Adjuncts outnumber MSC faculty

By Valerie Kalfrin
Correspondent

While thousands of students return to the MSC classrooms this fall, various professionals will be returning as well—as adjuncts.

According to Greg Waters, vice president of academic affairs, the number of adjuncts has not greatly increased since last year.

Although the number of adjuncts employed by MSC may not have increased, departmental budgets reflect that more than half of the schools of humanities and social sciences, mathematics and computer science, and fine and performing arts are staffed by adjuncts or outside specialists.

Waters said during scheduling it is decided which courses require regular professors and which require adjuncts.

A number of faculty members involved in various research projects and over 250 different academic programs at MSC create vacancies which adjuncts are hired to fill, according to Waters.

For example, Waters explained last June a group of faculty retired. According to an early retirement plan put into effect two years ago, MSC must hire adjuncts to fill their positions the following year while in the process of hiring full-time faculty.

However, adjuncts are hired for reasons other than replacing retiring faculty members, said Waters. At any given time, there are a number of professors on sabbaticals. Others receive grants for research projects and have their workload for the semester cut by one course.

In other cases, adjuncts bring special talents to the college. “It is valuable for a college to draw on the talents of the community as well as the faculty,” Waters stated. He added that it is his job to provide the faculty with room for growth and the students the opportunity to work with people who have special talents.

Waters said adjuncts are also hired to teach basic courses in reading, writing, math and speech.

New Jersey instituted the basic skills program several years ago, which requires incoming students to take tests in math, speech, and reading. As a result, said Waters, MSC has had to add special courses so that students with difficulties could become equipped for regular college work, which explains the large number of adjuncts in the English, math, and speech departments.

“We are committed to keeping class size limited,” Waters said. “There is not enough faculty to cover all the courses. In addition to course requirements and faculty grants, budget limits play a large part in the hiring of adjuncts.”

MSC’s budget is set by the State College Administration in Trenton, and only 73 percent can be spent on salaries, explained Waters. If there are not adequate resources in a department to hire a full-time staff member, an adjunct is hired instead.

According to Waters, although there are a great number of adjuncts in the faculty, the number of adjuncts employed by MSC is less than on the national level.

“To a degree, it’s an economic issue in the sense that it’s not in our resources to hire as many faculty as departments would like,” he explained.

The last selection was a dedication to the ragtime group Bob Marley and the Wailers. This time it was Amiri Baraka’s turn, who recited the poem with the feeling and intensity so typical of the Baraka style.

Carolyn LaBate, an MSC alumna, was pleased with the poetry readings, but disagreed with Baraka’s views on communism.

“I think she should leave the country and go to Russia if she feels that strongly about it,” she explained.

“Students don’t get to see their professors regularly in class,” added Dr. Rita Jacobs of the English department.

Jacobs said adjuncts are underpaid and that “it’s hard to get good ones and keep them.”

She added that there are drawbacks to having so many adjuncts on campus.

“Students don’t get to see them after class, which is an important part of education,” she commented. They are often “too many to observe regularly in teaching,” which allows for no quality control. “People who run in and out are not the best education possible, even if they are wonderful people,” she said.

Dr. Laura Kramer, department chairperson of sociology, doesn’t have as many adjuncts in her department as others, and feels that “we’re able to hire some good people who are able to work at very low wages because of unusual circumstances in their personal lives.”

Thieves arrested in dorm heist

By Rob Tomeo
Correspondent

Between the late hours of Sept. 21 and the early morning hours of Sept. 22, the campus police received reports from residents in Blanton Hall that three white males conned their way into three dorm rooms and stole jewelry, cash, and other items.

The thieves returned to Blanton Hall on the night of Sept. 25 and a resident alerted the campus police, but not before they robbed another room.

The police apprehended one of the males who pointed out an accomplice that was driving the third robber's car. The police eventually learned that the two main assailants in the robberies were adults and had brought a different juvenile helper on each of the two nights they were at the dorm. None of the thieves are MSC students.

The criminals have all been arrested and have been charged with trespassing and stealing. More charges may be brought against them. All stolen property has been recovered, with the exception of a wallet, a camera, and a ring that have not been identified. If anyone is missing these items, please contact the campus police.

On Sept. 24 at 12:12 a.m. a large fight was reported as taking place outside Bohn Hall. About 10 to 12 black males were engaged in a heated argument. The police tried to break up the fight. When other fights started breaking out in the group, the Montclair Police Department was called in to back up the campus police.

About six males were arrested and four were identified as MSC students. Their ages range from 18 to 24. One of the males was carrying a pipe, while another was armed with a bat.

At 1:30 a.m. on Sept. 23, the police apprehended three MSC students involved in a fight that occurred at the Rathskeller was closing. Earlier in the evening the three students got into a verbal argument that led to an initial fight. The students, who have charged each other with assault, had been drinking heavily.

A 1984 Mazda RX7 was stolen from lot 23 between 9:00 a.m. and noon on Sept. 20. The car was recovered in Union City later that day.

The trunk of a 1988 Mazda 323 XL was broken into between 9:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. on Sept. 20. Between the same hours on the same day, the window of a 1986 Pontiac Firebird was smashed in lot 23. The car's speakers were stolen.

On Sept. 20, the Wayne Police Department recovered a Chevy Monte Carlo in a parking lot. The car had been stolen on Sept. 15.

On Sept. 21, the Newark Police Department recovered a Jeep Cherokee that was stolen Sept. 15.

On Sept. 22, a 1987 Honda was broken into and some articles were stolen from the car between 11:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Two hubcaps were stolen from a 1981 Chevy Camaro on Sept. 22 between 8:00 a.m. and 9:41 a.m. in lot 25.

Between Sept. 23 and Sept. 25, a 1979 Volkswagen Rabbit in lot 24 was illegally entered by unknown means and the car's stereo was stolen.

In lot 29, a 1980 Datsun 280 ZX was walked over. This occurred between 12:30 p.m. on Sept. 26 and 10:30 a.m. on Sept. 27.

