Summer China Tour

Professor Ellen Mohammed is organizing a tour of China and Tibet over the summer. Students can earn three graduate or undergraduate credits through the trip. The tour costs $2,899 and includes round trip fare from New York to China, Hong Kong and Tibet. Inland travel, hotel and meals are also included in the price. For further information call Mohammed at 893-7283, 893-4207, and (718) 778-9417 or stop by her office in the Cieca Fine Arts building, room 217.

Constitution approved

After a long heated debate, the SGA legislature passed the Greek Council constitution. This will eliminate some of the problems currently with the Greek regulations. After ten months of diligent work by the SGA, the legislature passed the bill unanimously, "said" Reb Acerra.

The Constitution will provide for the Greek council to exercise partial control over the participating fraternities, for example, the sororities. Some legislators expressed a concern that the council possesses too much power if they would be able to de-charter organizations.

A question was raised in relation to Borgia's objectivity. According to SGA legislator Myra Rosa, Borgia was not objective during the recent SGA elections.

"I don't have any comment to the charge of bias, to do so would be subjective. I hope to make some changes in election rules including ending Blanton Hall balloting and looking into creating a real judiciary for the SGA," responded Borgia. He had the support of the entire legislature with the exception of two votes and one abstention.

Associate Dean of Students James Harris

one of the youngest deans in the state. He supervised the counseling services department and was advisor to the Black Organization for Success in Society (now the BSCU). He also coached MSC's cross-country team from 1980-1986.

Dean Harris did not set out to be the monumental administrator that he has become. He originally planned to teach, "to influence the thinking and behavior" of the students he would have taught. He then rationalized that if he worked in a college setting, he would be able to "train teachers to influence a lot more students than I ever could."

GROUP ADVISING SESSIONS FOR FALL 1988 ADVANCE REGISTRATION

Advance registration for Fall 1988 begins on April 25 and ends on Friday May 13. Student course request forms (registration forms) for UNDECLARED FULL — TIME students will be available at the Academic Advising and Tutorial Center (building E) beginning at 8:30 AM Monday 4/25. Part-time students who are enrolled will receive student course request forms by mail shortly before the advance registration period.

Please come to building E to sign up for one of the following group advising sessions. We need to keep track of the number of students planning to attend in order to insure adequate counselor coverage. Due to the number of undeclared students and the number of counselors available to advise, we must insist that you attend one of these sessions in order to obtain a signature on your course request form. Please bring your course request form, a Fall 1988 Schedule of Courses book, a college catalog and your most recent transcript (the pink and white paper on which you got your last grades in January).

Because of the great demand, three of the sessions (4/28, 5/3, 5/11) will focus on the questions and concerns of undeclared students who want to meet the entry requirements for Business Administration and/or Computer Science. In order to insure maximum counselor availability for all undeclared students, any undeclared student may sign up for any of the following sessions:

last May, surveys were given out to undeclared freshmen who advance registered on the 30th of that month. Of the fall 1987 freshmen that answered these surveys, when asked to select only one reason that they were attending MSC, 76.4% chose, “to prepare for an occupational.” Other possible responses to the survey question were, “to become an educated person,” and “for personal growth,” neither of which came close in popularity to the top answer.

“Businesses today require a college degree for jobs that don’t really need it,” says a full professor of psychology at MSC, explaining the rationale behind such reasons for seeking a secondary education. Such seems to be the trend in today’s job market.

Perhaps current students’ parents didn’t need a college degree for careers where skills were taught on-the-job. We all know of Lee Iaccoca, who didn’t have a college degree but got his start. Otherwise, he is presently one of the top entrepreneurs of our country.

Of the seven editors polled in The Montclarion, five said that they came to MSC to better their chances of a higher-paid job. Although many of their majors do not train them to work towards a planned career, they still need the degree to acquire a job.

Was their time—and yours—spent at college a waste, an unnecessary but required step towards a career? It depends on the person. Many students list their major subjects, for four years that they may never use again. Generally, these are also students that ask, when a professor begins to expand on a subject, “Are we responsible for this?”

