Security gates divide campus

By William C. Hendrixson
Correspondent

Students of MSC, both commuters and residents alike, may have noticed the addition of 12 new gates located in various places around campus.

The new gates, added between last March and early September, were installed in various access points to restrict traffic and illegal parking.

Two gates were put in at each end of Quarry Road, East Quarry Way and West Quarry Way, which grant entry to parking lots 20-26, otherwise known as the pit.

More gates are located at either end of the road servicing Webster, Bohn, and Stone Halls, and a similar arrangement regulates entry to the Clave Road apartments and lot 29. Access roads near Freeman Hall are also fenced off by hinged iron gates.

Different sets of gates also serve different functions, varying between preventing parking that creates a fire hazard, deterring auto theft, closing off dangerous roadways due to poor weather, and controlling traffic during high volume times such as football games.

The hours the gates remain open or closed is random as the Quarry gates are secured for the entire day whenever suspicious activities are reported in any of the quarry lots.

They are also closed after 5:00 p.m., the time most auto thefts occur according to Campus Police.

The gates located at the top of the hill near Blanton (parking lot 20), will also be inaccessible during bad weather to prevent an excess of accidents which might occur on the steep hill. The gates situated by Webster Hall are also manned by a security guard to prevent parking on that road because it is a state fire hazard, as it would prevent easy access by the fire department to Bohn and Freeman Halls in the event of an emergency.

Each set of gates cost between $2165 and $2200. The 12 gates installed since March cost almost $25,000.

The only evidence from Campus Police in support of the use of the gates is in reference to the quarry lots, where car theft is of major concern.

Last February, the month before their installation, 17 cars were stolen. By March, following the addition of the gates, auto theft dropped to 9. In April car theft had decreased to 6, and only 3 cars were stolen during the month of May.

Some students seem to recognize this as some sort of necessity to prevent auto theft.

A resident student, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "If It's going to stop cars from being stolen, then it's good."

Other students fail to accept their use as a deterrent.

John Torres, Resident Assistant of Bohn Hall, said, "If security was posted it would be effective, but since that's not going to happen, it's just a nuisance."

Melisa Puglisi, a commuter, said, "What about getting mugged, gates can't stop that."

John Clidy, a resident of Bohn Hall who has a car on campus, said that many students find that the gates are nothing more than an additional trial on a campus that already has problems with parking and traffic. "There's no spots as it is and when the gates are closed, it's even more of a pain in the ass to find a spot."

Seven of N.J.'s public colleges were listed in Money magazine's "100 Best College Value" rankings. MSC ranked 12th in the nation.

Trenton State College was ranked highest of N.J. state schools as 4. Jersey City State College was 9th. Also ranked were: Rutgers New Brunswick, Douglass College at 24th; Rutgers New Brunswick, Livingston College at 34th; Rutgers New Brunswick, Cook College at 85th.

The rankings were issued by comparing the quality of education to the cost of the school.

The cost was determined by comparing the expected cost and actual cost of the school. Schools charging less than their expected cost were ranked higher.

The quality of the schools was determined by SAT scores, incoming freshman class statistics, student-faculty ratio, graduation rate, percentage of school's budget devoted to instruction and the number of students who report getting a PhD.

The last factor was the ability of the faculty to excite students in the subject that they were teaching.

Two-year colleges, narrowly specialized colleges and military academies were excluded from the survey.

WPC professor pleads guilty to charges of marijuana possession

By Brad Weisberger
Editor-in-chief of WPC Beacon

Donald Vardiman, professor of psychology at WPC and former chair of the psychology department, pleaded guilty to federal charges of marijuana possession last Thursday in U.S. District Court in Newark. Vardiman was arrested when 20 marijuana plants were found in his home.

The arrest occurred as part of DEA operation “Green Merchant” which treated the sales of special growing lights needed for cultivating marijuana. Vardiman was also charged with selling marijuana within 1000 feet of a school; however, this charge was dropped because police said there was no evidence to support it.

Sentencing will take place on Nov. 29. Vardiman faces a possible one year in prison and a mandatory $1000 fine.

Acting U.S. Attorney Michael Chertoff said this case was prosecuted more aggressively because of Vardiman’s position.

“The fact that a college professor flouts drug laws is disturbing at a time when education is a critical element in fighting drugs among students and young people,” Chertoff said.

Both the college administration and Vardiman have declined to comment if this “aggressive” prosecution, resulting from several years of police activity, may be a violation of civil liberties.

Vardiman is currently teaching a full course load, said Dennis Santilli, Director of College Communications. The college is waiting for an official confirmation of the court proceedings and the information from the Attorney General’s office regarding the college’s “liability” in taking disciplinary action and whether any mandatory action is required.

“This should take place as quickly as possible,” Santilli added. Vardiman said he apologizes for any embarrassment he may have brought to the college or to the students.

“I have spent 20 years trying to improve the programs at WPC. I never encouraged anyone to use illegal drugs and always warn of the dangers whenever the subject comes up during a lesson,” Vardiman said.

Fraternal organizations to afford a house of their own

By Jennifer Thees
Correspondent

The idea of having fraternity and sorority houses at MSC is not a new idea, but is becoming more of a reality.

Presently there are 10 fraternities, nine sororities and eight co-ed fraternities on campus. Because it is difficult for these organizations to afford a house of their own, there are no houses off-campus.

Some fraternities, such as Tau Kappa Epsilon (TKE), are trying to save money for an on-campus residence. A percentage of TKE’s fundraising is going toward a “house fund.”

Other fraternities, such as Zeta Beta Tau (ZBT) and Delta Kappa Psi, choose to rent houses off-campus, even though only five brothers can share each of the unofficial houses.

Don Oates, president of TKE, said that our administration is “close-minded” toward providing fraternities with available land like other colleges do.

Oates also said that many people have the wrong image of fraternity houses and what they represent.

“The see fraternity houses as an ‘animal house’ and do not consider having it as a structured way of life, a working unit,” said Oates.

Oates says that because of this it will take a lot of work to convince MSC to support the funding of these houses.

Tony Tuths, president of ZBT, said that Dr. Edward Martin, dean of students, has been very supportive of the idea of fraternity housing.

Tuths asks, in reference to the new construction plans, “although funding is tight, how hard would it be to clear a small patch of land for a fraternity or sorority house?”

“Fraternity and sorority houses would be an attraction for the school and be a good motivator for school spirit,” said Tuths.

Dean Rogers, president of Delta Kappa Psi, said that it is difficult for a bond to form between brothers since there are no houses. This causes the members to be scattered among the dorms, Clove Road and off-campus housing.

“A frat house adds to the whole social life, the whole image and the whole experience of going to college,” said Oates.

“The door is not shut and locked,” Dean Martin said about fraternity and sorority houses, “and the school is open for discussion.”

He also agreed that the organizations have benefitted the campus and that he is waiting for a proposal from either the fraternities or sororities for a housing plan.

“The organizations must develop knowledge and experience in order to make it a large activity. They should take the initiative to show the benefits of fraternity and sorority housing,” said Dean Martin, “It is not a question of if and when, but how.”

Campus Police Report:

Eleven arrested for alcohol consumption

By William C. Hendrixson
Correspondent

□Arrests: There were 11 arrests this week. All of the arrests were alcohol related.

