Trustees accept $35 million plan despite objections

By Carl Chase
News Editor

Overruling student and faculty leaders’ opposition, the MSC Board of Trustees voted to approve a $35 million capital improvement plan, partly funded by tuition increases and $13 million in Jobs, Education, and Competitiveness (JEC) bonds. The plan includes an $11.84 million classroom/office building and a four-story library addition estimated at $7 million.

The plan, to be accomplished within about 55 months, includes $20 million in JEC projects. Major construction will be scheduled for completion in August 1992. Other projects around the campus will cost $7.8 million and are said to be revenue-supported.

MSC Graduate dies

By Jane Bech Nielsen
Staff Writer

Six days after graduating, a MSC graduate died when he fell off a cliff in Rockaway Township.

Anthony Passafiume, a Bloomfield resident, lost grip of the rocks and fell an estimated 175 feet through woods and brush before landing on a ledge. A friend, Michael Poremba, was able to reach Passafiume and stayed with him on the ledge until rescue workers arrived. At 10:52 p.m. they finally able to helicopter him to the hospital, where he died seven minutes later.

"The college feels a great loss of such an active young man," said Edward Martin, dean of students. "He worked very hard to get his education, and to get out on schedule."

"People say to your friends that they are a piece of the puzzle," said Sharon Lane, who met Passafiume in her sophomore year. "The friendship and love that he expressed throughout his short life is the kind that one

Bubbly, exciting, educated, friendly, witty, and very cool. These are the words being used by faculty, administration, and students to describe MSC’s seventh president, Irvin Reid.

Since the first day of his appointment, August 1, 1989, Reid has seized every opportunity to learn about Montclair State. His daily activities included surprise visits with the faculty, meeting with student leaders at his home for dinner, and introducing himself to students while exploring the campus.

Reid, while continually praising MSC’s achievements, said that the faculty is the college’s greatest advantage. "Montclair State has the best faculty of the nine state colleges," he said.

"You must remember," he said, "that forming regional alumni associations would be beneficial.

"If the college was founded in 1908, and we have an undergraduate population of 10,000 students, we have an awful lot of alumni out there." He added that forming regional alumni associations would be beneficial.

An increased sensitivity to cultural differences is also important to Reid. "We really don’t know a lot about other people," he said. "This puts us at a disadvantage economically. Our students need to learn about other countries or they will not be the leaders of the future."

Cultural literacy is one of Reid’s main ingredients for a sound education. "Regardless of one’s major, a student must..." cont. on p. 7
How to live with someone who's living with cancer.

Learning to live with cancer is no easy task. Learning to live with someone else's cancer can be even more difficult.

Nobody knows better than we do how much help and understanding is needed. That's why our service and rehabilitation programs emphasize the whole family, not just the cancer patient.

We run local programs with volunteers who are recovered cancer patients, or whose lives have been touched by family members or friends with cancer. That's what makes us one of the largest, best-motivated and most caring of any health organization in the country.

Among our regular services we provide information and guidance to patients and families, transport patients to and from treatment, supply home care items and assist patients in their return to everyday life.

Life is what concerns us. The life of cancer patients. The lives of their families. So you can see we are even more than the research organization we are so well known to be.

Local 1031 says “No justice- No work”

By Lilyanne Mc Clean

Fourteen college employees picketed on College Avenue Monday, protesting unfair contract proposals made by the State Government.

The picketers represent the Communications Workers of America (CWA) local 1031. The union rejected a contract in July that included a 6-month wage freeze ending in January 1990, and raises of 4 percent, 4 1/2 percent, and 5 1/2 percent over the next three years, picketers said.

The “insufficient” wage increase is the CWA's main concern, according to Lillian Klotz of the Business Office. "People are living a hand-to-mouth existence," she said. "We are barely making ends meet."

Local President Marge Turner was joined by other office employees bearing signs that read 'No justice-No work" and “Service not Slavery,” said the union began the process of fact-finding on August 8, 1989, after mediation efforts by the Public Employment Relations Commission had failed.

"Mr. Howard Edelman was selected to listen to the positions of both parties," said Turner. "Once he comes to a conclusion, he will make a formal recommendation which is non-binding on either party."