Between 9:00 p.m. on Sept. 26 and 2:00 a.m. on Sept. 27, the stereo of a 1985 Jeep Cherokee was stolen in lot 28 after the vehicle's window had been smashed.

On Sept. 21 the Pilgrim State Bank finished an investigation which revealed that a former MSC employee had been illegally obtaining money from the "George" machine in the Student Center. Charges are being pressed by the bank.

At approximately 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 21, a verbal dispute took place between a food service employee and a student. The food service employee's truck was blocking the student's car which was illegally parked.

The student asked the employee, who was inside Freeman Hall to move his truck. When the student did not feel the employee responded fast enough he rammed the truck with his car while he was waiting. No charges are being pressed by either party. The matter is being handled internally.

A women left her handbag in a classroom in Richardson Hall and when she returned her money and I.D. card had been stolen. The theft occurred of Sept. 22 between 3:00 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

On Sept. 23 at 4:30 a.m. a bomb threat was called in to the Blanton Hall desk.

On Sept. 24 at 1:30 a.m. it was discovered that someone threw a brick through a door and a bathroom window in Partridge Hall.

Registrar's schedule confirmation

Confirmation schedules were mailed to all students for the fall 1988 semester, on Sept. 22, 1988. Schedules for students who live on campus were sent to their home address.

Students must review this schedule to make sure that the courses agreed (by number, day, and time) with those which they are attending.

If there is ANY discrepancy with your schedule, you must report to the Office of the Registrar, immediately!

Failure to resolve these discrepancies will result in no credit or failing grades for some of your courses. All registration must be made by Oct. 4, 1988.

If you have not received a confirmation schedule, you must report to the Office of the Registrar immediately.

All copies of your registration transactions should be brought with you when making inquiries.

Adjuncts relieve faculty load

The alternative to hiring adjuncts, Kramer said, is hiring more full-time faculty which leads to a reduction in teaching load and/or course load.

"I think we have some very good people teaching as adjuncts, but there are too many. It's unfair to the adjuncts and unfair to the students," Kramer added.

One recently employed faculty member of MSC explained, "No matter what college you go to, this question (the number of adjuncts) is always a topic. It's a matter of servicing the student community. No adjuncts, less classes." Gregory Good, an international business consultant who teaches in the management department, added that it's better to be an associate or have some sort of degree, adjuncts have an opportunity to "go outside academia, which gives a great variety to the campus. You have to have a good balance between the department between adjuncts and professors. (It's) the only way the school gets better." Daniel Gualtieri, a math teacher from North Bergen High School who also teaches in the math department, believes that there are a lot of adjuncts because people are not going into teaching anymore and others are looking for second jobs.

Although he is not at MSC as much as a professor, he is available during office hours like all adjuncts and professors.

"Fifteen students make it, they make it, and if they don't, they don't," said Gualtieri.

While the students are the most affected by the situation, their opinions on adjuncts vary. A senior who had an adjunct as his math teacher called her class, "Horrible. Absolutely horrible," saying that the teacher rushed through the material and volunteered to get a tutor for any students who had any questions.

Another commented that his adjunct was "hard to find.

One person who had an adjunct in the speech department recalled that her teacher cancelled a lot of classes to handle her business, and later her class was dropped.

"Adjuncts are usually much more personable and friendly," one junior quipped of his experience with adjuncts in philosophy and speech.

"She was great," one sophomore stated, finding no problem at all with her adjunct in the psychology department.

One senior found "really no difference" between her adjuncts and professors in the art department except that her adjuncts were somewhat easier and they got their point across well. "I've had some really lousy professors," she added.

A sophomore who had an adjunct for an algebra class considered the situation from both ends. "It's better to have a full-time professor than an adjunct, but it's better to have an adjunct than to have your class cancelled," he said.

Another added, "You can't judge a teacher by their position. You can have good or bad adjuncts and good or bad professors."

Winter Session 1989

There will be an advanced registration period for winter sessions 1989. Students are encouraged to advance register due to the limited number of courses offered. Courses available at late registration will be minimal.

National Sorority aids the homeless

By Amber Smith

Correspondent

Inside the Penn Station doorway, several people are on the floor sleeping, dirty from the hard floors. In a park nearby, a man is sitting under a tree with his bag of belongings with him. Another person, raggedy and rugged from head to foot, digs into a garbage can, searching for food or a newspaper.

These are the homeless, and there are approximately 32,000 of them in New Jersey, according to Outreach, a private non-profit organization designed to help the unfortunate.

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., another non-profit organization, has decided to do something about the homeless problem in North Jersey.

Alonza Cannady, president of Delta Sigma Theta, Delta Zeta chapter on MSC's campus, said "Project Homeless" is a monthly program designed to help feed the homeless. The program is expected to continue for the entire school year. Delta Zeta is the organization's city chapter of North Jersey that is sponsoring the project.

Cannady said that the "Project Homeless" idea was originated by chapter members. "Our national executive board encourages us to submit any new or original ideas," she said.

Some concentrated areas for "Project Homeless" include Jersey City, Penn Station in Newark, and Elizabeth, Cannady said. Over 200 people were fed in the last homeless project.

Ronald Williams, a former employee of Bell Telephone in Newark, said that he had been homeless for six months after having problems with his landlord.

Williams became an alcoholic after his mother passed away about fifteen years ago. He plans to seek professional help through a free clinic. "Hopefully they can lead me to some shelters to get me off the street," he said.

According to Cannady, the nation is not doing an efficient job in helping the homeless. "The Republicans have cut funding for so many programs—it's like taking from Peter to feed Paul," Cannady added. "Organizations aren't getting to the root of the problem because they can only do so much.

On the other hand, projects sponsored by the Deltas include "Adopt A Black Family," in which Thanksgiving meals will be provided for poor black families, and donations for Jamaica's hurricane victims, according to Cannady.