-Sept. 14 at 12:30 a.m. Eight male students were found to be in possession of open and closed alcohol containers by campus police patrolling the area, noticing suspicious activities in the amphitheater. The students were arrested and charged with underage possession and consumption of alcohol.

-Sept. 14 at 12:10 a.m. A male student, when questioned by a campus police officer for holding a plastic bottle, was found to be intoxicated and in possession of alcohol. He claimed he was “only holding it for a friend”, and was consequently arrested and charged for underage possession and consumption of alcohol.

□Accidents:

-Sept. 8 at 9:53 p.m. The traffic control iron gate near Clove Road was crashed through after the football game, with only a partial description of the license plates by campus security. A student later turned himself in, claiming he had not closed the gate, and fled only because he was intoxicated and had panicked.

□Fire Alarms:

-Sept. 13 between 10:30 p.m. and 12:00 a.m. A 1990 Nissan was broken into in lot 28, the window was smashed and the glove box was rummaged through. Although the police report states that nothing was stolen, other sources claim that the radio was stolen.

-Sept. 15 between 11:30 p.m. and 9:15 a.m. A 1991 Geo Storm was broken into and the ignition lock was smashed, indicating that someone had attempted to steal the car but did not succeed for some unknown reason.

-Sept. 15 between 6:00 p.m. and 12:00 p.m. A 1984 Ford Escort was broken into and nothing was stolen.

□Theft:

-Sept. 14 between 5:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. One television and two VCR’s were stolen from Partridge Hall rooms. Campus police have no suspects.

□Bomb Scares:

-Sept. 12 at 4:38 a.m. A bomb threat was called in and Blanton Hall was subsequently evacuated. The evacuation lasted 30 minutes and nothing was found.

□Miscellaneous:

-Sept. 12 between 2:15 and 3:40 a.m. Graffiti was scrawled on the outside of Richardson Hall, including the word “nause” and an unknown message.

-Sept. 13 at 11:30 p.m. A fight in progress was called in from the Clove Rd. apartments, claiming 10 males had gathered and were fighting.

The 10 males were already gone when campus police had arrived.

-Sept. 15 at 3:30 p.m. A student reported $150 stolen from Partridge Hall.

SGA legislator Susan Herbst was elected President Pro Tempore yesterday. Herbst is now responsible for chairing SGA meetings on Wednesdays should the sitting president be absent and is the chairperson of the constitutional review committee.

Thomas Czemiecki, Director of External Affairs, suggested that students and legislators get involved in their local municipalities. He feels that if students get the interest of their local council, they can write resolutions and send them to Trenton to stop Governor Florio’s cuts in higher education.

“By writing resolutions, many municipalities helped reform Division of Motor Vehicles policy. Imagine what we can do for higher education?” Czemiecki said.

The SGA also nominated their candidates for Homecoming King and Queen. Paul Nakliki was nominated for King, and Tracey Pino for Queen.

New trustee appointed

By Ann Daly
Staff Writer

Margaret Rosario Rivera has been appointed by Governor Florio to MSC's board of trustees.

Rivera will serve a six-year term overseeing MSC's academic, administrative and student services programs.

"I'm very excited about being appointed," said Rivera. "I only hope my educational background and experience will help MSC in a variety of ways over the next six years."

Rivera, a former probation officer in Middlesex County, entered higher education as an admissions counselor for Rutgers University College of Engineering and Pharmacy, specializing in the recruiting of minority students. She also served as the director of admissions for Livingston College.

The appointment to MSC's board of trustees marks the second gubernatorial post for Rivera. She was also appointed to the New Jersey Commission on the Status of Women.

"I hope that not only am I visible at board meetings, but that I'll have the opportunity to interact with students and faculty," Rivera said.

Last week marked Rivera's first board meeting. Rivera said that she felt positive about the meeting and received a warm welcome from both faculty and students.

"I'm still learning and getting to know MSC," she said. "I see my first year as a learning experience; learning about the college, it's students and it's programs."

Rivera is also involved with the Board of Directors for ASPIRA Inc., of New Jersey, the New Jersey Hispanic Women's Task Force, the State Advisory Committee on the College Outcomes Evaluation Program, the Society of Hispanic Engineers, and the Hispanic Association of Higher Education of New Jersey.

Recycling program enacted

By Lisa Cammarota
Correspondent

A new recycling program is being enacted at MSC. A new recycling bin will go into effect at MSC in two weeks with the arrival of new trash receptacles for aluminum cans.

MSC is planning to spend $2,000 a year toward the plan. Other expenses needed for the plan, such as a dumpster and maintenance services, will be absorbed by the existing budget allocated for garbage disposal.

According to Thomas Stepnowski, assistant vice president of facilities, the college has requested from the state $66,000 priority package. The package would be a special grant provided by the state, and MSC would use the funds for the recycling plan.

The Conservation Club has been sponsoring the administration to enact a recycling plan for several semesters, but no formal action had been taken because of insufficient funding.

Stepnowski, who has been consulting with the Conservation Club is regarded to the plan, considers their collaboration important since the members are students. Nancy Smith of the Conservation Club stressed the need for MSC to get on the recycling bandwagon.

"The other state schools are recycling, but we are not," she also added. "As our landfills get full we (New Jersey) are shipping garbage further and further west which costs more money."

At this time, the college has a deal with a garbage hauler. MSC was given permission to use a dumpster at no cost to the college, provided that the hauler is permitted to keep the money that he collects from the recycling center.

Costs are also being kept at a minimum since the transportation of the aluminum cans is being left up to the maintenance staff.

The staff is being given the option to take home as many cans as they desire. They can then take the cans to a recycling center for their own profit.

Unless you really enjoy reading manuals, get a Macintosh.

Tim Moses
Computer Science
Vanderbilt University

"Macintosh practically eliminates the need to keep manuals next to my computer, because—regardless of which program I'm using—I can open, close, save, and print files in exactly the same way. And you can't say that about any other computer.

"Today lots of other computers are attempting to look and work like a Macintosh, but it's just not possible. They're too fundamentally different to begin with. This may sound a little strange, but comparing a Macintosh to other computers is like comparing apples to oranges. You can squash the orange into shape and paint it to look like an apple, but underneath the makeup, it's still an orange.

"It's funny—I work at the Vanderbilt computer store and I've seen lots of people switch from other computers to Macintosh, but I've never seen anybody with a Macintosh switch to another computer."

C1C and CLUB capers at the Student Center:

Quests for comedy, music, and cars

By Valerie KaHtin
Features/Outlook Editor

They laughed, they rocked, they gave directions — all in a week's work.

Both the College Life Union Board (CLUB) and Class I Concerts (C1C) sponsored activities for the campus this week as part of their programming as SGA organizations. Yet Tuesday night, after the excitement died, a little charity was in order.

One of the performers was lost.

"How can a 30-year-old man lose his car on a college campus?" Ben Creed asked himself.

Creed was the headliner in CLUB's first Comedy All-Star Show of the semester held Tuesday night in the Student Center Cafeteria. Chaz Juszczak, CLUB's comedy chairperson, said the event drew a sellout crowd of more than 250 people. Admission was $2.00.

"We have five shows during the semester," Juszczak said, who contracted Top Draw Entertainment for Tuesday night's show.

