Eyewitnesses give account of the 1988 Chilean election

By Maggie Mooney

On Oct. 28, Dr. Paul Sigmund and Barbara Sigmund, eyewitnesses of the election in Chile, held a lecture regarding these elections in Kops Lounge, Russ Hall.

Dr. Paul Sigmund is the director of Latin-American studies at the University of Princeton. His wife, Barbara, is the mayor of the Borough of Princeton. Barbara Sigmund set the political atmosphere for the Chile elections of 1988 by discussing the changes in the streets of Chile.

"In 1967, Chile was democratically and politically alive. The people of Chile played politics as a national sport. By 1973, the national sport was done in, with Colonel Pinochet coming to power. The dictatorship had set in, and the country was repressed," she said.

"In 1988, when Pinochet needed to be elected, there was a change in the streets; the streets were very clean, all signs of the dictatorship were gone. There was, however, a change in the people—all sense of liveliness had disappeared," she added.

Dr. Paul Sigmund explained the country's radical reformation. "Colonel Pinochet needed to be elected, therefore he cleaned the streets, lowered inflation, paved roads, and had houses built. Colonel Pinochet's strategy was to identify himself with the people of Chile. He was able to do this by providing free concerts for Pinochet was a vote for Colonel Pinochet.

A civic crusade was formed with funding from the National Foundation for Democracy, a U.S. organization, Barbara Sigmund said. The civic crusade strove to get the opposition to the regime to register as many voters as possible, she added.

Barbara Sigmund said this was done through a series of rock's roll concerts. By registering to vote, people were given free concert tickets.

Athletic department office in fieldhouse produces student conflict

By Julia Di Martino

The field house has undergone a number of changes this past year which have led to controversy.

The recent dispute involves two major issues, according to a field house staff member. The first issue concerns the use of an office in the building. It is used by John Blanton, MSC track and field coach. The other area of concern involves the overuse of the facility by athletic teams, the staff member said.

This source spoke on behalf of his fellow staff and the students who use the field house. Most of them feel the office should not be occupied by a coach, the staff member said, because his actions are directed towards an athletic team rather than the student population as a whole.

The staff member said the office could be put to better use as a conference room for students. Joseph Santorine, campus recreation specialist, commented on the field house and its purpose. The building is funded solely by the students at MSC, he said. An average of 126 students use the field house Monday through Friday, he added.

The field house provides MSC students with Nautilus, free weights, shower and whirlpool on campus, according to Santorine.

Director of Athletics, Greg Lockhart, spoke of the changes involving the field house. This facility is under the supervision of campus recreation. Until last year, campus recreation was part of Student Activities. It is presently associated with the athletic department, he said. Lockhart said the change in management was made to improve the quality of student life. He added that his department could serve the student life more efficiently because of the athletic department's experience in the area of fitness and programming.

Lockhart said he had no input as to the location of his office. The site of the office is due to its proximity to the track.

Health Fair draws a crowd at fourteenth annual event

By Valerie Kalfrin

On Nov. 2, in the MSC Student Center Ballrooms, students, faculty, and members of the community visited the fourteenth annual Health Fair.

Representatives from nearly forty local and national organizations, including the Montclair Community Hospital, the Right to Life, and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration participated in the fair, which ran from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

The fair had a successful turnout, demonstrated by the long lines outside the ballrooms during the fair and the number of people inside.

Sponsored by the Health Professions Association (under the supervision of the Department of Health Professions), the fair gave these various organizations the opportunity to answer questions and provide information on their services through pamphlets, videotapes, and small exhibits.

Specialists were also on hand to give students free screenings in various areas of health. These included blood pressure, blood work (S.M.A.C. or Simultaneous Multi Analyzer Channel), a blood test which provides a complete blood chemistry screening, a sickle cell screening, oral cancer, skin cancer, cholesterol, podiatry, dentistry, a chiropractic screening, vision tests, hearing tests, and cardiovascular activity.

Present at the Health Fair was the Speidel Human Performance Laboratory, part of the physical education department, recreation and leisure studies.

Located in the basement of Panzer Gym, the lab set up three fitness evaluations, which were monitored by students in the teacher education and adult fitness programs.

Professor Daniel Alejandro-De Leon, coordinator of the laboratory, explained the three evaluations. "The first (known as Kraus-Weber or K-W tests, which involved holding various positions for up to ten seconds) shows minimum muscular strength, endurance, and flexibility. The second deals with body composition, or fat."

"The third shows aerobic capacity—whether the person is aerobically fit," he said. Participants in this test were required to ride specially-designed stationary bicycles, known as ergometers, for ten minutes.

"The test is designed so the workloads are increased until the heartbeat plateaus between 120 and 150 beats per minute. Then with a formula we can predict what their (the participants') aerobic capacity is."

Afterwards we give them an exercise prescription to help them in areas they are poor in," Alejandro-De Leon said.

