Board of Trustees:

Approval of presidential search procedures

By Jane Bech Nielsen
Assignment Editor

The MSC Board of Trustees approved presidential search procedures at their Oct. 13 meeting.

According to Murray L. Cole, chairman of the board, a presidential search committee will be appointed at next board meeting to take place on Nov. 3. The committee will be responsible for screening all applicants, as well as making recommendations to the board.

The committee will consist of representatives from the many campus constituencies, Murray said. Representatives will be present from the faculty, the graduate and undergraduate studies, the administration, MSC alumni, SGA, and from the college’s deans, he added.

Murray said that since their last meeting, the board had received several letters suggesting modifications of the position description for the president’s position. The new position description is expected to be submitted to the board’s executive committee approval by Oct. 31, Murray said.

David O’Brien has been appointed secretary of another search committee. All correspondence regarding the search procedures must be directed to him, Murray added.

Murray strongly encouraged the board to use their network outside of the college to search for a qualified candidate. He pointed out that many had substantial outreach into the academic community.

In a resolution regarding the president search, the board unani¬mously endorsed the adoption of the bond issue. Acting President Richard Lynde stressed that the bond issue “is good for the state of N.J.” and will increase the amount of work available in the state.

Dr. Edward Boyno, faculty representative, began his report by wishing Dr. and Mrs. Walters well and good luck in the future.

“When Walters began his presidency, the college was drifting, losing ground to its sister college, and faculty mor¬al was an all-time low. He reversed this trend, and we are grateful to him,” he said.

In his report, Boyno expressed concern over the rising number of adjuncts teaching at MSC. He stressed that evening students have very limited access to the faculty.

Recently adjuncts have been hired to fill in for full time faculty given released time to administrative work, Boyno said. He suggested that full time faculty be replaced on a one to one basis when such released time is given.

William Griffith, vice president of administration and finance, presented the 1989 fiscal year budget.

Dr. Harbans Singh, chairman of the environmental, urban and geographic studies department, briefly highlighted the features of the program. Among other things, Singh stressed the importance of encouraging cross-specialization among majors.

The department works in close relationship with the psychology, economics, history, and political science department, Singh said.

The department also puts strong emphasis on good writing skills, and students are encouraged to receive practical training and participate in community services, Singh added.

Other actions at the meeting included the swearing in of the newly appointed trustee, Mr. Joseph Harris. Harris is currently the university assistant dean at the City University of New York, serving the office of student affairs and special pro¬grams.

Cole extended an invitation to the entire campus community to attend a reception to honor Dr. and Mrs. Walters. The reception will be held Wednesday, Oct. 26, from 3-5 p.m. at the Student Center Ballrooms.

Careers in retail explored

By Carl Chase

MSC’s retailing program gave 200 high school and junior college students rare access to the knowledge of merchandising professionals from the tri-state area, at the Student Center on Tuesday, Oct. 18.

“Careers in Retailing,” the third annual retail symposium, featured executives from major stores, including MSC alumni, Susan Baldassare (class of 1987) and Ann Kaufman (1977) who graduated from the program. Baldassare is the retail coordinator at Bridgewater Com¬mons; Kaufman is vice president of Macy’s.

The largest retail training program in the state, retail merchandising management attracted students from as far as Ridgefield Memorial High School. “We would like you all to think about a career in retailing,” Dr. Joseph Hecht, who heads the program, said.

Dr. John McGinnis, another MSC professor, introduced a dozen executives including Bill Crisp of Kinney Corp. Head¬quarters, New York, who gave the keynote speech.

“Like professional athletes, retailers can have tremendous fun and satisfaction at their jobs, contrary to popular opinion,” he said, adding that this unfavorable opinion of retailing can work to your advantage, if you have the necessary qualities.

He identified these as knowledge, edge, skill, and a proper attitude.

Chris Krasan, president of Epsilon Delta Epsilon, the retailing honors society and treasurer of Delta Epsilon Chi, the retailing club, addressed the audience. “In today’s competitive work force,” she said, “everyone needs an edge in order to be successful.” She said the program and the club gives every opportunity to gain that edge.

“My experience at MSC has played a major role in my successful career. Developing your people skills is one of the most important aspects,” Baldassare said.

“Moving around, talking to people, being active are the things I like to do,” Kaufman said, adding she has been able to do these things, and for pay.

Joseph Conforti, a Kinney Corp. manager, said that Kin¬ney managers earn up to $33,000 in their first year, and added that one Kinney higher executive earns $1.8 million a year. “That’s more than any engineer earns, to my knowl¬edge,” he said.
American immigrants survived by forming social relationships

By Lilyanne McClean
Staffwriter

According to Charles Tilly, director of the Center for Studies of Social Change, New School for Social Research, New York, immigrants who came to the United States throughout history formed social relationships to ensure survival.

