MSC Graduate dies

Six days after graduating, a MSC graduate died when he fell off a cliff in Rockaway Township.

Anthony Passafiume, 25, died on Memorial Day, May 29, at University Hospital in Newark. Passafiume succumbed to a fractured skull and sustained a broken leg and other internal injuries.

The accident occurred at 7:50 p.m. when Passafiume and a friend tried to climb down a cliff at Green Point Mountain in Rockaway, where he and five friends had gone for a picnic.

Passafiume, a Bloomfield resident, lost grip of the rocks and fell an estimated 175 feet through woods and brush before landing on a ledge.

A friend, Michael Poremba, was able to reach Passafiume and stayed with him on the ledge until rescue workers arrived. At 10:52 p.m. they were finally able to helicoptor him to the hospital, where he died seven minutes later.

"The college feels a great loss of such an active young man," said Edward Martin, dean of students. "He worked very hard to get his education, and to get out on schedule."

"When somebody so young passes on you always suppose what they could have added to other people's lives," he added. "No matter what, his memory will never be forgotten."

"The one thing I can say about Anthony, is that he touched a lot of different people in his life," said Sharon Lane, who met Passafiume in her sophomore year.

"The friendship and love that he expressed throughout his short life is the kind that one cont. on p. 4

Reid begins as new president

Bubbly, exciting, educated, friendly, witty, and very cool. These are the words being used by faculty, administration, and students to describe MSC's seventh president, Irvin Reid.

Since the first day of his appointment, August 1, 1989, Reid has seized every opportunity to learn about Montclair State. His daily activities included surprise visits with the faculty, meeting with student leaders at his home for dinner, and introducing himself to students while exploring the campus.

Reid, while continually praising MSC's achievements, said that the faculty is the college's greatest advantage. "Montclair State has the best faculty of the nine state colleges," he said.

"There is a high standard maintained within the academy and a commitment to education," Reid's main ingredient at MSC is direction. "We need to know where Montclair State is going to be in the 21st century," he said. According to Reid, there are 3,400 post-secondary institutions in the United States. "Everyone agrees this is more than we need," said Reid. "Montclair State must be here as a force."

Reid also said a decrease in financial limitations is needed at MSC. "We need funds to compensate our faculty," he said.

How to live with someone who's living with cancer.

Learning to live with cancer is no easy task. Learning to live with someone else's cancer can be even more difficult. Nobody knows better than we do how much help and understanding is needed. That's why our service and rehabilitation programs emphasize the whole family, not just the cancer patient.

We run local programs with volunteers who are recovered cancer patients, or whose lives have been touched by family members or friends with cancer. That's what makes us one of the largest, best-motivated and most caring of any health organization in the country.

Among our regular services we provide information and guidance to patients and families, transport patients to and from treatment, supply home care items and assist patients in their return to everyday life.

Life is what concerns us. The life of cancer patients. The lives of their families. So you can see we are even more than the research organization we are so well known to be.

Local 1031 says "No justice- No work"

By Lilyanne Mc Clean

Fourteen college employees picketed on College Avenue Monday, protesting unfair contract proposals made by the State Government.

The picketers represent the Communications Workers of America (CWA) local 1031. The union rejected a contract in July that included a 6-month wage freeze ending in January 1990, and raises of 4 percent, 4 1/2 percent, and 5 1/2 percent over the next three years, picketers said.

The "insufficient" wage increase is the CWA's main concern, according to Lillian Klotz of the Business Office. "People are living a hand-to-mouth existence," she said. "We are barely making ends meet."

Local President Marge Turner was joined by other office employees bearing signs that read 'No justice-No work" and "Service not Slavery," said the union began the process of fact-finding on August 8, 1989, after mediation efforts by the Public Employment Relations Commission had failed.

"Mr. Howard Edelman was selected to listen to the positions of both parties," said Turner. "Once he comes to a conclusion, he will make a formal recommendation which is non-binding on either party."

Turner also charged the state conducted unfair labor practices by negotiating parity clauses with both the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) and the International Federation of Technical and Professional Engineers (IFPTE), which together represents 20,000 state workers.

According to Turner, both unions agreed to terms on three-years contracts in July replacing those that ended on June 30.