Turner also charged the state conducted unfair labor practices by negotiating parity clauses with both the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) and the International Federation of Technical and Professional Engineers (IFPTE), which together represents 20,000 state workers.

According to Turner, both unions agreed to terms on three-years contracts in July replacing those that ended on June 30. cont. on p. 4

Tired of eating at Blanton?

Meal cards can be used in Student Center and Rat

By Michelle Keery

Students whose schedules conflict with dining hall hours will be able to use their meal cards at other campus dining areas this year, Woods food services announced last week.

Woods, an independent company which manages all dining halls and cafeterias on campus, devised the new meal arrangements to accommodate students who are unable to eat at Free man and Blanton dining halls during normal hours.

Under the new policy, students can use their meal cards at the Rathskeller, Student Center Cafeteria and the Student Center Dining Room from 1:45 p.m. to 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. These times were chosen because they will cover the hours that the dining halls aren’t open, according to Beth Mellet, marketing director and dietician for Woods.

In order to use meal cards at the designated areas, students must present their card to the cashier upon purchasing food, and a deduction of one meal cost, $2.70, will be put towards each meal. If the food they buy costs more than $2.70, students must make up the difference on their own, according to Mellet.

Phyllis Stivara, a cashier at the Rathskeller, said that the new meal card policy was drawing larger numbers of students to the pizzaria each day. “Yesterday, we had 122 use their meal cards in here in two hours. Today, it was 92 in one hour. It’s really catching on,” she said on Tuesday.

“This will give students who miss meals because of conflicting classes more flexibility,” said Mellet. “It also gives those who are tired of eating at Blanton and Freeman an alternative.”

She added that students who normally eat in the Rathskeller, Student Center Cafeteria and the Student Center Dining Room will not face longer lines as a result of the policy, since the hours that meal cards can be used are normally low volume periods.

Clove Road fire relocates thirty students

By Lynn M. Cowan
Editor-in-Chief

An electrical fire in the Clove Road apartment complex on Aug. 23 damaged 15 apartments and necessitated the relocation of 30 residents to other on-campus housing. No residents were injured.

The fire, which began around 10:50 p.m., originated in the wiring of a faulty exhaust fan in apartment 102 B. The Little Falls fire department responded to the alarm and had it extinguished by 11:45 p.m.

Fire Marshall Domenick DiSimone said that the fire could have been smoldering for several hours before it was discovered by a resident in an adjoining apartment. "We're very lucky that the fire didn't happen during the normal school year," he said. "People often double park outside, and that would've hindered the fire equipment that came in."

Due to cancellations and voluntary doubling and tripling by other residents, on-campus arrangements have been made for the 30 Clove Road residents. The Residence Life Office also made special meal arrangements for the displaced students because Clove Road residents are not required to have meal plans.

Repairs are needed for fire and water damage to the roof of the complex, two stairwells and 15 apartments, six of which require complete gutting and rebuilding. There is no definite date set for completion of repairs on the apartments, but Ruth Lugo-Alverez, director of Residence Life, estimated that it could take anywhere from six weeks to the entire semester.

Harry S. Truman Scholarship

Sophomores interested in a career in government service at the federal, state, or local level are invited to apply for a 1990 Harry S. Truman Scholarship.

Established by Congress in 1975, the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation operates an ongoing educational scholarship program designed to provide opportunities for outstanding students in the United States with potential leadership ability to prepare for careers in government service.

In April 1990, the foundation will award 92 scholarships nationally. The deadline for all 1990 applications is Dec. 1, 1989.

Three students can be nominated for the 1990 competition.

The scholarship award covers eligible expenses up to $7,000 per year for the junior year, the senior year, and two years of graduate study.

To be eligible, a student must be a full-time sophomore working toward or planning to pursue a baccalaureate degree, have a B average or equivalent, stand in the upper fourth of the class, and be a United States citizen or United States national heading toward a career in government.