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., was founded at Howard University in 1913. There are over 125,000 members nationwide, and is the largest black women's sorority in the country.

Famous members include actress Ruby Dee and singer Leontyne Price, Cannady said.

Several members of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc., and Sigma Phi Rho Fraternity, Inc. from MSC's campus also participated in "Project Homeless".

"We had a lot of fun," said Samuel A. Davis Jr., secretary of Kappa Alpha Psi, Iota Epsilon chapter. "Everything went smoothly. They were very receptive and there were no problems."

Gardner Walker, service chairman of Sigma Phi Rho of Montclair State said he was "impressed with the whole project." He added, "I would love to thank Deltas for allowing my organization to participate in this program. I was very pleased to see Greek lettered organizations come together in an effort to help the community."

Walker and Sigma Phi Rho are willing to participate in future homeless projects.

On the same note, Davis added, "I didn't pledge to be segregated from other Greeks. The members of Kappa Alpha Psi hope that this example of unity will motivate all other Greek lettered organizations and neighboring communities in general to participate in a very worthwhile project."

According to Cannady, several northern chapters of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc., are already doing its share in helping the homeless. Zeta chapters from Montclair State, Fairleigh Dickinson University, and Upsala College are currently sponsored on campus. "This will benefit the Newark homeless. Tickets are 99c. People interested in purchasing a ticket can call L. Smith-Harris at 783-2329, or see any member of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority. The drawing will take place on Friday, Sept. 30 in the Blanton Hall atrium."

The Deltas encourage everyone to attend "Project Homeless". The next project is scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 23. All interested persons and organizations should meet in the Blanton Hall lobby at 12 p.m. on that day for further instructions.
Career Services

Seven common myths

Students often have misconceptions about Career Services and career planning that need to be exposed and explored. Accurate information will help students take advantage of their resources and programs while they’re at Montclair State College.

Career Services is an employment agency. Career Services does much more. The office provides a full range of services, including career counseling, a career library, career planning and job hunting seminars, and a computerized guidance system called DISCOVER. Employers do contact Career Services about part-time and full-time openings, and these positions are listed in job books found in the office and mailed to registered students and alumni.

Myth #1. If students don’t know their major, they can’t begin career planning.

The first step in the career planning process is developing a self-awareness—thinking about what one likes to do, about what one does well, and about one’s priorities. Once a student has done this, he can begin to explore career options which match with who he is.

Myth #2. If students have made a career choice, they don’t have to use Career Services until they are ready to graduate.

Even if a student has made a career choice, it is best to test it out while still at school. This can be done by getting related part-time or summer jobs or speaking to people in the field. Career Services can help students find such a jobs and identify Montclair State graduates in a specific career for students to talk to.

Myth #4. Students’ majors determine their career paths.

It is a prevailing myth that a major is intimately linked to the work that will be done in the future. This connection is certainly true for accounting, recreation, or food service management, but many college graduates use their skills in work settings which had no obvious connection to their college majors. Remember, a student is a whole person, not just a major.

Myth #5. Career Services only works with seniors.

According to a national survey, 77 percent of today’s workforce entered their occupation by chance rather than by choice. Counselors in the Career Services office want to work with students as soon as they start at the college so that they can number among the 23 percent who have planned and have made a choice. Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors are very welcome.

Myth #6. Students need a GPA of at least 2.4 and must have completed 45 credits to work with Career Services.

There are no guidelines that students must meet to use the Career Services office. They can begin whenever they choose and can use all the services or can pick the ones which meet their needs.

Myth #7. All the companies who come for on-campus recruitment seek business administration majors.

Each year, companies such as Xerox, Bloomingdale’s, Aetna, Nabisco, Midlantic, Blue Cross/Blue Shield, and Prudential do not ask for students with specific majors, but want those who are interested in the positions available or in the industry. Additionally, the large and small businesses which list jobs with Career Services most often ask for people with particular skills, work attitudes, or personality characteristics (i.e., writing ability, energetic, outgoing) rather than particular majors.

Myth #8. All companies want seniors.

It is a prevailing myth that most companies want seniors. As of Oct. 3, two physicians serving the campus community at the Health Center located on the first floor in Blanton Hall. Their hours will be posted outside the Health Center office. Further information may be obtained by calling the Health Center at 893-4361.

Vincent Benedetto and Judith Mendez have been appointed freshmen legislators for the 88-89 academic year. Timothy J. Elliot has been appointed by the legislature to the position of director of residence life for the 88-89 academic year.

Telescope night

Every clear Thursday, except on holidays, Dr. Mary Lou West holds a public telescope night outside of Richardson Hall. The event is held from 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., and is free of charge. All are welcome.

SGA begins on campus voter registration

Try a Macintosh today—you may win a Sony Discman.

Now that a new school year is under way, we have an idea that’ll make both you and your parents feel a bit more confident come finals time:

Get a Macintosh® computer to help with your homework.
Then you’ll never have to spend another all-nighter retyping a paper just to purge a few typos and dangling modifiers. You’ll be able to crank out assignments that look as though you bribed a friend in art school. And with an amazing new program called HyperCard®—which just happens to come packaged with every Macintosh—you can easily store, organize, and cross-reference research notes to your heart’s content.

And if that isn’t enough reason to look at a Macintosh today, here’s another:
Right now, you have three chances to win one of Sony’s Discman® CD players—including the exciting Sony Pocket Discman, which also plays the new 3-inch CDs. And even if you miss out on the CD player, you may still win one of 15 Apple T-shirts. No strings attached—just fill out a registration form at the location listed below.

So come in and get your hands on a Macintosh.
If not for yourself, do it for your folks.

CLASS IV ORGANIZATION of SGA
THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

What fears hold you back?

Fear is a universal human experience. Our differences lie only in what we are afraid of and how we handle it.

Coming to college can produce anything from mild anxiety to bone numbing fear, even when we’ve been looking forward to getting a degree. Our fear, until overcome, can keep us from functioning at our best.

