Fire leaves students out in the cold

By Dave Williams

Phil Lopate, MSC's current writer in residence, said there is no formula to becoming a success­ful writer. Lopate, a contemporary American writer, is the author of several novels, including The Rug Merchant, Bachelorhood and Confessions of Summer. He is currently teaching a creative writing seminar which meets Tuesday afternoons in Partridge Hall. He is also the recipient of the Guggenheim award for this school year.

He said that emphasis on character development is the key to successful writing. Instead of teaching technique as central to writing well, he instructs would-be authors to be fair to their characters and to develop an attitude of compas­sion in an environment of keen observation. According to Lopate, well-developed characters are almost predictable in their decisions and actions.

"When you reach that point of inevitability, then you know you've got it," Lopate said. Lopate's love of reading was his personal motivation in becoming a writer. Developing good fiction or poetry takes time and risks, said Lopate. Writing that is a pleasure will find its way onto the page, he added. Most of all, the writer has to learn to live with himself and develop his own audience so that he might critique his own work from an honest, outside perspective, said Lopate.

Lopate's latest work, titled Against Joie De Vivre, (Against the Joy of Life), will be pub­lished in May 1989. The book is a collection of personal essays. A native New Yorker and college professor at the University of Houston, Lopate said that he has found something very congenial here among the staff and students of MSC. He has given a reading on campus and is currently judging a writing contest sponsored by the English department.

Lopate said he hopes to promote the arts, and particu­larly, music and poetry, at the MSC. "The purpose of the show is to service the MSC faculty and students," said Brenten. "The MSC Community looks forward to it each year and the people love it."

By Laura Lawson

All of the buildings on campus, including the dorms, were left without heat and hot water for about two hours. Damages are estimated at about $5,000.

The variety of handmade crafts displayed and sold at the show included folk art, wood work, stained glass, crocheted items, Christmas ornaments, flower arrangements, seashell crafts, decorated sweatshirts and jewelry, according to Brenten.

"The purpose of the show is to service the MSC faculty and students," said Brenten. "The MSC Community looks forward to it each year and the people love it."

Twelfth annual craft show is a great success

By Susan Sarlo

The twelfth annual crafts show and sale, held on Thurs­day, December 1, had the largest number of exhibitors ever, according to the show's coordi­nator, Ms. Vera Brenten.

The show and sale was sponsored by the MSC Staff Association and the Women of MSC.

Vera Brenten is shown with a display of handmade jewelry at the twelfth annual craft show. The show was the largest ever in terms of the number of exhibitors and the variety of handmade crafts.

Speaker discusses Black awareness

By Amber Smith
Staff Writer

Dr. Jawanza Kunjufu, lecturer, publisher and educational consultant, focused on Black awareness and positivity in his keynote speech at the twentieth annual Harvest Ball on Nov. 19.

Kunjufu received his B.S. degree in Economics at Illinois State University in 1974, according to an African-American Images pamphlet. He received his Doctorate in Business Administration from Union Graduate School.

He is publisher of and educational consultant of African-American Images Publishing Co. His latest books include To Be Popular or Smart: The Black Peer Group, and Countering the Conspiracy to Destroy Black Boys.

In his lecture, Kunjufu suggested that blacks should maintain a sense of self-pride and work harder in school.

Kunjufu said that college graduates should spend their money carefully. He said that many parents are “owned by visas”, and that there is too much emphasis on material luxuries.

According to Kunjufu, business majors ought to consider owning a business some day. He said that 178,000 people with MBA’s have no businesses, and many work for larger corporations. He urged the black community to support black businesses to build a stronger network.

Kunjufu presented some frightening statistics on rape, abortion, teenage pregnancy, education, child abuse, and drugs.

“America can solve the drug problem,” said Kunjufu, adding that the government refuses to eliminate the problem.

He advised the black community not to get involved in drug abuse. “When you know who you are, you don’t put drugs in your body,” Kunjufu said.

On the topic of parent-child relationships, Kunjufu suggested that parents should “bring their children home” every day and “turn off the TV” during dinner, adding that many parents spend less than half an hour with their children each day.

Kunjufu also said that the black community should believe in themselves and “put God first in life.”

