Pimentel and Garcia win homecoming

First LASO-sponsored king and queen

By Lynn M. Cowan
Editor-in-Chief

MSC's first Hispanic homecoming king and queen received their crowns at last Saturday's football game. "I felt really good, like I had a lot of support," said Garcia after the game. "I'm very honored. This is the first time that LASO has nominated a queen." Garcia, whose parents were born in Puerto Rico, said that she felt good that she was the first Hispanic queen elected.

Pimentel said that he was undecided about entering the contest until his fraternity, Sigma Phi Rho, and his girlfriend convinced him to. Pimentel, who was born in the Dominican Republic, said he was surprised that he had won the crown. "I entered late, so I didn't have time to put up much publicity. I only hung about ten posters," he said.

Lynde and Waters fill newly created provost and deputy posts

By Carl Chase
News Editor

The appointments of Richard A. Lynde as provost and vice president for academic affairs and Gregory L. Waters as deputy provost and associate vice president for academic affairs took effect Oct. 1, signaling a broadened scope of responsibility for the college's pair of senior academic officers.

Lynde, with 18 years of experience at MSC as a chemistry professor, dean of the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences and vice president for academic affairs, most recently served the college as acting president. A resident of Basking Ridge, N.J., he holds a Ph.D. degree in inorganic chemistry from Iowa State University and a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Hamilton College.

Lynde, formerly the vice president for academic affairs, will serve in his expanded role as the senior executive reporting to the president. In this job, he will coordinate efforts among the other senior executives responsible for campus-wide planning, collective bargaining, enrollment management and personnel functions.

He also will serve as acting president in President Ivan Read's absence.

Waters will assist the new provost in all of these areas while continuing to carry out his duties as associate vice president for academic affairs.

He won the crown. "I entered late, so I didn't have time to put up much publicity. I only hung about ten posters," he said.

Clove Road arrest made

By Anthony DiPasquale
Staff Writer

Six to eight campus police officers patrolling the Clove Road apartments during Homecoming festivities made one arrest while seizing cases of beer, breaking up parties, checking identification, and dispersing the crowd in an "organized squad," witnesses said.

"We anticipated larger crowds this year and took active measures to ensure the safety of students," said Phillip Calibre, director of campus police and security. "Someone has to take control and look out for the safety of our college community and make sure it adheres to policies.

One Clove Road Apt. resident was arrested and has since been suspended from school. The student has been charged with disorderly conduct, and was unavailable for comment.

Bob Gilbert, a senior and Clove resident, said, "I was just standing outside my apartment drinking iced tea when the mob of rent-a-cops grabbed my arm and twisted it, spilling my mug and walking away. When I asked my roommate to be a witness, they said it was my fault and if I said another word he would be arrested."

"They ruined homecoming," senior Jim McKeown said. "They came to my apartment twice, pounding on the door demanding entry. By the second time they decided to (check our documents for a party) but there were only 15 people here, all over 21, with several alumni. Then the head guy came in and decided it was alright and they left."

I was harassed for just walking to my apartment," said Dan Grabicki. "They heard music coming from my place so they followed me to my apartment and physically forced their way in. When they saw only ten people there they said it was alright."

Calibre said he was unable to discuss the arrest, and that there were only two registered parties Saturday night. All the rest were illegal according to policies, he said.

Edward Martin, dean of students, said he was unaware of student discontent with the Homecoming proceedings and felt that it was "the best homecoming MSC has ever had."

"Our concern was with the students," said Martin. "We didn't want to have a mob scene, and the campus is generally dryer this year so the campus police were there to enforce the laws of New Jersey."

Students interviewed at Clove Road said their rights of privacy were violated, and if they are twenty-one they are allowed to drink freely without harassment according to school policy.

"Campus police should have been doing things to do than walk around showing off, wasting our money and their time when there are more serious problems on campus than students trying to have fun on Homecoming," Gilbert said.

Freshman killed in weekend auto accident

By Lynn M. Cowan
Editor-in-Chief

An MSC freshman was killed last Saturday night in a car crash in New Milford. Matthew Cameleno, 18, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident. No other MSC students were involved; however, three other passengers in the car were critically injured, according to a report in The Bergen Record.

Cameleno, a psychology major and a resident of Bergenfield, was a passenger in a 1989 Chevrolet Camaro that spun out of control for unknown reasons on the Boulevard in New Milford. The crash occurred at 9:55 p.m.

Police found no evidence of drugs or alcohol at the scene, but the crash is still under investigation, according to The Record.

Campus Police Report

Student arrested at Clove Rd.

By Maureen P. McGuire
Assistant Assignment Editor

One MSC student was arrested on Oct. 8 at the Clove Road apartments after campus police attempted to control a crowd of hundreds who were standing around drinking.

Sgt. Debra Newcombe of campus police said the male appeared very intoxicated and was arrested for acting in a threatening and violent manner after officers confronted several people who were drinking in public at 12:45 a.m.

Everyone cooperated with police except for this student, Newcombe said, when they attempted to remove people from the area who didn’t belong there. Police asked them to move on to avoid any incidents from happening and to keep control of the area. Newcombe said police usually patrol the Clove Road apartments during football games to maintain order and watch for underage drinkers. She said they also patrol tailgate areas.

In an unrelated incident, police responded to a call of a female yelling for help at the Clove Road apartments at 3:30 a.m. on Oct. 7. When they arrived they found an allegedly intoxicated male dressed only in shorts who was acting violently.

Police investigated and found that the male had been beating up his girlfriend, a resident, when her roommate and her roommate’s boyfriend walked into the apartment and intervened. The male was arrested and charged with three counts of assault, one count of disorderly conduct and one count of criminal mischief. A court date has been set for Oct. 25.

One MSC student was arrested on Oct. 8 at the Clove Road apartments after campus police attempted to control a crowd of hundreds who were standing around drinking. She then followed them to Lot 13 but lost them in the crowd of people attending the football game.

Police received a report that three tables had been stolen from the Blanton Hall dining area between 4 p.m. on Oct. 7 and 6 a.m. on Oct. 9. The tables were found in lot 17.

AFT updates on contract negotiations

By Monica Glina
Correspondent

The MSC Federation of College Teachers' general union meeting yesterday featured an update on contract negotiations and the fiscal future of MSC faculty, professional staff and librarians.

Dr. Catherine Becker of the Curriculum and Teaching Department, and president of the American Federation of Teachers local 1904, said in a pre-meeting interview that most union members at MSC feel that the proposed four percent increase over three years is too little.