Some of us need friends to feel connected to life, and yet shyness can keep us from reaching out for the thing we need most.

The first step in overcoming our fears, is identifying and naming them. In the Bible, Paul said, “We have not been given the spirit of fear” and Jesus said, “My peace I give to you.”

While these words may sound trite sometimes, they are nonetheless true. In the midst of a very anxious world there is a peace and power from God that can be discovered and experienced.

We share the Lord’s Supper/Communion every Monday noon on the 4th floor of the Student Center. Anyone may come.

You don’t need your parents’ money to buy a Macintosh.

It’s never been difficult for students to convince their parents of the need for a Macintosh* computer at school.

Persuading them to write the check, however, is another thing altogether.

Which is why Apple created the Student Loan-to-Own Program. An ingenious loan program that makes buying a Macintosh as easy as using one.

Simply pick up an application at the location listed below, or call 800-831-LOAN. All your parents need to do is fill it out, sign it, and send it. If they qualify, they’ll receive a check for you in just a few weeks.

There’s no collateral. No need to prove financial hardship. No application fee.

Best of all, the loan payments can be spread over as many as 10 years. Which gives you and your parents plenty of time to decide just who pays for it all.

Who will really suffer for the lies of Tawana & Company?

Following their painstaking seven month investigation, the grand jury is set to reveal evidence that will once and for all end this media circus of rhetoric and unsubstantiated allegations called the Tawana Brawley case.

According to an investigation in Tuesday's New York Times which is based upon the testimony presented to the grand jury, Miss Brawley fabricated her rape story to avoid severe punishment by her mother's live-in boyfriend. She also knowingly "mislead doctors, social workers, the police, reporters and concerned citizens with a charade of medical complaints and fragmentary accounts of horror in the hands of racists—a tale luridly embellished by her family, laywers and advisers—and that has since refused to cooperate in order to cover up her actions."

But who is really to blame? Is it easy to point the finger at the obviously troubled youth. It is in fact the family's "advisers" that began and then perpetuated this blatant fraud.

Only these three charlatans, Alton Maddox Jr., C. Vernon Mason and Rev. Al Sharpton, could hold a press conference and name Duchess County Prosecutor Steven Pagones as one of her "attackers" without offering a shred of proof.

Only these three stooges could compare State Attorney General Robert Abrams to Adolf Hitler. If anyone is guilty, it is they for using Brawley as means of corrupting the law for their own personal gain.

Surely they must have known that Glenda Brawley's live-in boyfriend was a convicted murderer and a known drug dealer, and that Brawley herself was arrested on shoplifting charges. Surely they must have known that residents of the apartment complex where Tawana was found say that they saw her crawl into a plastic bag, hop five feet and curl into the fetal position—complex where Tawana was found say that they saw her crawl into a plastic bag, hop five feet and curl into the fetal position—and that F.B.I. tests link the writing found on her body and denim fragments found in the abandoned apartment to Brawley.

Unfortunately, it is the next truly victimized Blakc person that will suffer because the public will not forget this "cry wolf" scam.

There are many lies that have circulated because of Tawana and her cohorts, and many of them will surely come out when the grand jury releases its report. But one thing is for certain—Tawana Brawley is a liar—and Maddox, Mason and Sharpton are crooks.

WASHINGTON—Dan Quayle is a fortunate man. Born rich and handsome, he now has his credentials for the vice presidency questioned because he ducked the draft during the Vietnam War. For Quayle, this is the luckiest break of all. It obscures how unqualified he is for the office he seeks.

At 41 years of age, Quayle is in his second term in the U.S. Senate where he is known for very little. In the House, where he served previously, he passed through that body like a servant emptying ashtrays at a party. No one noticed him. "Down deep," a member of the House told me, "this man is superficial."

For Quayle, this performance was characteristic. At DePaul University, his professors recall someone who challenged the laws of physics: a near perfect vacuum. "He was as vapid a student as I can recall," said Michael Lawrence, who attempted to teach both constitutional law and American government to Quayle. Another of Quayle's teachers offered a similar assessment. "Dan Quayle was a crashing mediocrity, student," said Robert Sedlack, who taught him English.

So what qualifies Quayle for the vice presidency? Everything. The office is the Founding Father's little joke—often a political purgatory for men, like George Bush, who would place their ambition before their principles.

But what of the presidency? That's a different matter—in fact, the heart of the matter. After all, the Vice President is the President's understudy, the constitutional next of kin who gets the first call. Here the qualifications of Dan Quayle are appallingly absent.

The choice of Dan Quayle shows that George Bush has a Marie Antoinette side to him. Quayle is his version of let-them-eat-cake—a thumb in the eye to both history and good judgment. This is not an example of a presidential candidate crazily balancing the ticket—John Kennedy choosing Lyndon Johnson or, more recently, Michael Dukakis picking Lloyd Bentsen. Those men were senators of stature and, indeed, had sought the presidency on their own.

No, Quayle represents the Bush at worst—a view of the GOP and, ultimately, the White House as a soggy law firm. Based on background and connections but not merit, Bush has made Quayle a junior partner—a hearty fellow who presumably knows the ingredients of a good martini. Bush passed over Bob Dole, Jack Kemp and—also in Indiana—Richard Lugar, because he is uncomfortable in the presence of strong men and sought youth to balance his ticket. He forgot his own origins and how it came to Quayle, adoption was always an option.

No person is immortal. Accidents can happen and Quayle could be President a day after Bush takes the oath of office—assuming he wins in November. In that case, the United States will have a President whose colleagues know him as shallow, whose teachers recall him as mediocre—who leads no constituency, no wing of his party and whose administrative experience was mostly as assistant publisher at a newspaper owned by his old man.