Good communication between parents and children and a fair amount of discipline are essential to healthy development and success of children, according to Kunjufu.

In a brief description on male-female relationships, Kunjufu said, “There are two types of males, the Donnas and the Kathys. The Donnas don’t have to have a man and keep God first in their life.”

He added that the Kathys keep a man, even if he is less desirable, and that there should be more Donnas among women.

Finally, Kunjufu advised males and females to screen their mates carefully and to take more time to learn about them. How the mate was reared in the past will determine how the mate will act in the future, he said.

Stacy Ballou, a sophomore and accounting major, said she was pleased with the lecture. “I especially like the fact that Kunjufu stressed the importance of knowing your mate and waiting before marriage, especially in the black community.”

James Rhone, a sophomore majoring in political science, said, “I enjoyed the Harvest Ball because of the family-type atmosphere. It made me feel good to see parents come to support BSCU’s Harvest Ball. It shows that people are interested in developing the unity that BSCU is striving for.”

SGA News:
Phone service is cut

By Perry Del Vecchio
Staff Writer

As of Dec. 8, 1988, the SGA will discontinue the free phone service. This is due to students abusing the service by vandalizing the phones and the phone area. So far, it has cost more money to fix the service than it has to run it.

At last night's SGA meeting the results of its commuter cafeteria food survey were released.

The survey addressed questions such as "How do you feel about the price of the food?" as well as the quality and service.

Copies of the survey results can be obtained from the SGA office.

The next meeting of the NJSA will be on Tuesday, Dec.
13 at 7 p.m. in room 402 of the Student Center.

NJSA is made up of various student governments throughout the state. Its purpose is to discuss student concerns throughout the state. It has received public attention on their recent position on the Jobs/Education Bond issue.

Governor Kean has announced that there is a freeze on hiring of all new government jobs in N.J. This could have an effect on the hiring of a new president or director of student activities.

The Newman Community, a Catholic campus ministry and intervarsity Christian fellowship, and Tau Kappa Epsilon received charters for Class four status. The Marketing Association received a class two charter.

The parking committee has approved a proposal to make Lot 17 a general purpose lot which can be used by students, residents, faculty, and visitors,
but restrictions do apply.

Anyone parked there during a snow emergency must move or they will receive a summons.

Further action may be taken from campus police. Lot 13 cannot be reserved during exam weeks.

This was proposed by John Martucci and accepted by the parking committee and the vice president of administration and finance.

CLUB IS A CLASS I OF THE SGA
I'm going to miss the Reagan administration when it goes, I really am. It has a kind of insouciance, a devil-may-care quality about it that one does not usually find in world powers. You don't even find it in the bigger states. Take, for example, the decision to deny Yasser Arafat a visa to enter the country to talk to the United Nations. Almost everyone agrees, it's a dumb decision. Western European democracies, the Soviet bloc, the Arab states, China, the UN, all have raised objections, ranging from its illegality to its short-sightedness.

Yet when asked about it, President Reagan, vacationing in California, was able to say with a straight face that he had not participated in the decision, that it was Secretary of State George Schultz's call and he wouldn't dream of interfering. He did, however, assure us that he agreed with it.

And why did Mr. Schultz turn away Arafat? Because of Schultz's heartfelt aversion to terrorists, of which he considers Arafat one. State department officials said that Schultz's personal feelings about terrorism outweighed our obligations as host country of the UN and the harm it might do to peace negotiations in the Middle East.

That, I submit, is weird. It's like allowing the secretary of agriculture to cancel a Soviet grain deal because he doesn't like corn flakes.

I mean, it's nice to have a secretary of state who doesn't like terrorists but that doesn't do much to differentiate him from his predecessors. No American secretary of state likes terrorists, at least terrorists of the PLO kind. What we're talking about here, however, is foreign policy, the essence of which is achieving one's aims, not striking noble poses.

And if our aim was to diminish Arafat and, by association, all terrorists in the eyes of the world, we have failed miserably. We have instead done it for Moammer Gadhafi; now Arafat. (We seem to have genius for elevating two-bit thugs to the level of world class villains. We could do better.)

We've come a long way since Pearl Harbor, a long way since the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, long way since Americans imprisoned Japanese people in the U.S. version of concentration camps.