The comedy committee is allotted $12,000 of CLUB's yearly $93,000 SGA budget to organize the shows. The rest of the money is used to plan events such as movie nights, trips to New York City, and homecoming.

Creed was joined by Donna Cooper of Showtime at the Apollo and Will Miller of MTV's Half-hour Comedy Hour, each with a fair amount of college and local humor. Creed, who has appeared on Comic Strip Live and in the movie The Dirtiest Dozen, sprinkled the crowd with comments about parties, relationships, politics, and himself.

"That's not a forehead — that's a five-head," he quipped onstage, using his brow to flip a cigarette into his mouth. He was still smoking when three students came to his rescue.

Paul Giamboli, Paula Flavin, and Helena Doyle, all sophomores, were leaving through the doors by the Rathskellar when Creed approached them.

"He just looked so lost," Flavin said.

"He came up to us and said, 'Do you guys know how to get to the special permit lot?' We said, 'Follow us.'

Both she and Doyle are members of the C1C stage crew, and remembered the parking lot was near the loading dock.

"We knew where the loading dock was from loading equipment for C1C," said Doyle, who, with Giamboli and Flavin, escorted Creed to his car.

While charity may be a sideline for these two, helping C1C with its programming is not. Both were on hand for the first Open 'Mic' Night of the semester held last night in the Rathskellar.

Thirteen acts — a mix of keyboards, vocals, and acoustic — played on a corner stage before a crowd estimated at close to 100, including Rathskellar patrons. Admission was $1.00.

"We had Open 'Mic' Nights last year," said C1C Publicity Manager Michelle Cyr. "They were so successful we eventually had to have a sign-up sheet because we couldn't fit them all in."

The performers, all MSC students, entertain strictly for the crowd's and their own enjoyment. "It's personal expression," Cyr said.

In addition, three bands were chosen to perform last night. "They were picked out of a hat, to make it fair," Cyr said.

Mike Dell started things off by saying, "Welcome to Open 'Mic' Night. I'm Mike, and I'm opening." He followed with an acoustic act of three songs: "Go cont. on p. 10

All Around the Campus — Students Speak

Do you think that the additional gates and fences on campus will decrease the amount of car thefts?

"Yes, I am confident in the new system and I'm sure it will reduce the thefts."

Susan Beard, Junior Political science

"Yes. It minimizes the number of exits at crime-prone hours and enables the police to monitor one exit instead of many. Unfortunately, convenience is at times compromised to ensure overall safety."

Daniel E. A. Thomas, Senior
Biology

"Yes, most likely. It might not reduce break-ins, but actually might reduce car thefts, especially down in the pit. We definitely need signs, though; I often get stuck in traffic jams because some gate is closed." -

Jessica Kane, Senior Psychology

"No. An increase of patrolling the lots by campus police would be a better idea. Of course, a competent campus police would help, too."

Ten years ago this week, charges were flying both on and off campus, while five years ago, students were thinking there was no place like home...

Sept. 18, 1980

-ie Good sexually molested — suspect still at large'

A 21-year-old MSC student on her way to a morning class was allegedly molested behind Freeman Hall. According to campus police, a man jumped from the bushes and grabbed her, reaching under her skirt. The student screamed and escaped, and a composite sketch of the suspect was later released to the surrounding area.

-ie Apartment uninhabitable'

Four MSC students with an off-campus apartment contemplated taking their landlord to district court for unfit living conditions. Raymond Stover, the dean of housing, said that the college could only act as a mediator in the students’ situation, and that it was up to them to take action themselves.

Sept. 19, 1985

-ie Oversight leaves residence halls in poor condition'

Returning residents found their rooms and Clove Road apartments damaged as a result of overbooking during summer youth, sports, and handicapped programs. Many complained of broken mirrors and beds, chipped paint, and plumbing and electrical problems. Asbestos removal from the first nine floors of Bohn Hall also left sufficient damage.

Breaking the bank

It was a case of being in the wrong (or right) place at the right time.

Sophomore Anthony Hoban, 20, went to use the automatic teller machine after his film class yesterday when the door locked behind him.

"I was trapped," Hoban said, as members of Phi Alpha Psi Senate gathered around to offer support and suggestions. The door mechanism has been broken since school opened, and in fact, trapped five workers repairing the machine Monday afternoon.

Dr. Doug Tomlinson of the English department arrived on the scene minutes later. "He was just in my class," said Tomlinson, as he attempted to jimmy the lock with a pen.

Tomlinson eventually freed his student by wedging a key between the doorjam. Those gathered around cheered as Hoban emerged, but Tomlinson was quick to downplay his heroics.

"I was coming to use the bank," he said.

Mid-East issues on the table

By George Olschewski
Staff Writer

The table was small, but the issues were large.

The "LaRouche for Justice" campaign set up a table in the Student Center mall Tuesday afternoon, asking students how they felt about the United States’ military presence in the Middle East.

"We’re here to build an anti-war movement against a U.S. military strike against Iraq, and to promote a peace plan based on economic development in the Middle East," said Roger Ham, a campaign spokesperson.

MSC isn’t the only college campus the campaign, named after now-jailed political activist Lyndon LaRouche, is targeting.

"We’re going to campuses all over the nation," Ham said. "College students were very influential in putting an end to the Vietnam War, and we feel that they can help us a lot."

Ham said a campaign member and subscriber to their newspaper, The New Federals, an MSC student he did not identity, insisted that they come to the campus.

to the River," a romantic rendition of "Stormy Weather," and his own composition about peace for all mankind.

Next came the bluegrass-style Vital Element, who was followed later in the evening by Cruise Control and Mental Floss, intermingled with four acoustic acts and a variety of classic and original tunes.

The audience was treated to a surprise act shrouded in secrecy — Texas Tom and the Ape-murdering Yuppies from Mars — that was really SGA president Tony Susco in disguise.

The last-minute entry Electric Ghost closed the evening with Led Zeppelin-style classic rock.

Part of CIC’s yearly $70,000 SGA budget was used for last night’s equipment. The rest is allotted for events such as Tuesday’s upcoming Rap Show (featuring acts from Trenton and Newark), the Battle of the Bands (where performers compete for prize money), and the semester’s big concert.

In the past, MSC has hosted Eddie Money, Little Feat, and Bad English, to name a few. Cyr offered no clues as to whom this year’s act will be, however.

"It isn’t confirmed yet," she said.

After such a week of humor, music, and irony, what could possibly cap it off? Doing it again, of course.

"It was a pretty well-behaved crowd," Creed said. "I’d love to come back."

There are at least three students who would like to see him again.

Are security gates the answer?

Campus Police has attempted to reduce car thefts by installing gates to restrict the flow of traffic leaving campus. Anyone who has tried to leave campus after five o'clock is well aware of this inconvenience. The goal of security is to both limit exit points, and keep a closer watch over vehicles that leave campus in hopes that if someone were to report a brake-in, the thief would be locked in.

According to Campus Police, the idea has been working and there has been a reduction in the amount of cars reported stolen. It would seem that Campus Police has gone overboard by placing gates at every possible location. At $2,200 per gate with 12 gates, the administration might have considered putting some of that money into hiring more police to patrol the lots.