Reaction to the Health Fair was positive from both the professionals and the students, although some criticisms were offered as far as the amount of time and advertising.

"I thought it was very educational, especially our exhibit (which showed the amount of sugar in various foods)," said Cathy Moyse, a food and nutrition major who worked at the MSC home economies department exhibit.

"I think it's great that Montclair could give students the opportunity to have their blood pressure checked and their eyes checked, because health is really important," Moyse added.

"I think it's absolutely fantastic. Students, parents, and the community can come in and learn," Kathryn Krill, the sub-urban health educator for Planned Parenthood, added."

Reading Festival

On Nov. 9, the English department will sponsor a reading festival, and symposium titled "Writing as Political Expression.

The festival will feature four distinguished writers, Grace Paley, fiction writer and social activist; Joe Bruchac, Native American poet and advocate of Native American writings; Daniela Gioseffi, poet, writer, and social activist; Doris Jane Austin, author, novelist, and newswriter.

Three MSC faculty members will also be participating. They are Butler Brewton, Carole Stone, and Sharon Spencer.

The festival will be held in Kops Lounge from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. It will be repeated from 2:30 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Man in negligee harasses student

By Rob Tomeo
Staffwriter

The campus police received a report from a woman about an incident that occurred on Oct. 17 at 2:30 a.m. on Quarry Road. The woman was walking back to her dorm from Clove Road when a vehicle passed her and stopped at lot 26.

The driver got out of the car, approached her, and said, "Do you think I'm sexy?" She discovered that he was wearing just a negligee and she quickly ran from the scene. The police have no suspect.

A female student reported two instances of being harrassed by the same male to the campus police. The first incident occurred on Oct. 20 at 6:30 p.m.

The student, who was parked in lot 13, noticed a male driving his car around in circles. He eventually parked a couple of spaces down from her. He started to approach her and she rolled down her window thinking he was going to ask her for directions. She thought his behavior was strange and quickly rolled up her window and drove off.

The second incident occurred on Oct. 25 at 6:30 p.m. in lot 30. A car pulled up next to her and she noticed it was the same male driving a different car. She does not know who the male is.

A Suzuki Samurai, stolen on Oct. 15 or 16, was discovered on the night of Oct. 17 under the Goethals Bridge in Staten Island. The car had been set on fire and was completely destroyed.

Between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. on Oct. 16, a 1977 Toyota Corolla in lot 28 was illegally entered and a watch was taken from the car. There also had been a failed attempt to steal the radio. The windshield of the car was cracked and the rear view mirror was broken.

On Oct. 18, the campus police discovered that a female MSC student, who had found a pocketbook lost in 1987 by another female, used the credentials in the pocketbook to make an MSC I.D. card on which the age of the student was 21.

She in turn lost her wallet, and when the police recovered it, they found three different I.D. cards bearing two different names and two different pictures. The student is charged with theft of misplaced property.

On Oct. 19, between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in lot 28, a 1989 Audi 500 S was broken into, and a tape player and radar detector were stolen from it.

On Oct. 19 at 11:45 p.m. one of the signs from a Domino's Pizza delivery car was stolen off a vehicle parked outside the Clove Road apartments. The incident is under investigation.

On Oct. 20, between 9:30 a.m. and 6:45 p.m., a 1986 Dodge Colt was stolen from lot 20. The abandoned car which was recovered the same evening by the South Plainfield Police Department.

On Oct. 21 at 2:20 a.m. it was discovered that someone damaged a Bohn Hall elevator by taking the door off the track. On the 15th floor, where the damage was discovered, the floor lounge had been vandalized.

A 1986 Nissan pickup truck was broken into in lot 25 between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on Oct. 25. A radio was stolen from the truck.

On Oct. 27, between 3:00 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. in lot 30, a 1967 Ford was broken into and a stereo was stolen from it. When the owner returned to her car, she noticed 2 men sitting in a pickup truck that was parked diagonally to her car. They left when they saw her approaching the car.

"Homeless to Home: Building a Path"
Montclair State College Public Policy Forum

Thursday, November 10, 1988
from 8:30 am to 3:30 pm
at Montclair State College
Student Center Ballrooms

The stark contrast between Homelessness and a society of economic growth and prosperity confronts us. This conference was conceived to help raise the level of our understanding of the root causes of homelessness; to assist in framing possible solutions to the housing crisis; and to explore resources and networks acting on emergency and long-range solutions.

Keynote Speaker: David Schwartz is a New Jersey State Assemblyman, a Professor of Political Science at Rutgers University, and author of "A New Housing Policy for America: Reconstructing the American Dream"
Use of fieldhouse questioned
Lockhart said.

In response to this rationale, the field house staff member asked, "Then why aren't the softball, baseball and field hockey offices in the field house, instead of Panzer Gym? They too should be closer to practice areas."

He also commented on usage by the college's athletic teams. The facility, which is geared towards the student body as a whole, has been subjected to overcrowding caused by the influx of athletes. It is possible that this could be a result of the field house being under the athletic department, he added.