Now, Hawaii is almost completely owned by Japanese investors; most top American banks are Japanese. A new respect has replaced the fear and loathing Americans had of the Japanese. American students are struggling to keep up with the high standards of Japanese students. The dedication of Japanese employees to their companies and the quality of their product remain a puzzle that American manufacturers have grappled with for years.

Perhaps this is more of an indication of change within America's society than of change within Japan's. America's products used to be unrivaled, and we were the leaders in whatever market we chose. American nationalism was at its peak then. But since then, things have changed. Do any of us think that we'll ever have cars built the way they used to be? Will our companies ever be able to compete with Japan's electronic dynasty? Will we ever see a war effort like the one for the two World Wars? One needs only to look at the American reaction to the Vietnam War to see where Americans stand with war efforts now.

Our cars are not the only things that have deteriorated since 1941. Our relations with the Soviet Union have gone downhill in past years, typified by President Reagan's comment of it being the "Evil Empire." The actions that our country has taken in the name of anti-communism are comparable to the insanity of the McCarthy era.

We can only hope that with new Soviet relations, the Cold War and the prejudice that is attached to it will end, and that once again we can attain peaceful relations with Moscow.

So, on Dec. 7, let's look back and remember America's good and bad. Let's avoid the mistakes we've made and focus on a peaceful future. And, most of all, let's get the date right, George.
Viewpoints/right

U.S. snub boosts Arafat and PLO

The denial of a visa to Yasser Arafat, far from being the only "alternative" open to the State Department, is pretty flatly indefensible. Bad politics, bad morality.

Does Arafat endorse terrorism? Answer: Yes, he does. A lot of people do and some of them become heroes. It is an old saw that history is the policle of the victor. But it is of course true that Algeria got its independence by the most relentless acts of terrorism in modern times. The proflifer of those acts of terrorism not only became a national hero, he became something of an international hero.

It is not correct to say that Israel attained its independence by acts of terrorism, but it is certainly correct to say that terrorism was widely used. Indeed, Menachem Begin was the leader of a terrorist organization. When, serving in 1973 as a public delegate to the United Nations, I gave a speech (under the direction of the State Department) urging the denunciation of terrorism, the motion was handily defeated as a result of the qualifiers inserted by the Third World. Their eyes, in those days, were as always on South Africa, but its which country is what we're supposed to rule over Angola and Mozambique. You cannot confuse a war of liberation with terrorism, is what the majority of the Third World spokesmen meant.

There is terrorism in South Africa today, and Nelson Mandela refuses to condemn it. Has that been the response you printed, this campus is not "user friendly" to anyone. The parking facilities are terrible, and the walkways and lavatories leave much to be desired.

When, in fact, the parking is at a premium, it's very frustrating to arrive forty-five minutes early for an 8 a.m. class only to find Lot 13 closed because of some special event. Since the campus cannot comfortably accommodate students and faculty, it is questionable whether these events should take place on campus.

The stairs and walkway from the story parking garage with more handicapped spaces on the ground level. Since anything done to benefit the handicapped would benefit everyone on this campus, surely those items should be given extra consideration when planning for improvements and repairs.

AIDS patients: The new minorities

A pat on the back for those involved with Money

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, Nov. 29, Class One Concerts (CIC) hosted Eddie Money and Vixen in concert at Memorial Auditorium. The response to this show was overwhelmingly and most gratifying. From the arrival of the Hospital crew at 7 a.m. till the last truck of equipment was left past 2 a.m. the morning of the 30th, it was a long, hard day. There were many problems to be overcome, equipment to be loaded, set up and then broken down and relocated.

We in CIC do this for two reasons: our love of music and the enjoyment it brings to the crowd. As Executive Producer I am writing this letter as not only a thanks to all the people put in a tremendous effort throughout the day, but also to those who attended this sold out show.

To see people standing, dancing and singing throughout the night was a joy. Eddie Money's set helped to make all the headaches, problems and hard work worthwhile.

We in CIC can't bring every student's favorite artist to MSC, but we try to bring a diversity of groups and artists here. We sell out a show it means we have done our job very well and this is extremely gratifying.

I would like to take this opportunity to say thanks to our members for the great job and hard work they did, and thanks to all who attended the show and made it the most successful concert CIC has produced in the last year.