Gates do nothing to prevent break-ins for stereo or vandalism, and are misused in restricting access to Clove Road on weekends. On a Saturday night after 9:00 p.m., there are always several parking spots available that students are denied access to, and are forced to park in the Quarry lot which is the most susceptible to theft and vandalism.

How does Campus Police justify placing two gates less than a hundred feet apart on Quarry Road? And why put two gates on East Quarry Way and West Quarry Way when there is no exit point between them? This is an outlandish waste of money, and serves no purpose in helping to reduce car theft. This is not to mention MSC's incredibly expensive answer to illegal parking. By Freeman Hall, the service road to Valley Road already had a gate at the bottom, but recently a gate was installed at the top to prevent people from parking there. Between Webster and Stone Hall a gate was installed for the sole purpose of preventing students from parking on that street. It would seem that a better solution to stop illegal parking might have been employed rather than spending 4,400 dollars.

Campus Police's orginal idea of restricting exit points to deter theft is a good idea, but the idea was taken too far. Gates should not be just thrown up anywhere, but instead should be carefully placed in order to allow optimum efficiency. Putting up gates everywhere is not the answer to ending problems with break-ins and vandalism, a stricter patrolling of the lots is still the best answer.

Student Voice by Adriana Gale

Thank you, Gov. Florio

Since Governor Florio took office in January 1990, New Jerseyans have experienced the highest tax hike ever, in the history of America.

Within nine short months, Florio has raised tuition, income tax, sales tax, motor vehicle registration and so on. So much debate from angry tax payers happened over the past few months that in August, Florio was forced to address the state on television.

In his speech (WOR-channel 9) he told general New Jerseyans that the reason for taxing us so heavily was because New Jersey is in terrible debt. Well Jim, if New Jersey is indeed in horrible financial shape, then why is he spending an enormous amount of our money to restore parks? Is this not a "luxury" that a state provides when there is surplus of money?

Waste not, want not

Americans throw out 320 billion pounds of garbage a year. That's an INCREASE of 80% since 1960 - and we have just about run out of places to throw it.

You should see the front steps of the Student Center; it's dangerous. I've seen aluminum cans on the shelves and in with paper in the ladies rooms here in the Student Center.

I found an empty paint can hanging from a tree on Webster Road yesterday.

And fresh cantelope & styrofoam on Stone Hall's Lawn this summer.

This is your home away from home. You wouldn't treat your home like this.

Is there any recycling here at Montclair State? You bet! Our new styrofoam cups in the cafeteria shows Wood Inc.'s concern for mankind's survival.

What do you mean, the Lord has only you and me. Well, I'd like you American's yes, each student and faculty/staff person here to pick up two pieces of litter everyday and begin to recycle aluminum cans in College Hall's 1st floor container and, or the 1st and 3rd floor containers! Will we say it's not my business or will we join Hands Across New Jersey in a rally on Trenton on September 23. It is that clear.

Athletic records are, like all other records, important for two main reasons: First, for their historical perspective, and second, for their potential to be broken. As a former track and field and cross country coach, I have read with increasing interest the apparent rewriting of the MSC record book by the current MSC track team. Unfortunately, all is not as it may appear. Coach Blanton’s squad is being misled into thinking that some of their recent performances are “new records”. In fact, many of them are not records at all.

April 5, 1990 - Dover Relays: Two of the “new records” reported at this meet were not records. The claim of a time of 42.0 in the 4 x 100 meter relay was slower than the 1986 team in the same event. Amod Field ran on both teams. At the Rutgers relays in 1986 MSC ran 41.8 to qualify for the Nationals. At the time they were first in Division III. This time was faster than the Dover claim as was the time of 41.75 set by the 1986 team at the Nationals. The most outstanding “new record” claimed by Coach Blanton is 10:49.7 for the Distance Medley Relay, also reported from Dover. In 1971 the MSC men ran 10:79 for this event at the Monmouth Relays. The early 70’s were the glory days of distance running at MSC. Three members of the distance medley team that ran the 10:07 are currently members of the MSC Athletic Hall of Fame as a result of their consistently outstanding performances. This time of 10:07 is a full 42 seconds faster than Coach Blanton’s “new record”. The race was a second place effort, three seconds behind Villanova and well ahead of third place Princeton. (Earlier that week, at the Colonial Relays in Williamsburg, Virginia, the same runners teamed up to run a school record 7:30.2 in the mile relay.)

Howard University Relays, 1990: Abdul Williams runs 400 meters in 48.7. The April 19th issue of the Montclarion reports that: “According to Blanton, it was a new school record”. Yet just four years ago, Godfrey Brown ran 48.5 in 1986, according to Athletic Conference Championships.

This inaccurate reporting did not start this year. In February, 1989, Amod Field ran 2:47.0 in the 800 meter dash at the Vitalis Invitational at the Meadowlands. He won the event with a time of 1:05.1. Coach Blanton was quick to point to this as a “new record.” In fact, in 1988 Amod ran 1:04.68 in this same race and took a second place. What is interesting is that Coach Blanton would have had a program in 1989 and before that in the program a summary of the previous year’s performances. That summary is reproduced here:

ICAC 500 METERS
World’s Record: 1:00.17, Ken Lowery, Indianapolis, Ind., 1/16/87.
Collegiate and ICAC 400 Record, 1:00.84, Michael Green, Navy, Allston, Mass., 3/7/87
Meet Record: 1:01.94, Chip Jenkins, Villanova, 2/12/89, just outside of the cafeteria on the second floor of the Student Center.

Student Board of Trustees expect, that we should prove them dead wrong! We should fight back and oppose any tuition increase!

In last week’s Montclarion, SGA President, Tony Susco wrote that working changes at MSC would affect the students. Of course, he’s right. Yet if there’s another tuition increase, I believe the result will cut deeper. Not only will students be set back, but some will have to stop their education. With each increase in dollars, the very community of students who attend our college will be altered.

The working and lower middle class students will be squeezed out, no longer able to afford a state college education. Black & Latin students will disproportionally be squeezed out. As, if reflective of society’s racism, many of these students come from lower income families.

Further, at this rate of increase, more and more potential students (our brothers, cousins, sisters, friends, and later our own children) won’t even think of attending a state college, for lack of enough money!

This process has to be stopped. Tuition increases are classist and racist and are slowly shifting the door — slamming it — to more and more of us, who merely seek access to quality public education.

Let’s Fight Back!

Angel Mossucco

In 1988 Order to finish: 1) Troy Simon, New York State, 1:05.03; 2) Amod Field, Montclair State, 1:04.68; 3) Mornor Rasdell, Phila. Textil; 4) David Jones, Seton Hall, 1:05.45.

Plainly, Amod’s 1988 time of 1:04.68 was listed for the coach to see. Also in 1989, according to Coach Blanton, Amod was said to have run 1:53.8 “one second off” a qualifying standard in the 800 meters. This was at the Monmouth relays. As stated above, the Monmouth relay result sheet clearly indicates that Amod Field ran 1:56.9, well off the time Coach Blanton gave him. Also in 1989 Coach Blanton reported that Field’s performance of 52.2 in the 400 meter Intermediate Hurdles broke the school record of 52.4. However, Amod already had run 52.2 two years earlier in 1987 in the State meet at Palmer Stadium.