She said that some staff members regret leaving their positions at public elementary and high schools to work for the state, which she said "isn't offering salaries to accommodate the yearly increase in the cost of living." She also questioned the institution's ability to attract qualified faculty without being able to offer them competitive salaries.

Becker suggested a re-evaluation of the present tax structure in N.J. "New Jersey is definitely in a poor fiscal situation. But does this mean 'nothing for the faculty'? All we ask for is a middle class salary reflective of our job," she said.

Dr. Richard Franke, vice-president of the local, said that according to a Princeton University study last month, instructors in higher education got increases averaging zero percent over the period from 1960 to 1984, compared with one percent for equivalent private-sector employees.

He added that the 40,000-member Communication Workers of America, which represents secretaries, clerks and typists in state offices, are in the midst of negotiations to reach an agreement on Oct. 24. "Because they're such a large union we feel their contract may have an effect on what they offer us," he said.

Becker said if "something doesn't give soon," the union will set a strike deadline, and she expects to have more information next Monday.

"Dick, with Greg as his deputy, will assist me in completing a variety of internal projects that only relate to the traditional duties of the chief and associate academic affairs officers in an indirect way," Reid said in making the announcement.

Reid said the changes will aid progress on time-consuming projects, including "the realization of MSC as a 'global' campus with strong programs in international studies and foreign student and faculty exchanges.

Also in coming months Reid will launch a number of development and fund raising projects, including preparations for a capital campaign, strengthening ties to the college's alumni association, and revitalizing the MSC Foundation Board for its important role in bolstering contributions to the Annual Fund.

Lifelong learning programs for non-traditional students and greater attention on issues of quality and assessment in the educational program are other major directions expected to require the president's intimate involvement.

What? Take a look at Ramapo or Kean?

Consortium offers new course opportunities

By John Frieberg
Correspondent

Can't find a course you need at MSC? Don't worry. You can take it somewhere else, and get credit for it elsewhere.

The newly-established Consortium of Northern New Jersey State Colleges will surely prove to be a convenient and scholastic change for the better for students not only at MSC, but at Jersey City State, Ramapo, William Paterson, and Kean as well.

Students now have the option of taking credit courses at colleges which may be more easily accessible to them. More importantly, students will be able to enroll in courses which may be full at their own school, or at a college which may have a stronger curriculum in a certain area.

If you're asking, "How will I be able to benefit from this new program," take a look at the brief profile below of each of the schools involved in the consortium (with the exception of our fine institution, which, if you don't know already, is known for its fine arts and its foreign language department).

The official position of the schools themselves for the most part is that all classes they offer are good. The opinions expressed here, however, were taken from some students as well as faculty members.

Jersey City State College:
Located in Jersey City, its criminal justice program is particularly strong, but one would be wise to look into special education courses here as well as the undergraduate art program.

Ramapo College:
Located in Mahwah, its reputation lies in the area of business. At the risk of incriminating confidential contacts, here are some specific classes that have good reputations on campus: any accounting class with Ray Ragoli, marketing classes with Schwartz, and Perspective in Business or Business Ethics with Bond.

William Paterson College:
Any fine arts course offered at this Wayne college should agree with anyone interested in music (especially jazz) and theater. Its English department has a strong reputation with students as well.

Kean College:
Located in Union, this college seems to specialize in the areas of occupational and physical therapy. Other courses in interior design and in the English department have a good reputation also.

Of M*A*S*H* and me:
Larry Linville speaks

By Maryann Griese
Correspondent

...Suicide is painless, it brings on many changes.

For 11 seasons, *M*A*S*H* chronicled the adventures in an army hospital, the 4077th, during the Korean War, Last Thursday night, in a lecture sponsored by CLUB, Larry Linville brought his character, Major Frank Burns, to the MSC campus.

He showed an unclipped episode of the series, and shared some anecdotes such as "Hot Lips was good, but not that good!" and how he got his famous nickname "Ferret Face."

Linville appears strikingly different than the character he played in the series, as seen through his own words.

His background: "I've been a pilot since I was twelve years old. I was going to fly space shuttles and jets and all sorts of wonderful things, but then I turned out to be color blind and couldn't. The weird thing is I'm actually where I belong, though I thought I was going to be somewhere else. I'm doing exactly what I should be doing and I'm enjoying the hell out of myself."

His work: "We mess around with illusions in this business. We create them and have to believe them to a certain extent to make them viable to others. So it's dress up and mess about and tell some lies and amuse people. When it's effective, then you've done something artistic. But you tend to get carried away with illusions in this business."

His interests: "Fun to me is learning or doing something interesting out of simple curiosity, and it doesn't have to have any other reason than that, then I'm okay."

Fraternity’s care package sends aid to Hugo’s victims

By Jo Leonard
Correspondent

Winds raged at 140 mph and torrents of rain fell on terrified men, women, and children. Once the horror had passed, 30,000 people had lost their homes and an estimated 50 people had lost their lives. Those left to pick up the pieces may have been afraid, but they were not alone.

On Monday, Sept. 18, Hurricane Hugo added Puerto Rico to its fast-growing list of victims. Not since Hurricane Frederic in 1979 had a storm caused so much chaos and damage, spreading destruction through the Caribbean and along the coast from Florida to Canada. In Puerto Rico alone, 80% of the homes in a 33-mile stretch lost their roofs, almost 100% of San Juan's buildings were damaged, and 75% of the Caribbean National Forest was destroyed. Damage is estimated around $300 million.

Phi Beta Sigma, one of MSC's Community Service Fraternities, sprang into action in Hugo's wake and immediately set to work organizing food aid for the Puerto Rican victims.

With crates at the ready, members visited dorm rooms in Bohn, Blanton, and Freeman, searching for tuna, soup, ravioli, meat sauce, milk, juice — anything canned and edible.

"We filled six crates with cans within a couple of hours," said Eric Jaffe, president of Phi Beta Sigma. "Everyone, without exception, gave food away. I think when people see that they can help in such a direct way, they offer far more than if they're just asked to donate money." The effort was made in conjunction with the United Parcel Service, who volunteered to transport the goods to Puerto Rico completely free of charge.

"All in all it was a great success," Jaffe said. "This fraternity is constantly involved in community service projects, but in this case, help was needed yesterday. We moved as quickly as we could to help the Puerto Rican community."

Other campus organizations demonstrated this concern as well. The Latin American Student Organization put together a relief drive of cash donations, and Charles J. Cedenio of the purchasing department organized the MSC Fund Raising Committee for Puerto Rico and the Caribbean, a campus-wide group that has established a hotline and a bank account in the name of the students, fa...