Worse, Quayle has shown in the last few days that he lacks both character and candor. There is a bit of the Richard Nixon in him. He turns legitimate questions about his National Guard service into an attack on the press and talks of his reserve duty behind a typewriter as if it had been winter at Valley Forge. He turns aside inquiry by noting the irrelevant: He is small-town boy; he has a wife; they have children. He stoops to demagoguery—the assertion that guardians everywhere have been sullied. His defense of National Guard service has been one long Cheekers speech. Will he soon produce a dog?" Ever since George Bush wrapped up the GOP presidential nomination (right after the New Hampshire primary in February) he has promised us a vice-presidential candidate in his own image: someone with the standing to walk into the Oval Office and say what's on his mind. But it takes some imagination to imagine Quayle barging in on Bush and telling him to reverse engines.

Can anyone imagine Bush listening to Dan Quayle? Based upon what? Quayle's experience? His towering intellect? His well-documented candor and good judgment? His standing in the GOP? His administrative experience? His connections but not merit, Bush has made Quayle a junior partner—a hearty fellow who presumably knows the ingredients of a good martini. Bush passed over Bob Dole, Jack Kemp and—also in Indiana—Richard Lugar, because he is uncomfortable in the presence of strong men and sought youth to balance his ticket. Students rebut SGA president
"Unmitigated gall" angers readers

To the editor:

As a concerned student of MSC, I would like to respond to "Tommy Talks" on September 15, 1988 "Unmitigated Gall Ruins Commencement Ceremony." I think he should be more careful before he writes his column. Tommy is just as unaware of the point that the honorary degree recipient was making as he is of the racial conditions on campus. Tommy did not speak of the fact that a Black and a Jewish faculty member indirectly received death threats to be carried out during the commencement ceremony.

Tommy did not include in his comments that the college had received threats of a demonstration during graduation by a white supremacist group protesting the awarding of honorary degrees to two Blacks. Tommy failed to mention that an assassination threat was made on the life of a commencement speaker.

These are clearly the events that ruined the Commencement ceremony not the comments made by an "unscheduled speaker."

Tommy goes on to say "we haven't had one report of racial conflicts all year," without a thorough investigation.

Once again, on this matter Tommy speaks of things on which he is totally unaware. Just know what that's called "Unmitigated Gall!"

So Tommy please, in the future, investigate thoroughly before you "talk" and please don't assume because you know what happens!

Response to last week's criticism

I guess my Sept. 15 "Unmitigated Gall" editorial caused a little discussion and received a response. Well, that's good, because that was my intention.

I'd like to respond to both letters printed. To Mr. Furr: I believe that your interpretation of my editorial was way off base. In fact, my story was on how my editorial was way off base.

No, Mr. Furr, you simply used my editorial to tout your own opinion on a dead issue, since Vic Mizzone has dropped his legal action against the college. The fact is, I never made charges of racism or reverse racism in my article at all, you just twisted it to read what you wanted to read. Now that's not how you teach your freshmen composition course, is it?

Your whole letter is stained with irresponsible interpretations, and until you and all others that are so quick to criticize those of us working for change and improvement realize the damage your twisted "facts" can cause, much of this stain cannot be removed from your narrow collar.

As a matter of fact, since they are Class I's of the SGA, they have a higher representation than do some of the Class II's, such as the Italian, French and Arab clubs.

I'd like to point out that during the first three weeks of school anyone could have become an SGA legislator, regardless of sex, color, creed or race. Should some ethnic or cultural group want "direct representation," they could have become legislators.

You mention the words multi-culture, multi-ethnic groups on campus. Don't you mean Afro-American and Hispanic? You see, there was a group of individuals last year who felt they weren't represented in the SGA or on campus.

You know what they did? They formed a group, sought my help, and with it became a Class II of the SGA. I'm talking about the Arab Club.

I, like you believe we have racism on this campus. However, I, unlike you, are willing to publicize and eventually remove these problems.
Beckett’s Godot bewilders

By Ashley Rhodes
Correspondent

Samuel Beckett’s Waiting for Godot marked the opening of the 1988-89 Studio Theatre Series. Director Gerald Lee Ratliff rose above the small stage and cast, and most bizarre script to offer a magnificent 1987 production of the clown-faced actors and actresses gave the words more meaning. With playful rhymes and acrobatic poses, the repetitiveness of the dialogue was well disguised.

Waiting, and waiting in the sylvan set is Vladimir, played by Kevin S. Smith and his companion Estragon, Nina Derham. Together their timing is exciting and well presented. They bring the language of the script to a visual level. Smith appeared relaxed and well rehearsed. He moved to the fine choreography and presented a strong performance.

Derham gave an equally exciting portrayal of her forgetful yet philosophical character. Her finely crafted expressions and Estragon will keep waiting, not realizing that’s he’s already there.

The play is clouded with references to searching and finding oneself. Nugent withdraws sympathy for Godot depicts a religious figure? And Vladimir and Estragon will keep waiting, not realizing that’s he’s already there.

Nugent withdraws sympathy from Godot, telling him to wait until tomorrow–he’ll surely come. This only adds to the confusion.

What do you believe this little girl? Why do they keep waiting? The program says it’s a “biblical story retold as a fractured fair-tale.” Maybe Godot depicts a religious figure? And Vladimir and Estragon will keep waiting, not realizing that’s he’s already there.

For an encore, Def Leppard performed it’s current single “Hysteria” from the last one. Half-way through the set, lead singer Joe Elliot took a moment to address the band’s recent up and downs, the biggest “up” was the return of drummer Rick Allen. He suffered a stroke to his left arm in an automotive accident on New Year’s Eve, 1984, overcame his disability and continued his career.

The audience roared its approval and gave Allen a fond ovation (no matter what you think about him) as he returned. However, it’s amazing what a hit single will do for ticket sales, it isn’t?

The “Overplayed Hit Of 1988.” Some Sugar On Me” became a hit single to inspire this kind of interest in the band, because Leppard has always been a band that researches their lyrics. Their ability to overcome nearly any setback, is another reason for their success.

Sugar single sweetens Leppard Hysteria tour

By Matt Menden
Correspondent

Def Leppard returned to the Brendan Byrne Arena last Wednesday night for the first of three shows this week. Leppard is one of the band’s 1987 Hysteria tour.