What is so troubling in this matter is the apparent lack of honesty as well as a lack of checking on the official results. Generally, the host team sends the official meet results to the college sports information director (SID). The SID confirms with the coach and the athletic director to review the results. In this way authentication and integrity of the results are assured. This college needs to revamp its current procedure whereby the track coach deals with the results as he sees fit. New records, legitimately made are in the best spirit of competition. Records which are made-up are reprehensible. It is totally unfair to give student athletes the sense that they are record holders when, in fact, they are often very far from it. For those who truly do set new records, the honor of that achievement should bear representative significance.

Hyped over the tuition hike

I’m angry, as I believe all MSC students should be. Last week, this school’s President, Dr. Irvin Reid, told the representatives of our Student Government Association (SGA) that he’d probably have to raise tuition—Again!

As a legislator I sat there and listened, without even posing a question, for he made it very clear: There would probably be no other available money; we’d just have to pay more.

Later my senses were revitalized, and I realized that this is an absurd phenomenon, a deadening process to which many of us succumb when we allow ourselves to make rationalizations for actions inherently against our interest. When we allow school administrators to tell us, as students, that it’s in our interest to give them more of our money.

It’s not in our interest. It’s against our interest.

The student population here is a working population. Most hold part or fulltime jobs and attend classes, in order to pay the tuition at its present cost. What if it is going up? Is it then in our interest to work more hours? Or to work the same number of hours while giving the college more of our pay? Or should we, because we happen not to have been born into wealthier families, just drop out of school altogether?

If any of these are what the administration or Board of Trustees expect, than we should prove them dead wrong! We should fight back and oppose any tuition increase!

On Thursday night September six, I went to Clove Road with a few of my friends expecting to relax, have fun, and reacquaint myself with friends who I have not seen since last semester. Instead, I was apprehended, handcuffed, and carted away by Campus Police. Not because I was intoxicated, or because I was being disorderly discourteous in a disparaging fashion. I was publicly humiliated (along with 12 other students) merely because I was holding a squeeze bottle containing a compound alcohol.

I’m sure I speak for the majority of the student body when I say that this incident will have only negative repercussions. Undoubtedly an attempt by the Campus Police to intimidate students, the action taken on that Thursday night was the first step toward a “dry campus” and a “dry” Clove Road. It is unfortunate that authorities do not realize that making MSC a “dry” campus will only lead to off-campus partying, with more at risk due to inevitable alcohol/ automobile combination.

The unjustified harassment by campus police has already angered many Clove Rd. residents, and a lot have said that they intend to find off-campus housing for their remaining years here at MSC. Another factor is that the administration is now reducing attendance at football games. Why should students bother to support their team if they will be subjected to harassment at post-game gatherings by the Campus Police?

I am not condoning alcohol abuse. I am simply saying that underaged drinking is not prevented by inciting fear that they will be assaulted, such as last Thursday’s, and that the Campus Police should rethink their priorities or risk creating a “commuter” college.
The dispatch of U.S. troops to Saudi Arabia is a disaster for students, workers, and the vast majority of the U.S. population. MSC should add its voice to the growing outcry from around the country: This war is against our interests.

The American mass media have acted as government propaganda agencies: as a Newday columnist admitted, “The Media Became Cheerleaders for War.”

Stopping aggression? The U.S. government supports Israeli occupation of parts of Jordan (since 1967) and Lebanon. And what about U.S. invasions of Grenada in 1983, and Panama just last December? The truth is: no government on earth commits more aggression than the U.S.

Supporting democracy? The Emir of Kuwait is an absolute feudal dictator, more than 80% of whose subjects have no rights whatever. The same is true of Saudi regime.

Protecting “our” oil supplies? It was U.S. oil companies, and U.S. allies like the Saudis, that raised oil prices. Meanwhile, American experts agree Kuwait was taken from Iraq by the British, and has been stealing Iraqi oil for decades, just as Iraq has charged (N.Y. Times, 9/30/90).

Why has the Bush Administration spread all these (and other) lies? To hide the truth – because, if the truth were known, the American population would angrily oppose him.

First: U.S. soldiers were sent to defend the profits of a few large American oil companies. We are all made to pay billions, and American soldiers likely to fight and die, so that obscenely rich companies may become even richer. The second purpose is to shore up U.S. influence abroad, declining in the face of European (especially German) and Japanese economic advances.

The use of military force abroad to defend the profits of private corporations is called imperialism. Imperialism is always disguised and justified by high-sounding phrases - “spreading freedom and democracy,” “protecting our way of life.”

Patriotism - a form of intense propaganda or brainwashing - is used to make us think that we are, somehow, obligated to pay and die for the profits of corporations that dictate U.S. government policies. Racism and anti-communism - more brainwashing - are used to turn us against workers, farmers, students and others abroad who oppose exploitation are our enemies. The truth is just the opposite.

The Bush Administration is telling us, in effect, that paying and dying for the oil company’s profits is “in our interest.” We’ve heard this lie before - during the Vietnam War. The truth is, these imperialist ventures blood working people dry. Education, health care, housing, and other services are all cut back drastically to pay for war. Young men are sent to waste their lives to fatten some millionaires’ purses.

Jobs are lost, too. When imperialism is successful corporations invest abroad to exploit the super-cheap labor and resources of foreign countries, creating unemployment at home. Unemployment and the threat of moving abroad push wages down. Taxes skyrocket to pay for war and weaponry. Though necessary to supply oil at a reasonable price? What then? Have any of the 13 military, geo-political threats to our vital national interest changed at all, except that Hussein will have to bide his time a bit longer? And time will be on his side.

In 1935 had France’s army prevented Germany from annexing the Rhineland (for which Germany had plenty of “moral” reasons for doing), that would not have meant that there would have been no Godesburg or Munich or the attack in 1939, on Poland. Had Neville Chamberlain, by his appeasement and lack of will to have Englishmen fight and die, really been able to obtain “peace in our time,” most Englishmen would have cheered him, as they did indeed cheer him when he flew home and got off his plane waving the paper that he had signed with Hitler’s signatured promise in his hand. But it was not so. It was only no war then (when Germany was weaker). It was to be war later, in 1939, when Germany was stronger.

Nor should it be a case of what happens if our CIA orchestrates a palace coup, and Hussein is assassinated and his muttled body hung by his heels for CBS and NBC to gloat upon, as Rather interviews the new rulers of Iraq, who promise to be good, but who still possess the Iraqi army, the Russian/French planes and missiles, all that poison gas, all thatatheal, all that fanagic Arab nationalism, all those half-burned U.S. flags, and all those near-finished atom bomb plants.

No. My informant’s logic seems to be saying, come Columbus Day, or Armistic Day, 1990, the Iraqi military potential must be destroyed, wasted, once for all. It will cost American lives but this spilling of American blood cannot be prevented by some “diplomatic” solution. There is no such viable diplomatic solution–none. The spilling of our blood can only be postponed until that time when more blood will be spilled, and when we have so much less of a chance to win.

My informant was not willing to state this conclusion in so many words. But that is where his informed logic led. If we do not strike now (and wipe out those 13 points) the spilling of that greater amount of American blood will later be on our hands, but on others’-well meaning but historically less informed.