This is a major inconvenience for students wishing to make use of the field house, said the staff member. This problem could be solved if they used Panzer Gym when practicing as a team, the staff member added.

Blanton sees no problem with any team practicing in the field house because they are students as well as athletes.

Lockhart said he has no difficulty with teams using the field house as long as it occurs during slow periods.

Students who frequent the field house said that their workout time will be shortened by team usage. Their interests have prompted them to organize and distribute a petition citing this problem and many others.

The document calls for an extension of weekend hours, maintenance of the facility, updated equipment, and the elimination of unsafe and worn machines, the staff member said.

According to Lockhart, plans to improve facilities and extend field house hours are in the making. He added that in the future, he hopes a sharing relationship develops between campus recreation, its new department and students.

Lockhart said a meeting of students, field house staff members, John Blanton and department officials may result in a compromise that all involved could be satisfied with.
Sexual assault discussed by lecturer

By Sharon Longinetti
Correspondent

On Oct. 16, Mary Taylor, MSW, conducted a workshop on sexual assault for the staff of the Drop-In Center.

Taylor received her MSW from Rutgers University and was employed at the Rape Crisis Center of Middlesex County for nine years before obtaining her present position as Coordinator of the Rape Care Program for the State Department of Health.

Taylor stressed the importance of counseling techniques that could be used with a person in this situation. Taylor also discussed the initial reactions of the victims. The person may experience a great deal of fear which is elicited by feelings of powerlessness and a total loss of control over his/her own destiny.

She stated that many victims have a misconception that reporting a sexual assault means prosecuting the perpetrator and going to court. She added that only one in five rapes is reported and, through plea-bargaining, only ten percent of them ever go to trial.

Taylor went on to discuss the feelings of victims in the weeks following a sexual assault.

Many times victims cannot deal with the feelings that accompany the after-effects of an attack and may even deny that it occurred.

According to Taylor, victims may resort to feelings of total isolation. The victims expect to be misunderstood by people who they feel cannot possibly understand their experience and consequent feelings.

She stressed that during periods of isolation, it is imperative that the victims have a support group. This would include significant others who can express understanding, attempt in helping the victim cope, and just simply “be there”.

Many times victims feel as though they are “falling apart” and experience persistent fear, anxiety, irritability, depression, eating and/or sleeping disturbances which are sometimes in the form of nightmares where the victim relives the whole terrifying experience, she said.

According to Taylor, the most “healthy” feeling a victim can experience is anger, for the expression of anger is an indication that the victim has turned the blame of the assault onto the perpetrator.

She also emphasized the fact that every victim needs to deal with the incident in his/her own time and way. A victim needs to be supported in any way possible. Different counseling techniques to achieve this feeling of support were also discussed.

If you or someone you know has been sexually assaulted, said Taylor, help is available.

The Drop-In Center provides emergency intervention, as well as information and referrals on this issue.

The 1988 Crafts Show will be held on Thur., Dec. 1.

Student participation is welcome in this show, as well as faculty and staff input. This is a great opportunity for art majors or people who have a craft-making hobby to display their talents.

In 48 days, 24 concerts were given; 7.4 million people were registered by the end of six weeks as compared to the two million before the start of the civic crusade, she said.

The election turn-out was enormous, she said. Ninety-eight percent of those who registered to vote did vote, and Colonel Pinochet was defeated.

In December of 1989, there will be another election; the opposition already has a common man ready to run against Colonel Pinochet hopes of successfully defeating Colonel Pinochet again, Barbara Sigmund added.

Trip to China

MSC is planning a trip to China, from Dec. 27, 1988 through Jan. 15, 1989. Students and a limited number of non-students will have the opportunity to experience the fascinating cultures of China and Southeast Asia, Bangkok, and Singapore on a trip arranged by Ellen Mohammed of Montclair State College’s Fine Art Department.

This trip is a study of art, architecture and sculpture for which students can earn three graduate or undergraduate credits. Mohammed will guide participants through a wide variety of principalities, and cities, including Canton, Hongkong, Guilin, China (Great Wall, Ming Tombs, Imperial Palace, and S.E. Asia). They will get a firsthand look at the Jade and silk of China, Thai silk, gold and other gems of Southeast Asia.

This will be Mohammed’s 14th study tour of China and Southeast Asia. She is involved in writing articles relating to art and the culturally deprived, and her Asian experiences. This tour is open to students from all colleges and universities, since credit is transferable. Interested non-students also are welcome.

The tour costs $2,499 which includes round trip fare from New York to China, Hongkong and Southeast Asia, tours intercontinental, travel, hotel, and meals.

Further information concerning this tour is available from Ellen Mohammed at (718) 778-9417 or (201) 893-4307. The Art Office is located at MSC’s fine arts department, Calda Hall.

