unsettled earth. During rain storms the path becomes even more unsafe. The students who reside here are demanding a staircase be constructed, certain administrators respond with the standard, 'there is no money.'

However, independent bids solicited by the SGA have indicated the cost of a staircase to be about $3,000. Why then has this project not been completed?

One needs to only speak with students who have served on a college-wide committee(s) or that have served any committee(s) which is (are) dominated by administrators and/or faculty in order to fully appreciate the treatment these students receive. Conversations with students whom I have had the privilege to approach reveals the unprofessional behaviors and the pure nonsensical students are forced to put up with. The lack of input allowed by students: the lack of consideration given by a chair person to the schedules of students when determining meeting times; and in the rare case a student is unable to attend a meeting which is properly scheduled, the distribution of either minutes or correspondence indicating the date, time and place of the next meeting is nonexistent.

To my disbelief there exists a committee which is so stacked with administrators I am surprised the faculty has not yet thrown a flag. The committee has three out of four department heads from within the same division serving as voting members. Each of these individuals are directly responsible and primarily liable for the day to day operation on which the committee advises.

Talk about double dipping!

Just when you thought it was never going to get better, though, the student body may still have a ray of hope. In Dec. 1986, Dr. Walters, president of MSC, and the Faculty Senate commissioned a select committee to review the status of shared academic governance at the college.

The Joint Commission on Academic Shared Governance (JCASG) was created after a report made by a Middle States Accreditation team visiting MSC. The team mentioned the need for the administration, faculty and students to work jointly toward the attainment of institutional goals. The ultimate goal of the JCASG is to recommend a model of academic shared governance indigenous to the needs of MSC. This model will include a re structuring of the college-wide committee system and the creation of a College Senate.

The American Association of University Professors in its "Joint Statement on Government of Colleges and Universities," the document the committee is basing a majority of its decisions on, states: "When students desire to participate responsibly in the government of the institution they attend, their wish should be recognized...Students expect, and have the right to expect...the freedom to discuss questions of institutional policy and operation."

The students deserve to be fairly represented on every committee and, once functioning, the College Senate. Only when a model allows for this, will the SGA support such a form of institutional government. It is about time that the students' voice was fully and clearly heard.

Racism in Super Bowl coverage

For weeks prior to Super Bowl XXII, all the nation heard was “Elway, Elway, Elway.” The billing for the game should have read, “Elway vs. The Redskins” because the media acted as if there were two teams, only one of which had a quarterback.

Well, Elway’s Broncos found a formidable foe in Redskin quarterback Doug Williams, the first African-American ever to play in the Super Bowl (James Harris of the LA Rams should have had the honor, but after having led the team that far, he was replaced just before the Super Bowl game with white quarterback Pat Hadden. Justice was served, however; the Rams lost).

In the wake of the furor raised by Jimmy “the Greek” Snyder, African-American media watchers have become incensed at the ill-phrased comments of sportscasters and the meager and mediocre press coverage of African-Americans’ successes.

The comments made by Jimmy “the Greek,” albeit innocent, are indicative of the racist climate existing in both sports and the media today. Snyder was a CBS commentator for years. Who would have thought he harbored such stereotypical, racist views? Doesn’t it make you wonder who else might?

The print media was equally unimpressive. While Elway was boosted in bold-faced headlines of a local newspaper, Williams was belittled with smaller-typed heads. And while Elway’s form graced the cover of Sports Illustrated, Williams must have been born with a toothache.

But the real insult was made during the telecast of the Super Bowl itself, in the biased comments of sportscasters. Dan Dierdorf, Frank Gifford, and Al Michaels, who repeatedly made comments like, “Who would have believed this?” gave only passing praise to Williams’ prowess.

Filled with a desire to give Elway consistent back-patting as the Broncos were in the throes of a sound thrashing, one commentator remarked, “Even losing the ball game derives a sense of satisfaction from (Elway)” The announcer must have pulled a disc in his back stretching for that bit of praise.