Another way to view college is a well-spent four years of growing up, of experimentation with different choices. How many people have switched majors since they have come into college? Or future plans for careers? How easy would it have been for them to change majors? How many people could barely wait for the presidential primaries to come his way. He would hog the air, dominate the newspapers. And he would tell Jews how to vote.

In all likelihood, some Jews will reject Koch's advice and vote for Jackson. But even many of those who will not, don’t necessarily share Koch’s animosity towards the black presidential candidate. In fact, a Los Angeles Times poll of Jewish political attitudes showed 58 percent of the respondents had a “favorable impression” of Jackson—although only 4 percent said they would vote for him.

That number—the 35 percent—takes some explaining. Jackson is a complex and vexing figure for many American Jews. There is much to ponder. He has referred to Jews as “Hymies” and New York as “Hymietown.” Worse, he has been slow in dissociating himself from the Black Muslim minister who made anti-Semitic statements. Jackson, who is forever calling on others to make tough moral choices, found himself unable to practice what he preached when it came to Farrakhan. He was oh-so-slow in dissociating himself from the Black Muslim minister and even then separated the man from his words. He said he could repudiate the words, but not the man—a distinction without a real difference.

Now back to that 35 percent figure. The Times also asked Jews to define “Jewishness.” What does it mean to be a Jew? Some respondents mentioned support for Israel; some talked of religious observance, synagogue attendance—either routinely or only on the High Holy Days of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. But 50 percent—half—cited something else: “a commitment to social equality.”

Who better personifies “a commitment to social equality” than Jesse Jackson? In fact, does his candidacy represent anything else? George Bush may talk about becoming “the education President” and Michael Dukakis is a liberal, but their agendas don’t compare to Jackson’s. He is an advocate for minorities, the underclass, the unemployed, the dispossessed, the impoverished farmer, the auto worker turned hamburger flipper. You or I may disagree with him and even hate him. But we may wonder about how he will fund them, we may fairly ask where the programs are to match the rhetoric, but we can have no doubt about the man’s intentions: Social equality is his commitment.

Koch seems not to understand that. He assumes, also, that the American Jewish community holds monolithic views on Israel—and that they match his and reject Jackson’s. He is an advocate for minorities, the underclass, the unemployed, the dispossessed, the impoverished farmer, the auto worker turned hamburger flipper. You or I may disagree with him and even hate him. But we may wonder about how he will fund them, we may fairly ask where the programs are to match the rhetoric, but we can have no doubt about the man’s intentions: Social equality is his commitment.

Discontent with selection of track coach

To the editor,

After monitoring from a distance the administration’s blundering performance in hiring a new men’s track coach, I would like to express my discontent with the selection process, and with what I hope is not the final decision in this matter. As the student/athlete member of the selection who, late in 1984, originally recommended Vic Mizzone to be hired, I would like to provide some insight as to why I felt Vic should be offered the coaching position.

While interviewing the pool of candidates, I distinctly recollected one of them having been at his present head coaching position for only one year. I stressed to the rest of the committee that we wanted to hire a coach who planned on being around MSC for some time. All too often our school has hired coaches who use their positions at Montclair State for personal gain, as stepping stones to larger programs. The recent departure of two head baseball coaches in the past five years is a prime example. Vic Mizzone only wants to coach at his alma mater, he has no aspirations of jumping to a higher position.

Coach Mizzone resurrected a dormant program back to being a national power, like it was when ran here in the early seventies. He waited patiently, hoping his job would become a full-time position, only to see it given away to an unqualified, girls high school coach. What a great way to reward a member of our Athletic Hall of Fame for producing twelve All-Americans in four years. If the powers to be remembered the old adage, “if it is not broken, don’t fix it” this whole fiasco would have been avoided. In order for any athletic program to be successful, it is imperative that tradition and consistency be instilled. Hiring an outsider has destroyed those ingredients Coach Mizzone has provided the men’s track program with.