A damnedest collage of notes about people and their stories. I could write a set of detective novels about N.Y. that would make people's hair stand on end.

M*A*S*H*: "The writer loved the character because he could get away with anything. Anytime they got bored writing the other parts, they'd bring Frank in and do whatever they pleased. 'Ferret Face' came out of something I did on the show. We had a scene where they snuck out and I popped up. I looked around and went out the door after them. They watched the film the next day and said I looked like a goddamn weasel. They all laughed like crazy and 'Ferret Face' was born...

"It was a very high-pressure family, like any family — hugs and kisses and fights all at the same time. The one person out of all whom I admired the most, and had the greatest rapport with, was Harry Morgan. I've never met a person in my life who was so responsible, fair-minded, humorous, impervious to disaster, and so capable of what he did simultaneously. The man is extraordinary."

Leaving M*A*S*H*: "In five years I put away 125 episodes, the equivalent of 27 motion pictures back to back. It was excessive. I had to leave. I have my fate; the show has its own. "I don't get sentimental about it because it was damn hard work and extraordinary hours. I went to the party at the final show, and Charles Winchester Reilly III, who succeeded Frank Burns, said, 'You didn't leave me a hell of a lot when you left' and I said, 'I didn't intend to!'"

His life: "It's been a circus, with lions and tigers and elephants and monkeys and bears and all kinds of things. Now I want to do something I've never done before. "A lot of people are nostalgic and living in the past. To me the past is over. All I know is that what you think you should be might change. Don't be afraid of something unusual. Go and investigate what interests you — you can still come back."

culty, staff, and administration at the college.

Jaffe thanked everyone who donated even the smallest can to Phi Beta Sigma's relief effort, and said that each donation was sent directly to those most in need.

He cited teamwork as the main reason for their success, a sentiment which may be echoed by the other relief organizers as well. "Teamwork made this project as successful as we'd hoped it would be, and that's what it's all about," he said.

Homecoming fun ends on sour note

Homecoming was again a great success this year. The parade was wonderful, as usual, and our home team scored a tremendous victory over Kean. Morale was high and school spirit shone like never before.

The thrill of spending a beautiful Saturday at the parade along with the victorious evening at the stadium gave some people a reason to celebrate. However, the festive feelings quickly turned to indignation and anger when the campus police showed up at victory gatherings, especially those at Clove Road.

It is a rule at MSC that all parties at Clove must be registered in advance and that having more than ten people in your apartment at a time is a "party" despite their purpose for being there.

This rule is clear and one really cannot complain that campus police have no right to be at Clove on Saturday night because of the volume of partiers that were running around. Some students, like Norm, have already served in the armed forces. After that he drove a tractor trailer for a couple of years and is now working in a youth group home, while majoring in English. He wants to be a high school teacher and work with kids.

There's Nick who was a construction worker for quite a few years. He decided he wanted a degree in philosophy and got one this past May. He worked in construction during the summer, and every other chance he got, to pay for his full-time studies.

Some students have been home with their children return to school to prepare themselves for another career when their children are grown. Gladys, in the philosophy/religion department, has seven grown children and is getting her degree to teach religion on the high school level.

For those women who have just begun to raise their children, the school provides day care service. Imagine getting to campus after finding a parking space AND bringing a couple of pre-schoolers to the day care center!

Most returning students are career-oriented, but not all. Quite a few are taking courses to enrich their lives. If you talk with them though, you will discover what they all have in common is how highly they value their education.

Jim, who owns a hardware store, signs up for an art course every semester, and there is the woman in her senior years who attends a Saturday morning literature class. She has been taking classes since 1969.

The Second Careers Program, run by Dr. Alicia Savage, offers assistance and guidance to older students, offering workshops to help with the transition. Returning students I have spoken with feel the need for this service, but can’t always spare the time.

That is the complaint I heard most from non-traditional students: the lack of time.

One suggestion I was given, and I think it’s a good one, is that the school should offer more classes twice-weekly, which would both save time and lighten up the parking problem. Also, many told me they would like to find a way to meet other students and interact with them outside class, but have jobs and family responsibilities that make this difficult.

However, most agree that the students are friendly and accepting of them. They tell how other students often come to them for missed assignments or notes, knowing how serious they are about their work.

Speaking for myself, I have had some wonderful experiences with students. They’ve told me they like having another perspective in the classroom. Sometimes there are handshakes, other times hugs and kisses on the cheek at the end of a semester when we realize we may not see each other any more.

Once we had to introduce ourselves in a class, telling what we had been doing before coming to MSC. I said I was home raising my family. The class applauded. What a special moment that was!

Philippine resentment of U.S. military presence

It was much more than a routine leftist dust-up behind the flag-burning, anti-Pentagon demonstrations that greeted Vice President Dan Quayle in Manila on Sept. 27. Deeper, broader and rational resentment was present. A majority of the Philippine Senate, a coalition of church leaders, and a wide sampling of citizen groups have formed into a large foot poised to kick the U.S. military out of this former Pacific colony.

The 1947 agreement that sanctions Clark Air Base, Subic Naval Base and several smaller garrisons ends in 1991. Quayle, sounding like a professor tutoring a class of dullards, delivered a patronizing message in Manila: “I hope that the people of the Philippines understand and appreciate...the sense of stability that being a nobody on the FM dial...mayed when they heard music and listeners in general.

In February, 1988, we were one of the first stations to play music of different tastes of various groups on campus.” They also disliked the format of “New Music,” which they felt was too alternative for mainstream listening.

In February, 1988, we were one of the first stations to play a record that featured four African-Americans playing a cross between heavy metal and funk. Boy, they were weird, and they had a funny name too—Living Colour!

Today, we are playing material from new artists that we feel will be popular in the new future. Once again, they Might Be Giants, Sarah McLachlan, and local talent such as Vic Hennegar, Catania, and Maximum America in mind. Sure, we don’t always play material that is mind-blowing, but then again, I don’t think that those major rock stations on the FM dial are doing a great job either. These stations seem to think that the Eighties no longer exist.

The “reviewers” also seemed to think that a block format that accommodated different forms of music at different times would improve WMSC—FM listenership. Well, before 1988, we had just that, and where was the audience—elsewhere. As a DJ, how would you like to be hosting a New Age show and in the middle of a George Winston piano solo someone calls in and requests Motorhead?