Meal cards can be used in Student Center and Rat

By Michelle Keery
Staff Writer

Students whose schedules conflict with dining hall hours will be able to use their meal cards at other campus dining areas this year, Woods food services announced last week.

Woods, an independent company which manages all dining halls and cafeterias on campus, devised the new meal arrangement to accommodate students who are unable to eat at Free- man and Blanton dining halls during normal hours.

Under the new policy, students can use their meal cards at the Rathskeller, the Student Center Cafeteria and the Student Center Dining Room from 1:45 p.m. to 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. These times were chosen because they will cover the hours that the dining halls aren’t open, according to Beth Mellet, marketing director and dietician for Woods.

In order to use meal cards at the designated areas, students must present their card to the cashier upon purchasing food, and a deduction of one meal cost, $2.70, will be put towards each meal. If the food they buy costs more than $2.70, students must make up the difference on their own, according to Mellet.

Phyllis Sivtala, a cashier at the Rathskeller, said that the new meal card policy was drawing larger numbers of students to the pizzaria each day. Yesterday, she had 122 use their meal cards in here in two hours. Today, it was 92 in one hour. It’s really catching on,” she said on Tuesday.

“This will give students who miss meals because of conflicting classes more flexibility,” said Mellet. “It also gives those who are tired of eating at Blanton and Freeman an alternative.”

She added that students who normally eat in the Rathskeller, the Student Center Cafeteria and the Student Center Dining Room will not face longer lines as a result of the policy, since the hours that meal cards can be used are normally low volume periods.

The new president of the Black Student Cooperative Union told over eighty members Tuesday its executive board will continue pursuing a name change for the Class One organization. Last year, the membership of the BSCU voted for a name change to the Organization of Students for African-American Unity. But the SGA (Student Government Association) denied the name change.

According to Dr. Thomas Veenendall, Speech Division Coordinator, an honorary scholarship established by a Group Processes class last spring will be named after Passafiume. The scholarship will be presented to a student from the communication studies department in the Fall of 1989, said Veenendall.

The bill is again pending in the SGA legislature and will go to the floor on September 20.

The organization planned a party for Friday, September 15, and a variety of special programming during African-American history month next February.

The officers of the BSCU Executive Board are President Adrienne Woods, Vice President Jason Fields, Treasurer Aledine Goines, Secretary Hope Nixion, BSCU Representative Willard Perkins, Jr. The groups advisors are Dr. Sandra, Director of African-American studies, Professor Wilson and Coach John Bliantont.

The various committees of this year’s BSCU include the African American Awareness Committee; African American History Month; the African Dance Troupe; Cultural Affairs; Drama Workshop; Kitabu (a library for reference on African-American culture and history). Other committees are Publicity, Strive (the publication of the BSCU) and the BSCU choir.

Turner said the two unions took the same position during the last contract negotiations.

Turner also said that compensation for the past two months should be sought.

Luisa Carrizo, another friend, recalled, “He was so full of beauty and kindness. I received from him a true sense of friendship.”

Throughout his years at MSC, Passafiume was active in student activities. He worked as a DJ at WMSC and as a member of Class One Concerts. Upon graduating, he worked as an audio engineer with Stardust Studios in Upper Montclair. A talented musician, he played bass guitar with Exhibit A Band.

Clove Road fire relocates thirty students

By Lynn M. Cowan
Editor-in-Chief

An electrical fire in the Clove Road apartment complex on Aug. 23 damaged 15 apartments and necessitated the relocation of 30 residents to other on-campus housing. No residents were injured.

The fire, which began around 10:50 p.m., originated in the wiring of a faulty exhaust fan in apartment 102 B. The Little Falls fire department responded to the alarm and had it extinguished by 11:45 p.m.

Fire Marshall Domenick DiSimone said that the fire could have been smoldering for several hours before it was discovered by a resident in an adjoining apartment. "We're very lucky that the fire didn't happen during the normal school year," he said. "People often double park outside, and that would've hindered the fire equipment that came in."

Due to cancellations and voluntary doubling and tripling by other residents, on-campus arrangements have been made for the 30 Clove Road residents. The Residence Life Office also made special meal arrangements for the displaced students because Clove Road residents are not required to have meal plans.