As far as the selection process goes, the campus community would have been served if the Athletic Department had the autonomy to do their own hiring. This way, the process would be void of any of the political pandering, which probably permeates other administration hiring.

Speaking of our Athletic Department, where was our new Athletic Director during Coach Mizzone’s ordeal? As the former MSC swim team coach, Greg Lockard should know first hand how difficult it is coaching one of the more obscure sports on this campus. Because of that reason alone, he could be a staunch supporter of Vic Mizzone.

Instead, the administration’s strong arm tactics has reduced his role to Montclair State’s newest marionette. His puppet show should be shown at our Summerfun Theater. The final blow to this debacle comes from Murray Cole and his purilelaminous Board of Trustees, who had the opportunity to clearly right a wrong. Instead, he chose to ignore the pleas of the athletes. If nobody listens to the men on the team, who will they listen to? It is the obstinate Board of Trustees who now must walk around campus with omelets on their faces for hiring a coach who now has no team to coach.

The men’s track program was thriving under Coach Mizzone with the addition of Julie Sontag as his assistant. By approving the firing of him, and the simultaneous hiring of John Blanton, the Board of Trustees are responsible for the gratuitous blow the program has incurred. It was obvious from the beginning nobody took into consideration what might be best for the track program itself.

Although I find it somewhat ironic, I would like to laud Eastside High School principal Joe Clark for his show of support for one of his teachers, and for calling a press conference to try to bring some attention to what is clearly an administrative miscarriage.

An incident like this, where an alumnus is treated like a stranger, can only generate negative repercussions throughout the alumni community of MSC. I for one would now think twice of ever helping my alma mater, be it physically or financially, after the way it treated Vic Mizzone.

Professor refutes columnist

To the editor,

In his answer to my letter of April 14, 1988, Mr. Oren Zeve couldn’t refute any of the documented facts I presented except to say:

The Palestinians can live in peace as long as they acquiesce to Israeli occupation of their land. He says that “the testimony of all Israeli leaders, and of the majority of the population, is that all people can and do live peacefully in Israel everyday, respecting each other as human beings.”

Which country is he talking about? Is this the country whose Defense Minister, Yitzhak Rabin (the man in charge of the occupied West Bank and Gaza), states in front of the whole world that the official Israeli policy is the policy of “force, might and beatings.”

Is this population that he alludes to have any aspirations of jumping to a higher level of lesion? The official Israeli occupation policy is the policy of “Force, might and beatings.” It is definitely pathetic that someone would succumb to such a level of illogical, meaningless debate.

Aloha couch potatoes! I know when you read this you’re getting ready to get up and do something else. But if you stay put you’ll find out why the late-night connoisseurs reside between the hours of 12:30 and 6:00 a.m. on the fifth night of the week.

Saturday morning children show at arting in the fall on NBC. The Mutisadyses of Ed Grinkle will star Short and will consist of a mixture of animation and live action. It can be seen in the 11:30 to noon slot.

From the first unknown we’re on in the morning and in the evening but we have to be on in the afternoons that where we can find you I don’t tell film. Pat Sajak and Vanna White will appear on NBC’s soap Santa Barbara. Characters Kellie is about to go on Wheel in an attempt to win some big money. Someone should tell them that Wheel doesn’t give away big money, just some dopye prizes.

Watch for: The Sing (1973), Saturday night at 11:30 p.m. on WPXI. Newman and Redford followed “Butch Cassidy” with the super film about two con men who stage an elaborate sting of a big city mobster. Rebel Without A Cause (1958) Saturday night at 8 p.m. on WOR, James Dean and Natalie Wood in this powerful film that all must see at least once.

Lame Movie of the Week: They Still Call Me Bruce (1987)
Saturday afternoon at 12:30 on HBO. This spoof on the old Bruce Lee films leaves something to be desired. Unless you’re a fan of bad jokes, and I don’t mean bad as in, I mean bad as in bad. Until you read again!

Oates presents literary works

By Kris Roome
Staff Writer

Among the other poems, she reads what she refers to as her “morning lit every Thursday, the “Consolation of Animals,” “Make-up Artist,” “Comeole” and “White Piano.” These selections were written about a friend of hers who died of leukemia last month.