Students denied priority

We have all heard of the "thrill of victory and the agony of defeat," but what about the agony of the wait? Such has been the plight of many MSC students who frequently utilize the athletic field house, located near the college track field.

About a year and a half ago, control of the field house, which is supported totally through student funds, was transferred from the student activities board to the athletic department.

Before the transfer occurred, it was considered an unwritten rule that the athletic department and MSC teams used the facilities in the Panzer Gym and left facilities in the field house primarily for student use.

But since the athletic department assumed control, this rule has been broken. Already a petition is being circulated by students to have "full utilization of the MSC field house for non-members of the college athletic teams."

On several occasions, non-athletic department students have had to wait to use equipment because members of many MSC teams were using them. Keep in mind these facilities are funded entirely by our student fees.

Coach Blanton feels that it is fair for athletes to use the field house because they are students of MSC as well. Certainly this argument is valid. But while practicing teams are allowed to use the field house at all times, students are only allowed to use the Panzer Gym facilities when MSC teams are not using them.

Besides paying student fees, which in part support the field house, students also pay fees to the athletic department — yet students are denied access to Panzer Gym at certain times, and now they're being inconvenienced at the facility that is specifically designated for them.

Is this fair? In addition, Coach Blanton's office is located in the field house. Since he is a coach of an MSC team, should he not be supplied an office in Panzer Gym with the rest of MSC's coaches? Couldn't this space be better utilized to benefit all students rather than one coach?

We believe students deserve top priority use of the field house. Track team members and other MSC teams are given exercise time in the Panzer Gym. There is no reason why a student not affiliated with an MSC team should have to wait to use equipment that they pay for. All students have the right to achieve the "thrill of victory"—not just MSC athletes.

Professor applauds fraternal harmony

Ironically, I would not have realized that we evidently have racially separate fraternities on campus, if I had not read the feature by Lilyanne McClean titled "Fraternities Meet on Common Ground." My letter is an expression of support for Jonathan Benjamin, President of Alpha Phi Omega, and James R. Rhoche, II, President of Sigma Phi Rho, in their joint effort to initiate more interaction between the organizations they lead.

I sincerely hope that their example will provide a successful model for other organizations to follow in enhancing the collegial atmosphere on our campus.

Incidentally, I am proud to state that both Jonathan Benjamin and James R. Rhoche, II, have been students in classes I taught last year.

Your concerns are legitimate and you've raised some very important issues and questions about the direction of the college. As your president, I have listened to these concerns and you have my support. In fact, I suggest that we pool our resources and work together to see what we can do to eliminate those concerns.

Consider this idea, when the bond issue passes and the new library is constructed, what will happen to the old library? How about a business school where office and classrooms can be centralized. This should be your incentive to vote for the Bond Issue.

So let's all go out there and vote for the bond issue and hope it passes. That way the students of MSC will benefit and we can address the business department's problems of space allocation.

The knee-jerk reaction to racism

Forgive my liberal paranoia but there seems to be a disturbingly high level of racism in the land, one with the smell of fear about it. You see it in the subtext of George Bush's cynical Willie Horton ads, but also in Mike Dukakis' anemic attempt to reach the voters of the Golden Horde in his trade speeches.

You see it in Chicago, where relations between Jews and blacks have reached a flash point; an especially ominous sign, because Jews have reached a flash point in several other universities where racist graffiti have begun to appear on lavatory walls. Like Dartmouth College, where blacks and women have been publicly harassed by groups calling themselves conservatives. Like the University of Wisconsin, where a fraternity recently sponsored a mock slave auction in which pledges blacked their faces and wore Afro wigs to have their services bid for.

You see it in the untoward contempt with which the American Civil Liberties Union is held by a majority of the American people and in the untoward lack of concern that a member of one of the founding families of the John Birch Society is about to be elected vice president of the United States.

It's a kind of liberal nightmare; the battles we thought we'd fought and won 25 years ago are coming back to be fought again, and this time we're losing.

People are afraid and angry; they take refuge in racism, xenophobia and vigilantism. There was an illustrative incident in Detroit, my home town, recently.

A nice quiet working class neighborhood, not unlike one I grew up in, was suddenly invaded by the drug culture. A gang of crack dealers took over a vacant house and soon, on a block where children had jumped rope on the sidewalk, you had teen-agers selling drugs from the curb and staging gun battles in broad daylight. And when the neighbors threatened to call the police, the dealers laughed at them. "They were laughing at the whole neighborhood," said one of the residents. "Nobody could sit on the porch anymore. The kids couldn't play outside. The police said to wait till something bad happened. Well, we couldn't do that."

What they could do, they found, is burn the place down. The God-fearing, law-abiding residents of the area waited for a windless day when the house was empty; they soaked the house with gasoline, then torched it.

Two of the citizens were arrested for arson. A jury found them not guilty by reason of self-defense. And I'll let you in on a secret: If I'd been on that jury-knee-jerk liberal me—I'd have voted not guilty too.