The listeners were confused because there was no direction and no stability in the programming. Since we implemented the “New Music” format, we have received a greater than 1% share rating in the Arbitron ratings, not bad for a ten watt radio station that is only heard in Essex, Passaic, and Bergen counties. Obviously, people are listening—off campus.

WMSC—FM does feature other forms of music on the weekends. On Saturdays we have a show on the weekends. On Sundays it features folk, jazz, classical, and my New Age show, which is one of the only ones on the FM dial.

Do we want to be a conformist or a pioneer? Personally, I’d rather be a pioneer! The Montclarion seems to believe that it knows something about radio, but one cannot ignore the facts. The goal of a radio station is to be different from all of the other radio stations on the FM band. WMSC—FM has done this, and in the meantime, has over and over again maintained a constant rate of listenership. The October 5th article and the previous articles show your lack of concern for your fellow organizations on campus. Stop complaining and start listening!! You may just hear something interesting.

WMSC claims to be pioneers in radio broadcasting

To the Editor:

On October 5, 1989, an editorial was written complaining about the (military) facilities on campus. The “reviewers” believed that WMSC should “accommodate the different tastes of various groups on campus.” They also disliked the format of “New Music,” which they felt was too alternative for mainstream listening.

As a member of WMSC—FM for nearly three years, I have seen WMSC come from being a nobody on the FM dial to a station that is well respected by bands, record companies, and listeners in general.

The “reviewers” were dismayed when they heard music that they never heard of before. Well, have you heard of The Cure, The Young Gods, or The Mekons? No less than five years ago, people thought these bands would never make it big. Now, they all have had Top Forty singles.

An extension of the military-bases agreement.

While this mental-health debate is questioned, debates advanced by the visiting congressional delegations, as well as the Bush administration, keep relapsing into weakness. The U.S. military is in the Philippines, it is said, for reasons of national defense, protecting air and sea lanes—“regional security”—and enhancing the native economy.

Clark and Subic have defended nothing. In the three years of the Korean War and the eleven of the Vietnam War, they were used for offensive air strikes. The Soviets have a base at Cam Ranh Bay in Vietnam, but because of comparative smallness, its threat to either the Philippines or the United States is minimal. The Philippine government has offered to close it if the United States, in exchange, agrees to leave the Philippines.

On the issue of the bases bolstering the local economy, about 42,000 Filipinos are employed at the bases. In 1985, the average annual salary was $2,000. In “The Sovereignty Quest—Freedom From Foreign Military Bases,” Ed Garcia and Francisco Nemenzo, both political-science professors at the University of the Philippines, describe in detail the potential benefits of economic conversion. Clark’s land is fit for an agricultural-industrial complex, with Subic suited for heavy industry and ship repair.

The Aquino government, which has made tentative starts for land reform, has commissioned a study on the feasibility of placing 125,000 acres of Clark Air Base for farming. This is a country desperate for food and jobs.

President Corazon Aquino, striving mightily but still overwhelmed by managing a nation fractured by poverty, debt, rebel factions, a conviving military and the legacy of Marcos, has yet to take a position on the bases. She has agreed to “talks” with the Bush administration. A healthier approach than talking might be listening—to her own citizens. Collectively, they are a voice calling out for independence, for a demilitarized Philippines. Without that, the whole nation might as well be a U.S. base.

“If we look back 300 to 400 years,” Karl Gaspar, a theologian who has written, “the struggle of the Filipino people began generations ago—against the Spaniards, against the Americans, against the Japanese, against the Americans again, and the politicians, and Marcos—it’s been a long history of struggle. And the struggle continues.”

Sports ed. retaliates

To the Editor:

This is Mike Walsmey, your humble Montclarion sports editor speaking. I understand some were not happy with my review of B.A.D.'s performance at MSC last month. I am truly sorry. I haven't slept in a week.

Imagine me, a sports editor (a form of life lower than pond scum) expressing my opinion about a musical event. What came over me?? I mean, what do I know!!

Sure, I said the crowd seemed to be loving it - I've seen crowds loving it at Debbie Gibson concerts and Ku Klux Klan meetings but hasn't make it good, it does?

You said if I wanted to hear old Clash songs, I should have stayed home and listened to old albums. Did you see the review of the show in the Star Ledger?

Seems Mick Jones had to stop the show on several occasions to stop people from requesting old Clash songs. Looks like I wasn't the only one who wanted to hear them.

And how about the review in Friday's New York Post about B.A.D.'s performance at the club Roseland last week?? Referring to selections from the new album "Megaplot Phoenix", Ira Robbins called them "...less than exciting. A pounding haze of rhythm drowned out most of the subtlety and structure, leaving just the resounding beat... chunks of the 90-minute set proved tedium."

Gee, sounds like me, doesn't it? You don't think he read my review last week, do you?

Student support needed by C1C

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to the recent article written about Class One Concerts, "Class One Concerts Loses Thousands," that was in the Montclarion on 9/28/89.

C1C is a non-profit organization of the SGA and like other Class Ones we tend to lose money on major performances.

The main goal of our organization is to provide musical entertainment to the campus at a cheaper cost than students would pay at a regular concert.

We also provide students with opportunity to learn about all aspects of the music industry with hands-on experience that will provide useful for them in their own personal music careers.

I feel that we did a good job. I would like to thank the SGA Executive Board for all of their help through out the long process of paperwork.

I feel that the Montclarion staff should support other Class One activities rather than over estimate failures. I hope in the future we will be more successful than with our Big Audio Dynamite Concert.

I would also like to clarify our process for selecting the bands we will have here on campus. We get availability for our open dates and present them to our general membership. We then vote on which band we think would be the most successful here at MSC.

Anyone is allowed to become a member of our organization, including members of other classes. I suggest that anyone who feels we are not being successful in our selection of music for this campus attend one of our meetings on an Thursday at 4 pm in the Student Center Cafeteria B.

We are in the process of searching for a possible band for December. I hope that the Montclarion will be supportive of our selection and write about us on the front page of your paper when we have our next sell out show.

Greeks’ many goals

To some, the letters of Alpha, Beta, or Chi, may be the succession of the Greek Alphabet. To many, however, these Greek letters represent one of their most valuable and memorable experiences of college.

Fraternities and sororities offer the opportunity to become part of a smaller group, meet people who can be very constructive - Greek organizations offer, in addition to facilitating leadership skills and extracurricular experiences.

As we can see, striving to experience a renewal of Greek life. New sororities and fraternities of local and national status are being formed, and those organizations who have been part of MSC are experiencing great recruitment.