Her latest interest, or reinterest, as she tells us, is oddly enough—boxing. A topic about which she has written a novel and an essay in The New York Times. Recently, in Detroit, Carol Oates now resides in Princeton and is a faculty member of the university. Growing up in what she describes as a “broadway of multimartian class,” her father would take her to boxing matches as a young girl.

Calling herself a feminist, she states that it gives her a chance to write about men. Primarily, though, she has been influenced by the rise of Mike Tyson.

Recently she was among 50-80 “intellectuals” invited to meet the Gorbechev’s in Moscow. Also riled were actors Paul Newman and Robert DeNiro and writer Norman Mailer.

As of late she has published a novel entitled Lives of the Twins, written under a pseudonym-Smith. Although she wanted to keep this fictitious work of a woman’s mind independent, she found out including her in a legal battle between publishers.

For a somewhat quiet, non-impactful initial, Joyce Carol Oates creates such thought-provoking, graphic images in her writing and speech that she is someone not to be missed.

Saturday morning children show at arting in the fall on NBC. The Mutisadyses of Ed Grinkle will star Short and will consist of a mixture of animation and live action. It can be seen in the 11:30 to noon slot.

There’s some more striking news. In case you’re keeping score, the strike is now in its eighth week and has cost the industry a total of 15 million dollars. The response to the strike has put a hold on the Further production of hit shows like The Cosby Show and Law & Order.

From the first unknown we’re on in the morning and in the evening but we have to be on in the afternoons that where we can find you I don’t tell film. Deacon Blue—Raintown

By Kris Roome
Staff Writer

Scotland’s much heralded Deacon Blue has released its equally acclaimed Rainbow album. Crediting with being one of the best new bands to emerge from the U.K. music scene, the album is a vindication of the standing they have received. Like many of the bands crossing over the Atlantic, Deacon Blue is lightly influenced by some rather contemporary sounds. If I was forced to classify it, I’d call it good Euro-pop with a very wide variety.

The album is already receiving some airplay from progressive radio stations like WNEW-FM, WDRE-FM and college radio stations.

Possible single releases from the album could be “Raintown,” “He Looks Like Spencer Tracy Now” and “When will you (Make my phone ring).”

Some of the songs seem heavily influenced by some rather contemporary artists. For instance “Chocolate girl” has a very John Mellencamp feel while the melancholic “Town to be Blamed” brings to mind Suzanne Vega.

The slower songs on the album are better than some of the up tempo ones, still good stuff all in all. And that’s something you can say for too many albums currently being released.

Yup! This one gets my “guaranteed you will like it” recommendation. Go ahead try it.

Second annual contest a success

Bodybuilding contest beneficial for ‘every body’

By Dennis Campbell
Staff Writer

The Second Annual Bodybuilding Extravaganza got off to a raucous start, as free t-shirts and rock music were the order of the night.

The crowd favorites, however, were Amod Field and Peter Gory, as they stole the spotlight with their own unique posing styles.

Sponsored by the women’s track team of MSC, the contest, which was held in Memorial Auditorium, was open to all students of the college. The focus of the bodybuilding contest was to promote health through fitness, nutrition and drug free athletics for all ages.

Director Shelia Holman judged the event a success, saying “The event was well attended and everyone had fun.”

On the popularity of bodybuilding, Holman said, “Bodybuilding has become a spectator sport, because people like to admire other people that look good. Through bodybuilding you learn about fitness and it promotes good nutrition.”

This year, 19 contestants competed in separate weight classes for both men and women.

The men’s competition was divided into three weight classes: heavyweight (177 and up), middleweight (160-176), and lightweight (up to 159 pounds), while the females were divided into lightweight and middleweight classes.

The most competitive weight class in the male division was the lightweight class as the six competitors were most evenly matched. The eventual winner was Steve Wolinski, while Kevin McGrath and Jim Hughes placed second and third respectively.