Eddie Money with Vixen was the highest grossing concert ever in Memorial Auditorium with the highest percentage of MSC students attending! Thanks to everyone!

Jethro Tull celebrates 20th anniversary

By Todd Collechko
Correspondent

Jethro Tull has been among the biggest names in rock for 20 years now. Due to an overwhelming demand by fans, Crystals Records released a 5-LP anniversary album this past summer to commemorate this magnificent achievement of the band. This is a gift to longtime "Tull" fans as well as upcoming new ones.

To appreciate the band, let's skip back some 20 years to unfold some of the early history of Jethro Tull.

The band (though not named Jethro Tull as yet) was formed Christmas week of 1967 in their hometown of Blackpool, England. Craving success, they traveled in whirlwind fashion down from Blackpool, with their sights set on London and the hopes of finding whatever club work they could get.

In little time, they secured a prestigious residency at London's famous Marquee Club. This at one time had been a second home to The Rolling Stones and Who. The band, playing their unique blend of music, needed a complementing unique name for themselves. It was at this time that they were christened Jethro Tull, who was an 18th century agriculturalist and a musician, too. Although Ian Anderson has always been the driving force holding onto the driving string of the band, nevertheless Jethro Tull is a group.

While playing the local club circuit in and around London, the band had acquired a very large underground following now, even without a recording contract. It was in August 1968 that the band made one of their most important appearances at the major English event-The Sunbury Blues and Jazz Festival. Fans and critics alike shouted their approval.

One newspaper proclaimed, "Jethro Tull is the group of the year and at least for the next decade." Little did anyone realize just how long their popularity would endure.

Now with a recording contract secured, the band released their best-selling album at the end of 1969. It later gained success in the U.S. in 1969. To promote themselves on the other side of the Atlantic, Tull came to our American shores in the winter of 1969 for their first of many American tours. But they were delegated to playing marquee theatres, warming up for bands Led Zeppelin and the original Fleetwood Mac.

American critics and fans hailed Jethro Tull as did their English counterparts. At this time, Tull was still an underground band, but unlike any other band both musically and visually. Soon, Jethro Tull would be headliners.

The Tull sound seemed to come out of a musical grab-bag. This included rock, jazz, and classical, done in a way nobody had ever done before.

At center stage was Ian Anderson, the band's lead vocalist, rhythm guitarist, and a musician too. Although a singer and a writer, Ian Anderson has always been the driving force holding onto the driving string of the band, nevertheless Jethro Tull is a group. The band had acquired a very strong reputation in the U.S. with the release of "Aqualung," which has become one of the classic rock hits.

The songs on that album showcased Anderson's disturbing philosophy on organized religion, with an element of humor injected into them. Hymn, wit, and eeriness are all a part of Jethro Tull.

This was never more apparent than on their follow-up album, "Thick as a Brick," released in 1972. The album contained one song that was spread over two sides of the record; and if that wasn't enough the record jacket resembled a newspaper that when actually opened up, it turned into a newspaper.

At times Jethro Tull took their music over the edge while other bands decided to play it safe. In 1973, with the release of "A Passion Play," critics, not fans, turned their backs on the band rarely, even in the future, to acknowledge the band as a creative and valid force in the music world. But the fans saw it differently.

Jethro Tull were selling out the largest arenas, making them the top concert attraction in the world. The 1974 album, "War Child," containing the hit single "Bungle in the Jungle" proved to be an excellent indication for the band's future.

Over the years, the group's personnel has changed as well as many of their musical directions: most notably the English folk album, "Songs From the Wood," and 1982's "The Brodword and the Beast." Both have been hugely successful for the group. With each new release, the band gains a new generation of fans as well as keeping the old ones. Still at the forefront of Jethro Tull's music are Ian Anderson's highly personal lyrics, setting "Tull" apart from any other band in the world.

After a three year hiatus, 1987 saw the full-scale return of Jethro Tull, with their masterpiece "Crest of a Knave." This album and tour proved to the fans, critics, and the world that Jethro Tull was still a band to be reckoned with and not just for nostalgia's sake, either.

To carry on their hard working tradition, they are now recording a new album and planning a 1989 Autumnal tour of America. That brings us to the present.