Eastern Standards

By Audrey Regan
Staff Writer

Standards are funny things. They’re not etched in stone, and yet they’re not written in sand either. They can be completely different for a Bayonne housewife than for a Brazilian monk. They can be self made, handed-down or influenced by society. Normally standards are a combination of all three.

But when living in the big sloppy city, standards tend to become as obscured as the skyline. Or do they?

"Eastern Standard" now playing at the Studio Theatre, Life Hall, depicts 80’s life in big sloppy New York City through the relationships of 6 characters.

Written by Richard Greenberg and directed by Tim Herman, this play is especially applicable to N.Y., but does it do it an injustice?

written in sand either. They can be

The title of this play, "Eastern Standard"

But wait. There’s another relationship to consider (That of sisterly love?)
between a schizophrenic homeless woman Mae and a young starving actress/waitress, Ellen.

Ellen’s standards are trying to make it in the world of theater. Or, does she want to lie in the sand all day and be permanent housekeeper at Stephen’s?

Mae's standards change with the wind.
One minute she’s grateful for the hospitality of her new found friends-the next minute she’s running off with their valuables.

What does director Tim Herman think of all this? "It’s about love..."

Love? What about standards? Is this universal love? or-just Eastern love? Is this Eastern Standard Love? or Standard
Eastern love?

Or is this universal love as seen in a uniquely Eastern Standard? Are these standards uniquely Eastern?

Good play, great acting, bad title.

Gene Loves Jezebel gives "Kiss of Life"

By Robert Bilotti
Staff Writer

Gene Loves Jezebel has always been a band of deception. In the past, they have worn more makeup than most women dressed a few crosses, and held their hair and equally powerful voices.

Underneath the exterior of Gene Loves
Jezebel, however, lies a basic rock-n-roll band. The Band’s distinction, however, derives from the way they mix these ingredients, a characteristic that has held them apart from their peers as well as gaining dedicated fans over the release time of their first four albums.

Well, the past is in the past. It is 1990, Michael Anton (one of the twins) has left the band, the makeup has come off, and Kiss Of Life is released. Drastic changes you might say. Not in the area of music. Kiss Of Life picks up where the 1987 album House Of Dolls leaves off, which musically, is not a bad direction.

Kiss Of Life is a celebration of life in more ways than one. The band has always had an optimistic outlook on life.
They consider it something to be treasured. The recording sessions for the latest album reflects and intensifies this viewpoint. To explain: Kiss Of Life was recorded in San Francisco last year around the time of the World Series, which was also around the time of the massive San Fran Earthquake.

"Jealous" is the first single off the album, an instant hit for alternative and classic-rockers alike. GLJ has already had "crossover"form music. The song sounds good on the radio or dancefloor, as long as it is cranked up to 10.

The main lyrical subjects of Kiss Of Life, as with past albums, is relationships and women, and I don’t mean songs about sex and whistling at the blonde beauty of women and people in general.

Cheap Fun
by John Paul

This week’s topic is purchasing videos. No, I’m not talking about your average $24.95 hot (or not-so-hot) flick. Why the hell should you shell out that kind of money for a piece of crap that cast Justine Batemen in the lead just because Linda Blair was tied up shooting a “High Society” layout that week. What we’ll be dealing with here are tapes that sell for under $10.00. Why buy tapes when you can rent them, you may ask? Well, since the average rental is about $3.00 per night and you know you never return any tape less than a day late, it makes some sense, no? Be mindful that many of the titles listed below are in the public domain. That translates to: “anybody with two VCR’s can copy and sell them.”

As a result, a number are not produced on the best quality tape. Now, if your folks bought you the machine because you convinced them that it would be used expressly for viewing instructional videos, you need not be concerned. If your heads get screwed up it doesn’t matter—they’ll buy you a new one. If, however, you used your own savings to make the purchase, alternating play with a good quality studio-tape will generally keep head wear to a minimum.

While the following list is by no means comprehensive, it does reflect my own impeccable taste and should be adhered to as closely as possible if you want to keep me happy.

1) “Superman” - We’re not talking about the movie here. These were series of cartoons produced by the Fleischer studios in the early 1940’s, which put most of Disney’s pop to shame. Look for a tape with a good-sized collection, a dozen or so, not the ones which have one or two Supermans and a Little Audrey. A word of warning—if the ethnic stereotyping prevalent during this era in Hollywood offends you, it may be wise to skip this one.

2) “Fantastic Planet” - This French animated feature from 1973 actually has a 1960’s feel to it. This is not all that amazing from a country that has defiled Jerry Lewis. Anyway, years ago, when your parents would get stoned and go into the city to a theater the size of their VW van, this undoubtfully was one of the films they saw. It’s an ideal item to pop in when a few friends are over and Dad’s home, just to watch him explain to them how a 3-inch tall cartoon character with Barry Bostwick’s voice helped shape his value system.

3) “Tales From the Crypt” - Predating the HBO series by nearly two decades, this 1973 British anthology features more literal adaptations of Bill Gaines’ stories, but is played a bit too straight. While it is most gratifying to see Joan Collins meet with a bloody, painful end in the first segment, it’s the final one, “Blind Alley’s,” that really cuts to the bone. Ouch.

4) “Man From U.N.C.L.E.” - Yet another cartoon. These were made in Japan in the 1960’s and dubbed in English. The title character is a humanoid super-hero robot who also goes by the name “Tobor.” That’s Tobor spelled backwards, cute, eh? There are suspicions that R.J. Reynolds may have had a hand in the creation of this video classic. Tobor recharges his run-down batteries by smoking a ciga-ette. Yeah, here’s a role model.

5) “Quick Draw McGraw” - Okay, so I like cartoons. At least I’m consistent. These shorts produced for television by Hanna-Barbera in the early 1960’s are among their best. They are pretty darn witty, and the art is nice. However, as per everything else this studio has produced, the animation itself is about as fluid as Kate Hepburn on rollerblades.

6) “Little Shop of Horrors” - No, I don’t mean the overproduced musical that made Rick Moranis a household name but is played a bit too straight. While it is most gratifying to see Joan Collins meet with a bloody, painful end in the first segment, it’s the final one, “Blind Alley’s,” that really cuts to the bone. Ouch.

7) “Man From U.N.C.L.E.” - Yet another cartoon. These were made in Japan in the 1960’s and dubbed in English. The title character is a humanoid super-hero robot who also goes by the name “Tobor.” That’s Tobor spelled backwards, cute, eh? There are suspicions that R.J. Reynolds may have had a hand in the creation of this video classic. Tobor recharges his run-down batteries by smoking a ciga-ette. Yeah, here’s a role model.

8) “Strange Tales” - This 1986 HBO production of a trilogy of Ray Bradbury’s stories, hosted by the author, is in the same vein as Tales From The Crypt, but with less blood and jiggles. In fact, in back in the 1950’s, E.C. Comics “bro- rowed” some of his stories for their magazines, initially without his permission. The highpoint of the tape is the middle segment, in which the viewer is treated to a pre-“Betty Ford” Drew Barrymore attempting to act sober.

9) “Texas Chainsaw Massacre” - Tobie Hooper’s 1974 classic is really quite tame by today’s standards. But, its historical significance as the vanguard of a new sub-genre of horror film cannot be overlooked. Its subtle underlying theme of the adolescent fear of isolation and abandonment link it closely to the much better accepted genre of “coming of age” fiction. And, it made my mom puke.