Interested students should submit a letter of application, a statement of career plans, a list of past public-service activities or other leadership positions, a current transcript, and a 600-word essay discussing a public policy issue of their choice to Dr. Rhoda K. Unger, Truman Scholarship faculty representative, 124 Russ Hall, by October 15, 1989.

SGA, faculty protest but planning continues

Association opposed any spending in excess of the 1988 bond proposal of $19.5 million.

A space audit revealed that more library capacity was a high priority. The original proposal was to fund $19 million worth of construction, including renovation of the old library building for use by classes and faculty. But the Master Planning Committee decided the building was wrong for that purpose and the cost of renovation and a new library would drain more than half of available funds. This plan became the "springboard" for the present master plan.

Thirty years of rapid expansion have produced haphazard growth of the college, placing some faculty offices at opposite ends from the classrooms where they teach and scattering popular classes, leaving units such as the Business School incoherent physically, according to the architects' report. Also, classroom/faculty office buildings on the other side of campus after relocating classes and offices in Russ and Chapin Halls to the new building. This will allow Russ and Chapin to revert to their original use by residents.

An earlier plan known as Plan B, included a new $8 million residence hall but would save $5 million elsewhere by proposing less new construction and spending slightly more on renovation. State and tuition-funded projects would be similar.

All other projects are to be funded by future issue of 30-year bonds through the New Jersey Educational Facilities Agency.

Architects revealed the three tentative plans last May in a public presentation. SGA Treasurer Tim Nee was there and later said if there was a consensus at that meeting it was that plan B is the only one the college can afford, calling it "grossly over budget."

"We are angry that students were allowed very little input," he said.

The Master Planning Committee selected Plan C in a meeting in May. SGA leaders said the student representative was not at that meeting. The Board of Trustees upheld its recommendation in a public meeting July 13.

President Mary Jane Linnehan, speaking on behalf of the student government, said in that meeting, "The students of Montclair State College had an absolutely inadequate consultation in regard to the decision to endorse Master Plan C, and were not officially informed of it until weeks after the decision had been discussed," she said, adding the committee's was reached "during a time when the availability of many interested students and faculty was restrained."

Richard Franke, who is president of the Montclair State Federation of College Teachers, said that assumptions made by the committee had been unrealistic, including the projection of $1 million in contributions over the next four years. The MSC Foundation has never exceeded $100,000 in any recent year, he said, adding tuition could become prohibitive for many students.

Mary Jane Linnehan said recently, "Financially there's three groups of students at MSC: poorer students who get aid, middle-class students who mostly finance their own education, and wealthy ones. The middle group would be hardest hit if tuition goes up sharply."

"President Reid has an excellent record in fund-raising for universities. He's got a good plan... It looks hopeful."
MSC students speak: coming back isn’t so bad

By Valerie Kalfrin
Features Editor

At the Student Center on any given afternoon, they are there. They come for work, for business, or just to hang out. And yes, they even like it here.

Whether coming to MSC for their first year, their last year, or anything in between, most students seem to think that going “back to school” isn’t all that bad.

Sounds strange, doesn’t it? The policies can change, the courses change, the faces change. Don’t attitudes change, too?

Freshmen seem to have the most awe. “It’s a lot better than high school,” said Danielle Marcantuono, who doesn’t feel any pressure about her first year at college. “They treat you more like adults here.”

Most of her peers seem to agree. “I like it so far,” said Marie Bosco. “A lot of people are friendly.”

“I think it’s fun,” said Jill Banasiak, who had only one complaint. “I don’t like economics at all.”

John DelVecchio had an easy solution. “I like all my classes,” he said. “I dropped the ones I didn’t.”

Joe Pankiewicz, starting his first year as a commuter, found two sides to college life. “I like the freedom I have,” he said. “Parking sucks. I got a ticket already.”

Seniors are anxious, but in a different sense. “I’m anxious to get out,” said Lenore Arias, an English major, who didn’t seem to be retrospective about her college career. “I just feel like the year’s going to be longer because it’s my last year here.”

Joe Drago, however, paused to reflect. “I think it’s wonderful. It’s been a fine four years.”

Joe Petrone took a more practical approach of the year ahead. “There’s a lot more people, it’s crowded, and there’s not enough parking.”