Repairs are needed for fire and water damage to the roof of the complex, two stairwells and 15 apartments, six of which require complete gutting and rebuilding. There is no definite date set for completion of repairs on the apartments, but Ruth Lugo-Alvarez, director of Residence Life, estimated that it could take anywhere from six weeks to the entire semester.

Harry S. Truman Scholarship

Sophomores interested in a career in government service at the federal, state, or local level are invited to apply for a 1990 Harry S. Truman Scholarship.

Established by Congress in 1975, the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation operates an ongoing educational scholarship program designed to provide opportunities for outstanding students in the United States with potential leadership ability to prepare for careers in government service. In April 1990, the foundation will award 92 scholarships nationally. The deadline for all 1990 applications is Dec. 1, 1989.

Three students can be nominated for the 1990 competition. The scholarship award covers eligible expenses up to $7,000 per year for the junior year, the senior year, and two years of graduate study.

To be eligible, a student must be a full-time sophomore working toward or planning to pursue a baccalaureate degree, have a B average or equivalent, stand in the upper fourth of the class, and be a United States citizen or United States national heading toward a career in government.

Interested students should submit a letter of application, a statement of career plans, a list of past public-service activities or other leadership positions, a current transcript, and a 600-word essay discussing a public policy issue of their choice to Dr. Rhoda K. Unger, Truman Scholarship faculty representative, 124 Russ Hall, by October 15, 1989.

SGA, faculty protest but planning continues

Association opposed any spending in excess of the 1988 bond proposal of $19.5 million. A space audit revealed that more library capacity was a high priority. The original proposal was to fund $19 million worth of construction, including renovation of the old library building for use by classes and faculty. But the Master Planning Committee decided the building was wrong for that purpose and the cost of renovation and a new library would drain more than half of available funds. This plan became the "blueprint" for the present master plan.

Thirty years of rapid expansion have produced haphazard growth of the college, placing some faculty offices at opposite ends from the classrooms where they teach and scattering popular classes, leaving units such as the Business School incoherent physically, according to the architects' report. Also classes, leaving units such as the Business School incoherent physically, according to the architects' report. Also classes, leaving units such as the Business School incoherent physically, according to the architects' report. Also classes, leaving units such as the Business School incoherent physically, according to the architects' report.

An earlier plan known as Plan B, included a new $8 million residence hall but would save $5 million elsewhere by proposing less new construction and spending slightly more on renovation. State and tuition-funded projects would be similar.

All other projects are to be funded by future issue of 30-year bonds through the New Jersey Educational Facilities Agency.

Architects revealed the three tentative plans last May in a public presentation. SGA Treasurer Tim Nee was there and later said if there was a consensus at that meeting it was that plan B is the only one the college can afford. "It was the "springboard" for the present master plan.

"We are angry that students were allowed very little input," he said.

The Master Planning Committee selected Plan C in a meeting in May. SGA leaders said the student representative was not at that meeting. The Board of Trustees upheld its recommendation in a public meeting July 13.

President Mary Jane Linnehan, speaking on behalf of the student government, said in that meeting, "The students of Montclair State College had an absolutely inadequate consultation in regard to the decision to endorse Master Plan C, and were not officially informed of it until weeks after the decision had been discussed," she said, adding the committee's was reached "during a time when the availability of many interested students and faculty was restrained."

Richard Franke, who is president of the Montclair State Federation of College Teachers, said that assumptions made by the committee had been unrealistic, including the projection of $1 million in contributions over the next four years. The MSC Foundation has never exceeded $100,000 in any recent year, he said, adding tuition could become prohibitive for many students.

Mary Jane Linneman said recently, "Financially there's three groups of students at MSC: poorer students who get aid, middle-class students who mostly finance their own education, and wealthy ones. The middle group would be hardest hit if tuition goes up sharply."

"President Reid has an excellent record in fund-raising for universities. He's got a good plan... It looks hopeful."
MSC students speak: coming back isn’t so bad

By Valerie Kalfrin
Features Editor

At the Student Center on any given afternoon, they are there. They come for work, for business, or just to hang out.