These social relationships include networks, categories, and ties where they had strong connections.

The receiving networks often provided jobs, housing and transportation for members coming from the sending networks. "The higher the risk and the more expensive the cost of return, the more reliance was placed on these ties," he added.

"People relied on networks before, during and after migration," Tilly said. "People created categories as they moved," Tilly said. "For example, Neapolitans coming from Italy became 'Italians' when they arrived in the United States."

"People formed categories as they moved," Tilly said. "Migration is not a homogeneous experience," Tilly said. "It is a familiar story to all of us. We ought to think of migration as we think of community structures."

Tilly suggested that these social relationships may have one drawback. "Every inclusion, however, promotes exclusion," he said. "If a group is providing jobs from their own, they are keeping jobs from others."

Law school admission day

By John Navarro
Managing editor

Prospective law school students were given the opportunity to meet with law school representatives from various law schools, yesterday at the sixth annual Law School Admissions Day, which is the only one of its kind in New Jersey.

In attendance were some of the leading law schools in the United States, attorneys from the Young Lawyers Division of the New Jersey State Bar Association, and approximately 400 interested students.

The event's main points were two panel discussions, the first relating to "Choosing a Law School," and the second, "Attending a law school."

When asked what knowledge or information you would like to get about choosing a law school, Barbara Smith replied, "I hope to learn what I can do now to prepare myself for the rigorous Law School application process and start to narrow down my choices of what law school I want to attend."

As for attending law school, Andrea Gomez responded, "I'm here to talk to the law school representatives to see if all the horror stories of law school are as true as everyone says they are."

To be able to sign up for any of these interviews you must fill out Career Services registration forms and provide 10 copies of your resume.

To improve your resume writing and interviewing skills, you may attend seminars offered by Career Services on a regular basis.
NJSA supports bond issue

By Maggie Mooney
Correspondent

The New Jersey Student Association (NJSA) met at MSC on Oct. 13. The organization is comprised of various Student Government Associations (SGA) across the state who have banned together to form a stronger voice to resolve the proposed $350 million bond issue.

The bond issue will provide $350 million to update and increase campus facilities and technologies statewide. In order for the institutions to receive their allotments from the bond issue they must provide at least $130 million in matching funds. MSC is liable to receive $13 million from the State if it provides $6.5 million of its own, according to a bond issue update from the Office of Public Information.

At last Thursday’s Board of Trustee’s meeting it was announced that a search committee will be formed to fill the vacancy left by Dr. Donald Walters. At the time of Oct. 31 Walters’ resignation takes effect.

There will be 16 members on the search committee, of which two will be undergraduate students, one will be a graduate student, and the rest will be filled by faculty and the administration. Any student interested must submit their name and phone number to the SGA office as soon as possible.

Due to last week’s incident in the Rat, no alcohol will be served this week. A MSC campus visitor assaulted a police officer who was hospitalized for a few days. A proposal which would ban all MSC guests in the Rat for the rest of the semester is being considered.

The New Jersey Student Association (NJSA) which is made up of various college student governments throughout the state has taken a position on the bond proposal being voted on Nov. 8.

The NJSA will be holding a press conference within the next couple of weeks to announce to the public and Governor Kean their position. They favor the bond issue, but do not want the burden, via increased tuition to meet the matching $130 million of its own.

Campus Police Report

Rat won't serve after officer is injured

By Rob Tomeo
Staffwriter

On Oct. 11, a student was arrested for presenting an altered driver's license and misrepresenting his age in order to get into the Rat on Oct. 6. By using false ID, he will receive a $100 fine, will enter an alcohol education program, and will most likely lose his driving privilege for 6 months.

While investigating a fight and a student who presented false ID at the Rat, a security officer was approached by an intoxicated male who hit the officer in the face. The officer was brought to the hospital for treatment. The assailant, who is not an MSC student, was arrested and charged with aggravated assault and resisting arrest.

Due to the incident, which occurred at 1:15 a.m. on Oct. 14, the Rat will be not be serving alcohol on Thursday, Oct. 20.

On Oct. 15 at 3:30 a.m., a male entered Blanton Hall, posing as a pizza deliverer. The person at the desk told him he would have to sign in if he wanted to visit someone.

The male proceeded to walk behind the desk, climb over the stairwell wall, and walk up the stairway. He was found by security officers on the third floor and was arrested. He will appear in Little Falls Municipal Court on Nov. 2.

On Oct. 16 at 8:30 p.m. at the football game, there was a fight on the visitor's side of the stadium. One of the people involved was the dean of student affairs at William Paterson College (WPC). He had seen a fight about to take place between two hostile groups and interceded.