Wait a minute, wasn’t there a U.S. tour in 1987? No, this is the band’s nearly two-hour set with the arena crowd at the Arena last Oct.

All that was before “Pour Some Sugar On Me” became the “Ohio” of their career. However, it’s amazing what a hit single will do for ticket sales, isn’t it?

It’s unfortunate that it took a hit single to inspire this kind of interest in the band, because “Sugar” notwithstanding, Def Leppard has always been a band worth seeing. Don’t confuse or include them with heavy metal “pretty boy” bands. Def Leppard has gotten where they are through their talent, hard work and top-notch musicianship. And last night, just like last year, they proved themselves worthy of their success.

Concentrating almost entirely on material from their last two albums, the band opened their nearly two-hour set with “Stagefright,” from 1983’s Pyromania. From there it was simply an onslaught of crowd-pleasers: “Women,” and “Animal” from the current LP, “Foolin’” and “Deed The Hunter” from the last one.

Half-way through the set, lead singer Joe Elliot took a moment to address the band’s recent up and downs, the biggest “up” was the return of drummer Rick Allen. He suffered a stroke to his left arm in an automotive accident on New Year’s Eve, 1984, overcame his disability and continued his career.

The audience roared its approval and gave Allen a fond ovation (no matter what you think about him) as he returned. However, it’s amazing what a hit single will do for ticket sales, it isn’t?

The “overplayed hit of 1988.” Some Sugar On Me” became a hit single to inspire this kind of interest in the band, because Leppard has always been a band that researches their lyrics. Their ability to overcome nearly any setback, is another reason for their success.

For more information call the Box Office at 893-5112.

In the end, a very satisfied audience left the Brendan Byrne Arena. And if this tour, plus their ability to overcome nearly any setback, is any indication, the future is likely to bode very well for Def Leppard.

Nolan’s Notes

By Jarrett Nolan

Hello and welcome to another edition of Nolan’s Notes. When the “Red, Red Wine” was first poured in 1984, few people got a buzz off of it. Now that it’s aged a little, more people are readily getting físed from it. UB40 owe their recent resurgence to a radio station in Phoenix, Arizona. One of their contents is a nightly competition in which two songs, one old one new, go head to head. Well, after winning for a couple of weeks, the program director at the station decided to put it on their playlist. Hence, the re-release of “Red, Red Wine.” MINI-NOTES: Now that Madonna has ended her run on Broadway, the Speed the Flow costar is in the studio recording her next album expected early next year... Albums out this week: Anita Baker, Sept. 27; Kenny G., Sept. 29; Luther Vandross, Sept. 30; R.E.M. and Cameo, Oct 3; Eddie Money and Keith Richards, Oct. 3. Tickets to scalp this week: Prince at the Garden Oct. 2-3; Michael Jackson at the Byrne Arena Oct. 3-5; Baker and Vandross double bill at the Garden Oct. 5-6.

MINI-NOTES II: From the “is it just me” file: is it just me or does Tracy Chapman really look like Buckwheat...Jackson claims that this will be his last concert tour ever...SO! The answer to last week’s trivia question: How did Sting acquire his nickname?...Think about it...Until next week...
Wiedlin passes the Go-Go’s in Rush Hour

By John Martucci
Correspondent

This is the first part of a two part series.

Jane Wiedlin has created a treasure of an album, that is warm and sensitive, as well as fun and upbeat. The first single “Rush Hour,” peaked at number nine in Billboard.

Throughout this interview, her honesty was startling and several times she became emotional. When talking about animal rights it was obvious she was holding back tears.

Montclair (Mont.) - Does being a former member of the Go-Go's ever come back to haunt you? Are you always being referred to as a former Go-Go?

Jane Wiedlin (J.W.) - Well, at first I kept thinking that once I get a new single, people won’t forget I used to be a Go-Go and I could be Jane Wiedlin. But, I realize it probably isn’t going to go away; and the good thing is it means I actually come from somewhere.

Mont. - There were a lot of differences between this album and your first album three years ago: new label, new musicians, new producers and you co-wrote more songs. What are the reasons for the changes and the leaps in time between the two albums?

J.W. - I’m not one of those people who worry about changing things; and when something is not going right, you’ve got to change or else you’re dead. Obviously what I was doing on the first album wasn’t happening. So the first thing I did was to get off that label, and go somewhere where people thought I could be a star. Unless your record company thinks you have potential, there isn’t much point in being there.

Mont. - And the last album?

J.W. - I realize the first album was a result of me leaving the band and suddenly experiencing a lot of freedom. It sounds the way that me now. It just goes in a lot of different directions. This time I wanted to be more solid, and that’s why I wanted to work with just one producer on the whole album instead of a whole bunch of people...and the record company suggested writing with different writers. That was actually a lot of fun, I really enjoyed that.

Mont. - One recurring theme is concern for society and another seems to be love and relationships. Why do you focus on those two topics? Is it easier for you to write about those things?

J.W. - Well I actually find it difficult to write about political issues and causes, but I think it is important to do so if you have strong beliefs because you’re in a position to influence a lot of people. So...well I know a lot of pop artists chose not to use that power, but, I really feel as if I have no choice because I do feel so strongly about so many things.

As far as the love and relationship thing, that’s just sort of a natural...I don’t know, it just seems that all along writers have always written about love, and I’m no exception.

Mont. - “Fur...” it’s a song, and it’s the album’s title. Is there any significance to that, the concept, the ideas or what?

J.W. - I guess there is significance...over the last four or five years I’ve become involved with different issues-most of which are animal issues. I also feel real strong about human rights, ecological issues and the nuclear problem. But, the thing with animals that really touches my heart is that they have no voice. They have no one to speak out for them, and they are the innocent victims of man’s greed. I feel compelled to try and speak out for them because they can’t. That’s why I wrote the song “Fur.”