And yes, they even like it here. Whether coming to MSC for their first year, their last year, or anything in between, most students seem to think that going "back to school" isn’t all that bad.

Sounds strange, doesn’t it? The policies can change, the courses change, the faces change. Don’t attitudes change, too?

Freshmen seem to have the most awe. “It’s a lot better than high school,” said Danielle Marcantuono, who doesn’t feel any pressure about her first year at college. “They treat you more like adults here.”

Most of her peers seem to agree. “I like it so far,” said Marie Bosco. “A lot of people are friendly.”

“I think it’s fun,” said Jill Banasiak, who had only one complaint. “I don’t like economics at all.”

John DelVecchio had an easy solution. “I like all my classes,” he said. “I dropped the ones I didn’t.”

Joe Pankiewicz, starting his first year as a commuter, found two sides to college life. “I like the freedom I have,” he said. “Parking sucks. I got a ticket already.”

Seniors are anxious, but in a different sense. “I’m anxious to get out,” said Lenore Arias, an English major, who didn’t seem to be retrospective about her college career. “I just feel like the year’s going to be longer because it’s my last year here.”

Joe Drago, however, paused to reflect. “I think it’s wonderful. It’s been a fine four years.”

Joe Petrone took a more practical approach of the year ahead. “There’s a lot more people, it’s crowded, and there’s not enough parking.”

What about sophomores and juniors, who seem caught between the two? “It’s harder, because I was part-time last semester. Now I’m full time,” said one sophomore, who remains undecided. “I like it, though. It wasn’t that bad coming back.”

Mimi Halkowich and seniors Jennifer Duester and John Puskar were content to look forward to more “Tequila Tuesdays.”

Peggy Bane, a junior on the five year program, seems anxious as well to “get out of this place and get a good career.”

“I came back to get a break from the summer,” she added. “It’s great to see my friends.”

Friends were one of the reasons Dave Lyons, a history major, transferred to MSC. “A lot of my friends are here,” he said, adding that he loves living on campus. “I’m getting around pretty easy, except for the line in the bookstore.”

Maybe the more things change, the more they stay the same.
Now there's more in the Apple* Macintosh* family to choose from than ever before, with six computers to meet every personal computing need.

Start with the Macintosh Plus, the Macintosh SE, and the Macintosh SE/30. These integrated systems offer the affordability, ease of use, and consistency of applications traditionally associated with Macintosh.

And their compact design makes them easy to transport, wherever you go.

Now meet the modular side of the family: the Macintosh II, Macintosh IIX, and the newest member, the very versatile Macintosh IIx. These expandable, high-performance computers can be configured for virtually any task. You choose the amount of RAM, the type of monitor, and the storage capacity of the hard disk, which means you can build a system to handle everything from desktop publishing to scientific and engineering applications.

But no matter which system you choose, you're still getting all the advantages of a Macintosh.

Hazing is dangerous and it should be abolished from college campuses.

A newly combined group of sororities at MSC are starting to do something about it. Phi Sigma Sigma, Delta Phi Epsilon, and Sigma Delta Tau are three national sororities with chapters at MSC which are members of the National Panhellenic Council. The National Panhellenic Council is a governing body which regulates the conduct of national sororities, ensuring that the highest standards are maintained academically as well as morally. One of the things they absolutely do not tolerate is hazing in any shape or form.

Smaller divisions of the National Panhellenic Council, which have power to regulate at the local level are simply called Panhellenic Councils. MSC has a functioning Panhellenic Council with representatives from each national sorority on campus serving in different capacities.

This is the first time that these three national sororities have ever staged a formal, cohesive rush at MSC. They are trying to set a precedent by advertising against hazing and encouraging things like scholarship and philanthropy work.

Could this be a new image for Greek life at MSC?

Some would say it is about time.

Pledging should not be a torment, but rather a time for learning and growing. The end of the pledge period should not be the point at which one gains respect from her sisters, because she should have their respect all along.

A good question to ask before pledging a sorority is: are they trying to make me a good pledge or a good sister?

It is a question worth pondering...
The tragic hero: John McEnroe

Maryanne Griese
Contributing columnist

John McEnroe recently played at the US Open and his performance reminded me of a Greek tragedy.