Are minorities thought to be so blind as to not perceive the disparities of the media? Yet, even the blind can tell the difference, as evidenced by a study done in the early 1970’s of a man who was able to tell the race of athletes simply by the tone of the announcer’s voice.

Last Sunday, then, the commentators screamed their prejudices as they shouted a touchdown by “ELWAY!” and murmured a touchdown by “Williams.”

African-Americans and other minorities have been “lower-cased” for too long. Why can’t our achievements be shouted as loud as, and with as much vigor as those made by the majority members of our society? It is no wonder that African-Americans become indignant when asked, “Why do you have to have a Black History Month?”

For weeks the media called Elway a “Superman.” But Williams made history on Jan. 31, 1988, breaking records as he did so. The media and Marvel comics may not like it, but Williams proved that he was the Superman—with a capital “S.”

When the greater is the lesser

In the days of Greek civilization, the philosopher Socrates was accused of and tried for crimes against the state. Included among his alleged activities was the art of sophistry. To the elders in Athens, sophistry was “making the greater seem the lesser, and the lesser the greater.” Sophistry turned logic upside down.

Since then, civilization has progressed dramatically. Science has discovered new facts; new technologies were advanced. The difference between great civilized societies and lesser primitive states became more pronounced.

Two hundred years ago, Great Britain founded Australia as a way of dealing with the dark side of its civilization. Murderers, rapists, and other criminals were shipped off to the island continent.

Today, however, Australia is a thriving example of how great civilization can tame lesser, primitive wilderness. The people of Australia are celebrating their triumphs much as the United States did in 1976 for its bicentennial.

The celebrants have only one problem. Despite the longstanding history of the greatness of British civilization which is the butt of Australian society, the government faces ongoing protests from aboriginal peoples who are oppressed.

Of course, Australia is not the only place where oppression develops, and continues, as a result of “great” civilization trying to impress its ideals on “lessor,” primitive groups. South Africa is a prime example of such oppression. The blacks, who are the overwhelming majority of the population, have struggled for years to gain equal rights. The government has refused to yield, however.

Here in the United States, it was not until the 1960’s that any progress was made in civil rights. In many cases, the progress has been only marginal, carrying more weight on paper than in practice. In general, primitive societies do not practice the type of oppression characteristic of modern civilizations. There is no need to be better than others, and no need to be in control of them.

Socrates was not truly guilty of the sophistry he was accused of committing. But he certainly would have been able to tell when the greater is actually the lesser, and the lesser the greater.

I'm wide awake, I'm not sleeping...I2 is filming a concert flick. Look for a batch of new stuff out and on the way. So at the risk of getting boring and tedious, music by the following artists will be released soon, has been released recently, or is being re-released: Bob Dylan, AC/DC, Rod Stewart (with former Duran Duran guitarist Andy Taylor), Bob Dylan, and Hall and Oates, David Lee Roth, Joni Mitchell, Robert Plant, Bruce Hornsby, Elvis Presley, a Phil Spector retrospective (on the king of the indies, Rhino Records), Paul Simon, Albert Hammond, Thomas Dolby, Morris Day, Robyn Hitchcock, The Smithereens, Hall and Oates, Phil Spector, Tina Turner, and Oates.

The special effects, on the other hand, could have been polished up. A great deal of the explosions resembled an Indochina Day fireworks display more than an artillery shell impact.

The film is rated R for explicit language and subjects.

Dan Akroyd (Blues Brothers) is the resident looney in Couch Trip. This somewhat entertaining comedy explores mistaken identity and questions the sanity of the same (or are they insane!) people in society.

Walther Matthau and Donna Dixon co-star.

This movie is rated R for rich dialogue, carried the film which at times dragged and offered unnecessary scenes. Williams is fantastic and deserves credit for the film's success.

For Williams' usual routine the film received an R rating.

One of the most talked about films is Broadcast News, starring Holly Hunter and William Hurt. The film reveals the emotions, rough drafts and backbiting of the daily news cast. The characters in the movie destroy the television viewer's image of the nightly news, with every right to...