What about sophomores and juniors, who seem caught between the two? “It’s harder, because I was part-time last semester. Now I’m full time,” said one sophomore, who remains undeclared. “I like it, though. It wasn’t that bad coming back.”

Mimi Halkowich and seniors Jennifer Duester and John Puskar were content to look forward to more “Tequila Tuesdays.”

Peggy Bane, a junior on the five year program, seems anxious as well to “get out of this place and get a good career.”

“I came back to get a break from the summer,” she added. “It’s great to see my friends.”

Friends were one of the reasons Dave Lyons, a history major, transferred to MSC. “A lot of my friends are here,” he said, adding that he loves living on campus. “I’m getting around pretty easy, except for the line in the bookstore.”

Maybe the more things change, the more they stay the same.

The College Store
MSC’s new facelift

To the editor:

On July 13, 1989, the Board of Trustees approved a Master Facilities Plan, known as “Plan C” which is seven million dollars over budget.

The popular opinion around MSC during the spring semester of 1989 seemed to be for a plan called “Plan B” which would cost slightly over $22 million dollars. While this Plan is also over budget, it is clearly not as much over as Plan C.

While it is clear that Plan C does call for a more additional new building space, it is not clear that the college can cover the additional cost of $5 million dollars.

The college just asked for and got a tuition increase last Spring to cover normal operating cost. Now, while at a time when state government support for state college is low, the college wants to attempt a massively budgeted building plan.

The college claims it can meet the cost of Plan C with outside contributions. While our new College President, Dr. Irvin Reid, is rumored to be quite a fundraiser, I don’t know if he can raise the one million dollars the college is counting on to help cover the cost.

Also, the college has suddenly found $4 million dollars in “cash reserves” to help cover costs. Where was this $4 million dollars last spring when tuition was being raised?

If Plan C is begun and more tuition increases follow, will we be closing doors on students due to continually rising tuition costs?

The time is approaching when MSC’s working student will not have enough hours in the week to work for tuition money and go to school.

I think the bottom line is that Plan C was not looked into enough. I feel it was quickly voted on in the summer since this both provided for the absence of students and our new President to truly be part of the decision process.

If you, as a student, feel comfortable with the good possibility of a tuition increase, you can stop reading this editorial now.

But if you are a student who is truly concerned about cost that directly effects you...take action! Although Plan C has been approved, ground has not been broken. Until that point, the decision can be reversed. Write a letter to the editor of the Montclarion or your local paper expressing your concern. Write a letter to President Irvin Reid, or to the Board of Trustees of MSC.

If you do write to President Reid, do remember that he was not a part of the decision process; but he can help to overturn it.

Especially, write the New Jersey Board of Higher Education, since this organization can override the Board’s decision.

MSC needs to look into the future and clearly more building space should be a part of it. But, our visions into the future cannot exceed our pocketbooks.

We can’t allow students who have a right to a state education be forced out by new buildings. Plan B will allow tuition to remain where it is, allow students to stay in school, and allow MSC to build with plenty of extra space.

Timothy F. Nee
SGA Treasurer

The tragic hero: John McEnroe

Maryanne Griese
Contribution columnist

John McEnroe recently played at the US Open and his performance reminded me of a Greek tragedy.

An interpretation of life and its moral laws, Greek tragedy takes place in an open amphitheatre, as does a tennis match.

At the outset all promises to go well. As the game progresses, we see the hero is caught in a web that is woven by the gods.

The chorus becomes the stadium of approving or disapproving fans, yelling out advice or warning, praise or blame.

Tragedy must be centered around a familiar legend, and John’s story is well-known. It is simply that age catches up to us all. This inevitably happens to sports figures sooner than they are prepared to accept it.

They are questioned by the press and fans as to how long they can keep playing, while facing the toughest competition in the world. They are also confronted with their own doubts, receiving messages from their bodies that time is growing short.

I would suspect from John’s performance that it is sweeter for him now than ever before to play tennis at the championship level.

It was only as his game began to wane that he realized what it meant to him. Isn’t it also true for all of us that we only appreciate what we have once we are threatened to lose it? That is the stuff of a good tragedy.