An interpretation of life and its moral laws, Greek tragedy takes place in an open amphitheatre, as does a tennis match. At the outset all promises to go well. As the game progresses, we see the hero is caught in a web that is woven by the gods. The chorus becomes the stadium of approving or disapproving fans, yelling out advice or warning, praise or blame.

Tragedy must be centered around a familiar legend, and John’s story is well-known. It is simply that age catches up to us all. This inevitably happens to sports figures sooner than they are prepared to accept it. They are questioned by the press and fans as to how long they can keep playing, while facing the toughest competition in the world. They are also confronted with their own doubts, receiving messages from their bodies that time is growing short.

I would suspect from John’s performance that it is sweeter for him now than ever before to play tennis at the championship level. It was only as his game began to wane that he realized what it meant to him. Isn’t it also true for all of us that we only appreciate what we have once we are threatened to lose it? That is the stuff of a good tragedy.

The theme of tragedy is the fate of ancient heroes, with both good and evil in their character. Mac’s antics on court are considered evil by many, and his sin was that he took his talent for granted.

He won with an ease other players could not emulate, and he was the first to admit he never really spent the time he should have on his game. But he was young and other things beckoned.

As for the good, there is no player more courageous in defeat than McEnroe. He places the blame on no one else. He has a way of squarely facing his defeats, along with his personality faults: honesty.

In Greek tragedy, behind all the suffering and sin, there must be a redeeming quality, and for John it is his grace and style of never complaining about a loss. There is always controversy where Mac is concerned. At one point during the games he told the press he would drop his pants on center court if Chang made it to the finals.

I think what I most like about John is that he is more human in public than most of us dare to be in private.

There were death threats, which added to the drama. When he was told, his only response was to play his match and win it.

John McEnroe is definitely an ancient hero. He is thirty years old, practically an old man in tennis.

However, it is also representative of the national consciousness to see that the fans get behind the aging players, rooting for them when before they would have sooner routed them.

This is the pattern as it becomes evident the battle they are fighting out there in the arena of Court One is the fundamental battle we must all fight in the end.

Mac is akin to one of the sons of the Gods. He won his first tournament at the age of seventeen killing off the previous title holder with an almost unnaturally natural talent.

This talent of his seemed to be a pure gift from the gods, with nuances and skill never seen before. He is considered to have the best set of hands in the game and to be the world’s top doubles player despite his age.

However, in the end the gods determine the hero’s fortune and that must never be forgotten. For the sin of not appreciating the talent that was bestowed on him, along with his uncourteous behavior, he must suffer the consequences.

He was defeated by Stefan Edberg during the fourth game at Wimbledon, in his quest to recapture his title of five years ago.

Mac does have something in his favor that could save him from a tragic fate. He is developing character. This was evident at Wimbledon as he dispensed with his outbursts on court to a great extent.

He admits to having a problem with his temper during play and to needing more control of his energy in order to last the full game. This is all anyone can ask of themselves.

I hope this character growth can save him from the tragic consequences that befall Greek heroes who never show any sign of growth as outside forces work towards their destruction.

I hope he recaptures his title.

MSC in Japan

By Barclay Minton
Arts and Entertainment Editor

Congratulations are in order for Carol Westfall, professor of textiles in the MSC Fine Arts Department. Westfall is exhibiting her piece "Crazy Quilt I" in Fibreart '89 International, a bi-annual exhibit. The exhibit runs from Sept. 16 through Oct. 8 at Galleria, Pittsburgh. It is a juried and invitational show designed to encourage the entry of works from living fiber artists from around the world.

Artists from 46 states and 16 foreign countries submitted 1042 works; 72 pieces, including Westfall's, were chosen.

Artists from 46 states and 16 foreign countries submitted 1042 works; 72 pieces, including Westfall's, were chosen.

The excitement, however, is at the International Textile Competition '89 in Kyoto, Japan. Through a grant from the U.S. Department of State, 44 artists were chosen to show, understand, and acknowledge the actual situation of textile in the present world and to create images of civilization that man and textile will shape in the world of tomorrow, she said.

Five non-Japanese judges conducted a strict, fair, and careful examination of the 1203 works submitted from 39 countries. One hundred and thirty-six works from 21 countries were selected.