The Jethro Tull 20th Anniversary album is a 5-LP, 3 CD, or cassette package of unreleased masters, rare B-sides, remixed and archival "Tull" material and live recordings from radio broadcasts dating back to 1968 BBC tapes. Fans have been screaming for this for years. It has finally arrived. Still, though, in 1968, Ian Anderson's Tull fan, it is never enough. "There is some valid music on this album and I think the fans will love it," states bassist Dave Pegg.

Guitarist Martin Barre adds, "The presentation of this album is excellent; a very good package." In concert or on record, Jethro Tull will show you just what has made their popularity endure. And to sum up the last 20 years of the band, I borrow a liner note that appeared on their second album "Stand Up; ..."er, well yes! It really has turned out nicely."

Cancel the ‘Waltons’; Yanks? loyalty? Nah!

By Kenny Peck and Ian Saarmann

Joe must go Once again, the Jets are not going to the playoffs. Surprised? Why?
Let’s be honest. Joe Walton has simply got to go.
OK, the Jets aren’t, and haven’t been, the most talented team in the league. But they have got to be better than they’ve shown over the Walton era. It’s time for Jets’ management to take a stand and do something to shake the team up.

Maybe they could hire Gastineau as the head coach or something. But Joe has to go.

Yankee fever—lose it Well, the Yankees have really done it this time. Captain Willie Randolph has been banished from the house that George built. Randolph had been the stabilizing influence throughout all the craziness in Yankeeland. And this is the thanks he gets? New manager Dallas Green says that he doesn’t care what Randolph has done for the Yankees in the past. He wants a younger, more talented second baseman. Yeah, well Steve Sax just learned how to throw the ball to the first baseman instead of the hot dog man in the eighth row.

Green also has done a clean sweep of the coaching staff. He has brought in all of his coaches from his glory days with the Phillies. One of those let go was hitting coach Chris Chambliss. Chambliss was a vital part of the Yankees championship teams of the 1970’s. What thanks did Chambliss get? Not even a letter or phone call telling him he was let go. Nothing. Nice loyalty, from his glory days with the Phillies. One of those let go was hitting coach Chris Chambliss.

Answer to last week’s stumper: Chicago Winds

By Mary Carlonmago
Staff Writer

In addition to being named "Outstanding Wrestler" at the Coast Guard Invitational Tournament last week, MSC’s Karl Monaco, ranked second in the country, is this week’s Montclair Athlete of the Week.

Monaco, in his fourth year at MSC, has collected his share of honors. As a freshman, he placed seventh in all of Division III. He has won the Division III Nationals twice, and earned third place in Division I Nationals last season.

So far, Monaco is undefeated this season, beating Columbia’s Toby Johnson last week by a score of 11-1 to notch his latest victory.

His goals for this season seem very simple: “To be undefeated, to win Division I Nationals and to be on the East-West All Star team.”

Monaco maintains that “hard work and concentration” will be the determining factors. “We have to go out and give 100% regardless of the scoreboard,” he stated.

Monaco, who is one of the only two returning seniors on the team, feels that he as a co-captain can provide "the experience and technique to help the younger wrestlers."

"As a team, we need to improve on last year," he said.

"This year’s team is very young, but we do what we have to do and we have fun with it,” Monaco continued.

The togetherness of the solid Indian team is a plus for this season.

"Emotionally and mentally, we are in sync. Because we all get along so well, practice is fun," Monaco said.

Working out with good athletes has helped Monaco.

"During practice, there are no distractions, and that helps me to focus on what I have to do to win," he said.

Monaco’s personal performance will concentrate on “getting into better shape and becoming more mentally tough.”

Wrestling at 150 pounds for the first time this season, Monaco feels a lot stronger. “Now that I’m not cutting so much weight, I have endurance to work even harder,” he explained.

Judging by his accomplishments so far this season, Monaco at 150 pounds has pinned a winning combination.

His main opponents are number one ranked Tim Krieger of Iowa State, but according to Monaco, “Confidence and hard work should give me a good shot to win.”

Upcoming for the grapplers is the Christmas Tournament on December 18 and 19 on MSC’s home turf. Monaco is undecided about wrestling here, but attending the Florida Sunshine Open.