This delightful comedy is also rated R.

Eddie Murphy: Raw sparks roars of laughter. Comedian Murphy (Beverly Hills Cop) shows the humor in romance, money, and success. He is wonderfully funny, but similar to his previous movies shows, he offends and embarrasses anyone and everyone.

The film is rated R for explicit language and subjects.

Dan Akroyd (Blues Brothers) is the resident looney in Couch Trip. This somewhat entertaining comedy explores mistaken identity and questions the sanity of the same (or are they insane!) people in society.

Walther Matthau and Donna Dixon co-star.

This movie is rated R for rich dialogue, carried the film which at times dragged and offered unnecessary scenes. Williams is fantastic and deserves credit for the film's success.

For Williams' usual routine the film received an R rating.

One of the most talked about films is Broadcast News, starring Holly Hunter and William Hurt. The film reveals the emotions, rough drafts and backbiting of the daily news cast. The characters in the movie destroy the television viewer's image of the nightly news, with every right to...

This delightful comedy is also rated R.

Foreigner-Inside Information (Atlantic Records)

Few bands can combine all the elements of pop/rock songwriting as well as Foreigner. They possess the knack for writing insignificant hits that you cannot help but love. Who can forget songs like "Urgent," "Waiting for a Girl Like You" or their biggest hit of all time "I Want To Know What Love Is?" Inside Information starts off with a punch. "Hearts Turn to Ash" the new single of the old Foreigner classics like "Feels Like The First Time" and Head Games." The emotion in Lou Graham's voice in "Can't Wait" sounds like the 80's answer to Bad Company's "Ready for Love." On Inside Information the title track is very much a dance tune, complete with drum machine and digital samplers. However, it still retains a true rock and roll feel mostly due to Graham's incredible voice.

Greg Kroll-Two Sides (Profile Records)

Newcomer to the music scene Greg Kroll has just released his debut album this past January. The LP is entitled Two Sides and the single "Help Yourself to My Heart" was released along with it.

Kroll managed to recruit veterans Bob Dylan's Joe Jackson and drummer Gary Burke who also produced Two Sides. The rest of the band consists of bassist Graham, and keyboard player Tony Andy who also produced Joe Jackson's band. Maby and Aiello also assist Kroll with vocals.

If your particular taste in music leans towards a lively, bouncy beat, then you'll probably enjoy this album, I personally found it somewhat disappointing. The lyrics were unimaginative and lacked originality. It sounded as though I had heard them before, set to a different melody. Although the tunes were catchy, they lacked the maturity and sophistication I had expected from the veteran members.

Overall I found the album to be more as a combination of the styles of several established acts. Perhaps in time this band will achieve its own level of originality and produce an album that better reflects the talent the band encompasses.

It's easy to tell when it's sweeps month at the networks or "sweeps month" as it's sometimes referred to as. During this time news and talk shows try to out-sensationalize one another.

Sally Jesse Raphael has out done them all. One particular show to be this Friday at 10 a.m. on ABC will be about seven nudists. There is nothing terribly new about the interview except the guests will be completely nude. The television audience, however, will not see except the guests will be completely nude. The television audience, however, will not see anything below their necks. That's enter­tainment?

Super Bowl bettors and 'Greek' losers once again

Super Bowl XXII ended in a traditional mauing. Since the strike-riddled season is over, here are a few reflections in regards to the game and what goes along with it. As with any sport, when the final gun was blown, so was money from the pockets of gamblers. Oddsmakers established the game's pointspread in Denver's favor at 3 1/2 points immediately after it defeated Cleveland in the American Football Conference championship game. For one quarter in the Super Bowl, the spread was semi-close, but the Redskins' second period explosion changed that.

Jet's Journal
By Perry Schwarz

Some New York fans that did win a bet in last week's Super Bowl might be surprised that their winnings will be non-existent! The 13th precinct raided an illegal gambling site that reportedly had a total of over $5,000,000 placed in bets. The men arrested in the raid were held until the game began so that no transactions would be made before kickoff.