The actual exhibition will be held at the Kyoto Municipal Museum of Art from Nov. 7 through Nov. 19. Final selections will be announced in mid-October.

Grand prize is $20,000. There are two $5,500 second prizes, two $3,000 third prizes and four $2,000 awards.

Westfall created "Crazy Quilt I & II by collaging torn computer-generated woven textures together onto fiberglass screening. The works were then painted with dies and stitched with black silk thread onto the final surface. Westfall considers the works to be 20th-century facsimiles of the traditional American crazy quilt. After the exhibition, the piece will go on tour throughout Japan for the next year.

NOLAN'S NOTES

Hello! I'm Back! And yes, I didn't graduate! I hope you had a great summer! And now, on to the column. Prom is currently working on the Time's reunion album. Morris Day and Jerome Benton have been collaborating with the Purple One and it is tentatively scheduled to be out in early 1990. Day is making time in the recording studio as well as the television studio. He's currently taping a pilot for an ABC sitcom called New Attitude, in which he plays a hairdresser looking for a record deal. Whatever sells! In November, Prince will start rehearsals for his upcoming Bad Tour. The tour isn't mapped out yet but plans are being made for it to begin in February and go til August. He'll be covering the U.S., Europe, and Japan.

MINI—NOTES: The Rock and a Hard Place AIDS benefit, which started off on the wrong foot after kicking Guns N' Roses off the bill, has stumbled even more. The concert, previously postponed this year, is now being planned for 1990 with a name change...the R&B balladeer of the decade, Luther Vandross, will be releasing a double-album greatest hits set. The real excitement, however, is Neil Young, who played a sold-out concert at the Paladium on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 5 and 6. Young, an unassuming Canadian whose music ranges from country-folk to modern-pop, went back to his roots by playing a solo acoustic set to an over-enthusiastic crowd, the size of which would have had the Fire Marshall going into conniptions.

Young played for more than an hour and a half with the vibrance and energy of a teen-ager trapped in the body of a man in his forties. Unlike other bands that toured this summer, Young did not need a large back-up band to enforce his performance. He did it alone.

Venturing into the city without a ticket, I found fans to be similar to Deadheads. I was able to buy a ticket from someone at the concert for the box office price instead of going to a ticket scaler and paying ridiculous prices for seats or waiting on line for what seems to be an infinite amount of time. To add to the bargain, I saw a show that equaled any other band that played this summer.

1989-The summer of love revisited has rehashed many of the bands from the Woodstock era such as the Rolling Stones, the Who, and the Greatful Dead. Another such performer is Neil Young, who played a sold-out concert at the Paladium on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 5 and 6. Young, an unassuming Canadian whose music ranges from country-folk to modern-pop, went back to his roots by playing a solo acoustic set to an over-enthusiastic crowd, the size of which would have had the Fire Marshall going into conniptions.

MINI—NOTES II: September 19th is a day to remember! Janet Jackson, Tears For Fears, Tina Turner, Bob Dylan, Big Daddy Kane, The Alarm, and Melba Moore are all releasing new albums! It's a Tuesday! Go shopping! Number ones this week: Pop: "Don't Wanna Lose You," Gloria Estefan; Soul: "Remember the First Time," Eric Gable; Album: "Hangin'Tough," New Kids...This week's trivia question: One is from France; the other, from Germany. Their name is from Turkey. Milli Vanilli is Turkish for what? Think about it. Until next week...

Paul McCartney

By Jon Max Green

Think about the number of songs that come to mind when you say the name Paul McCartney. It's incredible to think that he's been around for 25 years. Twenty-five years and still able to come out with fantastic tunes the average John Thomas off the street can hum to. However, for the past couple of years, Paul McCartney has become too commercial and lacked heart. With that in mind, Paul surrounded himself with the right people.

For example, McCartney teamed up with Elvis Costello, the self-styled poet with enough heart for all. The result is fantastic. McCartney has captured the essence of the Ram album with the heart of Wings Over America.

On the whole, Paul's new album is just what he needed, with successes such as "My Brave Face," "You Want Her Too," and my favorite, "Put It There." This album is top shelf and shouldn't be left behind on your next trip to the music store. Paul McCartney has definitely shown that he doesn't need to prove himself.