The fuss over RU 486 is reminding everyone of everything save possibly what more time should be given to thinking about, namely that abortion is a heavy act of moral egotism. It isn't unhealthy, but healthy that members of the community should express their disapproval of abortion in some way. The same people who believe it is not only natural but innobling to abort a human life. Which reminds me of the fouding families of the John Birch Society is about to be elected vice president of the United States.

The RU 486 pill, it is argued, has the additional advantage of being more effective than some surgical abortions. Anti-abortionists should guard against any temptations to believe that it would be pleasant for abortions to be as painful as possible. That kind of thinking is related to the thought that those who commit certain sexual acts with other males ought not to complain if they contract AIDS. No, the decision to abort should be taken with great care. That kind of thinking is related to the thought that those who commit certain sexual acts with other males ought not to complain if they contract AIDS. No, the decision to abort should be taken with great care.

The knee-jerk reaction to racism is among the most dangerous reactions of all. It is the knee-jerk reaction to abortion that created the RU 486 pill in the first place. Racism: Still no easy solutions

A special agent of the Drug Enforcement Administration viewed with alarm. “If people are allowed to get away with this and it catches on, then you have anarchy on your hands.”

Wrong, Mr. Special Agent. You’ve already got anarchy on your hands. Why should drug dealers be the only ones to enjoy it?

Even as I say that, I know I’m wrong, that the vigilante spirit is out of control at the moment it is activated. If you can burn down a crack house with impunity, you can get rid of anything else you don’t like in your neighborhood, like an Oriental or black family.

There’s got to be something we can do about crime short of strapping Colt .45s to our thighs or else you don’t like in your neighborhood, like an Oriental or black family.

My oldest daughter lives in Brooklyn, New York, in a neighborhood that is undergoing gentrification at a gallop. The last time I was there she pointed out a delicatessen and said: “That’s a crack house. They sell drugs. If you go near that, you’ll smell something to eat, they just look at you funny.”

My daughter is not a hard case, neither a junkie nor a member of a mob. If she knows that a drug house, why don’t they? And if the cops know, why don’t they do something about it?

Are they “waiting for something bad to happen”? I’ve got news for them, something bad is happening. People are selling drugs there.

Why don’t we have drugs discussed as a political issue? George Bush talks about executing drug lords, as if that would do any good. They kill each other off by the lot now; death, apparently, holds no fear for them. Dukakis harps on Bush’s cozy relationship with Noriega, which is interesting but not really at the heart of the matter.

One of our candidates for president seeks to exploit the fears raised by the virtual collapse of our system of law enforcement, the other seeks to ignore them.

Where is Franklin D. Roosevelt when you really need him?

having been made, the laws of society granting the mother the right to abort, all relevant medical technology is appropriately harnessed to the effective doing of the job.

One of these days (one hopes) something will be invented which can act as a continuing contraceptive, preventing the union of sperm and egg. Something that a household seeks to avoid accidental pregnancy might put in its tapwater, to be set aside when conception is desired. If that development came along on a truly general scale—a substance that might be put in the common drinking water, requiring those who wish to procreate to take a pill that would neutralize its effect—then there would never be any abortions, as these would be unnecessary.

The right-to-lifers correctly point out that, at least in the United States, people who visit abortion clinics are for the most part women who know that there has been available, for over a generation, something called The Pill. Which, if regularly imbibed, would make abortions unnecessary.

So then: Applaud the impulses of those angered by the development of an abortifacient. But, having cooled down, welcome its development as a form of medical progress.

Students come to Tom’s defense

After reading the letter entitled “Tommy lacks relevance” by “Name withheld by request,” we felt disappointed and outraged. We feel the writer was uninformed and showed a lack of confidence by not signing his/her name.

To think that this person could be so ignorant of the word understanding. We realize most people may not be totally ready to recognize or understand. We want to commend the person who wrote this letter. If accidental pregnancy might put a pill, that will would neutralize its effect—then there would never be any abortions, as these would be unnecessary.

As we are lead to understand, Tommy is to use “his space” in The Montclarion as he chooses. People we have spoken with feel that Tommy should use his space to discuss issues of student concerns or activities, which is exactly what he has done. Has Tommy not written about the 1988 graduation with State Senator Wyroma Lipman or about the U.S. Presidential Candidates not being “concerned about your needs and show their support by visiting our college”.

As we are informed and researched the facts before writing this letter, Tommy has not once had dinner with administration especially not “cute little ones”.

As we continued to research the facts, Tommy has not yet had “chummy meetings among council members” because there is no council, name withheld get your story straight.

As far as we are concerned, Tommy can thank anyone he/ she chooses, verbally, or written. We can only wonder why someone could be so overly concerned about this. It makes us wonder about the unknown writer. When Tommy was thanking people, he did write ect., ect., etc., in his thanks. Maybe name withheld wanted to see his/her name clearly spelled out.