The only way integrity can be preserved in the game is through the fan and the National Football League. The best "tip" in regards to gambling is not to get involved in it. Part of the problem, however, is Las Vegas, where every bet from the point spread to the opening coin toss was available.

Speaking of problems, the 1987-88 season also featured the dismissal of Jimmy "The Greek" Schneider from CBS-TV. All I have to say is, good for him! For over a decade, The Greek was nothing more than a television leech. His analysis, odds and attitude were overbearing to say the least, receiving a paycheck whether he was right or wrong.

His ridiculous racial comments cost him a job, but do not be surprised that his position as oddsmaker/analyst had something to do with his dismissal. The CBS management needed a reason to fire Schneider, and the racial slurs he made during a Washington television interview was a perfect opportunity to do so. Don't look for a replacement analyst next season on The NFL Today show, as CBS has decided not to use oddsmakers on the program.

Those who will heed the advice in this article and refrain from taking part in gambling should be able to enjoy upcoming sporting events. For those who do not, the National Basketball Association playoffs are near, and those bookies will be there to suck up your money as quickly as you put it out. If one did not go bankrupt from the Super Bowl, he/she is sure to be in the red when the NBA Finals emerge. After all, there is a lot more opportunities to lose money in those matchups.

Trivia Time-Out

Each week, The Montclarion publishes a list of sports questions and answers to test your knowledge of sports trivia. In addition, there is a sports stumper which will be answered in the following issue.

If you think you have the correct answer to the stumper, drop it off at The Montclarion office in Room 113 of the Student Center Annex. The names of those submitting the correct answer will be published in the next week's issue. Deadline for submissions is Monday at 3 p.m.

1. Who was the American League home run king of 1909, with nine home runs?
2. Name one of the two teams that joined the National League in 1969.
3. Who coached the Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl III?
4. What U.S. sports figure was the first to be paid an annual salary of $100,000?
5. What National League pitcher won 363 games during his career and won the Cy Young award in 1957?

Answer to last week's stumper: What is former NFL great Sonny Jurgenson's real first name? Christian.

Answer to this week's stumper: What University of Michigan player won the Heisman trophy in 1940?

What's What in MSC sports

Men's Swimming

Bob Bagnato posted the only first place individual finish for the Indians against a tough William Paterson squad as theMSC dropped a 102-52 decision to the Pioneers Thursday. Bagnato took the 200 breaststroke in 2:27.70. The 400 freestyle relay team, consisting of Karl Angersbach, Mike Pavolony, Mike Spano, and Cesar Atehortua also took first in 3:51.19 to close out the meet. Last night, the Indians picked up a forfeit win over St. Francis.

Women's Swimming

The MSC women's swim team finished the year with a strong dual meet performance against William Paterson. The Indians won eight of 11 events, but could not overcome the Pioneers' depth, losing by a score of 95.5-84.5. Once again Gail Meneghin was a triple winner, taking the 200 breaststroke in 2:23.83, the 50 backstroke in 27.45, and the 200 IM in 2:13.77. She also contributed by winning two events, the 100 meter freestyle (59.18) and the 100 backstroke (1:01.45), and by taking the 100 breaststroke in 1:07.12. Women's Wrestling

MSC improved their record to 6-9-1 with a 23-22 victory over FDU-Teaneck. Karl Monaco's 150 pin of Joel Seabrook at 3:52 proved to be the winning margin. The Indians won decisions in four other matches, including Pete Georgoutos' 14-6 decision in the 190 pound weight class and decision victories by Pete Gonzalez (134), Mike Massey (132) and Mike Picozzi (167). Set sights on Metro Championships

MSC swimmers have high hopes

By Kenny Peck
Sports Editor

The men’s and women’s swim teams head into the Metropolitan Championships with high hopes for a strong showing.

The women’s meet will be held February 12-14, while the men will be in action February 25-27.

Head Coach Jim Billesimo feels the two teams are well suited for the upcoming meets.