Devils' Weekly

By Michael Walmsley
Sports Editor

The NJ Devils opened camp this past week at South Mountain Arena on Northfield Ave. in West Orange. Yes, fans, the hockey season is upon us and the New Jersey Devils have added some new faces this off-season.

The Soviets have arrived and low key but impressive Vyacheslav (Slava) Fetisov and Sergei Starikov are world class veterans with years of Olympic and international experience. Along with experience they bring a desire to win and show they belong in the NHL. This desire is evident in training camp.

In practice last week, Fetisov hip-checked Kirk Muller to the ice. Muller was held off from the ice with a strained knee and the injury is not believed to be serious. But the intensity the Soviets are showing can only help the intensity of the team as a whole.

Fetisov has been a star of international hockey for a decade and will be a star in the NHL very soon. Some questions being asked around the league are: How will the American and Canadian players react to the Soviets players’ presence? How will Fetisov’s and Starikov’s teammates react to the physical retaliation experts predict will happen?

I predict that the NJ Devils’ Team will realize the exceptional talent of their new teammates, put aside political views, accept them as comrades, and rally behind them. They will also unite with a few more first-year Devils. Reijo Ruotsalainen, Walt Poddubny, and Sylvain Turgeon have returned to the Metropolitan area.

Reijo Ruotsalainen is returning from playing in Europe after leaving the NHL a few years back. The ex-Ranger and Oiler is well known in the league for his point shot, speed, and puck handling ability. This should add life and quickness to the Devils’ power play. The defender’s explosiveness is something the Devils are lacking.

Ex-Ranger, All-Star Walt Pudugny has returned to the Hudson River Bank, but this time on the Jersey side. I feel, Walt Poddubny will score 50 goals and finally feel at home in New Jersey. Welcome home.

Sylvain Turgeon is coming to the Devils from the Hartford Whalers in Hartford, Connecticut. Turgeon has been labeled as a player who is talented, but not living up to potential and lazy. Sometimes talent is just not enough. Take Brendan Shanahan, for example.

Shanahan was picked number one by the Devils and was loaded with talent, evident by his scoring record in the Juniors. Not only could he score but he was big and still growing. So when Shanahan did not explode and put 40 pucks in the net, no one understand—because of all his talent.

Shanahan, in the second half of last year, did begin to score and utilize the talent he obviously has. But what did Shanahan do differently that he had not done the previous year and a half? Jim Schoenfield probably helped his mental attitude. If you have all the physical talent in the world and the mental game is not in order, it will not work. So let’s see how Turgeon reacts to the positiveness and hard working atmosphere the Devils team and organization demands. Addressing the label of laziness is simple. Jim Schoenfield and teammates do not do things half speed.

This is an exciting time in New Jersey for hockey fans. The Devils are expected to win and now have the players and coaching staff needed to do so. Let’s go Devils.

Women’s volleyball introduced

By Robin Weber
Correspondent

This year, volleyball at Montclair State College becomes official. Coach Willie Rucker believes the team will show themselves as quite competent in the New Jersey Conference, feeling that they will do better than 500, which is “great for a new team.”

There are only three ladies returning from last year’s team. They are Jacqueline Martinez, Christine Reiner, and Sandra Sanchez. Last year they left the season with a record of 7-4.

This year, however, the team is minus three graduated starting players, and there are many who have very little experience. According to Chris Reiner, they must learn the new player’s strengths and weaknesses, and begin to know how each will react when the ball comes her way. Each member is trying very hard to get the team together for a good season.

Unfortunately, Coach Rucker is having a problem with her facilities which she says is “disheartening.” She is awaiting floor resurfacing and the installation of new standards in the floor. They will do the best they can with what the coach calls “shabby equipment.”

This season’s team members are Carmen Arnaubert (Jr.), Donna Brooks (Sr.), Erika Jenkins (Fr.), Carmen Lugo (Sr.), Jacqueline Martinez (Sr.), also an asset to the team, Pura Mejia (Fr.) who is said to be an amazing defensive blocker, Christine Reiner (Sr.) who proved her skill last season, Sandra Sanchez (Sr.), Maureen Shanahan, (Sr.), Kelly Sprague, Jo Ellen Zamos (Jr.), and Tracey Burke (Sr.).