I think that people have to learn to be more compassionate if we as a race are going to survive. Things are reaching this weird crisis stage where pretty soon there is going to be no water to drink, and no air to breathe and...no animals left, just people...and maybe a lot of different bugs or something.

Mont. - You were arrested once...You were involved with some sort of organization...in fact it was more than once. It was for protesting or something?

J.W. - Yeah...I was arrested four times and convicted once of blocking a doorway. I was at the University of California at Los Angeles which is a very big university in Los Angeles.

Mont. - Yes I think I’ve heard of that school, the Bruins.

J.W. - They have a research laboratory where approximately a hundred thousand animals at a time are kept inside of it. Students don’t even know what’s going on. You try and tell them and they think you’re lying. The administrators tell the students that we’re lying about what’s going on, but, you can look in their trash cans and you’ll find dead cats. My friends have found dead cats with their eyes cut out, their brains cut out.

I was convicted of blocking a doorway there and served five days in jail. As a result of that, I went through a trial, like an eight week trial that cost the taxpayers over a hundred thousand dollars. It just makes me wonder about the whole judicial system. I mean come on, am I like the big criminal of the century because I was standing in front of a door!? You know you’d think they’d spend that money going after crack dealers, but, UCLA is a very big powerful organization and they wanted to push it right through the top. You know, turn it into a big stink to try to discourage other people from letting the rest of the world know the truth.

Yo Yo what’s up people; car wrecker and face wrecker Mike Tyson was interviewed by Barbara Walters for this Friday’s edition of 20/20. Also present at the interview, which was held at Tyson’s home in New Jersey, was his wife Robin Givens and mother-in-law Ruth Roper.

Typical Barbara Walters question: Mr. Tyson if you could be any kind of tree which would it be?

On Oct. 8 the Fox network premieres a new comedy show, The Comic Strip Live will be on Saturday nights at 11 p.m. Saturday Night Live don’t feel it’s only a half an hour long. The show will originate from Los Angeles and will be hosted stand-up comic Jimmy Brogan and will feature five of the largest stand-up comics.

O.K. maybe his mom doesn’t hate his guts but they sure aren’t close. In a recent interview Guthaed’s 68 year old mom said she could not afford to give up her job as a city clerk in Chicago and is afraid to ask him for the money for fear he might reject her.

"I’m just trying to forget about him," Rhea Gumbel said. Bryant recently signed a three year, $7 million a year contract with NBC. Readers say it with me please - “What a JERK.” Thank you.

But wait here’s more stupidity. You have a show, for the sake of argument lets call it A Different World. You have a star we’ll call her Lisa Bonet. The show bombs, the star leaves, the show’s finished right? Nope, the show’s new season begins Thursday, Oct. 6, go figure.

I’m having a vision-L.A. Law’s Abby Perkins (Michele Scarabelli) will be dissatisfied at the firm and set up her own practice. Did I mention I had E.S.P.?

Star Trek fans set your remote control on WPIX/ch 11 because the show will be showing in its entirety the “The Cage,” the show’s original pilot as part of a two hour special. The show will air this Monday at 8 p.m.

Finally, Valerie “give me more, MIRE I said” Harper recently won her law suit against her former producers, Lorimar to the tune of $1.85 million. Just a little background: Harper wanted more money, the producers didn’t give it, and she was fired. The only problem was the show was called Valerie so what did they do? Bring in Peter Pan and call it The Hogan Family. Sounds good to me, hey whatever works babe.

Lame Movie of the Week: Hollywood Vice Squad Friday night at 10 p.m. on HBO. Drugs and violence, all the things that make life grand. Do yourself a favor and pick up a book. Ciao.

What's What in MSC sports

Soccer

The Indians won their only two contests this past week to stretch their win streak to four. On Tuesday night, the Indians had an NJAC matchup with William Paterson. MSC won, 2-0, on goals' by John Rubinetti and Robert Chesney. On Friday, the Indians defeated Stockton State, 3-1, as Scott Logan scored twice and Gus Maromarco added a goal. Upcoming matches: Sat., Dowling (H), 1:00; Wed., at Kean, 3:30.

Fall Baseball

The Indians entered last week facing a tough schedule and came out smiling. MSC had three games scheduled, the first against William Paterson College, which they dropped 5-4. The next two games came against Division I Rider College, in a doubleheader played Sunday. MSC bats erupted, scoring 12 runs in the first inning. The first five MSC batters hit safely in the game which ended with a score of 16-7. Game two was also a success for the Indians, as first baseman John Deutsch blasted his second homer in five games to make the score 4-0 after six. MSC held on for the win as the game ended 4-3. Upcoming game: Today, at Rutgers-New Brunswick.

Women's Tennis

The Indians are off to a rough start under interim coach Jill Jeffrey, holding a record of 0-3. The team dropped their opener by a score of 9-0 to Fairleigh Dickinson University. However, they have shown some signs of life in the last two matches, losing 6-3 in both as they faced William Paterson and East Stroudsburg. Leading the team are singles players Melissa Kollar and Jacque Mazzicini, who have both won in the last two matches.

Field Hockey

Head coach Marge Snyder's Indians vacated to a 5-1 record following two wins last week. The week opened against King's College where the Indians dominated throughout the game. The MSC defense played tough, not allowing King's College across the 50 yard line until only eight minutes remained in the game. Judy DeMarco turned in another incredible game as she netted two goals in the 4-0 rout. The Indians continued their torrid streak when they squared off against conference rival William Paterson, winning 2-1 in overtime. DeMarco scored the winner in that one, bringing her total for the season to five. Mary Liuzzi scored a crucial goal, sending the game into overtime.

Walsh capitalizes on opportunity to play

Walsh runs wild in MSC triumph

By Mary Carlomagno
Staff Writer

In MSC's game against Ramapo on Saturday, he carried the ball seven times, scored three touchdowns, and ran for 156 yards.

Although his statistics should speak for themselves, junior Dan Walsh, this week's Montclarion Athlete of the Week, has much more to talk about than just his record.