The dean was recognized by students from WPC and the groups were about to disperse when a WPC student jumped the dean from the side and began hitting him. The student, who was arrested, later said he did not recognize the man as being the dean. The student and the dean have signed complaints against each other.

At the Clove Rd. bridge, on Oct. 16 at 1:10 a.m., two males were observed holding up beer cans while soliciting passing cars. An officer in a patrol car saw them doing this and recognized one of the students as someone who had been arrested for drinking under age on Oct. 8. The student fled, but was found later and arrested for illegal consumption of alcohol and resisting arrest.

At 3:10 a.m. on Oct. 16, there was a report of a large fight in progress at the Clove Rd. apartments. All parties were separated when the officers arrived. The fight started as an altercation between three white and three black males.

Reportedly one black male grabbed at one of the white male's throats and that triggered a chain reaction that erupted in a big fight. The three white males wound up seriously hurt and were taken to the hospital for treatment. Approximately 150 people watched the fight as it took place.

On Oct. 15 at 3:10 a.m. in lot 29, an officer, while investigating another case, was approached by a victim of an aggravated assault. The victim claimed that he and his friend had gotten into a confrontation at a Clove Rd. party.

He and his friend were asked to leave, and as they did so they were followed out by a group of people at the party. One of the males in the group broke a beer bottle and cut the victim's face and continued to threaten him. The police are searching for the suspect who is a student of a Massachusetts college.

Concern over declining student enrollment

By Valerie Kalfrin
Staff writer

By 1990, MSC's full time enrollment may drop—on a request by the college administration.

These and other issues were discussed at the latest American Federation of Teachers, AFT—CIO, Local 1904 meeting at MSC on Oct. 12.

Catherine Becker, president of AFT Local 1904, called the projected enrollment a "policy of decline", decided on by the college administration without consulting the faculty.

In her written report of Oct. 6, Becker quoted a table from the Department of Higher Education Budget Document FY 1990. According to the table, both MSC and Kean College requested and were recommended to admit fewer students in 1990 than their 1989 budgets allowed. Becker believes that MSC is becoming more academically selective, transforming into the "Trenton State" of North Jersey, with less academically able students going to William Paterson.

On the projected decline in enrollment, Becker said: "I think it's a mistake. We're sitting demographically in an area with poor and minority students. We'd be denying opportunities at a place that's a quality institution."

Becker added that the faculty had no say in the quality of the college. "This is not the way a traditional college government should operate," she said. "MSC has the best faculty in the state college chain. It's up to the college to market itself," Becker added. "The administration and its marketing efforts have not done a sufficient job in talking about our strengths—our faculty."

While Edward E. Martin, dean of students, admits he has not seen Becker's report, he maintained that the projected enrollment decline is in anticipation of the fewer number of students graduating from high schools over the past few years. MSC is the largest of the state colleges now. "The reduction in size is really not based on excluding people but admitting the same percentage of graduates," he explained. "Montclair has no desire to do any harm to any group of students. We are trying to continue student diversity."

"Montclair State is already a fairly academically selective institution. We have approximately 6000 applicants for 1000 spaces, a good number of Garden State scholars, and a respected honors program. There's no reason for us to move higher with the high quality students we now have," Martin said.

In addition to the future enrollment, the search for a new president of the college and the commission on promotions were discussed at the meeting.

Dr. Richard Lynde is currently the acting president of MSC. According to Becker, the position has not been advertised yet, but the selection process should take about six months once the search committee is assembled. Although the Board of Trustees controls the search committee, there are certain guidelines to make sure each sector of the college is equally represented.

The committee should be composed of five full-time faculty members (one from each school), one NTP/librarian, one alumna, two students, one dean, one staff person, one vice president, and one board member, with a faculty person as the chairperson.

Becker believes that the president is the "academic-business-political-social leader" of the college. In another report of Oct. 6, she stated the union's qualifications for the position of president. The union feels that the next president "must come from the academic ranks" and have "significant experience as a faculty member in higher education."

They require that the next president have the support of the faculty and be a "person of vision" to inspire the faculty to new levels of academic excellence within the context of new challenges.

Another concern presented by Becker concerned tenure laws. They will be opened up for Legislative review, raising "the possibility of the elimination of tenure."

The commission plans to lengthen the probationary period for tenure from five to seven years "with automatic promotion to associate professor upon tenureing," an idea Becker feels would make promoted professors "consigned forever to an associate rank," because of the planned outside review for those seeking full professorship.

Becker confirmed that the faculty had passed a motion supporting the bond issue with two reservations. The first dealt with the funding coming from student tuitions; the union felt it was the state's responsibility to handle the funding and that it was unfair to tax future students.

The second requested that the faculty be consulted as to how these funds are spent in regard to the kinds, types, and functions of the buildings that are to be constructed.