Five males competed in the middleweight class and Peter Gory placed first. Jeff Gramoni took second and Gene Segeda was third.

In the heavyweight competition, Dave Chandler proved it’s better the second time around as he improved from last year’s performance to take first prize. George Irwin was second and Wilbert Jones came in third.

The lightweight female level had only two women competing, and Jody Picca won first and Susan Kamed came in second.

The middleweight female division consisted of three competitors. First place went to Dawn Martini, as Valerie Vogues and Ruth Sutherland placed second and third respectively.

Trivia Time-Out

Each week, The Montclarion publishes a list of sports questions and answers to test your knowledge of sports trivia. In addition, there is a sports stumper which will be answered in the following issue.

If you think you have the correct answer to the stumper, drop it off at The Montclarion office in Room 113 of the Student Center Annex. Names of those submitting the correct answer will be published in the next week’s issue. Deadline for submissions is Monday at 3 p.m.

1. Who was the first rookie to win the Cy Young Award?
2. How many times did Sugar Ray Robinson fight Jake LaMotta?
3. What college’s football team responds to the fight song Boobs-Boobs?
4. What former National League Rookie of the Year was sentenced to five years in prison in 1976 for smuggling marijuana into Puerto Rico?
5. What was the halftime score of Super Bowl IX, between Pittsburgh and Minnesota?

Answer to last week’s stumper:
Which college football team was the winner in the first Sugar Bowl? Tulane (over Temple, 20-14)

Submitting the correct answer was:
Dan Bonner.

This week’s stumper:
What Chicago Cubs second baseman, National League Rookie of the Year in 1962, was killed in Provo, Utah on February 15, 1964?

Softball team drops two to Lions

Trenton State snaps MSC’s thirteen game win streak

By Dennis Campbell
Staff Writer

MSC softball team saw their 13-game winning streak come to a screeching halt on Tuesday, as they were swept by No. 1 ranked Trenton State 6-5 and 11-0.

The 13 game winning streak was the longest in the school’s history. The Lady Indians had not lost during the month of April, and were sitting at the top of the NJAC conference with a perfect 4-0 record. They now trail Trenton State by one game.

The Lady Indians, ranked No. 6 nationally in Division III, won two games against Scranton before losing the doubleheader against Trenton State.

MSC 12-Scranton 1

The Lady Indians exploded for five runs in the first inning as they took early command of the game.

Chris Redl hit a two run single and Stacey Barbosa and Tracy had run scoring singles in the first inning. Marge Theobald continued her hot hitting as she had a two run triple. Dina DeAquino went the distance to pitch a three-hit shutout for Trenton State College.

Trenton State, 30-4, scored a three-hitter and striking out two.

Trenton State 6-MSC 5

Linda Giarurosso provided the spark for the Indians as she tripled and singled to drive in the run. As she had a two run triple, Dina DeAquino provided the spark for Trenton State.

Trenton State 30-4, scored an error in the sixth inning, as Lynn Spirko raced home when the ball was misplayed in centerfield.

Trenton State 12-MSC 0

The Lady Indians were handed a cuffed as Trenton’s Jill Marghella pitched a three hit shutout to defeat MSC 11-0.

Indian Info: Senior Dina DeAquino, whose pitching has been the cornerstone for the Indians’ success this season, has been named NJAC player of the week.

DeAquino was also named Star-Ledger Woman Athlete of the Week for her performance last week, as she won all five of the games she started.

DeAquino set an individual record for most wins in a season against Scranton when she pitched a three-hit shutout for her 21st win of the season.

DeAquino, a 1987 Division III All American, has been a model of consistency during her four years at MSC. Last season she compiled a 19-6 record with a 0.80 earned run average (ERA) and was 19-9 in her sophomore campaign with a 1.22 ERA.

The Indians host the Kean Cougars in a doubleheader Friday in their final regular season home games. MSC then visits William Paterson Tuesday in their final regular season games. The New Jersey Athletic Conference Tournament will be held next weekend, May 6-7, at a site to be determined.