10) “Greystoke” - I’ll admit it, I’m cheating with this last one. It’s not a cheapie public domain flick. But, any video store that has been around for a few years will sell you a good used copy at way below list. For some reason it never gets rented. It may be because the jerks at the counter insist on displaying it between Sybil Danning and Chuck Norris. Anyway, this 1983 production is a far and away the finest retelling of Burroughs’ Tarzan legend ever put on film. A classic romance-pure and simple. So, invite the current love of your life over, toss this baby in the machine, pop the popcorn, unscrew the cap from the Night Train, check the protection selection, get a blood sample, and...wait for a younger sibling or a roommate to barge in.

The Montclarion/Thursday, September 20, 1990

Calendar

Theater

Outpost in the Burbs, a theater group at 40 S. Fullerton Ave., Montclair, is holding meetings on Sunday, Sept. 22nd, at 2 pm. All interested in working on any aspect of "The Fairytale of Oscar Wilde" (a musical), call Steve at 744-4858. Players will be presenting "Danny and the Deep Blue Sea" October 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 at 8:00 pm and October 8th at 2:15 in Rm 126 of the Student Center Annex. Ticket revenues will be donated to charity.

Popcorn Playhouse kicks off the new season with Tom Chapin in concert Nov 17 at 3pm at Montclair High School Auditorium. For info call 744-1717.

Poetry

The deadline for the America Poetry Association’s contest is September 30. The contest is open to everyone, and entry is free. The Grand Prize is $1,000. There are 152 prizes worth $11,000 in all. Poets should send one original poem (no more than 20 lines, and name and address on the top of the page) to the American Poetry Association, Dept. Co-84, 250-A Potrero St., PO Box 1803 Santa Cruz, CA 95061. Entries must be postmarked by September 30. A new contest opens October 1.

The Poets Forum will begin its 1990-1991 season at the JCC in West Orange on Tuesday, Oct 8.

Art

Christo, the controversial artist known for shrouding immense sections of landscape in plastic wrap, will be the topic of discussion at an open house Sept. 27 at Montclair Art Museum. The evening begins at 7, with cocktails and snacks, followed by 3 videos dealing with Christo’s work, and then an informal discussion. The program is free to museum members, and $5 for non. Call the Museum at 746-5555 for more information.

Art Forum, a lecture series sponsored by the Art Dept. at MSC is hosting the following: Sept 20, Rimer Cardillo. A sculptor and printmaker, who incorporates Latin American cultural history and the use and potential of objects; Sept 27, Farley Tobin. A tilemaker who will show slides of her work, and discuss her development as a tilemaker, and its use in architecture.

The Montclair Art Museum will also be exhibiting watercolors inspired by the eruption of Krakatoa in 1883. Charles Parsons, the painter, worked as a magazine illustrator, and therefore they are tiny. They reflect late 19th century tastes in art. Parsons lived in Montclair for about 10 years. The paintings are now part of the museums permanent collection, and will be on display until Feb 10, 1991. Call the museum for hours and information at 746-5555.

While you are at the museum, check out the lecture and slide show by Toshiko Takaazu, ceramist, on Tues, Oct 2 at 10am.

Music

The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will open their 68th season on Thursday, Oct 4 at 8pm at the John Harms Center for the Arts in Englewood. Concert will feature Copland’s “Fanfare for the Common Man” and Symphony No.3.

The Folk Project will be having an open stage on Oct 5, open to all acoustic musicians. Performers should arrive at 7:30 to sign up for a fifteen minute performance. Show starts at 8:30. For more information, 335-9489.

This style goes back to previous releases such as "Desire" and "Gorgeous" and can be heard on such cuts as "Kiss Of Life" and "Walk Away". A Monologue preceedes "Walk Away": "As a child, I'd sit upon a hill and look out over the city/ Counting the stars one by one/ Until I reached the sun./ That's where you are/ That's who you are."

"Two Shadows" details the split of the band and the split-up of two brothers who have worked side-by-side in rock-n-roll for over 10 years. Hesitant at first, the remaining brother, Jay Aston, feels confident of what he considers the "new" Gene Loves Jezebel. His confidence is confirmed with songs like "Tangled Up In You" and "Evening Star", which highlight the album. The album’s optimism comes through the listening. Pick it up and check it out. If you do not like it, at least you can impress your friends because you have an album by a band with a funny name that they never heard of.....yet.

The Bottom Line
by Matt Wintter

The old Jets offensive scheme of run, run, pass and punt is now bringing the Pittsburgh Steelers to the depths of the AFC East. Just that Walton is a better memory, the die hard fans of Giants Stadium’s other tenant have hope for a bright future. In his first pro Home coaching debut, the Jets beat an inept Cleveland Browns team 24-21.

As the game came to a close, the thoughts of many fans were the same. If only they could have held on against Cincinnati. True, an opening day win over the Boomer Bunch would have been sweet. However, football is a four-quarter sport. So far in the two game season, the Jets have not found the quarter sport. So far in the two game season, the Jets have exceeded the expectations of youth and inexperience line them up, away from the tools to put a team away, but for some unexplainable reason can’t get it done.

Despite Sunday’s three point win, the Browns were able to make it interesting outscoring the Jets in the second half 14-0. Remember, the Browns aren’t exactly the new team of the AFC. So what happens when a stronger team faces the Jets and like in Cincinnati get caught from behind late in the game? Do we have to hear the excuses of youth and inexperience for letting games slip away that should have been over by the third quarter?

So far, the Jets have exceeded the expectations of the media and its fans. Anything the Jets do right during a rebuilding stage is a positive. However, if the Jets can find the “killer instinct” quality they so desperately need, an 8-8 season could be more than just a nice surprise. Surprise. Surprise. The Miami Dolphins are 2-0 and alone in first place in the AFC East for the first time since 1984. After an impressive come from behind win against the Patriots and a sound beating of the Bills, the Dolphins will show what they are really made of when they face the Giants at the Meadowlands.

The Giants are a surprise to no one as they played with the Dallas Cowboys posting a 28-7 victory to also be at 2-0. The battle of the undefeated at the Meads is the best game of week 3 of the NFL slate. Both All-World linebacker Lawrence Taylor and Dolphin quarterback Dan Marino will line up against one another for the first time in their illustations careers.

The Dolphins have been the early season surprise. For the last five years, Don Shula has relied on Marino’s arm and an occasional player to win big games. Last year was different with the new found ground attack led by second year running back Sammie Smith. The former Florida State star has rushed for 215 yards and four touchdowns over the two Dolphin wins.

The Miami offensive attack has been helped considerably by offensive linemen Richmond and Kennedy who have each been named to the all-pro team. The two along with recently signed veteran Roy Foster have given holes for Smith to run through and timing for Marino to throw the ball. Although Marino has been sacked fewer times in the last five years than any other quarterback, it is due largely to his quick release and not blocking. While the number of times Marino has been sacked is usually minimal, the number of hurried passes has steadily increased. Thus the necessity to draft offensive lineman was painfully obvious.

For Sunday’s contest, the Dolphins may have to try to get by without receiver Mark Clayton who didn’t play last week with an injured hamstring. Clayton’s injury is the same one he suffered early in training camp forcing him to miss two weeks of summer action. If Clayton isn’t ready, Marino will be looking for big afternoons from Tony Martin, Andre Brown, and an aging Mark Duper.