Bond issue gains support

By Lynn M. Cowan
Editor-in-Chief

MSC has increased its support for the Jobs, Education and Competitiveness Bond Act, according to a special update from the Office of Public Information.

On Sept. 7, the Faculty Senate endorsed the bond issue and urged the support of the college community to work towards its passage.

Members of the college administration have continued a speaking tour on behalf of the bond issue, according to the update.

The SGa held a voter registration drive at the Student Center and in the residence halls, according to Maggie Cymbala, SGA director of public relations. The SGA has been mobilized to inform the student body of the bond issue and its effect on the college community.

The SGA has also obtained 3,000 bond issue bumper stickers for distribution to students. Cymbala said.

The same bumper stickers have been distributed in the mail to campus employees, and brochures about the bond issue were enclosed in employees' paychecks, according to the special update.

If the bond issue is approved by voters on Nov. 8, the state will be authorized to sell $350 million in bonds to pay for rehabilitation and repairs to existing higher education facilities, construction of new education buildings and libraries, and the establishment of several high-tech centers throughout New Jersey, according to the update.

The institutions that receive funds from the bond issue must generate matching funds in order to qualify for the revenue.

At MSC, $15.7 million of the anticipated revenues will be used for the construction of a new $130,000 sq. ft. library building, which will free space for classroom expansion, according to the update.

The college also plans to construct a $2.8 million addition to the McEachern Music Building.

Other plans include a $1.3 million addition to the campus police and security staff and the central stores and receiving functions. A new campus access road into the north parking lot is also planned which will cost $1.5 million.

Attention Montclarion readers:

Due to a previous engagement, The Montclarion will not be published next week.

Just in case you’re interested, we (that’s seven editors and a treasurer) are flying down to Atlanta, Georgia. We’re attending the Associated Collegiate Press convention, and we intend to get a full night of sleep on Wednesday for a change (well, that really depends upon the nightlife).

So, don’t get nervous when you pick up a copy of the paper and you get a case of deja vu. It just means you picked up an old issue.

Bush vs. Dukakis: Where do they stand?

It's hard to believe but the 18 months of babbles that has been called the 1988 election campaign is nearing the end. In three weeks voters must make the ultimate decision.

In a campaign where the issues have taken a back seat to name calling and dirt throwing, some may not be sure where each candidate stands. The 1988 election campaign is nearing the end. In three weeks.

Bush favors increased spending for S.D.I. while Dukakis does not. Bush favors increased spending for S.D.I. while Dukakis does not.

With the environment, both plan to ban ocean dumping by 1991, while Bush supports them provided safety standards remain high.

In terms of the economy, Dukakis plans to reduce the deficit by improving tax enforcement while Bush plans a flexible freeze on spending. Both say they will raise taxes but Bush would raise taxes as a last resort. Dukakis is also in favor of increasing the minimum wage to $4.55/hr. Bush does not favor the raise.

On the civil rights issues, Bush is in favor of a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion, while Dukakis is not. Bush is not in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment, and Dukakis is.

Finally in terms of social issues, Dukakis favors federal assistance with child care, Bush favors tax credit for working parents. Dukakis feels parental leave should be guaranteed, while Bush feels it is up to the employer. Both favor increased student loans. Dukakis is in favor of guaranteed basic health insurance, and Bush is not.

While each candidate's position has a certain philosophy attached to it, hopefully this breakdown makes it a little easier for those who have not followed the campaign closely. In addition, it may spark students to seek more information about the candidates and their platform.

We can only hope voters' minds are made up by the candidates positions and not by personalities.

Goodbye Duke, hello President Bush

Even though it ain't over til it's over, sometimes it's so close to being over that it might as well be. Goodbye Dukakis, hello President Bush.

If the debate Thursday was supposed to resuscitate Mike Dukakis' wiling presidential hopes, it failed. It was a dud. Mike Dukakis, I thought, turned him every way but loose. He was firm without being nasty, affable without being silly and confident without being smug. He was, in short, the best possible George Bush.

Not that Dukakis was so terrible; he was just ... well ... Dukakis. His main job in this debate was to show folks that he was not the heartless technocrat that some believe him to him, that he was a creature of blood and bile and emotion, just like the rest of us. The very first question did him in.

He was asked something to the effect: "If you came home one night to find your wife raped and murdered, your mother hanging on a meat hook and your dog fed into your snow blower, would you get mad?"

"No," Dukakis said. "I would call 912, the police emergency number my administration installed and which has reduced crime in the greater Massachusetts area by 9.5 percent. When the police apprehended the person who did it, I would make sure that they did not put the handcuffs on too tight or speak rudely to him, lest they violate his civil rights." or words to that effect.