The theme of tragedy is the fate of ancient heroes, with both good and evil in their character. Mac’s antics on court are considered evil by many, and his sin was that he took his talent for granted.

He won with an ease other players could not emulate, and he was the first to admit he never really spent the time he should have on his game. But he was young and other things beckoned.

As for the good, there is no player more courageous in defeat than McEnroe. He places the blame on no one else. He has a way of squarely facing his defeats, along with his personality faults: honesty.

In Greek tragedy, behind all the suffering and sin, there must be a redeeming quality, and for John it is his grace and style of never complaining about a loss.

There is always controversy where Mac is concerned. At one point during the games he told the press he would drop his pants on center court if Chang made it to the finals.

I think what I most like about John is that he is more human in public than most of us dare to be in private.

There were death threats, which added to the drama. When he was told, his only response was to play his match and win it.

John McEnroe is definitely an ancient hero. He is thirty years old, practically an old man in tennis.

However, it is also representative of the national consciousness to see that the fans get behind the aging players, rooting for them when before they would have soon rooted them.

This is the pattern as it becomes evident the battle they are fighting out there in the arena of Court One is the fundamental battle we must all fight in the end.

Mac is akin to one of the sons of the Gods. He won his first tournament at the age of seventeen killing off the previous title holder with an almost unnaturally natural talent.

This talent of his seemed to be a pure gift from the gods, with nuances and skill never before seen. He is considered to have the best set of hands in the game and to be the world’s top doubles player despite his age.

However, in the end the gods determine the hero’s fortune and that must never be forgotten. For the sin of not appreciating the talent that was bestowed on him, along with his uncoy behavior, he must suffer the consequences.

He was defeated by Stefan Edberg during the fourth game at Wimbledon, in his quest to recapture his title of five years ago.

Mac does have something in his favor that could save him from a tragic fate. He is developing character. This was evident at Wimbledon as he dispensed with his outbursts on court to a great extent.

He admits to having a problem with his temper during play and to needing more control of his energy in order to last the full game. This is all anyone can ask of themselves.

I hope this character growth can save him from the tragic consequences that befall Greek heroes who never show any sign of growth as outside forces work towards their destruction.

I hope he recaptures his title at Wimbledon.

Congratulations are in order for Carol Westfall, professor of textiles in the MSC Fine Arts Department. Westfall is exhibiting her piece “Crazy Quilt I” in Fibers and Textiles this bi-annual exhibit. The exhibit runs from Sept. 16 through Oct. 5 at Galleria, Pittsburgh.

It is a juried and invitational show designed to encourage the entry of works from living fiber artists from around the world. Artists from 46 states and 16 foreign countries submitted 1042 works; 72 pieces, including Westfall’s, were chosen.

The excitement, however, is at the International Textile Competition ’89 in Japan. Japan. Through a grant from Westfall’s, were chosen. Five non-Japanese judges conducted a strict, fair, and careful examination of the 1203 works submitted from 39 countries. One hundred and thirty-six works from 21 countries were selected.

The actual exhibition will be held at the Kyoto Municipal Museum of Art from Nov. 7 through Nov. 19. Final selections will be announced in mid-October.

Grand prize is $20,000. There are two $5,500 second prizes, two $3,000 third prizes and four $2,000 awards.

Westfall created “Crazy Quilt I & II by collaging torn computer-generated woven textures together onto fiberglass screening. The works were then painted with dyes and stitched with black silk thread onto the final surface. Westfall considers the works to be 20th-century facsimiles of the traditional American crazy quilt. After the exhibition, the piece will go on tour throughout Japan for the next year.

Young Seems Ageless

By Rob Campos
Correspondent

1989-The summer of love revisited has rehashed many of the bands from the Woodstock era such as the Rolling Stones, the Who, and the Greatful Dead. Another such performer is Neil Young, who played a sold-out concert at the Paladium on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 5 and 6.

Young, an unassuming Canadian whose music ranges from country-folk to modern-pop, went back to his roots by playing a solo acoustic set to an over-enthusiastic crowd, the size of which would have had the Fire Marshall going into conceptions.