“The Metro’s are geared more towards individual competition, and since we lack depth on the teams, this is the type of meet we can do well in,” he explained.

Billesimo has good reason to be optimistic, because both teams make up for what they lack in quantity with quality. And a lot of it.

Senior Nancy Phillips scored 22 points to lead the Sportswriters Association, the Week by the New Jersey Indians.

Senior Nancy Phillips, who came into the conference rival Glassboro to 15-6 with a 52-39 win over the Indians, said, “We had a well-balanced team. It was a total team effort,” Head Coach Jill Jeffrey said. Everyone played well, and it’s encouraging to see our younger players developing confidence.”

Meneghin is “ecstatic” over the 100 and 200 meter breaststroke, while Meneghin swims mainly in the 100 and 200 meter freestyle, while Meneghin swims mainly in the 100 and 200 meter breaststroke. Meneghin is “ecstatic” over her performance this season, citing “hard work, good coaching, and a desire to go out with a bang” as reasons for her outstanding performance again this season. She feels that she is in “the best shape” she has ever been in for the Metro’s.

Press, who is also enjoying a good campaign, points to the “camaraderie” of both teams as a factor in their success, and feels that “being such a close-knit team definitely benefits everyone, because we help each other out.”

Sophomore Tabitha Jacobus, who swims in the 50, 100, and 200 meter freestyle events is close to qualifying for the Nationals in the latter.

Jacobus was hampered by an illness as well as various injuries which compromised her race times early in the season. But she feels she is now rounding into form in time for the Metro’s.

Junior Kim Muller has been a pleasant surprise for Billesimo. Muller—who has an excellent opportunity to make the Nationals—feels she “has done better this season” than in previous seasons. But it is no surprise to her because “I’ve worked hard in practice all year.”

The remainder of the women’s team is made up of Alycia Witten, Leslie DeLuca, Sandy Sanchez, Michelle Manion, Katie LaRosa, Fran Cullen, Patty Rudolph, Grace Smith and Raquel Parra.

On the men’s team, captain Andy Pecoraro says he “cannot think of any team member who hasn’t improved his time. It doesn’t show in our record (the men are 1-8, the women 3-5) because of our lack of depth, but it will show in the Metro’s.”

Senior Karl Angersbach, who swims in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle among other events, also believes a reason for his success "has something to do with the excitement of swimming for a new coach, probably because you push yourself to impress him."

Junior Mike Pavolony says this season has been the best he has ever had, and Billesimo is a big part of his improvement.

“I believe Coach Billesimo has made a good adjustment to all of our individual needs and wants, and that’s the key, because he gives everyone individual attention.”

Other members of the men’s squad include Cesar Atehortua, Bobby Bagnato, Mark Powell, Rich Volpi and Mike Spano.

Women hoop team tops Profs, Ramapo

By Kenny Peck
Sports Editor

The MSC women’s basketball team improved their record to 15-6 with a 52-39 win over conference rival Glassboro State at Panzer Gym Tuesday night.

Senior Nancy Phillips, who was named Woman Player of the Week by the New Jersey Sportswriters Association, scored 22 points to lead the Profs.

The Profs, who came into the game averaging 65 points per game and ranked 15th nationally in Division III, found themselves unable to overcome a 26-19 MSC halftime lead.

Junior guard Sue Becker added 10 points and freshman Kim Wilson chipped in eight for the Indians, while senior Sue Ehrmann scored six points and grabbed nine rebounds.

MSC 60 - Ramapo 31

Senior Nancy Phillips scored 16 points while Francis Collins, Nicky Rose and Sue Ehrmann each added eight to lead MSC to a New Jersey Athletic Conference (NJAC) victory at Ramapo Friday night.

“The win was a total team effort,” Head Coach Jill Jeffrey said. “Everyone played well, and it’s encouraging to see our younger players developing their self-confidence.”

“We had a well-balanced scoring attack, and that’s what we’ll need in our next four games (all NJAC matchups),” said Jeffrey.