The problem with Dukakis is that he thinks being human is a weakness, which is fine if you're running for president. It's best to show you share some human frailties with the folks you seek to lead.

Dukakis showed the same lack of the common touch—or any touch, for that matter—when he was asked to name his contemporary heroes. "Joe DiMaggio," he might have said, then lowered the eyebrows of the audience as he explained his theory of "class" and how Dukakis epitomized it. He could have named any number of working class heroes; instead he ran off a list of occupations—cops, politicians, teachers, preachers. He sounded more like he was running for guidance counselor than president.

Bush, meanwhile, was picking a hero from every voting bloc he needed to win, ending with a paean to President Reagan. At that point, the liberals in the room where I was watching the debate covered their eyes. We were afraid Bush would break out his straw hat and cane and do a cakewalk across the stage, singing "If You Like Me, Like I Like You."

Oh well, one thing you have to say for us liberals: we know how to lose with grace. It comes with practice. I suppose we should start getting our affairs in order, preparing ourselves for the Bush-(ugh)Quayle administration.

It's Quayle that makes it hard. I could live with George Bush; there are even those who say he's a decent man, although he wouldn't know it from the campaign he's run. But why did he have to give us Dan Quayle, a baby-faced right-wing ideologue with intellectual acuity of a geranium?

I remember when, in a similar situation, Dwight Eisenhower raised the young Richard Nixon out of the mud and into our political life. He was there for the next 25 years. I fear we can expect no less from Dan Quayle. How could Bush have pulled such a dirty trick on us? Is it his idea of a practical joke, or what?

The other thing that makes Bush a particularly bitter pill is his relentless attacks on Dukakis' membership in the American Civil Liberties Union. It smacks of the southern politician who accused his opponent of being monogamous, even though married.

The strategy depends for its effectiveness on ignorant prejudice, and in depending on it, reinforces it. Bush knows that the ACLU isn't (ital) for (end ital) criminal and communists simply because they defend them in cases. The group has defended Nazis and John Birchers and anti-abortionists and Young Americans for Freedom, as well as Ollie North. It's the rights of these people that the ACLU defends and with them, our rights. Bush knows that; he must. His father, Prescott Bush, was one of the senators who led the censure of Joe McCarthy in the Senate. To act as Bush has acted shames his heritage.

Moderate Republicans (I would say "liberal" Republicans but I don't want anyone to swoon with shame) have always considered Bush one of their own. They are as dismayed as the rest of us at the campaign he has waged but they expect a return to his former self once he's in office. That's unlikely.

There's a saying in sports: You play like you practice. In politics, you govern as you campaign. George Bush will take office with a mandate for nothing except leading the nation in the Pledge of Allegiance.

For this we needed an 18-month campaign?
George Bush got off two memorable hits in the debate. And the first one had to be extemporized. Not even Roger Ailes could have prepped him to answer so offbeat a question: "Isn't there something you can think of about Michael Dukakis that you can admire?"

His answer was a classic putdown. Waal, said Mr. Bush, yes. There is one thing I truly do admire about Mr. Dukakis, and that's the way he has pushed his family up in front of the cameras and done everything he could to make them central to his campaign.

Pause. Now I have always myself thought of my family (said Mr. Bush pensively) as a kind of private oasis. But when I saw the prominence Mr. Dukakis gave to his own family at the convention in Atlanta and elsewhere, why, I thought to myself, why not? A family is a very important part of one's life. So...I decided to do something with my own family.

And did he ever. A Bush offspring registered her husband to the men's room. It was the same thing with my own family.

"Tommy Talks" lacks relevance

Being a student at MSC, I realize that the job of the SGA president is not an easy one. Certainly, at times it must be filled with many contradictions and complications. Making unpopular decisions is inevitable.

However, any student running for the SGA presidency should realize that the little entails more than cute little dinners with the administration and chummy meetings among council members.

Ultimately, the SGA president must serve as the representative of all students to the administration and faculty. More importantly, he must work with all SGA class organizations. After all, if the class organizations' needs are not met, it is the MSC students who will ultimately suffer.

In last week's "Tommy talks," Tom Mergola made an appeal to MSC students to sympathize with his daily difficulties of being SGA president.

I think this was a fruitless waste of space which could have been used for more important news that affects the student body.

Especially, I found his thanking of certain members or friends inappropriate for a column designed for information.

I do not deny Tom Mergola his privilege of having a column in The Montclarion, nor do I deny that Tom Mergola thus far seems to be doing a good job, although some may differ on this view.

If indeed the SGA president wants to air his opinions in this publication, the smallest criterion should at least be relevance.

Disagreement on our "Olympic Mess"

To the editor:

I am writing in response to the article, "Olympic-Sized Mess," in your Sept 29 issue. I disagree with many of the statements printed in this article.