Young played for more than an hour and a half with the vibrance and energy of a teenager trapped in the body of a man in his forties.

Unlike other bands that toured this summer, Young did not need a large back-up band to enforce his performance. He did it alone.

Venturing into the city without a ticket, I found fans to be similar to Deadheads. I was able to buy a ticket from someone at the concert for the box office price instead of going to a ticket scalper and paying ridiculous prices for seats or waiting on line for what seems to be an infinite amount of time. To add to the bargain, I saw a show that equaled any other band that played this summer.
Fine Arts: The Art Forum is held each Thursday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Calcia Fine Arts Building. On Sept. 14, Lawrence M. Gartel will discuss computer graphic art. Gartel has appeared in over 600 international magazines and in many collections. On Sept. 21, filmmaker Peter Hutton will present a program of his black and white silent films.

Theatre: Studio Theatre Series—Master Harold... And The Boys, a play by Athol Fugard, will be performed in the Studio Theatre Sept. 21-23 and 28-30 at 8 p.m. It is the touching story of a white South African schoolboy's relationship with the two black men who helped to raise him amid the controversy of Apartheid.

Players: John Pielmeier's Agnes of God will be performed in room 126 Wed. through Sat. at 8 p.m. Also at 2:15 p.m. on Fri. and Sat. A $2 donation goes to Multiple Sclerosis.

Music: Voices Of Change: American Music of Protest, Politics, And Persuasion. A series of concerts and lectures held at the Merkin Concert Hall at the Abraham Goodman House, 129 W. 67th St. NYC, west of Broadway. $15 per ticket at the door, student discounts available.

Humanities: The Power of the Word—A six-part series by Bill Moyers to be aired starting Wednesday, Sept. 20 at 10 p.m. It explores contemporary poetry, visiting locations as varied as Sing Sing prison, a college campus, a rural church in Mississippi, a bar in St. Louis, and a meeting of business executives in Iowa—sounds interesting!

Dance: A Particular Manner Of Movement
Look forward to some outrageous NY dance troops' performances at MSC.

Agnes of God is being presented by Players on Sept. 13 and 14 at 8 p.m. and Sept. 15 and 16 at 2:15 p.m. There is limited seating, so please call 893-5159 for reservations.

Paul McCartney

By Jon Max Green

Correspondent

"Maybe I'm Amazed," "Band On The Run," "The Long & Winding Road," and many more. I don't know about the rest of the world but I'm satisfied.

So, when people told me that McCartney was finished I wasn't sure that they were wrong. But apparently for Paul, accomplishing all he has along with the age of 40 wasn't enough.

To all his critics, Paul sends out his regards in the form of his new album, entitled, Flowers In The Dirt.

Right from the word 'go' he knew that he needed a fresh look at the music he wanted to put out. His own criticism to himself said that he had become too commercial and lacked heart. With that in mind, Paul surrounded himself with the right people.

For example, McCartney teamed up with Elvis Costello, the self-styled poet with enough heart for all. The result is fantastic. McCartney has captured the enthusiasm of the Ram album with the heart of Wings Over America.

On the whole, Paul's new album is just what he needed, with successes such as "My Brave Face," "You Want Her Too," and my favorite, "Put It There." This album is top shelf and shouldn't be left behind on your next trip to the music store. Paul McCartney has definitely shown that he doesn't need to prove himself.

Winter On Sports

As the 1989 baseball season comes to a close, it seems like the New York Mets will not earn an invitation to baseball's post season party. The Met style of play over the last three weeks can best be described as sluggish and lackadaisical. If the Mets continue to show only minimal signs of life for the remaining few games, you can expect to see many new faces wearing Met uniforms next season.

Players such as Gary Carter, Keith Hernandez, and Bobby Ojeda are the most likely candidates to be playing elsewhere next season. While Carter and Hernandez are at the end of their playing careers, Ojeda could still have some trade value in Detroit, Seattle, or even California.