This year the women will prove they are worthy of the varsity standing that they have received. Their apparent professionalism aside, the team could use the support of the student body to help with their success in the future.
Hawks lose

By Michael Walmsley
Sports Editor

As you were catching your last ray of sun this summer, the Montclair State Red-Tailed Hawks football season was getting underway.

The Hawks (0-1) started their quest for the New Jersey Athletic Conference title with a penalty-filled loss to Division II Central Connecticut in an away game on Saturday, Sept. 2. MSC lost the game 24-6.

The Hawks showed some promise both on offense and defense. On offense, MSC received a strong passing performance from junior quarterback Ed Baffige. Baffige threw for 264 yards on completing 24 of 50 passes and one touchdown. The 15-yard touchdown pass was thrown to co-captain wide receiver Eric Valentine.

Coach Giancola and staff will have the team ready to play this Saturday in an away game against East Stroudsburg. For game information and transportation call the Athletic Department at 893-5249.

Hawk logo contest

By Michael Walmsley
Sports Editor

Stage two of the MSC nickname change is about to get underway.

On the heels of last month's change from Indians to "Red Hawks," which was accomplished with an on-campus suggestion contest, the second and third contests of a planned four will officially begin on Thursday, September 7.

The second contest will be to determine the official logo for MSC athletics, while the third contest will be to design a cartoon character Hawk for use at home games and on souvenirs.

The Red Hawk logo contest is open to any artist or graphic designer. Greg Lockard, the Director of Athletics, said the logo should be of a traditional format. "The first contest will be to choose a formal logo, while the final contest will be to determine a cartoon-like rendition," he said.

One prize of $400 will be awarded for the top drawing selected in each contest. The format will be as follows:

- Each artist should submit a maximum of three sketches for each contest.
- The top three drawings will be chosen and each artist will then submit a "final version."
- The winner will be chosen from the final three.

Montclair will retain all rights to each logo.

All submissions should be sent to Sports Information Director, Al Langer. The address is: Athletics, Montclair State College, Upper Montclair, N.J. 07043. The entries must reach his office no later than Sept. 21, 1989. For further information, call 893-5249 during normal work hours.

MSC introduces new mascot

By Michael Walmsley
Sports Editor

The Intercollegiate Athletics Committee at MSC has made it official. After over two years of contemplation and over three months of deliberation, the new nickname representing all of the college's athletics will be "Red-Tailed Hawks.

The nickname, which is easily shortened to Red Hawks, was one of over 120 suggestions submitted by Montclair faculty, staff, and student organizations in early May. After many meetings to narrow down the choices, which included various originalities such as "The Dinosaurs," "The Jersey Tomatoes," and "The Firecrackers," Red Hawks was chosen out of a final field of four. The three other finalists were Eagles, Cardinals, and Falcons.

"The name Red Hawks, a bird very common in the state of New Jersey, will become a fine replacement for Indians," said Greg Lockard, Montclair's Director of Athletics. "It is a beautiful, majestic animal that will do nothing but enhance Montclair's already proud athletic tradition."

The red-tailed hawk, the second most common hawk in New Jersey behind the broad-winged hawk, is not an endangered species, and can be seen quite frequently in the winter months within the trees off Route 80. In fact, every fall and spring, the Audubon Society of New Jersey conducts what is known as the Montclair Hawk Watch at the Mills Reservation in Upper Montclair. For the past four years, according to NJ Audubon Magazine, it has been the best spot in all of New Jersey to observe a large number of hawk species, including the red-tailed.

The majestic and powerful quality of the Red-Tailed Hawk was also a consideration in the nickname decision. Holly Gera, the Director of Campus Recreation at Montclair, who submitted the winning suggestion, mentioned that "the red feathers on the tail of the bird would tie in with the school colors very nicely."

The decision, however, was not without expense. Because the word "Indians" was on the basketball court and on the football field, contractors were hired to resurface the floor in Panzer Gymnasium. Sprague Field, the football stadium, also received a new astroturf surface, and the Hawks' name can be seen in bold letters in one endzone.