Over the summer, general OWLS (freshman orientation workshop leader) were part of Greek organizations. During this past extremely successful Homecoming Week, fraternities and sororities accounted for almost half of the participation in CLUB's Lip Sync and in the Homecoming Parade.

Their involvement in campus activities is becoming an integral part of campus life. The "Animal House" image of fraternities and sororities portrayed through movies and the media, does not do justice to the Greek system. Aside from social events, Greek organizations are also mandated to perform community service.

Many engage in fundraising, which supports various community agencies. The enthusiasm in these organizations improves these events successful.

The philosophy of the Greek system, which supports brotherhood and organizational unity, is one that can be modeled by other organizations as well. In recent years, MSC's Greek Council has undergone structure and commitment to revise in attempt to improve the rich heritage of the Greek community.

If efforts could all be channelled in working mutually, the Greek role on campus could escalate at an even stronger. Whether a traditional group, or newly founded, a national or a locally chartered group, remember your common roots, and keep the lines of dialogue going.

WMSC: Teaching not entertaining

To the Editor:

I have a few issues to bring up with your paper's style of "attacking" other student groups.

I am under the impression that you feel yourselves to be the self-appointed guardians of the interest of the students, but in reality you are simply projecting your own personal tastes onto the rest of the student body.

You accomplish this when you criticize the hard efforts of Class One Concerts (Montclairion, 9/28/89) and WMSC (Montclarion, 10/5/89).

I found the style of these editorials to be extremely negative and counterproductive to cooperation between the student groups.

However, the one feature I am most qualified to write about is the editorial that "attacked" WMSC. This is my sixth year at the radio station, and I am presently serving my fourth elected term as General Manager.

I would like to set the facts straight:

1. You accuse WMSC of not taking the interests of the students into account. You do so on the basis of their musical tastes (which you only speculate about anyway). However, the matter of the fact is that our main obligation to the students is to teach them, not entertain them.

Students here are given thorough training in all aspects of radio. Of course, our main purpose in doing this is to prepare them to receive their FCC license and reach the public over the FM airwaves. The license, these skills, and a detailed training manual are all things that the student takes into life after college. Students leave here with more than they came with. This is our duty.

2. I have already established that our purpose is much greater than providing the students with a jukebox, but let's talk about music and radio formats anyway. In case you are not aware, the "alternative/new music" format is the best thing that ever happened to this station.

Over two years ago, the station had a rag-tag patchwork format similar to the one you suggested. In radio, continuity and cohesion is the key to successful programming.

Thinking of the stations you listen to. They have identities of their own. Identities help to target an audience and build a following. WMSC was tired of being the laughing stock of the airwaves and decided to make a mark, however small, on the music scene.

The main reason for its success is that we are the only "new music" outlet in Northern New Jersey, therefore fans of this music must choose either to listen to us, or our closest competitor on Long Island.

3. I am shot at the deeper meaning of your editorial. You seem to be saying that if MSC students tend to be close-minded or simply unexposed to "alternative/new" music, then WMSC should help keep them that way.

First of all, I would like to point out that we are a public broadcast station, and have to serve the public, of which the student body is merely a transient part. A radio station cannot tailor-make its programming to suit the desires of a particular group simply because they live on school grounds.

Aside from this, however, I happen to think that most students would enjoy "alternative" music if they were only exposed to it. You proclaim that the campus has mainstream and commercial tastes. Are you suggesting that the station also become mainstream and commercial?

If some students want to keep themselves sheltered by the safe familiarity of predictable pop music or swamped in the stagnant quicksand of "classic" rock music of ages long passed, that is their prerogative.

The media is a powerful tool. To use it wisely is to betray the public's trust. As a media person myself, I only hope that the Montclarion will be more careful about how they prepare stories in the future, and to gain respect for the awesome power that they possess.

Don your capes & cowls! Hop in your Batmobile, and reserve Batman now! This summer's hottest silver screen sensation is on its way to video stores for a November 15th release date. It starts, for all those who didn't hear the hype, Michael Keaton as DC Comics' Dark Knight, and Jack Nicholson portraying yet another outstanding looney toon, The Joker. Now there's going to be a title race for the King of Video Sales between E.T., Who Framed Roger Rabbit, and Batman. And with the Caped Crusader's block costing a mere trifle of $24.95, look for this tape to be a hot Christmas gift...Rated PG.

- But, another Batman is here, right now! The one they used to call Crazy Joe, but now they call Batman, is in video stores, or will be very soon. The former Eastside High School principal Joe Clark beats some sense into delinquent students in the over-dramatized and over-fictionalized movie Lean On Me. Although some of Mr. Clark's goals were never reached in real life, it's still a decent movie...Rated PG-13.

Some people will tell you that music was a key ingredient of Walt Disney's Success. Don't you believe it. Music was the foundation of his success. So if you had any sort of childhood at all growing up anywhere in the United States or Canada, then for sure you have some memory of Walt Disney's wonderful mixture of music and Mickey.

Who can forget "Zip-A-Dee-Do-Da" from Song of the South or "Whistle While you Work" from Snow White. Well apparently as the saying goes Rock & Roll never forgets. A long list of Rock & Rollers recently got together and decided to record their own version of some Disney favorites. The list includes, James Taylor singing "Second Star from the Right" from Peter Pan, Los Lobos doing "The Monkey Song" from Jungle Book, and Bonnie Raitt performing "Baby Mine" from my favorite farto Dumbo.

The album is called Stay Awake and its on A&M records. This is a true collectors item. In other words you'll never find it being advertised on TV as "K-Tel's Disneyland Favorites." This is an album everyone should have if for no other reason than that no matter what, it will make you smile. You won't believe who is singing you're favorite Disney songs at you: Buster Poindexter, Ringo Starr, NRBQ, Tom Waits, Suzanne Vega, Aaron Neville, The Replacements, and

- The list goes on. The songs include: "When You Wish Upon a Star," "Hi Diddle Dee Dee (an actor's life)," "Little April Showers," "Heigh Ho," "Some Day My Prince Will Come," and (oh my god), "The Mickey Mouse March." Memories! Memories! Memories!

The best part about this project is the people. They've doctoried the songs to their own particular styles. So if you like the individual that is performing one of your favorite Disney tunes, then the whole experience is doubly enjoyable.

Stay Awake is available, so if you cannot find it, order it. You won't believe how happy you will be. Oh, and by the way (not to quote K-Tel but) it'll make a perfect gift.