First, the writer states that the coaches of the American boxer were responsible for his lateness. I disagree because we are not dealing with youngsters. I think the American should have made sure of the time himself.

Another statement, "We don't have to look far to find the reason for Johnson's motivation to cheat, after all everybody's doing it."

This is another reason for my disagreement. Not everybody's cheating. The one's that did were disqualified. The rules are tight and people stick to them. I think the writer could have stated it in a different way.

50's musical shines with greased lightnin'

By Antoinette Doherty
Correspondent

The following review is from a dress rehearsal of the Mainstage Theatre Series production of Grease.

We've all seen the movie. Being in love, fighting, breaking up, making up, and, of course, rock and roll, that's what Jim Jacobs' and Warren Casey's musical Grease is all about. It's complete and total '50's-style fun.

Grease tells the love story of tough Danny Zuko and wholesome Sandy Dumbrowski, otherwise known as "Sandra Dee." Danny tries to win Sandy's love while still retaining his loyalty to his buddies, which naturally does not work.

Finally, both Danny and Sandy realize they need to make their relationship work, and end up together at the show's finale.

There is a continuity among the entire cast that gives the crowd an incredible energy. Celeste T. Russi, Beth Anne Zimmermann, Madelyn Chiusano, and Joy Trapani do a wonderful job as the "Pink Ladies" Jan, Marty, Frenchy, and Rizzo. Peter J. Casbar, Peter Livecchi, Matthew DiLullo, and Tom Masic live up to their image as the "Burger Palace Boys" Doody, Roger, Sonny, and Kenickie, respectively.

As Rizzo, Trapani reveals her tough character with conviction. Her rendition of "There Are Worse Things I Could Do" presented her vocal strength as well as her strong acting ability.

Deanna M. Jividen creates an innocent character in Sandy. Her voice is strong and clear making all of her numbers memorable.

Chris DeBari, as Danny, is in top "Greaser" form. His leather jacket can't cover the soft side Danny clumsily displays. His musical talents shine through in "Alone at a Drive-In Movie" and "All Choked Up!"

Brian Shipper and Linda Walsh are amusing as Ryder High's awkward Eugene Florczyk and pom-pom queen Patty Simcox. Gina Millevi (and her English teacher Miss Lynch) present her vocal strength as Sonny, proving him to be the show's finale. The album they've created truly embodied the 1950's mentality. The cast members of Grease rehearse for upcoming performances.

Stray Cats reunite in tour and strut their stuff

By John Martucci
Staff Writer

I don't know if you've ever been to the Ritz before, but it is definitive experience to take in, especially if you pick a night where the crowd is truly behind the band.

I saw the Stray Cats this past Tuesday night and they positively lit up the stage. That's right, the Stray Cats are back together, perhaps not the hottest news item, but certainly one of the hottest and refreshing bands of the decade.

A band called Lucky Seven opened up for them, and they were a good choice. They had powerful clean sound that was emphasized by some strong percussion and again the return of the accordion. They even got into some cajun music, a la Buckwheat Zydeco. They were sort of a mild teaser for the Cats, and set the mood for the evening.

If you truly like this kind of rockabilly music, then you should find any of their albums jammed with great music. They opened up with two songs from what I assume is their first album, Gonna Ball. They only played four songs from their two most popular albums, N' Rove and Built For Speed, but no one seemed to care.

The Stray Cats are definitely a group that goes beyond the songs they play; to the type of music they play and how they as musicians embody it. Doing new and old material between cover songs like "Something Else" at the end of the second and final encore, the group broke things up. It never seemed as though the concert ever reached any one peak, but a series of high points.

One of the best moments was when they did a song called "Rumble At The Ritz," which you can ascribe to being written just for this kind of audience. As expected, their biggest hits, including "Stray Cat Strut" and "Rock This Town," received some of the biggest crowd reactions.

To the casual listener of music, the idea of a three piece band may sound a little sparse—but no one seemed to care. The bassist, Lee Rocker, plays the traditional stand up bass, as opposed to an electric bass. His bass lines are plucked with such fervor, and power they resonated throughout your body. The bass didn't hamper him from getting around the stage either.

Lead vocalist, guitarist and principal songwriter Brian Setzer wasn't exactly bashful about his guitar playing. He entertained the crowd by slapping in bands or tapping his guitar solo while on his knees.

Slim Jim Phantom, the drummer, has taken the liberty of adding a floor tom to his meager three-piece drum set. This adds a little more adversity, while still keeping him free to dance around while playing.

A few weeks ago I was surprised when I heard the one-armed drummer from Def Leppard play so strong. Equally impressed was Phantom, who consistently filled the club with a steady beat, full sound, exhilarating fill-ins and a sharp little solo.