For the future success of the Indians, Monaco maintains that “unity” will carry the Indians to victory.

Women take Dial Classic for fourth consecutive year, 71-51

By Kenny Peck
Sports Editor

The lady Indians captured the Dial Classic for the fourth straight year with a 71-51 victory over Carrol College Saturday at Panzer Gym.

MSC (4-1) reached the championship game courtesy of a 58-50 win over Westfield State Friday night.

The Indians were down early in the final game, as Carrol's Chris Jisa sank three straight baskets to put the Pioneers up by a score of 6-1.

But MSC responded with 10 unanswered points, as Carrol was held scoreless for over five minutes, and the Indians had an 11-6 advantage.

MSC co-captain Sue Becker and tournament Most Valuable Player Kim Wilson then combined for 17 of the Indians' next 21 points, as the home team took control and built a 32-19 halftime lead.

The Pioneers managed to cut the Indian lead to ten, 34-24, with seven minutes left in the second half, as the home team continued to struggle with turnoaround jumpers to ice the win.

MSC added 15 points while Wilson proved to be too much for the Wisconsin school to handle.

The sophomore scored 16 of her game-high 30 points in the second half, as she continually buried the Pioneers' chances with turnaround jumpers to ice the win.

Co-captain Carolyn Savio dominated the boards for the Indians, as she grabbed 21 rebounds. The junior also added 16 points.

In their opening round game against Westfield State, the Indians were led by Becker, who scored 17 points and added seven assists.

"We were really relieved to win the first round game," said Indian Coach Jill Jeffrey, explaining that there is "a lot of pressure on the host school to make it to the championship game."

MSC took a 12-1 early lead enroute to a 23-14 halftime advantage. But the Indians received a scare in the second half when the Owls took a five-point edge, 40-35, on a seven-point run six minutes into the period.

The Indians responded game-ly, however, as MSC outscored Westfield State by a 14-4 margin over the next seven minutes to once again gain control.

Wilson added 15 points while Collins scored 13. Savio contributed seven points and 14 rebounds.

Everyone who played really contributed," Jeffrey said. "Everyone is looking to be a scorer, and that's really helping us out."

Indian Info: The Indians took on Stockton State last night at Stockton College, a game which ended too late to be included in today's Montclairian. MSC will travel to Western Connecticut Saturday to play the Colonials for the first time in the school's history...Through five games, Wilson is averaging a team leading 19.8 points per game, while Savio leads the team with 14.6 rebounds per game and 3.4 steals per contest...MSC is averaging 58.6 points per game, while Indian opponents are scoring at a 48 points per game clip...The Indians are struggling at the free throw line, however, as they are shooting just 50.7% from the stripe...

MSC's Francis Collins goes up for two.

The MSC men's basketball team lost a tough 56-54 decision to Stockton State last night at Panzer Gym.

Vince Gulbin was the high scorer for the Indians with 20 points and Pat Brunner chipped in 13 points, but it was not enough to pull out the win.

The lead changed hands many times in the first half, but the Indians came away with the halftime lead as Gulbin made a shot as the buzzer sounded to give MSC a 25-24 lead going into the lockerroom.

The second half was much the same, as the two teams took turns on the lead. But with 59 remaining, Stockton State's Frank Christmas hit a free throw to put the Ospreys up by four, 55-51.

But MSC's Mike Fitzpatrick quickly answered with a three-point shot to move the Indians within one. The Ospreys held the ball until a foul was called on MSC with 18 seconds left to play. The free throw was missed, and the Indians had the ball and a chance to win the game.

Freshman guard Russell Murdock dribbled the ball up and was trapped at half court. He managed to slip through the trap and find Timothy Liddy open under the basket.

Liddy went up for the shot, but was called for travelling on the play. After a timeout, MSC again fouled and sent Stockton State to the line with six seconds to play. The Ospreys made one free throw to make it a 56-54 Stockton State lead.

MSC had one more chance to tie or win the game, as the ball was thrown to Brunner outside of the three-point line. Brunner found Liddy open again under the basket.

Liddy made the layup, and the game was apparently tied. But the referees correctly ruled that shot was made after the final buzzer had sounded.