MINI-NOTES: Aside from the more than average length of the songs, Tears For Fears are "Sowing the Seeds of Love" and success. The songs have more of a jazzy, mature feel than their predecessor Songs From the Big Chair. The Beatle-esque title song floats along lazily and comfortably and ends up in the top 5 this week. Other picks include: the Sade-sounding "Advice for the Young at Heart" and the catchy pop of "Year of the Knife."...Billy Idol rampaged through the suites of three luxury hotels in Thailand during a recent visit and raked up a little over $20,000 in damages...#Is: Pop and Soul: Miss You Much! Janet Jackson: Album: Dr. Feelgood/ Motley Crue (ech)!

MINI-NOTES II: Saw the Stones at Shea last night (11)! Details next week! The answer to last week's question: Fleetwood Mac's self-titled album took 58 weeks just to spend one week atop the album chart. The LP featured "Say You Love Me" and "Rhiannon." This week's question, given to me by Evan Weissman, is: In 1969, the Stones played an infamous concert at the Altamont Raceway in Cali. It was there that a potential assasin was stabbed by a Hell's Angel. During what song did the fatality occur? Hint: They aren't doing it on this current tour. Think about it...Until next week...
Hazy shade of Winter

By Luisa Carrizo

Staff Writer

As sure as the hands of our relentless keeper, the melancholy lines and reflective mood of Winter Hours fulfilled an idea whose time has come.

After two EP's, two 12" singles and an album on a New York label, this self-titled release is their Chrysalis label debut.

Although they have scoured the face of the U.S. in countless touring escapades, this quintet calls New Jersey its home with roots in Lyndhurst, Haledon and Hoboken. The band consists of lead vocalist and songwriter Joseph Marques, vocalist and guitarist Bob Perry, guitarist Michael Carlucci, bassist Bob Messing and drummer Dave Scheff.

The sound of Winter Hours leads the listener through an array of images primarily those of the country. There is an undeniable country feel and folk narrative that is highly emphasized. Their music resembles a cross between Bob Dylan and Joe Walsh. However, their diversity makes it impossible to stick on a stereotype, if you would use the pun.

Winter Hours also presents socially conscious ideas ranging from the environment to passage of immigrants but never overlooking the highly personal palpability of songwriters Marques, Carlucci and Perry.

The first cut on the album is entitled "Roadside Flowers." This song again has a substantial western feel without relinquishing it's rock and roll base. This first glimpse into the lead singer's voice is filled with rustic tones further contributing to the pastoral image.

Other tunes to listen for include "Longest Century" and "Broken Little Man." "Longest Century" contains an inspiring arrangement that unveils a reverie of a country field and visions of America.

Lyrics such as "Does the silence make you nervous" are melodically expressed by Marques. "Broken Little Man" keeps this mellow vain with the nice use of slide guitar.

For more upbeat, straight ahead rock and roll, "Just Like Love" and "Stay With Me" are cuts to listen to while "Familiar Place" concentrates on a sweet-sounding harmony. On the whole, Winter Hours is a soothing yet solid LP.

Winter Hours is currently touring the state of Texas and due back by the holidays. Stay tuned for information concerning tour dates in NJ.

Beyond Brave and Crazy

By Amy Monaco

Correspondent

Brave and Crazy, Melissa Etheridge's follow up album to her first self titled album which sold over one million copies, is just what the title says.

This Kansas born acoustic rocker's style is just as intense on this album, though a bit more polished, and she seems less heartbroken than she did on her first album.

The album starts off with "No Souvenirs" the first single that has been released off the Brave and Crazy. According to Ms. Etheridge in recent Spin Magazine interview "No Souvenirs" is about a purely external relationship. This is unlike most of the songs on her first album including "Bring Me Some Water," which she performed on the Grammys the year of her nomination.

She went on to explain about the song: "The person was there and then they were gone and nothing was changed, nothing reminded me of them. Nothing. You didn't leave your shoes. You didn't leave this or that. It was very quiet."

"Skin Deep," a song later in the album seems to follow in the footsteps of this idea of external relationships. The title in itself is pretty explanatory.

The title cut "Brave and Crazy" has a line in it that mentions sleeping on a couch in an alley with a friend and a bottle of gin. This line represents the theme of the song which is the freedom that we sometimes yearn for from our everyday structured and hectic lives.

Two slower songs on the album, yet just as moving, are "You Used to Love to Dance," and "You Can Sleep While I Drive."

The final song on the album "Royal Station 4/16," which slightly digresses from her usual mode, is a song about trains, written while in New Castle, England staying in a hotel near a train station, Bono from U2 even makes a brief appearance playing harmonica on this last song of the album finishing it off nicely.

No article in any publication could do Melissa or either of her albums justice. "Intense" is truly the word to describe her sound. Brave and Crazy

So if you're tired of listening to the same old music on the radio I urge you to give this album, and Melissa Etheridge's raucous style a chance. I guarantee that after a few listens you'll find yourself going back to the record store to buy her first album.

Dan Walsh

Iron man Dan Walsh has proven himself to be a running machine for MSC’s Red Hawks. After breaking the record for running the ball with 46 carries last week against Ramapo, Walsh again was a dominant factor in the homecoming win against Kean.

“The Hawks offense is geared around the tailback, so I’m used to running the ball a lot and being keyed upon by the defense,” said Walsh. “I feel it’s a great compliment by the coaches to have the confidence in my ability to get the job done.”

Walsh averages 147 yards a game, about five per carry, and Coach Gianocola feels they have never had a tailback like him.

“Dan is an extraordinary athlete and can run the ball a lot more than most tailbacks,” said Gianocola. “He sometimes comes to the sidelines looking hurt, and I ask him if he needs a rest, but he fools everyone and carries the ball for another six to eight yards.”

Walsh’s record breaking game against Ramapo was to him “a good days work.”

“It sounds like a lot more than it really is,” said Walsh. “I didn’t even realize I carried the ball 46 times until the last series, I just knew I worked hard.”

“What happens in the stands and on the field is everyone responds to Dan’s toughness, and rallies to be as tough,” said Gianocola.

Walsh owes a lot to the offensive line, which he feels does a great job opening up holes for him, and looks forward to them blocking for him in the play-offs.

“Everyone on the team knows what has to get done, and there is no conception of losing a game, and until then I will never complain about too much work,” said Walsh.

Cross country team

Major and Kevin Miller are the leaders of the team and have taken the unofficial roles of Captains. They have come through for the team from week to week and have upset several veteran teams so far. The other members are Ted Dominguez, Timothy Führer, Lewis Wright, Wesley Peters, Joshua Nugent-who is presently nurturing an injury, Craig Jackson and Bobby Piersanti. Brian, Kevin, Ted, Timothy and Lewis appear to be the top 5 men at this point.