The band performed exactly as it should, like a group. All of them complemented each other. They seemed to be in harmony with each other and the audience. The album they've already started on is expected to be out around late March. Until then, they're going to continue an extensive tour, keeping clean pure rock and roll alive.

New bands rock the Rat

By Raymond Ecke
Editorial Page Editor

Playing in a struggling unsigned band is one tough undertaking. For the amount of time and effort a band puts in, the payback can often be defeating.

On Tue., MSC played host to two very good unsigned bands, Faces in the Crowd and Cheshire Cats. Unfortunately, students didn't take much notice.

Judging by the band's exciting version of Pat Benatar's now classic "Promises in the Dark," they were aware of the possible comparison.

Beyond comparison were their original songs. Songs like "Love Without Fiction" and "Right Here, Right Now," were right on the mark with just the right amount of synthesizers and vocal harmonies to give them that 80's commercial sound.

Cheshire Cats, a fun, young, four-man band, sported a very...

The MSC soccer team rolled to a 4-0 victory over Trenton St. at Sprague field on Wednesday night to keep it's unbeaten streak alive. The Indians have not lost in their last ten games as they raised their record to 11-2-3.

Freshman Gus Maromarco opened up the scoring at 4:42 of the first half. The rest of the half was a defensive struggle as the Indians took a 1-0 lead into the lockerroom.

The game opened up in the second half as the Indians poured in three goals. Kevin Pladl scored his seventh goal of the season at 63:33. The play started at midfield with Charlie Smith serving the ball down the right wing to Scott Logan. Logan beat the goalie to the ball and crossed it to a sprinting Pladl who stuffed the ball into an open net. Logan himself scored later in the game when, with just 3:23 remaining, he took a pass from Pladl and Vinny McGowan to put a left footed shot past the TSC keeper. Pladl topped off the night with his 8th goal of the season as time ran out. MSC's next game comes at home tomorrow versus Glassboro State who are ranked 9th in the nation.

MSC 4 - Ramapo 0

Freshman Kevin Pladl scored two goals as the Indians downed Ramapo, 4-1, in an NJAC matchup Saturday.

The victory stretched the MSC unbeaten streak to nine games, and improved its overall record to 10-2-3.

Co-captain Rob Chesney and forward Sean Mara also scored for the Indians, who limited the Roadrunners to just one shot on goal. Jim Stahl played well in goal for the Indians.

Montclair Athlete of the Week

Colasurdo ‘gets his kicks’ at the most opportune times

By Mary Carlomagno
Staff Writer

Senior Tony Colasurdo believes in the philosophy, “If you want something bad enough, you can get it.”

Apparently this philosophy works for Colasurdo, because during Saturday’s game against William Paterson, he broke the MSC record for the longest field goal—twice.

The original MSC record, set by Dan Rodgers in 1987, was 48 yards. Colasurdo edged the record by kicking a 49-yard field goal, only to break it six minutes later with a 50-yard kick.

Colasurdo came to the Indians four years ago and has been the starting kicker ever since. Even though Colasurdo had never kicked before coming to MSC, he stated, “I always knew I could kick.”

Now, Colasurdo is fourth in the area for scoring. He’s made eight out of ten field goals, and sixteen out of seventeen points after touchdowns. Although these statistics are impressive, Colasurdo claims his play is “only satisfactory.”

“I’ve missed three field goals within forty yards,” he explained. “The Montclair Indians have given me the opportunity to play. I feel even if I don’t do well, the team can still do well, but it’s better when everyone is clicking.”

As for the MSC kicking record, Colasurdo was hoping to break it sometime this season. After starting for four years at the same position, he believes that he’s been able to “be consistent” because the offense enables him to kick extra points.

“I’m just one operation of a consistent” because the offense consistently putting me in position for field goals,” he said.

Colasurdo attributes much of the team’s success to experience and unity. He commented, “This team has very talented athletes, who are a lot of fun to play with.”

The veteran team affords a talented kicker a chance to perform. Colasurdo said, “We have a scoring opportunity anywhere inside the thirty-five yard line.”

Experience, depth, and an insatiable appetite for winning is the backbone of the ’88 Indians. Colasurdo explains his function. “A lot of pressure is taken off of me because of the unique talent and experience of our team.”

He feels that the Indians “should win every game left. This game was a very important win, because everything really came together, especially emotionally. I want to help the team make it to the play-offs, the best way I can.”

So far the best way Colasurdo can help the team is by continuing to be one of the areas leading scorers. His philosophy of wanting something bad enough has proven itself to be a winning one.

Next week’s Salisbury State game will be the Indians upcoming challenge. “This game is important. We need to win one game at a time, until we get to the National Championship.”