Walsh has been playing for the Indians for three years. He transferred from Kutztown University in 1986. In his first season at MSC, he played defense. Last season, Walsh suffered an injury to his hamstring and was redshirted.

According to Walsh, experience will definitely be a factor for the Indians this season.

"We are in synch with each other. Since we have been playing together for a long time, it seems that things usually go our way. It seems that we get the breaks when we are supposed to get the breaks," stated Walsh.

"If we lose I will be shocked," Walsh continued. "There is so much talent on the team, both offensively and defensively."

MSC tailback Dan Walsh, who exploded for 156 yards Saturday against Ramapo to earn Montclarion Athlete of the Week honors.

The Indian defense was exceptionally strong last week, as the unit let up only eight points. Walsh feels that it was 'what kept us in the game early."

"I wasn't at all surprised at last week's game," Walsh said. "Our defense is so strong that it doesn't seem to make a difference if we put points on the board or not."

Team co-captain Mark Witzal said of Walsh's performance, "Danny is a tough, straight ahead type of runner. He did what he had to do—rack up the yardage and steamroll the Ramapo defense."

Nose tackle Matthew Clark stated, "We have three running backs (Scott Vega, Mike Codella and Walsh) with stats that could enable them to start. No other team is in that position. It then becomes the coach's problem in picking who will play."

Clark continued, "We are individuals with the understanding that if each single player does his job, the team will succeed. Dan Walsh, by being present in the backfield, is clearly doing his job."

Walsh reinforces the idea of group effort and unity. "It is not in my nature to point out what my individual strengths may be. We are all as good as each other," he said.

Upcoming for Walsh and the Indians is the Pride Bowl, which will be played at City Stadium on Saturday. Walsh is confident that MSC will win.

"I really don't think there is a team that can beat us. We have the best and the biggest defensive line in Division III."

As for the rest of the season, Walsh added, "I know I can play. Now I just need to get the opportunity."

yards. The record, set against Jersey City in 1983, is 498.

Senior placekicker Tony Colasurdo had another fine game for the Indians, as he converted field goals of 37 and 47 yards and was four-for-four on point after attempts.

The final MSC score was on a nine-yard touchdown pass from Gilbert McNeil to freshman Chris Davies.

Defensively, the Indians looked very strong once again. Junior linebacker Len Kruk led all tacklers with a total of seven, while seniors David Harris (six tackles) and Matt Clark (five tackles, forced fumble) also played well for the Indians.

Indian Info: The Indians increased their record over Ramapo to 9-0 with the win... The Roadrunners' eight points were the most they ever scored against MSC... Tailback Scott Vega, who missed the Ramapo game with a sore knee and ankle, will play against Wagner... The Indians are averaging 348.7 yards per game offensively...
Track season gets off on right foot

After a victory over St. Peter's and a third place finish in the Trenton Invitational, optimism is high as the MSC women’s track team prepare for this week-end’s competition at Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania.

Junior Rosa Domingues was named All Conference for the two-mile event and has been a major factor in MSC’s strong opening performances. Her victory in the St. Peter’s meet followed a superb race at the Trenton Invitational, where she finished with a time of 20:14 for 3.1 miles.

Head coach John Blanton believes Domingues will be a valuable asset to the team for the forthcoming season. “I’m very pleased with Domingues’s performance and I’m anticipating her to run even faster in the future,” said Blanton.

Jennifer Abrahamsen, also named All Conference in 1987, proved a top competitor in early seasons.

“lt’s back” Yeah, so Lawrence Taylor is back, and he might play for the Giants Sunday. The Giants (and the NFL, for that matter) are probably glad to have him back. And why not? The guy’s a great ball player, he generates excitement, and he’s a character. But the thing that both the league and the Giants don’t want to hear is that Taylor is a Grade-A jerk, and not for the same tired, old reasons. Here’s the point: he writes a book, and in it he explains how

Seahawks ready for Pride Bowl showdown

MSC takes on Wagner Saturday afternoon at City Stadium in Newark in the 10th annual Pride Bowl.

The benefit game, which supports Newark’s Project Pride (a non-profit youth organization), pits two of the top teams in all of Division III.

The Indians, who haven’t lost since September 29 of last season, will be attempting to stretch their winning streak to eleven games.

Wagner (2-1), last year’s Division III national champion, ripped Drexel of Columbia last week, 61-14, while the Indians (3-0) rocked Ramapo, 40-8.

The Seahawks are led by an impressive backfield tandem of seniors Terry Underwood and Tom Pugh. Underwood leads the team in rushing with 449 yards on 67 carries, while Pugh boasts a team-high five touchdowns.

Senior quarterback Greg Kovar is back for Wagner. Thus far this season, Kovar has completed 49 of 85 passes for 603 yards and one touchdown.

The MSc defense has been stingy this season, yielding only 34 points in three games and coming up with the big plays when needed. This Saturday, the Indians take on defending Division III national champion Wagner in the tenth annual Pride Bowl at City Stadium in Newark.
Walsh leads MSC past Ramapo, 40-8

Tailback Dan Walsh scored three touchdowns to lead the Indians to a 40-8 victory over Ramapo Saturday in a New Jersey Athletic Conference (NJAC) game in Mahwah. Walsh set a school record with his first score, an 85-yard run. It was the longest run from scrimmage in MSC history, smashing the old mark of 80 yards which was held by Bill Grundy (1980) and Bobby Vannoy (1981). He later scored on runs of 59 yards and one yard.

The junior from Hazlet finished the game with 156 yards rushing on just seven carries. For his efforts, Walsh was named East Coast Athletic Conference Player of the Week.

Walsh’s performance overshadowed an excellent performance by running back Mike Codella. The senior from Parsippany carried the ball 19 times for 114 yards and a touchdown.

The Indians fell just 41 yards short of the school record for total offensive yards in a single game, as they rolled up 457 total cont. on p. 18