The major concern with the guys is having them adjust and keeping them together. Says the Coach, “A lot of growth is ahead.”

Blanton’s philosophy is a healthy one. “We are just like everyone else, we want to win but that is not the primary concern. The primary concern is to develop character and instill pride and develop minds.”

If coaches can instill these things, we feel we have developed winners.”

The team goes to every meet with the same power, because, according to Coach Blanton, everyone is a tough competitor. He feels that “Even when the team loses, we feel we’ve won.”

The next and last home cross country meet is against William Paterson, Seton Hall and Ramapo on Wednesday, Oct. 18 at 4 p.m.

The Bottom Line

by Matt Winther

California here we stay is the unofficial World Series theme for the second straight year. The Oakland A's battle the San Francisco Giants starting Saturday in the last World Series.

The baseball fans of the San Francisco Bay area are in for a rare treat because it is the first metropolitan area World Series since 1956 when the New York Yankees met the Brooklyn Dodgers in the Fall Classic.

The 1989 World Series is set up as a confrontation of offensive strength as both teams hit a combined 15 home runs in the League Championship Series. Oakland boasts a menacing lineup which features Carney Lansford, Mark McGwire, Jose Canseco, Dave Parker, Dave Henderson, and baseball's greatest all-around threat Rickey Henderson. Even when the lineup features a ton of muscle, it is Rickey Henderson who the Giants have to worry about. You can always pitch around Canseco, McGwire, or the others if the situation permits. However a way will not be so easy if Henderson is at the plate, but a guaranteed extra base hit and a run if you throw the wrong pitch to Henderson. Don't ever take him deep just as easy as the Bash Brothers.

Henderson stole the show against Toronto batting .402 with 2 home runs, 5 RBI, and a playoff record 8 stolen bases. A record previously held by Lou Brock. It is no coincidence that several charges made by Blue Jays players that he was "showing up" the Jays. However, he is not the only threat. Oakland's performance was the best in the world to "show up" his former boss George Steinbrenner. After all, Rickey left the Bronx in midsummer for pitchers Eric Plunk, Gregcadaret, and Luis Polonia. While the Yankees season ended in horrendous fashion, Henderson was the ALCS MVP and is preparing for his first World Series.

When Mark McGwire and Jose Canseco aren't hitting 470 feet blasts, Oakland counters with what is arguably the best pitching staff in baseball. The staff which consists of Dave Stewart, Mike Moore, Mike Welch, Storm Davis, and reliever Dennis Eckersly. If manager Tony LaRussa decides to pitch with a three man rotation, it is likely that Storm Davis would be sent to the bullpen for long relief. Dave Henderson is the biggest question mark. A's loss in the playoffs giving up 5 runs in 6.3 innings with an ERA of 7.38. If you think that's bad, A's set-up man Rick Honeycutt appeared in three games, giving up six earned runs, in 11 innings, for a whopping 33.75 ERA. Unless a carpool of Oakland pitchers goes down the Golden Gate Bridge, Honeycutt's appearance on the mound will be held to an extreme minimum.

Across the bay in San Francisco, the Giants will try to pound Oakland pitching with the tandem of Kevin Mitchell and Will Clark, better known as the Pacific Sock Exchange. Clark had a tremendous showing in the NLCS batting .650 with 2 home runs and 8 runs batted in. Clark's awesome hitting clinic won him the MVP honors in the playoffs. Mitchell, the other half of the Sock Exchange, was also impressive batting .333 with 2 home runs and 7 RBI. The Giants got some unexpected offensive punch from second baseman Robby Thompson, who homered twice against the Cubs and third baseman Matt Williams who drove in nine runs.

The other part of the Giants that is questionable is the pitching staff. The staff consists of Rick Reuschel, Scott Garrelts, Mike LaCosa, Don Robinson, and Steve Bedrosian as their starters. These five will be tested to the max as they will face a lineup that is the second coming of Murderer's Row. In order to win the Series, the Giants rotation must play above their heads if they stand any chance of keeping pace with Oakland.

The A's have a definite edge in this matchup. Their pitching is superior, they have more offensive threats, and most of all, the A's will be trying to avenge last year's World Series loss at the hands of the Dodgers. While the A's look better on paper, don't think for a second that Frisco has no shot. There is little doubt that Clark and Mitchell are the keys to winning it all. And so far no team has been able to shut them down. Even though the Giants will give Oakland all they can handle, look for the A's to win the World Series in seven games.

SEASON 1-1.

The Devils opened their regular season last Thursday in Philadelphia with an explosive win over the Flyers by the score of 6-2.

The key to the victory was offense. And lots of it! Sylvain Turgeon provided the scoring punch as he tallied two goals in the first period and added a third in period two. It was Turgeon's first NJ Devils Hat Trick.

On Saturday night, in the Devils' home opener, the Devils notched with the explosive power of Philadelphia Penguins. The final score was 4-4.

The story of this game was again offensive power by another off season acquisition. Walt Poddubny scored two goals, and his second goal in the third period was the equalizer.

Finally on Tuesday night the Devils were out talented by the Stanley Cup Champion, the Calgary Flames. The Devils played a very strong first period. They clearly took it to the Flames in every aspect of the game and it was the best period of hockey I've seen from the Devils in the young season. They went into the first intermission with a 1-0 lead from a goal scored by Dave Maley.

The second period started out with a definite hand goal by Calgary Flame Joey Mullen. The Devils never regained that score they had in the first and the Flames went on to beat them by the score of 4-2.

If the Devils can guard on that first period, the character of this team will come together. Remember, it takes time to establish team character and the team is fairly new to each other.

The make-up of this team is offense, offense, and more offense. And the architect of this team is general manager, Lou Lamarrilo.

What Lamarrilo has done is put together a team with a lot of pure talent. Sure, Devils' teams of the past have been teams that have had hard work physically every night and grind out victories. This is what brought the Devils the Playoff success in 1987. It also made the Devils a legitimate N.H.C. Franchise. But the philosophy set is old and you need pure talent to win year in and year out. Take Calgary as a good example.

There is one piece of the picture I can't place, because I don't know where it is. But I have some ideas.

The outstanding defensemen from last year are not playing: Tom Kurvers, who set a Devils record last year with assists and points by a defensemen (50,66); Ken Daneyko, who I feel must play because they need the big touch defensemen who can clear people from in front of the net, and Craig Wolanin, who just needs confidence—he won't get that from watching the games from the press-box.