For Darryl Strawberry, his long time wish to play for a west coast team may become a reality. After promising Met fans a monster season, Strawberry has put up numbers that would make Dave Kingman smile. Mets GM Frank Cashen was also disappointed in Strawberry's inability to provide leadership to a ballclub that needed someone to look up to when Hernandez and Carter were down with injuries. Maybe Cashen might look to unload Strawberry in the off season.

Did you really think that the new-look Dallas Cowboys would have a chance to beat the Saints last week? Jimmy Johnson who took over the controls as Cowboy head coach this year, might have to spend this season laying down the groundwork in order to return Dallas back to their winning ways.

Any football fan knows that one game does not make a season, but inexperience may be the Cowboys own worst enemy. Jimmy Johnson's Cowboys are not quite ready to challenge the upper echelon of the NFL just yet, but he wouldn't have taken the job if he didn't think he could turn the Cowboys around. After all, he does have the likes of Troy Aikman, Herschel Walker, and Mike Irvin on his roster. All three of these players will be Johnson's cornerstone enroute to bringing a winner back to Dallas.

Johnson's previous accomplishments at Oklahoma State and the University of Miami speak for itself. It won't happen tomorrow, but don't be surprised if you see Dallas on top of the NFC East by 1992.

Rejo Ruotsalainen, Walt Poddubny, and Sylvain Turgeon have returned to the Metropolitan area.

Rejo Ruotsalainen is returning from playing in Europe after leaving the NHL a few years back. The ex-Ranger and Oiler is well known in the league for his point shot, speed, and puck handling ability. This should add life and quickness to the Devils' power play. The defensesman's explosiveness is something the Devils are lacking.

Ex-Ranger, All-Star Walt Poddubny has returned to the Hudson River Bank, but this time on the Jersey side. I feel, Walt Poddubny will score 50 goals and finally feel at home in New Jersey. Welcome home, Walt.

Sylvain Turgeon is coming to the Devils from the Hartford Whalers in Hartford, Connecticut. Turgeon has been labeled as a player who is talented, but not living up to potential and lazy. Sometimes talent is just not enough. Take Brendan Shanahan, for example.

Shanahan was picked number one by the Devils and was loaded with talent, evident by his scoring record in the Juniors. Not only could he score but he was big and still growing. So when Shanahan did not explode and put 40 pucks in the net, no one understand it—because of all his talent.

Shanahan, in the second half of last year, did begin to score and utilize the talent he obviously has. But what did Shanahan do differently that he had not done the previous year and a half? Jim Schoenfield probably helped his mental attitude. If you have all the physical talent in the world and the mental game is not in order, it will not work. So let's see how Turgeon reacts to the positivity and hard working atmosphere the Devils team and organization demands. Addressing the label of laziness is simple. Jim Schoenfield and teammates do not do things half speed.

This is an exciting time in New Jersey for hockey fans. The Devils are expected to win and now have the players and coaching staff needed to do so. Let's go Devils.

Women's volleyball introduced

By Robin Weber
Correspondent

This year, volleyball at Montclair State College becomes official. Coach Willie Rucker believes the team will show themselves as quite competent the New Jersey Conference, feeling that they will do better than 500, which is "great for a new team."

There are only three ladies returning from last year's team. They are Jacqueline Martinez, Tracey Burke (Sr.), also an asset to the team,

Pura Mejia (Fr.) who is said to be an amazing defensive blocker, Christine Reiner (Sr.) who proved her skill last season, Sandra Sanchez (Sr.), Maureen Shanahan, (Sr.), Kelly Sprague, Jo Ellen Zamos (Jr.), and Tracey Burke (Sr.).

This year the women will prove they are worthy of the varsity standing that they have received. Their apparent professionalism aside, the team could use the support of the student body to help with their success in the future.
Hawks lose

By Michael Walmsley
Sports Editor

As you were catching your last ray of sun this summer, the Montclair State Red-Tailed Hawks football season was getting underway.

The Hawks (6-1) started their quest for the New Jersey Athletic Conference title with a penalty-filled loss to Division II Central Connecticut in an away game on Saturday, Sept. 2. MSC lost the game 24-6.