The big question is can Marino get the time he needs to throw against Big Blue? It is an extremely tough call but the more experienced Giant defensive line has a definitive edge. Simms and Webb are two of the brightest young linemen in the game, but even the craftiest veterans have found that stopping Giants honor roll to throw anything but a walk in the park. The inexperienced line will help Leonard Marshall more than anything else. Marshall has two lackluster games under his belt after a long holdout and this could be his game to get back on track.

The Giants defensive backs also will be dealing with inexperienced receivers. With Clayton not at 100%, Walls and Duerson should not have a major problem stopping Martin and Brown. Although Duper doesn’t lack big game experience he has slowed significantly and is merely a shell of his old Pro Bowl form. However, Marino is only as good as when he gets the defense away from his primary target by looking the defense off whoever he is throwing to. This along with his patented quick release allows for more completed passes.

The edge for the Giants continues on the other side of the ball. Despite what the Dolphins showed last week, their run defense is still suspect. The Dolphins are one of the leagues poorest tackling teams and have been terrible at stopping the run for years. The Giants should be able to control the Fish D-line the same way they did Dallas.

Phil Simms will find it difficult to pass against the Dolphins if he decides to look downfield. Louie Oliver and newly acquired Tim McKeye have solidified what was the NFL’s worst secondary. However, Simms could easily exploit the Dolphins linebackers who with the exception of John Offerdahl greatly lack speed.

The Vegas line makes the Giants a solid touchdown favorite. The seven looks so good to take, but that’s what Mr. Bookmaker wants. Even though the Meadowlands is a friendly place for Marino, a pumped Giants team and the Giants 20 Dolphins 10.

The other favorite, Doug Fresh, All-Stars features a line-up which includes four members from the all-Montclair softball team of last spring. They are Steve Pizza, Bob Capelli, Julio Ramos and Fresh himself. Also contributing to this strong line-up will be outfielders Matt Wintter and Jeff Kowaleck and pitcher Gary Ferraro.

I pick these guys to win the championship due to the abundance of solid hitting and the quality Ferraro’s pitching.

Another strong contender in this league should be the Midnight Digs, who are a merger between the Midnight Tokers and the Clam-Diggers. This team is led by slugging Dan Roberts and S.I.L.C. President. The qualifications for making the squad includes hitting for average and power, fielding ability, and importance to his team.

Paul's Preview
by Paul Cioffi
with Matt Wintner

As an added feature to the Montclair's weekly football coverage, All-American Defensive End Paul Cioffi will be giving the reader an inside look of each upcoming game. This week Montclair State sets its sights on the Wagner Seahawks in the 12th annual Pride Bowl.

"We're honored to partake in a game with a good cause, but most of all we get to renew a rivalry that had a year off due to conflicting schedules.

Team Objectives
"Our main goals for this week will have to be to eliminate penalties and control the line of scrimmages on both sides of the ball. The defensive hogs have to take a ferocious Wagner "D" and turn them into swiss cheese.

"Defensively, we must swarm the football, play hard non-stop football for 4 quarters, and intimidate their offensive line.

Just Another Game
"We are not going into this game with a revenge factor in mind. This is another game on the way to a long term goal which will hopefully be a playoff birth and possible national championship.

Game Day
"I expect a hard-hitting, close game early. The hogs will wear down Wagner and a concrete "D" will set the tone."

Red Hawks claw ESU 23-6

By Matt Wintner

Freshman quarterback Steve Banas threw for two touchdowns and the defensive unit looked mah-velous as the Red Hawks pounded East Stroudsburg 23-6 Saturday night at Sprague Field.

Despite losing four defensive starters to graduation, Coach Giancola's squad has not let up a touchdown in their first two contests. Senior defensive back Almar "Moo Moo" Dyer credits the defensive success to a positive attitude. "I think our defense is more aggressive and everyone is coming to play. Everyone has turned it up a couple of notches," Dyer said.

MSC opened up its lead to 10-0 when Banas connected on a 18 yard strike and bounce back late in the first half putting together a 76-yard drive, culminating with an Ed Detwiller field goal to make the score 10-3. The ESU field goal came with just 43 seconds remaining in the half, but the Red Hawks would answer back scoring on another Jim Young field goal on the final play of the half.

Derrick McCoy took the ESU kickoff to midfield and the Hawks were able to drive 28 yards on just three plays, leading to the Young three pointer. Montclair State headed to the lockerroom with a 13-3 halftime lead and would never look back.

The Hawks continued to open it up in the second half, scoring on a 74-yard opening drive. The key play of the drive was a Banas to Harris short sideline pass that Harris turned into a pretty 60-yard pass play. With the ball at the ESU 12, the Banas to Harris show continued as the two hooked up for their second TD of the contest to give MSC a healthy 17 point lead.

After the touchdown, the two teams exchanged field goals to bring the final score to 23-6. The Hawks are now 2-0 as they head coming Ramapo team 31-14, needs to try and bounce back against a Red Hawk team that has allowed just 6 points in two games.

MSC must be ready for this contest, as a second Seahawk loss could mean no invitation to the NCAA post season fiesta for Wagner.

Montclair and Wagner battled it out in the 1988 Pride Bowl with Wagner drubbing Montclair 51-28. Despite the significance of the game, Coach Giancola is taking no special measures to gear up his squad. "It's a great rivalry between two good teams, but we're looking at it as game number three," Giancola said.

All proceeds from the Pride Bowl goes to Project Pride, an organization which consists of 19 different programs and benefits approximately 15,000 Newark youths. Project Pride also provides scholarships for athletics and education. Game time is scheduled for 1:30 at Irvington High School.

It's Gooooood! MSC placekicker Jim Young hits a 31-yard field goal in the closing seconds of the first half. Young connected on 3 of 4 attempts, missing a 47-yard try.

Soccer: men roll, women stumble

The MSC men's soccer team has already faced some of the toughest competition that Division III has to offer.

The team traveled to William Smith College this past weekend to participate in a weekend tournament. In first round action, MSC faced tournament host William Smith, currently ranked number one in Division III. The Red Hawks were soundly beaten 7-0. The following day MSC dropped a 4-0 decision at the hands of eighth ranked Skidmore College.

Despite the two losing efforts MSC head coach, Peter Latartara said the games were a good learning experience. He added, "The team matured a tremendous amount."

MSC has yet to earn a victory, posting an 0-4 record.

The Red Hawks first game in the school's history was the closest they had come to a win. At home against Stockton State, MSC lost 2-1. Coach Latartara said the players were nervous, especially in the first half. However, in the second half he noted his team played "a very even game."

The other loss was a 5-0 defeat to Drew University, another tough competitor.

Putting the teams' record aside, Latartara gave his thoughts on what he is trying to instill in his team. He said, "I want to teach the players how to play the game the correct way, by a lot of movement and skill. We must have tough competition to learn this."

Taking a slightly different approach, Latartara said, "We have to earn our bruises."

For this season Latartara said if the team reached four victories, it would be tremendous. The main goal for the team, he added, is to build up a strong defense. A balanced team is thinking of the future, he said. MSC is currently ranked number one in Division III and is trying to earn a NCAA post season berth.