In our opinion, name withheld displayed no confidence in themselves. If they were not able to sign a name, it leads us to believe that what they wrote had absolutely no substance. These are our thoughts on that ridiculous letter that was printed and left unsigned. However, we are able to sign our names, as what we have written, bases truth, research of facts, and integrity.

Students perform with the right direction

By Antoinette Doherty Correspondent

The following review is from a dress rehearsal of "An Evening of Three One-Acts," presented by the Studio Theatre Series.

Student directors Jeffery L. Wingfield, Linda Walsh, and Stephen W.R. Bienski have produced three pieces that effectively plunge into human nature.

The Son Who Hunted Tigers in Jakarta, directed by Wingfield, tells the story of a young man, Mr. Sweeney, who is caught in the act of robbing the house of Mr. and Mrs. Ferris. Portrayed by Mark Kaled, Sweeney is a fast talker who is quick to detect the weaknesses in Mr. and Mrs. Ferris' relationship. He uses this lack of strength, almost successfully, to escape his predicament.

Throughout all of the mind is the benefit of the doubt. Mrs. Ferris, played by Sarah J. Griggs, is the voice of reason insisting that the police be called. Her husband, played by Gregory Ciano, is the voice of reason, the son, played by J. Griggs, is the voice of reason to set foot into Graceland on its opening. Jennifer Biddle does a beautiful job of portraying Ber Davies, a middle-aged Southern woman who insists that she loves Elvis with its purest and truest kind of love.

"Graceland" is about two devoted, but extremely different, Elvis fanatics. Both feel that they should be the first person to set foot into Graceland on its opening. Jennifer Biddle, a young and naive Cajun girl who wants to be the first into Graceland for spiritual reasons. What starts as a conflict between the two ends as a wonderful display of human kindness. Graceland marks the debut of director Walsh.

Family Voices, another debut for director Bienski, expresses the frustration within the relationships between mother, father, and son. None of the "voices" are ever heard by any other member of the family. What feelings they fail to communicate to one another are received by the audience. Jonathan "Craig" Adams, Cathi Hayzer, and Michael P. Guerrieri are Voice 1 (son), Voice 2 (mother), and Voice 3 (father). They present a well done ensemble piece of work that displays the emotional dynamics of a family.

The purpose of the Studio Theatre Series is to enable students to develop their acting and directing skills by working on diverse projects. "An Evening of Three One-Acts" thoroughly accomplishes this goal.

An Evening of Three One-Acts" runs Nov. 3 through 5 and Nov. 10 through 12 at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theatre. The Box Office opens at 7:30 p.m. on the evenings of the performances.

Musicmakers off the record and in the movies

Baker cooks

One listens to Anita Baker's albums and only one thing enters the mind and that is; sing it, Anita. Sing it again and again. Giving You the Best That I Got is no exception to this rule. You want to listen to this LP. Baker's voice is pure rapture.

This sultry alto once again stretches her range to achieve superb vocalise. Baker's material consists of mellow, romantic rhapsody which makes for a laid back atmosphere; a soothing of the savage beast if you will. There is no passivity in Baker's voice which makes her music rise above most of today's pop acts.

"Giving You the Best That I Got" is the title track off the album which speaks of a strong commitment to wedded bliss which is a reflection of her life outside of the musical aspect. This is currently playing on the radio waves and doing splendidly.

Strong cuts on this album include "Lead Me into Love" and "Good Love." Baker gives everything she has in these two tunes as well as the rest of the album. She is truly at her best when she pours out her heart and soul in her music.

The jazzy overtones of "Good Enough" and the smooth melody of "Priceless" are added reasons to buy this album. It would be a benefit to the music world in general if Baker would continue concentrating on the jazz and blues that sets her music apart from all others in the pop scene. But for now, the Giving You the Best That I Got LP is the best around.

U2 can be in pictures

Rattle and Hum, music from U2's new concert/documentary film was finally released Oct. 11. The double album contains seventeen tracks in all, including six songs recorded live during the band's 1987 tour of the states.

"Rattle and Hum" is markedly different from anything U2's has done in the past. Many well known names in rock appear on the album sleeve. A few songs were written and sung in conjunction with Bob Dylan, B.B. King appears as a back up vocalist and guitarist in one track and Jimmy Hendrix's "Star Spangled Banner" acts as a prelude to the live version of "Bullet the Blue Sky".

Also, The New Voices of Freedom, a gospel choir accompanies Bono during "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For" recorded live.

The new music that appears on the album has already received a lot of airplay. Songs such as "Desire" and "God Part II" can be heard on most rock and new wave stations. The movie Rattle and Hum is due to be released Fri. Nov. 4.