The Hawks showed some promise both on offense and defense. On offense, MSC received a strong passing performance from junior quarterback Ed Baffige. Baffige threw for 264 yards on completing 24 of 50 passes and one touchdown. The 15-yard touchdown pass was thrown to co-captain wide-out Antonio Fuentes. The extra point failed because of a poor snap and hold.

On defense, Coach Giancola had to be pleased with the plays of defensive linemen Paul Cioffi and Mike Murphy. Cioffi, an All-American from Marlboro High School, collected 17 tackles that included one sack of Central Connecticut quarterback Eric Valentine.

Mike Murphy of Belleville had a good defensive game as well. Murphy added two quarterback sacks of his own to the final total of 6 sacks Montclair State had on the day.

But the deciding factor in the game was penalties and turnovers. The Hawks were whistled for 11 penalties that totaled 112 yards. And the ball was turned over to Central Connecticut four times, two by interception and two fumbles. These two factors were the difference in the game.

Coach Giancola and staff will have the team ready to play this Saturday in an away game against East Stroudsburg. For game information and transportation call the Athletic Department at 893-5249.

Don't miss MSC's first away game of the season-ride the fan bus to the game! The Red Hawks will be playing East Stroudsburg, on Sept. 16, so call campus recreation, at 893-7493 for fan bus information. The cost is $5 for students and $10 for non-students.

Hawk logo contest

By Michael Walmsley
Sports Editor

Stage two of the MSC nickname change is about to get underway.

On the heels of last month's change from Indians to "Red Hawks," which was accomplished with an on-campus suggestion contest, the second and third contests of a planned four will officially begin on Thursday, September 7.

The second contest will be to determine the official logo for MSC athletics, while the third contest will be to design a cartoon character Hawk for use at home games and on souvenirs.

The Red Hawk logo contest is open to any artist or graphic designer. Greg Lockard, the Director of Athletics, said the logo should be of a traditional format. "The first contest will be to choose a formal logo, while the final contest will be to determine a cartoon-like rendition," he said.

One prize of $400 will be awarded for the top drawing selected in each contest. The format will be as follows:

Each artist should submit a maximum of three sketches for each contest.

The top three drawings will be chosen and each artist will then submit a "final version."

The winner will be chosen from the final three. Montclair will retain all rights to each logo.

All submissions should be sent to Sports Information Director, Al Langer. The address is: Athletics, Montclair State College, Upper Montclair, NJ 07043. The entries must reach his office no later than Sept. 21, 1989. For further information, call 893-5249 during normal work hours.

MSC introduces new mascot

By Michael Walmsley
Sports Editor

The Intercollegiate Athletics Committee at MSC has made it official. After over two years of contemplation and over three months of deliberation, the new nickname representing all of the college's athletics will be "Red-Tailed Hawks.

The nickname, which is easily shortened to Red Hawks, was one of over 120 suggestions submitted by Montclair faculty, staff, and student organizations in early May. After many meetings to narrow down the choices, which included various originalities such as "The Dino-saurs," "The Jersey Tomatoes," and "The Firecrackers," Red Hawks was chosen out of a final field of four. The three other finalists were Eagles, Cardinals, and Falcons.

"The name Red Hawks, a bird very common in the state of New Jersey, will become a fine replacement for Indians," said Greg Lockard, Montclair's Director of Athletics. "It is a beautiful, majestic animal that will do nothing but enhance Montclair's already proud athletic tradition."

The red-tailed hawk, the second most common hawk in New Jersey behind the broad-winged hawk, is not an endangered species, and can be seen quite frequently in the winter months within the trees off Route 80. In fact, every fall and spring, the Audubon Society of New Jersey conducts what is known as the Montclair Hawk Watch at the Mills Reservation in Upper Montclair. For the past four years, according to NJ Audubon Magazine, it has been the best spot in all of all the northeastern United States to observe a large number of hawk species, including the red-tailed.

The decision, however, was not without expense. Because the word "Indians" was on the basketball court and on the football field, contractors were hired to resurface the floor in Panzer Gymnasium. Sprague Field, the football stadium, also received a new astroturf surface, and the Hawks' name can be seen in bold letters on one endzone.