With “confidence and determination” Colasurdo feels this task if “wanted bad enough, will be accomplished.”
Odds and Ends  The infamous Vic Mizzone vs. MSC case that was erroneously reported as dead is very much alive. For those of you unaware of the situation, Mizzone, the former track coach at MSC, has filed a suit against the school, charging reverse discrimination. Mizzone brought his case to Civil Court and is currently preparing to take the case to Superior Court...That was a great crowd on hand Saturday at the Homecoming game. It will be interesting to see how many people show up for the Trenton State game next week, which will likely decide the conference champion...Despite some problems for the team in the past, I have a good feeling about the MSC basketball team this year...Jay Howell would be better off corking bats or something if that pitch to Mark McGwire Tuesday night had pine tar on it...Are the Jets that bad, or are the Bills that good?...Look for MSC alumnus Leander Knight in this Sunday's Giants-Falcons game. Knight, who played for the Indians between 1984-86, is a defensive back for the Falcons...If you use your imagination, you could probably envision the Giants as being undefeated were it not for just two plays—the Montana to Rice bomb, and the Bavaro drop against the Eagles, which may have cost them the game. Then again, that's why if is the biggest word in the dictionary...Not a whole lot of people wearing Met hats anymore. The bandwagon has rolled to a complete stop...The Rangers, floundering once again, give the word "frustration" a new meaning. I mean, how long are we going to wait?...Here comes basketball season, and with it, more high expectations for the Knicks. For some reason, we fall for it every year, and every year, we are disappointed. But this season is going to be different. They're going to do it this year. I just know it. Well, this is the last year I'm going to say it. Let's hope it's true this time...The Nets, on the other hand, are not going to do anything but fish come playoff time. Again.

At the Meadowlands  Hips OK lacked room in his latest, and wouldn't be a surprise if he won his next start. Laser King was forced toward the rail and lost all chance. Looms Boldly was on a dead rail the entire race last week. Bucks Like A Bunny was off slowly.

Last week's selections: Two Pence ran fourth; Turbo Prop ran ninth; Alyshaha won, paying $3.00.

Salisbury St. preview  Which SSC squad will MSC face?  By Kenny Peck

The Indians, in search of their third straight win, will try to continue their winning ways when they take on Salisbury
State Saturday afternoon in Maryland.

MSC is coming off a victory over conference rival William Paterson, while the Sea Gulls (4-2) blew out Wesley College last week by a 75-6 score.

Last season, MSC came back from a 22-6 deficit and won 30-22, as Ed Baffige tossed two second half touchdown passes to John Fiore to ignite the Indians.

One question that will be answered Saturday is: which Salisbury State team will show up? The team that had 663 total yards last week? Or the team that lost 33-20 to Glassboro
State two weeks ago?

The Sea Gull offense is the main concern for MSC. The receiving corps is made up mostly of returning veterans.
Juniors Brian Patterson and
Kevin Roberts head that bunch.

The Sea Gull defense has many new faces, as the team lost seven starters from last year's team.
Colasurdo sets school mark

By Kenny Peck

MSC's Tony Colasurdo kicked three field goals, including a school record 50-yarder, to lead the Indians to a 30-3 Homecoming win over William Paterson in a New Jersey Athletic Conference (NJAC) matchup Saturday at Sprague Field.

The old mark of 48 yards, set by Dan Rodgers in 1967, was broken by Colasurdo as he nailed a 49-yard field goal with 6:48 left in the first half. The senior then shattered his own record with a 50-yarder about six minutes later.

MSC controlled the game from start to finish, as an Ed Baffige pass to Troy Bowers on just the seventh MSC play from scrimmage gave the Indians a 7-0 first quarter lead.

The lead grew to 20-3 at halftime on the strength of a 19-yard strike from Baffige to Jeff McGregor and Colasurdo's record-breaking kicks. Baffige finished the day 18-31 for 213 yards and two touchdowns.

Colasurdo added his third field goal of the game and Mike Codella scored his fifth touchdown of the season in the third quarter to close out the scoring.

The MSC defense sparkled once again, as they held the Pioneers to only 145 total yards. The Indians, on the other hand, rolled up 485 total yards.

Junior Mike Murphy led the defensive charge with ten tackles, three sacks and a fumble recovery. Len Kruk and Paul Cioffi also had ten sacks for the Indians, while junior George Irwin registered an interception.

With the victory, MSC improved its overall record against William Paterson to 17-0-1 and its current conference record to 3-0. William Paterson fell to 1-2 in the NJAC.

The Indians travel to Salisbury State Saturday while the Pioneers host Ramapo tomorrow night.

Indian Info: Irwin suffered a severely sprained right ankle against William Paterson and may be out for close to three weeks. He may come back for the final regular season game against Glassboro...