But the Devils are loaded with talent at the defense position. And most of it is offensive. So the logical thing is that a trade may be in the works. How long do you think Kurvers, Daneyko, and Wolanin will sit quietly?

Field hockey starts well

Rebounding from last year's 8-10 season, the MSC field hockey team is flying high with a 3-0 season. The make-up of this team is general manager, Lou Lamarrilo. The team has to be able to adjust to playing on astroturf, which makes a big difference in this game. This being that the majority of the team's remaining games will not be away, but will be on the astroturf surface. This will be to MSC's advantage as they are used to the turf of their home field.

For the team to be a serious contender, Heather Jeffrey and Kelly Sullivan. They went into the first intermission up 1-0 in the two team's first meeting on Trenton's turf. You can be sure the Red Hawks will be fired up when TSC comes to their nest.

About midway through the season, what will the team have to do to keep winning?

Coach Snyder said, "The team has to be able to adjust playing on astroturf, which makes a big difference in this game." This being that the majority of the team's remaining games will not be away, but will be on the astroturf surface. This will be to MSC's advantage as they are used to the turf of their home field.

The Red Hawks have lost their only two road games, however have won all six games played at MSC. The last win coming in a 1-0 victory over Drew, a team MSC hadn't beaten since 1985. The Devils faced off against the De Marcos, a junior forward, put in the game's only goal for the win.

The team has a positive attitude in practice. Jeffrey senior half-back, reflecting on the teams' last victory coupled with an impressive record so far. Jeffrey added, "We want to beat Trenton." This statement is in reference to Trenton State College, the No. 1 ranked team in Divvy 4.

Look for general Lou to make some personal moves soon. Which will end in a trade of one of the players. Stay tuned Devil Fans!!
Hawks trap Cougars

Dan Walsh was the man of the night as they defeated the Cougars of Kean College 24-3 on Saturday night.

Walsh ran for 210 yards and scored 2 touchdowns to help offset several mistakes made by the MSC defense. The Red Hawks fumbled the ball away 5 times and failed to capitalize on good field position all game long.

Wide receiver Frank Mariconda had his best game of the season, catching 5 passes for 79 yards. Mariconda was the shining star of a receiving squad that dropped several of quarterback Ed Baffige passes.

Kean College opened the scoring early in the first quarter. Following a fumble by MSC's John Walker, the Cougar's Robert Longo kicked a 22 yard field goal to give Kean a 3-0 lead.

MSC blew a golden opportunity to score on its next possession when Ed Baffige fumbled the ball into Kean's endzone for a touchback.

The Red Hawks got on the scoreboard in the second quarter when a Baffige pass was deflected by Dan Walsh into the arms of Frank Mariconda who was standing in the endzone for the touchdown. "That was the third time I caught a pass like that this year," Mariconda stated after the game.

With the passing game stalled, Baffige gave the ball to Walsh who gained 140 of his 210 yards in the second half. Following the game, Walsh looked so battered that several players asked if he needed help into the trainers room. Walsh requests to stay in the whole game even when his team is far ahead. "I live for this game," Walsh stated.

The Red Hawks put the game out of reach when Mike Attardi kicked a field goal from 26 yards out. Dan Walsh then scored from 3 yards and 7 yards out to make the final score MSC 24 Kean 3.

Defensively for the Red Hawks Paul Cioffi had 12 tackles, a quarterback sack, and a blocked punt that led to a MSC touchdown. Len Kruk added 11 tackles of his own as the Red Hawk defense held the Cougars to an 0-12 mark on 3rd down conversions.

Dan Walsh won NJAC's offensive player of the week for his record breaking efforts against Ramapo last Saturday night. Walsh set the Montclair State record for most carries in a game with 46.

MSC's victory makes the ir record 2-0 in the New Jersey Athletic Conference and 4-1 overall. The attendance for Saturday night’s game was 5,216. Which was 100 fans less than last week's game against Ramapo.

Although the Hawks started slow, the strong second half running of Dan Walsh provided the push the Hawks needed for the victory.

Cross country excels

By Robin Weber

The enthusiasm pours forth as Coach Blanton talks about his cross country team this season. He believes that "eyes have not seen and ears have not heard" what he projects will happen in the future of MSC Cross Country.

Last year, the women finished undefeated in the dual meet, and Rosa Domingues (Sr.) became the first woman in MSC history to make the NCAA all Mid-East Cross Country Champs. This season, Rosa will be defending her NJ College Champion title. And the veteran squad of 7 returning letter winner women will make the team a very competitive one. Outstanding freshman additions give the team the #2 and #3 and #4 runners they need. These freshmen are Kathy Papke, Jennifer Welch, and Alison Amicone. Alicia Hanneysey(So.) is number 5 for the team and is running her personal and career best.

Unfortunately, a few women are nurturing injuries and taking part in the rehabilitation program, one of whom is Jill Robertson, a senior and Captian of the squad, and the other, Gail Nunez, a freshman. Coach Blanton feels that "with everyone healthy and able to rise to their ability" there will be an interesting result for the team this year.

Due to the weather, the team has not yet competed in a dual meet competition, the event that they were so strong in last year. They have, however, been victorious at the Monmouth Inviational, and have beaten Wagner, a team ranked in the top 5 teams of the North East. The other members of the team are Bernadette Wykpisz(Sr.), who was 3rd last year, and they are so strong in last year. They have, however, been victorious at the Monmouth Inviational, and have beaten Wagner, a team ranked in the top 5 teams.

The men's team is made up entirely of Freshmen. Coach Blanton says that he is not expecting anything phenomenal from this new team. Each runner is making a major transition from high school, Brian cont. p.18

Perhaps the biggest rivalry of the season was held last Wednesday night when MSC faced Kean College. The match up drew approximately 350 fans, the largest crowd this season at Sprague Field.

As expected, the intensity of the game was very high. The first half ended up scoreless and both teams rested for a touch second half.

Late in the second half the 0-0 tie was snapped when Dan Mellet scored a goal for the Cougars to an 0-12 mark on 3rd down conversions.

MSC NEWS

The new mascot debuted this week at the MSC vs Kean Homecoming game. The overall consensus was that the concept of a bird is fine, but people wished that they would spend a little more time in designing the costume. People’s comments ranged from; the bird looks like a red haired Elvira to a chicken hawk. I hope this feed back will help the mascot committee in their search for a permanent choice.

The lighting at the football games is atrocious! How do these players concentrate when their vision goes from one shade of light to another? The consensus in the press box was to raise the lights higher to shed light directly onto the field. Spend the bucks, the players deserve this.