Hello and welcome to another edition of Nolan's Notes. If you grew up with Duran Duran in junior high, you can continue growing with them in college. They're just as experimental as they ever were, but the British trio sounds as if they're going for a more mature sound. Their lyrics aren't as cryptic as they were on previous albums, they actually have meaning. Simon LeBon sounds as if he took vocal lessons and John Taylor is taking the bass a little more seriously. Best cuts: "I Don't Want Your Love," "Too Late Marlene," "Palomino," and "Drug." They will be touring also but (get this!) they'll announce their venues two weeks before their designated dates. In other words, you'll have two weeks ONLY to get tickets...Still reviewing...My sweetheart, Anita Baker, has gone mining and came up with another gem. "Giving You the Best That I Got" is not the best because I still think there's more to come. Her voice is cool, jazzy, and sophisticated. Throughout the album, you get the impression that she's singing to you and only you. Best cuts: ALL!

MINI-NOTES: The Beach Boys "Kokomo" jumps to number two on the Billboard Hot 100 this week nearly 25 and a half years after the group first hit the top ten with "Surfin' USA." The Rolling Stones are in second with a span of 21 and a half years between their first top ten ("Time Is On My Side") and their most recent ("Harlem Shuffle") in 1986.

MINI-NOTES II: Top Northeast promoter, John Scher, and his Monarch Entertainment company are producing the first annual Garden State Music Awards to be held Nov. 18 at the Count Basie Theater in Red Bank. Who are they giving the awards to? Bon Jovi and Whitney Houston with a lifetime achievement award to Kool and the Gang?! Pull-ease...The answer to last week's trivia question: "Bohemian Rhapsody" is the Queen song that satirized opera. This week's question: Out of all the things he's done and accomplished, what is the one thing that Pete Townsend regrets?...Think about it...Until next week...

Field burning opposing deepbacks with ease

By Mary Carlonamango
Staff Writer

Montclair Athlete of the week, Amod Field, is leading the Indians in receptions and has caught 26% of the team’s total pass completions.

Statistics are commonly thought to be the best measure of an athletes’ capabilities. But Field contends they are not conclusive about the overall ability of the player. He stated, “Stats don’t always show every thing about a player. I prefer to let the stats take care of themselves, so I can be the best player I can at all times.”

Field, who is in his third year at MSC, feels that he possesses the experience and leadership to make the Indians a winner. “I know what we need to get to the playoffs,” he stated, “Next year, we have a lot of great people coming back, including a very talented group of young players with an inspiring future. I feel I can show these younger players what it takes.”

The Indian winning tradition is something that Field feels he will be able to successfully pass down. “It’s like a business, everyone must do their job.” he explained. He sees his task as being a leader who keeps the “team up and going.”

As far as the rest of the season, Field, who is in contention for All-American honors, wants to “continue to play good, hard football.”

Saturday vs. Drew

Soccer team to host ECAC game

By Bryan Morytko
Staff Writer

The MSC soccer team, at the end of one of its best years in the history of the sport at the college, will host the first round of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships. The game will be Saturday night at 6:00 pm at Sprague Field.

The Indians, who enter the tournament as the Number Two seed will play Drew University for the right to play in the championship game on Sunday at 1:00 pm.

The other semi-final contest will take place at Rutgers-Camden between Rutgers-Camden, the number one seed and the New Jersey Institute of Technology. The site for the championship will be held at the highest seeded school in the game.

At 13-3-3, MSC has already tied the school mark for victories in a season. The last time an Indian squad won 13 games was back in 1968 and 1969, when the Indians finished 13-1 and 13-2 respectively.

To add to it’s already successful year, MSC set and is building upon another record. On the October 22, the Indians registered their eighth shutout of the year, breaking the old record of seven set in 1974. Since then, the Indians have recorded two more shutouts, giving them ten on the year.

Helping MSC along the way have been two outstanding freshmen forwards: John Rubinetti and Kevin Pladl are leading the Indians after 19 games in goals and points.

Rubinetti has nine goals and six assists for a team leading 24 points. Teammate Pladl has been burning things up in the short time he has played. Starting as a defender, Pladl was moved to forward and has played a total of ten games. In those ten games however, Pladl has knocked in an Indian-leading ten goals and three assists for 23 points.

MSC will finish out its regular season schedule this week when it plays FDU-Madison Thursday. The game begins at 8:00.
Crying Wolf  Warner Wolf, who does sports for Channel 2 News, is a boob.

On any given night during the hockey season, you’ll find Wolf preaching about how players should be thrown out of a game if they drop their gloves to fight. He seems to feel that the league would pass this rule if they really wanted to stop the fighting that goes on. He says this rule would curb the violence which is currently plaguing the league, but since the fights are part of the attraction, they continue.

Fine. He’s right. It probably would deter many players from fighting. But then Warner Wolf goes on to show clips from fights that took place throughout the league that night, and sometimes doesn’t even bother to give us the scores of the games. Wolf himself is promoting hockey in the same light that he is preaching against.

Dallas invades N.Y.  New Yankee manager Dallas Green has done it already.

First he says the Yankees probably aren’t going to re-sign Tommy John because of his age (45). Then he says that “nobody (on the Yankees) is untouchable”, meaning that if the right offer came along the team would have no problem trading Don Mattingly.

The remark concerning John will get him nowhere with George Steinbrenner, who happens to like Tommy John a great deal and probably won’t take too kindly to Green writing John off in October. Green’s remarks about Mattingly won’t be received well by the New York fans, who would rather see Green go before most players on the team.

Paul Cioffi  Indian tribe is very clear to this defensive leader. “If our offense plays the way it is capable of, then the defense will take care of their job. When the two are working together, we are unstoppable,” he explained.

Although the Indians suffered a big loss on Saturday, virtually eliminating them from the playoffs, Cioffi still maintains his optimistic attitude. The idea of team success is reflected in Cioffi’s winning attitude. “If you feel you played a fundamental for a solid football business-type attitude.”

We can’t live our lives in the past, when things get bad, we have the guys that will pull the team back together.”

The Indian defense and offense are strong, which is fundamental for a solid football team. “We have the basis for winning. Our defense and offense have a sort of unwritten pact. We pride ourselves on our business-type attitude.”

Each week, The Montclarion publishes a list of sports questions and answers to test your knowledge of sports trivia. In addition, there is a sports stumper which will be answered in the following issue. If you think you have the correct answer to the stumper, drop it off at The Montclarion office in Room 113 of the Student Center Annex. The name of those submitting the correct answer will be published in the next week’s issue. Deadline for submissions is Monday at 3 p.m.

Jersey City up next for 6-2 Indians

The Indians take on the Jersey City State (JCSC)/Gothic Knights this Saturday in what should prove to be a blowout. In the series between the two schools, MSC holds a 19-0 record and a 760-124 point total advantage.

The Gothic Knights are led by their offense by three different quarterbacks, Joe Stevenerson, Hasen Perkins and freshman sensation Ronny James. Perkins has started three games, while Stevensen and James have started two games each. James will probably start on Saturday due to his outstanding performance against William Paterson, in which he earned New Jersey Athletic Conference offensive rookie of the week honors. James also caught eight passes for 178 yards, threw for 91 more on six completions (10 attempts), ran for 34 yards on 16 carries, including a 22-yard kickoff return—a total of 325 yards of offense.

Freshmen Donald Spencer (wide receiver) and Bruce Roberts (tight end) are likely to be the major targets for the young offense.

New Jersey State (JCSC)Gothic Knights' defensive end, has 53 tackles, five sacks and five fumble recoveries. Behind him are Derryk Sellers, a senior defensive tackle, with 97 tackles. Freshman center Gulbin will all get plenty of playing time. One of the team's captains Mike Wegrzyniak will be at one of the centers.

To lead the Indians to victory following last week's disappointing loss to Trenton State College. Look for him to hit his favorite receivers Amod Field and John Fiore.

For the Indian running game, MSC will look for the "Pony Express" backfield of Dan Walsh, Mike Codella and Scott Vega to rack up some big yardage.

Men’s basketball team may have found the right chemistry

The 1988-89 MSC men’s basketball team is taking a positive approach to the upcoming season.

The Indians were 3-20 last year, but are hoping to improve through hustle and teamwork. Coach Ollie Gelston is entering his 21st season at MSC, and he sees a few ways in which the Indians can improve.

"Any successful team needs to do three things to win games. First, we must be able to share the ball. Passing is vital to running the offense," he said.

"This year's version of the Indians will be led by senior captain Mike Wegrynzyk. Wegrynzyk is the only senior on the team and he will be expected to use his experience in helping out the younger players."

Wegrynzyk will be at one forward spot, while a host of other players will battle for the other starting position. Junior Gilmore and sophomore Vincent Gulbin will all get plenty of playing time at forward.

There will also be a lot of competition for the guard positions. Coach Gelston feels that the point guard spot is a vital part of the team and must show the most improvement. He'll have many players to choose from as sophomore Edward White, junior Patrick Brunner and junior Eric Newman return from last year's squad.

Brunner started last year for the Indians and was second on the team in scoring at a 6.5 points per game clip. White led the team in three point field goal percentage at 45.5%.

The center position is a strong point with Chris Albertson returning. Albertson was the teams leading scorer and rebounder last year. He averaged 7.8 ppg and had 111 rebounds. Sophomore Chris Bornat also returns at the center position.

Added to the list of returning players are two impressive group of freshmen. Guard Mike Fitzgerald and Russell Murdock join the team and add depth at their positions. Freshman forwards Lamont Halsey, Jeff Kovachich and Anthony English will also help out as the season progresses.

Field Hockey team in ECAC playoffs

The MSC field hockey team grabbed the fourth seed in the Eastern College Athletic Conference playoffs, which will be held at Sprague Field.

The Indians (8-9) will play the second game of the semi-final doubleheader Saturday at 3:00 p.m. The first game will be at 12:00 p.m. between Kean and FDJ-Madison. The winner of each game will meet on Sunday to decide the championship.
